FRANCE GAINS SUPPORT FOR RUHR POLICY

PUBLIC OPINION IN AMERICA CHANGING.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Perhaps the most surprising development of the last fortnight, as revealed to this correspondent by one of the highest officials of the United States government, is the gradual turn in sentiment toward France in connection with her effort to collect reparations from Germany.

When the Ruhr invasion began, officials here felt that opinion throughout the United States was almost solidly against the French, and they unhesitatingly deplored the step that had been taken.

It cannot be said that the American government abandoned for one minute the view it held at the outset that some other way of handling the reparation problem would have been better.

Most Americans Neutral. In analyzing national opinion on the subject, officials recognize that Americans of French and German descent are necessarily sympathetic with the countries of their origin but the statement that opinion is about even on the subject instead of one sided applies to the mass of people who are neither of French or German ancestry.

SLEUTHS FRAME RADICAL RAIDS, WITNESS SAYS

Michigan Defense Blames Detective Agencies for "Redism."

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Charges that private detective agencies foment radicalism, strikes, labor troubles and underground revolutionary movements in order that they may collect big fees from banking and business interests for uncovering them, are contained in a deposition by Albert Ballin, alias Balanow, taken here today by Frank P. Walsh, for use in connection with the defense of 22 alleged communists facing trial at St. Joseph, Michigan.

Balanow, former member of the department of justice, the military intelligence service, operative of the Burns, Thiel, Daniels and other private detective agencies, member of the I. W. W., Communist party and other radical organizations, and by his own admission a spy and agent provocateur, unfolded an amazing story of double crossing in which he sold out three employers at a time to each other.

He charged among other things that the famous "red" raids on January 1, 1920, were made possible because he and other private detectives, planted in the ranks of the radical organizations, called their followers together in order that the raiders might find them assembled when the "zero" hour came.

Claims "Burns Plot." Attorney Walsh announced in the course of the hearing that he expected to show that the Burns agency planned and executed the raid on the communist gathering at Bridgeman, Mich., last August and their agency established in the communist ranks committee illegal acts that may have been committed in connection with that meeting.

Mr. Edison also wants the world to know that he likes the movie.

NATION TURNS TO LINCOLN IN CRITICAL HOUR

PRESIDENT LAUDS EMANCIPATOR'S COURAGE.

Washington, Feb. 12.—(By the Associated Press)—The supreme gift of Abraham Lincoln was not in construction, but rather in preservation, President Harding declared in an address tonight at a Lincoln Memorial dinner tendered by friends of the Lincoln memorial University of Cumberland Gap, Tennessee.

"Humanity itself," the president declared, "needs to drink of the cup of unflinching confidence which enabled him to stand erect and unshaken amid discouragements and criticism which would have crushed any less than a master's heart and soul."

People Turn to Him. The president spoke in part as follows: "No human story surpasses the fascination and the inspiration of that of Abraham Lincoln. The world pays tribute tonight and most of the world is doing him reverence, because in his unshakable faith the world finds its own hopes mightily strengthened."

Civilization Trembles. "The world today sees civilization brought to its supreme test. Its trial came when it might least have been expected. At the very apex of material advances, when science and industry and invention and culture seemed to have united in justifying man's proud estimate of his destiny, there came among the nations such a clash of ambitions, such a confusion of ideals, such a crash of conflicting aims and aspirations, as it had never known before."

FARCE COMEDY SCORES GREAT HIT AT WELLS "Poor Married Man" Presented to Big Crowd Last Night. A capacity audience greeted "A Poor Married Man," presented last night in the Wells Community building under auspices of the Employees' Service committee. The play, which kept the house in an uproar of merriment through three swiftly-moving, hilarious acts, was staged by a "home talent" cast under the direction of J. L. Jenkins, and was pronounced the best entertainment of its kind ever attempted in the Wells community. So numerous were the requests that it is repeated that the committee is considering the matter seriously and probably will decide to put it on again at an early date. The cast proved especially fitted for the various parts in the play, which told the story of Prof. John B. Wise, an instructor in a mid-west college, and a series of amusing mixups, due to some misunderstandings and conflicts in attempts to explain embarrassing situations which arose in rapid succession. Mr. Jenkins, as Prof. Wise, was exceptionally clever in the role, and the entire production was eloquent testimony as to his ability as a director. Others in the cast, who scored distinct hits by their splendid delineations of the parts assigned to them, were E. P. Shank as Dr. Matthew Graham, a country physician; Earl Kempe as a college youth; Julian Williams as a negro servant; Mrs. A. Hammond as Mrs. Iona Ford, the professor's mother-in-law; Bernice Kempe as her daughter; and Lois Albright in two parts, a college freshman and later as a reporter. Milewski Beverage Shop Is Raided Two quarts of what the police believe to be wine were found yesterday in a raid on the beverage shop of Joseph Milewski, 1531 Hartnett avenue. ARITHMETIC TO MEET NEED SOUGHT HERE Grade Teachers of City Seek Practical Teaching Plan.

The grade teachers of Escanaba are busily at work reorganizing the Arithmetic of the Public Schools. At the end of the year, they will have a curriculum which will represent their work and which will be framed to meet the business needs of the children of Escanaba.

To carry out this work, the findings of modern psychology, desk copies of new texts and curricula of other cities where similar work has been done are being used. The teachers' own originality in applying these findings is playing, however, the most important part.

All through the country, a new conception of arithmetic is rapidly being adopted. Arithmetic in the old sense was largely concerned with processes—the tables, long division, addition, etc. These were introduced in abstract form and long and faithfully drilled upon with the firm belief in the teachers' minds that some day, somewhere they would be applied in the right way.

New Factor Considered. With the old conception, one factor was left out, the factor which has become, according to modern educational theory, the most important element in the whole school system—the child and his natural interests. To be sure there was one kind of learning that it was not the kind that developed the child in all ways. The child, however, has come into his own and the old conception is passing.

Meet Business Practices. Arithmetic, in the new sense has assumed a fine dignity. It has become "Business Practices and Customs of Childhood." If the children of Escanaba or any other city are to be fitted in the best way for the business practices of life, there must be a school curriculum which leads naturally into every day business life. It must be based on every day needs. Where is there a sounder principle than "We learn to do by doing?"

The five Kindergarten teachers of Escanaba are finding the beginnings of business life in their work with Escanaba's wee ones and are preparing reports showing the many small though important business needs of a kindergarten child. Most of the First and Second grade teachers of the city are keenly interested in the business life of the children in their grades. Thus far the sale of thrift stamps and the buying of milk have formed the basis for the work. The children are having many experiences with addition and subtraction. There is nothing formal and dead about addition and subtraction when one's own hard earned savings are concerned—even to a small First Grader. Accuracy takes care of itself when one is finding out how much money one has left.

What motive was there for learning or for accuracy when the child was given only an abstract example in subtraction or a problem removed from any childish interest. No wonder the rate of learning was slow and accuracy uncertain. But children have come into their own—their interests are now being considered in the educational world. Each new process, whether a fact in multiplication or the study of decimals, is being introduced in a concrete way with an appeal to childish interests. The children know why they are learning and are given practical opportunities to apply their learning. Have we not been slow in giving the child his just dues?

Practical Need Found. Other grades have found practical need for number in the study of parcel post, the use of time tables, the subject of dairying. The following questions were found on this weeks lesson plan of a Third Grade teacher who, in her geography work has been studying coal and mining. "How much coal does the janitor of the Franklin school use on a cold day? How many tons for the season? What is the year's cost of heating the school? etc."

A child is keenly interested in business life around him if the chance is only given him to become so. And, too, should not a child at an early age learn to appreciate his dependence upon the labors of others? The arithmetic side of coal mines may become a vital concept even to a Third grade child.

Give Actual Practice. Buying and selling real and fake believe is going on all through the Escanaba schools. Much more than mere practice in the "fundamentals" is being considered. To be prepared for the business customs and practices of life a child needs practice in more than addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.

VICTIM'S WIDOW BECOMES OOO-LEGGERS' NEMESIS

MRS. R. A. COLLINS.

New Orleans, La.—A campaign which threatens to put every bootlegger in this district out of business has been started by federal agents on revelations made by the widow of a bootlegger.

The widow—slender, young and pretty—is Mrs. R. A. Collins of this city. Her husband had taken two drinks of illegal booze—and died in agony. Now Mrs. Collins has vowed to avenge his death with unrelenting prosecution until the last bootlegger is brought to justice or driven out of town.

Raiders are being made almost daily. For the first time since prohibition went into effect, it is said, men in New Orleans are facing charges of selling poisonous whisky. A wave of fright is engulfing the bootleggers.

Mrs. Collins has received countless missives of "friendly advice," then warnings and finally threats in an effort to keep her from revealing the secrets of booze gangs to the police. But she is firm.

"It doesn't matter what happens to me," she says. "My heart is in that grave where my husband is buried. But if I can save other women's husbands from themselves and for their wives, anything I can do will be done despite what may happen thereafter."

Standards for storekeepers, clerks and customers were every day topics for conversation. A store keeper must be honest, he must not try to gain more than a fair amount. A clerk must be polite, play square, be neat and orderly. A customer must not take too long in making up his mind about what he wants. He must always count his change.

For weeks the little people have been happily buying and selling and practicing their "standards." Please do not think for one moment that the fundamentals were left out. Never were multiplication, subtraction, addition so vital in these children's lives. How they did work!

There was drill—plenty of it—but it was drill for a purpose, drill with real life and "drive" back of it. The old skeleton "formal drill" had disappeared and in its place was something "worth while" with flesh and blood. Other subjects, many times mere skeletons, also became alive. A motive was found for writing, spelling, reading, the study of foods and hygiene. There are wise people somewhere who say it is easier to improve writing if the children have something interesting to write about.

Last week the children closed their store with a real sale—a candy sale. Here was a chance to buy wisely, to compare prices, to be not sensible to have practice in our schools in wise buying? Practice Demonstrated. Two hundred and eighty-one wonderful candy dolls were made with fig bodies, marshmallow heads, raisin arms and legs, gum drop ears and almond feet. All that had been learned heretofore was practiced in a larger way. Courtesy to real customers, change making with real money, plans for fair gains, quick and accurate settlement of real bills—all these were carried out by the children.

All who watched the children through this experience will surely say "Arithmetic has assumed a real dignity."

Where Does Sex Fiction Stand? Attacked, Defended, Interviews

BY EDWARD THIERRY, NEA Service Staff Writer.

New York—Is a moral clean-up needed in the literature of today? Censorship? Or ostracization of snappy stories and novels? Friction grows as our fiction multiplies. Protests against sex stories are answered by defenders of them. Vice crusaders have dragged several books, and their authors and publishers, into court. Some books have been suppressed; others have been acquitted.

A famous physician has now fired a broadside against what he calls "septic literature" and, in an interview with NEA Service, says sex literature menaces the public health.

A woman editor of one of the many magazines that have built up big circulations during the last few years on frank fiction of love says sex stories are not cheap and sordid and harmful.

The prosecution and the defense are given here:

PROSECUTION: "Literary pretenders who write sex novels and magazine stories of today are guilty of producing septic literature. "Such authors are as menacing to the public health, especially in this age of shifting moral standards, as a typhoid carrier. Our mental and physical health is endangered."

That is the burden of an editorial by Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute, under the heading "The Putrid Pen," in the forthcoming February issue of the institute's magazine, "How to Live Journal."

Amplifying his opinions for NEA Service, Dr. Fisk said: "Books and magazines of this septic sex type appeal to an evil appetite. This appetite is not as widespread as some think; it is like the appetite for morphine; normal, healthy people do not crave it, but many become mentally infected and develop abnormal tendencies. Clinics and hospitals record the terrible effects."

"This is an age of self-indulgence, of luxury, of the new freedom—particularly for women—of precedents cast aside. Stories of love that are high-minded, spiritualizing a human passion, create good. The other kind, having a pathological trend, brutalize it and appeal only to the animal sense."

"Magazines aping the miscellany of genius of these cowardly attacks on our home circles add fuel to the fire. Young people get the wrong view of life from these extreme stories. Morbid ideas are aroused and the high emotion of love is dragged down into the mud of materiality. This is the wrong kind of sex education."

"We possess a reserve of energy and emotion which must have an outlet. Some get it in adventure, mystery and detective stories. People used to condemn the dime novel as spectacular, sensational, exaggerated. Dime novels of the most lurid type were harmless compared to the poison of today's sex stories."

"Two types of authors are guilty: the half-insane type, who think they are geniuses; and those who know what they are doing and deliberately prostitute art for commercial reward. We can spare such writers; they breed unhappiness and disease. They say they work depict life? Go visit Bellevue Hospital or the nearest insane asylum and see such life in its disgusting phases; what good does it do you?"

DEFENSE: "Sex stories are not, as many people think, cheap and smutty. People will get over this idea in time. "In literature people today are demanding directness, frankness, truth. They are crying—at least the younger generation is—for life, more life, life as it is. "That is the view of Miss Eleanor Ramos, editor of "Saucy Stories," one of the breezy magazines published in the same office with "Smart Set," made famous by H. L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan.

Readers and contributors who imagine magazine editors to be graybeards are mistaken in the editor of "Saucy Stories." Miss Ramos is young, good looking, tall, willowy and has bobbed hair of copper-red.

"The swinging of the literary pendulum toward sex stories is logical," she said, explaining her editor's viewpoint for NEA Service, "I presume that a psychoanalyst would say all love stories are sex stories. I am sorry to find that some think them objectionable."

"As the editor of a so-called sex magazine, I think of the sex story as one that treats of love from the realistic, rather than the romantic, angle.

"Realism has vivified the arts and crafts of today. Gingerbread decorations have passed from our homes and furnishings; women have simplified their clothing—and discarded much of it. In literature the demand now is for frankness. Witness the popularity of 'Main Street,' 'Moon Call,' 'Cytherea.'"

"This demand naturally enters the fiction magazine field. The more pretentious magazines do not dare jeopardize their circulation and advertising by dangerous experiments. They do not understand their public, and they take no sporting chances; they stick to the story of old themes."

"It is in the modern sex magazine that the writer with a novel and beautiful experiment will receive a warm welcome, and it is here only that he will get a public. The Dreisers, the Gabels, the Andersons of tomorrow will appear today in the pages of the unconventional magazines, and their stories will be sex stories. There is an enormous audience awaiting them, a steadily increasing demand. It is life they want, a life they believe in, and have an unlimited desire for!"

He was motoring with a friend and they ran over a woman, who died of her injuries, and the friend was fined $2, which he paid. The court officials apologized. They said they realized such things are bound to happen to anybody who's trying to get through a crowded street at 60 miles an hour, and what did it matter anyway?

What the Indo-Chinese are most afraid of is that the women will get to considering themselves important and it will spoil them, like the women in the United States. Already when the king wants a new wife and sends his agent to get one, refusals are being met with.

Rate Very Burdensome. Two dollars may seem like a small sum here, Mr. Starling says, but in Indo-China, money is scarce, incomes are low and the rate is very burdensome. If the thing goes no further, according to some Indo-Chinese, perhaps no great harm will be done, but certain fanatics are agitating already for an advance to $10, which actually is as much as it costs to kill a man—only an ordinary laborer, to be sure, but a man at that, and these are women the radicals are trying to make it so expensive to kill that maybe it will be prohibitive soon, except for the very rich.

Couldn't Help It. Mr. Starling had an experience himself just before he left Saigon. HOW TO KEEP WELL ALL WINTER THIS is the time when you hear people say, "There's lots of sickness this winter." It's not the fault of the weather; winter should be the healthiest time of the year. But you should make sure your blood is rich and pure, and your entire system in perfect condition.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan, taken now, will help you well all winter. It will enrich your blood and tone up your entire system. Your druggist has it—liquid or tablets, as you prefer.

After the ceremony at church a four course wedding breakfast was served to the relatives of both families, at the home of the bride's parents, covers were laid for sixteen. The color scheme for the table and home decorations were green and pink, and many cut flowers and ferns were used.

The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Weigman of Green Bay, while Raymond Zinkel, brother of the bride acted as best man. The bride wore a traveling suit of dark blue with Seneca colored hat and corsage of sweet peas and roses, while the bridesmaid wore a suit of dark blue and corsage of roses.

The couple left on the 10:50 train for a trip to Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, after which they will make their home in this city. Mr. Houle is a member of the local mail carriers force and also a member of the Cloverland Post American Legion, having served in the Navy during the world war. He is a graduate of the Escanaba High School and has a large circle of friends in this city.

The bride of yesterday was reared in this city and has attended the local schools and has a host of friends who will join in wishing them many years of happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jarovetz of Flint, Mich., Miss Ruth Weigman and Raymond Zinkel of Green Bay, came to this city for the wedding.

Picture Drew Crowd. The picture, "The Mystery of Room 47," which was shown at St. Joseph's Auditorium, Sunday afternoon and evening was very good and was enjoyed by the large crowd who attended. The audience were kept in guessing until the last reel when the mystery is revealed.

Cards were played later in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gleich won first honors at cards while Mrs. Henry Norbonne and Oliver Groleau won the second prizes. Delicious refreshments concluded the evening of fun and Several pre-nuptial festivities were given in her honor while visiting here and many useful and pretty gifts were given her at these parties. They will be at home at 997 Baylis avenue, St. Paul, Minn., after March first, having gone on a bridal tour at points in Minnesota.

STOMACH UPSET? Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 50c.

$2 TO MURDER WOMAN? WOW! WOTTA HOLDUP Indo-China Excited Over Boost in Prices.

Fort Worth—Indo-China is all wrought up over a new law making it cost $2 to kill a woman. Until, lately, according to P. M. Starling, who lives in the French Indo-Chinese city of Saigon, but is visiting his parents at his old home here, a person of any standing could kill a woman, accidentally or otherwise, and "get by" with it. But not now. The $2 law is harshly enforced against all alike. The men say it is an outrage.

Rate Very Burdensome. Two dollars may seem like a small sum here, Mr. Starling says, but in Indo-China, money is scarce, incomes are low and the rate is very burdensome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan Tonic and Blood Enricher

DR. W. CHASE'S FAMILY REMEDIES Indigestion Unchecked Leads to Poisoning! If you suffer from indigestion it is a sure sign that your system is being slowly poisoned by the fermentation in the intestines. This condition produces heartburn, belching, gas, flatulence, constipation, irritable, discoloration of the face, swelling of the abdomen or drowsiness. Call for Dr. W. Chase's K-L Pills, which, taken in time, will offset the poison in the system. Read what one former sufferer has to say: Mrs. Lottie J. Dewitt, No. 187 Front St., Port Jervis, New York, writes: "I am glad to say your Medicine is wonderful. For over three years I had indigestion and my system was a mass of pain and I was unable to eat anything. I took your medicine and I feel like a new man."

RESULTS THAT COUNT.

A statement presented in The Press on Sunday, showing in actual figures the results accomplished by Escanaba's council manager form of government in less than one year's operation and for several months of which the city was without a manager, can be accepted as conclusive evidence of the results that are being obtained. The statement was prepared wholly without the knowledge of the city manager and because of that fact it will escape the charge of being propaganda on the part of the present administration and becomes one of the strongest arguments that could possibly be presented in favor of Escanaba's new governmental regime.

The fact that such a splendid showing, as that reflected in the statistics published on Sunday, has been possible in the first year of the operation of the plan, comes as a pleasing surprise to even the most ardent supporters of the council manager form of government. With the terrible jumble in Escanaba's finances that existed when the new plan of government came into effect, even the most sanguine backers of the plan did not believe that appreciable results could be accomplished for several years. Escanaba's council manager government in actual operation is daily reflecting the wisdom and the foresight of the framers of the charter as well as the efficiency of the present administration.

SONG.

Perhaps not a great many of us remember back to the days when the singer Albani was thrilling America with her golden tones. Jenny Lind then was a pleasant memory to old-timers, and Adeline Patti was engaged in one of her many, many farewell tours. A new star appeared. It was Nellie Melba, and she swept the musical world into enthusiasm. So each generation has its sweet singers, and most Americans have in some way adopted the notion that the best come from abroad. Therefore it is a pleasure to read of the success of Ida Sylvia, the little cow girl of Pennsylvania, who three years ago was wont to yodel her father's herd in from pasture, and now is about to make her debut in the opera houses of Naples and Milan, Italy.

IT'S A GAMBLE

Ida has signed her contract, and doubtless in a few years she will be heard in America theaters and concert halls, too. Music is international, if anything is. We rejoice at its beauties in any land and in every tongue. Yet we feel a little prouder, may be of Ida Sylvia because she was an American farmer's daughter, and because her first big appearance will be in the land of song, Italy, which has sent to America so much of what is greatest in music.

DOING QUITE WELL.

Two months ago Governor John M. Parker was sent back to Louisiana with the government's word that the authorities of his state appeared to be capable of handling any situation growing out of activities of secret organizations. On the same day in Louisiana, resolutions were passed at an indignation meeting demanding the impeachment of Parker on the ground that he was not a "big enough man" to handle the Ku Klux Klan. The governor had never been called that before. A few years ago he was known as Fighting John in New Orleans, where he was the moving spirit in rebellion against vicious ring rule. But apparently the seeming hopelessness of dealing with an invisible foe had stamped him into a plea for federal aid. Two months later one of the most substantial of Southern dailies observes that "Governor Parker of Louisiana deserves the thanks of the whole country for the fearless investigation he has instituted into conditions at New Rouge. The governor is getting off the marks and words of the secret tyranny that has given the opportunity to lawless men and lawless organizations to maintain a reign of terror in parts of Louisiana and he is creating fear among all similar bodies and individuals elsewhere."

PARTNER HAS PROVED THAT THE BATTLE IS HALF WON BY MERELY BEING RIGHT IN THE BEGINNING, THAT LAWLESSNESS AND DISORDER CAN NEVER FINALLY PREVAIL IN A STATE WHOSE LAW IS PROSECUTED BY COURAGEOUS MEN.

The Klan had boasted that its membership could vote down any adversary in Louisiana. In some sections of the state its activity was completely out of local control. Parker, his courage once whetted, moved then against a velle army of unknown strength. Whatever the prosecution may produce he has exposed at least the plain yellowness of any masked mob in the presence of his fearless foe. His program appears to be a sound working model for any commonwealth confronted from now on with the same problem. His equipment, the law and right, has never failed finally wherever it has been employed by a prosecutor with strong heart and two fists.

AS A czar in the film industry Will Hays appears to be making a satisfactory living out of a limited monarchy.

DOREEN DECIDES TO FIGHT

Chapter 60. Walter's naive explanation of his tardiness at our part would have made me laugh had it not been Helen Ralston who detained him. As it was I said nothing more about it, yet couldn't dismiss from my mind the thought that the hold she had on him was a strong one, considering he was a married man.

"I am very sorry you were burned; but it was fortunate it wasn't even worse."

"Walter saved my life! Had he not been so quick I should have been ablaze from head to foot. I had nothing on but the draperies I wear for the picture."

"Walter had not told me this, I had supposed Helen dressed to leave when the accident occurred. She went on:

"I never shall forget what I owe to him! I would do anything in the world for him. He never let the flames touch my face."

"She seemed to forget it was Walter's wife she was talking to, her eyes on his face."

"Anyone would do all they could at such a time," I said rather dryly. "You mustn't get an exaggerated idea of Walter's heroism."

"She gave me a quick glance, but I kept my face impassive. She should not know she hurt me, even if she did."

"It's a lovely day," she turned to Walter. "I wonder if Mrs. Page would mind sitting for a bit while you take me for a ride. There are several new magazines on the table," to me, "I'm sure you could amuse yourself with them."

PETER WOULD FEEL BETTER BEHIND BARS

Then He'd Know His Folks Would Be Cared for; He's Just Sick.

Lansing, Feb. 12.—If Peter, the new bed patient at room 11 in the Ingham county tuberculosis sanatorium were sentenced to six months in prison instead of in the sanatorium, or if he had been committed to an insane asylum, the emergency would never have arisen. But as illness rather than crime or insanity has temporarily removed Peter from the ranks of the wage earners, his case presents difficulties.

Details such as Peter's surname and even the auto factory where he was employed until last week have faded into the obscurity of clinic and sanatorium records, for Peter has the pride of the straightbacked Norse. All that is to be known of Peter and his difficulties, is that he has been told he must stay six months at the sanatorium; that at home with Mrs. Peter, he left Olga, and Ottilla, and Maud, and Irene, none of them ten years old; and that Mrs. Peter is very thin and white, and twists her mouth to make sure that her voice is steady when she talks.

She Too, Has "Cold." She tells you that she too, has had a "cold," since last September, and the clinic doctor adds that there are other reasons why she must be very quiet and careful for the next few months. But Mrs. Peter has disregarded his advice, already she has found four roomers and two mealers, and she has decided not to return to the clinic for the chest examination the doctor wants her to have. If they found spot on her lungs, too—Mrs. Peter turns even whiter, when she asks you what Olga and Ottilla and Maud and Irene would do in that case.

"You know," said Peter, his blue eyes gleaming with the tuberculosis nurse, when she went out to call on him yesterday, "you know I feel fine now I've been in here a little. I could start out on a five mile walk right now." He paused, but the nurse caught the implication.

"You go to work now," she warned him, "and you may keep on a year or a little more and then you'll go down in a month or a week. If you stay here six months you've got every prospect of coming out a well man for the rest of your life."

Expenses Go On. "Yes, ma'am," said Peter, "but expenses do go on, you know," he added, gently. He managed to smile a little when he said it; but Mrs. Peter, who was spending the afternoon with him, turned her back, till she was sure of herself.

"Will he stay?" asked the nurse's companion, after they had left him and Mrs. Peter together. The nurse shook her head. "I don't know," she said, "so many don't, and when they come again, it is too late to do anything for them."

But how would Peter and Peter's family be better off if he were in a prison or in an asylum? Oh, yes, the nurse explained that, too. Under such conditions, Olga and Ottilla and Maud and Irene would draw the allowance for dependent children popularly known as the mother's pension. But there is no provision in Michigan's law for the support of dependent children whose father is incapacitated with tuberculosis although records show that tuberculosis produces more than one half the poverty caused by illness in the state.

I couldn't sleep as there was a pain in my back which seemed to be pulling me down. I didn't sleep well and was restless during the night. This trouble caused me to worry and I became depressed and nervous. Black spots passed before my eyes and made me dizzy. My kidneys didn't act right but Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended so highly I decided to try them and a few boxes purchased at the Hill Drug Store entirely rid me of the complaint."

CYCLE WITH ONE WHEEL

To Break All Speed Records, Says Inventor

PROFESSOR E. J. CHRISTIE THE OPERATOR'S SEAT OF HIS GYROSCOPIC UNICYCLERACING CAR.

Marion, Ia.—A one-wheeled racing vehicle that will beat every speed record yet accomplished.

A vehicle that can't turn turtle—that becomes steadier the faster you drive it.

Trains that will run at a dizzy speed overhead using single cables instead of steel rails for tracks.

Professor E. J. Christie thinks he will have made all those things possible when he has completed his "gyroscopic unicycle."

Already Christie has made small models that run at a tremendous speed and can't be overturned. Now he's concentrating on a large model in which a man can ride.

The unicycle is a queer looking device. The main wheel—the one wheel on which the car runs—is 14 feet in diameter and looks like a giant bicycle wheel. Its axle is 12 feet long.

On this axle are mounted two gyroscopic wheels which are propelled independently of the speed of the axle. The gyroscopic force of these two wheels in motion holds the unicycle upright—in fact, they render upsetting the machine impossible.

The unicycle has unlimited speed possibilities, Christie says. It's the ideal racing car, he believes.

And the inventor also claims great commercial possibilities for his device. The fact that it can be operated on an elevated rail or cable for fast mail service opens up one of its many commercial fields, Christie says.

Five Girls Hike Eight Miles In Zero Weather

With the papers full of pictures of bathing girls at Palm Beach, our girls in this part of the peninsula do not mind a little thing like zero weather. This is proven by the fact that five of our young ladies hiked to Gladstone Sunday afternoon, via the Bay Shore Road and although the breeze off the bay was a bit sharp at times they never faltered a bit and walked the entire distance of eight miles.

They left Stephenson Ave. at two o'clock and arrived at Gladstone at five. They went to the hotel and partook of a good supper and came home on the street car later in the evening.

The girls hiked every Sunday afternoon during the summer and fall but a zero weather hike is the first one they had taken for several weeks. They were all at their respective posts of duty Monday morning feeling none the worse for the hike. The young ladies who took part in this out-of-door exercise are the Misses Adel Brady, Blanche Pintal, Ella Radley, Madge Bonner and Anna Clish.

Wilson Puts On Fifteen Pounds

Cleveland Man Writes Friends In Scotland About His Benefits From Tanlac.

"Tanlac has been such a fine thing for me that I have even written some of my friends in Scotland about its goodness," said John M. Wilson, 605 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, O., recently.

"Last summer I worked on a farm and got in a terribly run-down condition. My appetite so completely went back on me that even a good wholesome country meal wouldn't coax it back. A sour stomach, cramping pains and shortness of breath kept me pretty well used up, and the headaches and dizzy spells were fearful. My back ached so bad I could hardly do any lifting and I came in at night so tired and worn-out I couldn't half sleep.

"But Tanlac soon pulled me out of the ditch. Four bottles of the medicine knocked my troubles a-kiting, and I have put on fifteen pounds in weight besides. Why it seems like I have enough strength and energy to last a life-time, and I want my friends and everybody else to know that Tanlac is what fixed me up."

LIGHT WATER BILLS TO BE ON NEW BASIS

Changes Effective in Schedules for March Billing Period.

When bills for electric current are rendered by the city utilities for the March billing period, charges will be made on the basis of the new rates recently adopted by the council, which, spread over the city's entire consumption, amount to a reduction of about ten per cent. Therefore customers are due for a pleasant surprise when they receive their next statements.

Water rates, too, will be based on the new schedules prescribed by the ordinance, while those using water on a flat-rate basis may expect a material increase.

"This change was made for the express purpose of encouraging the installation of meters on all services," C. W. Gham, City Comptroller, declared yesterday, "and it is the plan of the city eventually to give 100 per cent meter service."

"Flat-rate consumers who desire to change over before we get to them in the course of this program may have a meter installed at any time by notifying the Utilities office."

MUSTEROLE WILL NOT BURN.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you'll feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness. 35c and 65c, in jars and tubes.

POTENT EARTHQUAKES. Along the margins of the Pacific Ocean are some of the most potent earthquake regions in the world. There is one to the east of Japan, and farther south, another which includes the Philippine Islands and the Malay Archipelago.

On the other side of the ocean lies a third zone, beginning in Alaska and extending southward. A fourth reaches from a little north of San Francisco, covers Central America and ends to the South of Colombia; while the fifth clings to the western coast of South America.

The Pacific Ocean, unlike the Atlantic is also remarkable in possessing narrow troughs of immense depth. Off the east coast of Japan lies the Trenches Deep. Its greatest depth is 3 1/2 miles, and below its western slope originate many of the greatest of Japanese earthquakes.

The coasts of Chile and Peru are bordered by a series of these troughs. It is along the sloping sides of these troughs that the most destructive Peruvian and Chilean earthquakes originate.

Most great earthquake regions are partly or entirely submarine. But there is one that lies on land, extending from Italy across the Balkan Peninsula to the Himalayas, in which two of every 10 world-shaking earthquakes originate.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT. Harold Lloyd at the Delft theatre in "A Sailor-Made Man," tops an unusually strong movie program. Will Rogers is there in "A Ropin' Fool," and there is another of the ever popular "Leather Pushers."

"Oh, for the life of a sailor!" is the way Harold Lloyd makes you feel after you've laughed yourself weak and foolish over his amazing comedy of the bounding deep, "A Sailor-Made Man."

A snug sum has been spent to give this comedy the atmospheric tone of a feature. Huge exterior and interior sets of the Maharajah's palace were erected. An Oriental street and its bazaars contains a wealth of detail. The battleship scenes were taken aboard the U. S. S. "Frederick," and the navy atmosphere is perfect.

To point out every detail would consume a volume. Let it be said that Lloyd is a rich idler who is advised by the girl's father to go to work if he is serious regarding matrimony. His efforts at a recruiting station are exceedingly funny, but it is his duties on board ship that make the audience hilarious.

The ship reaches an Oriental port and the sailors get shore leave. Here the comedy gets in a zippy touch. The girl has also gone ashore from her father's yacht, and the plot takes up some original stunts before Lloyd succeeds in rescuing her from a harlem and saving his own hide from the villainous Maharajah.

"A Sailor-Made Man" starts with a laugh, and every laugh that follows gets louder, heartier and happier until the final fade-out, which is a knockout piece of business.

AT THE STRAND. A woman as alluring and charming as Cleopatra and with the beauty of Mona Lisa, a beauty that arouses passionate longings akin to madness, such a woman is Antinea, principal Metro special production which opened a two day's engagement at the Strand Theatre yesterday.

"Missing Husbands" is the photoplay title of "Atlantide," a fascinating novel by the famous French author, Pierre Benoit, which his now the literary sensation of Europe.

The story, a strange and fascinating one, concerns two French army explorers, Captain Morhange and Lieutenant Saint-Avit. They are tracing the routes of old caravans in the Sahara when they rescue a man from drowning. He leads them to an oasis on which is located a wonderful palace. Here they met Antinea, queen of this desert kingdom. She falls in love with Captain Morhange, but he repulses her advances. Lieutenant Saint-Avit is smitten by the compelling beauty of the queen and is jealous of her regard for his comrade. The queen drives the lieutenant into a mad frenzy of jealousy and he stabs his friend as he sleeps. But his love for the queen now turns to hate. His attempt to kill her fails, and he flees into the desert. He is found unconscious by a French military expedition. Later, when he is declared fit for service, his one desire is to go to Antinea. He tells two brother officers of her and the three set out on the desert trail to Antinea, love—and perhaps—death.

A brilliant cast of French screen players appear in "Missing Husbands" and these include Stacia Napierkowska, Marie-Louise Iribe, Jean Angelo, Georges Melchior, Franchesi and Abd-El-Kader Ben-All.

Among other things that haven't been getting better and better are parodies of Mr. Coue's prescription.

Washington, D. C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my household, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me." Ida Hewitt, 1329 Penna. Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

The fresh ashes had been dumped that morning by the chore boy employed by Mrs. Tucker, and there had evidently been some live coals left in among the ashes.

HOOSIER VETS SPLIT ON RACE

Indianapolis.—Is it patriotic to watch automobile drivers spin around a speedway at 90 miles an hour?

Throughout Indiana the question is being debated bitterly as a bill pending in the State Legislature that would wipe out the famous Indianapolis Motor Speedway race.

Introduced and pushed through the Senate by Robert L. Moorehead, Indianapolis, a colonel in the World War, on request of officials of the Indiana department of the American Legion, the G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans, the bill became a storm center when it appeared it would be passed by the House.

Opposition to Big House. "It has been impractical in Indianapolis to have any proper observance of Memorial Day because of the hurrah and confusion connected with the race," said Moorehead. "If we must lose Memorial Day or the race, I say lose the race."

Opponents answered in a full-page advertisement: "The most impressive memorial ceremony in America is held at the speedway before the race. Law and order are preserved here, during and after the race by soldiers in the American uniform."

"After the Memorial Day ceremony, live Americans, for approximately six hours, laugh at danger and show the same stuff that Americans showed at Valley Forge, Gettysburg and the Argonne."

"The best way to do homage to America's dead is to keep their spirit alive."

Revoke's Legion's Charter. Skidmore-Dean Post, American Legion, Indianapolis, adopted a resolution opposing the bill. Perry Faulkner, Shelbyville, Ind., speaker, a private in the late war, and state commander of the legion, immediately revoked the post's charter.

Post officials called Faulkner a liar. "All Indiana jumped into the fracas, pouring petitions for and against the legislators. Eleven other Indianapolis posts joined the Skidmore-Dean boys and Faulkner revoked the charter of the St. Mehil-Lover Post. Only one post favored the bill. The posts threatened to form a "rump" legion if Faulkner kicked out any more."

Club and business clubs worked overtime on resolutions and T. C. "Pop" Meyers, veteran speedway manager, announced the owners would dismantle the two-and-a-half-mile brick oval, and stands wherein 125,000 people gathered last Memorial Day, if the bill passed. Detroit, Kansas City, Cleveland, Chicago and Toledo were reported among making bids for it.

Faulkner appealed to National Commander Alvin M. Oswley of the legion for endorsement, but no reply had been received. Robert H. Tyndall, Indianapolis national legion treasurer, opposed the bill. He was a colonel in the Rainbow Division.

Speedway owners asked public support on the ground the property has been turned over to the government free as an aviation repair depot, and $40,000 worth of hangars donated during the war.

OUT OUR WAY

THE TRAMP

BY WILLIAMS

NEW UMPIRE BANISHES 'EM IN NOVEL WAY

Whitey Witt of the New York Yankees will probably never forget a run-in that he had with Umpire Bill Guthrie last year.

Guthrie, who received a trial in the American League last fall, is decisive if not elegant, in his conversation. New York was playing at Washington. Witt was the lead-off man in the opening inning. Very fleet of foot, he hit a slow bouncer to the infield, and made a very close play at first for Guthrie. The umpire called him out and Witt immediately started to squawk.

"Don't be singing the 'blues' to me," was Guthrie's reply. "I know all the words to that song." Witt persisted in telling Guthrie how blind he was and what a rotten decision he had made. It was the same old story the umpire hears hundreds of times during the summer.

"Same old blues!" said Guthrie as he listened to Witt's chatter. "If you haven't any new stuff you better be on your way, or you are through."

Witt persisted. "I have just tied a can on you. Better leave quietly, for if I hear the rattle of tin on the way to the club house you will probably get three days to think it over."

About this time, Miller Huggins, who had been coaching at third, rushed across the diamond to get an earful.

Guthrie didn't even give Huggins a chance to get into action, for as he saw him dashing madly from third, he yelled: "Take the bat boy with you, Witt."

Huggins and Witt had been chased.

UMPS HANGS OUT DISTRESS SIGN: PLAYERS QUIT

According to Story One Arbiter Tells On Another.

Hildebrand is a Mason. On the Cleveland club are a number of Shriners. In a game at Boston, Hildebrand gave a very close play against Cleveland, calling Steve O'Neil, who is a Knight of Columbus, out at the plate.

In an instant Hildebrand was surrounded by a dozen Cleveland players, most of them being Shriners. They kicked long and loud before Hildebrand was able to continue the game.

That evening the umpire who was working with Hildebrand, and who happened to be neither a Mason nor a K. of C., thought to have a little fun at Hildebrand's expense.

It was brought out in the conversation that ensued that the Shriners always stuck together when in trouble. That was the cue for the other umpire.

"Seems to me you should have hung out the distress signal to-day when all the brother members of your order were around you at the plate."

"Why so?" asked Hildebrand. Dineen pulled it.

"Well, it's just like this," replied the other umpire. "Last month I was working with Dineen, who is a Knight of Columbus. He got into a jam, and as five or six Knights of Columbus started to rush up to protest his ruling, he made a peculiar pass with his hand; they all quickly returned to their position and not a single word of protest was uttered."

Of course, no such an incident ever happened, but no doubt Hildebrand is convinced that the K. of C.'s are a bit more loyal on the ball field.

Columbia Winner from Yale Quint

TWENTY BUCKS EVERY MINUTE IS FAIR WAGE

Every branch of sport has made rapid strides of progress in the last five years. A big crowd of five years ago is a slim gathering today.

Not so long ago, $12,000 was considered a top-notch salary for a big league baseball player. In fact, there were few men who were commanding stipends of those proportions.

Consider then the case of one Johnny Beckman, sensational forward and guard of the New York Celtics, world championship basketball team.

Beckman is said to draw down the amount mentioned above for his services on the courts this season. Incidentally he is the highest paid player in the game today.

And that's some salary when it is considered that the indoor pastime covers but five months or so at the most, with from five to six games being played weekly, and each contest lasting but 40 minutes.

In other words, Beckman gets about $100 for every game in which he participates. Simmered down, it means something like 20 bucks a minute. A fairly good recompense in any branch of endeavor.

Belgians Still in Lead, 6-Day Race

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Henry and Theodore Wynandau of Belgium were still in the lead with 68 points at 11 o'clock tonight, the 26th hour of the six-day bicycle race here. At that time all the teams except one had traveled 528 miles, and eight laps. Wiley and Keenan were one lap behind them.

Crippled Michigan Team Beats Gophers

Ann Arbor, Feb. 12.—Michigan's basketball team, crippled by sickness and eligibility rules defeated Minnesota here tonight 34 to 18. Only four members of the regular squad, Kipke, Paper, Ely and Cappon were eligible for tonight's contest.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 12.—Indiana University defeated the University of Illinois 31 to 24 in a western conference basketball game here tonight.

SOUTH PILES UP GOOD CARDS

INTERSECTIONALS. Leading football teams of the south have already scheduled eight important games with rivals in the north and east.

Virginia for the first time in 10 years fails to play an eastern team. It is possible that Virginia may yet be placed on some big eastern eleven's schedule.

Many of the leading colleges of the south expect to have greatly improved eleven's over 1922, and the world knows the south boasted of some mighty fine teams last year.

Here is the list of big games already on tap for football fans: Georgia Tech vs. Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind. Georgia Tech vs. Penn State at State College, Pa. University of Georgia vs. Yale at New Haven Conn.

Vanderbilt vs. University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich. Centre vs. University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. University of Alabama vs. Syracuse at Syracuse, N. Y. North Carolina vs. Yale at New Haven, Conn.

Atlanta, Ga.—When the grid-iron hosts swing into action for the 1923 campaign, major leagues of the football world in the north and east will find themselves involuntarily embracing themselves against the attack of powerful eleven's that will go thundering up from the south to engage them in warfare.

Heretofore the invasion of the squads from Dixie has met with varied success, but has been sufficiently note worthy to make the leading colleges of the country seek return dates with the best of the southern institutions to such an extent that there is now a keen rivalry for the choice dates.

Advancement of football in the south has been so material in recent years that the big universities of other sections have found a real danger in the annual pilgrimages of the various teams to their domains.

Feat of Centre College. The feat of Centre College in 1921, when they beat Harvard at Cambridge, attracted attention to the "wonder team," while the strong fight put up by Georgia Tech, Auburn and others, and the victory of Alabama over the University of Pennsylvania also put the "thin red line" from Tuscaloosa on the map.

Intersectional competition first reached a high stage between the north and east teams and the south back in the days when Dan McGugin first started turning out wonderful machines at Vanderbilt.

It will be recalled that in 1906 the Vanderbilt Commodores defeated the great Carlisle Indians, then at the peak of their glory, by a score of 4 to 6, and in 1910 the Commodores held Yale to a scoreless tie in New Haven.

Two years later the Vanderbilt team held a great Harvard eleven to a 9 to 3 score, and from time to time achieved singular success in intersectional competition. Only last season McGugin's fine combination held Michigan to a scoreless tie.

Hopes for Even Break. A survey of the tentative schedules for 1923 reveals the fact that many Dixie teams will invade the north for games that should rank among the best of the season. There is a touch of color to these clashes between the greatest teams of the country and the cream of the southern grids that cannot be matched even in "Big Three" or "Big Ten" play. Bitter rivalry of 1861, that swept through the war lines of Lee and Grant, has been laid to rest, but from it has grown a modern form of athletic competition that knows no bounds.

While the south offered stern opposition last season, Alabama was the only eleven to put over a big win. Alabama's defeat of Pennsylvania, after that team had defeated the Navy, was one of the upsets of the season.

This year the south feels confident that it will turn the north and east back several times. In fact, is hopeful of getting an even split in the intersectional games scheduled.

BILL EVANS SAYS

Knowing when to quit is the big puzzle for most sport celebrities.

Larry Lajoie and Hans Wagner, two of the greatest infielders in the history of the game, retired without having their fame dimmed in the minors.

Lajoie and Wagner could have played a number of years in the minors and drew down big money. Both chose to forsake the diamond when their major league days were over.

Lajoie tried one year as a manager of a minor league team and was successful, but evidently baseball lost its appeal when he passed out of the majors.

In the fight game Packer McFarland quit cold when seemingly at the top of the game. McFarland no doubt felt himself slipping and decided to ward off the inevitable defeat by some ordinary fighter.

In discussing the fight game as a business McFarland once said to me: "Fighting is a great game when you do all the punching and don't get punched. The moment I discover my cleverness no longer sufficient to keep me out of the way of the other fellow's punches I'm through."

In striking contrast to the case of McFarland can be cited the careers of Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast, Jim Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons and a host of their ring celebrities.

During my career in the majors I have seen scores of stars fade out, not without a struggle, however. Then they have drifted to the minors, first a league of high classification, then a gradual decline until they hit the smallest minor.

It is really a shame to have the many remarkable deeds of famous big leaguers besmirched by a spotty finish in the "bushes." Fandom is fickle, it soon forgets success in failure.

Willie Keeler, who recently died, and Bill Dineen, now umpiring in the American League, were exceptions to the rule of not knowing when to quit.

After Keeler passed out of the majors he took a whirl at the minor league game with Toronto. When Toronto played in Newark he always lived at his home in Brooklyn. One evening I met him on Broadway.

"How are things going, Willie?" I asked.

"Rotten," he replied. "I missed a couple of balls today that a 10-year-old youngster could have caught. I'm through." Keeler never played another game.

Budd Dineen finished his pitching career with the St. Louis Browns. He had an ironclad contract for the year. His arm, which had been troubling him, was given a long rest. Then he tried it out in a minor league exhibition game. The "bushers" made something like 25 hits. Dineen turned in his uniform that evening although he could have forced his team to carry him the rest of the season.

opposition last season. Alabama was the only eleven to put over a big win. Alabama's defeat of Pennsylvania, after that team had defeated the Navy, was one of the upsets of the season.

This year the south feels confident that it will turn the north and east back several times. In fact, is hopeful of getting an even split in the intersectional games scheduled.

SENTIMENT IN GAME? SURE!

Bill Killifer Hunts Up Old Bobby Wallace, Hires Him.

Who said there wasn't any sentiment in baseball? Bill Killifer, now manager of the Chicago Cubs, made his major debut in 1907 with the St. Louis Browns.

The Browns of that year was composed largely of veteran players. Killifer didn't get much of a chance and but little advice from the vets.

There was one exception in the squad, Bobby Wallace, star shortstop of the Browns. Wallace took a real interest in Killifer and tutored him in many ways. That was back in 1907.

A few months ago Bill Killifer learned that Bobby Wallace was without a job for 1923. Killifer immediately signed him as a scout without quibbling over salary.

Looks Up Bobby. The Cubs' manager figured the player who looked after him in 1907 was just the fellow to tutor his young players. The addition of Wallace should work to the advantage of all concerned.

Wallace, who spent 24 years in the majors, broke in as a pitcher and won fame at third. became one of the greatest shortstops in the history of the game and could play a fine game at second, was a versatile athlete.

Recently, when asked if he noticed any difference between the days of the present and the old days he replied:

"It is not my intention to criticize the ball player of today, but the important change as I see it is that it has become a one-position profession. By that I mean the player decides that he is suited for one position and stops right there, only in rare cases.

"I remember when I reported to the Cleveland Spiders. I pitched throughout 1894 and to the middle of 1895. On the bench one day Tebeau gave me the catching paraphernalia and said: "Hev kid, I understand you did a bit of catching over at Franklin, Pa. Well you're going to catch for us today."

"And I caught, too, without trying to argue with Tebeau. "In the spring of 1896 we were down in Louisville. Tebeau called me over to his seat on the bench 10 minutes before the game started and told me that Chippy McVarr had a lame arm.

"Here's your glove, go out to third base today," were the words from Pat. I did not pitch another game and I was at third base until the spring of 1899. My next important conference with Tebeau was like the one of 1896. Ed McKean had contracted a sore arm and couldn't throw. I saw Pat eyeing around the bench. He spotted me.

"Do you remember, Bon.

FORMER PRISON CHAPLAIN GUEST OF KIWANIS

Gives Club Glimpses of Wide Range of Experiences.

Experiences as chaplain of the Marquette penitentiary, as an army chaplain and as an inspector of military prisons in this country and abroad during the world war, when he held the rank of captain, were woven into a delightfully instructive narrative by the Rev. Fr. Seifert of Dayget before members of the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

Father Seifert was ordained in 1915, going directly to Marquette prison as chaplain. On the entry of the United States he enlisted and was commissioned lieutenant, being stationed first at Camp Custer and subsequently at other camps on this side of the Atlantic. Later he was promoted to a captaincy and made an army prison inspector, in which position he had an opportunity to get close glimpses of, virtually every important military and federal prison on the American and European continents. He made six voyages across the Atlantic during the war period.

There are nearly 7,000 convicts in the state of Michigan, Fr. Seifert declared, more than one-third of them from the city of Detroit. Nine out of every ten criminals come from the cities and only ten per cent from the rural districts, he estimated.

Criminal tendencies, he asserted are not inherited but are acquired through associations and circumstances. He said that half of the children in the reform schools and homes for delinquents in Michigan are from homes where where the parents have become estranged or divorced.

He expressed impatience with well-to-do men who openly violate laws, knowing that their influence or their money will permit them to escape punishment for their misdeeds; declaring that their example is the cause of many a man of lesser means misdoings.

In his address, he reviewed the causes of crime, told how it is linked with poverty in many instances and expressed the opinion that more laws are broken in America than any other nation because there are so many laws which have not the sympathy and support of the majority of the people.

Promises to Return. It was liberally sprinkled with narratives of personal experiences which ranged from conversations with criminals to the story of an execution by shooting in a Utah prison, in which the chaplain had a narrow escape from death because of the rapid timing of the firing from behind a "blind wall."

So impressed were the Kiwanians that they stood and applauded for five minutes at the conclusion and extended a vosterious invitation for Father Seifert to return. The clergyman promised that he would address the club again at an early date.

THE TIMID LOVER. The young lover had at last bolstered up his courage and was resolved to interview his sweetheart's father without delay.

"Darling," he said to her, "I am going to ask him this very minute."

"My brave boy!" she murmured in reply, as he went off.

The girl waited in suspense and at last he returned looking very thoughtful.

"Is it good news?" she asked, eagerly.

"I don't know," was the reply. "John, what do you mean?"

"I don't know whether he said 'Take her, my boy,' or 'Take care, my boy!'"—Exchange.

New York—Whether fat is funny or fatal is the big question now agitating the Paris boulevards almost to the exclusion of the Ruhr situation.

Since Henri Berand, the plump journalist, won the Prix Goncourt for his novel based on the tragedy of too much adipose tissue, called "The Fat Martyr," the waistline has held the center of the stage.

Henri sees only the dark side of the fat question. The huge shadow cast by the portly persons obscures for him entirely the fact that on the reverse side the sun has as relatively a huge expanse to shine.

Rather Too Much. For Henri, fat could only mean the first three letters in fatal, since for every true Frenchman the grand passion is the paramount issue of life. Business, politics, art, are all incidental to "armor." Of course, Don Jauking, with a 50-inch waist, would be a bit thick.

Curiously enough, it is also a journalist who has taken up the fight for the fat on this side of the water. William Johnston, the well known Sunday editor for a New York paper, has published a small book on a big subject, called "The Fun of Being a Fat Man."

No greater authority on the subject could well be found, since Mr. Johnston, on the privacy of his bath-room scales, weighs in at 250 pounds.

Fat Spells Fun. Yet for him fat spells fun. He contends that the fats get much more pleasure out of life than the thin. They really enjoy good food and can eat to their heart's and stomach's content. They always have cheerful and generous dispositions, and optimism and opulence are measured in equal portions according to height. Indeed, the only tragedy Mr. Johnston admits in a fat man's life is the fact that he can't wear a light-gray checked suit successfully, or sit in a canoe.

Since business and bank rolls are the main concern of an American man's life, with the love motif merely incidental, it is plain to be seen the expansive waistline is no detriment in Wall Street.

Taft, Cobb, Ruth. "Mr. Johnston counts over, on pudgy fingers, the many great men of the past who were generously accoutred with besh. There's Cromwell, Napoleon, Bismarck, Balzac, to mention a few—to say nothing of having with us today in our very own American midst ex-President Taft, Irvin Cobb and Babe Ruth.

It is the stressing of the fact that fat is synonymous with generous good nature that makes the greatest appeal in Mr. Johnston's book, however. Surely every American wife who reads it will immediately begin feeding her better half on peanuts and ice cream with hot chocolate sauce until he becomes a puffed up three-fourths.

MOTHER AGREES. "Dearest, I am not worthy of you."

"That's what mother says, Jack, dear. How lovely to find you two agreeing."

AMPLE CAUSE FOR DIVORCE. "My husband is a deceitful wretch."

"What makes you think that?"

"Last night he pretended to believe me when he knew I was lying to him."

PLAN HEARING OF SCHOOL MEN FOR SATURDAY

Delta County Tax Proposal Will Be Submitted Then.

Delta county's plan for redistribution of the primary school interest money will be explained at a public hearing of Michigan school men to be held February 17, it was announced yesterday in a letter from O. I. Bandeen, who is in Lansing on the matter.

Decision to hold the hearing was reached after the plan had been laid before the legislative committees of the county school commissioners and the Michigan State Teachers' Association last Wednesday.

"We explained the plan thoroughly to the committees," Mr. Bandeen writes. "And they unanimously voted to hold a hearing of school men in Lansing this coming Saturday. We believe every one of them is fairly well sold on the plan."

Mr. Bandeen probably will not return from Lansing until after the hearing. When he does return, a meeting of the various local committees who expect to go to the capitol later will be called.

Supt. of Schools W. E. Vold, who accompanied Mr. Bandeen to Lansing and attended the committee meeting, agrees that prospects are bright for the success of the plan.

ORGANDIE FLOWERS. Petaled flowers in various shades or organdie with fancy stitching in blending or contrasting hues are a recent novelty in decoration imported from Paris.

A petition is being prepared and will be signed by practically every resident of Lathrop regarding the removing of the C. & N. W. Ry.'s depot which has been at its present location upwards of fifty years.

The residents of Lathrop are protesting strongly against the residents of Turin, who are trying to have the depot at Turin instead of Lathrop.

Delta County residents want the depot at Lathrop as it is one of the oldest land marks in that vicinity, but the Turin folks want it in Marquette county. The petition will be presented to the superintendent of the C. & N. W. Ry. and much talk is going on about the vicinity regarding this state of affairs.

Parties who have no land in either county are interested in watching the developments of this case.

Eighty-five thousand people have been murdered in the United States during the last ten years.

Breaks your Cold in 24 hours

DROP a Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablet in a glass of water. Observe that it disintegrates within 10 seconds. Subject any other "quinine tablets" to the same experiment—and notice that it takes from 30 minutes to an hour and a half to "break up."

It's quick action you need when you sense the first sign of a cold. It's quick action you get when you take Hill's and break a cold in 24 hours, or in a gripe in three days.
