OUR CAPACITY AS A NATION BUILDER. It is characteristic of the people of this nation to shut their eyes to economic and social problems until their acuteness compels them to look them in the face and act.

A thorough and extensive investigation of our timber resources and our existing policies in regard to them has just been completed by a committee for the American Foresters.

If cut-over lands, valuable mainly for forest growth, but now barren and idle, in the east, the lake states and the south had been wisely handled they would be growing each year as much timber as they produced in the year of their greatest yield, and that timber would be available at half the present prices.

Most of our timber producing states can no longer supply even their own demands. Lumber must be hauled from constantly increasing distances.

Excluding land and timber values, three thousand millions of dollars are invested in the forest industries of the United States and those whose raw materials the forest supplies.

The timber problem is of elemental importance to the country. We should be short-sighted indeed to ignore it and to disregard the consequences it will one day surely inflict if we go along as we are now going.

Reforestation is one of our great national needs. We ought to ask ourselves whether it is not necessary to put it into effect through compulsory legislation.

Consistent with his past record of inefficiency, inability and unfairness, Secretary Baker now takes the attitude that the officers of the American army who led our troops into battle in France, winning distinction and honor and, as Mr. Baker would probably put it, "made the world safe for democracy," are not entitled to hold the advanced rank they held overseas as much as are the officers who served at home and only held emergency rank.

REAL "CONSTRUCTIVE" LEGISLATION. The country is calling for "constructive" legislation—something that will promote the welfare of the nation in the future.

After the state department's notes had failed to jar things in Mexico, Nature took the matter into her own hands.

During the earthquake, President Carranza, it is reported, thought seriously of saluting the American flag at Vera Cruz.

And all the time, one word from Washington to the troops along the border would have made Mr. Carranza believe that an earthquake was one of the mildest things that could visit his country.

Decrease in Death Rate From Tuberculosis Shown by Records.

Lansing, Jan. 5.—According to figures received by the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis Association from one of the country's greatest life insurance companies, there has been a decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis among that company's policy holders every year since 1911.

Triumph is Shown. That the death rate from this disease is not only kept from increasing but that it is actually cut down somewhat is considered a triumph for the anti-tuberculosis movement.

TALKING IT OVER WITH SADIE

BY IMOGENE

"SAY," SNAPPED S A D I E, sharpening her pencil by jerks and starts, "if there's one bird in this burgh that makes your little Sadie feel like startin' a riot, it's the bfrd that's gotta let you know he's around, an's gotta get everybody lookin' at him, regardless of how he's gona pull the limelight stunt."

"Honest, there ain't no gettin' away from it, every place I goes that outfit's there, showin' off for the benefit of everybody concerned an' a lot that ain't—It don't make no difference whether it's church or the show, it's all the same to them."

"You can stroll down the main drag on a peaceful afternoon, thinkin' about what he said an' then you said the night before, an' all at once you hears laughs up ahead that'd put a third class vaudeville blonde haywire the first time she heard it, an' you can kiss your little peace of mind good bye, take it from somebody that knows, Them James is takin' their regular main stem stroll an' lung exercise at the same time, an' they ain't gona give nobody a chance to miss them."

"Honest, the next time your little Sadie goes to a show an' gets hit between the eyes with some loud haw haw's from a gang of would be hard boiled birds that ain't got no place else to soak up heat, just about the time he finds out his wife ain't true to him, there's gona be a free for all an' Sadie ain't countin' on the 'look at me's' comin' out ahead neither."

"Which ain't gotta thing on the mixup there's gona be at the roller rink when this little baby trips a few of the birds that's showin' off in the middle of the floor on one skate, an' crackin' their mushes lafin' at some bright remark they made themself at the same time."

"Or what's gona happen to, the guys that's gona 'home about the same time you is an' pulls the loud talkin' when they's behind you an' acrobatic stunts when they speeds up an' gets in front of you again, with variations every two minutes."

"Say, if your little Sadie ever gets so hard up for amusement that she's tumblin' for them smart guys, you'll be doin' her an' the world a favor if you hands her a biff in the bean that puts her to sleep."

To see the healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside bathing every morning for a week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal—before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges or whose skin is sallow or pallid, that one week of inside bathing will have them looking and feeling better every way.

LLOYD GEORGE EXPLAINS THE IRISH QUESTION

Enlarges on His Views as Given to Parliament Recently.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(By The Associated Press)—Premier Lloyd George, in presenting to Parliament the proposed dual legislative system for granting self-government to Ireland, declared that to force a union of Ulster and southern Ireland would "promote disunion" and might result in "bloodshed."

The governmental scheme, announced by the premier, contemplates the creation of two legislative bodies with a council of twenty to serve as a link between them. In addition, both divisions would elect members to the British Parliament until the time should be ripe for the voluntary formation of an Irish Parliament.

Liberal extracts from the Premier's speech were cabled to America yesterday. The full text of the address gives a comprehensive idea of the position of the government in the new attempt to compose the differences between the Irish factions and to reach a satisfactory solution of the Irish problem.

Advantages in Union.

"There may be advantages in union," Mr. Lloyd George said in discussing the stand of those accused of wishing to coerce the Ulsterites. "I do not deny that. Geographically the conditions are such as to make it desirable. There is an advantage in mingling races and religion so as to contribute a variety of ideas so as to have a different outlook. And there is undoubtedly an advantage in having industry and agriculture working side by side in the same parliament. But that is a matter for these populations themselves." Lord Durham attempted to force Quebec and Ontario, Lower and Upper Canada, into the same parliament. That plan had to be abandoned. Separate parliaments had to be given them and it was only after that was done that federation became possible.

The Premier said the Irish question was difficult because "three quarters of the population of Ireland are not merely governed without their consent, but manifest the bitterest hostility to the government."

"I remember," he continued, "when it used to be argued that if you improved social and economic conditions, if you got rid of the agrarian trouble, improved housing, created peasant proprietorship and built railways, constructed harbors and did everything possible to make Ireland as prosperous as conditions would allow, all this objection to British rule would vanish. What has happened? Ireland never has been so prosperous as she is today. The vast majority of the cultivators of Ireland are possessors of their own soil. Houses and comfortable cottages for the working men have been built at the expense of the British taxpayer. Men who traveled through Ireland a generation ago and revisited the country would not know it today. It is completely transformed."

Some Difficulties.

Declaring it to be a "fundamental fact" despite these conditions that "Ireland has never been so alienated from British rule as it is today," Mr. Lloyd George said there was another "fact just as fundamental—that you have a considerable section of the people of Ireland who are just as opposed to Irish rule as the majority of Irishmen are to British rule. Both these facts must be taken into account. In the northeast of Ireland, you have a population, a fairly solid population, alien in race, sympathy, religion, tradition, outlook, from the rest of the population of Ireland, and it would be an outrage on the principle of self-government to place them under the rule of the remainder of the population. In the northeast of Ireland, if that were done, you would inevitably alienate the best elements from the machinery of law and order. I don't say it would produce the same results, but it would recreate exactly the same conditions which you are trying to remedy in the south and west."

Mr. Lloyd George said the failure of the self-government act of 1914 to deal with "the peculiar position of Ulster" was largely the reason for the decision of the government to make changes in this Home Rule plan. He prefaced the statement with the remark that the act of 1914 appeared to have no friends.

In support of his position that to force union of Ireland upon Ulster would be unjustifiable, the premier read a letter from Father O'Flanagan, an Irish Catholic priest, said to be a former vice-president of the Sinn Fein party, and quoted from the words of Father MacDonald, a professor of Theology in Maynooth college.

Love Big Force.

Father O'Flanagan was represented as having asked in 1916: "If we reject home rule rather than agree to the exclusion of the Unionist part of Ulster what case have we to put before the world?" and also to have declared, "we are anxious to start where England left off and to compel Antrim and Down to love us by force."

Mr. Lloyd George read from a speech of Father MacDonald in which the latter was said to have remarked: "Were Ireland made a republic fully independent of Great Britain, it seems to me that she would be bound to allow Home Rule for the northeast corner on the principle underlying your claim for Home Rule in the United Kingdom, which I regard as well founded."

"These two quotations state the case in favor of the treatment of Ulster," declared Premier Lloyd George. "If they (the Irish factions) unite they must do so on their own accord."

Opposes Separation.

Affirming his unalterable opposition to any separation of Ireland from Great Britain, the Premier said "any arrangement by which Ireland could be severed from the United Kingdom either nominally or in substance or effect, would be fatal to the interests of both."

"You have only to look at what happened in the late war to realize what would have happened if Ireland had been a separate unit," the speaker declared. "An hostile republic or even an unfriendly one might very well have been fatal to the cause of the Allies. The area of submarine activity might have extended beyond the limits of control, we might have had a situation full of peril which might very well have jeopardized the life of this country. We cannot run the risk of hostility such as that, and it would be equally fatal to the interests of Ireland. Irish trade interests are entwined with those of Great Britain. Britain is Ireland's best customer."

"If Great Britain, with all its influence and resources, found it difficult to govern hostile Ireland, I cannot see how Ireland could control hostile northeast Ireland. There would be trouble, there would be mischief, there might be bloodshed. And then the whole black chapter of misunderstanding between Great Britain and Ireland would be rewritten all over again. We must not enter upon that course whatever the cost."

Eventual Union.

Going into the question of possible, eventual union of Ulster and southern Ireland, Mr. Lloyd George said the Council of Twenty would serve as a medium of interchange to this end. He referred to the railroads which serve both areas. "If the two Irish legislatures agree, they can leave control (of the railroads) to this national Irish council," he continued. "This is illustrating the kind of subject which might well be delegated by the two Irish legislatures to this council which represents both and which can only be delegated by agreement." Power to consummate union of the two legislatures, he states, would be placed in the hands of these bodies. Such a unified representative body, it was declared, would constitute an Irish parliament which would be accorded additional powers by the British parliament, including taxation.

Federal powers, Mr. Lloyd George said, would be reserved for the future Irish parliament, embracing the crown, peace, war, foreign affairs, army, navy, defense, treason, trade outside of Ireland, navigation including merchant shipping, wireless, cables, coinage, trade marks, light-houses and higher judiciary.

"These powers," the Premier declared, "correspond to the powers reserved wherever there is a federal constitution, whether in America or on the continent of Europe."

Powers of the Irish parliament, he stated, would include control over education, local government, land, agriculture, roads and bridges, transportation including railroads and canals, old age pensions, insurance, municipal affairs, labor, local judiciaries, hospitals and all machinery for maintenance of law and order except the higher judiciary, the army and navy and housing.

Mr. Lloyd George said the post office would continue to be administered for the present by the British parliament because of the difficulty of keeping up the service under two legislatures.

Discussing finances, the Premier said it was proposed that Ireland contribute approximately £18,000,000 toward the imperial expenditures. This he stated, is the amount the treasury derives from Ireland to apply against the national debt, the army and navy, trade, and for running the machinery of war and pensions. Each of the two legislatures it was said, would receive £1,000,000 to cover the initial expense of setting up the two governments, with permanent provision for their maintenance from the land annuities in Ireland.

Each of the two legislatures, Mr. Lloyd George explained, would have taxing powers comparable with those enjoyed by the states in the United States. The three great taxes, he said, the income tax including excess profits and supertax, customs, and excise would be levied and collected imperially.

Premier Lloyd George in closing his address said there had been mistakes on both sides. "The question is not who is to blame," he declared, "but how are we to set it right, and that is not easy to answer."

To Darken Hair Apply Sage Tea

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

CONDITIONS ARE VERY BRIGHT IN EVERY BIG LINE

National City Bank of New York Sees Rosier Future Ahead.

Particularly rosiere conditions exist in every line of business, with wonderful prospects for the entire year, constitute the deductions of the National City Bank of New York in that organization's current public letter on American business.

The statement says: The industrial and trade situation at the close of 1919, judged by the movement of merchandise, pressure for goods, readiness to pay high prices, and amount of business in sight for the future, was most promising. The holiday trade and the general trade in preceding months were on the greatest scale ever experienced.

An inquiry as to the business outlook addressed at this time to almost any line of industry will elicit a favorable, even sanguine, response. Each group of producers seems to be confronted by an accumulated demand which gives assurance of plenty of business for a long time to come.

For example, the building trades and industries are convinced that the greatest year in their history is now in sight, and the building industry in all its ramifications is so extensive that full activity in it is a very important factor in general employment and prosperity. The iron and steel industry can see nothing but prosperity ahead for the coming year. A vast amount of work needs to be done upon the railroads, and if they are returned to their owners upon terms which enable the latter to raise money from the investing public, no doubt the expenditures will be made as rapidly as it is practicable to obtain the funds. Industry today is hampered in all parts of the country by poor railroad facilities.

The industries engaged in supplying goods for current consumption, see nothing but prosperity ahead because the demand at present is in excess of their ability to produce and they see no likelihood of an early change in the situation.

Certainly it is a definite and most encouraging accomplishment that during the past year the armies have been

CHILEAN LIKES AMERICA WHERE EVERYONE BATHES

Because when a person falls down nobody laughs.

When in the street a person steps on another's toes, they do not insult each other.

The shopkeepers can leave their deliveries on the doorstep.

People keep in line at ticket offices and have respect for each others place in the line.

demobilized and distributed back into the industries, that the shift has been made from war work to peace work without any considerable amount of unemployment, and that a complete recovery has been made from the state of doubt and hesitation which existed last January.

People have only one surname.

There is profound respect for the police. The public fear the police and not the police the public.

The people know how to walk in the streets, always passing to the right and they do not stop to talk.

There is only "first-class" on railroad trains and special cars for smokers.

Drunkards in that country are an extinct species.

The name doesn't make the man, but the man the name.

It is a sign of ill breeding not to respect the opinions of others; (There are two hundred religions in that country).

T. R. PRIMED TO SETTLE STRIKE

Former President Was Ready to Use Army to End Riots.

New York, Jan. 6.—Hitherto unpublished details of the "drastic" plan President Roosevelt had decided to adopt to settle the anthracite strike of 1902, said to have been known only to two members of his cabinet and a few persons who were to take part in its execution appear in the fifth installment of the Colonel's own letters edited by Joseph Bucklin Bishop in the January issue of Scribner's Magazine. The article also gives some intimate sidelights on Roosevelt's attitude toward union labor.

After 20 persons had been killed and about 40 injured during the rioting in the coal fields and the approach of winter brought with it the prospect of a nation-wide fuel famine, the mayors of large cities and governors of several states appealed to the President. Mr. Bishop says, to interfere in the interest of the public welfare and safety. According to his biographer, Mr. Roosevelt had decided, in case the operators persisted in their refusal to accept a commission, "to assume powers which the Constitution did not specifically give him" and to use the United States army to suppress all violence and disorder.

Thought Situation Bad.
Writing to Robert Bacon on October 5, 1902, shortly after a conference in Washington of the mine operators and the strike leader, the late John Mitchell, in a futile effort to settle the trouble by the appointment of a commission of investigation or arbitration, he said:

"The situation is bad, especially because it is possible it may grow infinitely worse. If when the severe weather comes on there is a coal famine, I dread to think of the suffering in parts of our great cities especially, and I fear there will be fuel riots of as bad a type as any bread riots we have ever seen. Of course once the rioting has begun, once there is a resort to mob violence, the only thing to do is to maintain order. It is a dreadful thing to be brought face to face with a necessity of taking measures, however unavoidable, which will mean the death of men who have been maddened by want and suffering."

"Feeling" His Way.
In a letter to Senator Lodge he wrote that he was "feeling" his way to solve the difficulty and was determined not to be drawn into any "violent step which would bring reaction and disaster afterward." At another time, he said: "Most emphatically I shall not compromise with lawlessness. I have been told on excellent authority, that the disorder has been very great and of an evil kind. On equally good authority, I am told the exact contrary. I shall speedily find out for myself. I stand against socialism; against anarchic disorder."

Colonel Roosevelt's "drastic" plan of action which Mr. Bishop says he makes public with the late President's permission and authority, included his appointment of an investigating or arbitrary commission without regard to whether or not the operators asked for it or agreed to abide by its decisions. He asked ex-President Cleveland in case he were to appoint such a commission, if he would accept a place on it, and, according to Mr. Bishop, Mr. Cleveland replied favorably.

Plan for Federal Aid.
"This commission was only part of the President's plan," says Mr. Bishop. "The investigation which it was to conduct would take time. In order that mining operations might be resumed as speedily as possible, the President consulted with Senator Quay, who was all-powerful in Pennsylvania politics, and was assured by him that whenever the President desired him to do so he would have the governor of the state notify the president that he could not keep order in the coal region and needed federal interference."

"The President then informed Major Bucklin Bishop in the January issue of Scribner's Magazine. The article also gives some intimate sidelights on Roosevelt's attitude toward union labor."

"The President then informed Major Bucklin Bishop in the January issue of Scribner's Magazine. The article also gives some intimate sidelights on Roosevelt's attitude toward union labor."

President Roosevelt, it was said, had all preparations made for starting the troops within half an hour after the request for federal aid was received. The plan was not executed, Mr. Bishop says, "because at the last moment the operators changed front and consented to the appointment of a commission. Whether or not they got a word of the President's purpose has never been revealed, but some powerful influence was responsible for their sudden reversal."

BEAUTY OF SKIN EASILY RESTORED BY THIS SULPHUR

The moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, broken out skin the itching stops and healing begins, declares a noted skin specialist. You do not have to wait for ease from torture or embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Only those who have had ugly, itching, burning skin eruptions, rash or pimples, can know the delight when this sulphur subdues the condition.

It is a simple, inexpensive treatment without tiresome, costly massages. Because of its parasite destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. It never fails to check itching or irritation and heals eczema right up.

Any druggist can supply you with about two ounces of Mentho-Sulphur for a few cents. Apply it like any pleasant cold cream.

No Great Act of Heroism Required.

If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is within the reach of all and is prompt and effectual.

LARGE CLASS TO ASK CITIZENSHIP HERE MONDAY

Examiner Danielson to Conduct Manistique Hearings Today.

Examiner I. O. Danielson of the department of labor's staff of naturalization experts spent Tuesday at the court house, preparing for the presentation of a class of 56 applicants for citizenship at the January term of circuit court, which will open Monday, Judge Richard C. Flannigan, of Norway, presiding.

The list of applicants includes the names of citizens of practically every European country, with a large number of Canadians and several former enemy aliens.

Soldier Is Rejected.
Mr. Danielson came to Escanaba from Iron Mountain where he presented a large class to the circuit court. Thirty-six petitions were granted.

One of the men rejected was an American soldier with an honorable discharge from the service. He entered the United States army but claimed his discharge on the ground that he was a citizen of Austria. He secured his release from the service in February 1918—several months before the cessation of hostilities—an honorable discharge having been issued because of his enemy citizenship. Judge Flannigan declined to grant the "papers," which would have made him a citizen of this country.

Manistique Today.
There are but three applications before the Schoolcraft county circuit court which opens today. Mr. Danielson said, unless some former service men ask to be given the benefit of the "short cut" route provided for them, Mr. Danielson left last night for Manistique.

Yesterday's visit was the first he has made to Escanaba in several months and the petitions to be heard Monday will be the occasion of his first appearance in circuit court here, despite the fact that he has been in the service in this region for many months. Examiner M. J. Kilsdonk conducted the hearings in the July term.

Building Operations Not Entirely Held Up

Although unfavorable weather conditions have again halted work on the construction of the new garage building for the Escanaba Motor company at Seventh street and First avenue south, both the contractor and the owners are determined that the structure shall be pushed to completion this winter. All of the outside walls have been completed, but two inside brick partitions must still be laid before all of the supports for the roof can be placed in position. All of the steel has been erected and the joists that will carry the roof planking have been set over three-quarters of the roof space. A few days of mild weather would allow the completion of the inside partitions, after which the carpenter work and the work of laying the roof can progress without interruption.

The boiler that will provide heat for the new garage is already in place, but the smokestack is yet to be erected.

Holy Name Societies to Fight Bolshevism

Pittsburgh, Jan. 6.—One hundred and forty-five Holy Name Societies of the Roman Catholic Church in the Pittsburgh district have launched a campaign to stop the spread of Bolshevism among wage earners and to further Americanization. Literature intended to establish closer relations between capital and labor is being distributed by the organization.

Rev. Claude Geary, Dominican monk and a leader in the campaign, declared Bolshevism and Socialism can be handled but that problems confronted by capital and labor must be definitely settled to bring peace to the world.

AT THE THEATRES

At the Strand.
If you wish to know how many of the mystifying sleight-of-hand tricks are done, just ask Charles Ray, star of Thomas H. Ince's latest photoplay, "Hay Foot, Straw Foot," which comes to the Strand theatre for two days commencing today.

In this picture Mr. Ray appears as an entertainer at an army camp theater under the stage name of Abdul ben Mazzazza who had to perform all kinds of illusions. To get into the part Mr. Ray had to take a course in legerdemain and now says he is next to all the tricks that make the wise heads in the usual audience scratch their ears.

During the filming of the production Mr. Ray had great sport at the Thomas H. Ince studio mystifying everyone on the lot with the stunts he had learned.

"There Little Wife," an early Robertson-Cole release, starring Teddy Sampson and Harry Depp, tells the story of what happened when two neighbors, one a married man and the other single, attempted to entertain their bosses at the same time, with one girl trying to appear as two wives.

One An Hour.
A costume for almost every hour of the day is included in May Allison's wardrobe for her newest picture, "The Walk-Offs," from the Morocco stage success by Frederick and Fanny Hatton.

Secure Play and Star.
Metro has acquired the rights to

"Polly With a Past," by Guy Bolton and George Middleton, and has obtained the services of Ina Claire, who was originally starred by David Belasco, for the screen production.

Anita Stewart and her supporting cast in "The Fighting Shepherdess," have gone into the sheep country of California to film a number of exterior scenes.

O'Brien's Next Picture.
"A Fool and His Money" from the story by George Barr McCutcheon, will be Eugene O'Brien's next starring vehicle. Mr. O'Brien is taking a much needed rest when his director Bob Ellis is going over the script and making preparations for the production of the story.

A matinee girl, who is her high school days attended a theatre in Rochester, N. Y., three times in one week to see Bert Lytell play "Alias Jimmy Valentine," has been engaged as her idol's leading woman in Metro's production of the crook play. The girl is Vola Vale, who has appeared with Charles Ray and other Ince stars.

License Offenders Are to Be Arrested

In spite of repeated warnings issued by county and city motor cops and in spite of the fact that licenses can be secured at the State Savings Bank in this city, it is asserted that many autoists are still defying the state law by running their cars with 1919 license plates. Both the county and the city police, together with the state constabulary are now preparing to make a round up of all violators of the traffic laws. It is insisted that no exceptions will be made and that all offenders arrested for not showing 1920 license plates on their cars will be prosecuted to the limit of the law.

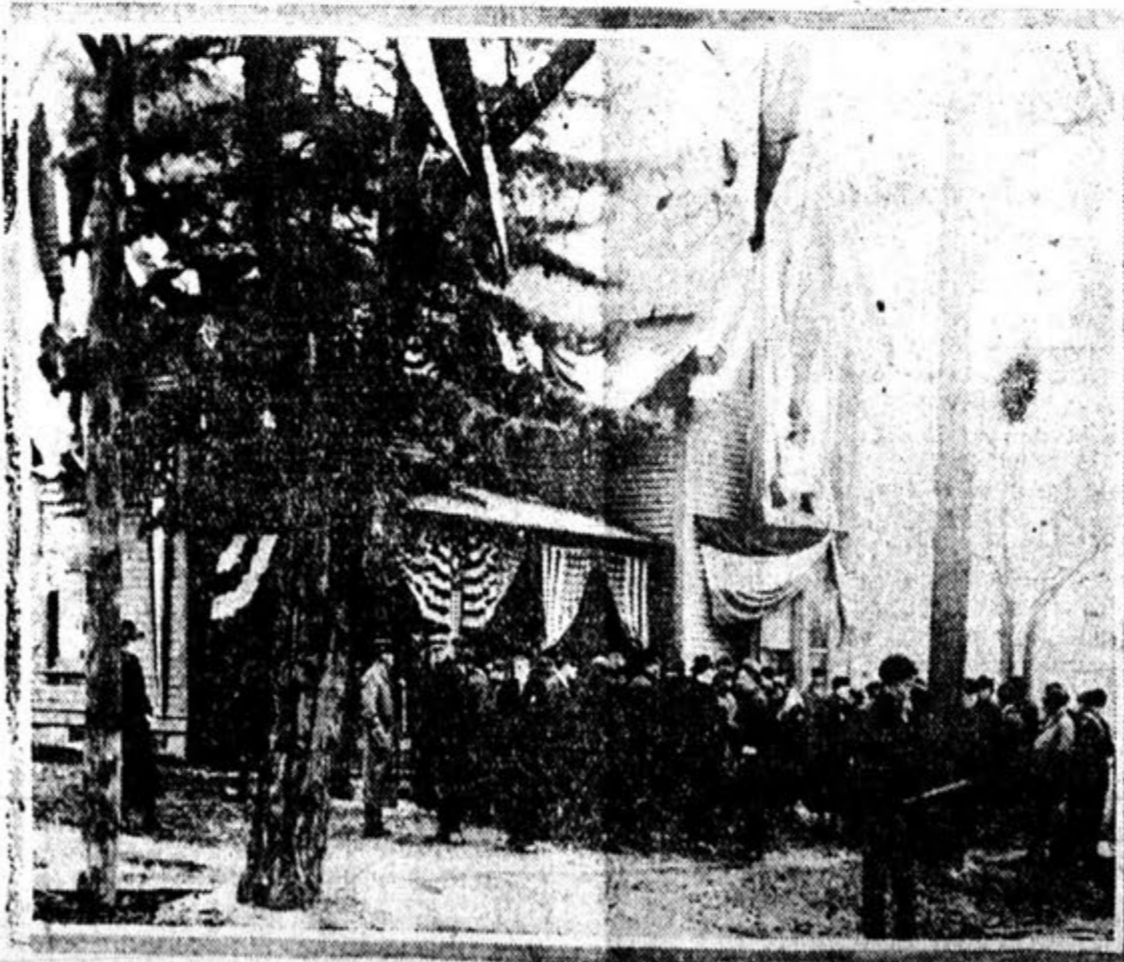

Women have been granted municipal suffrage in fourteen towns of Florida.

"LISTEN LESTER" STYLED DANCING MUSICAL COMEDY

No end of color and springliness go to make "Listen Lester," the John Cort musical comedy by Harry L. Cort, George E. Stoddard and Harold Orlob with the entire New York cast, chorus, production and special orchestra, which is the attraction at the Delft on Friday, January 9, so great a success that during an entire year at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York it played to capacity business. It is gay and breezy, with speed and variety—a variety that embraces all the essentials of a good musical piece, including amusing comedy, tuneful music, good songs well sung, a dainty, dancy chorus, excellent staging and costuming, and versatile dancing—so much of it that this play might be styled "a dancing musical comedy." The missing papers, good old remnant of melodrama, forms the basis of the story, but they are served in a way that is different, and altogether new and unexpected, with a lively galaxy of players surrounding them and adding a special dash and flavor. Through three acts these letters lead everyone a merry dance, but finally, in good musical comedy fashion, fall into the right hands—as do the young lovers or at least into each others arms, which is even better.

It is played with a charm and finesse to be expected from such players as Miriam Felger, Cecil Williams, Betty Kirkbride, Ann Ott, Henrietta Lee, Florita Bellaire, Frances Anderson, Florence De Barry, Gus Shy, William Wayne, Delano Del, William Seltery, John L. Lyons, Murry Hart, Mark Thompson, Andrew Leigh all who have been seen in their respective parts for over six hundred performances in New York and Chicago.

In the early seventies girls were employed as pages in both houses of the Kansas legislature.

HOME TOWN TURNS OUT TO WELCOME GENERAL PERSHING—The Pershing home in Laclede, Missouri, was elaborately decorated for the homecoming of the man whose achievements in France have honored his family and his home town. A large crowd, in which were many relatives and friends, awaited the general in front of his house.

COUNTY BOARD MAY TAKE STEP TO GUARD DEER Meeting of Supervisors Today Is Expected to Be Brief.

The auditing committee of the board of supervisors met yesterday to prepare a report on the bills presented for payment at the meeting of the board to be held today.

It was not expected by members yesterday that the meeting would be a lengthy one. Practically all of the business is to be of a routine nature.

It was considered likely, however, that some steps would be taken to consider a closed hunting season on deer next year. Marquette county has already asked for a closed season there and it is pretty definitely settled that similar action will be taken soon in other upper peninsula counties.

Others Are Active. "I'm not strong for a closed season," one supervisor remarked yesterday, "but I'd hate to see Delta county the only one—or one of but two or three—in which hunting is to be permitted next year." It is admitted in most quarters that the deer must be protected from another year's slaughter like that of 1919, but the partisans of the "buck law" plan are more or less in evidence.

The board will meet again early in February to consider the petition of the builders of the new paper mill at Groos for permission to construct two dams across the Escanaba river.

NO WALKOUT IS BEING PLANNED BY PEDAGOGUES Teachers' Council Says Strike Is Not Part of Campaign.

The Teachers' council, the newly formed organization of teachers in the public schools, is not contemplating a walkout if its requests for increased pay are not met.

This was made clear in a formal statement yesterday, issued by President M. B. Melican; H. R. Myers, secretary; Nellie McDermott, vice president, and R. C. Shaw, treasurer of the council. The statement follows:

The fact that the Escanaba public school teachers have organized themselves into a teachers' council and are asking for increases in salaries does not mean—which it evidently has been interpreted by some to mean—that there will be a teachers' strike if the requests are not granted. Contracts should be considered as binding upon all parties concerned, and we believe they are so considered by the majority of teachers.

Reasonable requests for justifiable increases in wages should not be confused with threats to strike. The requests made by the Escanaba teachers are reasonable and are based upon existing conditions. We trust this communication will be understood to express the attitude of the Escanaba Teachers' council.

ESCANABA MEN BENEFITED BY NEW WAGE PACT

In common with 32,000 of their fellow employes in other cities, the local employes of the Western Union company who have been in the service for six months or more will participate in salary increases totaling over $5,000,000 next year. The raise is given only to employes who receive less than $250 a month. Fifteen percent is given all those in the service more than one year and those who have served less than a year but more than six months will receive a 10 percent salary boost.

Manager Cyr of the Escanaba office states that these increases are in pursuance of an agreement reached some time ago between the Western Union and the Association of Western Union Employes.

The Western Union is one of the largest corporations in the country to practice collective bargaining with its employes, and the 1920 schedule of pay is one of several negotiated recently to help offset the ever mounting living costs.

BOOZE HAS KICK AND PRODUCES A LOSS OF MEMORY

Prosecutor Strom had a long but unproductive session with Charles Booban yesterday in which he sought information as to where Booban acquired possession of a quantity of fearful booze which got him into such trouble last Sunday that he paid something like $35 in fine and costs in Justice Huber's court Monday.

Booban said he was driving a horse along a road about 17 miles from Gladstone when he met a man in a flivver who offered him a drink and then sold him what remained in the bottle for $5.00. Subsequently Booban's horse ran away and he was finally landed in Gladstone where he was arrested and fined.

He feels sure he will be able to recognize the man who sold him the booze if he ever sees him again, and in that event he intends to let Mr. Strom know about it.

Social & Personal

Entertains At Linen Shower. The Misses Marie and Margaret Burke entertained at a linen shower last evening, in honor of Mrs. Joseph Larrin, who was formerly Miss Mue Lequia, of this city. The evening was spent in various games and amusements, after which a dainty luncheon was served. Mrs. Larrin was the recipient of a number of pretty gifts, as mementoes of the occasion.

Beaunier-Bennett. Miss Antoinette Beaunier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beaunier, of Schaffer, and Herbert S. Bennette were married Saturday evening at the Sacred Heart parsonage, the Rev. A. Bin of Schaffer officiating. The attendants were Miss Marion Beaunier and Joseph Beaunier, sister and brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of the bride's parents where an elaborate supper was served to relatives and close friends. The bridal couple left Saturday night for St. Paul and other points of interest, after which they will take up their residence at Arland, Wis., where the bridegroom has charge of a cheese and butter factory.

Both young people are well and favorably known both here and at Schaffer. Mr. Bennette formerly conducted the factory at Schaffer.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and bells and a large bride's bouquet was presented to the bride. The evening was delightfully spent with various social diversions and music. Miss Helen Moreau, Earnest Moreau and William Mulvaney contributed violin and guitar numbers and solos were rendered by Miss Anna Mulvaney.

At nine o'clock a wedding banquet was served, a huge wedding cake being the feature of the table decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Sheddore received number of beautiful silver gifts and a large number of silver dollars.

To Entertain Ladies' Aid. Mrs. John Carlson, 415 Fifteenth street south, and Mrs. Edgar Anderson, 1110 First avenue south, will entertain the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Lutheran church at the church parlors Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A cordial invitation has been extended to all to be present.

Annual Senior Ball. Promising to eclipse all similar functions of past years the annual senior ball of the Escanaba high school will be held at the high school gymnasium on Friday evening of this week. Members of the committee in charge are sparing no pains to make the function one of the biggest events of a social way ever attempted by a senior class of the Escanaba high school.

The big gymnasium is being properly decorated in the class colors—purple and gold—and the promise is given that when the gym is thrown open on Friday evening the decorations will rival those prepared for any event held there in the past. Dewey's orchestra will furnish the musical program for the evening. Members of the faculty, the student body and all alumni of the school have been invited to be the guests of the Senior class at the coming ball.

Man Hit by Ice Boat; Badly Cut and Bruised

Oscar Hansen is confined to his home, 1311 First avenue North, suffering from cuts and severe bruises, sustained by being struck by an ice boat while walking on the ice. Mr. Hansen had been out on the ice field and was returning to the shore. He was walking with his collar turned up about his ears and did not hear the iceboat gliding up swiftly from behind. The driver of the boat was attempting to make a turn and lost control momentarily, the boat striking Hansen and hurling him for a considerable distance. He was assisted to the shore and taken to his home where he will be confined for several days.
