It reads: Resolved, That the City extend its thanks to the Chamber of Commerce and the several donors who have made possible the present White Way lighting system on Ludington street, and that the City hereby expresses its appre- ciation and gratitude to the ben- efactors of the city. Tonight's event is by no means purely local. One Escanaba man who returned yesterday from the south declared that he had heard it discussed on the train all the way from Chicago. It is believed that scores of residents from the territory surrounding Escanaba will be in the city this evening to witness the first illumination, and it goes without saying that every- one from the city who can find a place on Ludington street will oc- cupy it before 7:30 this evening. The first illumination of the new lights will mark the culmi- nation of one of the briefest and yet one of the most successful cam- paigns ever conducted here, fol- lowed by weeks of conscientious work, sometimes under difficul- ties by the traction and city crews in getting the system ready for operation. Special window displays are be- ing prepared along the length of Ludington street today; superfluous poles have been removed, and every effort will be made to have the city's chief thoroughfare look- ing its best when the flood of light comes on.	Delta Insurance Agency Gold Bond Policies Since 1880	B. ### THE GREATER THING.

(From the Arkansas Gazette)

However humble the place I may hold
 Or lowly the trails I have trod,
 There's a child who bases his faith on me:
 There's a dog who thinks I'm a god.

Lord, keep me worthy—Lord, keep me clean
 And fearless and unbeguiled,
 Lest I lose caste in the sight of a dog
 And the wide, clear eyes of a child.

Lest there shall come in the years to be
 The blight of a withering grief,
 And a little dog mourn for a fallen god
 And a child for his lost belief.

Speaking of print-shop foremen, Eugene Field once printed this in his famous "Sharps and Flats" column:
 "Who is this Ferocious looking Man? He is foreman in a printing office. He gets paid for Throwing Men Down Stairs when they Come in to Lick the Editor, and for Putting wrong dates at the Head of the Paper. He can Pi more type in fifteen Minutes than Seven Printers can Set up in Two weeks. He loves to ask the Editor for Copy. If it were not for Him the Paper would look pretty Well every morning. Everything would be Fat and none of the Live Ads would be left out."

But, as a matter of fact, did you ever know of anyone, outside the comic magazines, who spent a honeymoon at Niagara Falls?

for this important work.
 The postoffice department informs congress that existing air mail lines have completed the necessary experimentation, save as to night flying. The utility of airplanes as mail carriers has been demonstrated beyond questioning. The time has come for definitely adopting the vehicle and depending on it for quick and safe transportation of mail matter. Meteorological conditions have been studied to the limit of necessity. Air routes can now be laid out with confidence. They should be. We have no doubt that congress will take this view. If it does not it cannot justify any appropriation for air mail service.
 Expenditures inadequate to put this branch in a state of highest perfection and utility will be little better than money wasted. Reluctance to take full advantage of opportunities on account of expense involved is unbecoming a great country and not consonant with American practice. But the air mail service, once established will pay its own way. This is the assurance given by the postmaster general. It is based on data gathered during the experimental period.

DEVELOP THE AIR MAIL.
 The postoffice department adopts the only sane view of the air mail service, from an economic standpoint, when it asks congress to grant it the appropriation it needs for successful consummation or to kill it by voting no appropriation. But the country will not favor any backward step. Experiments conducted with meager appropriations from congress have demonstrated that if conducted on a feasible basis the air mail service will pay its own way. To place it on a self-sustaining basis, the postmaster general says, will require an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the coming year. This year congress provided only $500,000.

"Chapters From a Woman's Life"

BY JANE PHELPS

HELEN FEEDS JACK CHOCO. LATES.
 Chapter 69.
 No one heard me enter the studio and I stood in the door astonished at what I saw. Helen Ralstrom had Jack in her lap and was playing with him. Jack was laughing gleefully while Walter stood beside them looking smilingly on. A domestic picture that made me say almost angrily:
 "I'll take Jack now."
 Neither showed the slightest embarrassment, Helen speaking first.
 "He's a dear! Do let him stay a little longer."
 "No, come to Mother, Jack!" I held out my arms only to see him cuddle closer to her.
 "He's fallen a victim to Helen, Doreen. Seems to like her better than either of us, wouldn't come to me when I tried to coax him away from her."
 "Come, Jack," I said, as his chubby arms encircled Helen's neck, "go by-by with mother."
 He commenced to cry and clung to her.
 I took him from her, screaming and kicking.
 "Children always like me," she said blandly as she watched a curious smile on her face.
 I made no reply but without waiting to quiet Jack I went out. The picture she made with my boy on her lap, while the boy's father looked on in admiration had upset me terribly. In the hallway Jack soon became quiet and I took him directly home. I was in no mood to make calls. That night my baby was terribly ill. He woke crying and in distress. I tried simple remedies, then as he seemed no better called

"Oh, Mrs. Page, how cruel! He loved me before I gave him a bit. You won't keep him away from the studio because I was foolish? Walter said he would bring him often. See, I bought a little horse for him to play with next time he comes."
 "Home is the best place for him," I said, and walked out. "What in the world did you do to hurt Helen's feelings today?" Walter asked when he came home. He had not been in the studio when I called.
 "She fed Jack cream chocolates yesterday. That was the reason he wanted to stay with her, of course he loved the taste of them. I told her she had made him very ill."
 "She did it out of kindness and, poor girl, she was heartbroken. Said you wouldn't let Jack come to the studio again. She cried so bitterly I had to promise I'd bring him as often as I had time. I never saw anyone so cut up as she was."
 "She might have killed him. He shan't go where she is again."
 "He's my child as much as yours. He'll go with me when I choose to take him," Walter replied angrily. "To hear you talk one would think she had made him sick purposely, instead of through mistaken kindness."
 "I'm not so sure she didn't give him the candy to make him like her, not caring whether it hurt him or not," I said, as he lunged out.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.
If you can visualize a man who is a collector, a domestic happiness expert, a former mule driver, who doesn't cuss and still is a man, then you have a fairly good mental picture of "Clarence," whose exploits form the basis of the Paramount picture of the same name coming to the Delft Theater today. But even with this mental picture you have not seen told of the straggly hair of Clarence, nor of his huge tortoise-shell spectacles which help make him an unforgettable figure, in this production.

Above all else, Clarence is an extremely likable chap, and all because he happens into the Wheeler family just in time to prevent the family breaking up. Barking and biting has set the nerves of each member on edge and the inevitable is about to happen, when along comes Clarence, and with a calm word here, a soft carpat there and a clever display of diplomacy and tact at all times, he rebuilds the tottering house of cards into a mansion of peace and happiness.

Just how Clarence does this cannot be adequately described for there is a subtle something to it which defies description. Both wove it into the famous play from which the picture was adapted. As "Clarence," Wallace Reid has never done anything which quite equals his droll humor and likableness in this part. He receives excellent support from Agnes Ayres as Violet Pinney, while May McAvoy makes a sparkling success in the sub-deb role of Cora Wheeler.

The picture is a William de Mille production and is the first of a humorous nature that this capable director has given to the screen public. Clara Beranger wrote the screen play.

BARR SCHOOL.
The various grades of the Barr school will celebrate Washington's birthday with a program of patriotic songs, stories and readings. The lower grades will have patriotic marches with their caps and swords and each pupil will take part in the program in some way or other.
February being the month of birthdays and also patriotic month the pupils were thoroughly instructed during the entire month on patriotism. The program of today will be a review on the work taken up during the month.

FRANKLIN SCHOOL.
The Eighth Grade of the Franklin school, which has an enrollment of almost 200 students, is divided into four sections, making the work less difficult for those in charge to handle such large classes. These four sections have been working on a special project for history, visualizing their study of plantation life in the south.
One section has worked out a sand table, another is working on a scenario while another has worked on a minstrel show which will be staged this afternoon at the school in the assembly room.
The following is the cast of characters:
James Carroll, Master of the plantation—Theodore Apostle.
Mrs. Carroll, Mistress—Irene Fraeige.
Robert Carroll, The elder son—Sigurd Erickson.
Elizabeth Carroll, The elder daughter—Louise Edwards.
Bennie Lee, The small daughter—Edith Estman.
Tom, The small son—James Wilkinson.
Miss Eliza, The maiden aunt—Jane Kennedy.
Thomas O'Connor Smith, Tutor—George Roche.
George Jackson, A neighboring planter—Alvin St. Pierre.
Clarabelle James, Elizabeth's chum—Beattie Schram.
Auctioneer—Laurentz Schou.
Sheriff—Wilmore Berglund.
Jose, The accomplice in the crime—Stephen Lyons.
Mammy Sue—Frances Hatfield.
Uncle Remus—Sule Kujala.
Jericho, The butler—David Alporovitz.
Jim, A young slave—Alfred Valentine.
Aunt Dinah, The cook—Josephine Gaffner.
Sambo, A young slave—Lorentz Schou.
Pearline Perony, A small negro—Mildred Carlson.

TOM SIMS SAYS
Turks have made marriage compulsory. Another Turkish atrocity.

Even though the Chinese New Year is in February, they are much more than six weeks behind the times.

When business is slow it is a good idea to get after it.

Men who think they know it all do not know all they think.

AT THE STRAND.
When Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, enacts an emotional scene, even the dogs register sympathy! This was demonstrated on the set where Miss Ayres was portraying a little "sob stuff" for "A Daughter of Luxury," her latest Paramount starring vehicle, which will be seen at the Strand again today.

The dog sat in Miss Ayres' lap as she registered a sympathetic and appealing expression. While the camera turned, the dog looked up at the actress, noted the wistful look on her face, and reaching up his head, licked her gently on the cheek.

"Now isn't that a dog-gone shame!" observed Director Paul Powell, while all the members of the troupe enjoyed a hearty laugh at Miss Ayres' expense.

Successful roller bearings for trains, for a long-time dream of engineers, seem to have now been produced in England. One man pushed with ease a twenty-seven ton coach equipped with the new bearings, whereas it had taken seven men to push it without bearings. It is expected that the saving in fuel will be about thirty per cent.

Frederick County, Maryland, produces more gold fish than any other part of America. About 370 acres in the county is given up to this underwater farming, and more than 100,000,000 fish are shipped every year.

Put confidence in too many strangers and you soon won't have any.

"Fluke" Says Lauder When Duncan Wins

San Francisco, Calif.—Three years is a long time to wait, but Harry Lauder will have vengeance, he vows. Since 1910, the comedian has played David Duncan, of San Francisco, nine games of golf, and Duncan has won exactly nine times. Before the ninth contest, which took place yesterday, Sir Harry promised to hand Duncan such a trimming as to wipe out the string of defeats.

But Duncan proceeded to administer a whipping even worse than any of its predecessors. Shedding his Scottish poise, the comedian gave vent to his displeasure and summed up his feelings by putting a shell hole in the green with his iron, and exclaiming, "I'm making a bloody fluke of the whole show."

Later Lauder assured his conqueror, "This is not the end, Davie."

They have agreed to play No. 10 in 1925.

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean white ointment made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts. FIRE DESTROYS GENERAL STORE AT WHITE DALE
Loss Estimated At $2,000; Insurance $1,200.

Word was received here last evening of the destruction by fire Saturday night of William Boman's store at White Dale, twelve miles east of Manistiquish, on the Soo line. The loss was estimated at $2,000 with $1,200 insurance.

Mr. Boman, who lives on the second floor, noticed that it seemed to be very light outside. Investigating, he found the upper part of his building in flames. The cause is uncertain, but it is believed to have been a defective chimney. When he reentered the house to rouse his family, he said, the flames had noticeably increased in headway.

Those in the hotel next door had not yet retired, and assisted in removing all material possible from the store, so that the loss in merchandise was small. The building, however, a frame structure, burned to the ground, as the limited supply of water was used to prevent the hotel from catching fire. The paint on the hotel walls was scorched and the wood was smoking even with all available protection, and only the collapse of the walls of the store building prevented the ignition of the hotel, it is believed.

Fire of unknown origin started at 2:10 Sunday morning in the kitchen on the second floor of the residence at 309 South Nineteenth street, owned by Frank Lequila, and before it could be checked had done damage estimated at $1,000. Mr. Lequila was awakened from sleep by a noise he said, and found the entire rear end of the building afire. When the fire truck left the hall, the glow of the flames was plainly visible.

An attempt was made to smother the fire entirely with the use of chemicals, but the blaze had gotten in between the walls and secured considerable headway, so this proved impossible. The amount of water used was small, however, and water damage was slight. Insurance agents and others complimented Chief Johnson and his men for the efficiency of their work, and keeping the damage down to the figure it reached. In view of the start the fire had, the loss is covered by insurance.
