VETERAN TRAPPER AND HUNTER OFFERS SOLUTION OF PROBLEM TO PRESERVE DEER

"Make it one deer and a doe the next and interest all land owners of the peninsula in a general movement to require permits from hunters on their lands," is the solution of the problem of preserving the deer of the peninsula, offered by Thomas Moore, of Fridge One, pioneer trapper and hunter of this district.

"I am strongly in favor of a one deer law, but it surely would be a mistake to establish a permanent law requiring hunters to kill only bucks. Such a law would make it necessary within a few years to protect the bucks and confine the kill to does."

"The agitation of the past few years among hunters to kill only bucks has already resulted in a scarcity of bucks in the woods and I am convinced that it would prove a serious mistake to keep up the slaughter of the rials permanently."

"Of course it will never be possible for sportsmen of the peninsula to force a one buck law on a legislature that is controlled by the lower peninsula interests. Residents of the lower peninsula care nothing for our interests up here. They come up to the vicinity of my camp every fall and every man of them brings with him everything that he will need during his stay. He kills his two deer and returns home without leaving a cent of his money in the district. He cares only for his district as a place in which he can kill two deer. To force the lower peninsula hunters to recognize our needs and the necessity of steps being taken to preserve the deer, the land owners of this entire district should get together and establish a system whereby they will be able to enforce a law against trespass and arrest every man who goes on their lands to hunt who does not hold a permit. Only by such means will this district ever be able to secure proper consideration from lower peninsula residents."

Mr. Thomas assured those present last evening that the five days of attractions offered by the Redpath people for next summer would even surpass that offered last summer.

Just what action will be taken in the matter will probably not be known for several weeks.

MURDER CASE IS DROPPED

ACTION IS CONTINUED UNTIL APRIL TERM AFTER SEVERAL HOURS HAVE BEEN OCCUPIED IN MATTER

After several hours had been occupied in drawing a jury the only murder case scheduled for trial at this term of court, that of The People versus John Miller, fell to pieces shortly after the convening of court afternoon, when it developed that all of the witnesses in the case were not present.

John R. C. Flannigan announced that in view of this fact the case would be continued until the next term of court.

Several jurymen had been drawn and attorneys for both sides had prepared information both for and against when the matter was suddenly dropped. The court room was well filled with spectators when the court resumed business after the noon hour and left dejected when the court granted the continuance on motion of Atty. Dotsch for the defendant.

During the remainder of the afternoon only chancery matters occupied the attention of the court, the jurymen being excused until this morning at 9 o'clock.

Yesterday morning the case against Alex Norship, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was dismissed by the court because of technicality in the action.

This morning the personal injury matter of William King against Dr. W. A. LeMire will be taken up and given a jury trial. Atty. Loel is appearing for King and Atty. N. C. Spencer has been retained by Dr. LeMire. The personal injury case of James Smedley against the Mashek Chemical and Iron Company will also be taken up. Atty. M. D. Mead appears for the Mashek and Iron Company while Atty. N. C. Spencer will serve as attorney for Smedley.

Elaborate refreshments were served following the program, bringing the meeting to a most delightful conclusion.

F. BRYANT SETS MARK

Frankie Bryant, the Duluth speed roller skater, who is soon to meet local speed merchants in races at the Peterson rink here, last week defeated Raymond (King) Kelley, of St. Paul, in three straight races and incidentally in the final race set a new mark for five miles on a rink of over 12 laps to the mile. In accomplishing a new record in the final mile by making the distance in 2 minutes, 59 seconds, Bryant's letter to the sporting editor of the Press follows:

Dear Sir: A few lines letting you know that I defeated Raymond (King) Kelley, the St. Paul speed skater, 3 straight races on Jan. 7, 8 and 9, beating him 2 one-mile races and one 5-mile race.

On Saturday night, Jan. 9, we met in a five mile race and I won out by 5 1-2 laps skating the distance in the fastest time ever made on roller skates and also breaking the world's record for any rink over 12 laps to the mile.

The five miles I made in 16 minutes, 22 seconds, breaking my record I made two weeks ago from 16 minutes, 42 seconds to 16 minutes, 22 seconds, flat, and setting a new record for the fifth and last mile, by skating it in 2 minutes, 39 seconds, this being the fastest mile ever made on any rink that is over 12 laps to the mile.

I am soon to appear in Escanaba and when I am booked at the Peterson rink I will show the people what can be done of the little wheels and will also set some records for the rink that will stand for some years to come. Thanking you for past favors you have done for me, I am yours Very truly, FRANK BRYANT

MOVEMENT ASSURED

Members of the board of directors of the Marquette Commercial Club have unreservedly endorsed the action of the upper peninsula railroads in appealing to the legislature for permission to charge a fare of three cents a mile for all intra state traffic.

Of the action taken by the Marquette Commercial club the Mining Journal says: The Marquette Commercial club unreservedly endorses the movement instituted by the upper peninsula railroads to obtain a three-cent passenger tariff, and at a special meeting of the directors Monday afternoon a resolution was adopted stating the club's attitude towards the present two-cent fare law. The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That this organization is in favor of granting to the railroads the increased passenger fares asked for; and be it further

"Resolved, that this organization is not in favor of any laws that will tend to increase the expenses of the railroads or restrict future improvement and development in the upper peninsula."

A special committee from the Commercial club met with the railway officials in conference here Monday, and the case of the railways, as stated in The Mining Journal yesterday morning, was reached that the members of the club be urged to follow up the action of the committee with special correspondence with any members of the state legislature with whom they might be acquainted.

HARVEY A. SPINDLER, Observer

THE WILSON "ANNOUNCEMENT."

The declaration of President Wilson in his Indianapolis speech that "there may come a time when the American people may have to judge whether I know what I am talking about or not," seems to have attracted more attention than anything else the president said on that occasion.

There are two reasons why the president will be a candidate and none why he will not. One of the reasons why he will be is that he is not the kind of a man to run away from facing the consequences of his administration of the government and fighting for it.

As was to be expected, there have been references in the partisan press antagonistic to anything labeled "democratic," to the hrowing overboard of the "one term" plank in the democratic platform.

As a matter fact, President Wilson is not pledged to a single term by his platform, as anyone can speedily convince himself who has had a contrary opinion and cares to investigate.

So there is no barrier to the president becoming a candidate for re-election, and no human prospect that he will not be. That might as well be regarded as settled.

Any of the republican brethren, however, who consider that it is all over but the shouting probably have another guess coming. The feat of the administration in managing to retain control of congress in the election last November, with industrial stagnation rampant, and the fruits of tariff tinkering still bitter in the mouth; when it was congress and not the president who was seeking cindication, congress with its record of extravagance and peanut politics, is indication that the administration has considerable strength in reserve somewhere yet.

A Chicago girl who was plighted with $25,000 for her loss. The court ought to wait a year, then let the man's wife decide how much he is worth—and the other girl would have to pay for not taking him in the first place.

The railroads are to abolish the observation cars. We suppose the observation car hog who monopolized the whole space will next transfer himself to the smoking compartment and drive everyone else to the baggage car.

That state senator who introduced a resolution urging the United States to buy Mexico probably will propose to have Rockefeller end the war by buying Germany.

The official count shows 200,000 skilled workers idle in New York—a million persons without income; one in every five: Is that kind of peace so much better than war?

They're defeating Villa again in Carranza's dispatches. Carranza would make a good Vienna war correspondent.

London, Jan. 13.—In view of the predicted entrance into the war of Roumania and perhaps Italy, unusual interest attaches to dispatches indicating that disquiet in the Balkans is spreading.

Italy may be called upon soon to resort to force of arms in Albania. The insurgents are said to be bringing up guns to direct against Durazzo, the port recently occupied by Italian forces.

Servia's aspirations have expanded since her victory over the Austrian army and, according to a Rome dispatch, she now insists that in the event of victory for the allies, she must receive Bosnia, Herzegovina and Dalmatia.

Italy has sent troops to the Italian islands in the Aegean archipelago, which she is fortifying.

Roumania is to begin the mobilization of her army late this month.

Special dispatches from Rome today say that Turkey has agreed to the demands of Italy in connection with the Hodeida incident. According to these advices, Turkey has ordered the release of British Vice Consul Richardson, who was arrested in the Italian consulate at Hodeida, and has promised to punish the soldiers who broke into the consulate, as well as to salute the Italian flag when it is again hoisted over the building.

London, Jan. 13.—Weather conditions have not completely stopped the fighting in the east, have called a halt over the greater part of the field of operations. In restricted areas, along the river Rawka, near Bolimow, however, there has been fierce fighting, but, according to Petrograd correspondents, the Germans have been unable to make any material advance. Severe fighting also is taking place on the Nida river, where the Austrians are opposing the Russian attempts to penetrate to Cracow.

The Germans are keeping the Marston lakes open with ice breakers to block the Russian advance in East Prussia. The Russian troops hold positions around the lakes and have

The Turks deny that they have been defeated by the Russians in the Caucasus, and, as an offset to this denial, Petrograd has the report that Noury Bey, chief of the general staff of the Third Ottoman army corps, who was sent by the sultan to investigate the report of the defeat, has been captured by the Cossacks.

The Turks have been offering a stubborn resistance to the Russians at Kara Urgan, where a battle has been in progress for five days. The position at this place is more favorable for the Turks, who have not the deep snow of the mountains to contend with and are in closer touch with their base. It is a death struggle for them, for so long as the Russian fleet commands the Black sea the Turks cannot get reinforcements from Europe, the overland route being a long and difficult one. They have an army corps at Bagdad, but this is needed to oppose the advance of the British Indian army from the east.

Official denial is made in Petrograd of the report that Grand Duke Alexander Michailovitch, brother-in-law of Emperor Nicholas, was killed in fighting in Persia.

London, Jan. 13.—The French attacks to the north of Soissons, on the Aisne and near Perthes, east of Rheims are developing into a serious offensive. The gains the French have made at these points, if followed up, would have a two-fold importance. They threaten the railways which the Germans are using to supply their troops in the fighting line and are a serious menace to the German forces which hold positions to the north of Rheims.

The French have found it impossible to take by frontal attacks those positions from which the Germans are bombarding Rheims, but advances on either side would envelop them and force a retirement, thus giving the Cathedral city relief from the German shells.

In the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse, the Germans are on the offensive and claim to have made further progress. It is reported that the Germans have sent heavy reinforcements to this district to prevent the French from breaking their lines, which are very close to their own border, and not far from Metz.

Fresh German troops dispatched to Alsace, combined with wintry weather, have stopped the French advance in that region. Along the rest of the front artillery is doing most of the work. Only isolated attacks are being attempted.

Venice, via London, Jan. 13.—Private reports from Vienna and statements appearing in the Austrian papers show that conditions in the Austrian capital are daily becoming more serious. Smallpox, cholera and typhoid fever, are prevalent. Forty-five cases of small pox have been officially reported in Vienna during the first nine days of January. Many cases of contagion are also reported from various centers of lower and upper Austria, Syria, Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia and Galicia.

Great numbers of fugitives have arrived from Bukovina and many more are expected. Many of them are on the verge of starvation. The price of staple foods is no longer obtainable.

London, Jan. 13.—A wireless dispatch from Berlin says that the military establishments in and near Dunkirk were destroyed by the German airship flotilla which attacked that city on Sunday. The Dunkirk lighting plant also was destroyed. The dispatch says this information is contained in a message from Rotterdam.

Dunkirk, on the coast of France, is the British continental military base. Troops and supplies arriving from England are landed at this port.

London, Jan. 13.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Mail reports it is the general belief in Russia that the projected new invasion of Servia is due to the urgent demands of Hungarian statesmen that something should be done to defend their country; otherwise they threaten that Hungary will look after herself.

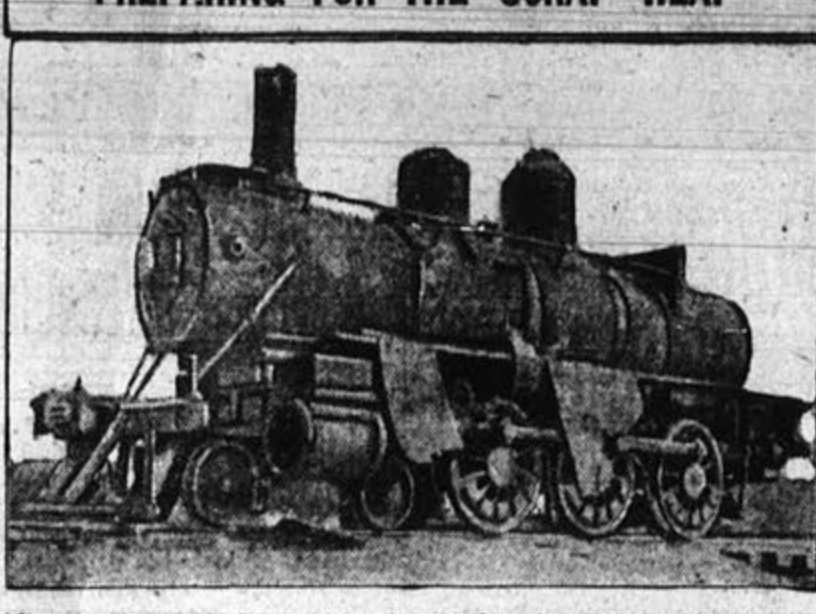

It is stated, according to the same dispatch, that an expedition of 400,000 men is being made ready under the nominal command of Archduke Eugene of Austria, to which will be attached an German general as the real leader. The expedition will include two Bavarian army corps and a corps of Prussian reservists and is expected to begin operations about the middle of February.

London, Jan. 13.—The Times correspondent at Sofia says he believes that, whatever now happens, Roumania will start a campaign in Transylvania, probably about the middle of February. The Roumanian minister to Bulgaria, who is now in Bucharest, the correspondent adds, is expected to return soon to Bulgaria, taking with him proposals to facilitate an understanding between Bulgaria and Roumania.

"It is believed," the correspondent declares, "that restitution of the towns of Balchik and Teobritch (in that portion of northeastern Bulgaria which was awarded to Roumania at the end of the Balkan war) will be offered. Roumania formerly had hesitated, owing to her doubts concerning Italy's policy, but she is now convinced that Italy will join the allies."

What He Was Counting. "Who is that man over there—the one counting his fingers?" "That's Dobby, the post. But he isn't counting his fingers; he's counting his feet."—Boston Record.

PREPARING FOR THE SCRAP HEAP

After the Sheeting is Removed, the Locomotives Are Cut into Pieces With Oxy-acetylene Torches.

When railroad locomotives have served their time of usefulness, or are badly damaged through accidents, they are ordinarily scrapped and disposed of as salvage. This at least is the practice followed by many of the companies which turn over their obsolete equipment of this kind to firms which junk it. The accompanying photograph shows an engine which has completed its service, waiting to be wrecked by the junk man.

FOR LIGHTER BRIDGES GUARD HEALTH OF TRAVELERS

TESTS PROVE PRESENT STRUCTURES NEEDLESSLY HEAVY.

Too Much Allowance for the Effects of Rapidly Moving Trains Has Been Made in the Past, Is Expert Opinion.

"Not so much allowance will be made in railroad bridges of the future for the effects of rapidly moving trains as has been made in the past," according to Dean F. E. Turneaure of the University of Wisconsin college of engineering.

A series of tests for the purpose of showing the effects of rapidly moving trains on bridges has been carried on for several years under the direction of Dean Turneaure and C. L. Crandall, professor of railroad engineering at Cornell university. These men form a sub-committee on impact tests of a committee on iron and steel structures, created by the American Railroad Engineering association.

The tests have shown that in railroad bridges which have been built in the past too much allowance for the effects of rapidly moving trains has been made, that the different members of the bridges have been made heavier than need be. When the findings of this committee are properly formulated, and accepted by the American Railway Engineering association, the bridges of the future will probably be built of less material. This means a direct saving in the cost of construction. Each member will be built lighter, and the entire structure will be more uniform and not so massive.

The tests were made in the central states, going as far south as Purcell, Oklahoma; as far west as Omaha, Nebraska; and as far east as Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. They were made on many different kinds of structures of varying length and spans. Most of the railroads contributed to this work by furnishing the field party, usually composed of Professors Turneaure and Crandall with six aids, a special train of certain make-up and known weight.

Instruments were placed upon each member of a bridge to be tested and the train run across the structure at certain speeds. These speeds varied, with a difference between each of five miles an hour, from five miles an hour up to the limit of the engine. By this method the stress in the bridge members and the deflection of the bridge was determined. From the information thus obtained curves were plotted, by means of which the true effect of the speed of trains can be determined.

Work was done on the C. B. & Q. railroad bridge over the Mississippi river; on the Rock Island and Illinois Central bridges in Iowa; on C. M. & St. P. bridges in Illinois and southern Wisconsin; on Norfolk Western bridges in Ohio; on bridges of the Pennsylvania railroad in Ohio and in Indiana; and with electric locomotives near Schenectady, New York. About twenty-five thousand tests were completed in all and a bulletin has been issued containing the report of these tests.

Block Signals on Southern. The Southern railroad has nearly completed the installation of an automatic block signal system between Amherst and Whittles, Va.—57 miles—and between Atlanta and New Holland, Ga.—53 miles—thus providing for two important double track stretches of the Washington-Atlanta line, the same protective facility which is in use between Washington and Orange, Va., between Danville, Va., and Pelham, N. C., and between Denim and Charlotte, N. C.

Boston Cyclecar Show in October. Arrangements are being made by the Manufacturers' and Dealers' Cyclecar association for the conduct of the first cyclecar show in Boston, October 10 to 17. MEN FLOCKING BACK TO MILLS

Pittsburg, Jan. 13.—From all parts of Pennsylvania come encouraging reports of renewed industrial activity of men returning to work of new confidence of capital. This is noted especially in the steel and coal trade.

The Eclipse and Alice mines of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., were started on full time last Monday. From 500 to 600 men will be given employment in each of the two mines, both of which have been closed for many months.

Notice has also been given of the resumption at Momeesen of the American Sheet & Tin Plate mill. On Monday 1,500 men will return to work there after a long period of idleness.

The finishing department of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. resumed operations again, giving employment to 1,300 men.

After a shutdown of several months, docks Nos. 12 and 13 of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal & Coke Co., at Monogahela, resumed, with the prospect of the company's entire capacity soon being in operation.

Prosperity in Automobiles.

New York, Jan. 13.—Automobile men, exhibitors at the automobile show, in Grand Central palace, predicted a rapid upward turn in all commercial and industrial lines within the next sixty days.

"Automobile men at this year's show told me their sales were running 20 to 30 per cent above last year's sales," declared S. A. Miles, manager of this year's auto exposition. "They declare this to be sound evidence that business conditions are on the mend."

Heavy War Orders.

London, Jan. 13.—William L. Griffith, secretary to the lord high commissioner in London, says regarding British purchase of war equipment in Canada:

"British orders placed in the dominion are between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000. The French and Russians also have placed large orders in Canada.

"The United States, whose productive ability and capacity for quick delivery has never been better shown, is also receiving a vast increase in orders from Europe."

ECUADOR BUILDS NEW LINES

Rolling Stock From the United States Has Been Imported for Their Operation.

There is but one completed railroad in Ecuador, that between Guayaquil and Quito. Until this road was extended in 1905 Quito was, by modern standards, considered to be shut out from the world. Another road, the Ambato-Curaray railroad, 190 miles long, is under construction, which will connect the Guayaquil and Quito railroad at Ambato with the easterly provinces of the republic. The last consignment of rails for this new road is expected about November. Two Baldwin locomotives have been received and other rolling stock has been ordered from the United States.

The preliminary survey is nearly completed for still another railroad between Puerto Bolivar and Borja known as the transamazon railroad. This road will connect the Pacific coast with the head of navigation on the Marañon river, the name by which the upper Amazon is known as it passes through the Peruvian Andes within a hundred miles of the Pacific ocean.—Scientific American.

Best Colors for Danger Signal. In theory, at least, the best colors for a universal danger signal are yellow and blue. One reason for this is that they are the only colors which give rise to a normal color sensation as soon as they become visible as colored. They can be seen at a greater distance than any other colors.

Then, too, all other colors appear either yellow or blue until they pass inside of the yellow blue area of the eyes. Yellow and blue are also the most luminous colors of the spectrum. These rare cases where the ability to see yellow and blue is impaired will call them red or green and so receive a protection which red would not give them. Still another reason for preferring yellow and blue is that they are the most permanent colors and quite fast to sunlight.

Roads Save $1,000,000 a Year. To effect a saving estimated at $1,000,000 yearly, the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Oregon-Washington railroads will eliminate ten passenger trains running between Washington and Oregon points.

FORCES WOMEN TO PEEL POTATOES

Berlin, Jan. 13.—Prisoners of war exercise upon many women the same attraction noted so often in the case of renowned criminals, according to some German observers.

With the advent of the first train-load of captives in Germany last fall came stories, describing indignantly how flowers and dahlias had been showered upon the prisoners, and how many girls and women exhibited great pleasure at securing a button from a military coat or some other keepsake.

A rugged old soldier commanding the prisoners' camp at Friedrichsfelde, near Wessel, has, according to a report in a Wessel paper, hit upon a novel scheme for punishing the curious women who flock in great numbers to see the prisoners under his charge. Visitors are denied admittance to the camp, but many get as near as possible and try to talk to the captives. A number of these women were taken in charge by the sentries and led before the commandant. His decree was this:

"The women arrested are to be conducted to the camp kitchen, where they will peel potatoes for three hours."

The following manifesto, signed by Colonel von Wieters, commandant of the prisoners' detention camp at Goerlitz, is published:

"The three young women who felt themselves moved to send their photographs to the Russian prisoner, Geo. Hirschberg are requested to come to the office of the commandant and take them away. If they do not, their names will be made public."

Three others, who fell in love with French prisoners of war and became engaged to them, have been dismissed in disgrace from their posts as volunteer hospital nurses the commanding general at Strassburg, in communicating their delict to the public through the newspapers, identified them by Christian names, initials and address the entire community from which they came.

JONES FURNACE IS TO RESUME

Of the reopening of the experimental plant of the Jones furnace at Marquette and the success of which is being closely watched here, the Mining Journal says:

This week or the early part of next week, the Jones' furnace in North Marquette will resume its operations, after a period of several weeks' inactivity, during which time extensive changes have been made at the plant. "While I cannot set a definite date for the resumption of operations," said John T. Jones, inventor of the new process, yesterday, "it will not be more than a week distant. We have equipped the horizontal tube with new ends. It required considerable time for new castings to be made. These are now in place."

Other changes of minor importance have been made at the furnace property. Still others are in progress and will, it is expected, be completed within a few days' time.

PRISON FIRES WERE STARTED BY INMATE

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 13.—The mystery of a series of incendiary fires, which have threatened the lives of the fifteen hundred prisoners in the state penitentiary, was believed to have been solved tonight when George Howard, sentenced from Chicago, was caught lighting a blaze in the broom room, after three fires in the furniture factory had been extinguished. Howard, who also had been confined in the insane asylum at Chester, was captured, after he had rushed Deputy Warden Walsh with a meat cleaver.

The first blaze discovered tonight was in the furniture shop, where three piles of shavings were blazing. The convict fire brigade had hoses trained on the flames when an alarm rang in from the rattan factory. Walsh led a second detachment of fire fighters to the rattan factory and found fires burning at both ends. These were placed under control, and Walsh was returning to the furniture shop when he met Charles Murray a convict from Peoria.

"There he is," shouted Murray. "There is the firebug."

Walsh saw Howard at the entrance to the broom room, leaning over a pile of straw with a lighted match in his hand. As Walsh and Murray rushed toward him, Howard straightened up with a meat cleaver in his hand. Although the inner guards do not carry revolvers or clubs, Walsh dropped his hand to his hip pocket and threatened to shoot Howard. The ruse was successful and the prisoner dropped the cleaver.

The first incendiary fire was set in June when rattan factory No. 1 was found on fire. Dec. 21 rattan factory No. 2 and 3 were destroyed, with a loss of $10,000. Howard has confessed to setting the fires.

FORTUNES OF FRITZ

By JULES ODIN.

"I'd like to give you that dog," proceeded the man in the doorway. "I'd like for you to have it. He's a nice pup and I'm grateful for what you—" "Oh, all right," said Bammett, absent-mindedly, frowning at the paper before him. Already he had forgotten his charity client and was vaguely annoyed at his chatter.

"I'll take him to your house," added the man. Then he vanished. That was why Bammett, when he opened his front door that night, had the surprise of seeing Fritz. It always was a surprise to see Fritz, because most of him was where one didn't expect it. Reliable persons assured Bammett later that Fritz was a dachshund of good breeding, but Bammett always shook his head. He said Fritz was nothing more or less than a ball of string unwound and stretched out and that, for his part, he should think Fritz would establish telegraph stations on his head and tail in order to keep track of himself during his tortuous progress.

The annoying part of it was that every foot of Fritz's length was brimming over with affection, and if there is anything more annoying than being compelled, in spite of yourself, to love something you have made up your mind to dislike it has yet to be discovered.

With Fritz coiled up comfortably in his lap that evening Bammett had a sudden chill. He remembered that Mrs. Bammett disliked dogs vigorously. In fact, that was why they had never owned one heretofore. Bammett felt that he should have to pay dearly when his wife returned for the fit of abstraction that was responsible for his acquiring Fritz. And he was not disappointed.

Mrs. Bammett shrieked when she arrived from the train that week and was greeted by Fritz's head and shoulders, and beaming eyes. The rest of him trailed off into the butler's pantry and was invisible.

"Where did that awful thing come from?" she demanded. "Henry Bammett, why on earth did you go and get a dog the minute my back was turned, when you know I hate the creatures? And he's so much dog!" she wailed, indignantly.

"I couldn't help it," said Bammett, after the manner of men. "He was thrust upon me!"

"There was plenty of time to run before all of him got there!" Mrs. Bammett insisted. "No human being could help seeing his approach hours before his total arrival! You've got to get rid of him!"

"Who can I give him to?" asked Bammett.

"Go away!" cried Mrs. Bammett to Fritz.

Bammett, gazing at Fritz, brown, beaming and wagging, felt a new prospecting affection stir within him. Surprisingly he patted the sleek head. "I'll dispose of him, somehow," he promised.

"Aren't you going to do anything about this dreadful dog?" Mrs. Bammett asked a week later.

"I thought you were beginning to like him," said Bammett. "You feed him!"

"I can't let a living thing starve to death right before my eyes!" she asserted, frigidly. "I suppose I would feed a convict, if he was helpless on my hands!"

"You might find somebody who would take him," she insisted the next night. Fritz had come contentedly and laid down across her feet. She frowned as she looked at him.

"You might push him away, you know," suggested her husband.

"I wouldn't hurt a helpless creature no matter how I hated it!" Mrs. Bammett told him, virtuously.

Bammett came home early one night and found Fritz in Mrs. Bammett's lap. She had the grace to blush.

"He just got up here," she explained rapidly. "I was putting him down, when I stopped to notice how silky his hair is. If you cared anything for me you would have done something about him before this!"

Bammett rose to the occasion. "Your troubles are over," he told her. "The janitor of our building has promised that he'll take Fritz as a favor, though he doesn't care about dogs."

He paused. Mrs. Bammett, her remembrance of Fritz, whose tongue was hanging out from his sudden choking surge into her embrace, was glaring at her husband. "Henry Bammett!" she cried. "Give this poor, helpless puppy to a horrid old janitor who'll make him live in a coal cellar? Not if I know it. The idea! I don't believe you care anything about the dog at all. I shall keep Fritz myself if nobody else on earth cares enough about him to—"

"Fritz, old boy," interrupted Bammett, "you win!"

Napoleon Disgraced.

An army of 1,000,000 men employed on one battlefield, under one command, was unknown to strategists of even so comparatively late date as the seventies. No great acknowledged master of the art of war ever took into action a force of even half this strength. The army which Napoleon led into Russia, which has hitherto held a record only challenged in the course of the Russo-Japanese war, consisted, roughly speaking, of about 600,000 men. On no battlefield did Napoleon personally ever handle more than 180,000 men, touching his maximum at Wagram in 1809.

RIGHT PASTURE FOR SWINE

Very Rank Growth of Crop Will Supply Feed for Twenty-Five Head to Acre, Says Mumford.

(By DEAN MUMFORD, Missouri Experiment Station.)

A good growth of rape will supply pasture for ten to twenty hogs to the acre. A very rank growth may supply feed for 25 head. Where the feeding is to extend from ten to fourteen weeks it is advisable to pasture rape at the rate of ten to twelve head to the acre.

The favorable time for seeding rape is in the spring, as soon as danger of hard freezing is past. It will furnish pasture from the middle of May until the third week in August. Rape will withstand light frosts, but not hard freezing. The best results are obtained when oats and clover are sown with it. Sown from five to seven pounds of rape seed of the drill and then drill in one-half bushel of oats and six to ten pounds of clover seed to the acre. The rape and oats will serve as a cover crop for the clover and usually a good stand of clover will be obtained that may be pastured with hogs the following year.

If rape is not grazed too closely in June and July, so that the stalk of the plant is eaten off, it may grow up and make fall pasture. It should never be pastured so closely as to destroy all leaves on the stalk, and stock should not be turned on until the plants are from fourteen to eighteen inches high.

Complaint is sometimes made by feeders that scabs and cores form on the ears and backs of the hogs on rape. The remedy is to move the hogs to another pasture for a short time and then dip them or apply sulphur and lard to the sores.

Beginners Especially Are Liable to Make This Error With Pullets—Wheat Is Good Feed.

Those who are having their first experience with a flock of pullets of considerable size should remember that the birds, having been brought up on the range during the summer, are more impatient of restraint than the older birds. Hence, it is essential that they be handled so they will obtain the maximum amount of exercise in the winter quarters. Probably this is better done by some intelligent care in feeding than in any other way.

Let the pullet have one good meal during the day, arranging this at any period which seems best after experimenting; for the rest of the day keep her busy by frequently scattering small quantities of grain among the chaff on the floor or in the yard if the weather is sufficiently open.

Manage it so that each pullet will be fairly well fed during the day; there is little danger of overfeeding by this plan, so that care must be taken that they have enough. Furnishing exercise in this manner gives the best possible results for the pullets when they are in the search for food when they could not be induced to do half the moving around if their appetites were already satisfied. Be careful to use small grains in this manner of feeding, wheat being probably the best for the purpose.

LITTLE INSECT IS MIGHTY

Mite Causes More Trouble Than Any Other Parasite or Disease Known to Poultry Industry.

The little insect shown in the picture causes more trouble than any other parasite or disease known to poultry. It is so small as to be barely visible to the naked eye, but it multiplies in such numbers that they become so numerous as to hang in fustoons about the sides of nest boxes. They will drive a sitting hen from the nest and often cause great annoyance to horses, cows and other animals in the vicinity of the poultry house.

Mighty Little Mite.

The tiny jaws of the mite are formed for sucking blood, and that is the way they sap the life from their victims.

They can be eradicated by spraying with lime and sulphur, or kerosene. This should be done every two weeks and the hens must be given plenty of dust all the time.

NEEDED STORES FOR WINTER

Bees Should Be Fed on Sirup Made of Best Granulated Sugar—Add Little Tartaric Acid.

Bees needing stores for winter should be fed on sirup made of best granulated sugar, in the proportion of fifty pounds of sugar to twenty pounds of water. The water should be brought to a boil and the sugar stirred in until thoroughly dissolved. Bring this sirup to a boil, and while boiling stir in three teaspoonfuls of tartaric acid, previously dissolved in a cupful of water. The acid helps to invert the sugar and prevents it granulating again in the comb. Each colony going into winter quarters should have at least 35 pounds of sirup or honey for winter use. Blackstrap will not do for wintering bees.

THE DELFT

"The Path Forbidden" a frivolous, beautiful girl, Violet Dare, created havoc among the summer boarders at an Adirondack Hotel. Two young chaps, Joe Brill and Jim Kent, were the favored ones, but Joe finally married her. Later travels the "Path Forbidden" and is finally driven out by the husband, Joe Brill. She wishes to take one of the two children, but the husband forbids. So she steals one little girl and takes her away.

Years later we see the twins grown to womanhood. Neither knows of the existence of the other. Pearl, the stolen one, is leading the life of her mother led when alive. Lucy is the aid and comfort of the father, who through unwise investments loses his money, the shock of which causes a stroke and is removed to an asylum. Lucy then runs a country hotel.

Pearl, the evil sister, has gained the love of an honorable young lawyer, Curtis Holmes, who will not marry her unless she gives up her forbidden life. She promises and the wedding is announced.

At the last moment a dope and race track tout persuades her to go away with him. Traveling by auto, they have an accident. Pearl is carried to the hotel run by Lucy. The sisters notice the marked resemblance, but think it merely a coincidence. Curtis, missing Pearl, follows to the hotel where he mistakes Lucy for Pearl, but soon finds out his error. He later finds in Lucy all that he had wished for in Pearl, so he transfers his affections.

The father recovers and is brought home by Lucy.

Shortly after the barn dance, Pearl disguises as Lucy and in lighting a cigarette sets fire to the place, and in trying to escape sprains her ankle and falls from palm. The father, Joe Brill, taking his first stroll in the evening, notices the blaze and is told by the farmers that Lucy is in there. Without thought for himself, he carries Pearl out and takes her to the hotel. There he sees it is not Lucy and memory goes back to two small cradles. Asking her name and her mother's, he finds his other daughter, Pearl, discovering a father, something she had never known, resolves to leave the "Path Forbidden" and be the comfort of her father, who needs her now that Lucy has married Curtis.

AMONG THE THEATRES

BIJOU

Washington, Jan. 12.—The region around Verdun in the Department of the Meuse, and that around Sedan and Charleville, in the Department of Ardennes, form the subject of an interesting statement by the National Geographical Society. The statement is as follows:

"The Department of the Meuse, in northeastern France is one of the most strongly fortified regions in the world. The greatest length of this department from north to south is approximately eighty miles, and its greatest width is approximately forty miles, yet within that circumscribed area, with its 2,400 square miles of territory are the great fortress of Verdun, the fortified positions of St. Mihiel and Gironville, and the towns of Montmedy, Stenay, Montfaucou, Spincourt, Troyon and Commercy, each eloquent with recent military history."

"The Meuse River flows through the department from its southeast corner to its northwest border, crossing the latter only about ten miles from the historic battlefield of Cedan, Verdun, St. Mihiel and Gironville defend its eastern banks and the great fortifications of Toul from an outpost of its valley. About one-half of the total area of the department is embraced in the valley of the Meuse, which is enclosed on the west by the forests of Argonne, and on the east by the hills known as the Cote de Meuse. Still further to the east lies the forests of the Woivre district. One-fourth of the entire department is covered with forests, and they were, prior to the present war, those finely kept forests of France that resembled wooden parks in our own country."

"The three hundred thousand people who live in the department of the Meuse in normal times are devoted mainly to agriculture and manufacturing. Their crops correspond generally to those of the Mohawk Valley of New York, the Susquehanna Valley of Pennsylvania and the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Sugar beets are an important addition to the list of things produced from the soil."

Vaccination is being resorted to by many residents of Iron Mountain as a preventive and health authorities are smallpox.

GOV. FERRIS TO NAME BUT FEW REPUBLICANS

Lansing, Jan. 13.—Judging from remarks made by Governor Ferris Republican opportunities for appointments—provided the places they ask for do not have to be filled by Republicans—are very slim.

"There has been a lot of talk concerning my appointments of Republicans to state offices simply because a lot of good Republicans voted for me," said the governor. "I do not think that the Republicans who voted for me would think very much of me if I turned around and gave the Republicans a lot of the places, which under the ordinary rules of politics should be filled by Democrats. I take it those Republicans, who voted for me, simply would say: 'Why, he is a chump. He is so soft, we can do anything with him.'"

Mentions Certain Exceptions.
"Such a condition I do not care to have arise, and if I can help it, it will not. I will say this: In cases where there are boards of five you will find three Democrats and two Republicans and in boards of three you will find two Democrats and one Republican. This will apply except in rare cases where I am satisfied that it is absolutely to the best interest of the board or the state department in which the work is done, to keep in a Republican."
"No Republican governor in Michigan in twenty-five years has done as much for the opposite party in the way of appointments as I have done for the Republicans during my two years in office."

Think Hanley Has Refused.
The remarks of the governor were called forth by an attempt to have him say whom he was going to appoint banking commissioner. The visit here yesterday of A. E. Stevenson caused the gossips to work overtime. This morning, however, the governor intimated very broadly that Stevenson would not be the man. He expects to be able to announce his selection on Monday. He has lined out now for one, who has not been mentioned, he said. Judge Hanley, of Detroit, is not considered to be the man, as it is understood that Hanley and another Detroit have refused absolutely to take the place.

From the governor's remarks today there is no longer any question that Mr. Doyle will not be re-appointed. Although the governor has said this privately for some time past, he came out openly with it today. He considers Mr. Doyle a good man, but at the same time he says he is confident that he can find a Democrat who is as well equipped as Doyle. The governor also intimated that Deputy Albert H. Manning probably would not be retained.

Commissioner to Have Free Rein
"The man whom I shall appoint banking commissioner is to have free rein," said the governor. "I do not doubt Mr. Manning's capacity, but at the same time the man who is appointed banking commissioner is to be free to do what he pleases. If I were to go into a new place I should want to have as deputy a man of my own selection. Understand me, I am not saying that Mr. Manning will not be retained, but I do not think that a banking commissioner who is looking out for his own administration will take as a deputy a man other than his own."

While it has been taken for granted that the examining force of the banking commissioner's office would not be disrupted to any great extent, the fact that the governor is going to place the matter up to his new appointee leads to the belief in the capital that many of the present Republican force will be ousted and Democrats put in their places. Deputy Manning has been in the department for a number of years and is a recognized authority on banking law.

"I have agreed to appoint W. D. Farley of Battle Creek, as a member of the state board of health to succeed Charles M. Ranger, deceased. I don't know whether Farley is a Republican or a Democrat. I believe he is a Republican, but in this case I acted entirely upon the recommendation of the state board of health."

Helme Will Be Confirmed.
The governor was asked whether he would send a new name to the senate in case the upper house refused to confirm the reappointment of Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme. "I don't believe Helme will encounter any serious trouble, but I refuse to cross that bridge until I come to it," said Governor Ferris.

The governor says he will gladly sign a civil service bill if the legislature will pass one during the present session, when asked if he didn't favor the retention of many of the employees in the departments soon to come under Democratic control.

However, as the legislature is overwhelmingly Republican, it is believed that there is no possibility that such a bill will receive favorable consideration, as the g. o. p. leaders do not want to place the Democratic officeholders on the state pay roll for a long period of years.

Man Who Struck Oil First.
How many Americans recall the name of Edwin L. Drake? He was said to have been a conductor on the New Haven railroad 55 years ago. Then he was employed at Oil Creek, Pa., to drill a well for oil, and on August 27, 1859, his work was done and his well went down in history as the first ever drilled for oil in the United States.—Leslie's.

Recognized Word at Once.
A little nine-year-old boy was laboriously looking up his spelling words in the dictionary when he came upon one whose meaning was perfectly apparent to him. He dashed off a sentence containing the word "capsize" and passed to the next. Imagine the teacher's amusement when he recited glibly, "My cap size is No. 6."—Dellencator.

SHOULD SHE TELL?

By CLARA CROSS.

"If you could have seen his profile!" mourned the girl with the sunburned neck. "Anyhow, I still think Emily ought to have told me! She was my hostess."

"I always thought Emily had a lovely nature," objected the girl in the new basque waist.

"She may have a lovely nature," agreed the young woman with the sunburn, "but she begged me to stay over with her when the rest of the house party left, just to keep me from going back in the same crowd with Wayne Hipple! How could I help it if Wayne was nicer to me than he was to her—"

"If it wasn't Wayne, then who was it?" demanded the girl in the wrinkled basque.

"Emily said I simply must stay because I loved nature so, and now that most of the cottagers had gone home there were oceans of nature lying around loose and unappropriated, and, anyhow, her mother was going in to Chicago, and she'd be so lonesome all alone. She was so mournful about it that I had to stay, or make myself out a perfect brute."

"I went out to fish," said the girl with the sunburned neck. "Not at all because I like to fish, but because there was nothing else to do, and the meat hadn't come. Emily said that unless I caught some we'd have no dinner. So I took the rowboat and rowed around the bend into the bayou. He was there."

"The fish?"

"The man. Right in the spot where I wanted to anchor swung his boat. I thought he was a native because of the old straw hat till he turned, and it was then I was smitten dumb by the profile. And the eyes! And the general look of being somebody! I knew immediately he must be a man of importance who had buried himself in the wilds to rest, and I was so thankful that I had on the newest style of middy and a becoming shade hat. I resolved to be perfectly oblivious and self-possessed, so I proceeded to stop and fish as I had first intended. A man always admires an unfused girl. I couldn't help it, could I, if my bamboo pole dropped overboard?"

"Right Where I Wanted to Anchor."

"Oh, horribly crude!"

"It was better than falling overboard myself," protested the other. "Not nearly so messy! I wish you could have seen the manner in which he retrieved that pole and gave it to me! When he raised his hat I decided that he was some movie star."

"Finally he called over to me to say that he thought I'd catch more fish if I baited my hook! Fancy! I was so confused that he rowed over and baited it for me! But I didn't seem to catch any, so he generously divided his own, after he had discovered that I was fishing for my dinner."

"I went fishing again the next morning, too. There was no reason I should be driven off the lake by a stranger. We didn't talk so much, but you should have seen his eyes! In a week I felt we had known each other a lifetime! You can tell by a man's expression whether he has a superior soul, I think! That is, usually."

"Emily said she couldn't imagine why I had grown so crazy over fishing, and said she believed she'd come along, but I persuaded her not to. The sun always gives her a headache. I was bound that for once she should not interfere with my friendships. It certainly would take her down a peg when she found how far I had progressed with the handsome unknown."

"Every morning he, too, fished. He maintained the utmost reserve about himself, as do all great people, but I could tell from his expression, when he looked at me that he was living in the same dream I was."

"And then one morning Emily came charging through the bushes on the bank and surveyed the scene. Her curiosity had overpowered her, as it does all ordinary persons. She simply glared and I resolved to freeze her if she tried to be unpleasant."

"Well!" she called, addressing her words to my handsome friend. "No wonder the meat has been late for over a week, if this is how you spend your time when you should be delivering it, Hoskins! And you should have seen Hoskins leap for shore and the butcher's cart concealed in the shrubbery!"

"I am sure that Emily knew all about it from the first, and never told me, just to be hateful! If she tells Wayne Hipple—"

"Oh, she will!" comforted the girl in the new wrinkle basque.—Chicago Daily News.

THE GOOD JUDGE VISITS THE CONSOLIDATED MINES

YOU know how tobacco chewsers used to apologize for their tobacco when a friend wanted a chew. Now they are glad to tell their friends about "Right-Cut" because they know it's the Real Tobacco Chew.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting. Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Allow No Mistaken Idea to Cheat Your Pocketbook

That the Central Cash Market sells everything at rock bottom prices, you all know as well as we do. But right here is where some of you people make the mistake to think that we cannot sell you first class goods at those prices and our competitors so eagerly eye you on in this belief. The eating of the pudding is the proof thereof—just so with all the meats and groceries we sell you. That you will be as pleasantly surprised as so many others have been in the past, is putting it rather mild indeed. Thousands of our customers will readily bear us out in the above made statement. In this short past we have saved you thousands of dollars on your meat purchases and we will now save you what money we possibly can on both your groceries and meats.

All fancy profits in groceries will come tumbling down to rock bottom prices also. Kindly let us know your wants in the grocery line for we are bound to save you every penny we possibly can and make the Central Cash Market worthy of the good will and confidence you have in us.

MOVE A WINDMILL UNDER HEAVY FIRE

Nancy, via Paris, Jan. 13.—The French troops were ordered to take the offensive between the Meuse and Moselle on January 8 and the fighting that followed resulted in a French gain.

While on the wings the infantry attacked LePretrie wood and the forest of Apremont, the artillery massed behind Flirey awaited the right moment to open fire. The batteries had been definitely concealed during the night, but nevertheless as soon as the morning mists floated away, German shells began to fall among the gunners. Twice the positions were changed, but still the shells fell thickly.

It was then noticed that the sails of a dilapidated windmill moved in an unaccountable way, since there was not a breath of wind, and five men were sent to investigate. As soon as they reached the building, a man jumped from the window and fled toward the German lines, but he was soon brought down by a French bullet.

At noon the French guns opened fire and at the same time an aviator announced that the German center had been weakened, because the Germans were obliged to send help to the left wing, which was hard pressed in the LePretrie wood.

After hours of shelling the German guns were put out of action and the French infantrymen dashed forward. The enemy unmasked quick firers, but their assailants were well into their stride and unheeded the fire. A fierce hand to hand struggle followed along the edge of the wood. By the end of the day the Germans had been driven well into the wood of Saint Pausant and the French had gained an advance of half a mile.

COLONELS DAUGHTER IS CONFINED TO BED

New York.—It was learned today that Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, formerly Miss Alice Roosevelt, has been confined for the past few days at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt with a severe attack of the mumps.

A servant at the Vanderbilt home brought back the following message to a reporter who called there today: "Mrs. Longworth does not want her mumps to get in the paper."

Mrs. Longworth came here several days ago to attend a party given by Mrs. Vanderbilt for her children, Grace and Cornelius, Jr., and was taken ill there. Her ailment was diagnosed by Dr. Austin Flint, Jr.

The Vanderbilt home has been quarantined. The Vanderbilt children were taken to the home of Mrs. Ogden Goelet at No. 606 Fifth avenue.

CALL FRENCH REPORT STRING OF SCANDALS

Amsterdam, Jan. 13.—An officially inspired telegram from Berlin repudiates all the accusations against the troops of Germany made in the report of a French committee which investigated alleged atrocities. This report charged the Germans with many outrages. The dispatch from Berlin says: "This French statement is an unbroken series of slanders with no other intention than to create hatred against the German people."

It declares that German military commanders always have maintained discipline among their troops and observed all the rules of warfare, and promises that specific charges will be investigated and the results made public.

Arthur Benard returned Tuesday evening from a business trip to Manhattan.

TEACHER WEDS MAN WHO KIDNAPED HER

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 13.—Clara Scott of Milwaukee, professor of physical training in the women's department of the LaCrosse State Normal school, eloped with George Miller, physical training director in the high school at Evansville, Ill., Friday night and was married at Chicago, according to word received at the state normal on Monday. Miss Scott was almost kidnapped.

She was engaged to marry a physical training teacher at Reading, Pa., whose name is not announced here, and was to have made a honeymoon trip to the San Francisco exposition in the spring.

Three weeks ago she went to Milwaukee to spend her vacation. On account of illness she did not return last Monday, failing to arrive until Friday night. Miller, a discarded sutor, arrived at LaCrosse on Jan 2 and remained on guard at the Milwaukee railway depot day and night, for five days. When Miss Scott arrived, he rushed up and after an exciting scene persuaded her to accompany him. On the next train they left for Chicago to be married.

The bride is 23 years old and an extraordinarily beautiful young woman. She telegraphed friends here that she was very happy.

tally destroyed by today's earthquake. The dead are estimated at 14000. The under Secretary of Public Works, has left here for Avezzano. The cabinet council will be held tomorrow.

Many ancient and famous buildings of Rome are among hundreds damaged.

Tonight the official of the building department added to the list of damaged structures the church of St. Agatha, walls cracked from top to bottom. The churches of St. Ignatius, Maria Della Scala suffered. A small tract at St. Peter's square has fallen below the street level. The Antonine columns at first reported inclined, now are declared safe, although St. Paul's statue is slightly turned to the left.

A late report says the city hall fell at Montecitorio while Valmione, Veroli and other nearby towns suffered heavily in wounded and dead.

The town of Pofi is reported half destroyed.

Torre Cajani, a village was wiped out. The sulmona barracks collapsed, burying several soldiers and injuring a number of civilians.

Capello and Magliano in Abruzzi were badly damaged while in Frosinone the partial destruction of prisons resulted in mutiny of prisoners. Two deaths are reported and the damage is unestimated.

The most violent phase of the seismic disturbance appears to have been in the neighborhood of Veroli Monte Ritondo. Aid has been sent from Rome.

The center of the earthquake was between Sarno and Campobasso. It was felt powerfully at Perugia and shook houses as far as Ferrara.

Communication are cut off between towns in the province of Abruzzo and details will not be known until tomorrow.

SECOND "HUBBY" KITED AN ALIMONY CHECK

Lansing, Mich.—Little did the man think when he kited his wife's alimony check from her first husband, that he would lose his post-daughter, almost lose his place of business and land in jail besides.

Earl James is 24 years old and runs a small lunch room which serves as a home for his wife, their infant child and the step-daughter. Mrs. James was at one time Mrs. Ed. Letts, of Lansing, and when they parted, little more than a year ago, the court ordered Letts to pay $3.20 a month for the support of the child.

Letts' December check came along the other day and James hoisted it to $5.25, because, as he told the police, he needed the money. When the check got back, Letts came to Lansing and insisted on James being locked up. So the police got him and he told all about it.

Letts took his child back to Flushing yesterday, and the man who owns James' lunch room, which is on wheels, has served notice that he has a chance to sell the place and wants Mrs. James and her child to get out. The police had interfered in this and hope to forestall the sale until suitable quarters can be found for Mrs. James.
