ESCANABA, DELTA CO., MICH., SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1871.

NO. 30.

he added: "There, Mrs. Flowers, that's for your fare, every penny of it. I won't have my wife cravv a thing, and going without it, if I can get it for her."

The recipient of these marks of love gasped for breath, partly from the shock, partly from the slap, looked at the donor, then at the notes, pressed them with stiff, outstretched fingers, and then suddenly throwing an arm around the farmer's neck, buried her head in his beard and neck-cloth and sobbed out:

"Oh, Ruben! you're too good to me—you are, you are!"

II. After the excitement of the gift was over, Mr. Flowers declared, with a loud yawn, his intention of retiring for the night. "It's no use waiting up for Philander and Joe and the girls," said he. "They'll be at that husking before the night—the parties designated being Mr. and Mrs. Flowers'—heard folks."

Many of the matrons of the neighborhood shook their heads over "Mrs. Flowers keepin' two girls;" but Mr. Flowers stoutly held that he wouldn't have his wife killing herself over such a lot of butter and cheese as was made on their farm, for nobody's notions.

But the expectant owner of a four-hundred-dollar set of furs was in no fit frame of mind for slumber, so while Mr. Flowers took himself off to bed, Mrs. Flowers remained seated in front of the fire, staring into it, and meditating upon her unlooked-for amount of property. At first her thoughts ran riot among fur coverings and their various shapes. She was tolerably well posted in these things. She subscribed for one or two affairs, the burden of whose song was fashion and its belongings, and every article pertaining to furs was always perused with longing interest. After a time, however, little stabs of conscience made themselves felt, and with much reluctance, she began to view matters in a different light.

"You know," murmured that inward monitor, whose quiet but searching voice so often troubles us—"you know that love of dress has been your besetting sin from childhood up. Sometimes, I acknowledge, you have striven well against it; but never have you had so noble an opportunity as this. Avail yourself of it; make the sacrifice you ought to make. What business have you with such articles of luxury?"

"But," argued the eager spirit of the flesh, "surely in this case I am right in following out my wishes! It will be a cold winter; furs are very warm, and I am growing old. Besides, my husband wishes it. Shall I wound his feelings? No, in indeed. And the dame for the moment felt strong in conscious virtue.

Little, however, would conscience listen to this reasoning. She scorned it. "Cold replied she sternly. "There are less expensive ways of keeping warm. Something short of furs at four hundred dollars can do it. What you say about your husband is a mere excuse. If he sees you truly content he will be satisfied."

But pleaded keen Desire, "I have for years so wished for just these things. I can't give them up. Why should I not have them? There is no one suffering near me that I should thus deny myself the gift my husband makes me."

A shuffling step at the door, followed by a knock, interrupted the disturbed thinker.

"Come in," she cried, rising from her chair. The door opened, and a distant neighbor entered, an ill-favored, grumpy man, with a red face and a grumpy countenance. Mrs. Flowers greeted him with surprise but he soon explained his errand. Something was amiss with his horse's gear, and, seeing a light, he had come to borrow a lantern.

it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me!"

The childless woman and the motherless child looked into each others faces, each with a longing questioning gaze.

"You are not afraid of me, child, are you?" she asked, laying her hand gently on the little one's shoulder.

"No," replied the child, "not of you!" and she touched with timid finger the good woman's soft cheek; "but I am of him!" glancing wildly toward the door. "He is taking me to the poor-house," she whispered, with drooping head, and trembling like a dying bird.

"Not one step shall you go!" cried the woman, who had been so long and she clasped the little creature to her warm breast.

Great was Mr. Turner's disgust on his return with the lantern. "So you are opening a refuge for stray thieves, are you, Mrs. Flowers," he asked scornfully. "Well it's nothing to me. All I have to say is, if Mr. Flowers likes to spend his earnings that way, I don't. But I'll help you along," he added with cutting irony.

"Whenever I see any stragglers there's a warrant out agin, I'll send 'em on to you," and with that Partisan dart he went his way.

Mr. Flowers, deeply sunk in repose, was profoundly unconscious of the sudden addition to his family. He was aroused by his wife pulling his whiskers, and saying she had something to show him. After struggling in "slumber's chain" for a few moments, he managed to open his eyes sufficiently to discover the start of his grief and joys seated on the side of the bed, holding on her arm a sleeping child, whose golden head nestled on her bosom.

Mr. Flowers stared, blankly at this surprising sight. He was just deliberating whether he might be dreaming, when a sharp pinch from the excited Mrs. Flowers quite convinced him that she, at least, was not an "airy nothing."

"Ruben, dear," said she, "you gave me four hundred dollars to buy furs to keep myself warm, didn't you?"

PERFECTLY AWFUL.

Starting Lessons for Boys Addicted to Profane and Immoral Language.

It is surprising how much misery is caused in this world by the thoughtless use of some of the best hearted people in it. Often and often a person, whose heart is running over with innocent merriment, will perpetrate a joke, in a thoughtless moment, which will cause some dear friend pain, and throw a cloud over their lives forever.

"Yes," returned the perplexed benefactor, "and to look handsome in, he added, absently, as an afterthought, 'and you will let me spend the money in the way that will keep me warmest, won't you, dear?'"

"Yes," responded he, with his eyes riveted on the little golden head.

"Well," she went on, in a voice between weeping and laughing, "if I choose to keep my heart warm, instead of my back and shoulders, you will not say 'No' to it, will you?"

A Magdalen's Death-Thrilling Scene on a Fall River Steamboat.

From the Capital, Down River paper.

"Fisk's is the Fall River line, is it not?"

"Yes. And the way he tries to beat everybody else and make his only line to Boston is astonishing. Why, I'll tell you something about Fisk. One day, just as we were starting from New York, a trim little girl slipped aboard and took a stateroom, saying she was going through to Boston. She wasn't dressed loud, but mighty neat and rich, wearing a Turkish hat, velvet sack trimmed with lace, a dress with a lot of scallops and trimming around it, and about the most bewildering foot I ever saw on a human. She was pretty, saucy, and called me old father at supper, and carried on in a way that soon showed what she was, though she deceived me at first with her baby face and girlish manners."

"She was standing on deck about 7 o'clock, after having horrified the ladies and amused the gentlemen by her rollicking manner, and became quiet for a few minutes, while she looked far out at sea, she turned round to the captain, and, putting up her small white hands and taking him by his whiskers on each side of his face, she looked up to him and says she, very solemnly, 'Did you ever want to die, Captain?' 'Well, no,' says he, 'I don't think I ever did.' 'And if you did,' says she, 'what would you do?'"

"Well, in that case," said the Captain, losing her hands and turning away, "I think, as I have plenty of opportunity, I should jump into the sea and drown myself."

"The work was hardly out of his mouth before the turban round like a flash, and putting one hand on the railing, leaped overboard. She was gone before a person could stir to catch her, and a terrible scream arose from the passengers who saw it. I was standing aft when I heard the shouts, and looked out and saw her come to the surface. She had taken off her hat, and her splendid brown hair, which she wore loose down her back, floated in a mass on the water. I fancied she looked straight at me with her childish face as she came up, and there was nothing wild or struggling about her, but she seemed to smile in the same jaunty way that she did when she was plaguing me half an hour before. In another moment she was swept rapidly astern and disappeared. We put about and lowered the boats, but we never found her. It is strange how the women, who had been so shocked at her conduct before, now pitied and even wept for the little girl when they found what a lost creature she had been in the foaming baby's heart while she was laughing the loudest. She had left a small reticule in the cabin, and when we opened it we found some verses, written in a little cramped hand on a folded sheet of note paper. They ran about this way, and were headed:

A MAGDALEN'S DEATH. I can no longer endure this pollution. This forsaking breast; Oh! by the life of my father's left me, Merciful death! Not sad, but earthly, Not glad, but heavenly, Go to my death. Friendship refuse to grant sanctified burial. There unto me. Father, I thank thee! A blessing is always bid. Aye, in the west of France, Aye, in his bleak gloom, Blessed is the name.

Welcome, O sea! with thy breaking and dashing Down to thy angry, stormy waves. Oh, hide me in peace. Say to the weary fleet, On to thy resting place, Number to peace.

A Ship Propelled by a Turbine Wheel. The Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph says that two mechanics have been for ten days building a small experimental ship there, which will be launched when complete, in the Nashua River, and make a trial trip. It is thirty-two feet beam, and eight feet depth of hold, and its peculiarity is in the propelling power, which is a novelty invented by a man who has followed the sea for many years. It is thus described:

The propelling power is to be a turbine wheel, set at the bottom of a flume rising five feet from the ship's bottom. The water enters the flume from the ship's sides just below the water line. This opening is provided with a valve to prevent the water from returning when the ship lurches in a rough sea. Row is the water to leave the ship's side every one. From the bottom of the flume, near the turbine wheel, a tunnel eighteen inches in diameter extends along the ship's bottom to the extremity. This tunnel is to be so constructed as to constitute a vacuum and is to be supplied with a set of revolving fans to accelerate the egress of the water, and with valves to prevent the inflowing of the water from the stern. The water in the flume will have a head of five feet, furnishing a power of nine horse. Now the inventor, who is one of the workmen, explains the principle of the turbine wheel of the screw before the outer valve in the tunnel is reached by the outflowing current of water, or a rate of speed equal to five miles an hour. A moving vessel makes a trough in the sea at the stern, and the faster the vessel moves the greater the trough. This trough will lessen to a considerable extent the pressure on the outer tunnel valve, and the remaining force necessary to overcome the pressure, open the valves and release the water, is expected to be created by the movement of the vessel itself. The principle is that which will empty the bowl of a common clay pipe drawn rapidly through the water. Once in motion, the ship is expected to attain a rate of speed only equal by the power of the turbine.

The Propellor R. J. Hackett and her consort, the Barge H. B. Brown, took a cargo of 2,525 gross tons of ore, on their last trip down, and didn't have on such a load then. Can the "larger class of vessels" which are daily coming into Marquette, beat this?

Nearly every paper one picks up, a mention is made to "accidents" either to property or persons—arising from the careless use of fire crackers. The innocent little playthings are often the cause of the largest and the most amazing conflagrations in the country. In a wooden town like this, a law would be passed prohibiting their being fired within the Village limits.

We call attention to the notice of Great Western Compound Company, of Omro, Wis. They propose to sell their property at Omro, and to transfer their business to Chicago by means of a gift concert. The concert and drawing comes off at Putnam's Hall in Omro, on Thursday evening, the 20th of July. The excellent reputation of the parties, leaves no doubt but that the drawing will take place just as advertised.

HOPE—Yes, that's the proper term to those strawberries, left us by Mr. Silas Howard the other day. We don't pretend to say that 10 of them weighed a pound, but just for curiosity we measured one of the medium sized ones, and found its diameter to be 1 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches. Mr. Howard tells us, he has already picked 230 quarts this season, and will probably have as many more.

STILL ANOTHER.—Wednesday morning Master Geo. Langley came rushing in before breakfast, with a fine lot of delicious berries, grown in the garden of D. Langley Jr., which in flavor and size compare favorably with those left by Mr. Howard.

On Wednesday morning we were aroused bright and early by a neighbor, demanding that we should get up and take his measure for a pair of boots. Some one had misheard the old boot and shoe sign of Job Dodge, and taken the trouble to place it along side the fence in front of our palatial abode, which accounts for the mistake of our friend. Job don't hang out in that particular locality, but is doing business with his father in the store next door south of S. Look out for the Fourth of July.—The Excelsior Club are to give a Grand Public Ball, on the 4th, at Stephen's new Hall. They promise a very pleasant time, and cordially invite those who "trip the light fantastic toe" to come in and enjoy themselves, for the very moderate consideration of one dollar.

PROCLAMATION. To the people of Escanaba and surrounding country: I wish to announce to you that I have moved into my new store, corner of Ludington street, and Douglas Avenue, where I keep a large and well assorted stock of Groceries & Provisions, Boots & Shoes, Crockery & Glassware, all of which I will sell at the lowest cash prices, and as cheap as any house in town, as I will not be undersold. I will endeavor to buy nothing but the best of all kinds, so I can recommend them to my customers, and you can rely on always getting your right weights and measures. All goods delivered or shipped hereafter will be made under my personal superintendence, so satisfaction will be guaranteed.

As I intend to make Escanaba my home in the future, and be identified with its growth and prosperity, I hope to merit by honest and fair dealing, a share of your patronage. Thanking all my friends for their sympathy in the past, I will endeavor to retain it in the future. T. KILLIAN.

The Good Templars have made arrangements with Capt. Thomas, of the Popo Fairy, to run between this place and their picnic grounds at the mouth of Escanaba River, on the Fourth. It will charge only 25 cents each for the round trip. At the grounds, everything possible will be done by the Templars, to make their guests comfortable. Everybody is invited to attend, and to bring their tables along, or they can purchase them, at the stands on the grounds. The pastimes will consist of Base Ball, Croquet, Boating, Swimming, Fishing, &c.

They also have made arrangements for a Grand Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival in the evening, at the Hall formerly occupied by J. H. Hart, as a cabinet shop.

FOX AHEAD SER.—On Monday and Tuesday of next week, being July 3d and 4th, Blaisdell Bros. & Courtright give one of their inimitable entertainments at Clark's Hall. Below we give a partial synopsis of the incidents brought out in their celebrated "Trip around the World."

SCENE 1st.—San Francisco Harbor and Bay. Steamer Japan, signal for starting off for China, Golden Gate, Seal Rock, Cliff House in the distance. Quartette, Messers. Stanton, Rushly, Kelley and Kneass.

SCENE 2d.—Out on the Pacific, Storm at Sea. "Oh dear boys, I'm so sick." Everything all quiet again. China Coast.

SCENE 3d.—Arrival at China, Queer People. The Heathen Chinese. Porcelain Tower, Pagoda, and Tea Garden. The Great Tea Mart. Grand Double Chinese Cocker Dance, Mlle. Annetta and Master Gilbert.

SCENE 4th.—The China Sea by night. Fleet of vessels at anchor. "Come Boys, let's take a Balloon trip to Germany." Pull the valve and up we go. "Up in a Balloon."

SCENE 5th.—Germany. The famous water place, Baden Baden. Beautiful illuminated Effect.

SCENE 6th.—Rural scene. King William's Cavalry. "My Dear Native Land," song and chorus, Messrs. Howe, Osborn, Stanton and Rushly. Six enchanous Land-Bach Steel Glass Beer, song and dance (characteristic), Messrs. Wimple and Gilbert.

SCENE 7th.—France. All aboard for Paris. Grand Railroad Excursion cars crossing the stage. Railroad smash up. Terrible time but nobody hurt. Arrival at Paris. Grand Tour of Napoleon I. Arrival of the eccentric French lady, Mad Hash, who receives the excursionists with honors. The Tuilleries. American citizens, Song, Naicy Barr, Billy Courtright. Napoleon went to Germany to See Dan, but found William. Well as we don't talk French, we'll be off to the land of the Shamrock.

Scenes 8 and 9 embrace a description of Ireland, introducing songs and dances peculiar to that country.

Scenes 10 and 11 are purely English in their character, while scene 12 brings them back to their native land, with Grand Finale, the Goddess of Liberty, represented by Mlle. Annetta.

The observations on Mount Washington during the past winter, have established the fact that periods of cold and storms are indicated at that altitude several hours in advance of their arrival at a lower plane. Therefore those observations are regarded as of great importance by the Signal Service, and it is probable they will be continued by the Government.

Now is the time to subscribe for the TRIBUNE.

The Defunct Commercial Advertiser gives the following account of the celebration of the Papal Jubilee in that city: "Wednesday one Roman Catholic citizen celebrated the 25th anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius IX. in grand style, the principal feature being a procession which was very large, and occupied over two hours in passing a given point. It contained a very large number of people on foot, in carriages, buggies, wagons and almost all manner of conveyances. The sidewalks and houses along the line of march, too, were crowded to excess with spectators, and fully 50,000 persons witnessed and took part in the celebration.

NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF HORSES.—The eighth National Exhibition of Imported and American bred horses, takes place at Kalamazoo, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 15, 16, 17 and 18. As the premiums offered amount to $30,000, this will undoubtedly be an important affair. For further particulars of the enterprise enquire of Frank Little, Sec'y, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Proceedings of The Village Board of Trustees. ESCANABA, MICH., June 23d, 1871.

At an adjourned meeting of the Village Board of Trustees held at the Clerk's Office, the following gentlemen were present: F. O. Clark, Pres't, J. N. Hiller, H. B. Smith, D. Langley Jr., D. Keane and M. Stephenson.

The minutes of the two previous meetings were read and adopted. The following bills were allowed, viz: H. McFall for building cross-walks, &c., $51.80; J. E. Chevier for teaming $6.50. On motion of D. Langley Jr., H. B. Smith and J. N. Hiller were appointed a committee to write an ordinance relative to persons confined in the County Jail under the village ordinances. They reported the following which was adopted:

ORDINANCE NO. 32. Every person who shall have been committed to the County Jail for non-payment of any fine or forfeiture under the ordinances of this Village, shall be compelled to pay the same by working on the public streets of this Village, at the rate of one dollar per day, under the direction of the Marshal, and the Marshal is hereby instructed to provide tools and chains for such prisoners to prevent their escape.

On motion of J. N. Hiller that the Assessor levy a tax of Five Hundred Dollars on the taxable property of this village, and that the assessment be made as soon as possible, and that they adopt the assessment of the Supervisor of the township of Escanaba for the year 1871.

On motion of D. Langley Jr., that H. B. Smith be appointed to negotiate with Chas. D. Jewell for publishing ordinances and the proceedings of this Board and other official business from March 15th 1871, till March 15th, 1872. Meeting adjourned for one week. F. O. CLARK, Pres't. E. P. BOLAND, Clerk.

Grand Gift Concert. It is universally conceded by all who are acquainted with the gift enterprise inaugurated by the Great Western Compound Company, that it offers to the ticket holders the best inducements of any enterprise that is to be found in the country. In the first place it gives for the 7500 tickets sold at $2.00 each $15,000 worth of valuable property, and cash at its actual cash value.

We are frequently questioned by strangers upon the following points, they say that while they fully admit that the building and other property is put in at a low figure they are not able to determine as to the intrinsic worth of the capital stock in the company. For the benefit of this class we explain as follows:

The Company was organized Sept. 10th 1868 under the statute of Wisconsin with an authorized capital of $50,000 the company sold $43,000 of the stock, thus leaving a balance of $7,000 of the stock unsold. Now the question, what is the actual worth of the $43,000 of invested stock.

In the first place the company's net assets at the present time over and above all liabilities is $62,050, while they have paid for advertising $38,000 these two amounts added together makes $98,050. Thus in a few words shows the actual working capital and financial basis of the company at the present time.

Taking into account the fact of the increase of capital since the company was organized, together with the disadvantages growing out of its unfortunate location, taking also into account that the company is now doing a business of from $500 to $200 per week, the managers of the company are confident that the natural increase of their business together with the advantages to be gained by moving to Chicago will enable them to predict safely that they will do a business of $100,000 the first year that they are located in Chicago.

None will doubt that there is a large profit on patent medicines, especially when they possess intrinsic merit sufficiently to produce the unparalleled growth that the company's large line of remedies has, since they were first introduced.

With a business of $100,000 per annum the company will clear about all expenses $50,000. Who can doubt that this chance for investment is the very best offered in the country. In its present infancy its business does not cover one twentieth part of the United States, hence its increase of business in the future for at least ten years will be upon a greater ratio in proportion as their remedies become more widely known. Again this capital stock is not subject to assessments and cannot therefore be assessed. Some will ask why the present stock-holders do not take the balance of the unsold stock? In answer I will say they have families to support from their present resources, while the company's is used in spreading their business over new Territory.

It will be noticed that the company's enterprise offers more large gifts for the number of tickets sold, than any other enterprise. All the other enterprises through out the land give but from 10 to 20 percent prizes, and reserve the balance to themselves. In the Milwaukee Musical Concert, they distributed in gifts 30 percent, and each ticket holder had one chance only in 100,000 of drawing the capital prize, while in ours each ticket holder stands one chance in 7,500. For the verification of our statements relating to the value of the company's stock, the company's books are open to be inspected by anyone who desires to do so. The company has as much at stake, and their reputation for honesty and fair dealing is worth to much for them to undertake to practice any deception in a matter where only $15,000 is at stake, when by doing so we might sacrifice our entire business which we regard to be worth at least one hundred thousand dollars.

Our tickets are for sale in nearly every town in the State. See circulars explaining the manner that the enterprise is to be conducted. GREAT WESTERN COMPOUND CO., Omro, Wis. J. N. Hiller is Agent for the sale of Tickets in Escanaba, and will explain the merits of the enterprise to all who may wish to invest.
