Anyway, there'll be no recount of the wet and dry vote in Michigan.

If Hughes hadn't snubbed Hiram Johnson and if— But what's the use of "ifing."

The only apparent fly in Wilson's soup is that Hughes has not yet framed that congratulatory telegram.

Apparently in the interval of our national election the Russian Roumanians on the east front, have been using a Democratic steam roller.

THE CABINET.

The composition of the next cabinet already is a matter of speculation. Baker has denied reports that he intended to resign.

The belief in well informed circles here is that Mr. Wilson will retain the various Secretaries, unless, of course, certain individual members wish to retire for private reasons.

The upshot of the matter seems to be that nobody so far has paid much attention to it or knows very much about it, but that the extreme probability is that the President will keep his cabinet about as it is unless he or the members desire to make changes.

Now Lookout.

When a cold hangs on as often happens, or when you have hardly gotten over one cold before you contract another, lookout for you are liable to contract some very serious disease.

Andrew Hydra arrived in the city on the steamer Hydus. Mark Allen left last evening for Green Bay, where he will spend a week visiting relatives.

STR. CASTALIA SUNK WITH 22

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 11.—A vivid story of a wreck off Manitou Island shortly after midnight of the steamer Castalia was brought to Calumet today by a man giving the name of Ed Landry and his address as Hancock. Attempts to verify his story have been futile up to press time, but Landry insists that he is the only one of a crew of twenty-three to escape.

Landry's story was told in the Fecteau roadhouse at Phoenix about 11 o'clock this morning. He then telephoned Captain Tucker of the Eagle coast guard station, stating that the steamer went down between six and ten miles off Manitou, while bound from Duluth to Ashtabula, Ohio, with iron ore. He stated that the efforts of the guard would be of no avail as the steamer immediately sank.

Meanwhile, Landry was communicated with on a long distance telephone and he repeated the statement substantially as he told it to Captain Tucker. He said he was in the pilot house of the steamer and the lookout was on deck, while all other hands were below. The steamer buckley, he said, and he hastily grasped a life raft.

A stiff northeast wind was blowing and snow was falling so heavily that he could see nothing but a black spot, evidently the swirl as the ship settled. He said he was picked up by Lamerand Brothers, fishermen, at Bete Gris, between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning and taken to Lac La Belle, walking from there to Phoenix.

Landry says he shipped on the Castalia about a month ago from the Portage Fuel & Docks company's storage at Ripley but he could not give any other than the first names of members of the crew. He even did not know the name of the captain.

At any rate, he walked into the Fecteau house, wearing light tennis slippers and clad in a slight suit. Fecteau gave him an overcoat and he immediately proceeded to Calumet.

According to Fecteau, Lamerand Brothers gave Landry a complete change of clothing and a traveling bag in which he carried his own clothing. Landry was seen at the Albion station this afternoon by a newspaper reporter who vainly attempted to obtain more explicit information of the "wreck." Landry simply insisted that his story was true, but he would make no further statement. He appeared to be suffering from exposure and tears dimmed his eyes as he pleaded that he wanted to get home to his wife in Hancock. When last seen, he was walking toward Larium through the Caledonia field.

Associated Press advises this afternoon stated that the steamer Castalia has arrived at Toledo with a cargo of ore. The marine directory lists two steamers Castalia, one of Pittsburgh.

According to Landry the steamer Castalia, of which he claims he is the only survivor of a crew of twenty-three, was owned by the Brown Steamship company of Fairport, Ohio.

TO MUSTER OUT NAVAL RESERVE

Hancock, Mich., Nov. 11.—Frank Ongie, secretary to Paymaster Baer of the Hancock Naval Reserve, will leave tonight for Marquette, where he will take charge of the equipment of the Marquette division, which will be mustered out of the service tomorrow evening. Whether this equipment will be returned to Hancock or will be sent to the state headquarters has not been determined.

With the Marquette division disbanded, the future of the Second Battalion of the state's naval militia again comes into question. Whether the Hancock division, which recently voted to continue its existence, will be content to do as the only unit of the Second Battalion, and with Lieut. Heckler out of the service, is a question for the future to determine. However, it is likely the division will remain intact at least until spring.

"MULTIPLE KICK" IS LATEST IN FOOTBALL

New York, Nov. 10.—Every football season brings some new play or series of plays to the fore and although the present one is scarcely half completed, several novel gridiron wrinkles have already made their appearance. The innovation to attract the greatest amount of attention, in the east at least, is what is known as the "multiple kick," perfected by Foster Sanford, coach of the Rutgers college eleven. Strange to say it is not a series of kicks, as its appellation would appear to indicate, but a single place kick in which several players assist in the holding of the ball while another supplies the propelling power.

It is a development of the old try for a field goal from placement, which the quarter back after receiving the ball from the center dropped to one knee and held the spheroid while the full back or some other player tried to convert the drive into a field goal. Under the new method, two players stretch themselves at full length upon the ground heads opposite each other at right angles to the direction of the kick, at a point about five yards back of the scrimmage line. Directly behind them stands the quarterback, while behind him is located the player who is to make the kick.

When the center passes the ball it is received by the quarter, who stoops and places it in an upright position upon the ground while the players, already prone, reach out and hold it steady with one or both hands. Having accomplished his part in the play, the quarter jumps quickly to one side and the actual kicker steps or runs forward and drives the ball into the opponent's territory for a field goal or a punt.

The particular advantage of the "multiple kick" over the ordinarily attempted punt, or drop-kick, lies in the fact the ball is held securely until the full momentum of the drive has been communicated to the inflated piskin. Owing to the spheroid shape of

BALL PLAYING NOT ONLY TRADE

Milwaukee, Nov. 11.—Members of the Milwaukee American association baseball club for the most part occupy themselves during the winter months with positions of a responsible nature. Some of them are engaged in prosperous lines of business.

As a construction engineer John Beall is practicing his profession in Pittsburgh; Clarence Kraft is employed in Flint, Mich., automobile plant; Elmer Benson assists his father, a lumber dealer at Marion, Ohio; Jack Martin is finishing his apprenticeship at the machinists trade in Plainfield, N. J. Tony Faeth plays professional billiards in St. Paul; Cyril Slapnicka is engaged in the hardware business at Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Harry Moran is an insurance agent at Wynbal, W. Va.; Eddie Stumpy is employed in a local factory; Ronaldo Williams is proprietor of a movie theater at Santa Cruz, Calif.; George Stutz, managers a billiard hall in Philadelphia.

The call of the wild appears strongly to Danny Shay, who assumes the management of the club in 1917. Shay, known as a crack wing shot, spends weeks at a time in the woods with his dog, a gun, some flour tea and coffee and subsists entirely on game. Shay is spending the present winter in Tennessee.

Austin McHenry, also a nimrod, is hunting near Niles, Ohio, his home; Leslie Critchlow is wintering with his folks in Vicksburg, Miss.; William Sherdell is at home in Manover, Penn. and George Block is located at Paducah, Ky.

SOLDIERS MAKE GOOD ATHLETES

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Military service on the Mexican border has been the biggest boost Chicago's indoor sport has received in years. Athletic talent galore was uncovered by the Chicago militiamen during their leisure hours in Texas military camps.

After four months of border service, the Second Illinois Infantry is planning the creation of one of the strongest athletic organizations in the west. Athletes of every nationality are represented in the regiment. The list includes soccer players, who learned the game in half a dozen countries on the other side of the Atlantic; distance runners, boxers, baseball players, hurdlers, discus throwers and a heavy squad of football players.

"Our regiment has one of the largest and best equipped gymnasiums in the state," said Lieut. D. L. Loughborough, who has been appointed athletic director of the regiment. "There are two or three hundred men in the regiment who will develop into high class athletic material."

Plans already are under way to take the regimental track team to New York and other eastern cities for meets with other military organizations which served on the border. Return meets will be held in Chicago.

Lieutenants Loughborough and Nelson, both of whom played football on western university eleven, are coaching the gridiron and soccer teams.

SULLIVAN TO INTRODUCE GAME

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—Ted Sullivan, who arranged for the world tour of the Chicago and New York clubs, is in Washington to obtain passports from the state department permitting his traveling in South America to spread the gospel of America's great national pastime. He will leave New York Nov. 25, not to return until Feb. 1.

"I have been invited to visit the largest states in South America," said Sullivan on Thursday, "to make preliminary arrangements for a tour by two major league clubs next fall, immediately following the world's series. I hope to marry the two continents through our great national game—baseball."

"My first stop will be at Rio Janeiro but I shall visit all the larger cities, spending some time in Buenos Aires. On my way back I shall look in at Panama, where baseball is already flourishing."

MINERS JUBILANT OVER AGREEMENT

Workers in Welsh Coal Fields Congratulate Themselves on Victory.

RECOGNITION OF THE UNION

War Has Forced Employers to Accede to Just Demands of the Men—Attitude of British Labor After the Great Conflict—Cotton Statistics.

To prevent restriction of output in the Welsh coal fields by strikes over the employment of nonunion men during the war, an agreement has been made between the miners and the mine owners, which, both sides admit, would have obviated hundreds of strikes if it had existed during the last 30 years. It provides that miners and others employed at the collieries shall be required to become members of the trade unions. From the industrial point of view the decision is regarded as one of the greatest importance. The miners have been contending for this recognition for many years and are especially elated over the fact that the mine owners have stipulated that they have given their consent without prejudice to their action after the war. In the event of difficulties arising which cannot be amicably settled the difficulty is to be reported to the chief industrial commissioner for final decision.

Discussing the extension of manufacturing capacity in Great Britain, as a result of the war, and the problem it will represent after peace is declared, in a report to the department of commerce, Commercial Attache A. H. Baldwin, London, says in part: "The great unknown factor in Great Britain after the war is the attitude of labor. Will it be content to accept a reduction of wages and the retention of thousands of woman employees in the shops? Will it also listen favorably to appeals for greater efficiency and materially increased output? The millions of workmen who will return from the war with a broadened outlook on life and with a greatly increased initiative will also be factors in the problem that may modify the industrial conditions here (in England) materially."

American cotton mills and manufacturers consumed 20 per cent more raw cotton in May this year than in May, 1915, and 28 per cent more than two years ago, the census bureau announced today. Total consumption was 646,057 bales, including 73,190 bales of linters. In ten months American mills and manufacturers have used 6,115,014 bales, including 779,441 bales of linters, the total being 25 per cent more than in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

The federal senate has passed a bill authorizing the president to make rules and regulations for sanitation along the government-owned Alaska railroad similar to those enforced in the Panama Canal Zone. The orders are not to apply to incorporated towns, but will apply to the 15,000 workers who, it is expected, will be employed in the near future.

Vessels sailing from Cristobal were delayed because of the refusal of dock laborers to work. Men are excited over reports of high wages paid to stevedores in Liverpool and are making every effort to get there. Many stowaways have been detected.

After a debate of twelve hours the Norwegian Socialists decided to end the general strike declared as a protest against the bill for compulsory arbitration in labor disputes. The bill has been passed by parliament. The strikers resumed work.

Prisco Ladies' Garment Workers' union, with a membership of more than five hundred, is about to inaugurate a movement to secure the closed shop in the industry in San Francisco and vicinity.

Post office authorities at Nottingham, England, have accepted the offer of a number of woman teachers, who will receive the ordinary pay to make the Sunday morning delivery of letters.

Raising a building in East Eighteenth street, near Prospect avenue, marked the start of work on Cleveland's new $100,000 labor temple, ground-breaking ceremonies for which will be held in about four weeks.

Owing to the refusal of the members of the Liverpool (Eng.) Dockers' union to work with women, all the female helpers recently employed by the Liverpool dock commission have been withdrawn.

Galveston (Tex.) Brewery Workers' union has signed a three-year agreement with the Galveston Brewing company. Wages are increased from 20 to 30 per cent.

When Princess Arthur of Connaught recently opened the British Women Workers' exhibition at Prince's skating club her guard of honor was the Women's Territorial corps and woman police.

Germany had a total of 167 strikes and lockouts in the 17 months of the war up to the end of last year. The number of workmen involved was 14,900.

Embroiderers and tulle makers unemployed at Calais, France, who turned 50 to 60 francs a week before the war are now getting from 30 to 50 francs.

Sufferer From Indigestion Relieved

NEW LAW HITS BRITISH SHOPS

London, Nov. 11.—The latest drastic act for government control of business in the interest of war efficiency is the law passed by parliament for early closing of shops. All shop keepers, great and small, must shut their places of business at eight o'clock, except on Saturday night when they may keep open until nine. The first proposal was for even earlier closing, but the bill was amended to grant an extra hour for five days of the week, by changing seven to eight.

The chief object aimed at is economy of heating and lighting, which of course means economy of coal. One of the great assets of Great Britain during the war is its revenues from the exportation of coal, and moreover its allies need all they can get. Like every other war measure, however, this act excites opposition and creates complications, although the people as a whole will accept it cheerfully as they have other inconveniences.

The small shop-keepers who live at their place of business are the ones who find most objection. One ground of criticism is that the public houses are still to be opened until half past nine. "Why should men and women be allowed to gather in drinking places and buy beer, if they cannot loaf in a cigar store and buy cigars, and gossip with the clerk?" is one of the questions asked. Places where meals are served may remain open, but only for the purpose of giving meals. They cannot sell cigars, nor can they sell candy or food to be taken off the premises, since the shopkeepers dealing in the same commodities are forbidden to sell. Nor can the night hawk who has carts in the streets for dispensing coffee and lunches to late workers, according to some constructions of the law, sell cakes to be taken away.

MIND BLANK, MAN DRAWS CHECK; WIFE FINDS HIM

Pittsburgh, Kas., Nov. 8.—A check written by her wandering husband, whose mind had become a blank, enabled Mrs. G. W. Watson of Collinsville, Ill., to find Watson here. Five months ago Watson, an electrician was injured in St. Louis. With his wife he went to Collinsville to recuperate. Then he disappeared.

A few weeks ago he came here and obtained work with a telephone company. He remembered his name, but could remember nothing else. He still carried his check book and to pay his boarding house bill before he drew his salary, he gave the landlady a check. The bank held the check for collection and as soon as it reached Collinsville Mrs. Watson was notified.

She came here and found her husband, but he had lost all recollection of her. He finally was convinced of her identity.

DEMOCRATS TO DEMAND NEW HAMPSHIRE RECOUNT

Concord, N. H., Nov. 9.—A recount of the vote for presidential electors in New Hampshire will be demanded by the democratic committee according to information received Wednesday night. The national committee is said to have guaranteed expenses of the recount aside from those which regularly would fall on the state. As far as known no charge of fraud has been made.

Complete returns announced by Secretary of State Bean Wednesday night gives Hughes a plurality of 161, the smallest plurality ever returned in a political contest in the state. It was understood the figures are based on official returns.

Newspaper figures, with two small towns in the White mountains missing, give Hughes a lead of 523.

TOWNS NOW HUGE SUPPLY STATIONS

French Front, Nov. 11.—In all the villages, numbering between thirty and forty, captured during the entente offensive on the Somme, supply columns mingle in what looks like confusion, but this is more apparent than real, for everything works with the utmost precision and order.

So soon as a position has been taken the supply depots move up and arrangements for feeding the men composing the front, second and third lines are made with extraordinary rapidity. In the combat lines themselves the movements of the troops are naturally hidden from view. Every man is called upon to dig himself in and in a very few hours even on a field of battle such as that extending north and south of the Somme over a length of forty miles and a depth of perhaps ten scarcely scarcely a human being can be seen.

Behind the lines distributed over a area probably fifty miles square are parks of vehicles and provision and ammunition depots. These are all connected by dozens of lines of light narrow-gauge railroads laid with unbelievable rapidity and intersecting the fields in every direction. Horses are tethered in thousands waiting to be attached at any moment to vehicles of every sort used to despatch supplies to any part of the line. Along the roads most of which have been especially cut even while the shell fire was still heavy in order to relieve the main national routes usually reserved for the heavy motor-lorries and staff motor cars, convoys of carts ranging from the small donkey cart to the large supply wagon with a team of four horses continually move to, or from the fighting line. Junior officers, many of whom in private life occupy high positions in business, seem to have adapted themselves swiftly to the new life so different from their regular occupation. At every intersection one of them is posted to direct the traffic and they do so with all the efficiency of the members of a city police squad. Never during his sojourn with the French armies has the correspondent observed any serious congestion.

Occasionally a German long-range gun will tear great holes in the roads in the endeavor to prevent reinforcement's coming up or the approach of ammunition columns. At once large squads of men supposed to be enjoying a rest from the rigors of the front line are put to work to fill gaps with fresh macadam and huge steam rollers appear from everywhere to level the surface. Then other men come on with tar rails and brushes and coat the surface to prevent the rising of dust as muc has possible.

The houses of the recaptured villages, which are still standing, are largely in ruin but most of them are repaired and utilized as stables for horses. Some of the cellars have not suffered from bombardment and frequently squads of men are billeted there. As a rule, however, the men in the rear of the fighting lines are compelled to build or excavate their own habitations. Generally they prefer to dig them out of the slopes of the hills and often they are so ingeniously constructed that only on near approach can they be seen. Tens of thousands thus live in caves, where they sleep on bundles of straw spread on the ground. During the two years of war they have learned to make themselves very comfortable under these conditions so different from those of their ordinary lives. AM the men look in splendid condition, and the army doctors report a very small percentage of sickness among them.

Anyone who has lived with the French in times of peace at once remarks that the soldiers seem to have increased both in stature and strength during the war. The men of the nation appear to thrive since they have returned almost to primitive condition and been deprived of the comforts to which they have become accustomed.

Nowhere is the sky so blue, the grass so green, the sunshine so bright, the shade so welcome, as right here, now, today. No other blue sky nor bright sunshine, nor welcome shade exists for you. Other skies are bright to others. They have been bright in the past and so they will be bright again, but yours are here and now.—David Starr Jordan.

ECONOMICAL MEAT DISHES.

There are many cooks who do not appreciate the value of calf's hearts. Two hearts carefully washed and all the waste removed, can be cooked in boiling water to cover, adding such seasoning as is enjoyed, then slice and serve hot or cold. Calf's liver larded with salt pork or bacon and baked is another delicious dish, easy to prepare and leaving no waste.

Braised Liver.—Make a dressing of one-half a cupful of finely chopped suet, one cupful of bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of sweet herbs, a little grated lemon rind, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and set aside while preparing the meat. Cut calf's liver in slices, not too thin, and roll each in flour, salt and pepper. Lay thin slices of salt pork in the bottom of a baking dish and put the liver on top of them with dressing. Add water or stock to moisten and cover the dish closely. Cook in the oven an hour. Serve in the dish in which it was cooked.

Beefsteak Pie.—Cut left over broiled steak in one-inch pieces. Cover with stock made from beef extract, using a half a teaspoonful to a cupful of boiling water. Add one small onion sliced, and cook slowly until the beef is tender. Remove the onion and make a sauce of the strained liquid, seasoning with salt and pepper; add a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Add two cupfuls of potatoes, cut in half-inch cubes, previously parboiled for five minutes in salted water. Turn this mixture into a deep earthen dish and cover with rich biscuit dough, either in the form of biscuit or a cover, with an opening to allow the steam to escape. Mashed potato brushed with egg may also be used, which will take less time for the baking.

Chopped lamb seasoned with chopped green pepper and made into croquettes is a dish that is well liked. Serve with a sauce and chopped pepper as a garnish.

Are you in earnest? Seize this very minute
What you can do, or think you can, begin it. —Goethe.

VALUABLE HINTS.

Have you gone through your home this spring putting away many pieces of bric-a-brac too choice with association to give away, perfectly useless, incongruous things taking up space and causing needless handling to keep in order. If not, do so, for the sake of the comfort of your family. If the things have real value shut them away for a time at least and they will be all the more appreciated when brought out again.

Emerson says, "a lady is serene," doctors tell us that hurry like worry is death to good looks and an enemy to health as well. The people who accomplish the most in the world are serenely-accomplish it. Did you ever time yourself on a certain piece of work; for example the making and frying of a rule of doughnuts? If so you will know the time needed and will know what to plan for. Of course, there are always the unexpected interruptions which we cannot plan on, but it is wise to know the length of time it takes to do certain pieces of work. If mistresses had a better understanding of these things there would be more peace and harmony in the household. A maid who had two weeks' washing under way should not be asked to prepare a dinner for invited guests. It is such inconsiderate women who are helping to keep the servant problem still unsolved, and are always looking for a servant. If one is possessed with the precious power of concentration, use an alarm clock and set it at the time that the dinner is to be started or the bread put into or taken out of the oven. It takes but an instant to provide this security and it so relieves the mind that the whole attention may be put upon what ever work is at hand.

When we learn to keep our sense of proportion, and know that, however desirable it may be to have the washing out early, a sweet temper, a calm and quiet mind are much more to be desired and vastly more appreciated by the home folks.

ELECTORAL VOTE MAY BE SPLIT

"What is an electoral vote?" "How many popular votes does it represent?" "These and other questions have been pouring in on The Press yesterday and today as a result of the close race for the presidency and the fact that the total number of electoral votes in the doubtful states is a big factor. The question also is asked, "how is it that the electoral vote in some states can be split, while in others it is voted solid?"

In some cases the answers to these questions are easy to give and others involve a more complicated and detailed explanation. Generally speaking, the president is not elected by popular vote, but by an electoral college, in which each state is entitled to as many votes as it has congressmen and U. S. Senators. The voters do not actually vote for the candidate for president, but for electors selected by his party, and who will vote for him when the electoral college meets.

With a very few exceptions, the state is taken as a unit in determining to keep the electoral vote, and as the personal popularity of the individual electors does not enter into consideration, all of the electors of one party almost invariably are elected. The possibility of a mixed delegation of electors being chosen is extremely rare even though the vote be exceptionally close.

In some few states, among them Maryland and Washington, the electoral vote unit is a small district, similar to a congressional district, rather than the entire state and as political sentiment fluctuates so the possibility exists that the electoral vote will be split among different parties. Even among the states which formerly used this system, however, the tendency in recent years has been to abandon it in favor of the state as a unit.

Deer Hunters to Be Humorous

The opening of the deer season, and the arrival of a generous layer of snow which has been eagerly awaited by hunters to aid them in tracking and hunting deer, brought a new rush for deer licenses. The demand has been steady all week, but there was a slight falling off from last year's figures, due to the fact that many hunters preferred to wait until the first snowfall before applying.

Plenty of deer are in sight, both in the upper and lower peninsula, and according to the state game department the hunters will be more numerous this year than last.

During the 1916 season licenses to kill deer were sold to about 18,000 people, including a few women. So far from reports, that number will be exceeded by several thousands. It is predicted that the total number of licenses will reach 25,000, which will be bringing the usual number of hunters back to where it was before the advent of the one-deer law, the handiwork of the 1915 legislature, and which was in effect for the first time last year.

Reports from the game warden in the various sections of the state where deer are found, are that they are more numerous this year than ever before. The one-deer law is given a great share of the credit for bringing this about.

The arrangements by the game commissioner's department for the enforcement of the game laws are in keeping with previous years. Nearly all of the warden in the lower part of the state, where deer never appear, have been ordered north to sections where they are plentiful.

Among the reports received are rumors of two white, or albino deer and one black one, which are roaming the cutover lands of Cloverland. The white deer are in Chippewa and Ontonagon counties, while the black buck is in Luce county.

JUDGE STILES PRIZES LETTER

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 11.—Although Judge John Stiles, re-elected for another term as probate Judge of Menominee county, has received many congratulatory messages during the last few days, the one he prizes most is from his opponent, Charles D. Symonds.

The letter from Mr. Symonds reads as follows:
Hon. John Stiles,
Menominee, Mich.
My dear Judge:
I take my hat off to you. No sore spots with me. Am able to sit up and take nourishment and hope in time to be completely cured of politics.
By the look of your majority you might as well have made no campaign. So here's good luck and congratulations.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. D. SYMONDS.

Judge Stiles is greatly pleased for the attitude taken by his opponent. "It shows he is a gentleman and a good loser," said the judge this morning.

GERMANY TO JOIN WORLD PEACE PLANS

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg announced on Thursday that after the ending of the war Germany would co-operate in an endeavor to find a practical means for procuring a lasting peace by means of an international league.

The chancellor made on Thursday before the reichstag main committee a most important speech about the questions of international union for peace and connected with it the problem as to the origin of the present war.

"The action which made the war un avoidable," he said, "was the Russian mobilization, ordered on the night of July 30-31, 1914.

"The chancellor recalled the fact that on Thursday, July 30, 1914, the Lokal Anzeiger early in the afternoon issued a special edition with the untrue report that the German emperor had ordered mobilization.

The chancellor added that every one in the reichstag committee knew that the sale of this special edition was prohibited immediately by the police and the secretary of foreign affairs informed the Russian ambassador by telephone that this news was untrue.

"Gentlemen, we do not fear any tribunal. I can state further that this new version by Lord Grey. To the Russian government itself, which ought to be the best informed about the cause of mobilization, it never occurred that it could refer to a special edition of the Lokal Anzeiger as an explanation of its fateful step.

Referring to the question of an international league for the preservation of peace, the chancellor said:

"If at and after the end of the war the world will only become fully conscious of the horrifying destruction of life and property, then through the whole of humanity there will ring out a cry for peace arrangements and understanding which as far as within human power will avoid the return of such a monstrous catastrophe.

"Germany will honestly co-operate in examination of every endeavor to find a practical solution and will collaborate for its possible realization. This all the more if the war, as we expect and trust, shall create political conditions that do full justice to the free development of all nations, of small as well as great nations.

The chancellor said it was known on reliable authority that in 1915 Great Britain and France promised to Russia a territorial domination of Constantinople, the Bosphorus and the west shore of the Dardanelles, with the hinterland, and the Asia Minor should be divided among the entente powers.

"Such a policy of brute force," the chancellor added, "cannot be the basis of an efficient international league for peace.

"The first condition for the evolution of international relations by way of arbitration and peaceful compromise of conflicting interests, ought to be that no more aggressive coalitions be formed," the chancellor continued "Germany is at all times ready to enter a league of peace which will restrain the perubian of peace."

BACON LEADING BY 41 VOTES

Detroit, Nov. 11.—The official count will probably be necessary to decide the election of congressman in the Second district.

Representative Breakes on the face of the returns has lost to Mark Bacon of Wyandotte, Republican, by 41 votes. Bacon's total shows up 27,190, while Breakes' shows 27,149.

Representative Breakes Thursday night issued a statement in which he neither claimed nor conceded anything.

"The most I concede is," he said, "that either of us has a chance." The returns are reported as follows:

WAYWARD YOUTH SHIELDED FAMILY

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 11.—Behind the fictitious name of H. A. Krause, George Minnowitz, son of a well-to-do Cleveland family, who was murdered and thrown into the Rock river near this place two weeks ago, lived a mysterious life. From the day that he committed his first violation of the law by breaking into a country general store which terminated in his commitment to the Wisconsin state penitentiary until his death, he never called himself Minnowitz. He wished to save his family from the disgrace of having a kin who was a "jailbird."

That became known Friday when a representative of Warden Towne of the penitentiary testified at the inquest held here by Coroner Ryan of Janesville. He told of Minnowitz's confession during his repentant moments while a prisoner at the penitentiary. His only request was that his family be shielded and he be called Krause, the only name that his friends in crime knew.

For Minnowitz's death the authorities are seeking Fred Hartin, who they claim, murdered him during a fight in a gambling den near here. Hartin had only recently been released from the state prison the authorities say, and it was there it is thought, that he gained the acquaintance of Minnowitz.

After Minnowitz's body was recovered from the river it was identified as Krause. Persons who viewed it were positive in their identification. And so the body lay in a Beloit undertaking establishment, tagged "Krause," until the inquest Friday, when the penitentiary representatives gave his right name.

Whether Minnowitz's family will be notified and "Krause's" carrier go down as one wayward son who didn't return to be classed a prodigal youth was unknown Friday night.

GERMANY TO JOIN WORLD PEACE PLANS

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg announced on Thursday that after the ending of the war Germany would co-operate in an endeavor to find a practical means for procuring a lasting peace by means of an international league.

The chancellor made on Thursday before the reichstag main committee a most important speech about the questions of international union for peace and connected with it the problem as to the origin of the present war.

committee knew that the sale of this special edition was prohibited immediately by the police and the secretary of foreign affairs informed the Russian ambassador by telephone that "this news was untrue."

"Gentlemen, we do not fear any tribunal. I can state further that this new version by Lord Grey. To the Russian government itself, which ought to be the best informed about the cause of mobilization, it never occurred that it could refer to a special edition of the Lokai Anzeiger as an explanation of its fateful step.

Referring to the question of an international league for the preservation of peace, the chancellor said: "If at and after the end of the war the world will only become fully conscious of the horrifying destruction of life and property, then through the whole of humanity there will ring out a cry for peaceful arrangements and understanding which as far as within human power will avoid the return of such a monstrous catastrophe. This cry will be so powerful and so justified that it must lead to some result."

"Germany will honestly co-operate in examination of every endeavor to find a practical solution and will collaborate for its possible realization. This all the more if the war, as we expect and trust, shall create political conditions that do full justice to the free development of all nations, of small as well as great nations."

The chancellor said it was known on reliable authority that in 1915 Great Britain and France promised to Russia a territorial domination of Constantinople, the Bosphorus and the west shore of the Dardanelles, with the hinterland, and the Asia Minor should be divided among the entente powers.

"Such a policy of brute force," the chancellor added, "cannot be the basis of an efficient international league for peace. The first condition for the evolution of international relations by way of arbitration and peaceful compromise of conflicting interests, ought to be that no more aggressive coalitions be formed," the chancellor continued. "Germany is at all times ready to enter a league of peace which will restrain the perubian of peace."

"The action which made the war unavoidable," he said, "was the Russian mobilization, ordered on the night of July 30-31, 1914. Russian, England, and the whole world knew this step made it impossible for us to wait any longer and that this step was synonymous with a declaration of war. The whole world—even England, too—now begins to comprehend the fateful importance of the Russian mobilization. Truth makes headway."

The chancellor said Lord Grey admitted that the Russian mobilization preceded the German and Austro-Hungarian mobilization. But since he desired to clear the entente-of guilt, Lord Grey could not help referring to the Russian mobilization as Germany's work. Lord Grey said that Russia mobilized its army only after it received a report that Germany had ordered mobilization.

The chancellor recalled the fact that on Thursday, July 30, 1914, the Lokai Anzeiger early in the afternoon issued a special edition with the untrue report that the German emperor had ordered mobilization. The chancellor added that every one in the reichstag
