

REBUTTAL IN FRANKS CASE UNDER WAY

DECISION ON EVACUATION OF RUHR TO BE COMMUNICATED TO MEETING TODAY, BELIEF

BELGIANS ARE NOT SUPPORTING FRENCH.

(By The Associated Press.) London, Aug. 12.—The decision of the Germans, French and Belgian delegates on the Ruhr evacuation problem will probably be communicated to the reparations conference tomorrow. Announcement of this was made by Premier Herriot of France to the "Big Fourteen" this afternoon.

It is this question which has brought negotiations to a standstill, and until the problem is solved there can be no progress towards closing up the program for the inauguration of the Dawes plan. Private meetings are going on constantly between the Germans, Belgians, French and the British prime minister, and there are rumors of many trades behind the scenes to satisfy the French demands advanced as the price of moving the military forces out of the Ruhr.

Expense Too Great. The Belgians are not supporting the French in their efforts to prolong the occupation of the Ruhr. Premier Theunis frankly says he does not want to continue holding Belgian troops in the Ruhr, as the Belgian people are tired of the expense. The German industrialists, especially the dye manufacturers, are bitterly opposing the French demands for deliveries of dyes beyond 1926, and there are many other questions in connection with the proposed deliveries of goods under the report of the third committee, which the Big Fourteen discussed vainly at this afternoon's meeting.

The French are endeavoring to get assurances as to the terms of the new commercial treaty to be negotiated with Germany at an early date and there is a battle royal between the delegates and experts of the two countries. Predictions that the conference will be concluded Thursday have given way to forecasts that Friday is the earliest possible time of settlement, and many of the delegates believe that a settlement cannot come this week.

Groesbeck Defends His Administration

(By The Associated Press.) Marquette, Mich., Aug. 12.—"Your state administration, which has been attacked by my opponents as the most extravagant Michigan ever had, has been so terribly careless with the funds applied to its trust by the legislature that it has spent, since 1921, over ten million dollars less than the aggregate of money it was authorized to spend by reason of those appropriations," said Governor Alex J. Groesbeck, Republican candidate for re-election, in his address here tonight.

Ford Withdraws Name From Senatorial Race

Request Arrives Hour Before Time Limit Expires.

(By The Associated Press.) Lansing, Mich., Aug. 12.—Henry Ford today asked that his name be withdrawn from the Michigan primary ballot. In a telegram to Secretary of State Charles Deland, the automobile manufacturer declared his name had not been presented with his knowledge and that he wished it withdrawn, saying that he was in no sense a candidate. "It has recently been brought to my attention," said Mr. Ford in a telegram from South Sudbury, Mass., "that parties unknown to me and without consulting me in any way and for purposes that I am at loss to understand, have made unwarranted use of my name for the senatorial nomination. I fall to understand their motive but believe that it cannot be a good one, and repudiate the whole understanding and withdraw my name as I am in no sense a candidate for any office at this time."

G. A. R. HOLDS ANNUAL PARADE

Vets Are Compelled To March Mile In Rain Storm.

(By The Associated Press.) Boston, Aug. 12.—America's white-haired veterans braved a driving rain today to march one more to the sound of life and drum. The Grand Army of the Republic drew its thinning ranks together for one more parade—perhaps its last here. Those who answered the call to arms in 1861 as laid fired with enthusiasm to do their part in saving the Union, walked as bravely today, some of them almost tottering, others still erect in their old age, over a mile of wet slippery pavements.

The note of sadness emphasized by the gray clouds, was unescapable. Yet the boys in blue themselves seemed determined to put away thoughts of the morrow and live over again for a day, the time when many of them, light hearted striplings, were too young to realize the full import of their services and knew only that their country had called and they had answered.

There were serious faces among them, but for the most part these old men were gay. As cheer on cheer came from the crowded sidewalks, windows and roofs, the veterans smiled, waved their little flags and handkerchiefs in response and seemed wholly happy.

A dreary drizzle prevailed as the parade started, the Sons of Veterans, many of them now gray-haired, in the lead with nearly a hundred massed flags.

By the time Post No. 1, of Rockford, Ill., swung into line with its file and drum corps, given the post of honor in the line of Grand Army men, it was pouring. Most of the ancient warriors carried umbrellas, but few opened them for protection.

There were three veterans from Kentucky, and they shared a single umbrella. New Mexico had one solitary figure in line and he received applause enough for a thousand.

Thus the few thousand veterans who had insisted on going afoot in spite of Boston's encampment motto, "They shall not walk," passed and an ambulance followed by a gray-uniformed negro band halted the beginning of the long line of automobiles. It seemed as if every car in Boston and its suburbs had been pressed into service to carry the men too infirm to walk.

At last, the final car had passed the white tent erected in Adams Square. The city folk had seen hundreds of parades, of which scores had surpassed today's procession in numbers and brilliance. They had seen the Grand Army itself in other years when its ranks were imposing. But as they turned away today they felt that they would not look upon the massed veterans of '61 again in Boston and they were unashamed of their tears.

Colony Attorney Says Move In Opposition To State Laws.

(By The Associated Press.) St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 12.—The state of Michigan and the House of David engaged in another court hearing today. Judge Charles E. White presided over a hearing on a petition filed April 22 by Attorney General Andrew B. Dougherty demanding the appointment of a receiver for the Benton Harbor colony and the distribution of the organization's assets among its members.

Two receivership petitions have been filed by the state. The one, under date of April 22, was directed against the colony as a corporation. Subsequently Assistant Attorney General O. L. Smith, of Lansing filed a second receivership petition in which the defendant had been described as "A voluntary religious organization."

At today's hearing the state was represented by Assistant Attorney General Smith, Attorney William H. Barnard of Paw Paw, and Attorney S. H. DeWhirst, of the House of David, appeared for the defendants, protesting against the granting of the state's motion.

Attorney Barnard described the attorney general's proposed action as being without precedent in legal annals. Receivership proceedings not only are not applicable to ecclesiastical corporations, but a receiver cannot be asked except by a judgment creditor or member or director of a corporation, said Attorney Barnard, who challenged the state to produce one creditor who seeks a receiver for the House of David.

Of the eight districts filing here, one only, the Iron district, will not have the last year's incumbent as a primary candidate. Patrick O'Brien not making the race. Farrier, considered as a leading candidate for George Welsh's position as speaker of the house.

PROF. SPRAGG OF M. A. C. IS CRASH VICTIM

Wife And Son Also Die; Hit By Fast Passenger Train.

(By The Associated Press.) East Lansing, Aug. 12.—Prof. Frank A. Spragg, of the farm crops division of the Michigan Agricultural College, his wife and ten-year-old son were instantly killed at Okemos tonight when their automobile was crushed by a Pere Marquette railroad train.

From the best information available, Mrs. Spragg, who was driving, did not see the train, a fast passenger between Detroit and Grand Rapids, and drove directly in front of the train. The car, loaded down with a camping outfit, was destroyed.

Professor Spragg was one of the best known members of the faculty at the Agricultural college. His official title was that of assistant in the farm crops department, but he headed the plant breeding work of the school.

In this field of endeavor he had a national, if not an international, reputation and some of the co-operation projects between the federal department of agriculture and the college were possible because of his ability. It was his years of painstaking selection that added Rosen rye to the list of Michigan farm crops. This variety has added enormously increased wealth to the farmers of Michigan to reconstruct the local college, the authorities claim. He also had a hand in the development of most of the improved strains of farm crop plants produced at the college in recent years, including Red Rock and Berkeley Rock wheat, the latter being the first Michigan wheat ever graded as a hard red winter wheat. He also aided in the development of Robust beans, now largely planted throughout Michigan.

At the present time he had been working on better sugar beets, and doing some work in the propagation of still more productive varieties of grains.

Professor Spragg was about fifty years of age and had been a member of the staff of the local college for fifteen years. He had never considered his education completed but during the past year spent part of the time at the University of Michigan as a graduate student.

Two sons of the couple, about 14 and 16 years of age, survive. They were not members of the party making the trip to Cincinnati from which their parents and young brother were returning when the accident occurred.

133 NAMES ARE CERTIFIED BY COUNTY CLERKS

Is Largest Number Of Candidates In History Of State.

(By The Associated Press.) Lansing, Mich., Aug. 12.—More men are candidates for office in Michigan this year than ever before in the history of the state, according to the records in the compilation division of the secretary of state here.

One hundred thirty-three are being certified out to the county clerks. The former high mark was 116. More than 133 petitions were received, but some failed to have the requisite number of names.

Eight of the candidates are for United States senator. Eleven are for governor, and nine for lieutenant-governor. Thirty-six men want to be congressmen in other than the first district, while 53 would be state senators in counties outside of Wayne, Kent and Saginaw. But sixteen men were certified as candidates for house positions in the eight districts in which the nominations pass through the secretary of state's office.

Five desire to be congressmen from the eleventh district. Four of these are Republicans, giving this district the only major party fight between more than two men. The third and fourth district each have two Republicans and two Democrats, these being the only ones where more than one Democrat is making the fight.

Five men are making the fight for state senator from the 18th district, represented last year by Foss O. Eldred of Ionia, not a candidate this year. Four Republicans and one Democrat make up this list.

Of the eight districts filing here, one only, the Iron district, will not have the last year's incumbent as a primary candidate. Patrick O'Brien not making the race. In four of the districts, Leelanau, Missaukee, Presque Isle and Schoolcraft the retiring members are unopposed, the Presque Isle district returning to the house Nelson G. Farrier, considered as a leading candidate for George Welsh's position as speaker of the house.

YOUTHS' RELATIVES PUT ON STAND BY DARROW.

(By The Associated Press.) Chicago, Aug. 12.—The last evidence on which was based the plea to save Richard A. Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., from the gallows was presented late today and immediately the state launched its rebuttal testimony to clinch its contention for the death penalty instead of a prison term for the kidnapers and slayers of young Robert Franks.

To move Judge John R. Caverly towards "mitigation" or "justice tempered by mercy" there is now left only the final pleas of Clarence S. Darrow, veteran chief counsel for the defense and his two assistants, Benjamin and Walter Bachrach, against a long line of state witnesses, which includes five alienists, the first of whom just had testified Loeb was sane when the court was adjourned late today.

Relatives On Stand. The defense rested shortly after one of the most dramatic periods of the nineteen days of the hearing, brought about by the appearance in the witness box in rapid succession of Allan Loeb, brother of Richard; Jacob Loeb, former president of the Chicago Board of Education and an uncle of the youthful defendant, and Foreman Leopold, Nathan's older brother.

Through them, and Mrs. Katherine M. Fitzgerald, secretary to A. S. Loeb, vice president of Sears, Roebuck and Company, and Richard's father, the defense sought to show that the youths were plentifully supplied with money and the luxuries of life and that the $10,000 ransom demanded for the return of Bobby Franks, even after he had been slain, was but an item of Loeb's "perfect crime" and not a compelling motive for the kidnaping and murder.

That testimony came as an interlude in the vigorous cross-examination of Dr. S. Hulbert, Chicago psychiatrist, the last of the four alienists for the defense. The doctor had been sent after duplicate X-ray pictures of Loeb and Leopold ordered into court under a subpoena duces tecum.

Attacks Experts. The theory of functional disorders of the endocrine glands advanced by Dr. Hulbert as responsible for the "mental illness" of Leopold and Loeb, was the subject of a vicious attack by Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney; the prosecutor also pointed out on the idea of the emotional age of the defendants, termed by defense alienists as below 17 years.

Pursuing his objective, Mr. Crowe began his rebuttal by offering several witnesses who testified that Loeb had displayed emotion before he confessed, upon learning of various findings that served to pin the crime up on him and Leopold.

In an effort to overcome Dr. Hulbert's theory of endocrinology, the state will call Dr. Rollie T. Woodruff, of Chicago, nationally known expert on blood diseases and glands. From Dr. Hulbert, however, the state's attorney got the admission the endocrinology is not generally subscribed to in the medical profession, and that the new "chemistry of character" is as yet in the disputed stage.

"Phantasies" From Book. The prosecutor said late today that he possibly would summon witnesses to testify that the

FLIERS TO HOP OFF THURSDAY

Decision Reached After Supply Boat Finds Landing Place.

(By The Associated Press.) Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 12.—The American army word fliers, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, and Lieutenant Erik Nelson and their mechanics will jump off from Reykjavik Thursday for Angmagssalik, Greenland, weather conditions permitting.

This was decided this evening after word had come from Angmagssalik that the supply steamer Gertrude Rask had beaten her way through the ice floes reached port and there found conditions favorable to a landing of the planes of Smith and Nelson.

Rear Admiral Magruder, commander of the patrol fleet, sent orders tonight from the flagship Richmond to the naval patrol, directing them with regard to operations during the flight of the aviators.

The cruiser Raleigh is to remain off the Greenland coast and receive Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Nelson on their arrival. The torpedo boat destroyers Billingsley and Reid will leave tomorrow for positions along the route between Reykjavik and Angmagssalik. The Richmond will depart early Thursday morning to a position 150 miles at sea and after the planes pass, will shape her course direct for Cape Farewell, on the southern extremity of Greenland.

Lieutenant Nelson's plane, which was pulled out of the water for repairs, will be floated out again tomorrow afternoon with the high tide. While the craft was on shore a new oil pump and a new propeller were installed.

Premier Magnusson, other Icelandic officials, and leading citizens of Reykjavik have been invited to a reception on board the Richmond tomorrow.

Coolidge Says Election Is Not Religious Issue

Repudiates Circulars Distributed In Brooklyn.

(By The Associated Press.) New York, Aug. 12.—President Coolidge, through his secretary, C. Bascom Sloop, has repudiated circulars distributed in Brooklyn, urging support of the Coolidge and Dawes as a religious issue, Herman Bernstein, editor of the Jewish Tribune, announced tonight. Bernstein had sent the president a photographic copy of the circular, signed by the "National Protestant Fundamental Christian Association" and reading, in part:

"This election is a religious war; Catholics and Jews combined against Protestantism." Secretary Sloop's letter to Bernstein follows:

"Am very much obliged to you for your letter of August 11 to the president. It is, of course, utterly impossible to guess whether the circulars are inspired by some fanatical person, who, with a somewhat twisted mind, imagines that sort of thing would help the president, or whether as seems probable, they are circulated by people who wish to injure the president. They had never before brought to my attention, and I had hard for me to believe they had been circulated very generally. Probably there is no way of venting people with such twisted minds from doing things of this sort, and I do not need to say you that neither the president nor anybody with any authority to send him ever heard of this or would want any other kind towards it than that of unqualified disapproval."

DRAFT TREATY BETWEEN IRAQ AND ENGLAND

Geneva.—When the Council of the League of Nations meets in August, just before the assembly which opens September 1, it will be asked by Great Britain to approve a draft instrument setting forth the conditions under which England in expected to carry out the mandate over Iraq, or Mesopotamia. Instead of the customary mandate arrangement which applies to the Pacific Ocean islands and other mandated lands like Syria and Palestine, Great Britain has inserted her mandate obligations in a bilateral treaty which the Bagdad parliament recently ratified.

Kintzger-Nadeau. St. Joseph's Church was the scene of a pretty marriage ceremony Tuesday morning at 8:00 o'clock when Miss Katherine Kintzger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kintzger, 1017 Lake Shore Drive, and Raymond Nadeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Nadeau, of Nadeau, Michigan, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. Fr. Bertrand Labinski performed the ceremony and was the celebrant at the nuptial high mass. Miss Alice Todd played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the party entered the edifice.

The attendants were Miss Elizabeth Kintzger and Oliver Nadeau of Flint, Mich. The bride gowned in golden brown satin crepe with was charmingly gowned in a hat and other accessories of corresponding color and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The bride-maid wore a gown of tan satin crepe with hat to match and a corsage of lilies of the valley and sweet peas in the pastel shades.

A wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives at Peterson's Tea Room. Covers were laid for fourteen guests. The tables were handsomely appointed, sweet peas in pastel shades being used in profusion. The couple left by motor for an extended trip after which they will make their home at Iron Mountain, Michigan, where Mr. Nadeau has a responsible position as inspector at the Ford Motor Plant. Mr. Nadeau is widely known in this city, having been an instructor at the Wells School for several years and numbers her friends by the score.

CROWN PRINCE OF GYPSIES IS QUITE PEEVED

Boston, Mass.—"Crown Prince" Stokes, 15 years old, is exceeding wrath today. "King" Stokes also is mad—$2,500 worth of real gypsy mad. And the police of Pelham Bay Park have a problem on their hands.

For, in brief, the "crown prince" of the gypsy band married a 14-year-old girl in the approved gypsy fashion and his father handed over to the girl's father $2,500 in hard cash. They were married in true gypsy fashion by the girl jumping over a broomstick—but the police insist this is no American marriage and that it is off. Still worse, the bride, who was to have been the "crown princess," has been taken home by her father. Therefore, the crown prince is minus a bride and his father is out $2,500.

Ephraim Butch, so runs the story, is a gypsy who forsook the tent and trail to open up a gas station in Salem and settle down. Came along the Stokes tribe and Annie Butch, though but 14, became seized with the wanderlust. Her father consented and she set out with the tribe.

Then Daddy Butch began to long for his little daughter back. He took up the trail, and found his little girl was married and the "crown princess."

Against this, comes the "king's" claim that he "staked" Butch to $2,500.

Now, was the child bride "bought," and if so what must be done? The police of Pelham Bay Park are puzzled. Anyway, Annie is back with her father, her father is nursing a lame shin where the hob nailed sole of his son-in-law's boot connected with him, and the gypsies are exceeding wrath.

CARELESSNESS CAUSE OF FIRES

Disastrous California Fires Could Have Been Avoided.

(By The Associated Press.)

San Francisco—The great forests of fir, pine, spruce, hemlock, redwoods and sequoias that stretch over the states of the Pacific Coast have been menaced more seriously by fires this summer than at any time in recent years. California, in the grip of a protracted drought, was the worst sufferer.

Despite the tinder-like condition of the California national forests, where the most disastrous of the fires have burned, Paul G. Redington, United States district forester here, is of the opinion that there would have been virtually no fire hazard, and would not be at any time, if human carelessness could be eliminated.

In a recent statement, Mr. Redington attributed to negligence 657 of 839 fires in the state this year.

"About 80 percent," he said, "are caused by careless campers, motorists, fishermen and others who frequent the forests. It is true that every summer a certain number of fires are started by lightning, but we do not fear the lightning fires. Generally they are started in exposed places at high elevations, spots easily discerned by our look-out men. It usually is a much simpler matter to put them out than to check those of human beings. Campers are apt to cause blazes along stream beds, in places less cool and less accessible."

So serious has the situation been in the California forests that the federal forester arranged for United States soldiers to patrol certain districts of the national reserves where the hazard was greatest. The federal forest service maintained a force of 650 men in this state throughout the summer, and at times, when several huge fires were burning in different national forests, thousands of temporary fire-fighters supplemented the regulars. At times, when fires were raging uncontrolled and, in several instances, towns were threatened, men near the scenes were conscripted for service. But this was resorted to rarely. At the close of July the fires all had been controlled and most of them were out, but the drought remained. Normally there is little rainfall on the Pacific Coast in summer. The dry spell in California, however, had started in the early spring. By the latter part of the summer the federal forests had lost more than $1,500,000 in timber, with unestimated damage to watersheds.

There also were severe fire losses in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, though the peril was less acute than in California. Late summer rains removed much of the hazard in Oregon and Washington. It was held necessary to close to the public large areas of the California national forests. Such closing never would be required could the element of negligence be removed, the district forester said.

He and other officials expressed the opinion that education was the only weapon to combat this carelessness. With this in view, they have placarded the state with posters and notices reminding people to put out their camp fires carefully and not to throw unextinguished matches or cigarettes into brush.

DOPESTERS FIGURE RESULTS OF POSSIBLE ELECTORAL DEADLOCK

College Unable To Make Choice In 1800 And 1824.

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington.—As always happens when more than two outstanding presidential nominees are in the running, political dopesters again are figuring over the possibilities of a deadlock in the Electoral College this year and speculating whether in that event the House or the Senate finally would decide who should become president.

There are many ifs and ands in these calculations and the dopesters themselves are not forgetful of the fact that only twice in the country's history—in 1800 and 1824—was the College of Electors unable to make a choice. And on those occasions the issues were settled in the House without difficulty.

Nevertheless, the figuring goes on as Coolidge, Davis and LaFollette begin warming up for their three-cornered campaign, and some of the prognosticators even advance the theory that all three may fall of election. That point is the complicated skein of theorizing is arrived at in this fashion:

Should no presidential nominee receive a clear majority of the 531 votes in the Electoral College, the House would be called upon to select a president from the three candidates receiving the highest number of votes in the college, and the Senate would be directed to choose a vice president from the two highest vice presidential candidates. Should a deadlock then develop in the House, the vice president chosen by the Senate would become president.

The possibility of a House deadlock is based upon the present political situation there, coupled with the language of the twelfth amendment which provides that if, after counting the electoral vote, no candidate has a majority:

"Then from the persons having the highest number not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as president, the House shall choose immediately, by ballot, the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representatives from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all states shall be necessary to a choice."

In the present Congress, the Sixty-eighth, which would be the one to handle such a situation, should it develop, the Republicans control 23 state delegations or 23 votes; the Democrats 20, while Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire and New Jersey probably would be unable to vote as their delegations, equally divided between Democrats and Republicans, supposedly would be unable to agree, and thereby deadlock themselves.

The 23 Republican states are California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The 20 Democratic states are Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

The LaFollette followers control the Wisconsin house delegation and hope in the event of an Electoral College deadlock to swing over also some of the other states in the Democratic as well as the Republican column.

With 25 votes, each representing a state, needed to elect, the dopesters say triumphantly: "There you are; see if you can figure it out for yourself."

CAPITAL A CITY OF CONTRASTS

Beauty And Ugliness Rub Elbows In Washington.

Washington—Washington is a city of contrasts. Beauty rubs elbows with ugliness, epic-and-pannewness with dilapidated antiquity, palatial homes with squalid shacks.

When the king and queen of Belgium were guests of the capital only a few years back, their nearest neighbors, while they were housed in the magnificent home of Breckenridge Long at the top of Sixteenth Street Hill, was a colored family which lived in a ramshackle old lean-to immediately across the street.

All the comings and goings of the royal pair and their glittering entourage were watched with keenest interest by a half-dozen ragged pickaninnies perched on the rickety old steps of the shack.

And the interest of these dusky youngsters in the royal guests across the way undoubtedly was equalled by the interest of the royal pair in the "democracy" of the American capital and its indiscriminate mixing of colors and classes.

In the rear of many of Washington's most fashionable residential streets, facing on the alleys, are rows of brick tenements, crowded, unsanitary, unsightly, housing chiefly the city's poorer colored population.

These alley dwellings developed from the practice of the old families in installing their colored coachman and cook, usually they were man and wife, in building on the rear of the lot, facing the alley. Gradually these buildings were extended until they filled the whole alley frontage.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the first, when she first came to Washington, took an active part in trying to abolish alley dwellings, and they were officially scheduled for the discard, by order of Congress.

Then the war came along, the housing shortage developed, and a stay of execution was granted these tenements. So they still stand a blot on the face of the "beautiful" capital!

No historic avenue in the world presents such a motley array of "structures" as flanks Pennsylvania avenue, that broad thoroughfare between the capital and the treasury.

At the up-town end, near the treasury, there are a number of creditable modern buildings. But below Sixth street, toward the capitol, the only sizable building not of pre-Civil War vintage, houses Henry Ford's fivver and tractor exhibit.

Here may be found Washington's "Chinatown," rendezvous of silk-shirted and pig-tailed Celestials.

Here, also, are the quarters of fortune tellers, palm readers, mediums and psychics.

Swarthy gypsy women, in brilliant colored and voluminous skirts and rain-bow hued scarfs lol in the doorways while their brown-skinned, scantily clad children revel in the grime of the gutters.

A few musty, rusty "antique" shops and an old second-hand book shop or two, alone add "class" to this section of the "Avenue."

One hundred years from now, perhaps in 50, this may be changed. At that time Pennsylvania avenue may be the "beautiful" thoroughfare it is so often pictured. For few of the buildings there can stand longer than that.

But in the meantime—well, it's close to the capitol. There is no pressure for its present development. And land values will keep on rising.

The increment in these values make it more desirable to wait another generation before improving this section than to do it now.

And in the capital money out-talks even Congress!

Balkan territory on the map, and said so.

Then one of his friends, he says, just to josh him wrote a letter nominating him for the king job, addressing it to M. Pierre Gugliam, agent diplomatique de Albanie, at Bucharest, Rumania.

Now there comes back to Chicago a message from M. Gugliam, saying he is interested in the description of Wood's plans and his qualifications. There is a chance for success in the kingly venture, he suggests, provided only that funds are forthcoming to finance the campaign. There's the only hitch. Business in the printing trade just now is a trifle slow. Yet Wood is not entirely disheartened.

"If those fellows back in history could make a position for themselves, I don't see what's to prevent a competent mechanical engineer who has seen the world, such as I am. I think it might be an advantage on all sides if Albania could get somebody to give her a square deal and steer her in the direction of progress."

Travelled the World.

The printing job at present is just a pot boiler, to keep things going at home in the fourth floor rear flat over a bakery on Wells street. Wood has traveled the world as an engineer. About 20 years ago he helped install American engines in a Russian torpedo boat and he remained in the service during the war with Japan. At Port Arthur he was a lieutenant, commanding a boat, as he says, for the "Roosians." During the great war, he helped build and operate American merchant ships.

Wood is 49 years old, born in Kansas and reared in Ohio. Mrs. Wood doesn't care for the prospect of being queen. She's more interested in her Persian cats, and in their kittens which bring $20 a piece.

"Neasy lies the head that wears the crown," suggests a visitor. "Mine's laid uneasy all my life anyhow," cheerfully answers King-candidate Frederick I.

PRINTER MAY BECOME KING

Frederick Wood Of Chicago Candidate For Throne Of Albania

Chicago—"A pig herder once became king of Bulgaria, and a common soldier got to be king of Sweden."

This is the challenge to the kidders and the scorners thrown back by an outwardly prosaic, gray-haired American printer, Frederick T. O. Wood, candidate for the throne of Albania.

And so far as any one knows, Wood has as good a chance at the throne as any other—whatever that chance is worth. So far as any one knows, the 11 blooded Persian cats in Wood's dark flat may be cuddling against the legs of a king-to-be, and the canary bird may be destined to sing in a royal palace.

Started By Jasher.

The Albania dream flashed out brilliantly last winter when Wood heard a lecturer describe that tiny Balkan trouble spot which has unseated a handful of rulers since the great war began and which offered its crown in vain last year to the oil king, Harry Sinclair. Wood thought he could handle the toughest

TEN-MILE SKYROCKET

New York.—A skyrocket that may ascend a distance of 10 miles will be shot off this summer by Dr. Robert H. The rocket will be about five feet high and six inches in diameter, he has announced.

DRY LAKE IS STILL ON MAP

"Lake Tulare", Dry Many Years, Still Marked As Lake.

San Francisco. (By A. P.)—Makers of maps have been for some years an unflinching source of amusement to the people at the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley of California. Their maps of the state invariably show a large blue circle, about half the size of San Francisco Bay and bearing the caption "Lake Tulare." The fact is there is no such lake and hasn't been for so long that it is difficult for the oldest inhabitant to remember it.

Years ago, when the first pioneers invaded the San Joaquin Valley there was a real Lake Tulare. It covered approximately 108 square miles. Geologists are of the opinion that at one time in ancient history it covered 1,000 square miles.

The early settlers started reclaiming the shallow parts of the lake by levees. Later on higher levees were erected. Slowly the old lake was encroached on, until it was spaced and re-spaced by levees 30 feet high. The reclaimed lands were exceedingly fertile, and wheat was grown on them.

Much of the water from the Kern and Kings rivers, which formerly flowed into Lake Tulare, are impounded far up in the mountains for irrigating the eastside lands. The Tulare wheat area is spotted with cotton fields, which are increasing in number.

The old lake bed is so dry that in some places the farmers have to pump to a depth of 2,100 feet to get any water. It is so dry that no crops could be raised without irrigation.

Nevertheless the maps, those of the state and federal government and tourist agencies and railroads, continue to display Lake Tulare.

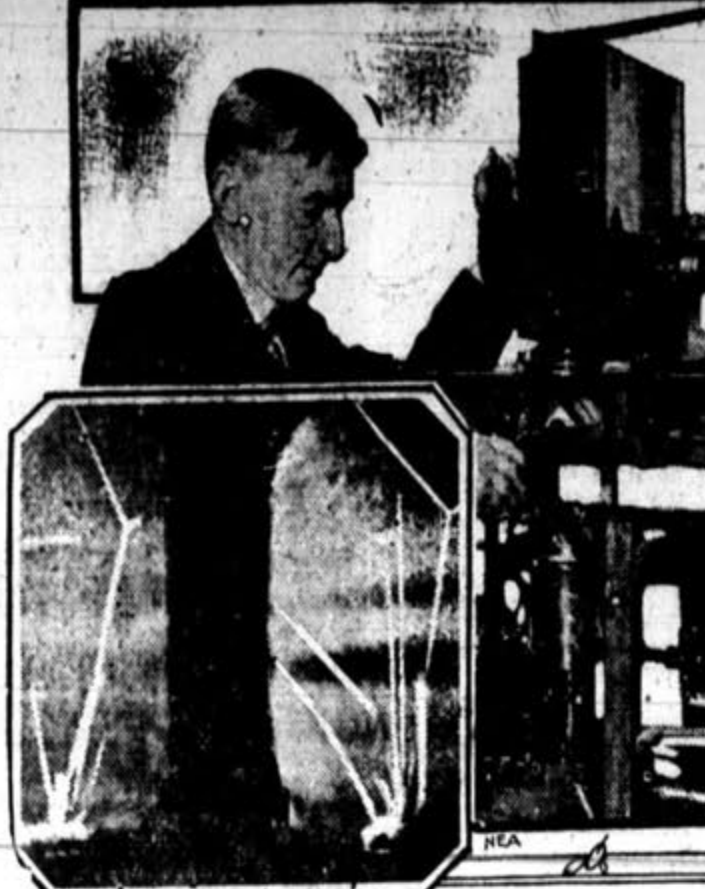

The secretary of the Kings County Chamber of Commerce constantly receives letters from the East inquiring about Lake Tulare. Recently one man wanted to know the prospects for working up a good trade in boats and canoes. Another planned to sell fishing tackle near the lake. Still another, more ambitious, wanted all the data, as he expected to establish a fine resort on the shores, with swimming, boating and everything aquatic. Even bathing suit manufacturers seek the market.

Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around women continue to work. Necessity to keep on their feet all day when overtired, or sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings on ailments from which women suffer tortures. For fifty years Lydia E. # AN ATOM GETS ITS PICTURE TAKEN!

Just a few scratches on the photographic film of Prof. W. D. Harkins, but they represent the first pictures ever taken of atoms of matter in collision. It would take 100,000,000 of them laid end to end to make a line one inch long. And here they are, moving through space under the camera lens at the rate of from a few hundred to 1200 miles a second. To further complicate matters, Prof. Harkins (above) says the picture (at the lower left) merely shows only the nucleus of an atom in collision, it being only one-ten-thousandth of the size of the entire atom.

VILLAGE HOPES TO COME BACK

But Just Now There Isn't Much To Union But History.

Detroit.—Back in the days of the stagecoach and the rapid pony-express mail service, Union, Ohio, was on the great north and south highway that connected Detroit with the struggling Queen City of the West, Cincinnati. It is possible, though hardly probable, that some of the old-time Detroiters recall having passed through the then thriving town.

"Thriving" was somewhat too strong a word to apply to Union, even as it was then. "Living" town might be better. But today, the age of automobiles and airplanes, when all the world is frantically striving to keep pace with the times, Union is not even alive. It is the "town that forgot how to grow," the "finished village."

It is 10 years now since Union was enfeebled—when its citizens gathered to celebrate the town's centennial. Many of the older inhabitants, although they joined in the celebration, protested that the town was older than 100 years. And, after looking the town over, who could help but believe that Union is more than 100 years old—much older.

Stage Coach Divested.

Every day, when Union was in its prime, the stage coach lumbered through the main street, and the town was prosperous. The best-known gun shop between the lakes and the Gulf was conducted in Union by "Grandfather" Sheets, many of whose descendants still live there. The fame of the gunmaker was known throughout the wild and woolly northwest. Adjoining the gun factory was a busy little pottery, the product of which now is held and treasured as heirlooms by many American families. Last, but not least, was a distillery that stood on the pike at the end of the village, and the cooperage that turned out barrels and kegs to hold the now-forbidden liquor.

Then one morning the stage-coach that had built up a reputation for promptness failed to appear at the scheduled time. Union wondered, but waited. Union waited in vain for the route of the coach had been changed. Thereafter, and until the time it was displaced by the steam monsters, the coach traveled a newer highway that had been cut through the wilderness across Stillwater River, far to the eastward.

Revived by railroad.

But was Union downhearted? No, sir. It was not long before a plan to build a railroad between Dayton and the Great Lakes was under discussion, and it took the citizens of Union only as long as it takes to tell it to get together and offer the right-of-way to the railroad builders. Some of them invested their money and others gave of their time and labor, and when the first train over what was known as the Delphos Division of the C. H. & D. puffed its way into the little station it was between two solid walls of barbecued ox, choice mutton, a variety of jellies and preserves—and more corn liquor than there were containers for. Once more Union was in the heyday of its career.

It seems that Union has been pursued by a jinx. The new era dawned, lingered briefly, then ended. The railroad changed ownership so often and so many times, that one never knew between train-time who was owner of the road. Finally, after years of juggling, the road "fopped" for good. Today Union's transportation system consists of a quota of flivvers and a traction line.

No Use for Town Hall.

There is a town hall in Union, but it also is a relic of bygone days. The village long ago gave up its papers of incorporation, and the hall has not seen a meeting of village fathers since the spiders took over the place. On the top floor of the musty little building hangs a Grand Army charter, and a little battle-scarred flag; a gavel and a Bible lay on top of the speaker's stand; but nothing in this hall has been touched for 14 years. It has fallen into the same sleep into which the village fell long ago. With the recent sale of the little red brick school-house, the sole surviving institutions in Union are the Methodist and the Mennonite churches.

But Union, like a man, may be down, but never out. Her some 300 residents are waiting for a leader, hoping that he will be able to kin-die the almost hidden spark of life that remains. They want the village to incorporate once more; they want new industries; they want homes, and a population that will support the institutions that have been allowed to fall into decay. The Union needs, the hopeful villagers feel, is someone to take the hands of her citizens and link them into an endless chain of neighborly understanding and mutual helplessness. Then, they believe, and they only, will Union climb back onto its own feet.

Is "Sweet Adeline" Sung by Quartette Disturbing Peace?

Flint.—Is the warbling of "Sweet Adeline," that ballad that has been the favorite of every male quartet in every "9 o'clock town" in the country for years, a breach of the peace when committed in the middle of the night?

The question is to be settled in the court of Justice Milton E. Mills here Aug. 15.

George Morris, a Flint youth, is the accused. He is said to have stood on a street corner with several friends in the late hours of June 30 and to have told the world how he "pined" in true barber-shop style.

Prosecutor Harry Gault said that a breach of peace covers a multitude of sins and while he did not believe the singing of "Sweet Adeline" in the night was among the things which are specifically covered by the law, he is willing to try to convict Morris.

Auto Buyers Follow Press Want Ads

When an owner decides to sell any article, he is interested in three things; finding a buyer, making a quick sale, and getting a reasonable price.

Press Want Ads do these three things each day for many advertisers who use The Press to find buyers. There is prompt response from many interested parties, and if the price is right, the sale is quickly consummated.

Here is an automobile Want Ad that brought results:

Mr. Wright ordered the Want Ad for three days. He reported these results:

"I sold the car to the first man that answered my Want Ad, and then turned people away the rest of the day. There were about a dozen replies to this one Want Ad. I could have sold for a higher price than I advertised if I cared to do so."

No Monopoly in Oil

"I am told that the Standard Oil Company has practically all the refineries. Is this true?" a correspondent asks the Oil and Gas Journal.

Reply is made in issue of June 19, as follows: "It certainly is not. In the first place when you mention the Standard Oil Company you are speaking of several companies which, since the dissolution decree United States Supreme Court of 1911, are as separate in their ownership and control as any of the several thousand oil companies which operate in the United States.

"No company bearing the name of 'Standard' including its subsidiary organizations has more than 11 refineries in the United States. There are several of the so-called 'independent' Companies which have from 5 to 9 refineries. According to the Oil and Gas Journal's compilation of May 1, there are 574 refineries in the United States of which 382 were operating on that date. Of this number only 39 belong to the several Standard Oil Companies and their subsidiary organizations. Thus you see that approximately only 1 out of 15 refineries belong to the Standard Companies."

The Standard Oil Companies loom much larger in the public mind than is warranted by the percentage of their refineries as compared with all other oil companies.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has but six refineries—Whiting, Indiana; Sugar Creek, Missouri; Wood River, Illinois; Casper, Wyoming; Greybull, Wyoming; and Laramie, Wyoming.

The oil industry of today is of such vast proportions as almost to defy figures. Perhaps that is why it appeals so strongly to the imagination.

As the oil industry is organized today, a monopoly in oil, whether crude or refined, is beyond possibility. The industry is too enormous for dictation by any one company or any group of companies. It is too big and too varied for "understandings". It is too big for anything but the keenest sort of competition, and for the winning and holding of business through service.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is strictly a competitive organization of service. That it is able to compete profitably with other oil companies is due solely to its initiative in invention of new methods and processes, and to its superior organization for the refining and distribution of oil products. In both of these capacities it is rendering an essential service to the thirty million people of the Middle West in such a way as to have gained their respect, confidence and esteem.

GOVERNOR HITS
BACK AT SLIGH

State Executive Makes Campaign Speech At Manistique.

Flinging out a defiant challenge to all opponents who have been attacking the state administration, Governor A. J. Groesbeck delivered his second upper peninsula campaign address to a gathering of about 60 men at the Elk's Temple, Manistique, on Monday evening.

The Manistique visit was the second stop made by the Groesbeck party, which consisted of George Welsh of Grand Rapids, candidate for lieutenant governor, Alton T. Roberts, and Warden Gorgan Dr. F. P. Bohm, state senator, also accompanied the party from Newberry, where the U. P. campaign was launched Monday noon.

News that the governor would visit this city came on short notice and local business men were given but little time to prepare a reception for him. A public meeting in the auditorium was suggested but there was not sufficient time to advertise the event, and the Elk's Temple dining room was selected instead. The room was filled to capacity for the governor's talk, which followed a dinner. The state executive was the guest of Leo C. Harmon on his arrival in this city, shortly before seven o'clock in the evening.

His dark eyes snapping, Governor Groesbeck took up, one by one, the various accusations made by his political opponents, charging him with extravagance in the administration of state affairs. He showed where the various expenditures had been justified, and cited figures to substantiate all his statements. Referring to road building matters, he declared that water-bound macadam was going into the discard as material for state highways, and expressed a preference for concrete as the only permanent road material.

The state executive minced no words in his talk here, and his personality made a profound impression on his hearers. His talk was a direct answer to allegations made by his opponent, Charles R. Sligh, who visited here a short time ago, and based his remarks on a criticism of the Groesbeck administration.

George Welsh of Grand Rapids, Groesbeck's running mate, also gave a short talk. Both will attend the Curtis barbecue and picnic on Thursday.

Better Blackberry or Raspberry Jam Easily Made in 15 Minutes
Tastes Better—Looks Better—Costs Less and Never Fails

Everyone who likes fresh berry pie or preserves will love good blackberry or raspberry jam. Particularly when all the flavor of ripe blackberries or raspberries is preserved in the jam. Until now, however, an effort was required to make them and they have been expensive. Certo, the natural "jell" making property of fruit, has solved the problem so that everyone can make and eat a lot of these delicious preserves.

To make blackberry or raspberry jam by the quick and easy CERTO method, follow this simple recipe:

Crush about 2 quart ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is mashed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb the sugar during the short boil. Measure 4 level to large kettle, crushed berries into large kettle. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute, remove from fire and stir in 1/2 bottle (scant 1/2 cup) CERTO. From time jam is taken off fire allow to stand not over 5 minutes by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime, boil and stir occasionally to cool, slightly. Then pour quick.

Use same recipe for strawberry or loganberry jam. This CERTO process banishes the guess work or worry as perfect results are certain when a simple method "pound for pound" mixture boiled for thirty or more minutes, with considerable juice and flavor of the fruit being boiled away, the economical CERTO method requires only one minute's boiling and thereby saves the juice to make one-half more jam. That's the only reason why more sugar is used with CERTO.

CERTO is a pure fruit product—contains no gelatine or preservative. CERTO positively saves time, fruit, flavor and guess work. It makes all kinds of jams and jellies—some you have never tasted before. CERTO is highly endorsed by national authorities and local cooking experts. Every woman who tries it recommends it to her friends and says she'll never be without it. Over seven million bottles were used last year.

The above recipe and nearly 100 other Jams, Jellies and Marshmallows are in the CERTO Book of Recipes which is enclosed with every bottle of CERTO.

Get a bottle of CERTO from your grocer right away. Start the new—the sure, quick, economical way of making jams and jellies that keep indefinitely. You'll never return to the old "hit or miss" method. Make plenty of blackberry or raspberry jam this year—no home ever has so much. Adv.

OCCUPANTS OF
CAR PAY FINE;
DRIVER HIKES

Changing a previous plea of not guilty to one of guilty, John Gerbich and Tony Bosnich paid fines in justice court at Manistique yesterday, on a charge of intoxication.

Gerbich and Bosnich, together with a third man who has disappeared, were occupants of an automobile which overturned on the Big Hill east of the city on Sunday. It is claimed that an over-indulgence of liquor was responsible for the accident. Two of the men were arrested after the accident by Chief of Police John A. Peterson of this city.

The third man, thought to have been the driver of the machine which turned turtle, walked away before his identity could be learned and his companions refused to divulge his identity, claiming that they did not know him. The car is in a local garage for repairs.

Bosnich and Gerbich were arraigned before Justice of the Peace W. A. McKinney on Monday, charged with being drunk and intoxicated on the state highway. Only one of the pair could talk English, but he acted as interpreter for the other, and they entered a plea of not guilty.

Justice McKinney set the date for the trial at August 15, and the recognition of the men at $100 each. Accompanied by the sheriff, both of them appeared Tuesday morning, however, and stated that they were ready to pay their fines.

L. OBERG WINS
PRIZE PORKER

Schoolcraft Boys And Girls Win At Chatham Camp.

Competing with 350 boys and girls from 14 Upper Peninsula counties, the Schoolcraft county delegation won two first prizes at the annual club camp, held at Chatham last week.

The Schoolcraft canning club team, composed of Sophie Cherneski and Lillian Anderson, won the first prize in canning work, over nine entries from various parts of the U. P. This entitled them to a free trip to the State Fair, expenses paid.

Another first prize winner was LeRoy Oberg, who stood highest in hog judging over all other entries. He received as a prize one full-blooded Durco Jersey pig.

The potato team from this county also won a trip to the State Fair. On this team are Isaac Pawley, Jr., and Alfred Quinlan. A "Burbur" can sealer was won by Gunhilde Anderson, as second prize in the canned fruit judging contest.

The Schoolcraft delegation as a whole won second place in the tent inspection. A girls' track meet, a part of the camp entertainment, was won by the Schoolcraft county girls. The boys took second place in a similar meet.

Rain proved the only disagreeable feature of the encampment, but the young people didn't mind the wet. A large mess hall afforded shelter for all events which could not be held out-of-doors.

P. G. Lundin, county club leader, was in charge of the local delegation, and is entitled to much credit for the showing made by them at the Chatham camp.

BEAQUEATHS HER
DOGS $15 A WEEK;
HER MOTHER $10

By NEA Service. Brooklyn, N. Y.—A dog's life is the life of Reilly, if you will consider the affairs of three greyhound pups bequeathed $15 a week in the will of their mistress.

When the last testament of Mrs. Maude L. Vause, of Halsey Street, was filed it was learned that while she had arranged that the dogs should receive $15 a week, her mother, Mrs. Emma Young, would receive $10 a week.

A son was willed $100. The unusual will left $100 to the decedent's sister-in-law, Mamie Vause, and provided that the care of the three pets should pass to her.

"I feel assured my sister-in-law will find a way to care for my pets the same as I would," the will reads.

"In event they must be cared for by another, a home and care must be found for them where kindness will be tendered. No child or children in said home."

Thus three dogs find themselves with "an independent income," a thing for which humans strive and labor years upon end—and so seldom achieve.

First Farmer Tour
Proves A Success

A dozen or more cars comprised the Schoolcraft county farmers tour on Monday, the first event of its kind ever attempted in this county.

The attendance at the various stops ranged from nine to 25, and farmers with their cars joined the tour as it progressed. The trip started at the Swede Settlement, and ended at Cooks. A noon-day dinner at Buell Grange hall was one of the popular features of the trip. Several Manistique business men attended the dinner, in lieu of the regular Chamber of Commerce luncheon, which was postponed.

Many farmers were prevented from taking part in the tour on account of haying and other farm work.

The following schedule of stops was carried out as nearly as possible:

- 8:00 a. m.—Dairy-alfalfa meeting, Chas. Rose farm, Swede Settlement.
8:40—Dairy meeting, Fred Peterson farm, Gulliver.
9:20—Inspect certified barley and potatoes, Isaac Pawley farm.

"QUO VADIS"
COMES HERE
AS BENEFIT

History, romance and tragedy are blended into an awe-inspiring and thrilling spectacle in George productions of Henryk Sienkiewicz's celebrated novel "Quo Vadis," which will be shown at the Lyric theatre Monday, August 13, as a benefit for All Saints' Catholic church.

"Quo Vadis?" is accredited by all who have seen it, with being the most marvellous motion picture spectacle of the century.

It has created a sensation wherever it has been shown. For scope, magnitude, extravagant splendor, realism, thrills and sensation, it is said the picture has never been equaled.

The beautiful love story of the pagan Vintius, for the Christian girl, Lydia, is related with remarkable fidelity, and the companion love story of Petronius and Eunice, his slave, is also faithfully shown.

CHARLEVOIX
HERE TODAY

Two Lower Michigan
Teams On Schedule
For This Week.

Gladstone fans will have their first chance to see a lower Michigan team in action here this season this afternoon when the Charlevoix club, member of the North Michigan Resort League, and one of the fastest teams of the association, meets Gladstone on the local diamond.

Charlevoix and East Jordan, which plays here Thursday afternoon, are on a barnstorming trip through the upper peninsula and they are traveling with a lineup that includes some of the best of the lower peninsula players.

Edie Plank who played shortstop here last year is with the Charlevoix crowd and those who saw him in action last year will have a fair idea of the brand of ball the visitors will handle.

In addition to Plank, the club has Rigley, catcher, a former Olivet college star; Valley, former Mint league backstop; Eber and Widner, pitchers, both former Mint league hurlers; Thomas pitcher, who comes from the University of California; Gourney, former Boston American; Vartel of the old Central league; Moley, with Grand Rapids last season; Christie and Davidson of Ypsilanti and Lennox with the Central league club.

Big Game. With this crowd of players against Lefty Gervais and his men a good game is bound to result and a big week day crowd is certain to attend.

Gervais' selection for the mound has not been announced but he has good material in anyone of the trio, Millard, Carsten and Borman.

East Jordan will play here Thursday afternoon. Saturday's game will be played here with Manistique and Sunday's in Gladstone with Ishpeming.

"DISCONTENTED
SHOW TODAY

A story that offers plenty of food for thought; an all-star cast headed by that popular favorite, James Kirkwood; fine production, intelligent direction, and the name of Evelyn Campbell as author, are a few of the high lights that distinguish "Discontented Husbands." This newest Columbia Pictures production comes to the Community theatre today.

The story is said to be of special interest to all people who are married, have ever been married, or expect to be married, for it is a study of married life—its problems, its joys, its sorrows. "Discontented Husbands" tells of a man and wife who have forgotten that companionship and the real things of life make for happiness.

As its central situation, "Discontented Husbands" tells of a man and wife who have forgotten that companionship and the real things of life make for happiness.

WHEEL CRUSHES DRIVER'S SKULL

George Campbell Killed When He Falls From Wood Wagon.

George Campbell, aged 55, a summer employe by the Ford Wood Yards, was killed about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon near the St. Paul ore dock viaduct, when he fell from the loaded wagon on which he was seated. One wheel of the wagon passed over his head. His skull was terribly crushed. He died about fifteen minutes after the accident.

Mr. Campbell was hauling wood from the I. Stephenson Company's mill at Wells to the Ford yard on Stephenson avenue. He was a competent teamster and the team he was driving was gentle, his fellow employes said. The only witness to the tragedy was a small boy—George Johnson of 516 South 17th street—who chanced to be near the spot at the time.

Horses Lurched Forward.

The lad told officers that an automobile was approaching the wood wagon from the rear and signaled for the right-of-way. Mr. Campbell struck the horses with the whip. The horses lurched forward and the driver plunged headlong from his seat on the right side of the front of the wagon, to the pavement directly in front of the left front wheel. Apparently the horse on that side, startled, kicked.

"The man tried to get up and couldn't," the boy said. "Then the wheel ran over him."

A physician was called immediately but the injuries were so severe that no relief could be given and the victim died within a few minutes after the arrival of the doctor.

Horses Continue Journey.

After the accident the horses traveled leisurely on down Sheridan Road. They were stopped near the Stein clothing store, two blocks away.

The body of Mr. Campbell was taken to the Alto Funeral Home to be prepared for burial. It will be returned to the home, 469 First Ave. No. today. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

A widow, one son and one daughter survive.

Good He's Dead Says Woman Of Wayward Youth

Thus, in simple words, sobbed out in her shabby house at 573 Lemay avenue, did Mrs. Mathias Parmantye, tell of her "wandering boy."

Parmantye was shot to death when he resisted arrest following the robbery of the Continental Branch Bank at 11517 Charlevoix street.

Ball Player Once.

"Fred was a bad boy when I married his father. He was only 12 years old then," Mrs. Parmantye said. "He was in the Industrial School for Boys at Lansing when we were married. I brought him home, for he was a nice looking boy and I thought that I could make a good boy out of him. But it was too late."

The bad boy who stole bicycles and who later became the "bad man" was a good ball player, according to Mrs. Parmantye. He played professional ball in a minor league for some time, she said, but there were not enough thrills in that game. The game of bandits was irresistible to him since his boyhood, she said. "I have to get out. I can't stand it any more to work," she quoted him as saying.

Staged N. Y. Robbery.

He would disappear from home sometimes for a day, sometimes a year. And in those intervals she continued, she and his father would watch the newspapers for an account of his death or arrest.

"Fred was good to me," she added. "He was always kind to me and would send me money to buy nice things for me. Sometimes he would lie to me and tell me that he was going to Marquette or some other place while he really went to New York to stage a robbery. At one time he had money sent to me from Marquette when he was not there. He told me that he was playing ball there and was making a lot of money."

"He is dead now. Yes, it is best."

EIGHT DROWN WHEN DANCE FLOOR COLLAPSES

Eight persons were drowned near Buckeye, O., when part of a dance pavilion built over the water collapsed. The accident was caused by a beam under the floor breaking when the floor was crowded. Thirty persons fell through the floor into the water. In the picture men in a boat may be seen hunting for bodies.

ESCANABA PLAN IS MAJOR TOPIC

Interest In School Fund Measure Is Shown Throughout State.

State-wide interest in the "Escanaba Plan" of distributing primary school funds, which will be presented to the Michigan legislature again this winter, is evident from the requests for information concerning the plan, received almost daily at the office of O. I. Bandeen, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

These requests come from influential men in politics, financial circles and school work. Many are expressing their desire to assist in the campaign for the adoption of the plan.

Each inquirer is supplied with copies of the bill which failed of passage at the last session of the legislature, and considerable other data. The bill to be offered at this session is to be very similar if not actually identical with that considered at the last session. This measure had the approval of most of the school officers of the state, and had been given a "clean bill" as to its soundness and constitutionality by actuaries and legal experts.

SPARE TREE, WOMAN PLEADS

Detroit Woman Asks Court To Prevent Destruction By Pavers

Woodman, spare that tree! Touch not a single bough! In youth it sheltered me, And I'll protect it now.

It was an "old oak tree" that George Pope Morris celebrated in sincere, if somewhat sticky, numbers a century ago, and it is "a nice maple shade tree that has symmetrical limbs" that Mrs. Maud M. Beeson, 3302 Euclid avenue west, would save today from the cruel axe of the woodman, or, more precisely and prosaically, the garage man across the alley.

But the sentiment that moved the Nineteenth Century poet and the Twentieth Century householder to protest, spring from the same source and are equally intelligible to a sympathetic understanding—particularly in this weather when "grateful shade" is grateful shade—whether it be afforded by an oak tree, a maple tree or a raspberry bush.

Mrs. Beeson filed a petition in Circuit Court Wednesday praying that the City of Detroit, the Department of Buildings and Safety Engineering and the Department of Parks and Boulevards, be cited to show cause why they should not be permanently enjoined from cutting down the "nice maple shade tree" whose leafy branches cast a grateful shade in her back yard.

It seems the tree takes root in the alley beyond Mrs. Beeson's fence, and the garage man across the way, who has an eye for bent fenders rather than for "symmetrical limbs" (that is, in the arboricultural sense at least), protested to the City that the blankety-blank tree was obstructing traffic in the alley and ought to come down.

The City of Detroit was about to cut it down, too, Mrs. Beeson says, until moved by her pleas, they desisted temporarily.

Judge Arthur Webster granted Mrs. Beeson an order citing the City to show cause why it should not be restrained from cutting down her pet tree. The order is returnable Aug. 20. Meanwhile he granted a temporary restraining order, which insures at least that during the present hot spell Mrs. Beeson will not be robbed of the maple's shade.

JOY RIDERS ARE RAMMING RED STREET LIGHTS

The practice being indulged in by a few night "joy-riders" in ramming into and breaking the red warning lights placed by the Bridges Company and the city on South Seventh and Third streets where construction work is being carried on must stop, it was declared yesterday.

Over 100 red lights are placed on the five blocks on which work is being carried on, in order to protect motorists from accident, and the removal of these lights through breakage is apt to endanger other motorists.

No action has been taken thus far, although, one night no less than a half dozen lights were reported broken. In the future all cases of this kind will be reported to the police.

Police Pick Up Man Wanted in Lansing

James Roy was picked up by the city police last evening under a bench warrant issued by the circuit judge of Lansing. He was turned over to the sheriff and remanded to the county jail. The charge under which his arrest was asked was not made known.

A THOUGHT

The Lord upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down.—Ps. 145:14.

WHAT region of the earth is not full of our calamities?—Virgil.

Jacksonville, Fla., claims to be the largest lumber market on the Atlantic coast and the largest naval stores market in the world.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

Revealing the effect of the widely discussed rejuvenation, upon romance and alive with brilliant drama and rare beauty of dress and settings, Frank Lloyd's screen version of "Black Oxen," a First National Picture, is showing at the Delft today for the last times.

"Black Oxen," from the pen of Gertrude Atherton, because of its originality and modern atmosphere, has been the best selling novel of 1923, and Mr. Lloyd is said to have given it an elaborate pictorialization replete with surprising incidents, and enhanced by the visualization of characters, superbly described in the novel, but demanding real life to obtain proper appreciation.

Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle share the featured parts in "Black Oxen." Miss Griffith playing the dual personalities of Mary Ogden later Madame Zatlany, and Mr. Tearle being cast as Lee Clavering, a cynical New York newspaper man who falls in love with the charming European bred, American girl. Clara Bow, a newcomer to the screen, essays the role of Janet Oglethorpe, a flapperish young individual who adds considerable spice to the story by her actions; Kate Lester is seen as Jane Oglethorpe, Harry Messinger as James Oglethorpe, Thomas Ricketts as Dinwiddie, old time friend of Zatlany; Thomas Guise as Judge Trent, Claire MacDowell as Agnes Arvor, Clarissa Selwynne as Gora Dwight, Lincoln Stedman as Donnie Ferren, and Alan Hale as Prince Moritz von Hohenhauser.

Miss Griffith makes twenty-two complete changes of wardrobe during the action of the play, reviewers state, and her gowns, which cover a period of more than 30 years in fashions, are said to be unusually attractive.

AT THE STRAND.

The art of miniature stage building has been introduced into the production of motion pictures as another means toward economy and efficiency, and of insuring fidelity and realism. This system has been perfected by Wilfred Buckland, a famous art director, who was associated with Richard Walton Tully in his pictorialization of du Maurier's immortal novel, "Tribly." And as a consequence, those who see it when it opens today at the Strand, will not know which of the scenes were filmed in Paris and which in Hollywood—for parts of the production were made abroad, parts at the United Studios.

"Tribly" is an ambitious production of the world-famous story, with a distinguished all-star cast headed by the celebrated French beauty and star, Andree Lafayette, and including Arthur Edmund Carew, Creighton Hale, Wilfred Lucas, Philo McCullough, Francis McDonald and others, directed by James Young.

MONKEY BITES LEG THAT FED HIM; IN POUND

Detroit.—There is a monkey in the dog pound today. He is there because he bit the leg that fed him, and he bit it because it fed him only a penny.

Caruso (so he is named) is a monkey of remarkable learning and sagacity. His owner, Veriso Gansoni, a hand-organ virtuoso, has gone to some trouble and expense to provide a financial and a musical education for Caruso, and the coconut-thrower has made the most of his opportunities.

It occurred to Gansoni at the outset that bulls abhorred the color of red. That would be a good trait in a monkey, too, he reasoned. It would then look reproachfully at whoever offered it pennies (you've heard the expression, "Not a red cent") and shame them into contributing silver or, at least, nickels.

But Gansoni had done his work too well, it proved yesterday. He was perpetrating auditory atrocities at Cheno and Hunt streets while Caruso, cap in hand, circulated through the select audience accepting contributions.

The audience was largely juvenile and the receipts were small, but one boy tossed a dime into the hat, another produced a nickel and then—then Edward Bolinski, 13 years old, 2884 Scott street, tossed a penny.

Caruso didn't pause for a reproachful look. He dropped his cap, leaped onto the boy and sank his teeth in his left leg. Only after a hard struggle could Gansoni drag him off.

A Bit Surprised.

"No, Sir," said Edward, afterward, "I had no idea that monkey would treat me that way. One boy gave him a dime and another came out with a nickel, but the monkey didn't waste any time in biting me when I offered him a penny. He just made for the front of my leg and I didn't think he'd ever let go."

"But I'm getting used to such things. You see, I've had some experience of this kind. I've had two dogs bite me, but they didn't hurt much."

"But I never thought I'd live to see the day when I would be bitten by a monkey."
