AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Dan McCarthy, aged about 45, died at St. Francis hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of a skull fracture received Friday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Gafner, 628 North Twentieth street.
The accident took place near the upper docks at 1: o'clock Friday night. Gafner was returning from Terrace Gardens and according to the reports of witnesses was driving slow over the crossing when his car struck McCarthy. Eye witnesses testified that the accident was unavoidable.
McCarthy, an itinerant chimney sweeper, was seen drunk in Bark River during the afternoon. He made his way to Escanaba in some manner and was seen in North Escanaba just previous to the accident. A watchman at the Northwestern grade crossing reported that McCarthy had come to the crossing shantly just before 11 o'clock and inquired the way to the nearest saloon.
On being directed to one, he stated that he had just been thrown out of that place. From the shanty he staggered out across the road, evidently in the attempt to catch a passing street car. The Gafner car, coming along at that moment, struck him and knocked him to the pavement.

Spanish War Vet?
Pelmer Bruce, supervisor from Bark River township, reported yesterday that the man had appeared about his place in Bark River during the afternoon of the day on which he had been killed. He had stated at that time that he was a veteran of the Spanish-American war. Mr. Bruce said, but his statements were given little attention because of his intoxicated condition.

McCarthy never regained consciousness after the accident, passing away late Saturday afternoon. Communication with the Menominee police established his identity. McCarthy had served a short term for drunkenness there last winter. He told the judge at that time that he had a mother in New York City.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are impurities seeking an outlet through skin pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate; then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will help prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually helps make pimples disappear.

DODGE BROTHERS TOURING CAR

If there is one word which will sum up the average owner's impression of Dodge Brothers Touring Car, that word is dependable.

If there is a word to express the quality which Dodge Brothers have shown above all else, to build cars that will run—again—dependable.

Indeed, it is not too much to say that the word dependable has come to be definitely associated, the nation over, with Dodge Brothers Touring Car—and the other vehicles bearing their name.

Nor have Dodge Brothers built this enviable reputation through advertising. They have built motor cars, so dependable in fact that the word has presented itself automatically to the public mind.

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX TOURING CAR

A Real Achievement in Dollar-for-dollar Value

The thousands of Studebaker Light-Sixes in daily use are the best possible assurance of what may be expected next year—or several years hence—of the Light-Six you buy today.

For after all, the best way to judge a new motor car is by what it has done—how it has stood up in service—the satisfaction it has delivered.

We sincerely believe that the Light-Six Touring Car, with its improved all-steel body, is the sturdiest, handsomest, most comfortable, most dependable and economical low-priced car built.

The machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods, to which is largely due its practical absence of vibration, is a practice used by Studebaker exclusively on cars at this price and is found only on a few other cars whose selling prices are from three to ten times as high as the Light-Six.

The one-piece, rain-proof windshield with parking lights set in the base, is a joy to the driver—nothing to mar his view of the road ahead. Deep, fat cushions are upholstered in genuine leather. Curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with the doors and provide closed car coziness in bad weather.

The most seasoned driver will find a new thrill in the smooth, quiet, steady performance of the Light-Six—and in its ease of handling, and in the way it performs in high gear at low speeds—eliminating constant gear shifting.

The name Studebaker has stood for high grade transportation, quality, value and integrity for 71 years.

$4000 BUYS A WIFE!

RUBY MILLER AND HER BABY.

Newark, N. J., June 16.—There's money in wives, if you're a gypsy. Look at Ruby Miller, 20-years-old gypsy. Newark police say she has been married three times, each time sold on the marriage block. This, they say, is the connubial bookkeeping: Husband No. 1 paid $500 for her. Husband No. 2 bought her for $2000. Husband No. 3 got her for $4,000. But she doesn't want to be sold again, she says. She wants to go back to her father in St. Louis and take her 17-months-old baby, Peter, with her. Ruby left her tribe, which was camped in Woodbridge township, near Rahway, and sought the aid of Newark police. She said she left her husband's camp because she could not tell fortunes. Then came Sergeant Walsh, of the Woodbridge police, with a warrant charging larceny of $630 from her uncle. She denied she had taken anything except enough clothing for herself and her baby. Then Ruby and her husband talked it over, and Newark police say they will probably kiss and make up—and there won't be another high-priced marriage.

UNOFFICIAL MEDICAL GUIDE. Homesickness: The symptoms of this disease are a far-away look in the eyes, a depression of spirits and a general lassitude that causes the patient to dislike to engage in such pastimes as company fatigue, incinerator drill and the like. The appetite is poor and the patient will frequently compare Army chow to mother's cooking in a manner uncomplimentary to the stum prepared by the bean-burners. The patient is often subject to attacks of AWOL after pay-days. Absent treatment is the only remedy that can be given. Quarantining the ailment one in the brig just before payday will usually nip the attack in the bud.

Kiwanis Will Hold Business Meeting

Business of importance will be the order for Monday's meeting of the Kiwanis club, to be held at noon Monday in the Ludington hotel. Several matters of vital interest to the club will be disposed of.

UNHEALTHY.

A Negro resident of San Francisco had saved his money and moved to the outskirts, where he bought a small farm and prospered exceedingly in raising vegetables and fruits. "Why don't keep chickens, too?" his former employer asked him when he journeyed to town to buy groceries. "Nosuh, Ah done decided not to," he replied. "To tell yo' de troof, Ah lives in a culud neighborhood, an' chickens don't do well there."

A very stout man mounted the scales of a weighing machine and dropped a penny in the slot. There was a clanking and rattling, and finally the pointer came to a stand-still somewhere not far from the two hundred and fifty pound mark.

There was an unseen witness to the ceremony, and, as the big man woefully contemplated the result, the voice of a small boy piped up from behind him: "Say, mister, how many times did it go round?"—Exchange.

CONVERSE WITH UNTOMBED MINERS—When a local mine shaft near Blecknell, Ind., caved in, three men were entombed. It took 79 hours to rescue them. But they were not cut off from communication. The man, apparently sniffing the earth, is in reality talking to the buried men through a tube. Conversation was not the only thing poured down, as the bottle near the right might testify.

JUST TO RECALL THE OLD WAR DAYS—Army engineers blow up a miniature bridge as part of the demonstration at Pershing Field, Jersey City, N. J. The general looked on.

LOOKS LIKE A BIG FROG—This is the latest freak in German auto-making. It carries the stream-line effect to the nth degree. Here it is shown being tested on a Berlin track.

FOOTBALL FOR HOT WEATHER—Now that the football season is over, London boys have taken to a cooler sport. But it's just as rough. It's an adoption of football in the water.

"YOU SPLASH ME AND I'LL SPLASH YOU"—Said one elephant to the other as they took their Saturday night bath in the zoo at the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C.

California, leading all other states in the number of automobiles, has just issued its millionth license plate this year. Don Doig, manager of the touring bureau of the Auto Club of Southern California, has just hooked it on his car.

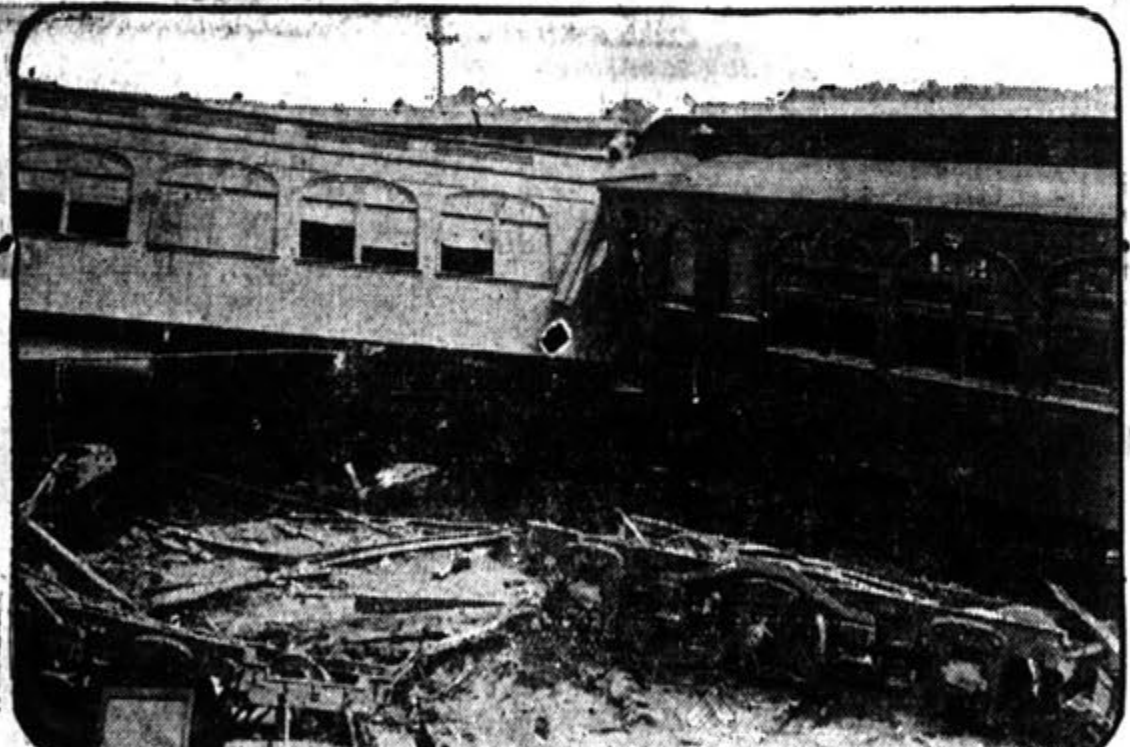

WAVES FURNISH THE MUSIC—Students of the ancient Greek dances at the Mayfair School, Gorleston, England, rehearse on the shore, taking their rhythm from the restless waves.

TWO KILLED IN RAILROAD WRECK—An engineer and track supervisor were killed when this freight train was derailed at Greensboro, N. C., and thrown on its side.

TRAIN SHED FIRE ENDANGERS MANY—Quick work on a part of railway employees saved the lives of nearly 200 passengers sleeping cars when fire broke out in Philadelphia's Broad Street Station train shed at one o'clock in the morning. After a long fight the fire was subdued, but not until the lofty arched, glass-covered shed was in ruins and $2,000,000 damage had been done.

HERE'S WRECK THAT KILLED FOUR—Four died and 27 were injured in this wreck near Durand, Mich. The engine overturned and cars were telescoped. It was a special train carrying Knights Templar to their state convention. In the foreground can be seen a freak of the crash—a window knocked out with glass still intact.

Miss Mabel Therese Bonney, young American woman, has been given a degree by Sorbonne University, France. Prior to that she had been awarded a scholarship to the institution. She is a brilliant student, and has translated several French plays for production in New York.

NOT A KISS OF FRIENDSHIP—These two giraffes kissed by accident, rather than by intention. Mrs. Howard Felch climbed their corral at the Bronx Zoo, N. Y., to offer a quality meal and both reached for it at the same time.

THIS STARTED THE SHRINE CONVENTION—When James McCandless (right), Imperial Potentate of the Shrine, arrived in Washington, D. C., from Honolulu and gripped the hand of Leonard P. Stewart, illustrious Potentate of Almas Temple, Washington, the Shrine gathering was officially opened.

FLOOD WATERS AT CALGARY WORST SINCE 1902—This picture, when the flood in Calgary, Alta., Canada, was at its peak, was taken on a bridge which momentarily was expected to be washed away. The waters of the Elbow River were swollen by two cloudbursts in the mountains, 75 miles away, as well as by terrific, heavy rains.

LOOK OUT, BELOW!—If a chain holding this 90-ton locomotive should break or a support slip, the men below might not appear so unconcerned. But they don't seem to worry much, for they are veteran employes in this railroad shop at Billerica, Mass.

BIG CHIEF LIKEM POSE WITH GIRLS? HEAR MUCH!—Recognize the gentleman in the center? He's Chief Two Guns White Calf of the Black Feet tribe of Montana, and his face adorns every new "buffalo" nickel coined by Uncle Sam. The chief, en route to the east to attend a convention, stopped off in Chicago, long enough to have his photograph taken with Lois Higley (left), and Miss Jane Montgomery.

MODESTY ITSELF—Miss Maud Lovett, 21 years old, was selected as Philadelphia's most beautiful girl at a contest held recently at the Palace of Progress Exposition.

SEEK $50,000 FOR CHILDREN OF VETERANS

American Legion "Kid-ies Billet" Needs Cash to "Carry On".

The drive for funds throughout the state to equip the American Legion Children's Billet at Escanaba Lake is going on most satisfactorily. The Legion posts and the Legion auxiliaries have cooperated and organized a statewide campaign which will open on June 20th, at which time it is hoped that $50,000 will be secured. This amount, together with an appropriation made by the State and gifts of individuals, will make possible the maintenance of the movement for the coming year.

Through the generosity of friends, a temporary home has been secured at Port Austin, Michigan, where a large commodious house with ample grounds, for the lake front, will be opened on June 20th, and a trailload of widows and orphans of service men, in the care of competent workers, will leave Detroit on that day for the summer home.

Personnel Chosen.
The Legion has secured the services of several war widows who will look after the cooking, washing and general housekeeping for the colony, while others will plan the recreation and employment of the children during the summer. The little folks comprising the colony have been gathered up from orphanages and the homes of relatives and friends, and many other places where these children have been temporarily kept, many of them without any government compensation, and all of them sadly in need of just such a home life and environment as the American Legion is providing.

The movement is not only eliciting the keen interest of ex-service men of the state, but the citizens, generally, are showing great willingness in giving the "kiddies of the buddies" a proper home life.

It is also interesting to know that this work, which has been pioneered in Michigan, has attracted nationwide attention, and several other states are making plans to care for the children of their soldiers in the same manner.

Scientists are digging up the missing links, but New York is digging up the missing drinks. "What a Grass Widow Knows" is a new book. The thing must have about ten million pages.

A PROPER COURSE.

Officials of the Northwestern railway company believe that the problems of the railroads of the nation are more than matters between the railroads and their employees and, in reality constitute one of the greatest public questions of the day.

Unquestionably there is probably no great public question, so closely allied with the welfare and progress of the nation, concerning which the general public possesses so little authentic information, as the transportation question.

In going to the people with the problems of the railroads' President Finley has adopted a course which cannot but obtain long neglected results.

A PUBLIC NECESSITY.

The necessity for the construction of a sidewalk connecting Wells and the city of Escanaba, is again illustrated in the accident of Friday night, when a pedestrian was run down by an automobile on that road.

Mixed with the heavy auto traffic many pedestrians walk back and forth between North Escanaba and Wells and as the road traverses for its entire length a swampy section, pedestrians are forced to use the highway as a footpath.

AFTER THEY DIE.

Speaking of Abraham Lincoln, one of the leading New York newspapers said editorially in a issue of May 19, 1860:

"The Republican convention at Chicago has nominated Abraham Lincoln of Illinois for President of the United States—a third-rate Western lawyer, poorer than poor Pierce. The conduct of the Republican party in this matter is a remarkable indication of a small intellect growing smaller. They passed over Seward, Chase and Banks, who are statesmen and able men, and they take a fourth-rate lecturer who cannot speak good grammar and who, to raise the wind, delivers his hackneyed, illiterate compositions at $200 a piece.

Five days later a leading Philadelphia newspaper said, of Lincoln: "There is not in all the history of his life any exhibition of intellectual ability and attainment fitting him for the high and

Neurologist and Critic Holds Clinic on Modern Psychological Novels

DEAN REVIEWS. BY JAMES W. DEAN.

New York, June 16.—Changes in the human manner of living, in universal and national customs, always have been rather generally forecast by literature.

Thus one reading between the lines of recent books senses that a new cycle of thought, of human behavior is upon us.

The age that just past has been largely an era of pretense. Worship of false gods and mocking worship of true gods have been reflected in the literature of the day.

Much of the contemporary American fiction has given a true picture of our times and customs, but it has only reflected the surface. It has not penetrated to the point where it reveals the heart of life.

Probably the most comprehensive clinic on contemporary literature that has been published is "The Doctor Looks at Literature" by Dr. Joseph Collins.

Dr. Collins draws in "The Women in Love," "Psychoanalysis and the Unconscious," the prohibited "Jurgin" and others.

Of "Women in Love," Dr. Collins says: "A large portion of the book is, in my judgment, obscene, deliberately, studiously, incessantly obscene."

Dr. Collins believes that "Main Street" was a complete work, but that Sinclair Lewis' psychology was faulty or incomplete in "Babbitt."

The picture is described as the most ambitious in which the juvenile star, Jackie Coogan, has ever appeared, and it is asserted that in it he has registered an appeal that strikes the hearts of young and old and of all classes of picture patrons as well as those that are not usually enticed to the theatre.

The new photoplay at the Strand Monday and Tuesday is "Ace of Hearts," by Gouverneur Morris, and was produced by Goldwyn, who also made this author's powerful story, "The Penalty."

"It was recognized by those who had encountered or experienced the temperament and who had lived, voluntarily or compulsorily, in the environment, to be a true cross-section of life focused beneath a microscopic lens, and anyone who examined it had before him an accurate representation of the conscious experiences of at least two individuals, and a suggestion of their unconscious experiences as well.

Referring to the later book, Dr. Collins writes, "When Mr. Babbitt wallows in the trough of the waves of emotion because he doesn't get the affection and recognition from his children which is his due, he alienates our sympathy and Mr. Lewis reveals the vulnerable tendon of his own psychology.

Dr. Collins says that "Babbitt" may be construed as the American intelligence of Lewis' generation turning on its taskmaster. He believes that Lewis got the Babbitt iron in his soul when he worked as an advertising-copy writer and that he meant to turn Babbitt inside out and hold him up to scorn, but that as he developed the character he felt sorry for him and pitied Babbitt in his sense of frustration by social environment and circumstance and admired him for telling his son not to let himself be similarly frustrated.

Space does not permit extended consideration of other authors with whom Dr. Collins deals, but if one is contemplating a reading of Feodor Dostoevsky, the epileptic, James Joyce, Ireland's literary antinomian, Marcel Proust, psychological novelist of France, or the works of Katherine Mansfield, Rebecca West, Stella Benson, Virginia Woolf or others who interpret life as it has directly touched them, it would be very profitable first to turn to "A Doctor Looks at Literature."

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT. There comes next Monday to the Delft Theatre a picture heralded as a "milestone on the highway of art," and which bears the highest recommendations in its own right.

AT THE STRAND. The new photoplay at the Strand Monday and Tuesday is "Ace of Hearts," by Gouverneur Morris, and was produced by Goldwyn, who also made this author's powerful story, "The Penalty."

"A PURITAN WIFE"

ANN AND DICK. Chapter LXXXVI.

For some time longer they sat silent. Ann was having a fierce struggle. She felt it almost impossible not to upbraid Dick, not to say what she thought of Grace.

She was aware of Dick's watchfulness, felt that he was waiting for her to speak. She would ask no promise from him in this regard, as she had about the drinking. And could she try over again, have faith in him? There would be no happiness for her without.

Yes, Dick, we will start all over again. And this time we have a home and Jackie to give us courage. The past is dead and buried as far as I am concerned. The future is ours. We can make it what we will.

Ann rose at once and soon they were bent over the desk, looking up purchases, their heads close as so often they had been when immersed in the financial affairs of the ranch.

Ann had dismissed Grace from her conversation, had not mentioned her, but it was impossible to dismiss her from her thoughts. Would she really go away, not to come back? Or would her anger prompt her to remain and try again to wreak vengeance upon those she had already harmed so much?

Ann sat staring at the note. Could it be true that Dick had quarreled with Grace for such a reason? Yet had it been anything else, would he not have told her? Not one word had he said, save that Grace had been angry.

That night Bess telephoned Ann: "Grace is out with Ned, so I can talk," she said. "She is horribly bitter, says you—me, too—made up our minds she was bad just because she liked a good time. That we are old foghats, don't understand a modern girl, and that you treated her so you finally turned Dick against her. That she was only playing with Dick, and would have tired of it long ago if you hadn't been such a prude that it made it interesting. She says she only took Jack to frighten you—let you see she wasn't to be snubbed without her revenge. And a lot more, Ann, all in the same vein."

"Yes, but not for two weeks. She says it will take her that time to get ready."

"Don't expect us over until she is gone," Ann said, "and, Bessie, don't discuss us with her any more than you can help. Dick is thoroughly disgusted with her, with the part he has played. We are going to try and forget it all. Keep her away, won't you?"

"Yes, if I have to tie her. But I don't think she will bother you again; she says she never wants to see either of you."

GRACE WRITES ANN. Chapter LXXXVII.

Dick did not speak of Grace to Ann; he told her nothing of the quarrel that had caused her to leave, a quarrel started at first over her dislike to do anything mental, then going on until Dick had ordered her never to mention Ann's name, telling her she wasn't fit to do so, that he was sorry he ever saw her, and other things that angered her. He had flung at her that the only reason he had her at the ranch was because he wanted to get even with Ann, that she had made him think Ann cared for Hugh, when she knew Ann never gave him a thought. He had forgotten his own jealousy in blaming Grace, and had said cruel, sneering things to the hot-tempered girl, reckless of consequences.

Ann, too, was quiet. She made no effort to overcome the barrier of silence that had come between them. She couldn't—not yet. Her anger was gone, most of her fears. But constantly she turned over in her mind that explanation of Dick's.

It had been that which had caught him. Ann had no way of knowing that he now hated that very difference that he had thought an attraction. That Ann's sweet, simple, straightforward nature seemed almost holy by comparison.

The days passed, and neither heard anything of Grace, save that she was still at the Prentices' ranch, that she talked of leaving. Ann had a feeling that once she was gone she would be more at ease, that life with Dick would be more as it had been before Grace came; that her remaining with Ned was the cause of her unsettled frame of mind.

In the rural delivery mail box was a letter for Ann. She turned it over, not recognizing the writing. Then took it into the house and opened it. She read: "Don't flatter yourself that you have accomplished anything. Ann, Dick never will be true to you. It isn't in him. With me he was safe compared to what will happen later. Forewarned, they say, is forearmed, but in your case the exception will prove the rule. I quarreled with him because of another woman. I shan't tell you or anyone who she is. That you must find out for yourself. When you do I wish you joy.—Grace."

Ann sat staring at the note. Could it be true that Dick had quarreled with Grace for such a reason? Yet had it been anything else, would he not have told her? Not one word had he said, save that Grace had been angry.

Had Grace written differently, more in her usual vein, Ann would have given the note little or no attention. But she hadn't ranted, been diffuse as she was usually. She had stated a fact, had even allowed Ann to think she wasn't attractive enough to hold Dick—something she never would acknowledge.

Ann read the note again. Where had Dick met this other woman, and when? Was she a rancher's daughter, or a San Bernardino girl? It had been a long time since Ann had been anywhere with Dick. And he was so irresponsible when he drank—and she knew only too well he always drank when away for the day.

She had his promise now—he would not drink any more. But was it too late?

PRISON PAINTING MAY BRING PARDON

Sasanoff, Federal Convict and Noted Artist, Gets Inspiration Behind Drab Walls of Atlantic Penitentiary.

THE PRISON PAINTING. MAX SASANOFF (I N S E T), WELL KNOWN ARTIST, PAINTED IT AND CALLS IT A MEMORIAL TO FATHER HAYDEN, CHAPLAIN OF THE PRISON IN WHICH SASANOFF IS CONFINED.

Atlanta, Ga., June 16.—Locked in prison, a convicted forger, Max Sasanoff paints his masterpiece. A long time ago someone wrote: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

Secret service men, running down counterfeiter in New York City, uncovered a band. Among those locked up was Sasanoff. They charged him with making the plate used to print spurious currency.

In prison Sasanoff met Father Hayden, prison chaplain. The priest inspired the painter in him. Then within the prison walls, Max started to work. For six months he painted. He was up with the sun. They had to force him to quit late at night.

A THOUGHT If any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in the glass; for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.—Jas. 1:23, 24.
