MASONVILLE TOWNSHIP FAIR AS-SOCIATION IS ORGANIZED TO HOLD EXHIBIT ON SEPT. 9 AND 10.

The Masonville Township Fair Association has been organized at Rapid River to promote a township fair to be held at Rapid River on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 9 and 10. The agricultural exhibits will be arranged in the old Rapid River school house while sheds will be erected on the grounds for stock and poultry.

The Rapid River fair is to be conducted as a preliminary to the big county fair in this city as the prize winning crops and stock at Rapid River will be sent to this city to com plete in the big county show.

"The Germans tried to make a descent near Pernpyin (Pernital, on the east shore of the gulf of Riga, some thirty-five miles north of Riga. Four barges, crammed with soldiers, took part in the descent. They were repulsed by the Russian troops without the co-operation of artillery, the Germans being exterminated and the barges captured."

The German battle cruiser Moltke was a vessel of 23,000 tons and carried, in ordinary times, a complement of 1,107 men. She was a sister ship of the famous Goeben, which became a part of the Turkish navy after the commencement of the war and was rechristened Sultan Selim.

The Moltke was 590 feet long and was armed wit hten eleveninch guns. twelve six-inch guns and twelve twentyfour pounders. In addition her armament included four twenty-inch torpedo tubes. She was built in 1911 and had a speed of about twenty-eight knots.

The Moltke was in the battle wih the British fleet in the North sea last January when the German armored cruiser Bluecher was sunk. In 1912 the Moltke was in the German spuadron which visited the United States to return the visit of the United States battleship squadron at Kiel during its trip around the world. The cost of the Moltke was about $12,000,000.

CLAIM IN COURT 20 YEARS

Beaver's Suit Against Huntington County Renewed-Sum Involved le $12,000.

Huntington, Ind .- Judge Charles A. Cole of Miami county, sitting as special judge in the case of Henry Beaver vs. H. C. Gutifrie and A. H. Shaffer, auditor and treasurer of Huntington county, began the hearing of the mandamus proceedings in Huntington circuit court recently. The plaintiff filed a motion for a change of complaint to include the name of the county treasurer. The suit is in behalf of Henry Beaver and his claim for $12,-000 against Huntington county, money he alleges has been due him over thirty years for funds he says he wrongfully turned in to the county treasurer to cover an irregularity in his accounts as county treasurer.

A demurrer to the amended complaint was then filed by the defense, in which seven important issues were presented.

The seventh and perhaps the most important issue raised attacks the

"Tell Mother I'll Be There" Made Thousands-Inspiration From Mo-Kinley's Message to Mother.

Columbus, Ind.-While here to deliver an address before the Tabernacle Society of Men, Rev. Charles M. Fillmore, pastor of the Hillside Christian church of Indianapolis, told how he came to write his famous song. "Tell Mother I'll Be There."- He said he was trying to organize a little church in Peru, Ind., and was writing hymns, which he sold at an average of three dollars each.

One morning while he was waiting for his wife to get breakfast he read in a newspaper a dispatch telling that the mother of President McKinley was dying. He noticed that the president had telegraphed, "Tell mother I'n be there."

"Couldn't you write a song about that?" his wife asked. Before ten minutes had passed, the minister says, he had written the chorus and before breakfast was ready he had the entire song completed.

He sold it for three dollars. Ten million copies of this song have been sold and at the customary royalty of one cent a copy the minister should have received $100,000. But three dollars is all he ever got for

SHORTAGE OF CRANBERRIES

Government Reports a Decrease In Trimmings for the Thanksgiving Turkey.

Washington.-According to the reports received by the department of agriculture from the cranberry fields of the United States, there may not be enough sauce for the Thanksgiving turkey this year.

Information from the cranberry sections of Cape Cod, New Jersey and Wisconsin is that in consequence of the cold weather of a few weeks ago the crops will be short.

Last season there were 625,000 bar rels from these three sections, but, according to best estimates now, the coming crop will not exceed 400,000

On the contrary, the predictions from the South are that the surkey crop will be larger than ever before

The tremendous scheme of the Special Relief society is to keep all the women for their share in the war as the army is prepared for its work. While President Wilson is silently LAND SURVEYOR studying out the questions of military preparedness these women are perecting their organization for the m ilization of mercy which must co-operate with the purely military branch in

The plan for this organization, mapped out by Mrs. Alexander, is to interest all the women's clubs, sewing societies, committees, etc., in the work all over the country. Every club will be asked to send in its pledge of the work that can be expected of it, and of the time it will take to deliver the product.

As the lists of these names are accumulated, instructions will be sent out to the volunteers. The sewing circles will be told how best to buy their material, what work they might best undertake. The volunteer nurses will be told how to prepare for hospital service.

STYLES FOR THE FALL

PARIS OPENINGS PUT OFF UNTIL FIRST OF AUGUST.

Flattened Hips Hinted at in Advance Models-Silver Lining to Overshadowing Cloud of Full Skirts.

The majority of the leading houses in Paris put off the dress openings of the season until the first of this month, although we were promised all the news of clothes by the second week of July.

What the reason was for the change in dates-whether the paucity of American buyers in Paris early in the month of July, or the difficulty of getting ready a new set of models after the manufacturers had depleted the grst set-is of little importance to the question at large; the result is very satisfying to those buyers and sellers who want new clothes for the winter and not for the summer.

The one thing that the specialists strive for is to get their frocks before the public who wants the last thing from Paris and open the way for the manufacturers to copy these styles at once; the sooner the better, for the moment a French style is run to ground, the specialists have the chance to sell a new and complete set of fashions to the world of women who will no longer wear a style that is selling for fifteen dollars through the cheaper ready-to-wear departments.

There are manufacturers' models in plenty in America already. Those who sell to the trade that pours into New York in July to get the fall materials, hats and gowns must be served. Why that flood does not wait until September is not a question for an amateur to settle by an answer.

There are certain dressmakers, catering to a large trade that does not dwell in or near New York, who also hurry home with a few models, buy others from the manufacturers, and get their autumn business off their hands almost before one knows that October is coming. This variety of clothes has been on the market since July and the people who copy each acceptable fashion in large quatities are already at work. Soon the shops will offer them as the first and most authoritative ideas in winter fashions. Whether or not they prove to be all that their agents claim for them is a doubt that will not deter hundreds of women from tuying them, because they are at hand and fall clothes are always needed as soon as the first chill makes its appearance, except by those lucky ones who always find a suit or a frock left over from the preceding season, which happens to fill the first neces-

There is a strong tendency in each of the fashions that are advanced as forerunners of what is to come in October toward flattened hips. For the last few months we have grown quite large in that spot; we have avoided any appearance of slimness and given ourselves over to gathers and plaits at the waist line. This fashion was deplored by all but the excessively slender, yet as all the models called for a certain amount of fullness from waist to ankles there seemed no other way to arrive at it except through a wide circular skirt, a cut to which the majority of women objected.

The latter method of cutting the skirt, however, is the one that is advanced today and the unevenness of the hem, which is sure to result, is offset by accentuating it and using cord or plaiting as an edge.

To quiet the rebellion against this kind of skirt among the larger number of women the Spanish flounce has been revived on all kinds of akirts, or rather on skirts made of various materials. Organdie, broadcloth, gab line, volvet, batiste nad satin are

TO END LIVES DATES ADVISES

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 23.-The theory that Lena Baker, 9, Montpelier, who died from carbolic acid poisoning, was murdered by her stepmother, Mrs. A. C. Washington, Aug. 13.-Tremendous efforts apparently are being made by the English government to prevent the further dropping of exchange rates by rushing gold to this country to provide a fund of gold to make a contemplated loan in this country at $300,090,900. Larger minimum penalties for flagrant and chronic violations of the game, fish and forestry department in the next report to the legislature.

The wholesome effect of the recent determined campaign against unlawful killing of deer has strengthened State Game Warden W. R. Oates in his conviction that the laws should be amended so as to make the sentence imposed commensurate with the violation.

"The idea of hauling a man into court from some club house fifty or sixty miles from a town and have only small fine imposed is 'ridiculous," says Mr. Oates. "The penalty should be stiff enough to act as a deterrent, but in the past the fines have not been sufficient to prevent a repetition of the violation. Many of the violators find it profitable to kill deer out of season, in spite of one or two apprenhensions because the value of the meat is greater than the small fines imposed. Another feature of the game laws on which Mr. Oates is laying much stress is the fact that any person found in the woods with a gun before Oct. 1 will be arrested. Since the rabbit and part ridge season will open at the same time this year, a person who takes his gun out for the purpose of hunting partridge cannot evade arrest by asserting that he is out after rabbits. It is expected that all hunters will be aware of the provision that only one deer may be killed during the deer season. The hunter's license must carry a license which must be shown to deputies on demand. Licenses must even be secured for rabbit hunting and for hunting either in or outside the county in which one resides.

In prosecuting for game law violations, ignorance of the lay, as in all other prosecutions, excuses no one, but in order that nobody may be justified in giving this excuse, the department is posting canvass posters containing the important features of the game laws. Copies of a digest and a synopsis of the game and fish laws are also being widely distributed. It has always been the position of the lepartment that it would rather prevent than prosecute violations of the game and fish laws.

THAT DOG TWEEDLE

One morning I came downstairs to find the dining room in confusion, th silver gone, and Mrs. Briggs in faint beneath the table. Upon th floor sat the woolly dog, looking s me reproachfully, as if to say: "You'r a nice sort of householder, to let bur glars come in the night and stuff m so full of delicacies that I can't es any breakfast." That is the sort of dog Tweedle was.

He was the most useless dog I ev knew. All he could do was to ru round, eat, and utter his shrill littl bark. One day he came to me with ball of blue yarn in his mouth. thread stretched into invisibility the end of the garden. Presently saw somebody coming across from under the peach frees. It was the gir who lived in the house behind the garden. Sometimes I would see he she was dressed in white and ha blue eyes, and she was holding th end of the wool.

"Oh, please, your dog has taken m skein," she said tremulously.

After that it seemed easier to mal the girl's acquaintance. Sometimes would venture to sit beside her unde the trees. We found we had a lot talk about, but our meetings generall lapsed into silent ones, and yet w both felt perfectly satisfied with then She introduced me to her mother an brothers, but I paid them little atter tion. I used to think a lot about th girl, and I was glad she was fon of Tweedle.

I had to go West for six month to settle up an estate. I told the gir She looked at me with a sort of in quiry in her eyes. So I explained he sorry I was to go, and that it wa unavoidable. I was not going to rer the house, though, and-would sl take care of Tweedle, since si seemed fond of him?"

She looked at me very strangel "Is that all—all you want of me?" sl

"I wouldn't dare to ask more you," I answered.

"Yes-I'll take him," she whispere and, turning suddenly, ran into th house. I fancied she was cryin When I went to say good-by I was to she was indisposed, but she sent wor that she would take care of Tweed

I was a whole year in California, b cause the business had more ramific tions than I had expected. I thought a good deal about the girl, and wondered how Tweedle was getting along. When I got back to Montclair the house was closed. I was sorry-I missed the girl and Tweedle.

spent all my time in my home. I found I was moping. One day Mrs. Briggs told me that it was said the house was going to be opened up again. That was correct; a man and woman came to live in it. Two days later I saw the girl under the peach trees. I went over to her. She was surprised to see me.

"We have just come down for a week to arrange about the sale," she United Verde ____ 5.25 said. "We are living in Washington. Did you want Tweedle?" "No," I answered, "but I want you have missed you. I never knew-" She interrupted me. "You should have told me before," she said. "I have been married three months now But I think-" hysterically-"you had better have Tweedle."

"No, thank you, I don't want to see Tweedle," I replied. That is all I remember of that interview, except that a man's voice was calling somewhere behind the peach trees.

Two or three years passed. I had bought the old house and lived there. Somehow I liked to associate it in my mind with the girl who had walked among the peach trees.

I liked to sit under the peach trees when they were blooming. I was seated there one day in early May, when I saw a ridiculous little black, woolly dog come through the gate. The creature seemed to recognize me, and began frisking about my knees. When I stood up my knees were shaking, because I was looking at the girl who had sat where I was sitting now. "So it was you who bought this place?" said the girl. "Yes," I answered, looking at her in wonder. She was changed a good deal; not in features or figure, but spiritually, I thought. "Why did you buy it?" asked the

"I wanted to think of you. You see I learned too late that I-had loved

"And I never thought you loved me," answered the girl. "That was why married-because I felt too wretched to let my thoughts dwell on you. You see, I was so simple—it never occurred to me that I could think of you after I was married to another man." "But you have?" I cried.

The peach-tree girl's head drooped down, and I saw two tears trembling upon her eyelashes. And then—well, I forgot that she was married.

She raised her head. "My husband died a year ago," she said. "He was killed in an accident. We were unhappy. I did not know that people could be unhappy after they were

"They can't!" I cried triumphantly.
"Not when they are really married.
That was only a dream, my dear. The real life is just going to begin."
"Our life!" sine whispered.
"Ask Tweedle," I replied triumph with violent price fluctuations. During the first hour, prices rallied slightly above Saturday's closing but shortly before noon, they broke badly. After opening at 70 Steel Common which was one of the leaders rallied to 71 then declined to 67 34 and closed with a net gain over three points from the days low figure. The balance of the market, including the coppers followed the lead of Steel Common. The Zinc stocks were an exception and acted very strong on the report of a three sterling advance in Spelter. There was plenty of wa rnews today but all important influence was the international question and the tense relations new existing between this country and Germany. While the action of the market the next day or so will depend entirely on the international question, and one's guess on this subject is as good as anther, it would seem as if these sharp reactions should be taken advantage of to purchase stocks.

FAKE BASE BALL

Fans playing in public baseball pools will do well to read how they are "stung." The September Baseball Magazine has an article exposing the crooked work. We quote part of the magazine article:

As typical of the methods pursued by these parasites may be taken the case of the so-called Keystone Pool. This pool operated in Pennsylvania, as its name implies, but it had ramifications all over the eastern United States and the middle west. A list of its prize winners for one week shows names scattered over no less than six

Some revelations of the size and scope of the Keystone company were brought to light in the trial which exposed the working of the colossal swindle.

We quote from the sworn evidence as produced in that trial, when the superintendent of the printing concern which did all the printing for the syndicate was undergoing cross-exami-

"What was the average number of lottery slips and tickets printed for the Keystone?"

"It ranged from 25.00 to 75,000 three times a week."

"How many tickets did you print weekly for the Keystone Pool?" "Well, the highest for a week was 250,000.

"Well, what was the average week's quantity.?"

"They started at about 150,000 week and kept increasing every week." In passing it is well to mention that the gross receipts from these tickets at thirty cents apiece was, for the highest week, $75,000.

President Dreyfus, of the Pittsburg

"We investigated and found that the pools were getting more money out of Pittsburg than the Pittsburg Ball club. In one week we estimate as nearly as we could on the actual figures that they absorbed thirty thousand dollars from that one city. We also investigated and found that a considerable number of alleged prize winners didn't live at the addresses that appeared or were missing from the city directory or hadn't received any prize money. One of the worst feattures of all these pools is that even with the heavy odds against him that are the nature of a lottery, the purchaser of one of the lying tickets doesn't get a fair chance to win. He has members of the concern to compete against and all kinds of crooked work to contend with, so that the prize which are actually given are the small er ones and in no case . the larger amounts alleged in the lists."

They Keystone Pool distributed its tickets through fifty agents, who in turn had three hundred subagents. who supplied sixty-five thousand steady customers. Its payments for police protection and other forms of illegal connivance with th eauthorities totalled $17,000 for one week. It maintained an office staff of thirty clerks, and yet its weekly profits were $50,000. The Jumbo Pool averaged a profit of $18,000, the Windsor, $25,000 the Great Eastern, the Pennsylvania and Ohio, the Erie, the Elm and many others all cut their individual slices from the juicy melon of public gullibility. For amid all these colossal operations the fact stands out conspicuous that the only prize actually given were the smaller ones, except in certain well-marked cases where new territory was being exploited. There may be honor among thives, but the lottery Kings were pikers. Sure of enormous profits, they hogged the which have won further fame for the I have been asked the reason for my rapid success in a difficult profession. The only answer that I can give is 'hard work.' There were other incidents that also contributed to my success. One of the most important is that Col. William N. Selig, president of the company which bears his name, gives everyone a fair opportunity. He appreciates close attention to work and loyalty on the part of his employees. I was fortunate enough to please him and the directors and was assigned to more important roles as time passed, and I gave my entire time and thought to

Perhaps there is another qualification connected with my promotion that should be mentioned here. I had had stage experience. I appeared in the spoken drama when five years of age, taking the title role of Editha's Burglar.' Later I appeared in stock companies. This experience in the art of acting was certainly of untold benefit to me.

I have been told that I am the youngest leading woman in motion pictures. Maybe I am, but I have earned the parts I play. Working in motion pictures is not pastime—it is hard work. In motion pictures, as elsewhere, work counts.

Long hours fall to those who engage in motion picture acting. They report at a studio at a certain hour in the morning. They do not leave until a certain hour. Their day's work is just like a day's work in any other occupation in life. In warm weather the sun beats through the glass enclosure of the studio and the thermometer sometimes registers 150 degrees. Perhaps in this warm atmosphere one must be compelled to appear as a character heavily bundled in clothing. and you can imagine one's discomfi-

There are many recompenses, also, and I think, on the whole, that the work is ever so much more enjoyable than the speaking stage. Girls who wish to euter motion pictures, however, should pause and think over the

An example of this was durity; I remained ing the filming of the big Selig Red to take part in a Seal play "The House of a Thousand Selig feature Candles," at the Chicago studio of the less most of my readers heard of career. One must protograph well in the big car strike in Chicago, but few of them knew what havoc it played with the motion picture producers. We had many players who were working in the "Loop," Chicago theatrical center, and as the studio is quite a way from this place, and there was no auto service, Mr. William N. Selig ordered a huge truck in which all the players were taken to the theaters in which they were working.

There were other excursions, too. during the time I was appearing in "The House of a Thousand Candles." One of these was made to find a house which would correspond to the director's ideal "house" in which the "thousand candles" were supposed to be. All the players who had friends with homes which might serve the purpose told the director about them, and one day we all got into a big touring car and started our search. We covered almost all of the city of Chicago, and when we were all beginning to despair of ever finding an ideal "House of a Thousand Candles," the director suddenly called the chauffeur to stop. We were in a part of Wheaton, a suburb of Chicago, and none of us could see any "house" that might prove available. The director, however, made us all get out of the machine and tramp up a hill. As we rounded a curve in the road we saw beyond a clump of trees, which had been obstructing our view, the exact "House of a Thousand Candles" we had all been hoping for.

When we returned to the studio to take the interior scenes, we found that we needed many more times as many candlesticks for the "big set" as our property room had. We started a search for candlesticks and candelabra, and gathered them from every conceivable source-our own homes, homes of our friends, small shops near the studio and large stores in the business district of Chicago. After getting them all together we sorted them out and the director arranged them about the "set." The effect is beautiful in-my estimation, and I am sure that those who see "The House of a Thousand Candles" will agree with me.

Mr. Harry Mestayer and Mr. John Charles, who have the two leading male roles, and Mr. Backus, who plays the "character" lead, were all cast in parts which fitted them perfectly and enjoyed the work fully as much as I did. The other players were also at their best, so we went through the entire production like a well-oiled machine. Mr. Heffron, our director, kept us all working together, and while no exciting accident happened to distinguish it from other pictures in which I have worked, I shall remember "The House of a Thousand Candles" for a long, long time, because of the pleasure I experienced-in over the embankment and twice rolled completely over before landing at the bottom of the ambankment. To the fact that the top of the car was up and partially shellded the occupants in the mad roll, it is beleved they owe their lives. Mr. Sullivan, who was riding in the front seat, beside the driver, was the first to extricate himself. He was able to pull his sister, Ella Sullivan, out while Miss Margaret Sulivan escaped without aid. He 1 found that the windshield of the car was resting across Mr. Byre's chest while Mrs. Byrne was being held under the back of the rear seat. Mr. Sullivan was unable to raise the car sufficiently to release either Mr. or Mrs. Byrne but other autoists reached the scene within a few minutes and their perilous positions. They were taken at once to St. George's hospital at Iron Mountain where the injuries sustained by Mr. and Mrs. Byrne necessitated their remaining there while Mr. Sullivan and his sisters returned to Escanaba by train. The automobile was considerably damaged, the top being broken together with the windsield, fenders and
