

CAN'T LIMIT LOAD WEIGHTS

GOVERNOR REFUSES TO APPROVE OF MEASURE ADOPTED BY DELTA COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The supervisors of Delta county cannot regulate the size of loads hauled on the roads of the county.

Gov. Woodruff N. Ferris, on the advice of the attorney general, has refused to approve of a resolution adopted by the supervisors of this county regarding the weight of loads that may be hauled on trucks and other vehicles on the county roads. The refusal of the governor to approve of the measure makes the new law contemplated for this county inoperative.

Of the refusal of Governor Ferris to approve of the measure adopted in this county, in the interests of conserving the county roads, a Lansing dispatch says:

"An attempt by the supervisors of Delta county to regulate traffic upon the roads in their county has been stopped by state officials.

Wednesday Governor Ferris, in line with a decision today by Attorney General Fellows, will veto and return a resolution of the supervisors, passed October 14, prohibiting on Delta county roads what might be termed "heavy haulage." The use of vehicles with certain tires was forbidden, nor could any vehicle be used which, with its load, weighed more than 18 tons, or had a weight of 12 tons on either axle. The tire widths permitted varied with the weight, from two inches for a load of 2,000 pounds up to four inches for a weight of 6,000 pounds.

"Under the law the governor had approved the resolution before it became a law and it was referred to him, but the attorney general advised him to turn it down.

"In part, the opinion of Mr. Fellows, which forms a precedent, reads: "The board of supervisors has sought to adopt this resolution in accordance with section 2484 of the Compiled Laws of 1897 as last amended by Act 357 of the Public Acts of 1913. It will be observed that no law, regulation or ordinance is sought to be authorized by the statute unless the same relates to purely county affairs, and furthermore it must be of such a character as not to interfere with any general law of the state. While this measure is termed a "resolution" it is in substance in the nature of a local act designed to regulate the use of the public highways by certain vehicles. If the same were adopted and regarded as valid, the public roads of Delta county would be subject to certain restrictions as to their use that are not enforced as to public roads in the other counties of the state.

"If this resolution can be upheld as a valid exercise of the authority of the board of supervisors, then, every county in the state might enact measures along this line with the result that endless confusion and uncertainty would result. All the people of the state are entitled to use the highways of Delta county, if they so desire, and it is the theory of the law of the state that such highways shall be maintained for all and not merely for the residents of the county."

MARINETTE WILL COME

By negotiations that were concluded yesterday the strong Marinette city football team will come to Escanaba on Sunday to clash with the local city aggregation. Since being reorganized a few weeks ago the local team has not been scored upon and hold a strong claim to the title of peninsula champions. All arrangements had been made for a game with Ishpeming here this week but that the Hematite City squad is attempting to sidestep a local engagement was evidenced on Tuesday night when word was received that several members of the Ishpeming team were on the hospital list and would be unable to play. Marinette has one of the strongest teams in the history of that city and in spite of the strong showing made by the local will come here confident of winning. The ladies free rule, which proved so popular at the Glandstone-Escanaba game last Sunday, will again be in effect for the Marinette game this week.

HATTON DENIES BASELESS RUMOR

W. J. Hatton, former superintendent for the North Michigan Water company here, announced yesterday that an unfounded report was being circulated about the city that he was still in the employ of the water company. "I wish to most emphatically deny that rumor," said Mr. Hatton last night. "I have had no connection with the water company since leaving its employ and neither have I since leaving their employ received one cent from them."

TO RECALL WHITLOCK

U. S. MINISTER TO BELGIUM IS RETURNING ON "TWO MONTHS LEAVE OF ABSENCE."

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—The state department announced late this afternoon that Brand Whitlock, United States minister to Belgium "is returning to the United States on a two month's leave of absence on account of ill health."

Coming, as it does, on the heels of bitter criticism in Germany of Whitlock's reports on the execution of Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse, by German authorities in Belgium, the announcement created a sensation in Washington.

It was interpreted at once to indicate that Germany had asked for the recall of Whitlock and that the United States had complied. So far as can be ascertained, however, this opinion is supported only by circumstantial evidence. The animosity in Germany against Whitlock was manifested by editorial comment in the German daily newspapers, many of which suggested that Whitlock was not entitled to a post in Belgium and that he should be sent to Havre, where the seat of the Belgian government is located. Some of the newspapers went so far as to demand that Germany ask for his recall. While this criticism was at its height, Ambassador Gerard was summoned to a conference with the kaiser. The interview was lengthy and the state department has steadfastly refused to give out information concerning it.

Whitlock about the same time was asked for an explanation and said he did not know Great Britain intended to make public his report, in which he implied bad faith upon the part of Germany. The explanation was almost apologetic to Germany. It is denied by Secretary Lansing that any significance is to be attached to the leave of absence extended to Whitlock.

VESSEL IS BLOWN UP

(Special to the Press.)

New York, Nov. 4.—Ten minutes after all the crew had left the British steamer Euterpe, tonight a terrific explosion occurred. It tore open a hatch and caused a fire in the first hold. The explosion shook the whole south Brooklyn water front around Erie Basin, where the Euterpe was moored. The ship is under charter to the British government and was to have sailed Saturday. Much mystery as to the destination of the ship and cargo was created. It is believed the explosion was caused by a bomb in one of the sugar sacks. Firemen fully fought the flames. Captain Alfred Smith believes the ship was the victim of a bomb placed in the hold by the agent of a foreign foe.

UNION NAMES ITS OFFICERS

Members of the Plumbers Union on Tuesday evening at their annual meeting at the Union Hall elected officers for the coming year, as follows: J. F. Gaffney, president; Leo Mc Ginnis, vice president; Jerry Gallagher, financial secretary, and J. G. Deegan, recording secretary.

IRON COUNTY HAS PROBLEM

BLIND PIGS FLOURISH IN NEIGHBORING COUNTY AS NEVER BEFORE. LAW ENFORCEMENT SAID TO BE IMPOSSIBLE.

Iron county, which adopted local option last spring, is today battling with one of the most serious problems in the history of that county. Blind pigs infest the entire county and county officials and law enforcement organizations supported by the dry forces in the county, have found themselves hopelessly unable to cope with the situation. The assertion is made on the authority of those in a position to know that more intoxicants are being sold in Iron county today than ever in the history of licensed saloons in the county. Arrests by the wholesale of alleged blind piggers have resulted in but few convictions.

Special Officer Rutledge, brought to Iron county for the particular purpose of supervising the enforcement of the local option laws in Iron county, has given up the task as a hopeless job and has left the county. Now, according to the current issue of the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill, the most serious situation in the history of that county is faced.

The Diamond Drill says:

From Iron River comes word this week that Mr. Rutledge has left Iron county bag and baggage. Mr. Rutledge was brought here about three months ago by the Iron County Welfare Association for the purpose of supervising the enforcement of the local option laws. The contests that have been waged since his arrival have not been on the whole satisfactory. Illicit liquor dealers are getting bolder with each day and conditions are rapidly nearing a point where some move must be made or local option regime in this county acknowledged to be a failure. None realize that fact more than the movers in the local option fight. It may be that Mr. Rutledge's going presages something (Continued on page three.)

TO MEET CORNELL

(Special to the Press.)

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 3.—When Michigan meets Cornell on Ferry Field next Saturday afternoon it will not only be closing its 1915 season as far as the "at home" schedule is concerned, but it will also be meeting the team which is probably the strongest gridiron organization in the country. The Ithacans' victory over Harvard a week ago and its top-heavy win over its Saturday opponents, has marked the Red team as a victorious eleven, and Coach Sharpe, who saw the Michigan-Syracuse game on Saturday, expects to keep his record clean all during the rest of the year.

The win of Syracuse over the Wolverines on Saturday was expected, but this did not lessen the sting of the loss. The score of 14 to 7 was charitable to Michigan, for the Wolverines did not really deserve to score at all. Benton's lucky stab of a fumbled pass and his 35-yard run for a touchdown was all that saved the losers from a shut-out. The Wolverines were outclassed all during the game, and in all departments. The line was deplorably futile in its attempts to perform its normal duties.

The one bright spot in the game was the performance of Smith, full back. He was in the game only about five minutes, but in that time the Bay City sophomore did more real work than the whole Michigan team had done throughout the entire 60 minutes of play. Had this wonder-working lad been in the fray all during the four periods, the score would most certainly have been different, although it is doubtful if Michigan could have won. Coach Yost, after the game was over, pronounced the Syracuse team as one of the best he had ever seen.

Yost's attempts to bolster up his line has resulted in the ousting of some of the "fat" men of the team and the substitute of lighter and rarer athletes. Millard, Rohor, and Norton no longer enjoy the coach's confidence. Instead of them, Yost brought in Niemar, Whelson and Weske. Captain Cochran is the only one of the fat men who remains. The results of these experiments by the coach have strengthened the squad appreciably.

Work Goes To The Highest Bidder.

Boss Dick has taken on more territory. In addition to running the village of Wells he has decided to run some of the side lines of Delta county's business.

At the October meeting of the Delta county board of supervisors the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Moved by Supervisor Mason, supported by Supervisor Atkins, that the printing committee be instructed to secure bids for publishing the proceedings of the October meeting and for printing 1,000 pamphlets containing the proceedings." The motion was carried. Specifications, complying with the order of the board, were issued by the printing committee. On Monday of this week the following sealed bids were filed with the committee:

Escanaba Daily Mirror, $4.28 per pamphlet page.
Escanaba Journal, $4.27 1-2 per pamphlet page.
Delta County Reporter, 3.07 1-2 per pamphlet page.
Escanaba Morning Press, $2.77 1-2 per pamphlet page.

The bid of the Morning Press was $1.50 1-2 lower per page than the highest proposal and was 30 cents per page lower than any other bid presented. It was at once apparent that the Morning Press had the lowest bid for the work. Supervisors Mason and Colburn insisted that the work should be given to the lowest bidder. Supervisors Pirkus, Pillion and Halverson, disregarding the fact that approximately $100 would be saved to the taxpayers by the acceptance of the Morning Press bid, though otherwise, as they signed an order to the clerk authorizing the clerk to deliver the proceedings to the Daily Mirror. And this in spite of the fact that the county board, before the order was given, had caught the publishers of the Mirror with their hands in the county's pocket to the extent of $184.20 as an overcharge on a job of ballots, printed last November. Throughout the afternoon and early Tuesday evening Supervisor Colburn expressed great concern over the action of a majority of the committee and invited that in spite of that action the work should go to the lowest bidder. He consulted with the editor of the Press as to means that might be employed to prevent the remainder of the committee from awarding the contract to the highest bidder. The report that the Morning Press had submitted the lowest bid for the work and was likely to secure the work in spite of a majority of the committee spread to Wells.

Supervisor Colburn is a jobber for the I. Stephenson company. In a lapse of less than two hours, between the period when he was so vigorously determined to save the taxpayers' money, he suddenly joined the committee's majority that was determined to give the work to the highest bidder. Evidently Colburn had been seen. The big stick Lad evidently worked. A supervisor who for years had been one of the leading members of the county's governing body and who had held the esteem and confidence of his constituents and fellow members of the board throughout a long stretch of years, had succumbed to the powers that be. And it is hoped that he did it unwillingly.

In spite of the fact that the Morning Press bid was the lowest by far for the work, the proceedings of the October session of the county board were yesterday delivered to the highest bidder and that a firm which stands convicted on the records of Delta county of overcharging the county $184.20 on a single job.

SAXON CAR IS DEMONSTRATED HERE

The Delta Garage on Stephenson avenue has taken the agency for the Saxon Six and it is expected that many cars will be sold in this city. The car is well known in this section of the peninsula. It is said that it is one of the best cars in the country for the price.

DELTA LEADS ALL COUNTIES

EXCESS OF STATE REWARDS OVER HIGHWAY TAX LEVIED BY STATE IS GREATER FOR THIS COUNTY.

According to figures prepared by Auditor General O. B. Fuller, Delta county's excess in state road rewards paid, over state highway taxes levied in twelve years against this county, is greater than any other county in Michigan. Delta county in 12 years has received $64,416.20 in state road rewards more than was paid by this county in state highway taxes. The only county in the state approaching Delta in excess of rewards over state highway taxes paid was Saginaw, with $52,642.81.

The statistics prepared show that Delta far outstrips any other county in the peninsula, speaking eloquently of the impetus given to the good roads movement in this county in recent years.

In the state of Michigan in twelve years the total amount of state taxes levied was $3,855,000, while the total amount of road rewards paid the different counties in that period was $2,569,283.38.

Statistics prepared by Mr. Fuller relating to state highway taxes levied and road rewards paid in counties of the peninsula follow:

ARE TO MEET BARK RIVER

The Escanaba high school Reserves will meet the Bark River high school football team at South Park on Saturday afternoon in a game that promises to be one of the most interesting contests staged there this season. It will be the final high school game of the season in this city and it is expected will attract a great crowd of patrons. The Bark River team has in its lineup two Indians that are reputed to be wonderful ground gainers and with other members of the Bark River squad make up a team that will give the local second stringers a battle through every minute of the game. The strong showing made by the local Reserves against Menominee's second team last Saturday, demonstrated their playing ability and lends to the coming game an unusual interest.

Mrs. A. A. Parkhurst of South Campbell street left yesterday for Racine, Wis., where she will visit for a few days with friends and relatives. Mrs. Parkhurst who has been a resident of this city for the past twelve years will leave from Racine for Philadelphia, Pa., where she will make her future home.

TALK ABOUT GALL

Copies of letters addressed by F. L. Baldwin, editor of the Escanaba Journal, to Democratic leaders in Washington, protesting against the appointment of John O'Mera as postmaster in this city, on the grounds of incompetency, have been received here in the past few days.

Citizens of Escanaba just think this over. Baldwin, who belongs to no party, except the protest party, protesting against the appointment of John O'Mera, claiming that he is incompetent and inefficient to conduct the affairs of Escanaba's postoffice.

There should be a law of some kind that would deal harshly with such contemptible curs, who attempt in a sneaking way to besmirch the character of such reputable citizens as Mr. O'Mera, a man who has lived with us for thirty odd years; who has been elected to the responsible position of city treasurer and re-elected the second term; was a member of the board of education for six years and during all these years has held the respect and confidence of every citizen who knew him, until now, comes this "snake-in-the-grass," and with his dirty pen writes to the leading Democrats of the country, telling them that Mr. O'Mera is incompetent.

Why has Baldwin taken upon himself this dirty underhanded work? Would he do so if he were not asked? What then is the solution of the problem? Ah! a light appears. The rays of

BOTH PARTIES ARE JUBILANT

BOTH REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS DRAW SATISFACTION FROM ELECTION RESULTS.

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—A formal statement issued tonight by the Democratic national committee said, "while the results yesterday show the Republicans and Progressives have gotten together in some states, Democracy has made large gains from the Progressive ranks." This, it is claimed, is particularly true in Massachusetts. The Democrats made tremendous gains and the Republicans have failed to get back their voting strength, that placed them in power, it is said.

"The results of yesterday are full of encouragement to Democrats, demonstrating conclusively that it is a constructive and gaining party, while the Republicans have signally failed in their efforts to force back into their ranks the Progressives."

(Special to the Press.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Republicans are jubilant at the result of yesterday's elections. They say that wherever a hot campaign was waged the fight was conducted on national issues and that their attacks on the administration's policy brought them strength. It is claimed by Republicans that the vote shows the complete disappearance of the Progressive party and forecasts a united front in 1916 against Wilson.

VILLAISTAS LOSE A CITY

(Special to the Press.)

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 3.—Carranza troops, under General Herrera, have occupied the city of Chihuahua, according to persistent reports in circulation here tonight. Villa military officials in Juarez admit that they are unable to communicate with Chihuahua by wire and that the railway has been cut at a point near Callegos, a short distance north of Chihuahua. Chihuahua city was the last state capital remaining in Villa's hands.

SURROUNDING THE SERBIANS

AUSTRO-GERMANS KEEP UP ADVANCE—AID COMES TO NA-TION IN SOUTH.

(Special to the Press.)

London, Nov. 3.—Austro-German troops, advancing steadily in north-western Serbia, have occupied the city of Uzice, an important railway terminal. From the north, west and east, Austro-Germans and Bulgarians are closing in on Nish. Fear is expressed here that the Serbian armies may be completely surrounded. British cavalry has joined the Serbo-French troops in southern Serbia. New fleets of transports are arriving off Saloniki, bearing strong reinforcements for the troops already fighting the Bulgarians.

London, Nov. 3.—Dashing from their trenches, behind the cover of a thick cloud of asphyxiating gas, the Germans today succeeded in piercing the French lines on the important height in the Massiges sector of Champagne. The attack, which was made on a wide front, succeeded at only this point, according to Paris. Against this German success, the French have regained 100 yards of trenches along Souchez brook.

(By C. E. Bertell.)

Paris, Nov. 3.—Credible information has reached Paris that the real object of the German march to Constantinople is to coerce the allies into concluding peace.

With troops in Constantinople, the kaiser will be in position to threaten France and Great Britain with a muslim uprising in their African and Asiatic possessions unless they accept his peace terms.

In the event of the allies rejecting these terms the kaiser will at least be able to satisfy the German people of his desire to end the war.

The answer of the allies was given yesterday by Asquith in the British parliament and today by Briand, in the French chamber when a determination to fight to the bitter end was expressed. Meanwhile, spite of official and semi-official denial, rumors persist that Prince von Buelow's mission to Switzerland and Spain is to initiate peace negotiations.

Paris, Nov. 3.—An announcement of tremendous importance was made in the chamber of deputies today by Premier Briand, who said that France was not continuing the war with the idea of conquest. Also he said the date for serious peace talks was "unfortunately distant." The new premier's second speech, following the ministerial declaration, was one of the most remarkable pieces of oratory ever heard in the chamber. Tears stood in the eyes of every deputy when he appealed to them to continue the holy political union.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Local Office Weather Bureau

Escanaba, Mich., Nov. 4, 1915. For Escanaba and vicinity: Thursday, increasing cloudiness, probably rain and snow; fresh south winds. Highest temperature yesterday, 43 degrees. Lowest temperature yesterday, 28 degrees. Precipitation yesterday, .0 inches. Temperatures at even hours yesterday.

According to Premier Asquith there are a very few things that are right in England, and let's in a position to know.

It now begins to appear that another goat is to be added to this war. Belgium was the first and now Serbia is on the brink.

Menominee voted about 5 to 1 to bond their city for the purchase of the corporation owned water plant in that city. That's about what the people at Escanaba will do when they get an opportunity.

On Nov. 22 the people of Escanaba will take their first step toward either purchasing the plant of the North Michigan Water Company or building a water serving plant of their own. Escanaba has long suffered under the yoke of a corporation owned water plant and that service is most certainly one that should be owned and entirely controlled by the people.

MARY ELLEN'S MAN

By HOPE AINSLEE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mary Ellen did not know that the place she was entering was a pawnshop. It was tucked away in a quiet thoroughfare off Regent street and Mary Ellen just happened to be strolling through the quaint Soho district when an antique locket in the window caught her attention.

She bought the oddly beautiful locket and was persuaded to purchase, also, an equally curious old ring that the shopkeeper had in his possession. Mary Ellen was a shy, imaginative little person, whose world was peopled by fanciful characters. She was queer; she was merely different enough from the average girl to be mysterious.

Back in New York there were several suitors who wanted Mary Ellen's dainty hand for their own. It was partly owing to the persistent wooing of these admirers that Mary Ellen found herself in London. She had fled from the temptation to marry when she was not really as much in love as her fancy told her she should be. And her dream man possessed all the qualities that existed, respectively, in each of her suitors.

She held her new locket closely in her hand and looked at the face in it. She began to wish that she had lived in the age when he had lived—in the age of powder and patches.

"An idea thrust itself into her dreams. She would return to America as the betrothed wife of the man in the locket. This would be a fitting way for her to avoid marrying any one of her suitors. She had long sought an excuse that would satisfy them. Her feticulous lover would be the excuse. And the antique ring would lend color to her story.

Few girls but Mary Ellen would have conceived so fanciful a plan of clearing her path of lovers. "And his name is 'Davie!'" she said to herself when she had discovered an engraved inscription inside the locket: "With love, Davie," the line ran.

"I shall call my fiance David Woodman, and say that he is an actor. My miniature of him was made in the character of Sir Charles Surface." Mary Ellen laughed at her own ingenuity. Indeed, so delighted was she with her fabric of romance that she sailed for home a week sooner than she had expected.

The romance woven around the man in the locket came to be acknowledged as a natural one. Mary Ellen had gone abroad and she had met her fate.

One night Jimmy Vale stood in the ballroom of the Deerwent home looking at Mary Ellen as she danced with a zephyr, and even had Jimmy not been possessed of a hopeless love for the girl he would have enjoyed the grace of her.

Someone touched his arm. "That slim, quaint, beautiful little dancer in mauve—who is she?" David Garland asked him.

Jimmy turned to look at the man. He was the guest of the hostess, and they had merely shaken hands in being introduced.

"I'll present you—with pleasure," Jimmy hastened to say.

When Mary Ellen looked into the blue eyes of David Garland she would have turned and fled had not Jimmy restrained her. "Wait a minute, Mary Ellen. I want to present Mr. David Garland. Miss Moore, Jimmy added, with his best society bow. Then, without another word he left them.

David was so like the man in Mary Ellen's locket that the girl was struck with amazement. She could scarcely raise her eyes to his scrutinizing gaze.

"There are two reasons for my wanting to meet you," she heard him saying. "One is—that locket," he said, looking at her treasure.

"I bought it in London," Mary Ellen confessed, blushing, and taking the locket in her hand. "And this ring I bought at the same time," she admitted, extending the ring for him to see.

Her heart beat fast; her dream was coming true. This man and the man whose face was pictured in her locket were in some way connected.

"I say, this is most curious," David was saying, half to himself, as he examined the ring on Mary Ellen's finger. He looked up at her. "Do you know that you are wearing my grandmother's engagement ring?"

Mary Ellen shook her head; she could not speak.

"And I believe there is a miniature of myself in that locket," David added. "Are—are you Davie?" Mary Ellen asked, breathlessly.

"I'm Davie," he laughed.

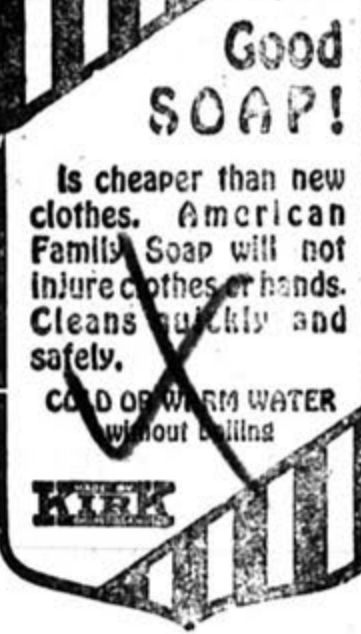

He then explained that his grandmother Garland was so "keen on him" that she had had his miniature painted and set in a locket. She had had it done in powder and patch costume because, in that dress, he was more like his grandfather than ever and it had pleased the elderly woman to see him thus. The locket and the ring had been stolen by a maid and had evidently been sold.

Mary Ellen looked up in startled amazement. "Do you know, it was a pawnshop that I bought them in—in Soho?" she asked.

David laughed. "Bless that pawnbroker!" he said. "And this hesitation wait? Do you hesitate to dance with—Davie?" he asked.

Mary Ellen did not hesitate.

AMERICAN FAMILY SOAP

WE ALL LOVE HER DEARLY

Chicago, Nov. 3.—"Um! Mrs. Galt? Why, I think—"

Mrs. G. W. McAdoo, who was Miss Eleanor Wilson, took a deep breath.

"To put it mildly, we are all delighted and overjoyed at it! As for Mrs. Galt—we are devoted to her. She is the most lovable, cultured woman in the world. There could not be a happier happening in the Wilson family."

"I wish I could begin to express myself without getting superlatively enthusiastic. Not that I do not want to rave, but I never know when to stop. Let it suffice to say that we all love her."

"She is a remarkable woman and will be a most gracious mistress of the White House. She has dignity, personality, charm, sweetness and wisdom. Our family more than welcomes her."

Mrs. McAdoo's attention was called to a formal announcement from Secretary Tumulty that the wedding will be toward the end of December and that it will be held in Mrs. Galt's house, and will be a strictly family affair, except for Col. and Mrs. E. M. Hoise, and Dr. Grayson, the president's physician.

The president's daughter laughed heartily and remarked that the wedding arrangements were something that "they" had to tell about themselves.

To the mystic pronoun "they" she gave a fascinating little pronunciation, as though she were pondering with gloe over it before she spoke it. Her whole demeanor was that of a college girl at her first fudge spread.

She looked like a college girl, too, in her short little black dress, filmed about the ankles—her trim shoes and the froth of white tulle at her neck. She wore a big white fox fur, which she flung about with reckless disregard for its tail.

"By the way, somehow it has got out that my sister Margaret is singing on a concert tour. That is not at all correct. Margaret never sings, unless it is for the benefit of something or others. She is deep in social settlement work, as you know, and she has often sung at benefits with something of the kind. She is a splendid worker in that field."

Dispatches from Washington indicate the President and Mrs. Galt will travel to the South, after their wedding, and the honeymoon may be spent at Pass Christian, Miss.

THE WAR

London, Nov. 3.—Premier Asquith made his long expected address on the war in the house of commons today, his survey, which was both retrospective and prospective, being as full as military exigencies seemed to permit. The notable interest in his statement was shown by the crowded house, all the diplomatic, peers' and visitors' galleries being filled to overflowing. The premier was given a warm ovation when he rose to speak, this being his first appearance in the house of commons since his recent illness.

Premier Asquith opened with an expression of regret at the mishap to King George and assured the house that the king was progressing as well as could be expected and that his injuries were not serious.

Detailing the objects of the attack on the Dardanelles, the premier remarked:

"The view was that it would influence the Balkan situation, would open the way for supplies for the Russians and strike a blow at the heart of the Turkish empire."

The premier then said that in the sea of Marmora, up to Oct. 26, British submarines had sunk or damaged two battleships, five gunboats, one torpedo boat, eight transports and 197 supply ships.

"The situation in the Dardanelles is receiving the most anxious consideration of the government, not as an isolated thing, but a part of the larger strategic question raised by reason of developments in the Balkans. There is a complete agreement between us and France, both as to the end and the means in the Balkans."

"Unlike the German government," he said, "we cannot barter away the property of our allies behind their backs. When the allies are reproached for not acting with sufficient speed as regards Serbia, it must be remembered that up to the last moment there was the strongest reason to believe that Greece would act up to her treaty obligations with Serbia. On Sept. 21, after the Bulgarian mobilization had begun, Premier Venizelos asked France and Great Britain for 150,000 men on the express understanding that the Greeks would mobilize also. Greece did mobilize on the 24th of September, but not until the 10th of October did Premier Venizelos find himself able to agree to the handling of British and French troops under formal protests."

"On the 4th of October M. Venizelos announced in the chamber that Greece must be bound by her treaty with Serbia. The next day the king repudiated the declaration of M. Venizelos, who resigned, but the new Greek government declared its desire to remain on friendly terms with the allies, at the same time declining to depart from its attitude of neutrality. The result was that Serbia, without Greek support, was left to bear a central attack and a side attack from Bulgaria."

"We in the United Kingdom, France and Russia, could not allow Serbia to become the prey of this sinister mysterious combination. The general staffs of France and Great Britain have been in the closest consultation, which culminated in the welcome visit of the illustrious commander-in-chief. The result, I am glad to say, is a complete agreement between us as to the end and the means, but I can disclose nothing more. Serbia can rest assured that her independence is regarded by us as one of the essential objects of the war."

Dealing with the financial aspects of the situation, Premier Asquith laid stress upon the importance of the rearmament.

Referring to Lord Derby's recruiting scheme, the premier promised to inform the country, as soon after Nov. 30 as was possible, to collect information, whether it was successful. The premier stated he had concluded that it was desirable to maintain the cabinet war committee concerned with the higher direction of the war, but to limit its membership.

Touching upon the question of supplies of men, munitions and money, the premier said that the financial position was serious. He quoted statistics of exports and imports and of expenditures upon the war.

Sir Edward Carson, who recently resigned from the office of attorney general in the cabinet, initiated a discussion on Mr. Asquith's statements. He said he would not have risen if the premier had given sufficient information to the public on matters upon which they showed anxiety and after fifteen months of war he thought it only right that there should be free debate in the house.

The present position, he declared, was one of grave peril. There was nothing to be gained by minimizing the danger and he could assure the premier that the desire for discussion was not in any way to minimize the main objects of the war. It was a symbol of the growing determination of the house and country that everything that could be done should be done to bring about the war's end.

FLIRTING BY JUROR IS O. K.

Judge Refuses to Set Aside Verdict Reached Under Such Circumstances.

Olympia, Wash.—The uncontradicted allegation that a man juror, while confined for consideration of a case, waved frequently to a pretty stenographer in a nearby office is not sufficient to justify the setting aside of the verdict reached under such circumstances, the supreme court has decided, rejecting an appeal for a new trial of the Lindquist damage suit against the Pacific Coast Coal company.

This case was tried by a mixed jury. Two women jurors, who did not agree to the verdict, signed affidavits charging members of the majority with various irregularities, including "signaling" to a woman in another office. All these charges were contradicted in counter affidavits except the signaling accusation.

FARMER FOOLS HOLD-UP MAN

Palms $80 When Ordered by North Dakota Highwayman to Hold Up Hands.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Jerry Fitzpatrick, a wealthy farmer of Euclid, Minn., palmed $80 successfully a few nights ago when accosted by a highwayman near this city.

"Hands up!" cried the thug. Out of Fitzpatrick's pockets his hands went straight over his head. The thug searched his victim and found less than one dollar. Fitzpatrick had feared trouble and had been walking with four $20 gold pieces in his right hand, and when his hands went up the money went up with them.

FIND FISH IN THE FIELDS

Marais des Cygnes Farmers Spear Channel Cats on Flooded Sands in Kansas.

Quenemo, Kan.—The wheatfields and other bottom lands near here which have been flooded by the Marais des Cygnes are being turned into fishing ponds by the farmers. Big yellow channel catfish weighing five and six pounds are being caught, many of the anglers spearing them with pitchforks.

Judging from the large number of fish being caught in the wheatfields, the catfish have a strong liking for the small kernels. Passengers going through on the trains crowd at the car windows to see the unusual sight of farmers fishing in their wheatfields.

Quite Natural.

It is a curious thing that the country which invented the "quick lunch" also prides itself on the scientific study of foods and their digestibility.—London Spectator.

a course would, in my judgment, be the policy of despair and an admission of failure, which could only be justified after every other alternative had been abandoned. Bulgaria will be given a free hand to crush our ally. All hope of inducing Roumania to come to Serbia's assistance will have been abandoned, and she may even find it to her interest to join our enemies, and every encouragement will be given Greece to follow the policy of the king rather than Venizelos and his majority in the chamber. The loss to our prestige will be incalculable and a very grave menace to our eastern empire."

BRITISH TO FREE AMERICAN GOODS

New York, Nov. 4.—W. W. Bride, formerly counsel to the state department, arrived today on the Holland-American liner Rotterdam from London, where he has been representing American shippers against the British blockade order.

Mr. Bride resigned his official position four months ago to protest against the British blockade order, and so avoid the tacit acknowledgment by the state department of the blockade order.

"Over $10,000,000 worth of goods will be released shortly by the British government, if the state department can affirm the orders," he said. "I had a great deal of difficulty to prove to British authorities the legality and justice of the claims, but I succeeded after three and a half months' work."

"The British demanded proof that goods had been contracted for prior to the blockade order, dated March 1, before they would release them. They demanded that American importers prove these contracts were in good faith and called for payment prior to shipment."

Daniel J. Waters, American vice-consul at Dresden, arrived on the Rotterdam for a vacation. He denied reports from London that he had been requested to leave a restaurant in Dresden because he was talking in English.

Dr. Seaman Bambridge, cancer expert, who has been making a survey of Red Cross work in Europe also arrived. He will go to Washington immediately to make his report. Dr. Bambridge said there were 35,000 Belgians' and 80,000 Belgian refugees in Holland.

A REVIEW OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

Public Utilities: Their Cost New and Depreciation, by Hammond Vinton Hayes. 1913.

"The valuation of public utility undertakings is a mixed question of fact, judgment and law. A comprehensive treatment of the subject requires the combined knowledge of the engineer, the economist and the lawyer. The object of the present work has been largely to bring to the minds of those whose duty it is to ascertain the figures representative of value, three distinct issues: First, that it is the duty of the appraiser not to ascertain the fair present value, that function belongs to the court or commission, but to ascertain with accuracy such figures as are necessary evidences of value and loss of value; second, that the original cost can be obtained without difficulty and is a figure of importance to those who must rule as to what the fair present value should be; and should be; and third, that depreciation is affected only indirectly by inefficiency and that, as a necessary consequence, depreciation is dependent wholly upon the relation of the age to the age to the life of the perishable property."—Preface.

This book is written entirely from the engineer's point of view, but even the engineer must have some judgment and knowledge of the law concerning the subject, so this book is fairly comprehensive. It is remarkably clear and concise, and is a most important contribution to the subject. It should be found useful by numerous Public Service Commissions, and will go far towards enlightening public opinion on the rights of private capital invested in public utilities. Every voter in Escanaba should find this book particularly interesting now that this problem is being discussed in connection with the expiration of the Water Company's franchise. Those interested will find the book on the shelves of the Public Library.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes.

In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has stood the test and been approved for more than forty years. Obtainable everywhere.

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals.—Mrs. Henry Padgugan, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere.

ASK GERMANY TO HUNT RUNAWAYS.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The German government has been asked to aid in capturing the German sailors who escaped from Norfolk two weeks ago and to return them to the United States in case they succeed in reaching that country.

The state department announced tonight that informal representations through Ambassador Gerard had been made. Formal representations will follow when the department of justice submits its report regarding the search. Officials expressed doubt of truth of reports that six Germans who escaped on the yacht Eclipse had been sunk with their ship by Australian cruiser Sydney, off the Bermudas.

The Misses Marie and Cecile Pepin of this city who have been visiting in Menominee for the past several days have returned to their home.

be a petition to recall him just as they did that mayor over in Munising. Take it from me that there is going to be something doing in Iron county politics next year all the time."

Among the county officers and among those who have their lightning rods burnished ready for erection, there is a feeling that this question of law enforcement is going to be a vexing one. We have yet to meet the man who welcomes it. Some of the candidates don't care but none of them enjoy the issue. From this condition of affairs it looks as if the "dry" side has yet to trot out its candidates for it seems they intend making everyone declare himself.

Another man in discussing this law enforcement proposition stated to us that much of the delinquency is from fear of the foreign element in Stambaugh township. He claims that there is a bad bunch of Italians over there and that Palaska or New Caspian is the hot bed of the "blind pig" work. Deputies, either fear personal violence from this lot or they fear their influence in the coming election and for that reason things are winked at that would otherwise be looked after. That there is considerable liquor being sold in the county, even the most prejudiced advocates of prohibition do not deny but that. It is anywhere as great as it is represented to be is seriously questioned.

MAN NEAR DEATH AFTER DEER FIGHT

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Nov. 3.—Felix Lagard, 70, may die as the result of a battle with a buck deer in Irvine park. Lagard, an animal tender, went into the park to cut a tree. When the buck attacked him he struck it with the ax, but was felled. He grasped the deer's antlers after he had been severely wounded, and fought nearly an hour.

Then two boys spied him, and called El Nelson and Anselme Paquette, who were passing in an auto. They scaled the twenty-foot fence and ran toward Lagard. The deer saw them, left Lagard and charged. Unarmed, the two could only grasp the anglers and struggle. For twenty minutes they fought until the men were nearly exhausted.

Then three more men came near the park and were called by the little boys. The three scaled the fence, and five men succeeded in throwing the deer. They were about to kill it, but Lagard protested, so rope was brought and the animal hoisted. The furious deer struggled in the ropes until it broke its neck and died.

Lagard, Nelson and Paquette had their clothes torn to shreds. Nelson was painfully cut and crushed. Paquette was not seriously injured. Lagard is said to be near death at the hospital. Supt. John Meyer of the park said he warned Lagard that the buck was dangerous.

Meat in Japan.

It is only within a recent period that meat has come to play a part in the Japanese diet. Fish, fowl and fowl were once strictly forbidden as articles of food by the tenets of Buddhism, but gradually one after another came to be allowed as eatables. Even now meat, although becoming more and more popular, is not used in large quantities at one meal. Chicken, game, beef, ham and pork may be found on sale in most large towns and cities. But beef is cut into mouthfuls and sold to Japanese by the ounce; chickens are carefully and minutely dissected and sold by parts—as the wing, leg or an ounce or two of the breast. It was a matter of great surprise to the natives of Mito that the foreigners living there bought a whole chicken or five or six pounds of beef at a time and consumed it in two or three meals.

Will See It Through.

"A good man," said Uncle Eben, "won't fight unless he has to. An' den if he's a sho' nuff good man he'll stick to de fightin' same as if 'twas a solemn duty."

ALLOW GUARDS TO ENTER U.S. ARMY

Washington, Nov. 3.—Secretary of War Garrison today said the financial and personal aid previously extended to the national guard of the various states by the federal government, will be practically doubled this year.

He also said that under the department's plan for the improvement of the military side of the national defense he will propose to congress that any organization of the national guard may enter the national force intact. Any individual also may be admitted ranks for rank and grade for grade.

Commenting officially upon the results of his conference with the executive committees of the national guard and last night, Secretary Garrison today said:

"This body, during all the time when there was practically no interest in this country concerning military matters has been working, insofar as constitutional and other limitations would permit them to work, to do whatever they could do to improve the military situation of this country. They are absolutely entitled, by virtue of this fact, to full and proper recognition in any military system or policy to be proposed by the war department. I informed them that I proposed to accord them this fall recognition.

"Any individual who prefers the intensive training and other features of the national force will likewise be admitted thereto, rank for rank and grade for grade.

"With respect to the National Guard in the states, the plan not only contemplates continuing the financial and personal aid on behalf of the national government, but largely increases the same, practically doubling it the next fiscal year."

USE CUBAN FIBER FOR SUGAR BAGS.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Experiment in Cuba, with the fibre of a plant known as "malva blanca" had that it produces an ideal fabric for sugar bags, according to information sent to Sugar, a trade publication. The fibre is said to be soft and silky to possess a tenile strength greater than that of hemp, to be capable of close weaving and to be not susceptible to shrinkage if wet. No special machines are required for handling the fibre, those adapted for spinning and weaving hop, jute or henequen being also for malva blanca.

How to Prevent Croup.

It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Elida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.

CAREFUL DRYING AFTER BATH

Matter That is of Much Importance, Especially When Baby's Welfare is in Question.

It is very necessary after bathing to see that the flesh is perfectly dry, otherwise the clothing will feel damp and uncomfortable and there is danger of chill.

A brisk rub with a towel is invigorating, but when the skin is sensitive, as in the case of a baby, the mother must be careful not to chafe by too rough a towel or too hard an application. A gentle patting with a Turkish towel will dry thoroughly, or with a damask towel, if the latter is of a good absorbent quality. Never attempt to dry with a new towel, which has never been previously laundered, as the glossy dressing on the unwashed material makes it more or less nonabsorbent.

Never apply powder until the skin is thoroughly dry, and then powder is usually unnecessary. A child powdered in the creases where some moisture still lurks after bathing is apt to chafe, because the powder will cake.

In cold weather always warm the undergarments before putting them on after the bath, and never put on clothing still hot from ironing. Garments should always be allowed to air for several hours, at least after they come up from the "wash lady's" hands, before they are put on by anyone.

FEWER WHITE WAISTS SEEN

Pale Tints More and More in Evidence as the Warm Weather Makes Its Presence Felt.

The vogue of the all-white waists is going out, for the new blouses are in pale tints, yellow predominating. White crepe de chine and the soft cotton crepe are first in favor as materials.

Another notable feature of these early blouses is the "outside" finish, most of the blouses being made so as to come down outside the skirt, sometimes forming a little buttoned vest, and sometimes merely ending in safflike loops or fastening snugly with a single buckle covered with the material.

They are all far more elaborate than in former seasons, but the frill, both single and double, has been set aside. Its death knell was sounded by the introduction of the winter suits buttoning close up to the throat, and now with summer the little waistcoat is so popular that the frill has been definitely set aside.

With it has gone the deep sailor collar, the new blouses all showing either a high flaring collar or a flat, narrow one of soft material, and in some instances the neck is finished simply with a band of the material, with frill or net inside to lend a soft finish close to the skin.

SATIN TOQUE

An undyed satin toque trimmed with rabbit-ear bows of black velvet. Sorelli of Paris considers this one of the smartest creations of the season.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Fine rep serge is a modish material. The small girl should wear jacket effects.

There are evening coats of white taffeta.

Scallops appear on colored linen dresses.

The dress of wash silk is cool and economical.

The all-white hat of cotton crepe is smart.

The hat with a touch of cretonne is distinctly quaint.

Tussor silk and tulle are one of the new combinations.

The loose unbelted smock makes a charming design for the small boy's suit.

Parisian Idea.

A Parisian idea is the bolero with its lower edges turned up and faced with striped silk. The bottom of the skirt is also faced with stripes.

DAILY LETTER

Were it not for the reaction in the war stocks today the coppers would have closed very much higher. As it was small gains were made all through the list. Calumet and Arizona was the feature selling up to 69 1/4. This issue is intrinsically worth very much higher than going prices on 18 cent metal. We also believe that New Cornelia stocks and bonds should be bought. Butte and Superior was very active today and easily regained its early loss. Mohawk sold up to 85 and Mass, Lake and East Butte were active. In the curbs New Baltic was the feature. While no announcements have been made the buying might indicate that something favorable has been closed in regards to a land deal that has been pending. The war stocks were quite heavy; Crucible broke down 8 points and Bethlehem Steel sold as low as 42 1/2. The railroads are in better demand and they were slightly higher with Reading a feature.

Boston Markets

Coppers sagged off a little around noon, in sympathy with New York coppers but regained strength just before the close. Sales of Lake copper reported just before the close at 18 1/2 cents, for several million pounds and demand at 18 1/2 cents strong.

Insanity. The statistics of insanity show that the minds of men and women are often made aberrant through the steady drive of environment, in which the simple life and the spurring city life are equally at fault. The figures show the per capita of insanity differs little in city and country. Rural solitude and the abnormal life of the city are alike responsible for mental diseases. It is as bad for man to be too much alone as it is for him to be surrounded by a perverted life. The history of the race, the inquiries of investigators and the judgment of specialists in the disease of mind and body tell us that the well tempered life, void of excesses, is the plane upon which men and women best ensure in mental and bodily health; a temperance of action in an environment in which the individual is neither submerged by human society nor detached from it.

Work for a Candid Coed. A professor in the economics department of the University of Missouri who was assigning subjects for papers to be written asked one of the girl students the other day what she was going to do after graduation. "I'm going to get married," replied the coed. "Very well, then you may write a paper on the high cost of living," said the professor.—Columbia Herald.

False Spinal Meningitis. Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes (meninges) covering the spinal cord. According to its distribution the name is modified; it is cerebral meningitis when affecting the brain and cerebro-spinal meningitis when the spinal cord is involved. It is a dreadful disease, but it is rare. Many worried parents and doubtful doctors have mistaken the indications for the genuine.—Dr. Wood Kent, in Modern Priscilla.

THE OAK'S MESSAGE

By DONALD ALLEN.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Miss Irene's Aunt Cynthia lived on and ran a farm. She was a hard worker and a strong-minded woman, and she had married almost without love, and certainly without romance. Her neighbors said she was hard-hearted and a driver, and seemed utterly without pity, but they were mistaken. She had loved her brother John, and when his only child drove up to the gate she took her in her arms and said: "You poor child, you, but you shall have a home with me for life, and I will be a kind mother to you!"

The lapse of time is the remedy for all our griefs. After three months had passed Miss Irene was like her old self again, and there was song and laughter in the house.

A quarter of a mile below Aunt Cynthia's farmhouse, and near the highway, was a giant oak tree. The farmers spoke of it as the old oak tree, and it was a landmark to be seen for miles and miles.

Miss Irene had sat and gazed at that towering tree for an hour at a time, but it had never occurred to her to make a closer acquaintance until one afternoon when she had a letter to indite to the letter of a girl chum. She would do her writing at the foot of the old oak tree.

As the girl drew nearer and nearer to the old oak the more it appealed to her, and when at last she reached it she stood with awe in her heart. More than a hundred years they said, and it had been buffeted by hundreds of gales.

"Chatter! Chatter! Chatter!" It was a gray squirrel up the trunk a few feet and looking at the girl, deifying her to come nearer.

"But I will!" she laughed, as she plunged into the bushes. The squirrel whisked around to the other side of the tree.

By this time she had reached the trunk and passed around it the squirrel had made his way to the highest limb. The girl found something else, however—something that perhaps not one in a thousand who passed it had knowledge of. At the height of her chin was a cup or hollow that would hold a quart of water. It was a wound that the tree had received in some way years before, and the bark had grown again on all sides to leave a hiding spot. The hand that was thrust in felt and drew out a small quantity of dead leaves, but it was too low down for safety, and no wild thing had pre-empted it for a nest.

"Why, it might be turned into a post office!" mused the girl. And instead of writing to her girl chum she wrote: "A maiden who lives near here is waiting for her Sir Knight to come and bear her away."

"There!" was half defiantly exclaimed as the note was deposited in the cup. As Miss Irene got up to wander through the woods a bit and go home, the squirrel descended a few feet and seemed to call out: "Silly! Silly! Silly!"

"Of course it is," said the girl in reply, "and I'll come back tomorrow and tear it up. There are no Sir Knights any more."

Next day Miss Irene went back to the old oak and took her note from the post office and read it with a sigh and a blush. Two or three times she started to tear it up, but held her hand and finally restored it to the cup.

And days and weeks and months passed away, and the girl did not return to the old oak tree. She tried to content herself with looking at it from a distance. It was a young girl romance, and she had a right to keep it locked in her breast.

One afternoon the gray squirrel was chattering away as he cut circles around the trunk of the old oak. There was nothing to make him afraid. There was no other gray squirrel in the woods to dispute his right to the tree, as had been decided by battle. "Chatter! chatter! chatter!"

A young man was passing in an auto. "Stop a minute," he said to his chauffeur. "By George! that's a fine old tree! And that's the first squirrel I've seen for years. I'd sure like his head for an ornament."

He had a pistol in his pocket, and he drew it and approached the tree. He was led around it as another had been.

"Hello! Here is the old fellow's nest! I wonder if any of the family is at home."

Very cautiously a hand was inserted. There might be teeth there awaiting it. No, there were only a few acorns and a bit of paper.

"A maiden who lives near here—" The young man walked back to the road and stood looking at Aunt Cynthia's house a long time. Finally he said to the chauffeur:

"We will go back to that house." And from between the morning glories climbing over the lattice of the veranda Miss Irene peered out and saw him and knew that her Sir Knight had found her appeal and had come to answer it.

Satisfaction in Work.

All thinking men and women get the main satisfactions of life, aside from the domestic joys, out of the productive work they do.—Charles W. Eliot.

RESTA BREAKS U.S. 100 MILE RECORD

Sleepershead Bay, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Dario Resta won the 100-mile race on the speedway here today. His time was 56:55.71. His average speed was 105.39 miles an hour which beats the American record.

Bob Burman finished second in 58:33.95 and Rickenbacker third in 61:00.59.

Six drivers, the original field, started in their cars in the race for the Harkness gold challenge trophy and a purse, at the Sleepershead Bay speedway. The start was made at 3 p. m.

Aitken led the first ten miles of the race and then was forced to stop because of a broken connecting rod. Mulford led at the end of the twenty-five miles, which he covered in 14.07, averaging 106 3-10 miles an hour.

Resta led when the fifty mile mark was turned. His time was 28:24.55 and his speed average was 105.57 miles an hour. Mulford was then second and Burman third.

De Palma retired from the race because of a broken connecting rod on the twentieth lap.

QUEEN OF BULGARIA

The most recent photograph of Eleanore, queen of Bulgaria, which was made on the porch outside the royal palace at Sophia, shows her wearing the simple native costume of her subjects. The queen before her marriage to the Bulgarian king was the Princess Eleanore of Reutz-Kostritz, a favorite at the Russian court. She is distinguished for her work in the Red Cross field, having been head of one of the largest Red Cross hospitals during the Russian-Japanese war. She may be called upon soon, should her country be drawn into the present war, to again do the effective Red Cross work for which she is noted.

TEUTON NEWSPAPER WAGES CAMPAIGN

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 3.—A systematic campaign of opposition to the censor is being waged by the newspapers of Austria and Hungary. A memorandum to the Prime Minister, signed by publishers and editors, points out that the newspapers existed during the first year of the war under a milder censorship and succeeded in serving the country worthily and patriotically. "Is it not then unjust," they ask, "that an increasing number of restrictions should be applied daily? The newspapers are tired of being allowed to speak only of city authorities and fraudulent army contractors, and seek the restoration of the small freedom which they enjoyed in pre-war times."

Since the war, it is stated, thirty-seven Hungarian newspapers published by Czechs, Slovaks, Slavs and Rumanians have been suppressed.

DINEING CARS IN MEXICO EXPENSIVE

San Francisco—Sliced peaches in syrup at $100 per plate and corned beef hash at $120 are two of the startling and yet laughable charges contained on the menu card for the Pullman buffet sleeper now being run in the Mexican trains from Juarez south to Chihuahua through the region now devastated by Gen. Villa.

A copy of the menu and its prices has been received as an odd souvenir by the local Pullman officials. By way of explanation it contains the following:

Copy of menu in buffet sleeper operated on Constitutionals Railroad (formerly Mexican Central, between Juarez and Chihuahua, Mexico.)

Gold and silver is rarely seen in this region or anywhere else in the republic just now. But there are occasions so to speak, of scrip or paper money. Villa has had presses working overtime.

Today it is worth about one-quarter cent in gold on the peso.

That explains why prices for simple dishes and things in a Pullman buffet have soared upward as by an aeroplane.

"I have to have enough of Villa's scrip to choke a cow if I want a cigar or a plate of soup," writes the sender of the menu card to his friends here. If you want to feed well, you must have a valise to carry your paper money in. The lunch I had yesterday coming north from Chihuahua cost me, including two cigars a bottle of Belfort ginger ale and a small black, $440."

The menu in Mexican currency issued by Villa contains the following dishes and refreshments with the prices:

- Chicken soup, $1.00.
- Puree of tomato, $1.00.
- Corned beef hash, $1.00.
- Cold boiled ham, $1.00.
- Pickles, $40.
- Baked pork and beans, $1.00.
- Boiled eggs, $1.00.
- Green Peas, $50.
- Asparagus tips, hot or cold, $140.
- Sandwiches, $60.
- Bread and butter, $10.
- Brown bread, $60.
- Sliced peaches in syrup, $100.
- Preserved figs, $100.
- Coffee, $40.
- Ten, $60.
- Rye, whiskey, individual, $80.

SHIP WRECKED ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Marshall, Ore., Nov. 3.—The North Pacific Steamship company's passenger steamer Santa Clara, plying between Portland and San Francisco, was wrecked on the south jetty of Coos Bay, 17 miles north of Astoria, Ore., and at 8 o'clock tonight it was known that at least fifteen of the forty-eight passengers and crew of twenty-four have been lost. Several women and children were aboard, but their fate early tonight was unknown. Among the dead is Captain Gus Lotsted of the Santa Clara. The vessel went on the jetty late today. She struck in heavy weather in a dangerous position and soon afterward the lifeboats were lowered. Half an hour later the vessel was reported to be a total wreck. Aid was rushed from Marshfield and other points, but rescue work was difficult despite moderating winds. The passengers included a number of Oregon and Washington people and several from California.

The Santa Clara left Portland Monday morning. She is a wooden vessel 223 feet long and was built in 1900. She operated between Portland and San Francisco via Coos bay and Eureka, Calif. Miss Alice Church of Marshfield, who was among the rescued reached here tonight. "I was put into the first lifeboat with about twenty others," she said, "but we had not gone far before the boat was swamped. I did not see any of the others after that." Miss Church was picked up on the beach.

Maud Halron of this city left yesterday for a two weeks' trip to Marlton, Green Bay and Manitowoc. Nicholas May of the Wales Adding Machine Co. was in the city yesterday. Mr. May states that the Wales company will move their offices from Menominee to Green Bay, Wis.

FIRE HORRORS STIR WINSHIP

The fatal fires in the schooner at Peabody, Mass., and the box factory at Pittsburg in which many lost their lives, have led to the issuance of a warning and orders for more thorough inspection in Michigan.

State Fire Marshal John T. Winship and his chief deputy, Samuel W. Robinson, issued to inspectors and fire chiefs a letter calling attention to what might happen in this state. The letter follows:
"Dear Sir: I am writing you at this time to call your attention to the fact that the recent disasters—the one at Pittsburg where 12 young women lost their lives, and the one at Peabody where over a score of small children were burned to death—can and may happen at any time in Michigan and that no small responsibility will rest upon the shoulders of this department and the local authorities should such accidents occur in buildings not properly safeguarded or equipped with the necessary exits and fire escapes.

Warning Against Wooden Stairways.
"Every building of wooden construction, or of insular wooden construction with wooden stairways, must be considered more or less a fire-trap, and I wish to urge you to take every precaution to prevent like disasters in the towns and cities in your territory. In this state there are still many buildings, schools, theatres, halls, hotels and public places where women and children congregate, or are employed, not properly safeguarded for the protection of life. It is surely much better to be on the safe side and under no circumstances can we afford to take chances where human lives may be sacrificed.

"We frequently receive complaints from owners who have been given orders to install exits or fire escapes, stating that such exits or fire escapes are unnecessary and that they cannot afford the expense. I have before me a letter from the superintendent of schools of one of our northern cities objecting to placing fire escapes upon the school house because they will mar the beauty of the building. The value of human lives should always be considered above any argument from a dollar and cents standpoint and I have no patience with an official who considers the beauty of a school building of more importance than the safety of hundreds of small children. The fathers and mothers at Peabody whose children were taken from the school burned beyond recognition, even if the entire beauty of the building had been destroyed, would have thanked God for fire escapes at every window.

"Investigations Bootless."
"Following every like disaster extended investigations are made by state and local officials, but it is seldom that the blame is placed or results obtained. The only course is to prevent the disaster, and with that end in view insist that all buildings used for public purposes be provided with proper exits and fire escapes, all wiring and heating plants be made absolutely safe and all rubbish and inflammable material be removed forthwith from the premises.
(Signed) "JOHN T. WINSHIP,
"State Fire Marshal."

LANG-LAHAIE

In the presence of a number of friends and relatives Miss Clara Lang, daughter of Mrs. Anna Lang, yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock became the bride of Mr. Emil Lahaie. Rev. Father Julius officiated at the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Ella Laviolette, while Mr. Albert Lahaie, brother of the groom, officiated as groomsmen. Following the ceremony members of the wedding party went to the home of the bride's mother where a wedding breakfast was served and at noon a large group of guests were entertained at an elaborate banquet. Mr. and Mrs. Lahaie left last night for a wedding trip to Chicago and Gary, Ind., and will return to Escanaba at the end of a week or ten days to make this city their permanent home.

The bride had gained considerable notice in the local business world, being an officer of the Daley-Kraus Insurance agency and having a particularly wide acquaintance with a host of friends. The groom is employed as a passenger brakeman for the North Western road and like his bride, numbers his friends by the score.

SEC. LANSING MEETS BLANSTORFF

Washington, Nov. 3.—Ambassador von Bernstorff and Secretary Lansing had their first conversation today since the settlement of the Arabic case and took up the Lusitania matter. The informal conversations worked so well in the Arabic case; that it is to be followed in others. Today's conversation was only an approach to the various issues.

The points at issue between the nations are:

President Wilson's demand for a disavowal of the sinking of the Lusitania and indemnity for the loss of 115 American lives.

Indemnity for the loss of one American life in the sinking of the Paluba.

Indemnity for the loss of two American lives in the sinking of the Arabic.

Indemnity for the loss of three American lives resulting from the attack on the Gulfight.

Explanation of the aerial bomb attack on the American steamer Cashin.

There is little probability of an immediate settlement. The ambassador sees no need for haste, inasmuch as serious trouble between the United States and Germany has been averted.
