OBITUARY

DOROTHY KELL.
 Dorothy, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Kell of Spalding, died at the home of her parents, Thursday, at 8 o'clock. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the family home. Burial will be in Wilson cemetery.

MRS. JOHN WALLO.
 Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Joseph's church for Mrs. John Wallo, who died at her home, 219 Stephenson avenue, Monday evening. Rev. Father Daniel Linfert, O. F. M., was the celebrant at the requiem high mass. The pallbearers were Louis Dault, John Dault, Ted Dault, Edward Demars and A. Grepeau. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery in the family lot.

MRS. FREDERICK WHITE.
 The funeral services for Mrs. Frederick White will be held at the Catholic church at Foster City, Saturday morning, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Tom Dreganex, pastor, will be the celebrant at the requiem high mass. Burial will be in Foster City cemetery.

BAGLEY A. HARRIS.
 Impressive funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Harris, Lake Shore Drive for Bagley A. Harris of Goodman, Wis., who died at his home Tuesday morning. Rev. Harry Staver, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated at the services, which were largely attended by a number of friends and relatives.

The room in which the body lay in state was banked with flowers, silent testimony of the esteem in which Mr. Harris was held by his many friends. Those who carried the casket to and from the funeral car were Dr. Bruce A. Harris, Earl B. Harris, George Houghton, Andrew Breddahl, H. H. Phelps and August Bloomston. Interment was in Lakeview cemetery in the family lot.

The out-of-town people who came here for the obsequies were Dr. and Mrs. Bruce A. Harris of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Houghton, of Goodman; Mrs. B. A. Harris, of Goodman; Miss Mae Harris, of Goodman; Wis. and Mrs. F. G. Fairbairn, of Saginaw, Mich.

INEVITABLE.

"Howdy, Sam, how is yo' boy?"
 "Tollable, tollable."
 "Seed him last night, an' I noticed somepin pow'ful strange about him—yassuh, pow'ful strange."
 "Ho caint help it, Pete. Don't blame him. Dat's his wife."

Former Resident Visits Relatives In This City

Mrs. E. E. Betts, of Pasadena, Cal., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Atkins, and her brother, Bert Ellsworth, last night for Chicago to visit friends enroute to St. Paul where she will visit another sister, Mrs. Carrie McNaughton, before leaving for her home. Mrs. Betts was formerly superintendent of the transportation department of the C. & N. W. Ry. in this city, and retired from service when they moved to the coast.

SYMPATHY.

I think of Ponce de Leon
 With a heartache, I confess,
 Because his dreams were fruitless
 And his questings lacked success.
 He went seeking for a fountain
 Into which he planned to dip,
 Then, like water off a duck's back,
 From his frame the years
 would slip.
 But, in spite of all his efforts,
 Fate denied that he should know
 The prize that he was hunting
 And the magic fountain's flow.
 So, pity magic Ponce de Leon,
 Seeking youth in far off lands
 When he could have lived like
 Riley
 By annexing monkey glands.

Kansas City Parents Learning Something Different.

Kansas City, Mo.—If Tommy is 4 years old, now is the time to begin getting him ready for that longed-for and yet dreaded first day of school.

That doesn't mean that his trousers have to be patched nor his new pencil box and slate purchased.

It does mean, however, that his mother must begin preparing him to change from a nursery car to a private in the school-room ranks.

Things to Know. These are some of the things parents of prospective school children will learn:

That a child starting to school must be in as good physical condition as a race horse at the start of the derby—get away without a handicap.

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 17.—With Michigan delegates of the Fifth Annual Legion convention holding out for complete repudiation of the Ku Klux Klan by the Legion convention...

Late today a spirit of compromise entered the Ku Klux Klan question when the California delegates, in a caucus, voted an "honest neutrality."

Michigan delegates stated that they would fight to the floor of the convention to force through the resolution drawn up by James E. Hunt of Mount Pleasant, Mich.

The formation of an anti-bonus league here dispersed hope that the compensation committee would finally work without a resolution in a committee which would be acceptable to the entire convention.

BY JANE PHELPS.

A GRADUAL IMPROVEMENT IN FINANCES.

Chapter XLII.

"If you think I am going to bury myself in the country with Mrs. Markham you are mistaken, Mother. Here I'm just through school, and have time to have a lot of fun. I'll stay right here, thank you, unless we can go to the seashore. I don't see why we can't, don't you suppose Dad'll let us?"

"He would if he could afford it, Joan. But we can't. It's all dear, I wish you would not speak so disrespectful to me, and it is very foolish in you to refuse Mrs. Markham's invitation. It would do you good to be in the country."

But, as usual, Joan had her own way and did not visit Evelyn.

We remained in town all summer, but Paul said that before many years passed we would again have a home in the country. It did seem as if our finances were improving. Paul gave me more to spend, and had an air of optimism about him, lacking for some time. I questioned him, but as usual got no satisfaction.

He insisted more and more upon the need of making friends, "the right kind" which to me, knowing his sentiments, meant men with money. At times he brought men home to dinner, insisting always that I get someone in to serve, although with the help of the girls, to be more explicit, Laura, I could have managed nicely.

"We can afford a maid, I insist upon having one," he told children. It looks as if you were afraid to trust me."

"Nonsense! I'm starting an importing and exporting business of my own, in a small way yet of course, but it is bound to grow. Now don't bother me with questions. We are doing very well, you need be so economical no longer. Get yourself clothes and get the girls what they need. I would far prefer you did this gradually than to make a splurge all at once."

I thought at the time it was an odd remark, yet attached no real importance to it. I never had been inclined to "splurge" and after my hard, poverty-driven years, it wasn't likely I would do so now.

Later, much later, I was to know what his remark meant.

But, as usual, Joan had her own way and did not visit Evelyn.

We remained in-town all summer, but Paul said that before many years passed we would again have a home in the country. It did seem as if our finances were improving. Paul gave me more to spend, and had an air of optimism about him, lacking for some time. I questioned him, but as usual got no satisfaction.

He insisted more and more upon the need of making friends, "the right kind" which to me, knowing his sentiments, meant men with money. At times he brought men home to dinner, insisting always that I get someone in to serve, although with the help of the girls, to be more explicit, Laura, I could have managed nicely.

"We can afford a maid, I insist upon having one," he told children. It looks as if you were afraid to trust me."

"Nonsense! I'm starting an importing and exporting business of my own, in a small way yet of course, but it is bound to grow. Now don't bother me with questions. We are doing very well, you need be so economical no longer. Get yourself clothes and get the girls what they need. I would far prefer you did this gradually than to make a splurge all at once."

I thought at the time, it was an odd remark, yet attached no real importance to it. I never had been inclined to "splurge" and after my hard, poverty-driven years, it wasn't likely I would do so now.

Later, much later, I was to know what his remark meant.

QUALITY — IT PAYS

It's part of our service to help you look your best. Our selections must meet with your approval and your price. We can't afford to do otherwise.

It's time to take Winter seriously. Be comfortable in seasonable clothes. These warm Hart Schaffner & Marx Overcoats will bring you extra comfort because their style never wears out. That is the beauty of fine tailoring. Of course the value of an overcoat is not judged by tailoring alone—quality is the most important item in an overcoat's construction. Here again Hart Schaffner & Marx leads the rest by using the best imported and domestic brands of woolens. The model sketched is a great, burley, belted model of mixed heather wool, conservatively cut, yet stylish. Very reasonably priced at

George Says—

Did you ever notice the similiarity between a house that hasn't had a new coat of paint in 3 years and a man that has worn the same old clothes for the same length of time? They both look run down. Put a new coat of paint on the house and a new suit on the man and both improve 50% in appearance.

The New Lines In Overcoats

—are decidedly becoming to any man. Fashioned along the loose English designs with or without belts—patch pockets and convertible collars. The loose lines give a freedom of movement not found in the usual run of overcoats. Unusually neat patterns are being shown in Scotch Woolens at the price you want to pay.

Are You Wearing One of the New Fall Suits

They're decidedly different in cut and fabric from anything you've seen. They have an air of differentness and quality well dressed men prefer. You'll like the looser fitting styles that give more freedom for active men. It takes better tailoring to make these suits, but you buy them for the same price asked for ordinary styles. A wide variety of fabrics and colorings to select from. They are tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx.

"FAUST" TO BE SUNG MONDAY

Aborn Company Second on Annual Community Course.

The Aborn Grand Opera Company, which will sing "Faust," in English, on the Lyceum course here Monday evening, Oct. 22, offers a rare treat to music lovers. The opera, the story of which is based on Goethe's tragedy, is familiar to all, but here are a few facts concerning its history that may be of interest:

The music of the opera was written by Charles Gounod, and the premier production took place March 19, 1859, at the Theatre Lyrique, Paris. The opera reached London four years later, on June 11, 1863, and in November of the same year the first American presentation was made in New York.

Today "Faust" is sung throughout the world. It has been produced more than any other five operas combined. At the Paris Opera alone it has been given more than 1500 times. It is interesting to note, in view of this overwhelming popularity, that it was received with cool indifference on its first presentation in Paris, and all but failed in Milan. The London production, however, was quite successful and, when, in the following June, Patti sang Marguerite for the first time, the opera received a tremendous ovation.

Morning's mail for the king of Italy recently consisted of 7000 letters, 300 parcels and 270 telegrams.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.
A thrilling field battle is one of the many exciting features to be found in "The Isles of Lost Ships," a First National attraction produced by M. C. Levee and directed by Maurice Tourneur, which is showing at the Delft Theatre today and tomorrow. One of the combatants was a brutal seaman; the other an escaped convict. The prize was the hand in marriage of a young and beautiful society girl. This is but one of the many strange and novel episodes which abound in this tale from the pen of Crittenden Marriot.

WILSON LIVING "BY THE CLOCK"

Day Apportioned With Most Minute
Care.

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Not even in the days when he was president and his hours were carefully charted for him—so many for interviews, so many for correspondence, so many for Congressional or cabinet conferences—did Woodrow Wilson live more definitely by the clock than he does today, as a private citizen and semi-invalid. A person familiar with Wilson's regimen can, by looking at his watch, tell you just what the former president is doing at any given time. No wage-earning clock puncher leads a more carefully timed existence. Although routine to a high degree, it is robbed of the dreariness that follows most routine by the variety of interests and subjects covered in the definitely listed periods of his daily schedule.

Wilson rises at 7. He shaved himself and is rather leisurely about his morning toilet. It is after 8 before he is through shaving, bathing and dressing. Breakfast at 8:30, is partaken with Mrs. Wilson. Then the morning papers—Washington and New York—until 10 o'clock.

Promptly at 10, unless Dr. Grayson has dropped in to look over his patient and put him through a course of calisthenics, he tackles his mail, which usually is large.

He reads every letter personally. To the more important ones he dictates the answer. To others he simply indicates to his secretary the nature of the answer to be given.

This keeps him busy until about 12:30. After lunch at 1 o'clock he always lies down for a nap. He sleeps until 3, when he arises to prepare for his daily auto rides, at 3:30.

These rides usually last about two hours. So carefully has he timed the various drives he likes best, that he knows to a minute just how long each will take. When he tells the chauffeur where he wishes to go, he can tell you whether he will be back by 5:20 or whether it will be 5:25.

At 5:30, returned from his ride, he hears the news of the day. Mrs. Wilson usually goes over the evening papers with him but often he reads them himself.

Real Humor!

Start the day with a laugh! Laugh at "Jack Keefe," Ring Lardner's character creation. Enjoy "Petey Dink," "Tom Duff," and his troubles, "Freebies and his Friends," "Joe Quince," "Pa's Son-in-Law." Funmakers every one!
Adv.-lt

This occupies the interval to 7 o'clock, when dinner is served.

After dinner, unless an evening guest has dropped in, which is rare, he reads—magazines, current fiction, a few books. Preparation for bed is begun at 9 o'clock. This usually occupies about an hour, in the course of which he receives certain treatment for his ailments and a light massage. By 10 o'clock he is under the covers, ready for nine hours of rest.

Wilson receives an average of from four to six callers each week, usually old political or war-time associates. With them he likes particularly to discuss current events, which helps keep his contact and viewpoint on important developments fresh. He attends the theatre once each week, usually vaudeville.

The former war president is doing no writing, nor does he plan any extended literary work as his admirers generally have hoped. Any further writings he may undertake will be brief articles discussing current issues or problems, such as his recent article in the Atlantic Monthly on "The Road Away From Revolution."

He will write no memories, no "inside" story of his administration or of the war. He will undertake no defense or explanation of himself or the policies he followed or advocated. To a caller who urged him to write the inside story of his administration he said:

"I know I had a great administration, but it would not sound well for me to say so. I am willing to leave the record as it stands for the future to judge."

Neither will Wilson take an active part in the 1924 presidential campaign. He knows his physical condition, although considerably improved, would neither permit him to make the race nor to meet the duties of the office. He is content to be just an onlooker, injecting, perhaps, from time to time as occasion offers, a pointed remark or a brief letter on political affairs.

A recent letter, in which he dipped into the Tennessee senatorial race long enough to remark that he considered Senator Shields of that state "one of the least trustworthy" of his former professed supporters, may prove a deciding factor in the fight there. Where opportunity offers for such direct help or opposition, Wilson will get a smile and some satisfaction in saying what he has to say.

But he will do it all while sitting by on the sidelines as a spectator. Despite the careful regimen to which Wilson has ordered his life, he has taken on weight which is not helpful to him. He has a keen appetite, however, and does not take kindly to suggestion.

SUNDAY DETROIT TIMES

Will Award Thousands of Mama Dolls in Special Offer to Children Anywhere Outside of Detroit

250

Of These Walking---Talking---Sleeping "MAMA" DOLLS Will Be Given FREE With Every Issue of The Detroit SUNDAY TIMES Starting Next Sunday

HOW TO GET A "MAMA" DOLL

To begin with—on a special page each Sunday the Detroit Times will print a line drawing cut-out picture of a famous story book doll character. Children up to the age of ten are invited to color this drawing, using as many colors as they choose—either water colors, oils, paints, crayons, or chalk may be used. The colored picture, together with coupon published on same page, should then be mailed to the Mama Doll Editor of the, Sunday Detroit Times, and he, acting as judge, will award the Dolls to the 250 children submitting the best colored drawings. Colored pictures must be in the Times Office not later than Thursday of each week. Mama Dolls will be shipped parcel post to winners on Friday of each week. Remember this is a Special, only for children outside Detroit.

BEAUTIFUL ROSLEE

The MAMA DOLL is 24 inches high—a walking, talking, sleeping beauty. It is the best doll which can be purchased and was bought especially for this occasion. Three types, blonds, brunettes and titian-haired dolls are offered—you have your choice. Their dresses and bonnets are of pink crepe. Ribbons are tied beneath the chin from the colored Dutch caps trimmed with lace.

The doll body is topped by an unbreakable, composition head of life size, and the wigs are made from real hair beautifully curled. Arms and legs are lifelike and also composition, the knees dimpled and naturally tinted. The voice is clear and guaranteed. Each MAMA DOLL says "Ma-mah" distinctly and in a tone which makes a small girl snuggle it into her arms. The mouth is slightly open and has real teeth—this makes a hit with the kiddies.

Undergarments are pink bloomer combinations; there are real baby shoes and socks on each MAMA DOLL. The bodies are stuffed with sanitary cotton, not hair. Eyes are baby blue, bright, perfectly set. The doll goes to sleep if desired. Remember—it WALKS, TALKS, SLEEPS.
