FANIS OF 1837.

The New York World of September 12 thus review the history of former financial flurries:

"The two causes generally assigned for the panic of 1837 were the Bank of England requiring payment from the American banks in London, and the passing of the 'Surplus Revenue' bill by Congress, which latter had the effect of causing the banks credits, which represented the surplus revenue, to be transferred from place to place without any regard to the laws of trade.

A DISPUTED BETWEEN Nathaniel Daniels and F. M. Houston, at Platte City, Mo., resulted in the killing of Daniels and the wounding of Houston.

Two field Mrs. O'Meara, aged 25, and her daughter, aged 25, were found Monteiro, on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, Saturday morning. A coroner's jury elicited sufficient evidence to warrant the belief that they were murdered.

The last National Furnace at Escanaba has shut down for repairs. It is estimated that it will take about thirty days before they will be ready to resume operations.

Stack No. 2 of the Jackson Iron Co.'s furnace at Fayette, manufactured during the month of September 940 gross tons of pig iron and 2184 lbs castings. The largest cast for any single week during the time was 235 gross tons and for any single day 38 gross tons. For a small furnace, this showing is decidedly ahead of anything on record.

The partial-closing of several manufacturing establishments, such as locomotive works, woolen factories,
iron works, etc., in the Eastern states, is the result of the late financial panic. It is to be hoped that financial matters will soon settle down to such a basis, that manufacturing and other like industries will again resume their wonted energy.

The public debt statement for September shows the total debt to be $2,201,493,164, of which $447,493, 531 bears no interest; the total interest is $2,083,523. The total of cash in the treasury at the close of the month was $94,785,786, and the debt, less cash in the treasury, was $2,138, 793,898, or a decrease during the month of $1,901,467.

According to the decision of the N. Y. Court of Appeals, in the case of the steamer Westfield which blew up last year, Sunday is "no day" in that sense. The court held that are illegal, and the owners of that boat could not legally contract to deliver passengers safely on that day and therefore they were not liable for damages because life and limb suffered on a Sunday through their culpable negligence. Good boats with sound boilers must be run on week days under penalty of heavy damages in case of accident, but leaky tubs and rotten boilers can be used on Sundays to take the crowds of pleasure seekers without fear of consequences as far as the law is concerned.
Sunday travellers would do well to ponder on this.

The Escanaba Furnace is now doing remarkably well—so well in fact, we think the company will be justified in putting another stack and engine in the spring. The furnace is now turning out from 24 to 22 gross tons per day. The ore used is one-half what is known as the "westend" Cascade, which assays about 66 per cent., and one-half of Cascade
No. 2, a much leaner ore. The fuel used is hard and soft coal. There is no doubt that this furnace is capable of turning out 40 tons per day, were nothing but first quality of ore and fuel used. A very high grade of iron is now being manufactured, which the superintendent, Mr. Agnew, informs us it his intention to continue.
So far the shipments of their iron have been confined to one cargo, but during the present week two vessels have arrived here, which will take away in the neighborhood of 1200 tons more, and still leave a surplus in the yard.

ESCANABA TRIBUNE-Supplement.

Escanaba, Michigan, October 11th, 1873.

In Memory of Miss Anna Hause, who died Dec. 9th, 1872.

The years roll on, and with them pass away,
The good and bad, the old, the young and gay.
We think, as ever some new-made grave we Will be to find this silent hand?

How many now sleep 'neath the cold, cold ground.

One year ago among the living they were found,

Those voices loud, and now all hushed and still.

And all we see of them, their grave upon the hill.

Twas in the year of eighteen seventy two,

As Christmas time began to beam in view,

Just two weeks more, ere merry Christmas day,

When our dear Anna passed from earth away.

Within the silent grave she now doeth lie,

Too good to live and yet too young to die,

Eighteen short years in this cold world she spent

Then to her home in Paradise she went.

She had to earth a long and last farewell,

Next to the holy Angels she doth dwell,

And her sweet voice, in choir doth raise,

Telling her Master and her Saviour's praise.

She had lost Christmas most recent,

That joyful every Christian heart should feel,

Beside we know, and all hearts were sore,

Worried see dear Anna to the world no more.

How happy went with the Angels then,

Perhaps thou wert singing "good will to men,"

With a crown on thy brow and a robe so white,

Did we think of us Anna on Christmas night?

We knew there were beautiful scenes and gay

Hearts in the world on last Christmas day,

But what all these in the violated eyot

Or her who spent Christmas in Paradise.

A New Method of Making Iron.

A new method of making wrought iron direct from the ore is now practiced in South Staffordshire, which is thus described: The inventors take the ore, grind it to powder, and mix with it powdered lime, together with powdered pitch or tar. When pitch is used, a little water is needed to produce a mixture having much the appearance of a dark mortar. In this shape the preparation is spread on the floor of a closed kiln, and treated very much like patent fuel. Here the moisture evaporates, but no portion of the metalproducing ingredients is lost. In a few hours the kiln has a surface of metal coke usually four-and-a-half necessary, eight inches thick. This is broken up in sizes adaptable to a heating furnace of the ordinary iron works class, where it is submitted to fire for half an hour at the utmost.

In that time it is ready for the hove or squeezers, which it leaves a capital bloom, producing in the rolls a bar of half manufactured iron, known under the old principal, as a puddled bar.

Thus the use of the blast furnace has altogether been avoided and the work of converting the product of the blast furnace into partially manufactured iron, which has heretofore required a large amount of troublesome skilled labor, has been effected by an operator who needs very little practice to make him efficient. The other stages through which iron has to pass in order to the completion of the bar, or sheet, as the case may be,

are the same as in the old process.

The 1st National Furnace at Escanaba has shut down for repairs. It is estimated that it will take about thirty days before they will be ready to resume operations.

Gov. Bagley has ordered a special election to be held in the Fifth Congressional District; on the first day of November (Nov. 1) or the day of Nov. 10, death of Hon. vacancy caused by the Wilder D. Foster.

On last Friday, the Notch warriors of Jack, Boston Currier, Schenck and Black Jim, exploited their crimes upon the gallows. The execution was witnessed by a large number of Indians who doubtless were more or less awed by the fear of the spectacle.

Stack No. 2 of the Jackson Iron Co.'s furnace at Fayette, manufactured during the month of September 340 gross tons of pig iron, and 2184 lbs castings. The largest cast for any single week during the time was 225 gross tons and for any single day 88 gross tons. For a small furnace this showing is decidedly ahead of anything on record.

The partial closing of several manufacturing establishments, such as locomotive works, woolen factories, iron works, etc., in the Eastern states is the result of the late financial panic. It is to be hoped that financial matters will soon settle down to such a basis, that manufacturing and other like industries will again resume their wonted energy.

The public debt statement for September shows the total debt to be $2,201,496,164, of which $441,494,534 bears no interest; the total interest is $52,083,523. The total of cash in the treasury at the close of the month was $94,785,786, and the debt less cash in the treasury, was $2,158,723,898, or a decrease during the month of $1,901,467.

According to the decision of the N. Y. Court of Appeals, in the case of the steamer Westfield which blew up last year, Sunday is "no day" in which to sail. Travellers on the seas are illegal, and the owners of that boat could not legally contract to deliver passengers safely on that day and therefore they were not liable for damages because life and limb suffered on a Sunday through their culpable negligence. Good boats with sound boilers must be run on week days under penalty of heavy damages in case of accident, but leaky tubs and rotten boilers can be used on Sundays to take the crowds of pleasure seekers without fear of consequences as far as the law is concerned. Sunday travellers would do well to ponder on this.

The Escanaba Furnace is now doing remarkably well—so well in fact, we think the company will be justified in putting in another stack and engine in the spring. The furnace is now turning out from 24 to 32 gross tons per day. The ore used is one-half what is known as the "west end" Cascade ore, which assays about 66 per cent., and one-half of Cascade No. 2, a much leaner ore. The fuel used is 1/2 hard and soft coal. There is no doubt that this furnace is capable of turning out 40 tons per day, were nothing but first quality of ore and fuel used. A very high grade of iron is now being manufactured, which the superintendent, Mr. Agnew, informs us of his intention to continue. So far the shipments of their iron have been confined to one cargo, but during the present week two vessels have arrived here, which will take away in the neighborhood of 1200 tons more, and still leave a surplus in the yard.

A Mormon farmer has succeeded in driving a thorough confederate game on the potato bags. He planted a grain of corn in each potato hill and as the corn came up flat, the bags thought it was a corn-field and started for other scenes.

The work of changing the scene of the Grand Trunk Railways of Canada, from 5 feet 6 inches to 4 feet 8 1/2 inches commenced on Friday of last week and was finished on Monday of this. The length of the main line was 430 miles, with some 15 miles of sidings. During the change, the mails were carried by steamers.

The Postoffice Department, by a recent decision, holds that a registered letter is not subject to attachment. The Department holds it for delivery to the person addressed or to his or her order. Postmasters have been notified that in refusing to deliver a letter on a process issued by a State court they will be readily justified of any alleged contempt of such protest.

The United States signal station on the summit of Pike's Peak is nearly completed, and will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies to day. The telegraph line on the summit is already completed, and when the station is fully established important scientific disclosures may be expected. The signal station is 14,216 feet above the sea level. One observer and three assistants will remain on the summit all winter. The new trail leading thereto renders its location accessible excepting in the most severe weather.

The total cash receipts into the State Treasury during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1873, was $2,192,431.32, which added to the cash balance September 30, 1872, of $977,224.03, makes the total cash in the treasury during the year $3,169,655.55. The total payments for the year were $2,314,942.11, leaving a cash balance September 30, 1873, of $851,713.44, decrease during the year of $122,510.50. The total bonded debt of the State, less cash in Treasury applicable to its payment, is $1,358,723,898, or a decrease during the month of $1,901,467.

An arrangement has just been concluded between the United States and Newfoundland providing that on and after the 1st of October, 1873, United States postal cards mailed at any post office in the United States and addressed to Newfoundland, and Newfoundland postal cards mailed at any post office in Newfoundland and addressed to the United States, when prepaid by additional postage of one cent by affixing thereto an ordinary one cent postage stamp of the country of origin, in addition to the stamp printed or impressed on the card, shall be reciprocally forwarded and delivered in the country of destination free of charge.

Postal cards of either country, when not so prepaid, will not be forwarded in the mails between the two countries.

The regulations and instructions governing the use and treatment of postal cards in the domestic mails of the United States and of Newfoundland, respectively, are equally applicable to the postal cards mailed in either country and addressed to the other country.

PARK AND HOUSEHOLD.

Balky Horses.

Balking is a serious defect in a very useful animal, and it cannot be overcome by whipping or swearing at him. His brain does not seem capable of entertaining, and one thought at a time, and the stubborn resolve not to move seems to be uppermost in it. Therefore you must endeavor to give him a new subject of thought, and thereby change the direction of his brain.

The simple trick of putting a small quantity of earth or grain, such from the road-side, upon the tongue will suffice to turn him attention to the new kind of fodder offered him. Now speak to him, but don't strike him, and almost before he is aware of it he is walking along more easily than as is needed; this is a really much better plan.

FARMS AND HORSES.—There is no greater trouble in connection with the farm-hands than that of getting them to work. Every master should learn that pheasant words and tones are of much greater use in making his horses obedient than the whip-snash, mingled with harsh tones and ear-splitting curses.

Smoking Stools.

I saw an article in a late issue of your paper about milking and milking stools, where "Jebid" thinks common wood, basket the most convenient seat. Let me tell him how to make what I call a convenient stool.

Take a piece of board eight inches wide and two feet long; nail short pieces across the ends, to increase its strength, and bore holes through; put two legs in one end eight or ten inches long, and one in the other or forward end, a trifle shorter. Place the stool where you want to sit, the end with one leg in where you usually set the pail. Place the pail on one end and sit on the other; there you have your pail out of the dirt, and the cow cannot easily put her foot in it, as is often the case when the pail is on the ground.

If the legs prove too long, say them off a little. Some cows are so low that you are obliged to set the pail on the ground; in such case you can turn your stool around. Try it, and see how you like it.—Farmer's Daughter in Western Rural.

Mowing Under Brush.

A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph in giving his experience in plowing under brush says: My idea was that one great cause why we could not get as good crops from old fields as when they were first cultivated, was owing, in great part, to the density of the soil. I had observed that the first eight or ten years after clearing off the forest the land would give good crops with very little care in plowing; the reason for this I argued was the decaying of the impenetrable rootlets of the trees cut down. In order to test this theory I cut about two tons of water-urnish, brash and other small bushes, and let them lie in a pile exposed to the weather one year, and then applied them to one-half of the land, applying barnyard manure to another half acre adjoining. The result proved the manure to be a little the best in the first crop, which was corn. So I repeated this in the fall after harvesting the corn.

The harvested pile did pretty well for about four years, but then the grass did well for about ten years, the grass, however, becoming thin and sparse.

Then came the turnip crop, which was a failure.

Preparing the Mowing-tackle which they had with them for use, they were soon engaged in the sport of catching the beautiful trout from the clear depths of the water before them, for Karr's was a trout pond, and only in winter was it fast, and fairly swarmed with trout.

Then came the business of dredging the fish, after which both employed themselves in gathering wood for the fire.

"And isn't we fish any more?" asked Charlie.

"Yes, toward dusk, my boy. You notice that the trout don't bite now as they did at first and from noon until about four o'clock we cannot catch any, for they lie down during the day.

Dinner time arrived, and Charlie thought it was time to eat, but he had eaten nothing all day.

"O, do the wolves howl now? I am glad to! I shall love to hear them!"

Mr. Arnold laughed heartily. "Perhaps."

Preparing the Sling-tackle which they had with them for use, they were soon engaged in the sport of catching the beautiful trout from the clear depths of the water before them, for Karr's was a trout pond, and only in winter was it fast, and fairly swarmed with trout.

Then came the business of dredging the fish, after which both employed themselves in gathering wood for the fire.

"It is cold, but we need a fire, boy.

"Not always; but it is generally pleasant to sit by the fire, and keep away from it.

"But what they bite in we didn't eat."

"Probably not," answered Mr. Arnold.

"Wolves are country fellows unless very hungry or gathered together in large packs.
