

FIERCE BATTLE RAGES AND LOSSES FOR BOTH GERMANS AND ALLIES IS TERRIBLE

VIENNA IS BEING FORTIFIED

Von Kluck Hurts Tremendous Force Against Allies Left Wing and Neither Side is Able to Make Progress--Austrians Awake to Rapid Advance of Russians

BULLETIN

Berlin, Oct. 2.—An official statement of the war office tonight says: "Russian prisoners at Crossen Prussia attempted to escape during a storm. Three were killed and eight were wounded by the guards. The siege of Antwerp is making progress. The Germans occupied Malines."

(Special to the Press.)

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—News is received here from Chili that a Union oil tank steamer flying the British flag, was sunk by the German Cruiser Leipzig off the coast of Chili.

(Special to the Press.)

New York, Oct. 2.—It was learned today that over nine hundred thousand towels are now on the way to Europe for the armies in the field. A million more will be on the way soon. Brokers, representing the allied armies several days ago asked for a million and a half of towels for immediate delivery. The cannon mills of North Carolina could only supply six hundred thousand at once. The remainder will be shipped soon.

(Special to the Press.)

Paris, 11 p. m., Oct. 2.—The following statement was issued tonight: "Our left, one of our detachments, which was moving forward from Arras has fallen back somewhat to the north and east of that town. North of Somme we have advanced beyond Albert. Between Roye and Launoy, the enemy undertook violent attacks which have been broken by our resistance. Calm prevails along the rest of the front. Reports state that the approaches to St. Mihiel are now free from the hostile force on the left bank of the Meuse."

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—The German embassy tonight gave out the following wireless from the German foreign office dated Sept. 30: "Decision in the gigantic battle still hangs in the air. French attacks from Verdun and Toul were repulsed. The siege at Antwerp is progressing; two forts are already silenced. Mechlin is occupied. The chief surgeon of the German army reported to the Kaiser that the field hospital at Orchies was attacked by the French; he had to leave, leaving 35 wounded. The following day the Germans returned and found the German wounded with their noses and ears cut off."

(Special to the Press.)

Petrograd, Oct. 2.—The general staff issued the following statement tonight: "A division of Russian cavalry obtained a brilliant success against the advance guards of Germans leaving Andrejew, government of Kielce, Russian Poland, in the direction of the city of Kielce. The enemy was surprised and threw down their arms and ammunition and fled, while the Russian cavalry cut up a laggard detachment. German operations in Russian territory nearly all failed, their artillery being defenseless on the roads, which are not macadamized. Most batteries became stuck in the mud as soon as they leave the principal routes."

(Special to the Press.)

London, Oct. 2.—The official press bureau of the Admiralty tonight issued a statement covering the work of the royal naval air service with the allies of France. It said: "Advance bases were established some distance inland and on several occasions skirmishes occurred between the armed motor car support of the aeroplane bases and bands of Uhlans. All terminated successfully for our forces with considerable losses to the enemy in killed and wounded."

(Special to the Press.)

Rome, Oct. 2.—A special message to the Tribunal from Vienna by messenger across the frontier says that although Vienna is distant from the present battle fields yet the military authorities have decided to construct defensive works around the city in view of a probable Russian advance. Until a few days ago the dispatch says the citizens believed the Austrian army gloriously victorious. Refugees brought the first news of Galician reverses. Word of Russian progress was later confirmed by the construction of fortifications on hills surrounding the city. The population is panic stricken.

By Gerard Morgan. In France, Oct. 2.—(Locality Deleted by Censor)—It is not generally recognized how completely northwestern France has been evacuated by the Germans. The truth is that Lille is now absolutely beyond the scene of operations. The farthest west of Von Kluck's many lines of communication are roads, railway tracks from St. Quentin to Cambrai through Valenciennes and Mons to Brussels. Next comes a line from St. Quentin to Namur through Maudeuge. It is no secret that the French are threatening the first of these lines of communication. Little by little the battle fronts approach the frontier, being carried back to Belgium fields. Von Kluck is trying to break through the French net through the angle of the Aisne and Somme rivers. I venture to predict that Germany will resign the game but when the ordinary observer will not guess for the Kaiser, if beaten, as in Chess, a master like Germany will be quick to realize a position which cannot be saved.

(Special to the Press.)

Paris, Oct. 2.—The battle of the Roye—a battle within a battle—the keystone of the German resistance upon which rests the invader's success or failure, was renewed with great violence and desperation today. Vigorous attacks directed by the heavily reinforced army of Von Kluck against the allies positions in a titanic effort to cut through the allies line and break the northward extending movement designed to turn the German right and envelop it. Repeated assaults broke and crumpled when they reached the allies lines. Time after time the Germans were driven back only to return. The fighting is still going on with terrific losses on both sides. Hour after hour the steel wall of the allies is being stretched more to the northward. The left wing detachment reached Arras and moved out to meet the invaders. After the engagement they retired to the east and north of Arras. This engagement eclipses any of the series of conflicts so far in the twenty days of the battle of the Aisne for magnitude and ferocity of the encounter.

BRIDEGROOM CHANGES MIND; AFFAIR IS OFF

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 2.—One hour's delay by Probate Judge Hanley, Tuesday caused a change of heart in a young man who had gone to court with his sweetheart to be married, and will result in Judge Hanley adopting a new course in the future toward all applicants for the marriage rites.

Each of the two was past majority age, so that it was not necessary that the probate judge perform the ceremony, but it was denied that it be secret and the probate court is the only "clerk" in this respect. They approached Judge Hanley just as he was ready to open court. He told them to wait an hour until the hearings were over. When he returned to his office he found the pair leaving. The man had changed his mind.

Judge Hanley says he will make all couples wait in future so that both parties will have an opportunity to think the matter over well.

CRAB INDUSTRY

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 2.—Crab fishing is now one of the recognized industries of Wisconsin. Handling the little crustaceans has become a regular business only recently in this state. This year prospects of all records will be broken. Statistics showing the number of crabs shipped from this section of Wisconsin will no doubt be a revelation to many. A conservative estimate of the entire crab catch for the 1914 season, in and around Green Bay would be something close to 4,000,000 crabs.

ARMY IN POWER

(Special to the Press.) Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—That Mexico's affairs will be handled by the military element and Carranza will be eliminated from power is the conclusion drawn by the state department officials from reports received from Mexico today. The Carranza conference at Mexico City is reported to be packed in the interest of Carranza. Its deliberations will be disregarded by Villa and the military leaders allied with him. The conference of military chiefs is a Villa conference and it will control the military situation in Mexico.

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—The president and secretaries Bryan and Daniels discussed the Mexican situation today. It afterwards became known is the present plan of the administration to keep both troops and warships in Mexico until the situation created by Villa's revolt clarifies.

Official announcement was made that no troops will be withdrawn before October 11. No time was fixed for the control of the port of Vera Cruz.

PRESIDENT OPENS WRITING CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—President Wilson today opened his letter writing campaign for the election of Democratic senators and representatives. He wrote letters indorsing Senator Shively of Indiana and Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. Others will be written in the near future.

In his letter Senator Owen, indorsing Senator Chamberlain, the President declared that "the maintenance of the Democratic majority in the senate of the utmost importance to the country if the present policies and programme of the government are to be sustained and continued, and I take it for granted that voters everywhere will feel the force of that motive."

The letter indorsing Senator Shively was addressed to Majority Leader Kern of the senate and was as follows: "I am genuinely surprised that any question should have arisen as to whether I want Senator Shively returned. I do most decidedly wish it. I have admired Senator Shively's steadfast devotion to duty and to the standards of the party and his unflinching loyalty in all matters of public policy, as all his party associates have and I learned to have a very warm personal feeling and admiration for him. It would, in my judgment, be a very great loss to the party and to the senate if he should not be re-elected. I trust that there is no doubt of his re-election."

"May I not add a word of cordial appreciation of the whole Indiana delegation in congress? The members of the house have stood by the administration with unflinching generosity and spirit and have made me feel a very deep interest in the political fortunes of every one of them. "I need not tell you, my dear senator, why my sentiments are towards yourself."

WOMAN IN PANIC; FINDS A BIG BEAR

Frankfort, Mich.—When Mrs. James Brown of Honor, near here, returned from a neighbor's house she heard a soft pad, pad, pad, behind her. At first she thought it was a dog following her, but when she reached a corner, where a light shone from a window, she was panic-stricken to find a large black bear was trotting along at her heels. With a scream she burst into a neighboring house. When a searching party started out a little later they were unable to do more than track the bear into the Platte lake swamp near the village. The next day a small boy came across bruis as he was munching on elderberries. The big swamp near the village is supposed to be the home of several bears, although Honor is the county seat of Benzie county, and is in the heart of a rich fruit and farming section.

Perhaps, never in the history of the Northern peninsula has there been such interest taken by residents of one locality, removed by distance so far, as the people of Escanaba have taken in the Cloverland Farmers' Fair of Stephenson. Stephenson is located on the main line of the C. & N. W. Ry, 44 miles from Escanaba. The residents of Stephenson have long since challenged the admiration of the energetic and progressive men of Escanaba by their persistent efforts to boost Stephenson. Nor have they depended on publicity alone, they have acted, and acted in no uncertain way. Undaunted by expense or the possible failure of their enterprise, they have braved all opposition and have won out. The Cloverland Farmers' Fair was a decided success in every way. Escanaba honors Stephenson because Stephenson has an enlightened conception of its needs and wants, and is far-seeing. Stephenson has made heroic efforts and has accomplished much that is beneficial to her people. Stephenson is practical and progressive and is winning well deserved laurels from the people of Escanaba and surrounding country.

CARD PARTY IS PLANNED

A card party will be given at the home of Mrs. C. E. Andrews, Michigan avenue, Saturday afternoon, Oct. 10, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, by the Educational Committee of the Woman's Club. Refreshments will be served every effort to make this a pleasant social event. All members of the club are urged to respond and each member is given the privilege of inviting a friend. As this is a benefit event, a charge of 50 cents will be made for each guest, to defray the expense of the visiting nurse, whose work is highly commended by the patrons of the public schools.

TO HOLD FUNERAL HERE ON SUNDAY

Funeral services over the body of John Swanson, who passed away at the Delta county almshouse on Thursday evening, leaving four small children as orphans, will be held on Sunday afternoon at the Swedish Baptist church. Mr. Swanson held the returned. I do most decidedly wish it. I have admired Senator Shively's steadfast devotion to duty and to the standards of the party and his unflinching loyalty in all matters of public policy, as all his party associates have and I learned to have a very warm personal feeling and admiration for him. It would, in my judgment, be a very great loss to the party and to the senate if he should not be re-elected. I trust that there is no doubt of his re-election."

LEAGUERS TRAVEL TO MANISTIQUE

Escanaba's league baseball team, representing one of the strongest nines ever to carry the colors of this city, will leave this morning for Manistique where the players will battle this afternoon and tomorrow with the especially strengthened team of that city. Either Van Effen or Henry Olmsted will work on the pitchers mound for the locals today while on Sunday Scanlon may do the hurling.

RETURN FROM FREEDOM WIS.

Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Flanagan returned yesterday morning from Freedom, Wis., where they were called to attend the funeral of the former's grandfather, Patrick McCormick. Mr. McCormick had reached the age of 91 years and was hale and hearty up to a few weeks before his death. Mr. McCormick visited here last summer and by his jovial and genial manners made many friends, who were pained to hear of his death.

Dancing Party at Clark's. A large number of the younger social set, enjoyed a victrola dancing party at Clark's Hall last evening. The affair was given by several High school boys.

HUGHITT HAS DASH

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 2.—Coach Yost and assistant Coach Schultz are doing their utmost to build up a line which will be able to meet the furious plunges of the Harvard Backs. Coach Yost, Quarter Back Hughitt and Capt. Raynsford returned Monday from Cambridge, where they witnessed the Crimson squad in action against Bates. When interviewed upon their return, they expressed themselves as satisfied with the chances of the Michigan pig-skin artists, when they enter the Harvard Stadium, Oct. 31st for the most important intercollegiate contest of the year. Injuries have played havoc with several men whom Coach Yost picked for his first eleven. "Shorty" Galt, who is being hailed as a worthy successor of the fleet-footed Craig, is out with an injured knee. "Tommy" Hughitt, the peppery quarter-back of Escanaba, who is hailed as Michigan's greatest quarter-back, is showing the same fight and aggressiveness which characterized his work last year and many are grooming him for quarter-back on Walter Camp's All-Star eleven. Escanaba is also represented on the All-Fresh squad by a stocky youth by the name of Foster. The past few evenings Coach Prentiss Douglass has been playing him at left end. "Cop" has been displaying a great amount of speed at this position and his friends pick him for a regular berth on the yearling squad.

PROGRESS EXCELLENT

Excellent progress is being made on the construction of the new St. Francis hospital and assurance is now given that the institution will be ready for opening to the public next spring. The roof is now being constructed and with the building enclosed it will be possible to push the interior finishing work throughout the winter.

GUY M. JOHNSON WAS NEAR DEATH

Guy M. Johnson, formerly of this city and now a traveling salesman of Waterloo, Ia., narrowly escaped death when struck by a locomotive while standing at the Union Station at Waterloo this week. Standing near the track, waiting for a train Mr. Johnson was struck by an engine that he did not see approaching. He was hurled to the track in front of the locomotive and was only saved from death when a stranger leaped to his rescue and dragged him from in front of the train.

BURGLARS ARE BUSY

THREE ESCANABA BUSINESS PLACES ENTERED ON THURSDAY NIGHT. LEAVE NO CLEWS

Burglars on Thursday night made successful raids on three Escanaba business places and escaped, leaving no trail by which their identity may be established.

The places entered are: Office of the Minneapolis Brewing Company, Stephenson avenue. Store of Bink Wholesale Liquor & Supply Company.

Store of Michael Chiplovitz, North Escanaba. At the office of the Minneapolis Brewing Company, $26 in change was taken after the office had been ransacked.

At the Bink Wholesale Liquor & Supply Company's store nothing is missed from the stock, and it is believed that the burglars were frightened away immediately after they had gained an entrance.

At the North Escanaba store four mackinaws and other wearing apparel formed the booty of the intruders. Entrance to the brewing company's office was gained by forcing a window leading into the office.

At the wholesale liquor company's store a sidewalk grate was raised and a basement window, that had evidently been tampered with previously, was pushed in. The bolts holding the window in place had been removed on the inside and careful preparations had before been made to make a big haul at the store. It is believed by the officers. The appearance of an officer or some other influence is believed to have frightened the burglars away after they had entered the place.

At the North Escanaba store a display window was broken in with heavy stones and the stolen articles were taken from the window.

OFFENDER SENTENCED

Wilfred Sandom, accomplice of Lawrence O'Donnell and Raymond Carlson, when they robbed the Cash Clothing Company's store on Tuesday night, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Judd Yelland to confinement at the Michigan Industrial School at Lansing for not less than one year. The youthful defendant was taken to the state institution last night by P. N. Peterson, county agent. The lad has before been in difficulty with the police but his tender age prevented him from being as sternly dealt with as his older companions.

SNOWBALL BUSH AGAIN IN BLOOM

"Banana belt" is being proven at the home of Aid. Edward Smith where a snowball bush is in blossom for the second time this season. Although not as large as the blossoms of the early spring the bush has a quantity of flowers of great beauty.

The remodeled Swedish Mission church at Gladstone will be rededicated with elaborate services on Sunday when a number of Escanaba people will go to the Upper Bay City to participate in the programs that are arranged. The dedication exercises opened last night with a concert of the new building while this evening a special preaching service will be held. On Sunday three separate services will mark the day. Both the Swedish and English languages will be used during the several services.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Local Office Weather Bureau

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 2, 1914
For Escanaba and vicinity Saturday unsettled, probably showers; moderate south winds.

ON THE BORDER LINE.

Several American towns, such as Texarkana in Texas and Arkansas and Bristol on Tennessee and Virginia, divide their allegiance between two states. In Ohio there are towns, like Bellevue, Delphos and Fostoria, which are placed in two or more counties. But a town actually divided between two nations is a real rarity.

Such a place is Schleit, in the Vosges. It is situated on one of the important mountain passes, and the international boundary lies along its principal street. On the east side of the street is Germany, on the west is France.

What has the war brought to this little mountain village? Are the French citizens and the German citizens shooting at each other across the street? Or are they all in sympathy with one or the other of the hostile nations, and fraternizing in disregard of the invisible line on the cobblestones?

When the war is over there should be highly interesting stories out of many little places, which have romances of their own to tell. In Schleit, perhaps, the son of the French maire is in love with the daughter of the German burgomaster.

A RARE DECORATION.

During the Franco-Prussian war some 40,000 German soldiers were decorated with the Iron Cross. During the present war there has been a generous distribution. There are even stories of patches full of the decorations being captured by the French.

The Victoria Cross of Great Britain and the Cross of the Legion of Honor of France are, like the Iron Cross, bestowed for distinguished bravery on the field of battle. The bravery may be of any kind, and requires only reliable attestation.

The United States decoration of the Medal of Honor is of a far different significance. To win this badge of courage a soldier must distinguish himself "conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity, at the risk of his life, beyond the call of duty." No soldier, no matter how courageous his conduct on the field of battle, can receive the Medal of Honor unless he has gone beyond his actual duty.

The total number of Medals of Honor granted by the government is less than 4,000. A few were bestowed on men who participated in the recent taking of Vera Cruz. The recipients may justly hold that the medal is the most honorable bestowal by any nation on the world.

A gang of burglarious invaders are looting Indianapolis, and what hurts the town most is the fact that the burglars carry away their plunder in an ordinary delivery wagon when they should use an auto truck.

The New York Times comes to the defense of the derby hat, which, as Warren G. Harding might say, appears like a "muddy of the waters" in these stirring political times.

Politics make strange bed fellows, and at times effects separations between fellows who ought to be in the same bed. For instance, Sullivan and Penrose belong to different parties.

A common sort of mistaken economy is exemplified by the Dayton man who refused to pay $5 to spend the night in a Chicago hotel, slept in a park and was robbed of $350.

It is said that the rheumatism which is afflicting the British soldiers makes them fight all the more fiercely. Probably to touch a neuralgia or gout would turn them into demons.

According to Gen. Joubert, the German army is the finest machine in the world. Now the French leaders would have us believe it is a bying machine.

The war wits are having sport with correspondent Paul Rohrbach's name. But a good deal more fun can be found in the roorbacks that are signed "Official."

WAR

London, Oct. 2.—According to a Rome dispatch, the Russian ambassador in that city has issued a statement to the effect that the Russians have destroyed the Austrian army in Galicia and that they are now turning their attention to the taking of Przemysl and Cracow.

A great battle is impending before Cracow, and upon its result will depend the future movements of the Russian army. Victories for the Russian emperor's troops would permit a junction of these forces with the Russian central army and an advance into Silesia.

The Russians in the north, according to Petrograd accounts, have checked the Germans' advance and driven them back thirty miles to the region of Suwalki and Mirampol. The Germans, however, continue to bombard the fort of Ossowetz. Their operations in this district are greatly impeded by the marshy nature of the country, which prevents the movement of heavy guns and transports.

Austria has made immediate response to Italy's demand for an explanation of the sowing of mines in the Adriatic, promising to indemnify the families of the fishermen who lost their lives and to adopt measures to prevent a repetition of such occurrences. It is reported from Vienna, according to a Rome dispatch, that the Austrian General von Auffenberg, former Austrian minister for war, has been obliged to relinquish his command of one of the Austrian armies because of illness. One report said he is stricken with cholera.

The food question is a grave one in Austria, according to a dispatch from Switzerland. The Austrian emperor has issued an edict empowering the government to take all measures necessary to alleviate the situation. The price of corn is double that of normal times and is increasing at the rate of 3 per cent daily.

Italy has demanded that the fullest guarantees be given that corn purchased in Italy is not to go to Austria. Roumanit's embargo on the export of corn has caused consternation in Austria, according to the dispatch from Switzerland.

Rome, via Paris, Oct. 2.—According to dispatches reaching here, all the Bohemian and Moravian railroads are congested with German troops and war materials which are being transported to the Russian frontier. Germany is making a supreme effort to check the Russian advance, and all civilian transport has been forbidden.

Dispatches from Vienna say that the Austrian staff is entirely dependent upon that of Germany, which has assumed supreme command in the campaign against Russia.

London, Oct. 1.—A letter received here from a Russian officer who is camping on the estate of Emperor William at Rominten, East Prussia, says:

"William's estate is magnificently equipped, and we have at our disposal everything which we could wish. We are enjoying particularly delicious dinners prepared by his fine cook. His park swarms with rare animals and birds. We are teaching his parrots the Russian language and they are learning to address their imperial masters with compliments I should blush to repeat in company."

London, Oct. 1.—Fighting in the Far East has begun in earnest, with an attack by the German warships on the land positions of the Japanese who are besieging Tsing-Tau in furtherance of their campaign against the district of Kio-Chau in China. The refusal of Germany to withdraw from this leased possession caused Japan to declare war.

An official statement issued at Tokio today says that Japanese siege guns sank a German torpedo boat destroyer, while a Japanese mine sweeper was sunk of the harbor and a Japanese supply ship was damaged. The somewhat vague Japanese statement gives the impression that the battle continues without definite result thus far.

A German report from Tsing-Tau indicates that the German retirement from the second line of defenses around Tsing-Tau, which took place last Monday, was due to the overwhelming numerical strength of the Japanese. This report says that the Japanese losses were seventeen hundred killed and eight hundred wounded, a result of the fire from German warships, together with the fire of machine guns on land. The German losses are described as small.

At the Battle Front, via Paris, Oct. 2.—The recent terrible hand-to-hand conflicts on the western and eastern wings arose from the attempts of the German and the allied generals to execute flanking movements in great force at the same time in the open country.

The lines of the armies have been growing even longer in the last ten days in a mutual endeavor to overlap each other. The wings have been heavily reinforced, but the allies have been able to bring greater power to bear and not only have prevented the Germans from breaking through but have gained ground steadily and now have the advantage.

German prisoners who have been taken on the western end of the line in large numbers show that the reinforcements which have arrived recently consist largely of men who are nearing middle age. Some of them are fathers with families, men who have been away from the active army service ten or fifteen years. This seems to indicate that many corps have been withdrawn to meet the Russian advance.

The German practice of maintaining an incessant offensive appears, according to military men, to be having the result of wearing out their human material. Some of their corps have been almost wiped out. The fighting, if the beginning of the battle of the Marne is taken as the commencement, has been unceasing—something previously unknown in military history—and before this fight started many German regiments had fought all the way down from Liege, Belgium.

The German attacks in the last twenty-four hours seem to have become less energetic. The allies have been able to repulse them and follow them up more easily. There are signs that exhaustion is setting in among the invaders, owing to the hard fighting and the severe weather conditions. Meanwhile, the allies are being given intervals of rest in the trenches between the periods of intense exertion, as fresh relays can be brought to the front at any time.

London, Oct. 2.—Despite the fact that thousands of Frenchmen are laying down their lives and thousands of wounded are arriving daily from the front, Parisians, says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, are regaining some of their customary buoyancy of spirit.

"Victory is in the air," the correspondent says. "All indications point to the fact that the German commanders and the German troops are realizing for the first time that they are in a desperate position. Their attacks during the last few days, delivered as they were at no decisive point, with overwhelming numbers but haphazard all along the line, show that they have been driven desperate and that their plan of campaign has been completely frustrated. The German right wing is completely in the air. It rests on no fortress or entrenched position and daily its position becomes more critical."

London, Oct. 2.—A Rotterdam dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says: "The Germans in Rotterdam are agitated at the tone of the German newspapers which arrived today (Thursday.) Only one meaning can be attached to what they contain—they are preparing the German people for defeat and the ruin of their hopes."

"Official messages ask that judgment be suspended if news should arrive that the German troops have been compelled to abandon certain positions. The British troops are mentioned as pushing on by the sheer weight of their masses, and the French are admitted to have taught a severe lesson. A week ago such statements would have meant the suppression of the newspaper printing them."

Amsterdam, via London, Oct. 2.—The Berliner Tageblatt, in a leading article, says:

"The German people await anxiously but with confidence further news from the French war theater. The news of the great advance of the French troops against the flank of our lines should not unbalance us. We know that our front line is protected by broad entrenchments which are ready to oppose such an enterprise."

"Even if the French or English forces advance still farther in a northwestern direction, they will always encounter reinforcements which our commanders have kept back in expectation of such advances. The influence of the British reinforcements makes itself more and more felt. They are effective to impede us, though the result will not be lasting. Victory must be ours all the same. If it is gained after difficulties, it will be all the more worth while."

The center of the battle front is silent, listening breathlessly to the struggle on both wings. Around Verdun, a decision comes nearer; we have forced our way through the forest of Argonne, but found on the heights on the west of the Meuse a strong position which the enemy had prepared. The French are expert at building positions in their rear. We know that such positions were, as far as possible, constructed long before the outbreak of the war."

After expressing the opinion that the German armies between Verdun and the Argonne constitute a great menace to the French, the article continues: "But the obstinacy of the French attack, which always is returned, and the advance against us deserve just appreciation and will have taught a lesson to all who expected an easy time."

London, Oct. 2.—A Paris dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says: "A fight is proceeding on one part of the allies' left resembling that at Paardeberg, in the South African war. Nearly four thousand Germans are in the same plight as General Cronje was. They are completely surrounded by French troops in a position where they are cut off from all hope of rejoining their division, and are being shelled."

Announcement

of S. & W. COMPANY

Having been told a number of times, we have come to believe that some of the residents of Escanaba are being misled by the belief that the S. & W. Co., dealers in Ladies wearing apparel, is a branch of, or is associated with the firm of Klassen's, operating in this city.

We wish therefore, to announce that the S. & W. Company has at no time been in any way associated with above named firm. Further—we wish to state that we do not conduct an installment or credit establishment and conduct that branch of our business the same as does any reputable cash store in the city.

We aim to maintain a first class Ladies Wearing Apparel Store and handle nothing but the season's latest and best styles in Cloaks, Suits, Gowns and Millinery and our goods are all priced for cash selling. In conclusion—the firm of S. & W. is strictly a "home industry," having been organized by G. U. Schulz and Mrs. C. DUCHESS A RED CROSS NURSE

Dressed in the cap and gown of a Red Cross nurse, the duchess of Sutherland, a famous English beauty, was recently in command of the French Red Cross work in Brussels, Belgium.

One of the exquisite salons of the Cercle Artistique was turned over to her. There she installed 50 beds, changed one of the rooms into an operating theater, and another, where beautiful paintings still hang, into the kitchen.

In speaking of how she happened to offer her services in Brussels, the duchess said: "I was in Paris and offered my services to the Secours des Blessés. A few days after an urgent message was sent from Brussels and I was sent here. Throughout the journey of eleven hours I was received with the most amazing kindness. The people wait for them when they saw the little red cross upon my arm. I broke down myself."

"I have one English lady with me, Miss Gavin, and eight French ladies, including the Countess de Pourtal and the Marquise de Chazotte. More English nurses have been sent for."

The duchess of Sutherland is widely known for her beauty and position. She had been married a year to the marquis of Stafford when she acquired, through the death of her father-in-law, the late duke, the right to wear the strawberry leaves.

GERMANY'S FIELD MARSHAL

Gen. Count Helmuth von Moltke, field marshal of the German army, now, in supreme command, under the Kaiser, of the united forces of the empire, is the favorite nephew of the old field marshal of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. He inherited his uncle's favorite personal belongings and his favorite estate. His father was the old field marshal's younger brother and was chamberlain to the king of Denmark, the Moltke family being of Danish origin. Helmuth von Moltke, now fifty-six years old, was a sub-lieutenant in the Franco-Prussian war and was awarded the iron cross for bravery. From 1883 to 1894, he was his celebrated uncle's adjutant on the general staff, and it took him that whole period to advance from the rank of captain to that of major. When old von Moltke died the Kaiser made this intimate friend of his an A. D. C. in his personal suite.

Helmuth von Moltke is one of the most accomplished musicians in Germany, and some twelve years ago, at a banquet of the Kaiser's cuirassier regiment at Neudeck, the Kaiser led the band when it played an old march composed in 1808, when Moltke had succeeded and rewritten as a musical curiosity. It was about this time that the Kaiser appointed him quartermaster-general of the army, an appointment which pleased everybody, as the officer was popular and had an excellent reputation as a military executive. He had become popular with the Kaiser for his accomplishments of culture as well as those of the soldier, a very natural thing.

The Kaiser twice offered him the baton of the field marshal before Moltke could be persuaded to accept it.

KING OF THE BELGIANS

Europe, last haven of "the divine right of kings," in the occidental world, has long glared impotently at Albert, king of Belgium. His casual democracy, his undoubted business ability and his manner of dealing with the Socialists, so that the Socialists, cursing most labor conditions, passed to praise their ruler, has worried them almost into prostration.

He is called in the circles which royalty frequents the "Socialist king," but whatever his political belief the fact remains that he brought his country to a wonderful state of prosperity and the state railroads under his direct supervision became a little more profitable than any in Europe.

There are few things that this accomplished king can not do or have done. He fights, rides, swims, shoots and engages in aviation, engineering and writing with equal facility.

He was an ordinary newspaperman for a long time, carrying a police card, visiting police stations and doing what would be known here as "ship news."

As a reporter, it is said, he was a "snappy" worker, who scored many heads and obtained timely pictures. Finally his stay in America, in 1896, when he little dreamed of being king, gave him the training necessary to set a new standard for quick newspaper work in Brussels and Antwerp.

GERMANY'S GRAND ADMIRAL

Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, the head of the Kaiser's navy, is the dominating figure in German official life. As far as the navy is concerned, Tirpitz dominates over the Kaiser. A man of comparatively humble birth, born sixty-five years ago, he entered the royal Prussian navy when he was only sixteen, cruising in the Baltic, the North sea, the Mediterranean and the Atlantic ocean, and rising to the grade of second lieutenant in time to serve in the Franco-Prussian war on board the Konig Wilhelm. Service in South America, in the West Indies and again in the Mediterranean followed, and the young seaman had soon become an indispensable part of the service that in 1879 he was appointed commander of the Elster, in 1881, commander of the Bismarck, and in 1884, commander of the SMS, in chief of the fleet. He was made rear admiral in 1896. In 1898 he became chief of the squadron in West Asia, and in 1900, secretary of state to the admiralty. There is no naval expert in the world who would not have to acknowledge that Admiral von Tirpitz is probably the most distinguished admiral of modern sea arms. He is the real creator of the German fleet.

BASEBALL

Pitcher Vernay Ashley, who had a trial with the St. Louis Browns in Florida last spring and then turned his affairs over to his wife for decision, with the result that he lost a good job in a Class A league, has quit the game and is rusticated in Michigan.

Pitcher Elmer Mauger, recently taken on by the Chicago Cubs and dropped because he seemed to have nothing, now gets a trial with the Pirates, who are in such desperate shape that they will try anything.

Billy Martin, Georgetown university shortstop, who is now with the Naps, has stirred up a dispute, the Boston Braves claiming him. The matter will be thrashed out by the national commission.

Babe Danzig, who has been playing semi-pro ball around San Francisco for a couple of years since he quit the Montgomery team of the Southern league, has been signed by Sacramento as a utility man.

Manager Johnny Dobbs of the New Orleans Pelicans not only says his team will win the Southern league pennant, but that it is also the best all-Southern team in the league or any other league.

A Portland baseball editor says that the Cleveland club sends Pitcher Johnny Lash to Portland because he needs more experience and that the "youngster" did not cost the club much money.

Manager McGraw of the Giants has signed another college pitcher. He is S. W. Royce, who, while pitching for Hamilton last spring, set the college world on fire by striking out everybody in sight.

Red Munson, formerly a catcher with Nashville and later manager of the Bristol team in the Appalachian league, has been signed by the Cleveland American league as a coach for young pitchers.

Lorenz Pesold, the youngster whose injection into the Cleveland infield sent Larry Lajoie to the bench, falls from New Orleans, and like the man he succeeds, has some French blood in his makeup.

Umpires Bush, Kane and Manassas have all been released by the Federal league. They had ten-day clauses in their contracts and were let out under these clauses in order to cut down expenses.

Jim Delehanty, who was put on the shelf at the opening of the season, is now able to play with the Brooklyn Feds and his return to the game means some shifts in Bradley's team.

Washington has obtained a new catcher in the person of Tom Wilson of Galveston of the Texas league, and, according to Sport Kahos, he is one of the greatest throwers in baseball.

A report from Los Angeles has it that Howard Kuhnke, exploded phenom of the Angels, has been offered a bonus of $1,000 and a salary of $700 a month to sign with the Feds.

Three major league clubs have been bidding for Outfielder Bobby Roth of the Kansas City team, and both St. Louis clubs are said to have made offers of players and cash.

Brooklyn asked waivers on Pitcher Ed Reulbach and the Cincinnati club refused to waive, Manager Herzog believing the Fraternity director still has something left in him.

The trade of Jack Martin to Philadelphia for Josh Devore gave Manager Stallings just the man he wanted for his outfield and put his team in a settled condition.

Umpire Monte Cross, put out of half the games played in the Federal league by usage of Pitcher Tom Seaton, is now out of the other half with a damaged foot.

Lefty George of the Cleveland A. A. team set a record for pitchers as batters in a recent game when he made five hits in as many times up.

With the reduction of the Ohio State league to four clubs but two umpires were necessary and President Bob Head released Mike Jacobs.

The veteran Jimmy Williams, with Minneapolis, was made an offer of an umpire's berth in the Federal league, but he declined it.

Records show that the Cardinals and the Browns of St. Louis lead their leagues in the doubtful honor of striking out most.

Baltimore, with all its stars gone, shows signs of bettering, though the team held up remarkably well for a time.

Grand Rapids has traded Outfielder Reynolds to Wichita for Outfielder McDonald and cash to boot.

FOURMEN GIVEN A CHANCE

The "Jumping" of Hal Chase to the Federal league gave Jacques Fournier his chance—and the Frenchman has made good with a vengeance. He has made Chicago White Sox forget Chase and his hitting has been an important factor in many of Chicago's successes. Jacques is the only member of the Chicago team who is batting above the .300 mark, and he has a fine chance to finish the season among the select class of hitters.

It is awful to think of what would have happened to the National league had not the Braves lost 20 out of the first 25 games played. The present spurt of the Braves has the leaders laying awake nights.

Ed Konetchy apparently shook off his batting slump when he broke up a 13-inning game between the Pirates and Dodgers by clouting a homer with the bases loaded. The big fellow has started hitting again.

Jersey City has given Catcher Bobby Wells his unconditional release. A year ago he was rated one of the best backstops in the International league, but his arm became worthless.

It is not the signs on the fences that bother the Giant batters, declares Sid Mercer, in the New York Globe, but the signs the opposing catcher gives the pitcher.

John Titus has slowed up a lot. He cannot throw, covers little ground, and has voted himself out of every contest in which a southpaw appears.

Thanks to the heavy hitting of Kauff, Campbell and Carr particularly, the Indianapolis team has a remarkable record for team batting.

The St. Louis Americans have released First Baseman Charley Bold to the Lancaster club of the Tri-State league.

George Burns has been closing in on Charles Herzog for the base running honors of the National league.

Jack Barry never fielded better in his life, but his hitting this season has been the poorest of his career.

SPORTING WORLD

American owners who have thoroughbred in England, France and Germany are deeply concerned over the welfare of their strings of horses. With the coming of martial law the military authorities can commandeer all horses, no matter if they are owned by subjects of that country or foreigners.

The average trapshooter will solemnly aver that there is "nothing just as good" as clay pigeon busting to be handed over the sporting counter, and then he will follow up the assertion with an array of more or less plausible evidence to back his claim.

A law of sports as immutable as "the laws of the Medes and the Persians" is, "they never come back." Trapshooting shows no exceptions to this rule but the reason why a trapshooter never comes back is simple—he never goes back.

Just as soon as Char Haughton of Cambridge heard that King Yost of Ann Arbor was mobilizing his football warriors he did likewise. War has been declared. The first battle will be fought October 16.

Despite its second consecutive defeat in the variety eight-armed race, the Poughkeepsie regatta, Cornell university athletes have closed probably their most brilliant year.

The Cycle Racing association is to construct a track in Boston at a cost of $10,000. When completed it will be the best in the country. The seating capacity will be 20,000.

George Carpentier gets five cents a day for fighting in the French army, which is about the amount any fighter is worth as a day laborer.

Bombardier Walls, the English heavyweight, has taken up golf and is showing much proficiency.

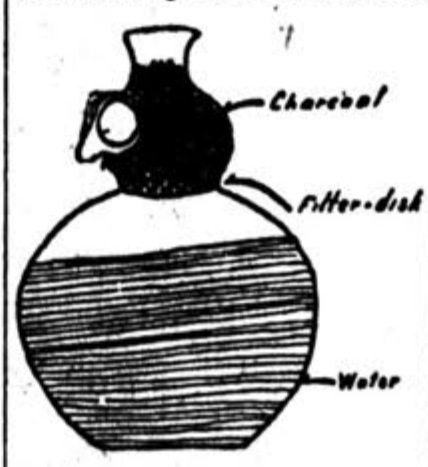

OLD WATER FILTERS

Haiti Yields Some Queer and Ancient Specimens.

Much Danger and Difficulty Attended Their Recovery From Lake Where Aborigines Threw Them Many Long Years Ago.

New York.—Compared to Central and South America, the West Indies offer but a poor field to archaeologists. Nevertheless, these regions are of great scientific interest, if only for the reason that the Indian inhabitants were the first discovered in the New World by Columbus. It has been my privilege to explore certain islands of the West Indies for the Heye museum of New York, with the purpose of collecting specimens and data pertaining to the aboriginal inhabitants, as a correspondent of the New York Times. My last expedition to the island of Haiti was the most fruitful of all, and I returned from there last October with a large number of specimens.

Our knowledge of the aboriginal inhabitants of Haiti is limited to the writings of certain historians, notably the works of Fray Bartolome de las Casas, who gives most destructive accounts of the habits of the races peopling the West Indies. Las Casas, however, published his history in 1582, at which time the Indian race had practically been annihilated, the population of Haiti, which at the time of the coming of Columbus in 1492 numbered some 800,000 souls, having been reduced to about 10,000. Eventually even these last were killed off or worked to death in the mines, and at the present day there are no pure-blooded Indians left on the island.

It was my good fortune to discover on this last trip a totally unknown fact about the aborigines of Haiti, namely, that these people were acquainted with the principle of filtering their drinking water through charcoal, a discovery all the more astonishing when one remembers that filters are supposed to be comparatively modern inventions of the white race. The accompanying photographs show quite clearly what shape this aboriginal filter had.

A series of water jars of a similar shape, although without the "filter disk," enabled me to make the determination of the original outline with accuracy. One can gain some impression of the scarcity of West Indian pottery when one considers that the total number of unbroken vessels of clay from the West Indies in different institutions throughout the world is not over fifty.

I was exploring some of the limestone caves that one finds throughout the island of Haiti when I came upon one which had in it a small subterranean fresh-water lake, from which the Indians in the neighborhood evidently must have taken their drinking water. This lake was about thirty feet lower than the mouth of the cave, and one descended to it by a series of natural steps, formed by boulders which in the course of centuries had fallen from the roof of the cave. Between these boulders and in the water of the lake I found many broken water vessels of various sizes and shapes which the Indians evidently had thrown away.

The recovery of these jars and fragments was quite an exciting task. It necessitated diving, occasionally into 12 feet of water, and, though this is not a great depth when one is diving under natural conditions, it was quite difficult and rather hazardous in this case.

In the first place I had to burn a magnesium light in order to locate whatever piece I wanted to recover, as my acetylene lamp was not strong enough to do this. I then placed a long pole, which I had cut off a tree outside the cave, alongside the vessel and then dove down, following the pole with one hand and groping for the vessel with the other.

Returning to the surface was another problem, because the roof of the cave slanted down to the water, and if one came straight up to the surface one would strike the roof of the cave and probably drown. To overcome this, I had a rope fastened to my wrist, and one of the men with me would pull toward him when he saw that I had recovered the object I had gone after, thus making me come to the surface in the proper spot.

Among the pieces of pottery that I found between the boulders leading down to the lake was a fragment of the filter illustrated. Alongside the fragment I found some of the smaller shreds belonging to the bottom part of the jar and also several large pieces of charcoal. These pieces of charcoal evidently were packed in the top part of the vessel and served to filter the water, both when it was poured into the jar and when it was poured out.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

SOME SUGGESTIONS THAT ARE WORTH CONSIDERATION.

Proper Serving of Summer Fruit—Eaton Cover for Cooking Pot—Wire Rack the Best Thing for the Pot Lids.

Even though melons are served in the simplest manner their appearance should be attractive. This is an excellent way to prepare an entire water-melon:

Hold the melon lengthwise toward you. Insert the knife near the top and cut diagonally downward toward the other end, leaving four or five inches as a base. Three inches to the left of the point where the knife is first inserted cut again, this time diagonally toward the far end of the first line of cut, thus making a pointed tongue. Continue to cut up and down in this manner until the melon is cut completely around, when two equal sets of points will result, and these jagged halves of the melon can easily be pulled apart.

To cut baskets of cantaloupe: Tie a string around the melon so that the half may be plainly marked. Then from one end cut a strip both ways an inch wide to the strings to form a handle. Remove the side sections and cut the sweet pulp carefully so that it will be a dainty bit. And from the baskets thus formed take the seeds and thread. Place the baskets and pulp separately on ice, and when ready to serve fill the hollow with the pulp, with the addition of ginger strap. Whipped cream or ice cream can be used to fill the melon basket and a ribbon may be tied around the whole or knotted on the handle.

When the cooler weather comes we will commence to use more fried and grease-splattering foods. An excellent cover has just been put on the market, which is adjustable to almost any size pot or pan. It is made of good tin, in a cone shape, and looks like a gigantic candle snuffer. It is so made that this cone can be made flat for a wide pan or higher for a smaller dish; one cover doing for several pots. The high, cone-shaped top keeps odors in and is very much better for frying purposes than the usual flat tin cover. Its price is only 25 cents.

One of the season's novelties is a little fruit cutter which will scallop the edges of grapefruit, orange or cucumber. It consists of a small wooden board with knife-like parts so arranged that when the fruit is rotated over the board scallops are easily cut. This device costs 50 cents and is excellent for decorating the edges of fruit, and especially for making cucumber baskets.

A very simple and useful article in many kitchens and pantries is a new rack for pot lids. This consists of a narrow strip of pins with loops of wire of varying diameters into which lids of different sizes can be slipped. The rack is made to hang on a wall and can be folded up flat when not in use. Although it is better to keep a lid near the pot to which it belongs, this rack may be useful to many housewives to keep a number of lids which are ordinarily piled into a deep drawer—the most inefficient way of keeping them. In retinned wire it costs 50 cents.

Fried Green Tomatoes.

Beat an egg until light and foamy. Add one teaspoonful and a half of olive oil, a little salt and pepper. Beat again. Have ready some good firm green tomatoes; cut in slices one-quarter of an inch thick. Dip them separately, first in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs. Have plenty of butter in a hot spider, place tomatoes in it and fry rather slowly so they may cook thoroughly without burning. Keep covered to keep steam in and make the tomatoes juicy and tender. Serve on a hot platter either with table sauce or with a hollandaise sauce.

Goldenrod Toast.

Boil the required number of eggs until hard, then put the yolks and whites separately through a sieve. Have ready slices of hot toast and in the center of each put two spoonfuls of the yolk, surrounding the edge with the white. Over the whole pour white sauce and serve hot. This is a delicious breakfast dish.—Mother's Magazine.

Carrot Fritters.

Beat two or three boiled carrots to a pulp with a spoon; add to them six eggs and a handful of flour; moisten them with either cream, milk or white wine and sweeten them. Beat altogether well and fry in boiling lard. When of a good color take them off and squeeze on them the juice of an orange; strew over fine sugar.

Banana Jam.

Slice up a dozen bananas. To every pound of the fruit allow three-quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Take the juice and pulp of five lemons and add them to the bananas and sugar. Add a little water. Then chop up half an ounce of preserved ginger and add. Simmer very slowly for fifty minutes.

Two Good Salads.

A salad that is particularly welcome served with a hearty dinner is this: Select large preserved cherries and arrange them on lettuce with stuffed olives, sliced, and top with heavy mayonnaise.

Kumquats, sliced and served on egg, with a French dressing, makes another refreshing light salad.

DOG, BELGIAN STEEL

Patient Canine to Be Seen Everywhere in Kingdom.

Many Peddlers' Carts Are So Rigged That Faithful Canine in Harness Walks Beneath, Out of Sight, Drawing the Load.

Brussels.—One of the amusing sights of Belgium, "the sacrifice" between the greater nations of Europe, is her industrial dogs—particularly in Flanders these sturdy animals are everywhere to be seen. They play an important part in the dairy industry of this, the most thickly populated community in Europe, drawing the milk carts from house to house.

Many peddlers' carts are so rigged that a dog in harness walks beneath, entirely out of sight, and draws the load which is guided by the accompanying peddler. The dogs are even harnessed in teams, three abreast, and may be seen drawing carriages in which ride as many as four people.

Industrial dogs are more generally used in the part of the nation that is Dutch in its tendencies and borders on Holland. The people of southern Belgium are an entirely different race. They are descendants of the Gauls and speak a French dialect.

Belgian Women at Wayside Shrine.

The people of the north are Teutons, a sturdy, blue-eyed, fair-haired plodding race of Flemish farmers, who can read the newspapers of their Dutch neighbors though the two may converse with difficulty.

The Walloons of the South are nervous, of dark complexion, volatile; a pleasure-loving lot. They are not much given to farming and dairying, but go in more for manufacturing, mining and the industries. The first coal mine ever worked in all Europe was opened at Liege by the Walloons.

The Flemish portion of the population, first cousins to the Germans, compose about four-sevenths of the nation, while the Walloons, related to the French, make up three-sevenths.

LIFE SAVINGS IN OLD BAG

Woman Who Broke Leg Is Found to Have Over $1,000—Represents Life Savings.

Chester, Pa.—An old shot bag, containing more than $1,000 in small notes and silver, was found in a closet at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Fildes, seventy-three.

The money represents the aged woman's life savings. She fell from a ladder while painting the exterior of her home and sustained a broken leg.

She was removed to the home of her son-in-law, John Kennard, with whom she will now live permanently. "John, be careful of an old shot bag which you will find in the bottom of the kitchen closet," she said, "and be sure and bring it to me."

When he delivered the bag to Mrs. Fildes he was astounded to find that it contained so much money.

BLAST THWARTS BURGLAR

Woman, Awakened, Uses Ash Tray to Rout Robber Who Was Making Off With Goods.

New York.—A blast of dynamite in Nelsonville, near Cold Spring, thwarted a burglar who had gathered up $400 worth of loot in the home of Arthur C. Reoppel.

Workmen blowing out rock next door set off a blast that shook Reoppel's home so that vases and pictures tumbled from the mantel shelf. The noise awoke Mrs. Reoppel, who discovered a burglar sneaking out of her room with loot packed in a cloth mandolin cover. Hurling an ash tray at him, she struck him. He then dropped the bag and fled.

Many Victims of Wreck Unknown.

FORDNEY RESCUES U. S. CIGAR MAKERS

Washington, Oct. 2.—A bill which might have brought hundred of small manufacturers and cigar dealers into unfair competition with the Cuban product was blocked by Congressman Fordney in the ways and means committee. Under the present tariff law Cuban cigars can be imported at a 20 per cent less duty than those from other countries, but they cannot be imported at a 20 per cent duty than those from other countries, but they cannot be imported in quantities less than 3,000. Members of the committee had proposed a bill to allow these cigars to come in in lots as small as 500. Such a bill would make it possible for the Cuban manufacturer to send his cigars to this country by parcel post, as a 500-cigar package would come within the size limit. The postmaster general is anxious to make a parcel post agreement with Cuba, but representatives of that country insist that the law be changed so that cigars may be sent in smaller packages. Congressman Fordney showed that this arrangement would be very unfair to the American cigar manufacturer. It would enable the Cuban under the low duty to carry his business directly to the American consumer of cigar. Such a law would be a serious menace to the small dealer and manufacturer of cigars. Through Congressman Fordney's influence consideration of the bill has been postponed indefinitely.

GERMAN ARMY IS HELD AT LIEGE

London, Oct. 2.—One now with the German army sends the following to The Times: "The continued activity of Belgians made it necessary for the Germans to maintain large forces at their military base at Liege. This added a great burden to the German plan makers. There was but a few days ago a great concentration of German troops at this important center. "These 100,000 men were destined to support the fighting line on the Aisne. They were being herded at Liege, living in railway trains, quartered in houses of the town, or encamped upon the hills surrounding the railway yards. "They could not be sent ahead of the supplies and munitions, so necessary for those troops that had gone into the field before them. "Foot Soldiers Now Secondard. "The German foot soldier is now but a support to the machine gun and artillery fire. To every infantry regiment there are attached ten or twelve machine guns. These are without wheels and are carried by hand and can be quickly moved from one position to another on the firing line. "The preponderance in the numbers of this important defensive—and as the service cannot be overestimated. Their possession has changed German infantry tactics. "Showers of Deadly Metal. "Accuracy of individual rifle fire has been subordinated to showers of shrapnel sweeping streams of lead and to continued leveled volleys of musketry at given ranges. Trusting to clearing a way in this fashion the infantry are moved forward in great masses. "The great carnage they suffered during their advances is thus explained: In the early fighting the Germans did not appear to mind their great losses. "But now the great mortality has begun to tell on the morale of the Germans. The loss of officers has been terrific. At Liege, where, as a German headquarters official put it: "We could not hold the Junkers' back, some regiments lost 60 per cent of their men. Whole companies did not have an officer left." "Second display of Pattern Hats and fine French Millinery, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2 and 3, 1914. M. A. Burns. 1080-274-31. You see it first in The Press.

FIGHT TO ERADICATE BOSSISM, EARNEST

Washington, Oct. 2.—That the movement against offensive bossism in this country is not only non-partisan but thoroughly in earnest is evidenced by the action taken by the Popular Government League in Washington. At a meeting of this association resolutions were unanimously adopted that the sense of the meeting was that the candidates of Sullivan in Illinois and Penrose in Pennsylvania should be opposed. It was declared that these men typified all that was evil in boss politics.

Among the representative men who took an active part in the meeting were Senators Poindeexter and Clapp and Congressman MacDonald of Michigan and Kelley of Pennsylvania, congressmen; Senator Owen and Congressman Crosser, democrats; and Congressman Manahan, republican. The association went on record in favor of the Norris resolution providing for an investigation of the campaign expenses of both these candidates.

STATE HANDING SWAMP LANDS TO HOLDERS

Washington, Oct. 2.—Concentration of land ownership in the upper peninsula of Michigan and its causes is treated at length in a portion of the report of bureau of corporations on the lumber industry just made public. Some criticism of Michigan's method of disposal of its swamp lands is made. The total land surface of the upper peninsula comprises 10,680,000 acres, of which nearly 6,000,000 acres or 56 per cent is held by ninety large timber owners. Thirty-two owners hold 47 per cent of the area, thirteen hold 37 per cent; one holds 14 per cent.

Big Supply Still Left.
More timber is still standing in Michigan than in any other of the lake states, according to the report and the greater part lies in the upper peninsula. This section has passed the point of its greatest production although it will long continue to supply a moderate amount of timber. Most of the peninsula has been cut over for pine and a considerable portion for hemlock and hardwoods. Stands of hemlock and hardwood as heavy as 10,000 feet per acre still remain, which command high stumpage prices. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and subsidiaries is the largest single holder.

Government Helped Concentration.
Concentration of land ownership was greatly facilitated by federal grants in the aid of railroad, wagon road and canal construction, and also by the direct sale of lands by the government at $1.25 an acre in unlimited amounts. Large areas of land granted by the government to the state were also sold at low prices or given by the state as aid to railroads and eventually became a part of holdings now concentrated in the hands of the few. The reports says: "The state's methods of disposing of swamp lands has furthered the concentration of their ownership without securing any appreciable measure of drainage or reclamation. To 1910 patents had been given for 5,600,000 acres of swamp land. These lands were sold at $1.25 per acre."

GERMANS PREPARE SIEGE ON ANTWERP

Rotterdam, Oct. 2.—Activity along the Belgian frontiers indicates that the Germans are planning the siege of Antwerp within a few days. Twenty-five thousand German naval reserves arrived in Brussels in readiness to serve in the German fleet, should Antwerp and Ostend be taken. It is estimated that 150,000 Germans will participate in the siege.

The fortifications of Antwerp are reckoned among the strongest in the world. Communication with Antwerp is almost suspended. The large German siege guns have been removed to the Alsne battlefield. The German siege guns have been removed to the Alsne battlefield. The Germans intend to use Austrian guns against Antwerp.

Prepare for Winter.
Antwerp, Oct. 2.—The Germans are planning a new stand in Southern Belgium, which will place the reserves directly on the plains of Waterloo.

Belgian aviators report German construction lines of entrenchments north of Mons and at points on the Scheldt Dendre and Senne rivers, while the line of the Sambre also has been made ready for defensive operations. While these are precautionary measures it is believed the Germans have prepared a place of refuge for their right wing. The German entrenched positions, Belgian general staff reports say are being built with unusual strength and are plainly intended for a winter campaign.

Plan to Attack Antwerp.
There are also indications that the Germans are again planning an attack to take Antwerp.

Should they be forced back into Belgium, this will be absolutely necessary, as even though they should surround the fortifications with a strong army, they would at all times be subjected to the danger of aerial attack and would also be unable to conceal any strategic moves from the eyes of the British and Belgian aviators who could use the city as a base. Strong forces of Germans are reported north of Ghent and also directly to the east of this city.

'SALARY CUT' BILL SHOCKS HIGHERUPS

Washington, Oct. 2.—A bill which has caused consternation among those who feed at the public trough is that introduced by Senator Sheppard providing for a temporary reduction in the salaries of federal office holders. Senator Sheppard seriously presented this measure proposing that high-salaried officials, instead of the general public should bear the burden made necessary because of the falling-off of governmental revenues since the European war.

Senator Sheppard declares that the present emergency calls for any legitimate measure tending to relieve treasury and the people. He believes economy should start with the "higher-ups." Salaries of persons in the civil, military, naval and other departments are affected. It is proposed to deduct 12 per cent from all the salaries exceeding $6,000 per year. Salaries less than $6,000 are docked a smaller amount. The reduction will take place November 1, and be in effect a year. The bill would dock senators and congressmen as well as other officials. The only feature of the measure encouraging to the office holders is that other members of congress may not take it as seriously as Senator Sheppard.

LIEGE FAMOUS BELGIAN CITY

STRATEGIC points in the importance of Liege, the Belgian city before which the German advance was checked and where, according to European dispatches, the first great battle of the war was fought, are numerous. Principally it was the most strongly fortified obstacle to the supposed plan of the Germans to cut across the lower half of Belgium into French territory, but in addition to this the city is of itself a prize in many ways.

In its surroundings it is the Pittsburgh of Belgium. For miles to the southwest of the city, along the banks of the river Meuse, there are scores of blast furnaces, puddling furnaces, rolling mills and forges. It is the site of the famous Cockerill works, said to be the largest manufacturing of machinery in the world. The Lion, erected as a monument on the field of Waterloo, some 60 miles distant, was made here.

Liege proper, with a population of 165,000, lies at the junction of the Meuse and the Ourthe, in a basin margined by hills. Many handsome buildings and gardens strive to keep themselves handsome against the tremendous odds of coal dust.

Surrounded by Mineral Wealth. All around the city is a wealth of coal and iron ore. The mines extend under the city and river. These natural riches, in connection with the favorable situation of the city at the junction of two navigable rivers, have given rise to the extensive manufacturing industry in the city itself.

The products are varied, but the principal one, and that which would make Liege a valuable prize of war, ish neighbors, and speak the French language.

The city first appears in history in the sixth century, at which time a town grew up around the original chapel founded there by St. Monulp, bishop of Tongres. In the tenth century the episcopate of Notger, which had succeeded the early line, was marked by large territorial acquisitions, and the see became recognized as an independent principality of the French empire. There were many popular risings for freedom from the exactions of the episcopal sovereigns, who were also occupied in preserving neutrality in the various wars and preserving their territory from being raided by invading armies.

Taken by Marlborough. They were only in part successful. Liege was taken by Marlborough in 1702, and the fortress was garrisoned by the Dutch until 1718.

The French revolutionary armies overran the principality in 1792, and from 1794 to the fall of Napoleon it was annexed to France, and was known as the department of the Ourthe. The congress of Vienna in 1815 decreed that Liege, with the other provinces of southern Netherlands, should form a part of the new kingdom of the Netherlands under the rule of William I, of the House of Orange. The city of Liege took an active part in the Belgian revolt of 1830, and since that date the ancient principality has been incorporated into the kingdom of Belgium.

The principal point of interest to the tourists in Liege has been the great cathedral, or church of St. Paul, founded in the tenth century is that of firearms. More than 20,000 persons in and around the city are employed in the manufacture of guns, ranging from small arms to the largest of modern weapons. There is a royal cannon factory and a small arm factory also in the suburb of St. Leonard.

In the wars of the last century Liege has played only a small part, but the city itself, is defended with modern fortifications. Its strength, it is said, is far greater than has generally been appreciated by military strategists.

In 1888 the Belgium authorities decided to adequately fortify both Liege and Namur, the two important points on the Meuse. At each place a number of detached forts were constructed along a perimeter drawn a distance varying from within four to six miles of the city. At Liege 12 of these forts were constructed, six on the right bank and six on the left side of the river.

All of the forts have been kept fairly well up to date. The heavy guns, in their concrete casements, are raised and lowered automatically. The names of the forts on the right bank of the river are Barchon, Evigne, Fleron, Chaudfontaine, Embourg and Boncelles. The average distance between the forts is four miles, but Fleron and Chaudfontaine are separated by little over a mile in a direct line, as they defend the main line of the railway from Germany.

The six forts on the left bank, also commencing at the north, around a western curve, are Pontisse, Liers Lantin, Loncin, Hollogne and Flemeille. It has been estimated by military authorities that 25,000 men would be necessary for an adequate defense of these fortifications today.

Liege was made to figure largely in Sir Walter Scott's novel "Quentin Durward," in which Scott made a notable blunder by speaking of the people of Liege as talking Flemish. The city is, in fact, the center of the Walloon country.

The Walloons are Romanized Gauls, in a much truer sense than their Flemand rebuilt in the thirteenth century. The University, founded in 1817, is one of the largest in the country and enjoys a high reputation for education in the art of mining and manufacturing.

There are many beautiful gardens and the rivers are spanned by splendid bridges, but the larger portions of the city have a crowded aspect of narrow, crooked streets.

The railway lines through Liege are the direct routes from Cologne to Paris and from Luxembourg to Brussels, the possession of either of which would be valuable prizes to the German army. Waterloo, the place which everybody knows as the scene of the downfall of Napoleon at the hands of the allies on the 18th of June, 1815, is not on a direct line from Liege, but lies some sixty miles from it in an air line, south of Brussels.

Pity the Poor Rats. Surgeon General Blue has ordered a corps of 12 rat catchers to start from San Francisco for New Orleans. These experts will carry on a campaign of rat extermination to stamp out the contagion. In six months, at a cost of $100,000, the danger of the bubonic plague will be removed.

But at the cost of the lives of millions of rats! Is not that enough to stir the wrath of all the mushy-hearted people? If it is a crime to use guinea pigs to save human life, how much more wanton is it to slay helpless, defenseless rats on the suspicion that they may be carrying the fleas that propagate a plague! Here is work for the anti-vivisectionists! Save the rats! Let mere men and women die!—Puck.

Australian State Bakery. The New South Wales government has decided to supplement its enterprises by the creation of a state bakery at Sydney. The government will acquire a bakery and bake bread for its own institutions. It is expected that the government will be able to deliver bread to the public institutions at one penny a pound. It is not intended to supply the general public from the government bakery.

BERT'S LAST DIME

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

Bert Noble shivered as he glanced down the street, cold, icy, chilling as the hearts of the crowds that passed him by unheeding.

"The last dime," he said slowly, seriously. "I've got to invest it."

He moved towards the window of the neat, tasty bake shop. It was filled with both solids and dainties. A screened window below was open. It led into the basement room, where the goodies were baked. A warm current of air struck his body. The heat was grateful. A delicious aroma of flavoring and spices assailed his nostrils.

"Those cinnamon rolls," decided Bert, and he went into the store, laid down his dime and received a plumb-full bag. The cleanly dame who waited on him shot a quick glance at his pale, distressed face and made the dozen fourteen.

"If I have to tramp it," ruminated Bert, as he regained the street, "I can make this fare last me out three whole days. A hundred and fifty miles. Why, Napoleon's soldiers covered a thousand with no food except horseflesh and parched corn. Oh, if mother only lasts out until I get home!"

He gulped down a sob and set his steps towards the railroad running through the town. Then he checked himself. He stood almost transfixed. There, standing at the window, at the very spot he had just vacated, was his duplicate.

It was not that the person at whom Bert gazed resembled him in face, for the former was younger and more lightly built. The similitude was present in the like shivering form, overcast and shrinking from the cold, in the ravenous eyes fixed upon the tempting edibles displayed to view beyond the glittering window frame. He was a counterpart of Bert in all this. He visibly stood for penniless, suffering, mayhap desperate humanity.

As by a magnet Bert was drawn towards him. As though the forlorn wayfarer was of the closest kin, he could not resist the compelling influence of interest, sympathy, eye, poor, as he was, sympathy and help! Bert came to his side. The other looked him over keenly. Then he recognized a fellow unlucky one.

"Looks tempting, doesn't it?" he challenged quite cheerily. "If there should be a fire now!" and he laughed whimsically—"or if we had a brick!"

"No need of that," retorted Bert in like affected reckless vein. "See here," and he shook the paper bag in his hand. "If we had a warm spot somewhere we could divide."

"I can fix that," declared the other with hungry alacrity, and he led the way down the street and through a by-lane to the warm room of a big factory. The air was warm from the proximity of the great furnaces. There was a bench and no one denied them the shelter and warmth.

Bert's new acquaintance devoured more than half of the rolls with an avidity that indicated long previous fasting. Then he rolled two cigarettes made up of the scrapings of his pockets and the twin indulged in a comfortable smoke.

At a glance Bert discerned that his companion was a young fellow of good breeding and education. He said his name was Henry Newton, but was not inclined to go into his past history.

"I'm a derelict, stranded just now, like yourself," he observed, but he listened with interest to Bert's story.

"You're better off than I am," he remarked drearily. "You've got a mother and sister. I've nothing human of kin or interested in me except a miserly old grandfather, who cast me adrift because I broke over the lines once or twice in some trivial boyish capers."

"It's my mother that worries me," sighed Bert. "I told you of the letter I received today from my sister. She fears my mother is fatally ill. She implored me to hasten home, little dreaming that I was out of work and penniless."

"But ready to share your last crust with a fellow refugee!" said Newton in a softened tone. "It's one hundred and fifty miles to your home, you say. You might hobo it, but there's no freights out of this town. If you tried to blind baggage it you'd only be thrown off the train at every other station. I say, you come with me!"

His eyes aflare with some fresh and inspiring idea, Newton proceeded to urge Bert along with him. When they regained the principal business street of the town he led him into its largest department store.

"See here!" expostulated the bewildered Bert, "what are you ever up to?"

"You just keep with me. I've a great scheme," was the enigmatical reply, and then, passing a counter, to the surprise of Bert his companion picked up a small bolt of lace and stuck it under his coat.

"Grab me! Holler 'Thief!'" ordered Newton rapidly, but the dumfounded Bert was too surprised to obey, so Newton grabbed him, shouting, "Let me go, I say!" and a floor manager rushed up to the spot.

"What's the trouble here?" he demanded, and then, as if by accident, Newton dropped the stolen bundle from under his coat. "Ah, a thief! eh?"

"I suppose I'm caught," observed Newton with a careless sigh. "This honest fellow grabbed me. I suppose he is ten dollars ahead," and Newton pointed to a sign reading, "Ten dollars reward will be paid for the detection of any theft in this store."

"Get that money and home to your dying mother!" whispered Newton, and for the first moment Bert comprehended the self-sacrifice of a noble man.

"No! no!" he remonstrated, but Newton was led away by an officer and Bert was taken to a desk and handed a ten dollar bill.

He tried to find out where they had taken Newton, but could not. His thoughts turned to home. In an hour he was speeding on his way thither.

Good news awaited him. A brother of his mother, at variance with her for years, had relented in his harshness at learning of her sickness and poverty. This fact and the return of her son caused Mrs. Noble to rally.

Within a week his uncle had started Bert in a modest little business. His time was taken up for a month to the exclusion of all other subjects.

"Bert," spoke his sister Eva one day, "I cannot forget that kind Mr. Newton who did so much for you."

"Nor I, either," said Bert. "I shall go at once in quest of him."

Bert arrived at the town where he had left him, to learn that some relative had come after Newton, had settled the alleged theft and had taken Newton away with him.

One day, as Bert and Eva were in their little store, he walked a visitor.

"Newton!" cried Bert in extravagant delight. It was his old friend, but neatly dressed and showing signs of sure prosperity.

"No, that never was my real name," dissented Newton.

"What, then?"

"Newman—and that exactly expresses it; new-man, see? And this is the dear sister you told me about!"

A dear brother Newman became to Bert soon thereafter. The wanderer had been taken back by his grandfather, life was all before him, bright, earnest, hopeful, and he asked Eva to share it with him.

"Country Jake" No More. The "country jake" of yesterday owns a farm today of several hundred acres, lives in a palatial home with all modern conveniences, such as steam heat, bathroom, improved lighting system, telephone, automobile, etc., remarks the Evansville Courier. He reads the daily newspapers, the magazines, and the best books adorn his library. Surely he doesn't converse on current events as though he were a "country jake"—not by a good deal. And to see him running an automobile on Sunday with his family as passengers he doesn't appear like a "country jake," nor does any member of his family. The rising generation of farmers' sons and daughters are farther removed from being called "country jakes" than were their fathers and mothers years ago. We say times change. And time does change. It changes the farm as well as the city. Evolution works miracles on the farm as well as in the city.

Calls English Coinage Clumsy. When will an attempt be made to reform our clumsy British coinage? We need not wait until the decimal system is introduced, which, with reason, convenience and everything else on its side, still makes very little progress; but we could follow the example of other countries and substitute more convenient coinage for our present coppers. France has just introduced new nickel half-pennies and pennies. These coins cannot be mistaken for silver, even in the dark, as they are perforated.—London Chronicle.

Laconic Analysis. "Perhaps you can tell me what's the matter with the way I farm," said the amateur agriculturist. "Easy!" replied Farmer Cornstossel. "Too much theorizing and not enough early rising."

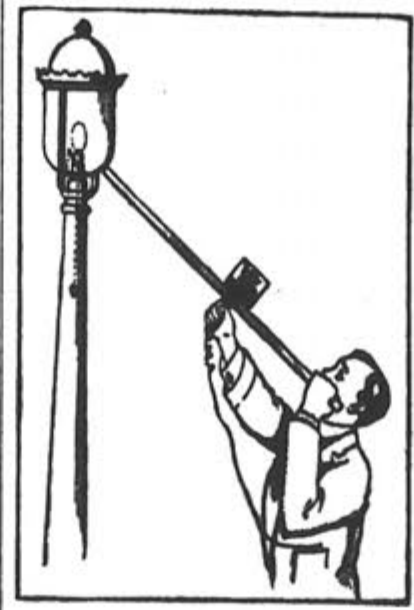

Reforestation. The United States forest service has undertaken the reforestation of a large section in northern Idaho destroyed by forest fires in 1910, to determine whether the destruction of trees decreases the flow of streams.

MEASURING A LAMP'S LIGHT

Portable Device, Invented by Philadelphian for Determining Its Candle Power.

A simple and efficient device for determining the candle power of a light in a lamp post or other support of a like character has been recently invented by a Philadelphian. It is a portable device and is meant particularly for the convenience of gas companies and gas experts or municipal officials who might have occasion to test the character of lights. It consists principally of a photometer box on a staff with certain standards marked along its length. The box is supplied with a standard electric lamp taking its current from a battery carried in the pocket of the operator. The photometer box is supplied with mirrors reflecting the light of the lamp in such a manner that its intensity may be readily compared with that of the standard lamp.

In use the operator may hold one end of the staff with one hand and place the other end against the lantern or globe of the street light. With his free hand the operator presses the handle elements together, thus establishing the circuit, and releasing the clutch element, lighting the standard light and freeing the photometer box on the staff. The operator may then ascertain the candle power by comparison in the ordinary way and having done this, the operator releases the handle elements, thus breaking the circuit of the lamp and locking the photometer box on the staff. The operator at his convenience can then read the scale in respect to the pointer and so ascertain the candle power.

SMELL CAUSE OF INVENTION

Odor in Sulphuric Acid Waste Led to Production of Professor Bell's Photophone.

Alexander Graham Bell, the great inventor, in the National Geographic magazine, tells how his photophone was invented primarily because of a smell. The explanation is as follows: First, a chemist detected in sulphuric acid waste an odor which on analysis was found to come from a hitherto unknown substance. This was called siliconium.

Second, siliconium crystallized was found to be a conductor of electricity of phenomenally high resistance.

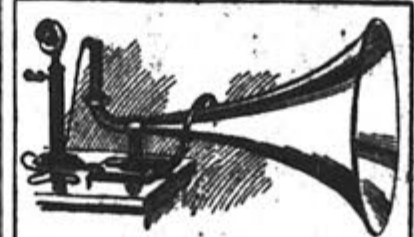

Third, the new resistant, having been put to use in place of whole coils of wire to balance the Atlantic cable during the period of laying, was found to have at night twice its resisting power during the daytime.

Fourth, Professor Bell, playing upon siliconium's sensitiveness to light, produced the photophone, by means of which one may talk over a beam of light.

TELEPHONING IS MADE EASY

Englishman Patents Device, Shaped Like a Trumpet, to Increase Sound From Receiver.

To do away with holding the telephone receiver during a long conversation or while waiting for some one to be called to the telephone, H. W. France, London, England, has patented a trumpet shaped device for magnifying the sound from the receiver.

er so that it may be heard throughout a medium sized room, says Popular Electricity.

The trumpet has a platform at one end to support the receiver, the opening in the receiver being over the opening at the small end of the trumpet when the device is in use.

LATE ELECTRIC INVENTIONS

The ONLOOKER HENRY HOWLAND LUCK

He never walked beneath a ladder, nor saw a pin and let it lie; He never started things on Friday, nor let a good luck charm get by; He never let a hunchback pass him ere he had somehow touched his bump; But once his collar bone was broken against the handle of a pump.

He had a list of all the fixtures; the moon when new was never seen; By him, except over his right shoulder; he would not be one of thirteen; He carried luck stones in his pockets; he thought the coal was accurate; And every morning he selected his right shoe to be put on first.

He often went to fortune tellers to find out how and when to act; He turned away from cross-eyed people, he thought they brought bad luck, in fact; He picked up horseshoes when he found them, but never nailed one over his door— He had no door to nail one over. Enough is said, so why say more?

Cornered. "Pa, are you descended from a king?"

"I don't know. I never took the trouble to find out."

"Why didn't you?"

"Because I have never cared whether I was or not."

"Wouldn't it make you proud if you knew William the Conqueror was one of your ancestors?"

"Not at all. In fact, I'd want to keep it as dark as possible if I knew that I were a descendant of William the Conqueror or of almost any other old king, for that matter."

"Say, pa, I want a quarter."

"You can't have it."

"You give me a quarter or I'll tell ma what you said about not wantin' to be descended from a king!"

No Reason to Complain. "Here," said the disgruntled actor, "I don't want this part. If I play it I'll have to die in the first act."

"Well," replied the manager, "what are you kicking about? You die a natural death, don't you? If you got a chance to come on in the second act you'd get killed."

THE FASHIONABLE WAY. "Do you know, Mary, that we are spending every cent I earn?"

"Well, I don't see why you should complain. All the other people in our set are spending a good deal more than they earn. What's the use being so penurious?"

The Moaning Wind. The wind is moaning through the trees, Sweet summer's down; No longer liquid melodies Are rippled upon the scented breeze; The leaves are blown In little heaps beside the wall, The sun is shedding slanting beams; The wind moans through the trees, and all That I can do—or so it seems— Is let it moan.

An Extraordinary Maiden. "What kind of a girl is she, gny-how? You seem to think she is rather extraordinary."

"She is extraordinary. She would rather attract attention because of the bright things she says than for the fine clothes she wears."

As to Struggling. "Mr. Rockefeller says it is noble to struggle."

"I wonder whether John D. ever left his key in his other trousers and tried to pick the lock with one of his wife's hairpins?"

Creating a Sensation. "Every other woman in town is talking about her."

"What has she done?"

"She has kept her present household maid for more than six months."

Couldn't Understand. "I reduced my stomach measurement nearly four inches by pushing a lawn mower."

"I can't understand why some people are so crazy to be slim."

RAISE A BAN ON MIXED RING BOUTS

New York, Oct. 2.—Wearied by the listless boxing that has taken place in Pittsburgh recently, the authorities of that city have removed the ban against "mixed bouts" in an effort to inject more life in the sport. This is a move that may be copied in nearly all other parts of the country where bouts between whites and blacks are frowned upon by the boxing solons.

It has never been shown conclusively that barring black and white matches was a popular move with the general run of ring followers who have no axes to grind. All evidence that can be gathered is quite to the contrary. The drawing power of the bout is the one infallible barometer of a popular opinion regarding that attraction, and it is idle to deny that mixed bouts attract the biggest crowds.

It was a match between a white and a black that drew the record receipts of $270,775 a sum over four times as great as any other match in the history of the ring. And it was race rivalry that was responsible for it all, for Jeffries, despite his great popularity, never approached the sum in any bout with a paleface rival.

Again it was a negro who helped draw the second largest sum. That was when Joe Gans and Battling Nelson fought in the desert at Goldfield. Although far from any big city and despite the discomfort of travel that battle drew $69,715. These figures certainly do not indicate that mixed bouts are unpopular.

GIVES MEN CREDIT FOR THE PENNANT

New York, Oct. 2.—The Boston Braves, 1914 pennant winners in the National league race, upon his arrival here for their five game-series with the Giants stated:

"I am not one of the I told you so fellows. We fought hard, uphill battles, but my men were equal to the task. I want to give the credit to my boys. Not one of them, but all of them. I shifted my team often and everybody broke into the fight at one time or another. Of course I am elated over winning the National league pennant. I will make no prediction concerning the world series. I didn't claim the National league pennant until we won it and I will adopt the same policy concerning the world series. But there is plenty of fight left in my bunch yet and the boys believe they can trim any baseball club in the world. And that's a pretty fine spirit for the gang to show."

Capt. Evers said: "We are all glad that the strain is over. Until a few weeks ago about three weeks, to be exact, I didn't think we could win. I was afraid our pitchers would not last and that we would crack in other departments. But when we topped the Giants I changed my opinion about not being able to win the pennant. I have never seen a better gang of fighters than the Boston outfit. And I played with the Cubs when it was the greatest fighting team that played here in those days. The youngsters with the Boston club deserve a lot of credit. They didn't blink an eye when under fight and some of the boys can now take a rest in preparation to the big series with the Athletics. I'm making no predictions, but if that bunch likes us they will know that we were in the fight."

A Marvelous Escape

"My little boy had a marvelous escape," writes P. F. Bastians of Prince Albert, Cape of Good Hope. "It occurred in the middle of the night. He got a very severe attack of croup. As luck would have it, I had a large bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. After following the directions for an hour and twenty minutes he was through all danger." Sold by all dealers.

ROSTAND AND WIFE STONED AS COWARDS.

Paris, Oct. 2.—The intransigent says that Edmond Rostand, the famous poet and dramatist, his wife and the Countess Noailles, who were induced to leave Paris when the Germans approached by the argument that the enemy would make them hostages, were stoned by a crowd during an automobile journey. Mme. Rostand and the countess left so hurriedly that they traveled in low-cut evening gowns. When they attempted to get dinner at Chateau Roux a crowd surrounded and accused them of cowardice. The party left dinnerless amid a shower of brickbats.

COMPENSATION

If government should wipe out your investments or your means of gaining a livelihood, you should be recompensed, shouldn't you?

When Switzerland outlawed absinthe, manufacturers, dealers, employe and even farmers were indemnified for losses. Where "prohibition" outlaws the manufacture and sale of liquors, why shouldn't the manufacturers, dealers, employe and even growers (farmers) be compensated by our government?

YOUNG BOXER SUFFERS FROM EFFECTS OF RING GO.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 2. Bill Huddle, a young pugilist fighting at 142 pounds, died early today from injuries received here last night in a six round bout with Arthur Carroll.

Huddle was floored in the first round with a right to the jaw and struck the canvas hard. He rose before the count of ten, however, and lasted out the round. The opening bell for the second found him apparently fresh and he was not noticeably in distress again, although in the last round he was knocked down the second time, apparently no so heavily as in this first. Carroll was given the decision.

While dressing, Huddle collapsed and never regained consciousness.

The court was promoted by James W. Coffroth. Although no arrests had been made early today, Police Captain Mooney, in whose district the fight was held, said that warrants would be sworn out as soon as the formalities permitted against everyone directly involved.

Positively Masters Croup

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cuts the thick choking mucus, and clears away the phlegm. Opens up the air passages and stops the hoarse cough. The gasping, strangling fight for breath gives way to quiet breathing and peaceful sleep. Harold Berg, Mass., Mich., writes: "We give Foley's Honey and Tar to our children for croup and it always act quickly."

Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorate like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. For sale by all dealers.

improving submarines. The day is approaching when sea-going submarines of high surface speed will accompany the main fleet on the high seas. Large vessels of this type, of 21 knots speed, have been designed for the United States navy. Great Britain is building, in the Nautilus, the largest submarine in existence, which is intended to be a seaworthy while on the surface as the latest type of destroyer. Its surface speed will be not less than 21 knots, and it will have a submerged speed of from 15 to 16 knots; it will carry six torpedo tubes, and the surface displacement will be about one thousand five hundred tons.
