The Piffle Hook

The CYCLONIC interest which our scantily veiled hints that we expected to enter the primaries in quest of the gubernatorial nomination of any political party which appreciated the honor and opportunity we offered it, has prompted us to outline, very briefly, a few of the planks to be included in our platform.

1. We agree if elected, to execute by gunfire of the state police, any person or persons who place the title "Hon." before our name, in a newspaper, on a handbill, on an envelope addressed to us, or who uses the term in introducing us to a crowd of two or more citizens assembled.

2. We promise to proceed with all the powers at our disposal against the manufacturers, distributors and sellers of paper napkins, safety matches, ukuleles and saxophones.

3. We agree to veto all legislation passed by the legislature during our term of office, and to work from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., without a lunch hour, and including Sundays if necessary, for the repeal of at least 100 laws, now on the statute books, the titles of which shall be drawn, at random, from a derby hat.

4. We agree to establish state-owned eating houses where one pound of ham, three strictly fresh eggs, a pint of American fried potatoes, a half-quart of cream gravy, a cup of coffee and six ounces of bread will be sold at twenty-five cents an order.

5. We agree to permit prize fighting, cock fighting, bull fighting and booze fighting at any time and at any place within the state, provided that only persons who are sufficiently cultured shall be permitted to witness or participate therein.

6. We promise to issue hunting, and fishing licenses only to those who first solemnly swear or affirm that they will never pose for a photograph while holding a string of fish, or while standing beside a deceased deer.

7. We agree to bar from the mails, all literature which in any way mentions Wall street, the board of trade, stocks, bonds, oil and mineral investments and to prohibit, absolutely, all other forms of gambling save craps, black-jack, and eight-card stud poker.

8. Girls, whose natural complexions make the use of cosmetics unnecessary, will be forbidden to use them; girls whose complexions can be improved by the use of cosmetics will be compelled to use them.

9. We agree to deport to Chicago or some other foreign seaport, all school teachers who forbid their pupils to chew gum, provided William Wrigley agrees to pay one-half of the expense of enforcing said law.

10. We promise to require all linotype operators, printers, stereotypers and pressmen to have, at all times, a supply of cigars, smoking tobacco and matches available for the use of men employed in the editorial department of morning daily newspapers.

11. We pledge all of the resources of the state in our effort to hunt down and punish, adequately and suitably, the person guilty of coining the word "kiddies."

12. We agree to enforce, to the letter, all of the state's Sunday blue laws, until such time as the people of this reputedly civilized commonwealth exhibit sufficient intelligence to repeal them.

13. We promise, if elected, to compel any person who raises carrots, to eat them three times a day until death mercifully terminates his agony.

THE OTHER cancelled check on the opposite side of the table says he met a chap yesterday who asserted that he didn't "propose to worry about an anthracite strike as long as the hard coal miners kept working."

When this appears in deathless ink upon the imperishable surface of eternal parchment, we shall be speeding southward for our annual vacation.

There will be a change, temporarily, in the conductors and the conduct of the column.

The change, we're sure, "will do you good."
—H. K. R.

The United States can do nothing to help Europe, so it would be better to turn its attention to home problems which are more important at this time.

The people of Europe have no credit with which to buy what they need. There is no way of creating this credit now. No one in Europe can offer any suggestion for affecting a change. How, then, can we? All the money, all the brains and ingenuity America has are needed in America. Europe formerly took most of our surplus farm products, but can do so no longer.

AN INTIMATE TALK WITH BEVERLY

Chapter LXVI.

Horace hesitated when he reached the lodge. Should he tell Natalie that he knew of what had occurred? He decided not, and after waiting a few moments to compose himself he went in. He found her sitting in the dark beside the window. With a cry of joy she flew to meet him as he called her name.

"Oh, I am so glad you've come! I never want you to leave me again, but take me with you wherever you go!" she exclaimed hysterically as she clung to him.

Horace quieted her with loving words, soothing her as he would a child. Then he told her of his trip, talked of the people he had met until she was herself again. He had seen Clyde Blackwell and had invited him, with Etta and the baby, to spend a week at the lodge.

"I thought it would please you," he said to Natalie.

"I am delighted," she returned. "It will be nice to have them here, and such a treat for them. Etta especially. It was good of you, Horace, to think of them," grateful as always when he went out of his way to please her.

The next day a porter from the hotel came over for some things Harper had left with them. He told them Harper had been suddenly called away. Natalie felt herself flush, but Horace seemed to think nothing of Harper's sudden departure—much to her relief.

Beverly Rainsford came the following week, and during her visit Natalie almost forgot the unpleasant incident. She was sure Harper never would annoy her again, so dismissed him from her mind. She had considered telling Horace, then, like him, feared to hurt needlessly, and concluded to keep it secret.

Natalie and Beverly often talked of Mrs. Crandell. Natalie telling of her wish to love her, to be loved by her; her fears that this would never happen.

"I am not of her world. No, not even though I have learned how to appear so as not to embarrass her," she said as Beverly tried to object. "I shall always be a misfit in a certain sense—to her. Yet I want her to come back."

"You think she will, don't you?" Beverly inquired.

"I can't tell. Her letter was very non-committal. I feel somehow that she wants to come, but is afraid."

"Afraid! Of what? I can't imagine Mrs. Crandell being afraid of doing anything she wishes to do." Beverly's surprise was genuine.

"It may sound silly," Natalie went on, "but I feel that she is afraid I will be in her way; that I will not be content to let her manage as she always has; that Horace will be unhappy. It was for Horace not herself that she has remained away—so he could be happy. Of that I am positive. I never thought of it at first, but now I am sure that was her object. She loved him devotedly you know."

"Yes, I never knew so devoted a mother, even though it has been a selfish devotion at times. But she is less devoted than you are, Natalie? Isn't it for love of Horace you are willing to give up your home, go to hers where you're so unhappy?"

I think Horace must be a good man to inspire such love in two women so unlike as are you and his mother.

"I would do anything to make him happy, Beverly, and he never will be really happy until his mother returns. He tries to make me think he is content, but the very fact that he has to try proves that I am right. He loves me, has proven it. But he also loves his mother. It is not right that in her old age they should be separated.

"As I have said before, you are very generous, Natalie." Then after a moment's silence Beverly asked: "Suppose she refuses to come?"

"She will not. My only hope is that after she comes I can efface myself without again losing Horace."

"Will Mrs. Crandell be as generous as Natalie? I'm afraid not—poor Natalie!"

THE OLD HOME TOWN

By Stanley

comes a craving for the colorful apparel that this season brings.

Entrancingly Novel is THE NEW FALL MILLINERY

Mi-Lady will be delighted with the unusual trimming and shapes. There is a trend toward the small draped hat, but the ever becoming large hat also is evident in striking form, smartly trimmed with jeweled buckles, pins, patterns, and embroideries.

Interesting Indeed are the Autumn Modes--

Never before has Dame Fashion created such bewitchingly pretty styles as she presents this season. Coats and Frocks are amazingly tiered and pleated, for to be smart one must have one or the other. You may be sure of finding here faithful portrayals of the newest modes cleverly interpreted to suit the individual.

DOES HIGH SCHOOL PAY?

W. E. OLDS TO DISCUSS QUESTION IN SERIES OF ARTICLES.

BY W. E. OLDS.
"It is Thinking Power That Counts."
Your fund of information gleaned from a high school course may be worth much to you, but the thinking power is a far greater asset. The thinking power gained by unraveling an involved Latin sentence, twenty years later helps you to read your abstract of land title correctly. The power you gain by a daily wrestle with quadratic equations may make it possible for you later to puncture quickly the fake project of the professional promoter. The facts as well as the mental power gained in a study of Ancient Rome will enable you to find the flaws in the half baked political curricula peddled about as a panacea for all our national ills. The knowledge of simple chemical reactions learned in the high school laboratory may make you a better cook. The power and skill gained poring over the theorems of solid geometry may come back a decade later to make you a more successful architect.
It is the thinking power generated in the high school, rather than the facts learned, that enables the high school graduate to outrun others in the attainments of life. This thinking power is a charged storage battery ready to be tapped for any purpose later in life. After a good high school course you will meet and master new processes or new conditions with far less loss of time and with much greater skill than you can ever do without such training. Time and effort spent in building up your reservoir of thought power pay golden dividends compounded at frequent intervals in later life.

TIME FOR SCHOOL ATTIRE

Velveteens, wool jerseys and wool crepes are the materials shown in new fall dresses for small girls. The wool jerseys are shown in a new camel's hair finish as well as in the ordinary finish and frequently are trimmed with bands or pipings of another color or with touches of colored embroidery.
The velveteens usually are made with satene bloomers. These dresses, too, are trimmed with embroidery or bits of applique and ribbon trimming. The straight unbelted frocks are popular and many are cut with small yokes. Other dresses follow the styles for women's frocks, adapted and modified, of course.
Fall coats for school girls are of rough mixtures in the tailored styles and of velvets and pile fabrics in dress models. Altogether there are many attractive styles in which the school girl of today may be clothed.

AFTER 15 YEARS OF FAITHFUL SERVICE

These men are not destroying the steel coal cars shown above because of the threatened hard coal strike. It's a regular thing for a railroad to cut up, by the latest approved acetylene torch method, hundreds of old car bodies that have outlived their usefulness. The steel bodies are cut into sections and carried away to junk dealers. New bodies are then placed on the trucks. Photo taken in the Bloomington, Ill., railroad yards.

PRETTY BAD.
The city girl boarding in the country spoke to the farmer about the savage way in which the cow regarded her.
"Well," said the farmer, "it must be on account of that red waist you're wearing."
"Dear me," cried the girl. "Of course, I know it's terribly out of style, but I had no idea a country cow would notice it."
Country Gentleman.
Autumn comes in like a cup of hot coffee and goes out like a saucer of ice cream.

Garden Bay News

Last week happened to be a pretty un lucky week for a number of our citizens. Below is a sad tale of woe we have to tell.
Mr. Longtine, manager of the Delora meat market was supposed to be cutting meat belonging to his employer but cut an ugly gash in his own hand.
Little Harold McNally saw the tip of his finger off while helping his father to saw wood.
Mrs. Lattulip cut one of her fingers badly while slicing bread for the family table.

Malcolm McNally sustained a bruised finger while teasing Joseph Nia, Jr. The little fellow retaliated by striking Malcolm's hand with a bicycle pump.

We don't know how many more major and minor accidents happened in that particular location but what's the matter there anyway?

Mr. and Mrs. Longtine, Mr. and Mrs. Nia visited their old home on Sunday.

Joseph Nia has been quite sick during the past week. Sarah Longtine, his niece, has been looking after his store during his indisposition.

Leo Lingo of Owosso has returned to his home after spending a week visiting at the Chas. Horning home.

George Jogue has purchased a new Mitchell Sedan.
David Horning is seriously handicapped in his harvesting operations due to the fact that he is suffering with an attack of rheumatism in one leg.

Fred Van Remortel of Fayette was a business caller in town on Monday. He was accompanied by his wife.

Rev. Fr. Morin, Edward J. Purtil, the Misses Irene Daniels and Eva Gauthier have gone on a long automobile tour in Fr. Morin's new sedan. They will visit the Copper country, New York, Montreal and other points before returning to Garden.

Dave Fulcher of Kates Bay is doing a good business in early cabbage. He states that he has raised about a half ton of these. Most of these have been hauled to Nahma and marketed at remunerative prices. Mr. Fulcher has also raised a fine lot of sweet corn. He was one of the first in this district to pull sweet corn.

Fred Winters has gone to Ashland, Wis. where he has accepted a position on a boat plying between Ashland and the Soo. He is in company with his friend, Walter Gunn.

Lila Winters and Bertha Ansell went to Manitowish on Friday. They returned to Garden the middle of this week.

Louis Johnson of Flat Rock was a worshipper in the Cook's church on Sunday night.

Lela Winters and Wm. Wintzer, Jr. motored to Escanaba on Tuesday. They expected to meet Mrs.

tored to Ishpeming on Saturday and visited with the former's brother. The party returned to Garden on Monday.

Mrs. John Feldhusen, Jr. returned on Saturday to her home at Calumet after spending several weeks visiting relatives in Garden.
Wm. Lauz, the Rawlfeigh man, has been working in this territory the past week. He has recently returned from a trip to points in the Lower Peninsula. Being at heart a farmer, he took particular notice of the crops there. He states that in the northern tier of counties, farm crops were very poor. Before his visit was completed, he began to be homesick and was extremely grateful when the train pulled out for home. He is quite enthusiastic about farm crops here in comparison with those in the Lower Peninsula. Why should he not be?
Mrs. Vokes and four children of Superior, Wis. are visiting at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. John Dotsch.
Harry Merry and two sons passed through Garden on Monday on their way down to Fayette. Mr. Merry was formerly employed as Superintendent of the furnace of the Jackson Iron Co. of that place. He pointed out as an object of special interest, the place where the boys first saw the light of day.

MRS. COFFMAN ILL SEVEN YEARS

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sidell, Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable, and I could not even let the bed clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not so bad until the last eighteen months, and had become so run-down that I cared for nobody, and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help, and the doctors told me that an operation was all there was left. I would not consent to that, so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering sister of my help, and you can use my name and letter to spread the good news of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines."—Mrs. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. B. 2, Sidell, Ill.
