HON. JOHN W. STONE RENOMINATED FOR JUDGE OF THE 25TH CIRCUIT.

Republican and Democratic Conventions Confer, and Join in Presenting His Name.-A Well Deserved Compliment.

A convention of the republicans of the 25th judicial district met, pursuant to call, at the court house in this city last Friday evening to nominate a candidate for judge of the circuit. It was organized by the choice of B. J. Brown, of Menomince county, temporary chairman and W. S. Hill, of Marquette county, temporary secretary. The chair, by direction of the convention named Messrs. Mead, Moriarity and Cook as members of a committee on credentials and Messrs. Hanscom, Waite and Jennings committee on permanent organization and order of business. The reports of the two committees were adopted, making the temporary organization permanent and, on motion which prevailed, the chair appointed Messrs. Cook, Waite, Mead, Smith and Moriarity a committee to confer with a similar committee of a democratic convention then in session as to candidate, instructing the committee to present to the democratic committee the name of Hon. John W. Stone. After a brief absence the committee returned and reported that the name of Judge Stone was satisfactory to the democratic committee and had been agreed upon as the candidate of both conventions; whereupon the convention, by unanimous vote, nominated John W. Stone as its candidate. The judicial committee was then named-Gad Smith chairman and B. W. Wright secretary and the chairmen of the republican county committees of Delta, Dickinson, Iron and Menominee counties, ex officio, members, and the convention adjourned. The democratic convention held its session in the parlor of the Ludington hotel. Hon. M. J. Doyle presiding and S.T. Handy serving as secretary. "Citizen's" Suggestion.

The law which makes it necessary for the Chinamen to secure certificates of residence was approved May 5th. 1892, and it provides that those who are entitled to remain in the country must get their certificates within one year from the date of the approval of the law. The people who are entitled to remain in the country are those who are not classed as laborers. As the law is interpreted, they are restricted to the merchants. The applicant for a certificate must make affidavit that he was a resident of the United States on May 5, 1892, and he must furnish affidavits of two witnesses to prove the truth of his statements. The lock on Groth's barn has been broken several times of late and on this particular night he stationed hard by with a view of discovering, if possiole, the perpetrator. Arthur Waite was seen near the barn by Groth, who immediately opened fire upon him, emptying the five chambers of his revolver into-space. Waite didn't linger to make any explanation of his presence there at that unseenly hour, but proceeded to vacate with all possible speed, followed by Groth who vainly attempted to induce his gun to give forth another volley. The officers arrested Waite on Thomas street a few minutes later, and on Friday he was arraigned in Justice Glaser's court, where he was fined $10 and costs, which sum he produced.

The noise, bustle, hustle and glitter of bayonets and gaudy uniforms will furnish ample material for a first-class night mare for years and years to come. It was something to have lived through to day, and living at times was at a premium, especially if you happened to become entangled in a human log jam as I was and had forgotten to say your prayers. To-day I saw one administration, old enough to wear a matured growth of chin ornaments, pass into political history, and hand over to the new one the great ship of state and every thing else except the deficit in the U.S. treasury, which was deferred until the salary list began to whisper its beautiful tale of woe into the ears of those who are democrats with a revenue attachment. The new police were attracted to the alley near the president received it with thanks and postoflice by pistol shots, and hastened to promised to leave it here when he got the locality from whence the sounds came. through withit provided pure democracy was not hungry at that time. The great multitudes which gathered here naturally increased the price of every 1892:thing except possibly the chance of clasping glad hands with a lucrative office. This department of our national machinery I am told was closed two weeks after the political enguliment last autumn and Mr. Cleveland, with his characteristic stubborness, refuses to open the gates to a longing and much desiring contingent which helped me flood this city. It is common knowledge that Grover has plenty of backbone yet I'm here to state authentically to a western people that said spinal column is petrified from remote Revelations to minute Genesis. The Michigan delegation was full. There were only two of us yet we did our level best to fill all the requirements. It takes lots of perseverance and a deluge of Pagoda water to fill a good healthy political requirement, yet Michigan men were never known to lay down their guns in the face of the enemy, and I fell outside the breastworks while making a that Uncle Jerry Rusk's successor had got desperate attempt to be recognized. By special direction of the grand marshal we were mobilized at the intersection of Pension Alley and Executive Avenue with our right resting on the Shoreham bar. We entered the procession at 12:15 and were counted at the reviewing stand at 9:59 p.m. Had the weather continued unfavorable as it started in the early morning we would have held our position at all hazards. The price of board and lodgings advanced at such an alarming rate that I took my meals in Alexandria. I visited the Whitehouse yesterday and saw the white, the pink, the green and the blue room. The latter is the abode of those who search diligently but cannot find. The bouncing room is the favorite resort of the officials connected with the executive chambers. Here hang life sized portraits of John L. Sullivan, Jas. J. Corbett and other men of rank. The Cat in the Meal.

Some weeks since the Western Union Telegraph Co., through its local representative, submitted to the city council a draft of an ordinance granting to that for its purposes. The ordinance seemed fair enough, on its face; the company proposed to submit to proper supervision: but there seemed to be no present necessity for the enactment of such an ordinance, and an ulterior object not visible on its face was suspected. That suspicion was enough to prevent the adoption of the proposed ordinance, and it was laid upon the table.

Now comes news, from St. Louis, that throws some light upon the subject. That city levied a tax per pole, upon the property of the company and the case has gone through the courts and the right of the city to levy and collect such tax has been confirmed. It looks as though the company was trying, by procuring the passage of the ordinance in question in the small towns throughout the country, to put itself in the position of a party to a contract for a term of years and beyond the reach of such action as that at St. Louis. It was well that the council was "leary." That company pays six per cent. dividends on a hundred millions of stock which is nine tenths 'water" and reported a surplus at the close of its last fiscal year of over six millions. It deserves no consideration. St. Louis makes it pay five dollars per pole for the privilege of using the streets; we ought to make it pay proportionately.

contained, it seems to us, a suggestion worthy of consideration. The Cochrane property is still idle, the tannery deal having fallen through. It is better adapted to the use suggested-a hard wood industry-and is capacious enough for such an industry on a large scale. A company organized as suggested by "Citizen" would be a better bargain for the city than a tannery, on the same terms, and we know of no reason for supposing that the council and people of the city would be less liberal towards such a company than it was proposed to be with the tanner.

Put up the money, contingent on getting possession of the big shop on the same terms or others equally satisfactory, and then see what can be done. "God helps those who help themselves" says the proverb, and it is true of the world whether or not of the deity. If we are to see our city built up and made prosperous we must ourselves "put a shoulder to the wheel;" will we do it?

Another Job for the B. M. A.

It is quite probable that the legislature will authorize the establishment of a normal school in the upper peninsula, and the cities and villages all about us are making ready to reach for it. Our city is the proper location for the school, if one be authorized (we all know that, of ord as hostesses and the Easter Monday course), and we should be prepared to establish the fact the the satisfaction of tation. The best of music will be prowhoever may be charged with the duty of selecting the location. The old Tilden house property would be an ideal location and the Busines Men's Association can render good service by ascertaining on what terms it can be had for the purpose, and getting the matter in shapeargument and tender of site ready as soon as anybody is ready to hear the one or consider the other. Oh, the B. M. A. will never be "out of a job."

He was confident, however, the latter would be a success; in fact it was certain.

John Corcoran requested each member to induce others to join the association by talking up the benefits to be derived. Mr. Hessell said some of the business men objected to meeting in the rooms of the Delta Club. Dr. Phillips called the objec-

It Sounded Like July.

At midnight between Friday and Saturday last this section was treated to a rattling thunder shower. It sounded like July rather than March and suggested things mixed in the weather bureau, but we have not heard of Mark Harrington's removal from the head of that bureau. May be he sees the "hand-writing on the wall" and is rattled. Any way, we heard the thunder and saw the lightning.

Exit Lamb, Enter Lion.

The lamb end of March passed out last Saturday and, after a decent interval, the lion made its appearance on Monday morning-wind fresh from the north-cast and snow. Dakota, Wm. N. Roach, turns out to be the same Wm. N. Roach who from 1869 to 1877 was cashier of the Citizens' Nation al bank at Washington and who robbed that bank of a large sum-$64.000. His father-in-law, Dr. C. W. Lieberman, paid to the bank the amount of Roach's bond, $25,000, and $16,000 was realized from the sale of some Washington real estate owned by Roach, but the balance of his stealings, some $20,000, the bank lost and Roach was not prosecuted, probably out of consideration for his family and relatives. It is not probable that any criminal prosecution will now be made; indeed, it is hardly conceivable that he would go to Washington with the credentials of a senator were he not well assured of that, but it remains to be seen whether the democratic' majority of the senate will accept him as an associate and equal. As he is a democrat the republican senators leave the matter to their decision. Never before, since the formation of the government has the it will do about it, now, is beyond our guessing.

for mayor, the city will be well or ill-governed as the members of the city, council, the aldermen, are well or ill-equipped for the discharge of their duties; the mayor is practically powerless except as he is backed by the council. Neither of the organizations which will put a ticket in the field is limited by party considerations. now let us see the good results promised by those who decry "machine politics," let us have the very best men for aldermen and school inspectors, no matter who is chosen for the head of the ticket. CITY COUNCIL MATTERS

The City Offers Free Vaccination-Poor Director's Report Received-A Big Batch of Bills Allowed-Regarding Manufactures.

The city council met, pursuant to adjournment, in the council chamber Saturday, March 11, 1893. Present the Mayor and Aldermen Branshaw, Gamache, Hamm, Hess, Jepson, King, Lapine, Lindquist, Powers, Walch and Winegar.

Honorable Mayor and Common Council: Gentlemen-In view of the fact that smallpox is more or less epidemic in several of our surrounding cities, especially Chicago, I think it wise we should have free vaccination for the protection of our public health. If the city will defray the expenses of the purchase of the vaccine points which cost $5.25, which amount will vaccinate about 60 people, the work will be performed gratis.

Yours very truly,

C. H. Loxo, Health Officer. Whereupon Ald. Hamm, Powers second, moved the adoption of the course suggested by the health officer, which motion prevailed without dissent.

A YOUNG WIFE RESTORED TO HER LOVING HUSBAND AND FRIENDS IN GOOD HEALTH.

Mrs. Hattie H. McGow

BERLEDSVILLE, Mich., Feb. 1, 1892. DE. A. OWENS: Dear Sir-I take pleasure in stating that the Owen Electric Belt purchased from you last May has been worth more than all the medicines in the world to me. On the 27th of January, 1890, I was taken with La Grippe and from that to nervous prostration of the stomach and spine, liver complaint, exitation of the lungs and constipation. About this time I went to consult the best doctor in the county for treatment. I stopped at my mother's home on my return, as my prostra-tion was so great that I could not reach my own home which I dearly loved. I was a young married wife of six months and had kepi house only four months. My hopes seemed all blasted as I gradually failed under the care and treatment and nursing by my kind and willing husband and mother, one of the best of mothers. I could not get up or be moved, so my husband sold his farm and turned all of his attention to me. Time passed, and I suffered more than tongue can tell. I could est nothing to speak of, and what I did eat hurt my stomach. At times I seemed better and then I would get worse. I remained in this condition about sixteen months, or up to the time I purchased your Belt. Then I commenced to finprove at once, and life has been brighter ever since. My husband has purchased another farm and we commenced to keep house on Thanksgiv-ing Day, and I have done our work with my husband's help ever since. Before I purchased one of your Belts I could hardly stand on my feet. May God bless you, as the Owen Electric Belt was the means of saving my life and giving me health and strength to live and enjoy life with my hus-band once more. I cannot say enough for your Belt if I should write half a day. My sudden im-provement caused a good deal of excitement, as the doctors and every one around said I would de of consumption. I can eat my three meals every day. If you wish to publish this letter we will answer all correspondents who wish to inquire fully about my case, by sending directed a Yours very truly, MR. KEELERSVILLE, Mich., Aug. 21, 1892.

DR. A. OWEN: Dear Sir-Six months has passed since I wrote my first testimonial letter in praise of your Electric Belt. I cannot say enough for your Belts. I have been improving rapidly since I wrote you the first letter six months ago. Now I am able to do my work, and this week I rode 22 miles to Thunder Knob on the banks of Lake Michigan, camped out over night, and came back the next day over hills and rough roads, 44 miles in all, through the hot sun. I could not have done the same one year ago for the wealth of Michigan. My health has improved so rapidly that others are waking up to the idea that the Owen Electric Belts are the only means by which they can be cured. I remain as ever your friend, HATTIE H. McGOWAN.

PATENTS PURE PROTECTION.

Invention has been one of the causes of American prosperity. America without a patent would never have been more than an overgrown suburb of Europe, or a warehouse of transatlantic machinery. Inventive genius has, however, reversed these otherwise possible conditions and produced a nation that in material prosperity bas at present no contemporaneous rival. These inventions have broadened the scope of production and furnished the primary agencies of our industrial development. The majority of our manufacturing industries are based upon inventious recorded in the patent office of the nation. This genius of invention has old methods. Necessity, though by no means the creator of mechanical skill, has been its stimulative force, educing from dormancy vitalities otherwise apathetic because unevoked. To this must be added the encouragement given by wise legislation in patent protection, by which the brain that toiled and the hand that fashloned were assured a prospective if not an immediate reward. • • •

As an historic series, the processes of invention are in remarkable coincidence with the successive growths of civilization and its demands. What more in touch with the western granary of the world than the irou plow of Newbold and the steam power thresher and separator of laterdays? Theflail and the sickle would have left our hugepopulations with little to eat and less to inclose in their waistband, with at least one-half or more of machine of Elias Howe, once the bugaboo of Boston tailors, is another instance of coincidence with economic conditions. It had its fight to make against prejudice and prophecy, but statistics show that the supposed innovation has been the saving of labor in millions of homes and faclivelihood, but to the cheaper clothing of the people.

In lessened prices and increased consumption we have the economic gauge of conditions resulting from the genius of invention. In looms and lathes, clocks and plows, locks and saws, telegraphs and steam engines, and in all things from a domestic pin to an electric motor, the sovereignty of invention has been established, and the American producer and consumer been directly and indirectly benefited .- The Age of Steel (St. Louis, Mo.).

"Wise legislation in patent protection" has indeed been "the encouragement."

or an English one, or annexation to Great Britain.

It is not a "camp-hand," or a "millhand." that asks the following questions, but the questions areasked in their interest, and in theirs only, by the American Economist:

"To President-elect Cleveland and the Democratic members of Congress: Is lumber to be made free of duty? In this great industry 148,000 men were employed in 1890; in our saw mills and fice at Covington and thoroughly qualifilogging camps their wages were $31.845,-974, and the total value of sawed lumber was $233,268,929. These totals are about the same now.

To makelumberfree would be to reduce wages far more than the profits of capital. Those wages are some 25 per cent. higher than in Canada. During eight years of Canadian reciprocity and free lumber prices in Chicago averaged as high as in years when lumber paid a duty of $2 per thousand feet-twice as high as in been the response of new conditions to the present Tariff. The raw material is the pine tree, standing useless and valueless in the forest until the magic strokes of axe and saw make it a product of labor. That raw material costs twice as much here as in the Canadian "land limits."

Will you make a change which will not, as past experience shows, make lumber appreciably cheaper to the consumer, but which will lessen the revenue needed by Government, and tend to reduce the wages of our workmen in this industry from $4,000,000 to $8,000,000 yearly?"

It would appear that we are not likely to get relief from poor telephone service. and outrageous charges though the original Bell patent has expired. Prof. Barrett, chief of the department of electricity at the Columbian exposition and a man of vast and varied information on all matthis continent uncultivated. The sewing ters connected with the uses of electricity. being consulted as to an investment in a rival company to the "Bell," said "don't be in a hurry, wait until you have visited the fair and looked over the new devices for the transmission of sound and signals. When you are here you can examine the models for the 500 patents owned by the tories, adding not only to the means of American Bell Telephone company. You will then be in a better position to judge properly your contemplated investment." He added that the Bell folks had for years kept an agent at Washington, watching the patent office, and had purchased and now own all the patents which have any value, and is in a position to make it very uncomfortable for any and all rivals. The result will be that we shall use the phone as little as possible.

> It is said, we know not how truthfully, that Andrew Carnegie is a convert to the ranks of the freetraders; that he takes the position that the wage-earners of the country have decided by their votes in favor of that theory, and that he wishes them to try the experiment. Whether or not the tale as to Carnegie is true, the position is logical, and but for our firm conviction that it would work disaster-reduction of wages to the European standard while doing little or nothing to reduce the cost of living-we should agree with the desire expressed. We can not wish it, however; we hold that the wageearner, not the capitalist, is the chief beneficiary of the protective system, and we can not wish him harm, even though he invites it himself by his mistaken political action. Thirty-six nominations by Harrison failed of confirmation by the senate and so lapsed. Of these the most important was that of Benton Hanchett to be judge of the 6th judicial circuit, to succeed Judge Jackson, and next, perhaps, that of Col. Elmer S. Otis to be brigadier general in the army, vice Carr, retired. The confirmation of Mr. Hanchett was refused by the democratic senators for purely political reasons, but that of Col' O is was opposed and beaten by the friends of Gen. Carr, whose retirement was forced and they say unjustly. Another was the nomination of Lt. Dapray, who was "jumped forty files" to the rank of major and the position of paymaster. The "Catalogue of the Michigan Mining School" for 1891-2, just received, is much more than a mere "catalogue." It is a book of 175 pages giving an exhaustive description of the school, its purposes, appliances and methods of work. We can think of no question concerning the school an answer to which will not be found in the "catalogue." The book is at the service of any friend who may think of sending hisboy there or who, for any other reason, would like to post himself

J.G. CARLISLE.

Secretary Carlisle was born in Kenton county, Ky., Sept. 5th, 1835. Like many other leading Americans he began life possessed of no educational advantages beyond those gained at the common schools, but he worked hard and at an early date assumed the duties of a school teacher. His leisure time was employed in reading law and when opportunity favored his aspirations he entered an of-d himself for admiss was admitted in 1858 and has ever since devoted that portion of his time not given to the public service, to the practice of his profession. He has been in politics since 1859, both in the house of representatives of which body he was speaker during Cleveland's first administration, and lately in the senate. Carlisle is considered the highest authority on financial matters in the democratic party and will undoubtedly act in full sympathy with Cleveland.

We are accustomed to speak of freetrade as peculiarly a British fad, of the British customs duties as entirely nonprotective, but they are not. England protects her manufacturers of tobacco by duties on the manufactured article 33 per cent. greater than on the raw leaf; she protects her manufacturers of cocoa by a duty on the manufactured article eight times as heavy as that on the raw material, and the same rule holds wherever it can be made to apply. Britain legislates for Britons: why not America' for Americans?

The big battle, for the purse of $40,000, was won by Fitzsimmons, easily. It lasted only four rounds, Hall being knocked out in the fourth by a right-hand swing on the point of the jaw. Old ringsters, who had seen many fights, declared the blow the hardest they had ever seen delivered. The English "squire" who backs Charlie Mitchell dropped some dollars and the New York sports who backed

A patent right is protection, pure and simple, a prohibitive right indeed, which says to all trespassers, stand off! and invokes the whole power of the Government to make the command resistless. How can a consistent Free-Trader take a patent? But they do, all the same, as others.

Theodore Parker said: "The Patent Office at Washington is a wing of the Yankee schoolhouse." True, and Government says, in a wise and strong way, to all in this universal Yankee nation: "Bring me the products of your inventive genius and we will see that these children of your brains are yours until they grow up and have a chance to pay you for your toil and skill."-American Economist.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

Hawaiians, even the natives, are divided in opinion. as to the proposed annexation of the islands to the U.S. The latest from Honolulu, up to the middle of February is that, as a general proposition the American and German interests in Hawaii strongly urge upon the government at Washington the necessity of protecting the business interests, at least, of theislands by annexing them. The native Hawaiians are divided on the proposition, on one side being an innate love for royalty, affection for Princess Kaiulani, and pride in native institutions, on the other a desire for greater prosperity and greater enfranchisement which would follow the inauguration of republican rule as one of the American states. The English sentiment against annexation is not so strong as that which prevails against the idea of a Hawaiian republic and it has even been stated on good authority that at no time within the past five years would Great Britan have seriously protested against theislands forming a part of the United States. If, however, the United States should for any reason or in any contingency decide to advise that a republican form of government with a pative ruler succeed the dethroned monarchy, the opinion is freely expressed that millions of capital would be drawn at once from her and native business interests, such as they are, would be forced to struggle against steadily growing competition of Chinese and Japanese throughout Hawaii. It has been said by naval officers, who do not desire their names published, that in their opinion rioting and bloodshed even would follow the declaration of a native republic, and that for this reason nothing of the kind would be proffered or accepted by the Huwaiian Commissioners at Washington. The general view is that nothing remains Queen Liliuokalani or the Princese KAin-

"Let brotherly love abound" is a command to which the friends of Dave Hill turn a deaf ear,-that is, if Grover is a brother. The Elmira Advertiser says: "With all his faults, D. B. Hill is an angel of gratitude, a Chesterfield of deportment, a St. Jerome of virtue, a Shylock of humility and a model of modesty compared with Grover Cleveland."

The democrats are hard to please. A few years ago it was a "surplus" which excited their fears and now they agonize about a "deficit" which their prophets anticipate and predict. One thing is sure the 53d congress and the Cleveland adminestration will want as much money as their predecessors in office and must get it in very nearly the same way.

The president has withdrawn the treaty of annexation with Hawaii "for consider ation." It is not believed that he intends in such an event but the restoration of to let the opportunity to acquire the islands go unimproved, but that he inlani, backed by an American protectorate | tends to act only upon full information. | kee.

Hall a good many.

A story is told of a democratic publisher, asking for an office, who said, to urge his suit, "If I get the place I can put more money into my paper and make it what it ought to be," to which the person whose influence was wanted replied 'Say, s'pose you put a little brains into the d-d thing first and see if that won't improve it." It was not encouraging to the applicant.

A disgruntled democrat having asserted that the men whom Mr. Cleveland has called to cabinet offices did not, all together, make him a dozen votes, the Free Press comments thus: "If the Cabinet were fillled up by those who did most to carry on the great campaign about all the portfolios would be held by newspaper men."

No matter from which side it is looked at, the verdict is the same. The Soo Democrat says: "The last fool bill introduced in the legislature provides that township clerks in the upper peninsula be made members of the board of supervisors. It is an unnecessary expense and would cause merely a drag in business."

The solous went to Ann Arbor, as per invitation, and the boys and girls made it so pleasant for them that the legisla, tion asked for by the university will go through without a hitch. Guess it's all right; the great school should lack noth. ing and its income should be assured. once for all.

On solid ground, at last. Branch county has tried prohibition by "local option" and found it n.g., and on the 8th a meeting presided over by ex-Governor Luce and largely attended passed resolutions demanding the repeal of the present law and the enactment of a stringent license law.

Judge Gresham would have none of the 'fuss and feathers" in his assumption of the duties to which the president had called him. A notary was found, he took the oath of office with no more parade than though he was being sworn as a witness in a justice's court, and went at his work.

From Tashington comes an assurance that the president will not call an extra session of the 53d congress but will allow the country an eight months' chance to recuperate from the attacks of the 52d before the assault of the 53d. Thanks, Mr. President.

The crowd that attended the Fitz-Simmons-Hall fight, and the club which hung up the great prize got very little for their money; the whole business was over in fifteen minutes. Fitzy got $2, 666,67 a minute for easy work.

Now that Fitzsimmons has money nough to buy a good 'blacksmith's shop and tools, he has taken out "first papers" and proposes to become a full-fiedged yan-notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in The Iron Port a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing. That "Iron Ore Trust" a Fake.

A correspondent of a Detroit paper telegraphs it from Ishpeming that the producers of iron ore in this region have organized a "trust" to control the price and output of that commodity. Every one has long ago learned to take with large allowance any telegram from that city to outside papers, but this requires more than usual. That there is an understanding among the ore producers that it would be folly to crowd ore upon a market which does not demand it, and to allow demand to fix the amount to be produced, we are assured and, further, that such understanding is all there is of the alleged "trust."

The Latest Thing for Gladstone.

We are told that Chicago packers.were at Gladstone on Saturday last to ascertain by personal inspection the fitness of that city as a location for a big packing house. Such an enterprise does not seem to be in line with precedent. The packers have been putting up establishments at points near to the ranges where the hogs and steers are grown, to save transportation "on the hoof," but we do not grow steers or hogs, nor are we nearer to where they are grown than Chicago; all the same, the gentlemen will be welcome if they see fit to come and invest their money.

There is no immediate danger of my filling a millionaire's grave, and yet stranger things have happened. Either you or I may fall heir to a colossal for-tune. I don't lose sleep over the prospect myself, nor need you, my dear, but in this world of ups and downs who can tell what a day may bring forth?

Shall I tell you a few of the things I ropose to do with my possible millions? a the first place, I shall build bath-ouses and stock them with soap, perfumes and towels for humanity at large. Next to saving the soul comes the care of the body, and most people are fully as heedless of the one as the other. Indeed to my manner of thinking a sanctified soul in an unwholesome body would be hardly worth the keeping. I declare unto you, and if I do not speak the truth come forth and dispute me, ye who can, that the masses of man-kind know less about cleanliness than animals do. Watch the old cat sitting in the sun or by the corner of the kitchen fire washing her face and cleaning her paws. She enters into the thing with a complete understanding that cleanliness makes her a more welcome fireside companion, as well as a healthier cat and a more self respecting member of 'society. A bird delights in its morning bath more ostentatiously than in its breakfast. I have seen horses at the seashore who reveled in a "dip" far more than any human ever did. A dog will not enter your presence if there is any soil upon his person which his own limited ingenuity can remove, and the most beatific experience of a pampered poodle is its perfumed bath and careful shampoo.

Now, take the case of humans. There is not a day of my life that business dealings do not force me into companionship with people who are both unwholesome and repulsive by reason of lack of personal clernliness I ride with them. I walk by their side, I sit next them. They dress well, their clothes are of expensive material and carefully made, but they bear about with them an aroma of stale cuticle and closed pores. From week's end to week's end these men and women do no more than dip their hands in a little water and rub off their faces with inadequate wash cloths. If the natural smoke of Chicago settles upon such portions of their anatomy as are exposed, they dab it off with hard water and cheap soap, or they counteract it with filthy powder rags. They go for weeks at a time without a change of underwear to save laundry bills, and they sleep in the same flannels that they wear by day.

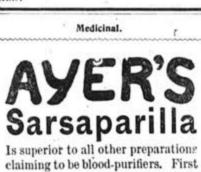

A good, thorough bath is as unknown horse or steam; could anything be worse without it was a stock transit? And yet all these unwashed and unwholesome people pride themselves, and often most justly, of being good citizens, well educated and circumspect. They would resent the idea of being classed outside the circle of "gentlemen and ladies." They never sneeze in your presence without begging pardon, nor commit any breach of the proprieties without the keenest anguish of remorse for the misdeed. an active one. It is merely the result of a neglected education. Their parents doubt, and polite and well behaved. They had them taught to dance and play the piano and speak French, but they forgot to teach them cleanliness. The poor and uncared for we expect to take as we find them, and by means of prayer, faith and good works raise them to higher levels. But what shall be done for the folks who ought to know enough of the laws of hygiene and beauty to keep clean, but who in fact know as little as the totally ignorant and the very poor? When I get my millions, then 1 shall erect 1.000 bathhouses right here in Chicago, and I shall legislate laws that shall make cleanliness compulsory. Women shall find it more profitable to go to the bathhouse than to the club, and men shall find more attraction in the physical laundry than in the saloon. There shall be no possible entree for the careless keeper of the beautiful body into either saloon, street car or public assemblage of any sort. He shall be shunned like a leper, and when his case is pronounced hopeless there shall be a modern Molakai fitted up for his habitation, that he may trouble the olfactories of the sons and daughters of earth no more forever. Another thing that I shall do with my money will be to prosecute cruel teamsters by means of its powerful potency. The policeman who stands at the corner of Lake street and Fifth avenue tells me that since occupying that post he has lost the little faith he ever had in man's boasted humanity.

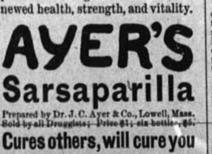

Another thing I will do with my money will be to provide for the patient, uncomplaining poor.

When I get my money, I shall establish homes for the poor, not charity halls nor houses of correction, but sweet, pure homes, where happiness and plenty shall join hands, and peace and rest shall sing together like mated birds.—"Amber" in Chicago Herald.

Immobility In a Child's Life.

We believe a large part of the unfavor-able influence of school life upon the child's health is due to the prolonged immobility which the ordinary system requires, and the necessary confinement of a young child to a chair or bench without some intervening muscular ac-tivity or recreation. Immobility is opposed to growth, it is opposed to all the instincts of the healthy lower animals, and to those of all vigorous children.-Harper's Bazar.

OH, FOR A DAY OF SPRINGI

Oh, for a day of spring, A day of flowers and folly, Of birds that pipe and sing And boyhood's melancholy! I would not grudge the laughter, The tears that followed after.

Oh, for a day of youth, . A day of strength and passion, Of words that told the truth And deeds the truth would fashion! I would not leave untasted One glory while it lasted.

Oh, for a day of days, A day with you and pleasure, Of love in all its ways, And life in all its measure! Win me that day from sorrow And let me die tomorrow. -Wilfrid Scawen Blunt in London Sun.

DUPED.

It is now many years since I first visited Paris, but if I live to be a centenarian 1 am certain I shall not forget that first journey from London while 1 remember anything. I was then young and inexperienced, but sufficiently vain to think myself a paragon of wisdom. Like most Londoners. I thought that wonderful city the very heart of the world, and all outside of it mere suburbs.

Well, one fine morning, which happened to be the twenty-first anniversary of my existence, finding myself the lordly proprietor of £1,000, I concluded to celebrate my freedom by running over to Paris and astonishing the natives. Fitting myself out in a style that would have made me the envy of a Pawnee chief, I procured my passport and embarked for Calais. There were a great many more persons going over than I had expected to see, but 1 consoled myself with the probability that very few of them were destined for Paris, and that not a single one of them was quite as well dressed as myself.

I was pacing the deck of the steamer some two hours later when I felt a light tap on my shoulder and heard a very pleasant voice say:

"Pardon me, my lord, but may I venture to ask if you are destined for Paris?" Now, I was in reality very far from being a lord, or even the kin of a lord, but there was something so very agreeable in the title that I felt no special anxiety to disown it. I turned to the speaker and beheld a rather handsome. well dressed young man of perhaps 25, who smiled and held out his hand, adding:

"I'll wager a champagne supper, viscount, you are at one of your old tricks again, traveling incognito. Well," he continued, heartily shaking my hand, "well met, I trust, and how are my Lord and Lady Albyn?"

Drawing myself up with an air intended to show a noble breeding. I said very stiffly:

"You are mistaken, sir-Albyn is not my family name."

"A thousand pardons, my lord!" ex-sion, the rest of my funds being in a draft on Delessert & Co., Paris.' "How unfortunate! What is to be done? By the bye, will you let me see your draft, my lord?" I produced it.

"Stay a minute till I speak to the cap-tain," he said. "I think I can arrange

He hurried away with the draft in his hand. For the first time I felt a little suspicion of some trick and awaited his return with some anxiety. He came back, however, in about 10 minutes and asked me for my passport, saying he thought he could get through without any trouble. As we had not yet reached the pier, I handed him that, but with the resolve to have it back before going ashore.

When some 10 minutes later he returned with a cheerful smile, and folding up my papers put them in my hand, with the remark that all was right, I was so ashamed of my late suspicions that I felt myself blush.

"The clerk," he said, "has changed my note at a fair discount, giving me half gold and the west in bills on the Bank of France. By the bye, my lord, suppose you take a few. You may want to use them before you get your small-draft cashed."

I declined at first, but he insisted so strongly on my taking and carrying them, even though I thought I might not want to use them, that at first, fearing longer refusal would hurt his feelings, I consented to put them in my pocketbook.

Under the management of my friend, who spoke French as fluently as English, everything got on smoothly, and I soon found myself transferred from the steamer to a fine hotel-without, as he had said, having any trouble whatever. Our passports meantime had been given up and sent on to Paris, and temporary ones, as is the custom, had been furnished us in place of them.

I will pass over the remainder of the journey with the simple remark that every moment more and more endeared me to my agreeable and aristocratic friend, and the only regret I had was in the fact of being in a false position, which sooner or later he might discover, to my grief and shame.

On finally arriving at Paris our passports were again demanded, and no sooner was mine examined than the officer informed me that I was under arrest and must come with him. My French was none of the best, but in my surprise and consternation I made the best use of it I could and demanded what was meant by such proceedings.

"You will find that out at your examination," was his sharp reply.

Then we were whirled to the office of a magistrate, and I was unceremoniously hurried into a small, close room, half filled with police officers, secret agents and lawyers. On the bench sat a small, withered specimen of humanity, with a wig on his head and spectacles on his forehead.

"Well," he said, jerking down his spectacles and taking a good stare at me, as did all the others, "what now?" As I could understand French much better than I could speak it, I was able to make out what was said, and to my utter astonishment I now heard myself accused of being a notorious swindler and counterfeiter.

SWEETER THAN A BEST GIRL.

Sugar, Molasses and Honey Are Nowhere In Comparison With Saccharine.

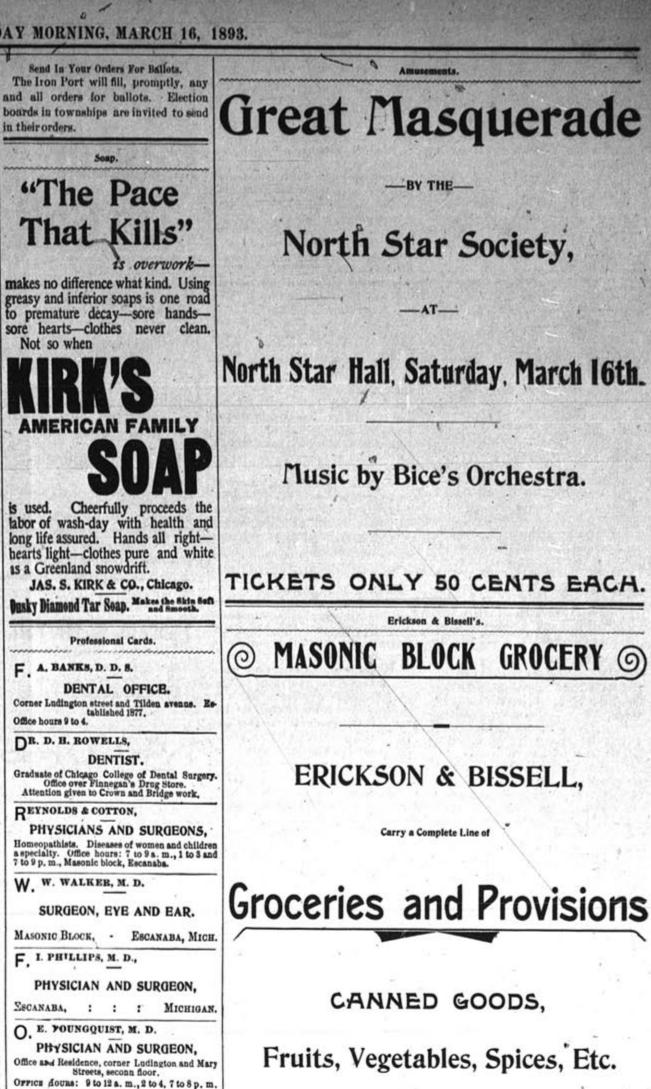

An industry still young, but unques tionably with a great mercantile future is that of saccharine, a product of coal tar. It is a substitute for sugar, has none of its bulk and is so powerful that it is 300 times sweeter. The history of its discovery is interesting. In 1879 Dr. Constantine Fahlberg, a Russian by birth, but who had been educated in Germany, became connected with the Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore. There he conducted a series. of experiments on the toluene sulphamides, in order to investigate their oxidation products.

The outgrowth of this investigation was the discovery of saccharine. By oxidizing pure orthotoluene sulphamide it was found that it would yield a remarkably sweet compound. The amount obtained, however, was too small to be of any practical value for manufacturing purposes. The problem thenceforth was to find other reactions which would give a better yield of the sweet body. A long and exhaustive series of laboratory experiments extending through several years were necessary for the satisfactory development of the chemical process of production. As might be expected, a discovery of such practical utility had to run the gantlet of much hostile criticism. It formed a fruitful subject for discussion in various scientific societies and journals. Attempts were made to show that it was not only deleterious, but dangerous. It is only fair to say, however, that these arguments seem to have been successfully controverted. An overwhelming mass of expert testimony is recorded in favor of saccharine. Eminent professors, like Sir H. E. Roscoe in London, Leyden in Berlin, Paul in Paris, Von Barth in Vienna, and a host of others, after thorough tests, have certified that the effects of saccharine upon the physical and psychical functions of the brute and human systems are entirely harm-

Saccharine in its pure condition is a white powder. Various exclusive advantages are claimed for its use in the arts, household and medicine. To enumerate a few: It is so small in bulk that the saving in storage and freight is of course very great; its valuable antiseptic qualities make it especially available in preserving as well as sweetening articles of food, such as jellies, fruits, etc. In the distilling of brandies and liquors and in the brewing of beer saccharine has been used with signal success. Mixed with glucose, saccharine has a sweetness equal to the finest refined sugar. Further, saccharine serves a distinctly medical purpose. It is employed to disguise the unpleasant taste of medicine and in the preparation of medicated wines and other cordials. It has also been highly indorsed as a substitute for sugar for those suffering from diabetes and from fatness. Unlike sugar, it does not go to form surplus nourishment. Finally it may be added that this highly concentrated sweetening substance requires only a little intelligence to be successfully used in the household .- Washington Star.

claimed the other in surprise. "I see my mistake now; you are not my old friend, the viscount, but so like him that better eyes than mine have been deceived. Pardon me again if I seem to trespass upon your good nature by introducing myself to your notice as the Hon. Robert Beaufort, youngest son of Lord Cawdale."

"Very happy, sir, to make your acquaintance." returned I, with a very stiff bow. "But why," I pursued, feeling internally more flattered than I wished to have appear, and really delighted that I had come in contact with one of England's proud aristocracy, "why do you address me as if you knew me to be one of the nobility?"

"Because, my lord," your whole manner shows to an experienced eye you are not a commoner.

"You are right," said I, with a smile intended to convey the impression that his shrewdness had penetrated my disguise.

"I knew it, my lord!" he triumphantly exclaimed, "I knew it!"

I did not caution him against addressing me according to my supposed rank, for besides the fact that the flattering sound was very agreeable to my ears 1 counted on its being disclosed to or overheard by others, and thus being mysteriously elevated in their estimation.

Long before we had crossed the channel the Hon. Mr. Beaufort and myself had become very intimate. He had traveled a great deal, and of course I was in luck to fall in with him on this account. to say nothing of his being a son of a lord. He was going to show me Paris and French life, and I must leave all to him. He would look at my passport and also overhaul my trunk and tell me the exact amount of duty I should have to pay. This he did and then observed:

'Oh, a matter of 10 guineas will see you through all right, my lord! Yours is a mere trifle-I wish mine was as little-it will cost me a cool 100, but I suppose you left at home all except absolute necessaries, as I ought to have done. By the way, as we are nearing Calais now, you may just hand me the amount, and I will arrange it without giving your lordship any trouble whatever. Yet stay!" he immediately added, with a vexed expression. "What am I thinking about, talking money affairs to your lordship. I understand these things, and I'll arrange all. Put your baggage with mine, and we'll make it all right at the end of the journey.

I began to think it was going to cost me something to keep up my title. As we drew near Calais all was excitement and bustle on board our steamer, each one anxious to look out and get possession of his baggage and otherwise arrange for getting ashore at the earliest possible moment. As my friend had so kindly volunteered to take all trouble and responsibility off my hands, I felt very easy and contented and was amus-ing myself with the fleet of little boats that had gathered around us when the Hon. Mr. Beaufort came hurrying up and drew me apart from the others.

"I find," he said, "I have not gold enough to pay the duties and get us to Paris. Could you oblige me with change for a £500 note?

"Unfortunately," I replied, "I have not more than 50 guineas in my posses-

"What is your name?" demanded the commissary.

"Ralph Hodge," said I.

"An alias," said one of the police officers. "On his passport is Robert Beaufort.'

"A mistake, then!" cried, I. "That is the name of the gentleman that came over from London with me. He took my passport and must have changed it by mistake."

The officers smiled incredulously and exchanged glances with each other and the magistrate, and the latter shaking his head said it wouldn't do.

"My draft on Delessert & Co. will prove it!" exclaimed I, bethinking myself of that and producing it with trembling eagerness.

The commissary glanced over it and frowned.

"Another mistake perhaps," he said with ironical bitterness, pointing to the name of Robert Beaufort.

The truth now flashed upon me. My companion then was no other than a professional villain, who had played upon my foolish vanity and made me his dupe and scapegoat. I tried to make the magistrate comprehend the true state of the case, but he either did not or would not understand me.

After & good deal of trouble and delay, however, I managed to get the British embassy interested in my case, and in course of time the truth came out, and I was set at liberty. My money had all been drawn through long before, and the villain who had robbed and gulled me was safe across the frontier chuckling over the arts by which he had de-frauded a fool.-E. B. in New York News.

Old Time Christmas.

I cannot but sigh sometimes for the simplicity of the original Christmas or that of the middle age, when the yule log blazed on the hearth and the boar's head graced the board. There is something very attractive about all this, in theory, but I do not fancy the reality where the rushes on the floor caught the refuse for the rats and dogs to eat, even while the dinner was going on. And, while I would not go back to this in its entirety, I would be glad to see some of its simplicity infused into our social life of today with its ertificiality and its petty jealousies and bickerings.-Boston Home Journal.

A Familiar Experience.

You lose things-things that you have put away so very carefully that you cannot track them yourself. You search and search until you could cheerfully howl, so deep is your despair. It's of no use. They are nowhere. You get more like them if you can, or make some miserable substitute do, or suffer for want of them. And then some time you come across them, put away, oh, so neatly, sc wisely, where no one, not even you, would ever think of looking -Boston Commonwealth.

The Most Despicable Man.

The man whom I thoroughly and positively hate, and against whom as a type would warn young women, as the board of health officers warn the public against infection with a scarlet fever card, is the domestic tyrant, the man who is a bully in his own family, the man who is a hero at home and a coward among bigger men than he. When he was a boy, he loved to torture kittens, trap rabbits and tease birds by breaking up their nests and cracking their eggs. But a yearling calf or a sitting hen would always make him run. Now he is a man, he swears at his wife and nags her life away. He sends the cold chills down the children's spines whenever his steps draw nigh and is as pompous and big feeling among the women folks and the helpless boys and girls as a fussy old turkey gobbler with his hens.

Fun can no more thrive where he is than pansies can live in coal gas. He is civil to the black man who gives him his dinner, to the boy-provided he is full sized-who blacks his boots and to whoever is richer and stronger than he, but politeness for his wife was laid away with bie wedding garments, and he curses his daughters and his sons for every trifling misdemeanor in a way that would rouse a newsboy to thrash him if he spoke to the lad with equal insolence .--Chicago Herald.

A Western Tragedy.

The Saunterer has a friend on the staff of a western newspaper with whom he often exchanges interesting clippings. The latest bit received at this office was the following, cut from a small paper published in North Dakota; "The many friends of Mrs. E- will be pleased to learn that she is not in serious danger, as the shock is not so severe as at first supposed. The particulars of the unfortunate affair are interesting. It seems that Mrs. E- while going up stairs saw a mouse run behind a barrel. Her cries were heard by the hired man, who hastened to the scene, armed with his gun and followed by his faithful bulldog. Mrs. E- then took courage and poked the barrel with her broom. The mouse ran out, the dog started in pursuit, the hired man fired, the dog dropped dead, Mrs. E- fainted, and the hired man, thinking he had killed her, and that he would be arrested for murder, took to his heels and has not been heard of since. The mouse escaped."-Boston Budget.

New Use For a Linen Cuff.

"Look here," said a well known man the other day, "this is a letter from a friend who is now in Pittsburg." The speaker produced a soiled cuff on which message had been written. The cuff bore the stamp of the Pittsburg postoffice, as well as a canceled postage stamp. The message read: "I haven't any paper at hand, but Uncle Sam will transmit this cuff, for which I have no further use. Linen is of no use to a man who is dead flat busted. Send me $100."-Philadelphia Record.

MRS. POTTER PALMER'S HOME.

It Will Be the Social Center of Chicage During the Fair. Every reader knows by this time that Mrs. Potter Palmer is the presiding renins of the women's part of the Chi-ago World's fair, a position to which the is entitled by social standing, ability to contribute, executive ability, and-what is perhaps of equal importance-a capacity to get along pleasantly with r woman. By common consent

THE POTTER PALMER PALACE. er magnificent city residence will be the social center during the fair. All the aristocratic entertainments in further-ance of the fair will be held there, and it will be headquarters for the ladies in control.

This palatial home, often called the Potter Palmer palace in happy allitera-tion, stands upon the lake front, just south of Lincoln park, and its cost was $750,000. It is built of graystone in the style of a mediæval castle. It has often been described, and an idea of its magnificence may be gained from the fact that it contains sixty-five sleeping rooms, besides a splendid array of halls and par-

Dens of Snakes.

Donald Burns, a veteran animal trainer of New York, will collect and have charge of one of the most unique and uncanny exhibits at the World's fair. It will terrify any rum soaked individual on the verge of delirium tremens to approach Mr. Burns' charges, for he will look after the snakes, and snakes only. He proposes to make this great den of snakes, which will be placed in the National History building, one of the most startlingly realistic exhibitions ever known. Already he has more than fifty different species in readiness for the fair, and his agents are at work all over the world in collecting serpents.

World's Fair Guards.

Colonel Edmund Rice, of the United States regular army, has been detached for the duty of commanding the guards for the Columbian exposition, and the force he is organizing excites the admiration of all visitors. At the opening of the year he has less than 600 men, but the entire force is to be 2,500, and they are selected with unusual care and discrimination. Every man must be 5 feet 8 inches high and pass a severe examination for courage, strength and intelligence. In fact a majority of those so far selected are graduates of high schools and colleges.

A Tame Mountain Laon. In Colorado I visited a hunter's store and saw a mountain lion—the only one, as its owner asserted, which had ever been tamed. It was in a little back room chained to an iron staple in the floor, round which it was pacing, uttering low growls.

It appeared very much like a small panther and seemed anything but tame, snarling at us as if it longed to spring. It was in awe of its master, however, and cowed down every time he cracked his whip. He made it do several tricks with a retriever dog, which did not seem to like the task very well. "Come and kiss Miss Pussy," said the man, and the dog went up to it, laid a paw upon its neck and licked its face.

The master then put a piece of meat on her nose and told the dog to fetch it away "He doesn't care for this part," was his comment. "She has had him by the throat once or twice. Just look at her iron paws? One blow would lay you dead as mutton." What, you brute, you would, would you!"

Miss Pussy had tried to gnaw his boot and needed to be lashed off.

"Do you ever take her out?"

"Oh, yes, she goes walking with me in the mountains sometimes. I take her chain off when we're out of town, but I'm precious careful to follow her and never let her step behind me!"-"A Ride. Through Wonderland."

New Zealand Mutton.

The sheep farmer, it seems, finds that he can deliver his sheep, with a fair profit, for 2 pence a pound at the nearest port or freezing point. The killing and freezing process is undertaken chiefly by companies, which have established freezing stations at various convenient points along the coast, and which ship the carcasses, consigned to agents in London or elsewhere. One of the sights of the day at the Albert docks is the arrival of one of the New Zealand Shipping company's fine steamers, perhaps the Tongariro or the Rimutaka, or some other of the fleet with the sonorous Maori names, and to see the subsequent discharge of some 27,000 carcasses, each neatly wrapped in its winding sheet of white calico.

The whole year's exportation now figures to about 2,000,000 frozen carcasses and is rapidly increasing. Yet with all this depletion the number of sheep in the colony is rapidly increasing. The flocks have largely increased in number, and the export of wool has risen from about 64,000,000 pounds in 1882 to 108,000,000 in 1891 .- All the Year Round.

Lucky Strikes.

Stories of unexpected fortunes are as common as blackberries. Somebody is always making or finding or inheriting a heap of money which seems to himself almost to have come from the clouds. Worthless shares become valuable, as happened to more than one man in the history of Devon great consols. COLONEL EDMUND RICE.

Colonel Rice has a brilliant military record. Born in 1842, he enlisted under the first call in 1861 and was a captain in the Fourteenth Massachusetts before reaching his twentieth year. As major of the Nineteenth Massachusetts he won special mention for conspicuous gallantry at Gettysburg and came out of the war a colonel. His subsequent service in the regular army gave him special qualifications for his present task. By shifting his details from one part of the grounds to another he expects to have each man familiar with the whole ground and able to answer any question as to localities that visitors may ask.

Figures of American Animals. Occupying prominent positions upon pedestals on the various bridges within the World's fair grounds will be large figures of native American animals, such as the bison, or buffalo, now nearly exterminated. It is believed that this will prove one of the most attractive features of the exposition. The modeling of these animals has been intrusted to Edward Kemeys and A. Phimister Proctor, both of whom have-made cafeful studies of the subjects.

Endeavorers at the Fair. The Hotel Endeavor is to be a feature of the Columbian exposition, and a very raiseworthy one indeed. It is to be milt by the societies of Christian Endeavor, on a large square eight blocks south of the fair ground and on the shore of Lake Michigan. The style may be likened to that of a large Mexican haci-

She Could Not Appreciate It.

In the drawing room of one of California's bonanza men, now living in New York, there hangs a painting of a very common country scene-a girl feeding a flock of turkeys. The money king's daughter says that her father cares more for this picture than for any of the other furnishings of his palatial home and often stands before it for long moments at a time. His boyhood was spent in a tiny hamlet tucked away in the Catskills, and when the pretty girl says, pettishly, "I don't see what you find in that tea chromo thing to admire," he sighs and answers, "No, for you never had such a home."-New York Times.

Man Outdone by Woman.

"You may talk all you like about women being the weaker sex," said Mrs. Snipps, "but the women of this country did something last year that men could never do."

"And that was?" inquired Mr. Snipps. "Lost 50,000,000 hairpins and wore the wings of 3,000,000 birds on their hats."-Buffalo Express.
