THE LITTLE BLUE SLED.

Among all the treasures that gave me most joy, Was the little blue sled I owned when a boy. It was smooth and homely and weighed near a ton.

BEAUTY.

She Was Johnny's Colt But His Father's Horse.

There was no mistake about it; old Kit was dying. Her fast-glazing eyes looked with almost human solicitude at the little, staggering, day-old colt whose velvet nostrils pressed her own.

to play some time, and he was right there. He wondered his father had given him the colt, he felt himself such a fraud.

"She'll die by my den she rest." "The boy'll take care of himself, he's the very apple of John Campbell's eye."

Who Will Succeed Bayard?

No one can assert positively that when Mr. Thomas F. Bayard has finally returned from England he will enter the senate as Delaware's representative in the American house of lords.

Property is Safe in New York.

For a week or two past there has been rather an unprecedented influx of criminals into New York city, owing to some rather wild stories to the effect that the metropolitan police are somewhat covered by the storm of condemnation raging around them.

Picture-Swindlers and Mr. Morton.

A well-known millionaire, whose name is almost a household word and whose political ambitions are greater than his political successes, was atrociously swindled in Europe last August.

THE FIREWEED.

A Remarkable Flower That Blooms Where Devastation Has Raged.

As August comes on, one finds along quiet country roadsides and in wood openings, a tall, plant, often from four to six feet in height or even higher, whose single straight stem of mingled red and green color is heavily feathered with long, narrow leaves, bearing a striking resemblance to those of the common willow.

ABOUT THE BARBERRY.

A fruit that is not particularly relished by the birds. The agreeable tartness of the barberry fruit, which makes it so generally and so highly esteemed, is due to the presence of malic acid, a substance found also in the foliage.

VENUS AMONG THE INCAS.

The only planet which the Incas had discovered was Venus, which they called the hairy, on account of the brightness of its rays. They said that, being the most brilliant of the stars, the sun would permit it to be separated from him, and obliged it to attend his rising as well as his going down.

Motive Power From Substances.

Prof. George M. Minchin, the English astronomer, recently made the announcement that by the use of photo-electric cells, consisting of two metals immersed in a liquid hydrocarbon, affixed to a telescope in the place of the eyepiece, he had obtained a measurable electromotive force by exposure to starlight alone.

Democratic shouters are making much of what they term republican fear to define a settled policy for the future. They are wont to demand, with a reasonable certainty that they will not be answered, if not that measure, what else. No republican can answer such a question, and no sensible man would ask it. The purpose of the inquiry is obviously to create the impression that the republican party is as badly at sea as the democrats, and is dealing in generalities and trusting to luck for the future.

crowds out a pound of wool that a Michigan farmer might raise, is an attack upon Michigan labor. It is throwing men out of work in the lumber woods, in the saw mills, in the salt blocks, in the iron mines. They become competitors with laborers in other lines of work, and the inevitable tendency is to depression of wages and to hard times. Many must, in the nature of the case, be driven out of the state. Their power to purchase and consume will be diminished and the market for the products of the farm will be restricted. Michigan in the last two years has been plunged from the heights of prosperity into the depths of distress. To say that the consequent loss has averaged fifty dollars per capita to our population of two and a quarter millions is not an exaggeration. That would make the astounding sum of $112,500,000 our share of the sacrifice. Shall the drain continue? Answer at the polls a week from next Tuesday.

That "English lord" whom Rush Culver is fighting, with all his little might, tells the Mining Journal how he became possessed of the lands and what he proposes to do with them. "The policy determined upon is in brief this: We will offer the lands for sale on twenty years time with interest on the deferred payments at 3 1/2 per cent. If the purchaser desires we will also advance a reasonable amount to put up necessary buildings and to clear, say ten acres of land. In other words, we will put up the buildings ourselves and will pay the cost of clearing, say ten acres, and let those advances stand as a part of the purchase price at the same rate of interest. I want to give any industrious man a chance to get a home on these lands."

The Cleveland outlook as seen by the Iron Trade Review of the 18th was this: "Sales of iron ore has been confined of late to piecing-out lots to even up the components of furnace mixtures, and negotiations are pending on a few further transactions of this character. The fact that a number of vessels will get out of commission by Nov. 1, tends to hold freight rates rather firmly and the slower dispatch secured at Ashland has advanced the rate there to 90c. From Duluth eighty-five cents still prevails. Marquette charters are few and considerable ore from that range is being sent to Escanaba on fifty cent charters in view of the effort to get seventy-five cents from Marquette. The outlook now is for restricted operations the coming winter at a majority of the mines now active."

The elimination of sugar bounties even to the American people nearly $15,000,000 annually.—Senator Hill, at Saratoga. Why not have stated the whole case and added that the imposition of an additional tax on raw sugar added $50,000,000 to the people of $35,000,000, besides injuring the producers of domestic sugar. Would such an admission have injured the client's case.—American Economist.

For all the years that two great parties of to-day have been battling over protection, and free trade Louisiana until now looked on with sleepy eye, dreaming lazily that, whichever won, her cane stalks would grow and yield profit all the same. One party was friendly on general principles of political economy, the other for special reasons of political expediency. Husband and hear were both her friends. But when at last the beam came to be the "man of the house" she found out her mistake, and the cry went up to the chief of the hunters now gunning for free-trade bears at the North to come down and hunt him out of the cane-brake.—Inter Ocean.

There were pseudo reformers in the days of Lincoln and Grant and of all our republican presidents. But the republican party kept steadily on in its great purposes, turning neither to the right hand nor to the left, and emancipation, resumption and protection and a thousand real reforms were enacted into laws and were engraved into the constitution of the United States. The work of the republican party is not ended. It will continue so long as such emergencies arise as are now confronting us. It will confer as great a blessing upon the country as ever before in restoring us as far as possible from the blighting effects of the last democratic campaign of reform. The claim that the protective policy robs labor for the benefit of capital is shown to be false by results. Under protection labor has steadily gained occupational in the division of their united earnings. In 1860 labor received $44.50 and in 1890 $54.50 out of each hundred dollars' worth of net products, while capital had $55.50 in 1860 and $45.50 in 1890. Labor advanced from $289 to $485, or 70 per cent, while capital went from $361 to $408, an advance of only 40 per cent. This shows a difference in favor of labor of 30 per cent.—American Economist.

WHERE NEGROES THRIVE

The Interesting Colored Population of the Capital City.

Schools Maintained for the Education of American Children of African Descent

Every class and every grade of the Americanized African can be found within the boundaries of the District of Columbia.

Some of these American citizens of African descent are owners not only of houses and homes but of mansions which are superior in appointments and conveniences for comfort to the great houses in which their former masters dwelt.

A HOODOO DOCTOR.

That seemed to Aunt Lina to be good logic, upon a Scriptural basis; and she was undoubtedly sincere in her belief.

Very many of the professional beggars in this city are young negro girls who infest the residence part of the city and demand pennies or five-cent pieces from ladies.

Upon the same street and within a stone's throw of the church referred to above, there is a less pretentious church for colored people, that is to say, less pretensions in external appearance.

Down in the southern and southeastern portion of the city, however, the investigator can find every class of negro, from the ignorant believer in hoodoo and fetish worship to the intelligent but uneducated negro of the plantation variety.

In these lower orders of colored people there is to be found on every hand the strong belief in "night doctors," which terrorizes so many of that class of people.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

The bodies of Greeks, when not burned, were placed in earthenware coffins and buried in tombs along the highway.

According to a recent pamphlet by an Italian doctor a sure way of restoring life in cases of syncope is to hold the patient's tongue firmly.

At the Gobelins manufactory the new tapestries for the foyer of the Comedie Francaise have just been finished.

Mlle. Duverney, who sixty years ago was the great rival of Taglioni in the ballet, and who first introduced the "cachucha" in London, died recently in England at the age of eighty-seven.

Sultan Abdul Aziz, the new young sultan of Morocco, does nothing without consulting his mother, who is a woman of tact and talent.

At Maisons Lafitte, near Paris, a Spanish bull-fight was given for the entertainment of his friends in a private ring built for the purpose by M. Max Lebadier, the young heir of a rich sugar refiner.

The most abundant of the forest animals are undoubtedly the lemurs. Of these creatures about thirty species are known in Madagascar.

What do you say to a woman recruiting sergeant? There is one in England, if the Leeds Mercury tells the truth.

These colored people adopt all sorts of means of securing a livelihood; and their principal object seems to be to get a living out of the white people by hook or by crook.

MILITARY VALUE OF SPORT.

The value of sport as a means of developing and training soldiers has always been recognized in all armies, and as regards officers, at any rate, has been well appreciated by us.

The immortal Jorrocks, too, was not slow to appreciate the relation between war and its image, with only twenty-five per cent. of its danger.

After all the gullotine is a very merciful means of death. Just think what sort of a time Caserio would have had something about one hundred years ago in France.

But victories are won mainly by infantry, and nowadays, especially, when formations are loose, a foot-soldier must have a head on his shoulders.

But after all, only a small portion of troops can taste such joys, and in most places there may be a good deal of hunting and very little game.

PITH AND POINT.

Pastor—"You ought to be ashamed of yourself! Even animals know when to stop drinking!"

Doctor—"Ah! I see now what all you say; you have a poor circulation."

"Hullo!" said the chestnut to the robin, "What are you?"

Operatic Composer (whose first act, consisting entirely of plagiarized music, is being hissed)—"Great heavens! What will they do when they hear my own music in the next act?"

Collector—"I'm tired bringing you this bill. The last time I got wet and caught the rheumatism."

"Hear how the trees in the orchard moon," exclaimed the roly-poly miss.

Doctor—"I told you plainly that you should rub the brandy that I ordered for you about your stomach, and now you have drunk it!"

The following was overheard between a Columbia student and his best girl: "Oh, Will, what lovely flowers!"

A student at a medical college was under examination, and the instructor asked him: "Of what cause, specifically, did the people die who lost their lives at the destruction of Herculaneum?"

"I have had a young married couple visiting me during the last week," remarked a young woman who is said to be overobserving.

"Who's your hubby-hub?" "I is."

"Who's your hubby-hub?" "Oo, of course, my beased, angel boy."

"A perfect deluge of smacks!" "Do oo love your hubby?" "Noop."

"Well, kiss 'oor hubby." "And just where I'd usually say: 'Yes, do kiss him, Alice—just for a change, you know; and then I'd run for my life.'"

"Oh, I've seen some pretty bad cases, but this one is unrivaled. I'll wager that a like pair of simpatons couldn't be found in the whole country."

AMERICAN ORCHIDS.

Beautiful Flowers That Are Not Little Known by the Term.

Many will be surprised to learn how many orchids we have among our wild flowers.

It is a rich and unexplored field for the collector and the student, and the search itself is a delight.

Our orchids live shadowy woods and quiet meadows, and are usually found in the neighborhood of stream or lake.

Few know what really distinguishes an orchid from other flowers.

Many orchids grow in northern and temperate climates, are not air plants, and have small, insignificant blossoms—insignificant as to color, though always quaint and fantastic in form.

A child's definition of orchid—"a flower that makes faces"—is very good, for its distinctive feature is the twisted petal or lip, which is often vividly colored and grotesquely marked.

Its length reminds one of those who "shoot out the lip in derision," and easily gives the impression of a mocking look.

Mr. Burridge says the lips of some orchids "waggle about in indignant fashion."

A few of our orchids are, however, beautiful in color and striking in appearance.

Best known of all is the lady's slipper, with its queer local names—the whippoorwill's shoe and the mossain-dower—suggestive of its broad and clumsy shape.

So unlike a slender Parisian boot, its color is a delicate rose-purple, and its airy slender grace, poised in attitude of flight, is seen in deep woods or along cliffs and water-side.

The yellow lady's slipper has long wavy petals like the unfastened ribbons of a lady's shoe.

Mr. Dana describes it as standing with alert, startled air, sentinel-like, on some mountain slope.

The orange orchids, with spires of clustered and fringed blossoms, burns with vivid color through bog and marsh, as if flame with August sunshine.

His Pet Story. "You don't seem to think that was a very good story I just told you," he said in a disappointed tone.

AGE AND YOUTH.

Fashion of To-Day Permits Mother and Daughter to Dress Alike.

Fashion of late years has done much toward improving the appearance of the middle-aged woman.

It was not so many years ago that the mother of the young lady daughter was always attired in somber colors.

For her to be smartly gowned was not considered correct form.

Black, gray, and the dull shades of heliotrope were permissible, but brighter colors were entirely out of the question for middle-aged woman's gown.

Now a decided change has taken place, and it is not strange to see both mother and daughter appear in costumes of the same piece.

House gowns of white crepon, trimmed with violet ribbons, are charming when worn by a woman with silvery hair.

The new grenadines, with their apricot designs and satin stripes, make appropriate afternoon toilets.

The Louie Quince jackets are well adapted to the elderly woman of to-day, and they possess a stately style which none of her garments twenty years ago ever owned.

And she is not compelled to wear a morning cap either. Her hair may be fashionably arranged and her bonnet as chic as her granddaughter's.

Of course the woman of fifty does not appear in cherry-colored gowns, but a touch of color is quite allowable.

Peleries of black lace are made over a colored foundation, and a vest of some soft tint only has a tendency to make the gown more becoming.

Age demands more attention than youth, and the elderly woman of to-day realizes this and dresses accordingly.
