SCHOOL BILL REALLY WON, CARTER SAYS

Representative Will Be Candidate in 1924, He Announces.

Edward R. Carter, Delta member of the state legislature, returned to his home at Escanaba after a session of the legislature...

"We Didn't Lose." We didn't lose on the school bill," he said. "While we did not accomplish the seemingly impossible work of putting through in the first trial we laid the foundation for a bill which cannot fail in the session."

The people of Michigan have been educated to the importance of the measure. The united power of all the big industrial centers of the lower peninsula was necessary to bring about the smothering of the measure at the session just past. We go in to put it through next year from every indication it is certain."

Expects Special Session. Rumors of a special session to be called in June or July to provide means of financing the new highway building and maintenance program have been strengthened by the demand for registration in the state, Mr. Carter said. The session will probably be held in the latter part of the session.

Soon after dandelions bloom, throwing cold water dampens the enthusiasm.

Building Crews Make Alterations On Local Shops

Northwestern line building crews have begun a program of alteration and repair which is planned to bring the local roundhouse and shop buildings to a higher degree of efficiency than they have ever known.

Five roundhouse stalls are being connected with the machine shops by an extension of the roundhouse roof to the machine shop. The result will be a worth while addition to the stall space and will make practically an extra shop bay of the space now between the two buildings.

Between the machine and blacksmith shops the long tracks between the building with their short movable cross track for transferring engines from the main axial track to any door of the blacksmith shop are being cleared of an accumulation of rubbish and made fit for service.

The improvements will add greatly to the flexibility of the engine handling organization in the shops and provide a means of transferring a "Live" or "Dead" engine to any part of the shop with ease.

Offer Free Trip To State Meet In Membership Drive

A free trip to the Ironwood state Legion convention during August with all expenses paid, will be the reward of the Cleveland Post member who brings in the largest number of new members in the post's present membership campaign.

INVASION

Army of "Apanites" to Root Orchard Pests.

DR. JOHN SUMMERS.

By Harry B. Hunt. Washington, May 5.—A Japanese invasion of America, engineered by an employe of the United States government itself, will be undertaken within the next two months.

The little yellow invaders will arrive at Pacific ports, the center of their operations will be in New England.

Entomologically, they are a species of "apanites." In everyday lingo they are parasitic insects which like to use the caterpillar of the gypsy moth as hatchling places for their eggs.

Summers has covered a large section of the globe rounding up parasites to prey on other parasites. His job is to pick the insects that are harmless to plant and animal life, but are deadly enemies of other and harmful insects, and sick the good bugs on the bad ones.

PAIGE PROVES WORTH IN TRIP THRU EUROPE

Driver Tells Interesting Story of Tour Abroad.

Detroit, Mich., May 9.—Touring Europe is not nearly so difficult as imagined by most Americans according to Melville A. Bleya, of Los Angeles, California.

They drove from Los Angeles to New York, visiting the Grand Canyon and Niagara Falls. At New York the car was shipped on the Cedric for Liverpool, where Bleya's first action on landing was to apply for membership in the Automobile Association and Motor Union.

To obtain this pass or "Trip-cate," the applicant underwent an exhaustive examination to prove his qualifications and the car was thoroughly inspected to determine its mechanical fitness.

Visits Historical Points. From Liverpool the tour led them to Edinburgh, Scotland; down the east coast of Scotland and England to London; Chester; Stratford-on-Avon; Oxford and Dover where ship was taken across the Channel to Calais, France.

The signs over the inns particularly interested the Bleya party in the tour of England. The inns included: Red Lion Inn at Banbury Cross, built in 1570; Ye Old Brown Cow Inn; Bull and Dog Inn; Ye Black Bear Inn; The Green Swan Inn; The White Horse Inn; Bear and Key Inn; The Haunted House Inn; and Ye Brown Squirrel Inn.

Club Proves Aid. In two hours the car was ready for the Continental trip. Expecting to tour France later the party immediately left for Belgium, visiting Ostend, Bruges, Ghent, Antwerp, Brussels, Battlefield of Waterloo, battlefields of Flanders, and then over into Holland visiting Rotterdam, The Hague, Isle of Marken, Edam (famous for its cheese) Voldenden and thence down into Alsace and Lorraine.

They visited the Valley of the Meuse, No Man's Land, Verdun, Metz and Strasbourg, where they crossed the Rhine into Germany and toured northward along the Rhine through the occupied territory and over into Germany proper. Entering Germany they experienced their worst troubles.

Italian Roads Bad. Arriving at Naples September 10th they continued south over what Bleya terms "the worst roads imaginable." He says, however, that the famous Amalfi Drive, thirty miles over a scenic route, out from the side of the mountains and overhanging the sea, more than compensated for the disagreeable features.

NOTICE. A regular meeting of Sandy Camp 2932 of Modern Woodmen of America will be held on Thursday evening, May 10, at Grenier's hall. A smoker will be held after the meeting and a good time assured those who attend.

'TOO MUCH BUSINESS' IRKS NEW, U. S. POSTAL HEAD

HARRY S. NEW

BY HARRY B. HUNT NEA Service Writer Washington.—Too much business.

That's what's troubling Harry S. New, postmaster general, at the end of his first month as head of Uncle Sam's postal service.

New, it is unofficially reported here, is considering violating the law in order to maintain deliveries and to prevent a demoralizing breakdown in postal service.

Early in March, a blanket order was sent to city postmasters to cut delivery expense to the limit. The extent of these cuts was left to the discretion of postmasters.

As a result, many postmasters cut more deeply than discreetly. A large percentage of them sought to retrench on parcel post deliveries.

In some towns, where two deliveries a day had been made, one delivery was ordered. In New York, where six deliveries were cut to five, the operation was less painful.

Mail service curtailed—with the volume of business admittedly increasing! Why? Wherefore? What's the big idea? The public wanted to know.

The Piffle Hook

THE ULTIMATE abolition of titles is proposed in a bill presented in the British house of commons by Mr. Arthur Ponsonby, who appears to be something of a William Bross Lloyd in the English Laborite movement.

The measure is dangerous, not because, like so many other freak fobleries of the isles, there may be an attempt to transplant it in the minds of the American reflectors of United Kingdomism. Contemplate, if you are strong enough to survive the shock, the effect of amputating Seventeenth Assistant Postmaster General McDoodle from his ten-kilometer appellation! Imagine if you can the, kick-back resulting from the mere suggestion of entering an American city hall and severing Garibaldi Cammerlindio, stalwart supporter of Alderman Hoopole, from the string-bean designation, "Second Deputy Assistant General Inspector of Sewers and Garbage!" Try slicing the "Hon." from the cow-catcher of the name of a member of the state legislature when the handbills for the next political meeting are printed! The Englishman will defend the use of a title by the other fellow. The American, if necessary, will invent one for himself, or if not of an inventive mental trend, will permit his friends to designate him as "doctor" or "professor" or something anything. It isn't unreasonable to suppose that Benjamin Burnell, unwept, unhonored and unhung down in Kentucky, finding himself unable even to acquire the use of a stray national guard "Colonel" or "Major," moved to Michigan where scores of semi-intelligent inhabitants were willing—even feverishly anxious—to bestow upon him the epithet, "King Benjamin, Seventh Messenger of Heaven."

Sir—I am told that you are interested in the origin of things more or less literary. If so, perhaps you can help me find the author of those beautiful lines which were the official marching song of the 15th Field Artillery, viz: "I'd rather be a bull dog in an old maid's yard, than a second lieutenant in the national guard."

"Pearl like France intends to instill in the minds of the German people, a suspicion that whoever spread the news around the Fatherland that 'war was over was talking through his chapeau," observed Old Man Skaggs.

Mother herrings—or mothers herring as you prefer—are said to lay 50,000 eggs at one time. Possibly the scientist who counted them will be willing to undertake a few experiments looking toward the crossing of the herring with the hen.

The Bolsheviks have abolished four of the thirty-six characters in the Russian alphabet, presumably for the purpose of making it easier to become a man of letters.

Sir—A locomotive engineer friend was giving a new iron horse the other day. "Huh," he grunted, "she don't look strong enough to pull a burglar out of a police station."—K. K. K. This isn't the Way We Heard It—but Never Mind.

"A PURITAN WIFE"

BY JANE PHELPS

HUGH NORTON TELLS DOCTOR GRAYSON ABOUT DICK. Chapter XLIX. For days Dick mislaid or was wrathful. Ann was miserably. "I've made another mistake," she said to herself. "I should have waited at the store, trusted him." Yet as she said it, Ann knew Dick was not to be trusted, that he would have remained until his mind clouded. She was fearful he would again try to "get even" or, that to show his independence to the men who had witnessed his discomfort; he would do something rash. But Dick could not lose his natural sunny disposition entirely, and as usual Ann hoped he would forget to blame her. She tried harder than ever to be bright and gay, meeting his returning mood more than half way. Little Jack, too, made it almost impossible for Dick to remain sullen, he was such a bright, lovable child. Occasionally his father took him into the e-hard with him for an hour or two. The boy adored his "da-da," as he called him. "When Jack gets a little older, Dick will stop drinking," Ann often said; "he will not want his boy to know." Often, too, she thought: "I have so much to be thankful for, it is really his only failing now that Grace isn't here to tempt him away from us." Doctor Grayson stopped often to chat with one or both of them, so relieving the monotony of the days, occasionally accompanied by Hugh Norton, who seldom came alone. There was nothing he could do for Ann, and his feeling for her had grown until it was hard to see her and hide it.

"She was talking of Dick," he told Grayson. "She doesn't have an idea that I know—what Grace Edmunds told me as a joke. He comes home, all right, drives the flier; then falls at once into a dead sleep. When he awakes he is practically all right, but he can recall nothing he did after he took a drink. The saving part of it is he does it but seldom. He nearly ruined his orange crop two seasons ago. Lost a lot of money. Went after him and an oil wagon to fill his heaters, drank, and didn't get home until after the frost, and without attending to anything. If it hadn't been for Prentice, he might have lost his entire crop." "Um—pretty bad," Grayson said; "and this stuff men drink now would aggravate a weakness of that sort. Glad you told me, Norton, I'll watch Dick a bit; see if I can help him. He's a wonderfully likable fellow. But just the kind who often are weak. I had not idea Ann was talking of him." "Never let her know that I told you. She is terribly sensitive, and it would make her uncomfortable with you. But help her if you can. I wish I could," Hugh added in a tone that caused Grayson to lift his eyebrows a bit. "I'm mum as an oyster, Hugh," he replied, thinking more of his friend than of either Dick or Ann, understanding why Hugh so seldom visited them save in company, understanding also his resentment against Grace Edmunds because it had made Ann unhappy. "That's why he doesn't marry—why he shows no interest in women," Grayson said to himself. Tomorrow—Ann Has Help in the House.

Garden Bay News

Rev. Fr. Morin went to Fayette on Sunday and conducted service in the Catholic church. This was the first service at that church since spring.

HOW ARE YOU, FOLKS?

Madeline Hurlock sends her best. She'll be with us for some time, too, for Mack Bennett has just signed her up again to appear in his forthcoming releases. That's nice, isn't it?

are in the black and white design bearing a "Welcome to Fayette" notice and the distance in miles to that place. Mr. Van Remortel took these signs out last Saturday and placed them in prominent locations along the way from Fayette to Isabella so that "he who runs may read." We believe that, as a result of our friends' work and initiative, a large amount of tourist travel will be diverted from the highway of travel to the Fayette resort.

Theodore Hazen and wife motored to Nahma on Sunday morning and returned later in the day with Mrs. Ossia Hazen who had been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Eggert, of that place.

Members of the choir of the Congregational church, motored to Cooks last night and rendered a sacred cantata, in the Cooks' church. The connective readings were given by Mrs. Lucy Halben, clerk of the church. Those present greatly enjoyed the service.

Julius Eggert and family were visitors at the home of Mrs. Fred Lamkey, of Van's Harbor, on Friday night.

Charles Watschorn has returned from Two Rivers, Wis., where he has been working during most of the winter.

Hazel Birk was sick at her parents' home at Fayette last week. Members of the choir of the Garden Congregational church motored down to Fayette on Friday night last and rendered a sacred cantata in the Fayette church. The connective readings were given by Mr. Fred Van Remortel. Those present greatly enjoyed the service.

Mother's Sunday will be fittingly observed in both the Garden and the Fayette Congregational churches. A special program is being arranged by friends of each of the churches. This will consist of special music with a number of appropriate recitations by the members of the Sunday School. A special invitation is extended especially to every mother and every father as well as to every son and every daughter.

GEORGE ARLISS STAR IN DELFT PROGRAM TODAY

Distinguished Actor Has Great Role in New Picture.

George Arliss, distinguished screen and stage star, gives a remarkably life-like study in his newest photoplay, "The Man Who Played God," which will be shown at the Delft Theater today. It is one of the most difficult roles, although as played by Mr. Arliss it unfolds in simplicity and with greater dramatic intensity than any artist has shown in photoplays.

Mr. Arliss has the role of John Arden, famous American musician, who loses his sense of hearing. It is in Paris. He has just married the girl of his heart, Fame has come to him—but now, the end, he returns to New York, and hides away in an apartment on Central Park West. From his windows he can see the great park, and hundreds passing his window. Arden has learned lip reading and peers at passersby through his telescope. He can see them, but they cannot see him.

With the passing of time, Arden's whole nature changes. He is no longer smiling, and gay, cheering those about him. Just the opposite is true. He becomes morose and dejected. Instilling fear into those about him. The splendid lover and the loved has brought hatred upon himself by his taciturn conduct. The charming girl who became his wife on the eve of his great catastrophe is willing to sacrifice everything to remain at his side through his great affliction. But the musician seems to resent this, and does everything to turn her from him. Only his sister remains, and she tries always to keep her brother and his wife together. Almost every other friend has turned away from Arden.

Arden is about to destroy himself—to seek respite in suicide. He will throw himself from his high apartment window to the pavement. Then—that happens which changes the whole course of his life. Just as he is about to jump, he sees a young couple on a bench in the park directly opposite. In that instant he is seized with a great curiosity to know what they are saying. He takes his telescope, and studies the man and woman. He reads their lips! They, too, are in trouble. How simple seems the burden put upon him in comparison to the weight that bows down others. In that moment he makes up his mind. He will help them. He calls his servant, and in a mysterious way the troubled couple are aided. Finally, Arden, by a remarkable incident, graphically pictured, recovers his sense of hearing and is restored to those he loves.

Interpretation Perfect. Mr. Arliss gives a perfect interpretation of the man who is loved, feared—and then loved again. His passions revolve in cycles, and the art of Arliss is everywhere in evidence. There is a lightness about the beginning of the drama that is indicative of skilled acting. With the tragedy of losing his hearing, Mr. Arliss makes the change as only a great artist can. The drama becomes intensified and the suspense compelling. He makes the great sacrifice—sends his wife out of his life when he thinks she loves another. The scene in the church is so realistic that we grope about for its parallel in dramatic intensity.

MIX AT STRAND. As usual, Tom Mix won the staunch and unanimous approval of the audience that packed the Strand theater last night for the opening performance of the rollicking comedy, "The Rivalry of the Rivals."

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 95 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my household work for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

burst star's latest William Fox production, "Do and Dare." The daring, dashing hero of western screen drama seems to reach new heights with each production and in "Do and Dare" an enraptured audience watched breathlessly the Fox light as he shone through an hour and a half of supremely entertaining action. And it was action from beginning to end. Action from the time the title was flashed on the silver sheet to the omnipresent "clinch" at the finish of the love race.

FUR TURBANS. Very large round ornaments of embroidery or beads are used directly in front on some of the new oriental turbans.

Rheumatic Agony NOW EASILY ENDED

Says Mr. James H. Allen of Rochester, N. Y. It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with cursed rheumatism or have only occasional twinges, I know that Algren, my own discovery, will stop the agony, do away with the gnawing pains and reduce the swollen joints. I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenru made a well, robust, healthy man of me. I know because since I cured myself, hundreds have taken Allenru and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease. No matter how severe your case, I urge you to put faith in the prescription that it took me years to perfect—a prescription that made a new man of me after doctors tried and failed. Allenru is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause rheumatism out of the body through the natural channels. Through the column of this newspaper, I authorize every druggist to guarantee you full pint bottle in every instance.

BETTER-THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little five-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c
