It's about this time of the year that the man who "wears the same kind all the year around" wishes he had something he could take off.

A lot of political skeletons are being rattled around in Syracuse for the edification of a public that simply enjoys the sensation without giving a darn who's who.

Now China has concluded that Japan will give notice of war by appearing with an army. A better way of declaring war could scarcely be found.

In addition to being the only totally deaf mayor in the United States, Mayor Begole, who speaks to members of the Escanaba Business Men's Association, enjoys the distinction of being one of the best in the nation.

The Pullman Company says it has worried itself pale over the low wages paid their porters, but a disgusting tipping habit possessed by the public, made necessary the keeping down of wages.

It is again reported from Rome that Italy and Austria may yet agree on peace terms. If they can just keep up these peace negotiations until the end of the war, Italy will be provided with a wonderful alibi for keeping out.

Now the Russians say the reported German victories in west Galicia were "but local victories." The trouble with this war is that we're all mixed up and don't know how many men have to give up their lives to make just a "local victory" or a real victory. In either case the toll is sufficient.

HISTORIC ANNIVERSARIES

The generation that possesses the globe is always walking on a crust of history. Lifting the ashes almost anywhere historians find living coals of a historic past. Only a few days ago in the city of New York a group of Twentieth century boys playing soldier set out to dig a trench and unearthed a store of Revolutionary war cannon balls buried by order of General Washington when the American forces were obliged to retreat to avoid capture by the Hessians.

Almost every day is an anniversary, significant and inspiring to students of the past; but only a few are formally commemorated. Each age has the duty of making anniversaries of its own, and the necessity of earning its living. Nevertheless, it is interesting now and then to be reminded that on this day in a year long gone by occurred a spectacular event connected with the fate of a hero or a nation.

On the evening of May fifth, 1821, cancer of the stomach brought an end to the life of the most dynamic character in the history of modern times—Napoleon Bonaparte. He passed away on the island of St. Helena, where he had been held a prisoner by the British government, which, after the experience following his escape from Elba, deemed the peace of Europe menaced while he was at large. The present year is rich in centenaries relating to the downfall of Napoleon, which occurred on the faithful field of Waterloo, contested from the fifteenth to the eighteenth of June, 1815—a little less than an even hundred years ago.

But Waterloo and all Belgium are overrun with foreign soldiery, and fighting as fierce as any in Napoleon's time is giving the inhabitants something else to do than celebrate anniversaries.

WAR

London, May 6.—Conflicting reports from the belligerents in the east make it impossible to quite judge of the situation there. The Austrians and Germans tonight say that the Russians have been badly beaten in western Galicia and have commenced to retire from the western Carpathians, whereas the latest Russian report, while admitting that the Austro-Germans succeeded in getting across the Danajec river declares that they were checked there.

The country around the East Prussian frontier also has been the scene of battles of more or less importance, while at the other end of the Russian line in eastern Galicia, the Russians are attacking the Austro-Germans despite their reported defeat or check in the western part of that province.

The Russian official statement tonight says that the fighting in Galicia between the Vistula and the Carpathians is characterized by great stubbornness; that the Germans have brought up fresh forces of great strength to the fighting line, with much artillery, and that the Germans, attacking in massed formation, are suffering "enormous losses." The Russian war office admits that several nights ago some of the Russian units fell back to the second line of fortifications.

London, May 6.—Athens credits the allies with further successes in their attacks on the Dardanelles and Smyrna, but the Turks again reported the defeat of allied troops who have landed on the Gallipoli peninsula.

A dispatch from Mytilene to the Havas agency says that a regiment of Turkish troops was annihilated during fighting at the Dardanelles last night and that the allies transported one thousand more prisoners to Tenedos and Mondros. The dispatch also says that a squadron of warships of the allies again bombarded forts at the Dardanelles and Turkish encampment on the coast.

Berlin, by Wireless to Sayville, L. I. May 6.—Special dispatches from the west Galicia battlefields say that Russian prisoners describe the effect of the German and Austrian artillery fire as appalling. The havoc thus wrought was particularly severe at Gorlice, where the Russians fought stubbornly and for four hours endured a terrific fire. In this time, according to these reports, divisions dwindled to regiments and regiments to companies.

The Russian center was so shaken by the reverses sustained by the two wings that it was compelled to abandon its positions. Thousands of prisoners were made in the center as well as on the wings.

One correspondent telegraphs that the situation of the Russians is growing worse hourly as line after line of German and Austrian troops pushes forward despite opposition. He says that the Russians are endeavoring vainly to bring up reinforcements and halt the panicky retreat of their columns.

The heavy artillery has made the huge battlefield a horrible sight, tearing up the ground, demolishing positions of the Russians and scattering their supplies.

The list of Russian dead, according to this correspondent, is extraordinarily large, while the losses of the Germans are said to have been insignificant.

London, May 6.—To the nine trawlers, the sinking of which by German submarines was reported today, another victim was added tonight. A Norwegian steamer landed this evening the crew of the trawler Sceptre, which was torpedoed forty miles off Peter Head. This brings the total number of trawler victims of German underwater boats, since Sunday, up to fifteen. The submarines seem to be making a determined effort to prevent England from procuring fish in the North sea.

London, May 6.—Nine trawlers is the bag credited to German submarines on Monday of this week in a message received here from Hull. So far as is known no lives were lost in these encounters. According to these reports of the fishing vessels the submarine which wrought this damage is of the newest type. She has a likeness of an iron cross painted on her conning tower. She attacked a fishing fleet on Monday and sank seven trawlers in quick succession. The crews were given time to escape, but in some cases the small boats drifted for hours before they were picked up. Each man coming ashore is exhibiting a huge lump of black bread given him by the crew of the submarine which sent his boat down. The English sailors are preserving these pieces of bread as souvenirs.

London, May 6.—The German official report issued this afternoon claims victories over the British to the east of Ypres in Flanders. Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander-in-chief, has admitted that he was compelled to readjust his line in the region of Ypres, but the French communication, far from confirming a German victory in Belgium, states that the German attacks were repulsed and that the German attacks were repulsed and that the Germans, being taken on the flank by French artillery, suffered very severely.

A late report from the British war office also says that German attacks were repulsed although the Germans used asphyxiating gases and did get a footing, by the use of these fumes, on hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, which, since the British captured it recently, has been repeatedly attacked. There has been fighting all along the rest of the western front, in all of which the Germans claim to have been successful. The French, however, have another story to tell. They insist that their advance continues both along the Yser canal in Flanders and in the Woivre, where battles have been continuous for weeks on end.

OFFERED TEN BILLS AT LAST SESSION

Lansing, Mich., May 5.—Roy M. Watkins, president of the State League of Republican clubs and one of Grand Rapids' representatives in the house, appears to be the champion of the Legislature in regard to bills that were enacted into laws at the recent session.

He introduced during the session ten bills and one joint resolution, proposing an amendment to the constitution. Every one of them passed. His joint resolution contains the only proposal to amend the constitution that will be submitted to the voters of the state at the election in November, 1906. It aims to allow the Legislature to repeal local acts by a two third vote when the localities affected by them don't want them any more, thereby saving said localities the trouble of having a bill passed to allow them to hold an election in which to vote out the undesired law.

In a Legislature notable chiefly for its killing of bills, the achievement of Watkins in having every one of his ten bills passed easily gives him the lawmaking championship. His bills included one for an armory in his home city; one to have drug fiends put under guardianship without waiting ten days to determine just how bad their condition is; a pure food bill making Michigan's law uniform with the federal laws; an anti-tax dodger bill compelling the registration of foreign municipal bonds with a fee of one-half of one per cent that will yield, it is thought, $75,000 or more a year, half of it to Wayne county's profit amendments to add strength to the laws relating to juvenile courts, and delinquent children; a state survey of the administration of the poor laws; and the abolition of "joker" provisions in municipal charters that render cities immune to liability for acts of negligence.

SIR HENRY RUNDLE HEADS NEW ARMY.

London, May 6.—The official Gazette today announces the appointment of General Sir Henry Rundle, governor and commander-in-chief at Malta, to the chief command of one of Great Britain's six new armies. Two of the armies already at the front are under General Sir Douglas Haig and General Smith-Dorrien, while another is in the operations against the Dardanelles under General Sir Ian Hamilton. As those armies not yet in action. Lieutenant General Sir Archibald Hunter commands the first "Kitchen" army and Generals Rundle and Bruce Hamilton the remaining two.

Best Thing for Bilious Attack

"On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment, I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, Editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. ADMISSION TEN CENTS

LINCOLN WOULD RAISE PORTERS

Washington, May 6.—Robert T. Lincoln, chairman of the board of directors of the Pullman Co., frankly told the United States commission on industrial relations that he believed the system of paying sleeping car porters should be changed and that wages of Pullman car conductors should be increased. Recent testimony showed that porters get $27.50 a month, while tips bring the monthly return up to $115 a month.

Both of these subjects, he said, would be taken up by the company's directors soon.

The son of President Lincoln insisted that employment afforded the negro by the Pullman Co. had been one of the most uplifting opportunities the race ever had. Mr. Lincoln admitted that the wage system for porters was an antiquated one and had given him annoyance.

Mr. Lincoln admitted that the negro race has not made the progress during the last half century he hoped it would make; that its present opportunity in the industrial, professional, and social worlds are limited, and that his condition is a source of regret to him.

Mr. Lincoln was asked if he didn't believe tipping affected the morals of the porters. He replied:

"I do not think it affects the morals of the porters at all; they would get the tips whatever their wages were because tips are given by passengers on Pullman cars for services which are not in the course of the Pullman porter's employment at all."

"The colored race was subject to great limitations in the past to obtain employment, and, I believe, that, outside of the learned professions and teaching and, to some extent, the legal profession, that the one large element which has done much to uplift them is the service in the Pullman company."

THE FIRST REAL "PEACE" OF NEWS

St. Louis, May 6.—The Republic this morning publishes the following: "Peace terms were signed between the American and Federal leagues at the recent 'peace meeting' in Chicago, at which the highest officials of the two leagues conferred and then stood pat on a policy of silence. The National league is the only obstacle now to the consummation of baseball peace."

"Absolute verification of the signing of such an agreement, which was rumored in St. Louis about ten days ago, was received last night. The attorney who drew up the pact admitted that the American and Federal leagues came to an understanding at the Chicago meeting."

"The terms of the agreement were, in substance, as follows:

"Hands off the present situation this year; the respecting of all contracts as they now stand; the withdrawal of all suits now pending; the continuation of all three league this season, with meeting during the summer to arrange for a readjustment of the baseball map, which would be completed, and arrangements for 1916 at a meeting next winter after all the details had been threshed out."

MOTHER CONFESSES SHE MURDERED SON.

Milwaukee, May 6.—Mrs. Susie Wedjik tonight confessed to the police that she killed her six-year-old son Adam Sunday night. She also said that she had planned to kill John, a younger son, and then commit suicide, but that her nerve failed her. She lived in a basement in a poorer part of the city. She said that she was tired of living.

PALACE GARAGE SOUTH CHARLOTTE STREET

MADE FROM PARASOL

HANDSOME LAMP SHADE MAY BE EASILY CONSTRUCTED.

Work for Amateur Interior Decorator Will Be Found Congenial and Pleasant Occupation for the Leisure Moment.

Have you a child's discarded parasol in the house? If so, bring it to light and transform it into a handsome lamp shade for electric light. The very latest and most beautiful shades are exactly this shape, and once the handle is removed from the parasol the rest is easy.

So take out the handle as carefully as possible and then remove the covering. The frame will probably look perfectly hopeless to the amateur interior decorator, but she must get a strong piece of cord and take it around the edge of the frame, holding down each rib firmly. In doing so she should pull the cord rather tight between the ribs, so the shape becomes more belled than formerly.

The next step is to rip away one of the sections of the covering and press it well, especially along the seams. This is the pattern by which all the new sections are cut.

A soft, thin India silk makes the best kind of covering for a lamp shade and the most satisfactory colors are old rose, orange-brown and the yellow tones.

When cutting the sections follow the patterns exactly, but cut an inch or so longer at the wide end. Next baste each section carefully together and stitch up on the machine. Place the finished cover over the frame and secure at the top temporarily. Draw the material down each rib and turn up the surplus to form a hem. Stitch the hem and insert a narrow elastic. The cover is now complete, ready for the frame.

Sew it at the top, and finish with a covered button mold, a pompon or any small ornament at hand. With very strong thread secure the cover to the ribs and then with the fingers draw the fullness away from the ribs to the center. There will be little or much fullness, according to the bell effect given. This shade is very pretty as it is, but the majority of the new shades are decorated—that is, one may show a very simple arrangement, as a band of small, round flat lace dolly. Another will be trimmed with a frill of the silk plinked on the edges underlying another frill of blond lace, while the cover itself will be decorated with festoons of lace, chiffon, flowers or what not.

The handsome shades are trimmed with gold or dull silver laces in frills depending from bands of tiny ribbon or chiffon flowers. Anyway, there will probably be plenty of odd bits in the millinery box that will answer for trimming once the shade is made. A branch of apples fashioned from a dried piece of brown twig as a foundation is a possibility, the apples made from bits of yellow or red satin and the leaves from green. Cotton will be used for stuffing the apples, wrapping around short lengths of twig for stem and flower end. A few stitches in black silk at the flower end will help to give a natural effect. A branch of tiny oranges is another suggestion.

RETURN TO CIRCULAR CAPE

Fashion of Some Years Ago, That Has Much to Recommend It, Has Been Revived.

When you used to look at your mother's circular cape stored away in the big trunk did you ever dream that some day you would be wearing one very similar to it? The circular cape is here in all its glory, and after you recover from the shock you receive when you first see it you will throw it over your shoulders and feel that you are smartly attired.

Black taffeta is the material used for one of the capes. It has a collar of marabou, and around the bottom of the cape eight rows of the marabou are sewed very closely together. Braid frogs, two in number, are provided to fasten the cape down the front.

The circular capes are also made up of velvet, fur and broadcloth, and in some instances a cape and a one-piece frock are made of the same material.

Changeable Taffets. Changeable taffeta has been used in the models shown at the February opening in Paris; and it has made its appearance here in some of the new models. It is a distinctly suitable fabric for summer, for in appearance and feeling it is crisp and cool.

White Corduroy Coats. White corduroy coats are featured to some extent, and will doubtless be worn with lingerie frocks in the

AMONG THE THEATRES

THE BIJOU

Miss Vivian Martin appears at this house today in one of the most exclusive pictures to be shown at this house in many months. The picture itself is called "The Arrival of Perpetua" but it far exceeds its name in more ways than one. Miss Martin has secured great fame for her self and her people in this special picture but before this time, on the legitimate stage, she was an understudy for Maude Adams in Peter Pan and on several different occasions occupied her position.

THE DELFT

The featured picture at this house today will be the "Exploits of Elaine" in its twelfth episode. This picture will be shown here today in two complete parts. Scores of local people are following this number and the house will probably be crowded throughout all shows today.

The Selig drama for today is "The Fork in the Road" while the comedy is "Ham at the Garbage Gentlemen's Ball."

THE GRAND

The vaudeville act at the Grand last night delighted two big audiences. The act called "Lewis and Abbot" is exceptional in its particular line and should be the means of drawing hosts of people to that house today. They are advertised as refined comedy entertainers and they truly have lived up to that name here.

The picture at this house for today, too, are of a high order and should receive their share of attention from the public.

LEARN AND THEN PUT 'EM IN PRACTICE.

If thou lovest thy neighbor as thyself, then these few behests, quoted by the Kansas City Star, will be easily obeyed:

Thou shalt honor thy neighborhood and keep it clean.

Remember thy cleaning-day and keep it wholly.

Thou shalt take care of thy rubbish-head; else thy neighbor will bear witness against thee.

Thou shalt keep in order thy alley, thy back yard, thy hall, and thy stairway.

Thou shalt not let the wicked thy breed.

Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor by ignoring fire menaces or by poisoning the air with rubbish and garbage.

Thou shalt not keep thy windows closed day and night.

Father's Limitations.

"Mother," asked the small boy, "do you believe everything that dad tells you?" "That depends," replied the lady of the house. "Your father is fairly accurate concerning matters of business, politics and religion, but when he touches on fishing, poker hands and why he did not get home to dinner, he leaves a good deal to be desired."

The Favorite Flower.

One reason why violets are the favorite flowers of the world is that they belong to sweet woods and dooryard gardens. We can plant, tend and pick them ourselves, make borders for our walks, fringe a brook or star a corner of the lawn with their Becks of deep rich blue. Year after year they will come to remind us of our first planting.—The Craftsman.

ENVELOPE CHEMISE IS NEW

Convenient Undergarment Which is Sure to Be Appreciated by Its Wearers.

Just about the most convenient garment imaginable is the new envelope chemise. Of course, the "envelope" part isn't very new, but the corset cover attachment is. The envelope chemise is made quite like the chemise has been fashioned for years and years, except that there is a little tab at the bottom which buttons the chemise up into a pair of panties and short underskirt combined. When the corset cover is attached the chemise may be used as a substitute for an underskirt and the corset worn right over it, as the garters will easily fasten over the edge of the chemise, since it is buttoned into the semblance of drawers. The corset cover is nothing more than a deep ruffle of embroidery attached with a band of embroidery in imitation just below the low-cut neck of the chemise and running under the ruffles. This ruffle has no opening and has a drawing of ribbon or tape about the bottom, run through a casing or through the eyelet work of the embroidery. After the chemise is donned the corset is slipped under this ruffle and fastened, and the ruffle is then drawn in about the waist and the corset is entirely hidden. Thus there are really four garments in one—underskirt, drawers, short petticoat and corset cover. At this rate of condensed clothing the laundries will have to cut down their forces. A more economical garment than this could not be fashioned for the woman who boards and must pay for her laundry by the piece, and if she is a business woman she will appreciate the time saved by being able to slip on four garments at once. The ruffle alone may be added to the bought envelope chemise, and the four-piece garment is complete.

FLOWERS FOR SPRING HATS

Majority Seem Overladen With Blossoms, Though Fashion Gives Favor to Simpler Models.

A word about the flowers of this spring used in the trimming of hats. Never have they been more beautiful, more soft, more brilliant, more subtle in tint. They are used, too, in great quantities, and we see much of crowns that are simply covered and pressed down with flowers, so that we are grievously reminded of a set funeral piece. Brims, too, are often solidly packed with flowers of a dozen different shades.

But wings—shades of the Valkyries and of Mercury!—how we are winging it this year! Rebois sends us a toque of black Milan with enormous black wings in front that would tax the height of any taxi or street car. Another of the Paris designers brings out a small, cap-like toque of brown straw with two wings placed frankly on top—wings outspread and soaring as though the bird were just flying from its upturned nest.

As for the sailors, they are here in all shapes and varieties. Trimmed with almost nothing at all, they are even more dashing than heretofore, and when a woman goes out to get herself something becoming that will remain in style over several "week-end jaunts," she can't do better than to stop right here.

SERGE FOR SPRING

Among the really beautiful frocks offered for spring are those of light-weight serge in white and delicate shades of cream. It has a short, full skirt attached to a hip yoke that is trimmed with taffeta buttons and a waist that is finished with an embroidered taffeta. The cuffs are also of taffeta. The white straw hat is adorned only with a smart velvet ribbon twist.

Brocade Revival. A pretty brocade silk revived shows a pale gray satin background, with a reproduction of lace in white silk running over it as if an "insertion" of alencon or fine honiton had been allowed to draw itself artistically over the surface, showing a certain amount of the groundwork. This makes charming blouses.

THINGS WORTH TRYING

ALL GOOD AND JUST A LITTLE "DIFFERENT."

Effective Touches That Will Not Add to the Cost of the Dishes but Will Add Materially to Their Flavor.

Oh, you housekeepers who hanker after something a little different that will not add to the "cost of living," have you ever tried:

Tiny red peppers to garnish your salad plates and give the touch of desired color, when tomatoes are not to be had, or are prohibitive in price? A center of yellow cheese for the tomato salad that is arranged to represent a poinsettia?

Halves of canned pears, piled up with white grapes and nuts for a salad in the pale yellow tones?

Or asparagus tips on white lettuce leaves if to get that special coloring you prefer not to use fruit?

Rings of green peppers on greenish lettuce, with a garnishing of French peas when an all-green salad is desired?

Roquefort cheese, grated, or chopped onion in your French dressing?

Cheese balls molded from a paste made of cream, chopped nuts and parsley, and seasoned with salt, pepper, a dash of paprika and Worcestershire sauce?

Or this same paste used as a filling for sandwiches? Thin bread and butter sandwiches of brown bread to be served with your salad in place of the more orthodox wafers?

A sprinkling of paprika on top of the regulation stuffed potatoes?

Small white heads of cabbage, boiled and adorned with a cream dressing, instead of the more aristocratic and costly cauliflower?

Cabbage or turnips au gratin in place of potatoes cooked in the same fashion?

A sauerkraut stuffing for goose or duck if you have any hankering after "Dutch" dishes?

A boiled dressing made with cream instead of oil and seasoned with a double quantity of mustard with your Dutch suppers?

Tripe with a very highly seasoned cream gravy, or chicken livers broiled with bacon, when you are at your wits' end for something new and not too expensive in the way of meats?

Ripe bananas peeled, laid in earthen dish, water to cover, sprinkled with brown sugar and a few drops of lemon juice and baked slowly for about half an hour? If a few chopped nuts or dot of apple jelly are added to each portion the effect is prettier.

Use Mild Soap.
No strong washing powders or kitchen soaps should be used on linoleum, as they slowly fade the pattern, destroy the dressing, and so make the linoleum look old and grimy, says a Country Gentleman writer.

Clear water may be used and mild soaps which are really mild enough to be used as toilet soaps.

Wiping up the linoleum with milk has more disadvantages than advantages. The sugar and the fat in the milk seem to glaze the linoleum, but the stickiness of it will in time make the linoleum hold more dirt and in the end give a grimy appearance.

A thin coating of the best varnish twice a year will do much toward keeping the linoleum bright and shiny and preventing wear.

New Luncheon Dish.

Poach an egg carefully in boiling water to which a squeeze of lemon juice has been added, trim it neatly with a round cutter, mask it with some thick, nicely flavored white sauce, which is still warm, and put it aside to get cold. Dust the egg lightly with flour, brush it over with beaten egg, cover thickly with dried bread crumbs, seasoned with salt and pepper, and fry it quickly (one and a half minutes should be sufficient) in a bath of boiling fat. Serve the egg on a round of buttered toast and garnish the plate with watercress.

Veal Croquettes.

Put two cupsful of finely chopped veal in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of butter, the beaten yolks of two eggs, one teaspoonful of onion juice, quarter teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful paprika and a speck of mace. Stir the mixture over the fire until thoroughly heated, then set aside to cool. Shape into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs, lay stand one or more hours, and fry until well browned. Serve with tomato sauce.

Renewing the Tablecloth.

It is suggested that when a tablecloth wears thin around the edge of the table, as it frequently does before showing signs of wear elsewhere, it is a simple matter to cut out the worn strip and to insert in its place a strip of heavy but not necessarily expensive lace.

Lacing the Fowl.

Instead of sewing up turkey, duck, etc., after stuffing, run some toothpicks across the opening and lace up with string. When the fowl is done, first pull the toothpicks out and the string falls off.

For Grease Stained Floors.
You will be delighted to see how quickly grease spots will disappear from floors when you apply a little alcohol.

ENGLAND WOULD LIMIT ITS RECRUITING TASK

London, May 6.—Referring to the question of discrimination in recruiting, Chancellor Lloyd-George told commonsense he thought the allies ought to determine the part Great Britain should play in the combination and the best service it could give. Britain could, he declared, keep command of the sea, a valuable service which was essential to the allies' success, especially if the war were prolonged. Britain could maintain a great army on a continental scale, he continued, and a third service was one it had given in the Napoleonic days—bearing the main burden of financing the allies.

Great Britain, said Mr. Lloyd-George, could do the first, and third of these things, but the second it could do only with certain limits. Britain had raised an enormous army, but the time had come for discriminating in recruiting within suggested limits.

KAISERN PRAISES WAR NURSES

Washington, May 6.—The empress of Germany has expressed her appreciation of the American Red Cross work in behalf of Germany, through Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador who today sent this letter to Miss Mabel T. Boardman at Red Cross headquarters.

"I have been commanded by her majesty the empress, and have the honor to convey to you and to the American Red Cross society, her majesty's most heartfelt thanks for your continued and generous activity in forwarding charitable gifts to Germany and for the services rendered by the American delegation of five doctors and twenty-two nurses, who are doing splendid work in Silesia."

One Thing He Was Sure Of.
"As a matter of fact," said the lawyer for the defendant, trying to be sarcastic, "you were scared half to death, and don't know whether it was a motor-car or something resembling a motor-car that hit you." "It resembled one all right," the plaintiff made answer. "I was forcibly struck by the resemblance."

How Mrs. Harrod Got Rid of Her Stomach Trouble.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

RAISE BIG TOULOUSE GESE

Fowls Can Be Fed Almost Entirely on Grass—Not Subject to Disease Like Chickens.

We raise the large Toulouse geese and find them very profitable. They can be raised almost entirely on grass and are not subject to disease, like chickens. They commence to lay about the middle of February and will lay from twelve to fifteen eggs before wanting to set. They will lay three clutches of eggs if they are broken up when they want to set. One gander should be kept for every three or four geese and if they have access to a pond of water in the spring, almost every egg will be fertile. The sooner the eggs are set after they are laid the better they will hatch. We set the eggs under hens giving seven eggs to each hen. If the weather is very dry we moisten the eggs with lukewarm water about the middle of the hatch and again a day or two before they are due to hatch. We nearly always have good luck hatching the eggs, says a writer in an exchange.

We give the goslings their first feed and water when they are forty-eight hours old. The water should be kept before them all the time in something that they can drink out of easily, but can't get into. We keep green feed such as lettuce, mustard or tender grass before them all the time, and give them bread moistened with milk, pot cheese or wet corn meal, three times a day until they are three weeks old. After this we give them a good feed of wet corn meal every night and morning and all the green feed they will eat until they are about seven weeks old. Then they are turned out in the pasture or in a rape patch and do not receive any more grain until fall. The goslings do not need a pond of water to swim in.

PREPARING FOR DEAR EGGS

Hatches From Which Early Pullets Are Derived That Are Largest & Money Producers for Farmer.

If the farmer wishes to benefit by the high prices that eggs are certain to bring next fall and winter, he should begin to get ready for them say the poultry specialists in the department. The way to have eggs late in the year is to hatch pullets early. It is the early hatches from which the early pullets are derived that are the largest money-makers for the poultry producer. The early hatched cockerels can be marketed in almost any market in America when they attain a weight of three-fourths of a pound and a pound to a pound and a half each, which they should reach at about six to ten weeks of age, respectively, at a greater profit to the producer than at any other time of their lives. The early hatched pullets, if properly grown, should begin to lay in the fall at the time when eggs are scarce and high in price.

Pullets must be well matured before they will lay many eggs.

Pullets that start to lay in the fall before cold weather sets in will, as a rule, lay all winter.

It is the early hatched pullets that produce eggs in the fall and early winter, when prices are high.

February, March and April are the months to do your hatching in order to secure early hatched pullets.

Yearling and two-year-old hens do not lay many eggs in the fall, as they are molting at that time, and the feed they consume goes not only to keep up the energy and life of the birds, but also to put on or grow a new coat of feathers.

In properly matured pullets all surplus energy beyond that needed to meet the requirements of the body is available for the production of eggs.

Write the secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for bulletins on poultry management.

TESTING SEED BY INCUBATOR

Tray Made of Light Wood, Filled With Sand, Will Prove Efficacious—Keep Temperature Right.

While not in use for hatching, the incubator may be used for testing seed by making a false tray of light wood which is filled with sand. The seed should be placed in the sand, covered and kept moist. Keep the temperature up to, or above 85 degrees, and the seed will germinate in a short time.

Even when it is in use for hatching, seeds may be tested by placing them between damp cloths in a plate, setting the plate under the egg tray in what is known as the "chick nursery." Plants thus germinated in sand may be transplanted to the hot bed, not only testing the seed for vitality, but utilizing those so tested.

DENIES PROTEST
SALE OF MUNITIONS

Philadelphia, May 6.—Public men are still discussing the shrapnel-like explosion of Dr. Bernard Dernburg, who shocked the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science here recently by declaring false a statement by Dr. Charles Noble Gregory.

Dr. Gregory, who is widely known for his erudition in the law, and equally well known as a man of tender sensibilities and unlimited courtesy was doubtless even more shocked than others in the assemblage when the so-called personal representative of the kaiser in America, declared "the statement made last night by Mr. Gregory is absolutely false."

Dr. Gregory is head of the law department of Washington university, and was formerly dean of the Iowa state law school, and associate dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. He had made a learned address justifying the course of President Wilson in refusing to stop exportation of arms to the allies, and had declared that Germany wanted the United States to stop this exportation, and that President Wilson very properly and fully within the bounds of neutrality, refused to do so.

Dr. Dernburg denied that Germany had protested against the legality of the right of Americans to sell and ship arms and ammunition, and declared that German at no time had disputed this right. The former colonial minister of Germany went on to explain.

"Germany admits the right of the United States to ship munitions of war to whomsoever she cares and the German government has never protested against it. But if Americans are upheld by the United States in shipping arms to England, why does not the United States demand that her people have the right to ship food to Germany? Germany has made no protest against shipping of arms to England, France or Russia, but England has placed an embargo upon American ships carrying food to Germany. All Germany asks of the United States is to accord to Germany the same treatment in regard to food stuffs as she has accorded to England in regard to arms."

THE WINNER

By AUGUSTUS G. SHERWIN.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Well, boys," spoke Stephen Dale in a brisk hearty way, "here we all are and we will now proceed to the division of the spoils!"

His three elder sons, Henry, Claud and Montgomery, looked impressed and eager. His youngest, Jack, smiled in half pleased interest.

The four sons sat at a table facing their father, who had at his elbow a pile of documents and a check book.

"I have brought you all together," he now announced, "to tell you that, having all of you reached man's estate, it is time that you should assume some personal independence and responsibility. I'm not going to leave my estate so that there will be a family squabble over it. I'm going to divide it up. Here. Now. Fairly."

Claud, the lawyer, who had changed his name to Claudius, because he fancied it sounded more classical, pricked up his ears and looked serious.

"I'll tell you at the start," pursued the indulgent father, "that whoever takes idleness here, the family home, will be the wise fellow in the end. You can have your choice, Claud, being the eldest—the home or $25,000 cash."

"H'm!" observed Claudius gravely, "with a vast political future ahead of me, the ready cash will best help me reach the destined goal of my ambition."

"Very good," nodded Mr. Dale.

"And you, Monty?"

"I," replied Montgomery with short and snappy precision "expect to receive a general's commission in time. The money will help me get it."

"And you, Hank?"

"I am devoted to club life, in debt and need a fixed cash income, my good father," he said, "so I fancy the ready money would suit me best."

"Of course I'll take the old home, if I'm lucky enough to deserve it," spoke bluff honest Jack.

Stephen Dale darted a grateful, affectionate glance at his youngest and favorite son. He drew out the three checks and passed them around.

"One word more," he spoke, as their recipients arose to get them cashed as quickly as possible. "There's something else. See here, boys, my experience teaches me that there's nothing so steadies a young man as getting married. Now then, to the first one of you who takes a wife I will give $10,000, to the second $5,000, to the third, $3,000 and to the last, $1,000. By the way," he added, a suggestive twinkle in his merry eye, "I'm thinking you won't have to look far to find the prettiest heiress in the country right nigh to hand."

Each one of the three knew whom he meant—Miss Dalia Bliss, not a mile away. It was said she was to have half a million in her own right. It was strange, but each one of the trio departed determined to call upon the young lady in question and see how the land lay.

Two mornings later Claud met Henry and Monty. He informed them that he had called upon Miss Bliss the evening previous. Her father had been greatly interested in his long talk about the law.

Then Monty in undress military uniform went to see the heiress. Henry's turn followed. He fancied he was irresistible and languidly informed his brothers that he believed he would take the girl on a chance.

Miss Bliss had been dreadfully embarrassed at being taken by storm by three impetuous suitors. Then she had told them in her pretty, artless way that she was already engaged.

About three o'clock one afternoon Jack, plain, simple, unostentatious to the end of the chapter, directing some men in parking a roadway running through the estate, looking over in the direction of the Bliss home had noted a blue ribbon fluttering from one of its windows. He quietly left the direction of the workmen to one of their number. In a few minutes Jack had gained the hedge separating the two estates.

Soon Dalia appeared. Certainly Jack was her friend, that she should signal him and now make a confidant of him, and pour into the willing ears the story of her persecution by three great overgrown boys!

"And such nice brothers of yours they are," she told Jack.

"What a terrible escape they have had in evading the wiles of a young lady who is not duly awed by their grandeur and importance," smiled Jack.

It was the next morning that the three city brothers were ready to depart. They were just completing breakfast when Jack made the remark:

"Father, if you don't mind, I think I will run up to the city with the boys."

"Surely, son," responded Mr. Dale. "You will need some money, I suppose?"

"No, I have enough for the one purchase I intend to make," assured Jack. "It's a ring, father," and he darted a teasing glance at the lawyer, the soldier and the top—"a ring for Miss Bliss. You see we have been engaged for the last six months."

"Ha! ha! ha!" chuckled old Stephen Dale, slapping his knee with vim as the trio arose from the table and sneaked away, looking bored and embarrassed. "It seems to me, son Jack, that you've got the best of it all around!"

Ald. Swan being excused from voting.

The following communication from the Escanaba Woman's club, accompanied by letters from the State Health department, was read:

Escanaba, Mich., May 3rd, 1915. To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Escanaba, Mich. Gentlemen:

After an investigation into general conditions pertaining to the public health and sanitation in this city, it is the earnest belief of the Escanaba Woman's club that a full time health officer is a necessity in Escanaba.

The offices of city chemist, city physician and health officer at the present time pay salaries so small that no physician can afford to devote the time and attention necessary to fulfillment of the various duties.

It is the opinion of this body that the plan at present being followed at Marquette and Ironwood, two of our sister cities, could be used here to good advantage—that of having one man fill all three positions at a salary commensurate with the services required, said officer to devote his entire time and efforts to carrying on his duties, no private practice being permitted.

The duties usually required of a physician filling this position are: caring for the indigent poor of this city; making tests of the city water; attending to the duties of the health officer; inspecting the schools, thereby detaching and checking diseases or epidemics.

Many other duties would develop, along these lines with time and it would be the duty of such official to look after all matters pertaining to the health of the community.

The position, which usually pays from $18000 to $23000, can, we are informed, be filled in this city for about $2000.

With the idea of securing information on the subject, members of the state board of health have been communicated with and the correspondence resulting is herewith attached.

With the earnest conviction that the health of the people is of the utmost importance and should be conserved in every way possible, this matter is respectfully submitted.

THE ESCANABA WOMAN'S CLUB,
Per Mrs. J. B. Wilkinson,
Chairman Public Health Committee.

Ald. Pryal, seconded by Ald. Folio, moved that the communication be referred to a special committee to be appointed by the mayor.

Ayes unanimous.

The mayor appointed on said committee, Ald. Cuthbert, Noreus and Hodson—3.

Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Noreus, moved that the meeting adjourn.

PUBLIC ROADS

MORE ATTENTION TO BRIDGES

Greatest Menace to Tractor Which Could Be Put to More Use on Many of the Small Farms.

We will never be able to readily make much use of the gas or steam tractor on the farms until we make up our minds to pay more attention to our roads and bridges. Especially the bridges. They are the greatest menace to the tractor and the tractor's driver, and there has been little improvement in the type of bridges since the engine was put to work on the farms, writes William E. Rose of Iowa in Farm Progress.

It is rather strange that we are willing to use the traction engine to pull our road plows and our road graders and still refuse to build bridges and culverts strong enough to allow the same engine to pass in safety when pulling a threshing outfit or a train of farm wagons. But it is the truth, nevertheless.

In spite of all the possibilities of the tractor, or the old-fashioned traction engine, a lot of people look upon it as an ugly contraption that ruins road surfaces, smashes culverts, breaks down bridges, scares horses and sets fire to meadows and railfences.

It is altogether wrong. We could make splendid use of the tractor on any and all farms of more than eighty acres. Some day we will make these engines do much of the work, the heavy hauling done by horse teams, and we will save money by so doing.

But that time will not come until we have better roads. And that cannot come to pass until we get a better supervision of road building than we have at present.

In many states the traction driver who crosses a bridge takes a chance not only of injury to himself and his expensive engine, but also assumes the liability of having to repair the bridge if he breaks it down. Such laws discourage the use of tractors as much as they do better road building. The bridges are the worst feature of this condition.

The tractor has a right to use the public highways. It has just as much right to the public road as the heavy automobile, the overloaded farm wagon or any other heavy conveyance. The men who build such engines and the men who would like to own and use them should insist that these machines be given that right. No one dreams of forcing the automobile off the public highways now, and the overloaded farm wagon has used the public roads since they were the merest trails. The heavy wheels and the weight of a tractor help pack the highways and make them more durable. The big wheels compact the road surface, and this is one reason why the tractor is so efficient as a road grader and builder. With good bridges and solidly built culverts there will be no trouble with the usual type of tractor, whether gas or steam.

We are going to have to pay more attention to the kind of work contractors do on our steel and concrete bridges and we will be forced to see that the original specifications make allowance for the weight of tractors.

Change to Broad Tires. A wagon can be changed from narrow tires to broad tires at a very small cost. Don't wait for a law to force this upon you. Do it for the sake of the roads, for the sake of your tax money which maintains good roads.

Encourage Travel. Good roads will encourage the country folks to come to town, and will bring the city folks out in the country for fresh air.

Good Roads Advocates. It is gratifying to observe that every owner of an automobile immediately becomes an advocate of good roads.

Having Hard Road. Good roads appear to be having a hard road.

An Ishpeming girl has received a letter from her uncle, who was a sailor aboard an English vessel when it was run down by a German warship and destroyed.

"Dear Niece Maude: It is a long time, and indeed a very long time, since I have heard from you and the folks home.

"We spent our Christmas and New Years here. This is the 8th of February, 1915. If there is any chance of sending a few lines from here I will, but there is communication with this island but once a year.

"This is the 10th of February. One of our men died today and we buried him. We are not in the best of health because we are not used to the food. The foodstuff commences to be scarce and the water bad.

"Dear Niece Maude: As I have now landed in the United States, I am writing you a few lines to let you know that after we had lived on the island three months we were finally picked up by a Swedish steamer and landed at Panama.

no one. I should like to stay here, but I suppose I must go to England. I have no more to write about this time, so I conclude with my best wishes to you and your father, mother and brothers.

TEX RICKARD SAYS TOUR PROVE LOSS

Chicago, May 6.—That the proposed tour of the White Sox and Giants this fall to South America would be a great experience but a slim money-maker was the opinion of Tex Rickard yesterday.

"If the White Sox and the Giants should take a tour to South America this fall," said Rickard, "they would have to go as missionaries of our national game, as the natives know very little about baseball. It is a question whether it would pay or not.

FORMER EMPLOYE UNDER ARREST

R. C. Lane, a former employe of the North Western road and known to a number of the railroad men of this city, has been arrested at Green Bay charged with tampering with switches in the North Western yards of that city.

The Green Bay Gazette says: R. C. Lane, the former North Western railroad employe, who was arrested by detectives a short time ago on a charge of displacing switches in the yards here, must stand trial on that count in municipal court. He was bound over for trial by Judge N. J. Monahan today after a preliminary examination.

An engineer, a fireman and two switchmen testified at the examination, their testimony being that Lane did a lot of unusual things on the night of his arrest. He was first noticed, one witness said, on the rear of a coach giving signals with his hands. He had no light, so no one paid any attention to his signals. Next he was found lying between tracks and a light that he had set between adjoining tracks, was discovered. He next began jumping cars, the witnesses said. While riding on the front of an engine he stole two Mackinaw coats belonging to the engineer and fireman. Notice had been given to the train dispatcher and men were sent out to land Lane, and the searchers located him stretched on the top of a car, using the coats for a pillow.

REHEARSAL THIS EVENING

The following dialogue "Love is such a Funny Little Thing" will be rendered by Harold Thompson as the prince and Durell Hews as Bulbul: Love is such a funny thing, No one's safe—not even a king.

Love end I are far apart, Never shall it rule my heart.

Haste to meet and loath to part! Such a feeling in your heart!

Who would wish such a pain to know Such a simpton to grow.

Love is like a sunlit stream, Love is but a radiant dream.

Hope and fortune brightly shine, You are mine, and I am thine.

Love's castles built in Spain, You as queen will ever reign.

Even castles built in Spain, Suffer from the wind and rain.

Time and tide do not annoy, Bliss and rapture never cloy, Time and tide they stand not still, On they move against our will.
