FLIVVER KING GOES GUNNING AFTER DANCES

Hudson, Mass. — Henry Ford, who turned antique dealer when his presidential timber was ruled off the market, is taking up re-forming again.

It's the great man's great weakness. First it was war, then banking and now it's dancing that has become his pet aversion.

So he is going to reform it—take the shimmy out of it, as he did in his flivvers; make it stand on its own feet; and put the whole business on a safe and sane basis.

But history at least has taught Henry that it is difficult to bring about a reformation single-handed. For although he shakes a mean hoof himself, when the fiddler strikes up, he can hardly compete with a first-class finale-hopper.

So he has turned to puritanical New England for help. Here in quiet Hudson, not far from his Wayside Inn, where he runs his antique shop, Henry found a couple of dancers who still remember the waltz, the square dance and the minuet.

At first he thought of putting them in his antique department, but then he decided to invite them to Detroit for the week of September 7, to start the dancing reformation there.

Inspired with the zeal of crusaders, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Lovett accepted the invitation. They are now practicing up on the dances of yesterday and before, with which they hope to put jazz to rout, and make Henry happy.

GOT SPECIAL MENTION. Raymond returned from Sunday school in a state of great excitement.

"Oh, mother," he exclaimed, "the superintendent said something nice about me in his prayer today."

"What did he say?" he was asked.

"He said: 'We thank Thee for food and Raymond,'" he replied.

REASSURING. "Are you sure that I shall recover?" an anxious patient asked a physician. "I have heard that doctors sometimes give wrong diagnosis and have treated patients for pneumonia who afterward died of typhoid fever."

"You have been woefully misinformed," replied the doctor indignantly. "If I treat a man for pneumonia, he dies of pneumonia."

Saturday has always been a red-letter day in the royal house of Great Britain. All of the four George's who reigned in that country died on Saturdays. By another odd coincidence, the present king, George V., and his four sons, the Prince of Wales, Duke of York, Prince Henry and Prince George, all were born on a Saturday.

ALL SORTS OF TROUBLE.

The doctor gazed at his patient's eye.

"You say you have trouble with it," he said. "But there's something more. On looking at it I see signs of liver trouble, of anaemia, and, I fear, of a chronic nervous affection."

"Look at the other eye," said the patient. "This is my glass eye, you see."

In Berlin the death is recorded of a woman whose fiancé was killed in the Franco-Prussian war. For more than fifty years it had been the odd custom of this woman to give a reception on each anniversary of the day which had been set for the wedding and to receive her guests in the dress that was to have been her bridal gown.

Some women, it appears, like to have cigarettes to match their frocks. One well-known society woman has a wonderful collection of colored cigarettes. Recently she was spending a week at a country house. She changed her dress several times a day, never wore the same dress twice, and always had her case stocked with cigarettes of exactly the same shade as her gown.

LIGHT WAS NEEDED. The stingy farmer was scoring the hired man for carrying a lighted lantern to call on his best girl.

"The idea," he exclaimed, "when I was courting I never carried no lantern, I went in the dark."

"Yes," said the hired man sadly, "and look what you got."

LOEB-LEOPOLD SENTENCED TO JOLIET PRISON

did it operate to relieve the gravity with which Mr. Darrow and his associate defense counsel, Walter and Benjamin Bachrach, listened to the judge.

A few moments later there was further pronouncement depressing for the defense when the court adjudged that "neither in the act itself, nor in its motives or lack of motive, nor in the antecedents of the offenders" was there to be found any mitigating circumstances.

Bounded Like Death. It sounded like a death sentence and the impression was heightened as the judge followed this summary with quotations from the statutes defining the crimes of murder and kidnaping for ransom and fixing the penalties therefor.

Then he suggested that in cases of such great responsibility some states had wisely provided the penalties. Still the shadow of the gallows hung in the tense room; but the next sentences dispelled it.

"It would have been the path of least resistance to impose the extreme penalty of the law. In choosing imprisonment, instead of death, the court is moved chiefly by the consideration of the age of the defendants, boys of 18 and 19 years."

Youth was in the ascendant now and the defense attorneys' faces showed an ever lightning burden, while the prosecutors in turn became grave as the import of the words struck home.

The boys themselves remained at rigid attention. Loeb blinked and gulped, but not a perceptible muscle moved in Leopold. The latter's aged father raised streaming eyes to the bench, and his older son, Foreman Leopold, who has supported the stricken father by word and presence through the ordeal, squared his athletic shoulders in relief.

Allen Loeb, brother of "Dickie," and their uncle, Jacob Loeb, former president of the Chicago board of education, shifted to more upright positions.

PAIR IS JOVIAL. Chicago, Sept. 16.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, their future to be spent in drab cells at the Illinois state penitentiary, passed their last day in the Cook county jail here in a mood akin to jovial.

Awaiting final preparation of papers which would formally establish them as "ifers," and under a decision which holds no hope for pardon or parole—the two youths were able to joke and laugh.

"I don't see how we can serve 30 years and live at the same time," Leopold remarked to his guard.

"We are in from now on, so it doesn't make any difference when you take us down," Loeb told an attaché of the sheriff's office who visited his cell to confirm details of personal history for commitment papers.

Judge Caverly, freed from the burden which has been his since July 21, when the boys suddenly altered their pleas, sat pensively over the papers carried to his hotel suite tonight for signature. There remains only the preparation of the formal history of the case by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe before the automobile journey to Joliet, some forty miles south, is begun.

Leopold, Sr., Broken. Nathan Leopold, Sr., aged and grieving parent of his namesake, and heir would have his boy serve out his time.

"Surely, surely," he replied in a broken voice when asked if he would be satisfied to have the boy remain in the penitentiary for life.

"There is but little to say," said Jacob Loeb, uncle of Richard. "We have been spared the extreme penalty; but what have these two families to look forward to?"

The boys, meanwhile, at the jail in which they had passed 112 days, resumed the "hum-drum routine of the trial days—except in the matter of diet, in the matter of food they were indulged. Chocolate eclairs, three inch steaks, numerous side dishes and plentiful helpings of choice desserts were demanded by the youths when they returned to their cells. They tackled them with gusto, chatting light-heartedly between goodly bites.

There followed words of counsel to the public, the court asking that the people generally consider that "prolonged suffering of years of confinement" would be "the severer form of expiation" to youths "of the type they are" reared in homes of luxury, successful in school and unquestioned in their goings and comings by indulgent parents.

Parole Opposed. Again the court expressed as in a few sentences he advised future officials of the state department of public welfare not to parole the offenders.

"To such a policy the court urges them strictly to adhere," he said. There remained only the formal words of the actual sentencing, delivered without break in the rapid fire of words from the bench.

No pause intervened, either, as the judge directed his clerk to distribute copies of the finding and ordered deputy sheriffs to retire with the prisoners.

Judge Caverly was on his feet as this order was completed and headed for his chambers even as the final gavel fell on the court proceedings in the famous case.

Jailers fairly hustled Leopold and Loeb away. Nathan had no chance to pause before his counsel, but a jam in an aisle permitted Loeb to fondle Clarence Darrow's arm momentarily.

"Everybody out," called a bailiff, but his admonition was not needed. Attorneys broke through corridors of newspaper interviewers, Allen Loeb hurried to a telephone to send the news to Charlevoix, Mich., where Richard's father and mother are both ill, and other members of the families passed rapidly into the corridors, entered waiting elevators and hurried to their automobiles.

Prosecuting Attorney George W. Carr issued the following statement yesterday thanking the electorate for the support accorded him at the primaries:

"I wish to thank the voters of the county for their generous support of my candidacy for re-nomination as presidential attorney at yesterday's primaries. The handsome vote given me was especially pleasing because I was prevented by the duties of the office from making a canvass of the county and I wish my friends to know that I appreciate what they have done for me.

"It was also gratifying to me to find my opponents such clean rivals and good losers. I wish to congratulate them on their fairness throughout the campaign, and I hope that if I ever am defeated politically, I may be able to display the same magnanimity that they have."

1923—Shenandoah, world's biggest dirigible metal balloon, made trial trip over New York.

PERMIT FOR BOBBING. Paris—Girls must have their fathers' permission to bob their hair, a French court has decided. The decision came at the end of a suit filed by a French deputy against the hairdresser who sheared his daughter's locks.

The court intimated that wives also should have their husband's approval before bobbing their hair.

SEE IBEX IN ALASKA. Tanana, Alaska.—A species of ibex—identical with the Old World ibex—has been sighted by hunters in the Noatak River region. This wild country abounds in both sheep and mountain goats, but the hunters insist that they have discovered the true ibex.

HASTENING THE END. "We'll be friends to the end." "Lend me $10." "That's the end."

GIRL PITCHERS TO GET CHANCE

Horseshoe Committee At Delta Fair Lays Out Special Courses.

Enthusiasm generated among the fair sex in the last few days has prompted the committee in charge of the Horseshoe Tournament to be held at the Delta county fair this year, to lay out two courses, instead of one, for women players. Inquiries as to the rules and regulations and many questions about the prizes have come from women and this is taken to mean there will be a large number in competition.

In view of this fact a second prize has been provided in the form of a fine toilet set which was donated by the Gross drug store.

Four courses are to be laid out for the men contestants and arrangements have been made to add more if necessary. It is believed that more will be needed and space has been reserved in accordance with that idea. The courses will be placed along the south side of the main exposition building. Yesterday P. J. Groos and several assistants spent the day in shaping up the alleys, carting in clay and "getting set" generally for the big event.

More Prizes Added.
Comment and inquiry has been so pronounced since the tourney has been announced that the committee in charge has decided to offer daily prizes in addition to those first announced.

Originally it was planned to award a first prize of $25, second $15, third $5, and fourth a pair of regulation horseshoes. Now it has been decided to add two daily prizes of $5 and $2.50 for the best "shooters."

Pitching horseshoes at the county fair promises to become the big sporting event of the week's program. The craze is on all over the county. Everybody's doing it. There is more of it among bankers and brokers and business men in the cities than there used to be among the men of the farm and the village. Many of them prefer horseshoes to golf. That's the hold it is taking on the American people and that is why the committee is hopeful that many entries will be made from every section of the city.

Small Fee Charged.
The agricultural society wants to provide entertainment for everyone and this tournament is one of the methods selected. It is not a money making project in the strict sense of the word but a small entrance fee is charged to meet the expense of conducting the game and furnishing the prizes. For 25 cents a man may throw 48 shoes. The ladies will be charged a dime for a similar number of shoes, and one may play as many games as he chooses by paying the entry fee.

The rules governing national tournaments will be in force and the rules will be printed on the back of each entry and score card.

They will also be printed in this paper with a few days and should be clipped out and preserved to govern contests after the fair. Entrants will compete as individuals and not in teams. This was thought to be the fairest way for everyone. More and more people are beginning to talk about the revival of this old game of horseshoe and those in charge of the affair at the county fair ground firmly believe that before the fair is over, this feature will attract more favorable attention than any other on the grounds. Fun for the participants and fun for the spectators as well as a lot of healthful exercise for both.

You'll likely catch the horseshoe spirit at the county fair and it's just as well to be doing a little practicing right now.

SCOTT WINS BY NEARLY 3,000

Lower Peninsula Vote Puts Alpena Man Back Into Congress.

Frank D. Scott won the Republican nomination for congress in the Eleventh district, his plurality, on complete unofficial returns last night being 2969.

The vote, in the 16 counties, stood: Scott, 15,893; Lemire, 12,924; Meggison, 6,493; Wood, 5,864.

Dr. W. A. Lemire, of Escanaba, went out of the Upper Peninsula with a plurality of about 3,000 votes, but this was overcome by Scott in the ten lower peninsula counties.

Lemire carried Delta county by 4,171 and Menominee county by 656 and ran only 229 votes behind James C. Wood, of Manistique, in the latter's home balliwick—Schoolcraft. Scott, however, carried Chippewa by about 600 votes and Luce, Alger and Mackinac by smaller margins. The big vote given Scott in the Lower Peninsula counties resulted in his nomination.

The figures for the district are:

County	Lemire	Wood	Scott	Meggison
Delta	5074	643	903	331
Menominee	1973	434	1317	210
Alger	636	417	929	87

The Piffle Hook

UNCLE SLIM'S WAY-PAST BEDTIME STORY
WILLIE Wampuscat sat on a grassy nook of a quack grass picking his teeth with a smoked wailer. He was looking forlorn and dejected. Buster Blue Jay had just thrown a corn plaster at him. Spitting vigorously through his teeth, Willie swore vengeance against the whole jay family. Was it for naught that he had acquired his wampuscat reputation? Nay children, it was not for naught. Neither was it for nothing.

Helen Lorimore's Legacy

BY JANE PHELPS.

HAROLD DRAKE CONSOLES HIMSELF.
Chapter L.
Among the smaller details of the ranch to which Helen gave her personal attention were the bunk houses. She kept them in thorough repair and insisted they be spotlessly clean. From time to time she added little comforts, such as only a woman would either think of or consider necessary. The men appreciated her efforts, and showed by their neatness, both in the bunk house and in the care they took of their persons, that they deserved this interest in them.
Old Martha smiled when Helen turned a large room into a reading room for the men, but she soon saw that it made them more contented. Helen kept them fairly well supplied with fresh reading matter, much of it sent her by her city friends. She encouraged those who were musical, installed a second hand piano for their use, and in other ways made them all feel she was interested in them aside from their work for her.
Walter Downing told her she would spoil them, but she laughingly replied:
"I want them to be happy, to stay with me. I should be helpless without them, almost as helpless with a new outfit."
"Don't coddle them too much," Walter retorted.
"I shan't, so don't worry."
And she didn't. Intuitively Helen seemed to know how far to carry her plans for the men. Never for a moment did she lose her dignity, nor did they impose

Roy who had refused to accept anything save exoneration at her hands, who was fighting to gain a hold in the world far away from all he had known and loved.
Harold Drake was to be married. Helen received an invitation to his wedding with a peculiar mixture of feelings. They had corresponded, intermittently, his letters always showing his admiration of her--if not the love he had urged so long.
Helen was glad he was to be happy. She wrote him a gay, friendly letter. Yet, woman-like, in the back of her mind was the thought that in spite of his love for her he had been able to console himself with another, a little feeling of hurt that he could forget her. Helen was very human.
Dot Maynard wrote her that Harold was marrying a Southern woman, about Helen's age, and one who reminded her of Helen.
"I believe he fell for her because she was like you," she wrote. "We all like her, and she will be an addition to our circle. But I can't help regretting that you couldn't have cared enough for Harold to give up that crazy idea of yours about living on a ranch and supporting yourself."
Helen smiled as she read. A "crazy idea"--Dot little knew the satisfaction Helen felt in proving herself a successful business woman, to say nothing of her love for her home. Dot had the same ideas she used to have; pity and condescension for the working woman. Mistaken ideas.
One never could be entirely unhappy when busy. Engrossed in work, one had little time for regrets, for thoughts of what might have been. If occasionally they came to Helen, thoughts of what her life would have been crowned with love, they no longer brought bitterness, but only a sort of sadness. Her eyes alone betrayed her. They had taken on a bit of

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.
Paulette Duval, famous Parisian danseuse, makes her debut in motion pictures in America in "Monsieur Beaucaire," the Paramount production of Booth Tarkington's story with Rudolph Valentino in the title role. Miss Duval, who is known in Paris as "La Belle Duval" because of her beauty, has been in this country but five months. She came to dance in the Ziegfeld Follies and was seen at the New Amsterdam theater for three months.
Miss Duval was born in Boas-Sualegaichu, Republic of Argentina, South America. At an early age she went to Paris and later found her place on the Parisian stage as a dancer. She has been featured in revues at the Casino de Paris, the Ambassador and Alhambra theaters.
Her work in "Monsieur Beaucaire," which completes its local run at the Delft today, while the first picture work she has done in the United States, is not her premiere before the camera. She appeared in an American made picture "Nero," which was made in Italy. She had the role of the Empress of Poppee.
Miss Duval does not speak English and it was necessary for Director Sidney Olcott to have an interpreter at his side, while filming scenes for the picture in which she appears.

AT THE STRAND.
The romantic picturesqueness of California's gold rush days is colorfully reproduced in "Ride for Your Life," the Universal photoplay starring Hoot Gibson, showing now at the Strand theater, which Edward Sergewick directed.
It brings back such familiar characters of long ago as the gallant "road agent," who robbed the men and bowed to the women, the men card sharps who made more money than the miners, the hardy old timers, and the reckless youth of that day who set almost as fast a pace to their romantic adventures as to super-speedy young folks of today.
The picture is essentially a comedy and was made with the object of creating laughter in almost every foot of film. Gibson has the role of a cowboy who masquerades as a bandit to please his girl.
Laura La Plante recently made a star by Carl Laemmle, plays opposite Hoot. Others in the cast include: Robert McKim, Howard Truesdell and Harry Todd.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS.
Lord Incheape, one of Britain's greatest commercial and shipping magnates, born in Forfarshire, 72 years ago today.
Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University of America, born at Manchester, N. H., 67 years ago today.
Rt. Rev. Arthur Drossaerts, Catholic bishop of Santa Antonio, born in Holland, 62 years ago today.
Bishop Luarens J. Birney, of the Methodist Episcopal church, born at Dennison, O., 53 years ago today.
Jackie Sanders, well-known featherweight pugilist, born in Italy, 27 years ago today.
The Rt. Rev. Ernest V. Shayer today celebrates the fifth anniversary of his consecration as Protestant Episcopal bishop of Nebraska.

DELTA COUNTY'S ELECTION.
Delta county's cities polled close to a normal vote in an election that carried few surprises on Tuesday. The vote cast in practically every township of the county reflected the fact that the farmers are busy with their harvests and many failed to take the time from their work to go to the polls. It is estimated that approximately 75 per cent of the county's vote was polled on Tuesday, which, however, is close to the normal vote for a primary election in this county.
The "wet" leanings of United States Senator James Couzens undoubtedly accounted for the manner in which he swept Delta county against Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, of Detroit, his leading opponent for the nomination.
The faculty of one candidate for office seeking to aid an opponent by withdrawing from the race, after his name has once been printed upon the official ballots, was most eloquently demonstrated at Tuesday's election. Atty. Hal H. Smith of Detroit a week ago withdrew from the race for the nomination for United States senator. He issued a statement, which was published in every newspaper in the state and repeatedly referred to for several days prior to the election, in which he appealed to his supporters to cast their votes for Judge Tuttle. In spite of that fact the official returns will show that Hal Smith received at least 100,000 votes. In Delta county alone over 700 electors threw their votes away by casting their ballots for a candidate whose name was carried on the ballot, but who in reality was not a candidate.

Although defeated in the district, Dr. W. A. LeMire of this city, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman, achieved a personal victory in his home county in which he can take a just pride. In a field of four candidates for the nomination in this county Dr. LeMire received approximately 65 per cent of the total votes cast, a record that has been approached but few times in the political history of this county.
All of Delta county's present officers, who were opposed for re-nomination, were returned by majorities of 1000 or better, reflecting the satisfaction of the people of the county in general, in the manner in which the offices of this county have been conducted by the present incumbents. This fact is doubly reflected in the offices of state senator, representative, sheriff, clerk of deeds, circuit court commissioners, drain commissioner, coroners and county surveyor, where the present officers were opposed for re-nomination.
The majorities accorded those candidates who were opposed, are sufficient to preclude the possibility of any defeated candidate feeling that a definite verdict has not been rendered by the people, making certain the election in November of all successful candidates at the primaries on Tuesday.

BROTHER DAVIS AND UNCLE REMUS.
The Democrats are in a quandary with respect to the confession of the so-called Bootlegger King, George Remus, who says he was primed to frame Daugherty, but who now retracts all he said to the Wheeler committee. If the Democrats call Remus a star now, it will look as if they are lying. If they do not call him a bootlegger, and the Democrats now charge his latest confession was forced from him, Remus' name is a recent speech at a Republican. Probably he will realize his blunder.
