Work on New Ore Dock Will Start at Once

NEW $2,500,000 STRUCTURE WILL REPLACE OLD NO. SIX; NO. THREE TO BE TORN DOWN

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF CONTRACT LETTING EXPECTED WITHIN NEXT FEW DAYS.

Tearing down the No. 3 ore dock in the Escanaba harbor, so that the work of rebuilding the No. 6 dock may start as quickly as the ore shipping season is over, will be started within a few days, according to a statement made yesterday at the office of George Loughane, division engineer, of the Chicago & North-Western.

Contracts for the building of the new dock, on the site of the present No. 6 structure, were let in Chicago Tuesday, but official announcement of the details of the letting have not been received in Escanaba.

The dock will be constructed of timber at an approximate cost of $2,500,000. It is planned to have it in operation by May 1, 1925. It will be three feet higher and considerably wider than the present dock, and its capacity will be a great deal larger. Work on it will begin at the end of the ore season, and it is hoped that it can be opened for traffic before the season, next year, gets under way.

The official announcement of the contract letting is expected to be followed within a day or two by actual work on the razing of "No. 3."

How large a crew of men will be put to work and the total number to be employed on the razing and rebuilding operations could not be estimated yesterday. It will depend, to a great extent, upon the contractor's plans. It is certain, however, that the project will provide work for a large crew of workmen throughout the winter.

Aviators Ready For Hop To San Francisco Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—After a day of rest, tonight found the six aviators of the army world flight ready to start tomorrow morning to Crissy Field, San Francisco, they announced.

The three great world cruisers are in fit shape and, weather permitting, the globe-circulators will take off about 10 o'clock in the morning to fly over Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo, Paso Robles, Salinas and San Jose on the third from the last leg of the official flight around the world, terminating in Seattle.

Lieutenant Smith will lead the three planes over territory that he knows so well that he will feel like running around in his own back yard, he said.

Should weather reports tomorrow indicate heavy fog or clouds over the coast range mountains, making flying along the coast route hazardous, the fliers will take the inland route over the Tehachapi pass and up the west side of the San Joaquin Valley, it was announced. They plan to land in San Francisco about 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Roosevelt Backed By Many Delegates for Governorship

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, of the Republican nomination for governor of New York, successfully withstood the attacks of the opposition today. Colonel Roosevelt appeared tonight not only to have held on to his voting strength in the Republican state convention, but it was learned that both Wayne and Genesee counties, which had been behind the candidacy of Guy B. Moore, district attorney of Erie county, had shifted to the Roosevelt column.

Senator James W. Wadsworth was claiming more than 500 votes for the assistant navy secretary on tomorrow's roll call, or more than the majority necessary.

Damages Totalling Million Are Denied

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 24.—Damages totalling $1,000,000 were denied today by Judge V. S. Reifer of the Lake county superior court in 58 suits filed in behalf of victims in the Hagenbeck Wallace Circus wreck near here June 1918, on the Michigan Central in which 70 were killed and 100 others were injured.

FAST FLYER

Major Carl Spatz flew from Selfridge Field to Mt. Clemens, Mich., in 3 hours and 2 minutes. Flying conditions were reported as "only fair." He had been called in for a conference with Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service.

PULITZER RACE SET FOR OCT. 4

Outcome Doubtful Since Pearson's Plane Was Wrecked.

Dayton, O., Sept. 24.—The Pulitzer race, the supreme speed test of the world for airplanes, will be a nip and tuck affair this year with little possibility of determining the outcome in advance. It will be held on the last day of the international air races, Saturday, October 4.

Until the late Lieutenant Alexander Pearson crashed to earth in the Curtis racer he was to have flown in the event, there had been little doubt expressed as to the probable outcome. Pearson was acknowledged to have the speediest ship of any entrant and it was predicted he would "walk away" from the others.

His plane was demolished in the fatal crash, when he was making a test flight and travelling at an estimated speed of 266 miles an hour and the army will make no effort to replace it. It was the same plane in which Lieutenant A. J. Williams, of the army, won last year's Pulitzer race at St. Louis, flying at the rate of 243.68 miles an hour.

Unless a last minute entry is made, three planes will participate in the speed test. Captain Burt Skel of Selfridge Field, Michigan, will fly a Curtiss R-6 racer, as will Lieutenant W. H. Brookley of McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio. The third plane will be a Verville-Sperry racer, the landing gear of which is drawn up under the fuselage as soon as the ship takes off, increasing its speed 35 miles an hour.

Ex-Publisher Will Seek Senatorship

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 24.—Luther Brewer, former publisher of the Cedar Rapids Republican, today announced his candidacy on the independent ticket for the United States senate.

MONTANA FAILS TO FLOCK INTO RADICAL RANKS

Senator Wheeler Fails To Create Any Stir Through State.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Butte, Mont., Sept. 24.—Several surprises are in store for the investigator of things political in Montana.

First, Senator Thomas F. Walsh, Democrat of Teapot Dome fame, has a hard fight for reelection.

Second, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, vice-presidential nominee with LaFollette hasn't created much of a stir in his home state. His selection on the third party ticket has caused resentment among the Democrats because he deserted the party.

Third, President Coolidge has better than an even chance to carry this state by about five to ten thousand plurality.

Just why should a man like Senator Walsh have a hard time winning reelection? This question is a natural one and even Montana veterans in politics cannot explain it. The Ku Klux Klan, which is active, is of course fighting Mr. Walsh. Among his own followers are some who think he should have assailed the Klan at Madison Square Garden convention but the thing that made Senator Walsh famous this year—the teapot dome disclosure—doesn't seem to be talked about. Senator Wheeler's connection with the investigation of Attorney General Daugherty really excited more attention at the time.

Prosperity Arriving. Montana finds herself with an improved agricultural situation which means votes for Coolidge. After a drought of several years, Montana will produce this year fifty million bushels of wheat and the farmers will have for sale actual farm products, exclusive of their own feeding and seeding operations, which may net them about $100,000,000. The yield in the Billings sugar beet district for instance is exceptional. The bean crop is phenomenal, while in most sections of the state the yield of hay, oats and barley is very good.

So, after years of depression, Montana has been lifted to an atmosphere of hope and confidence once more. Under such circumstances there is no passion for a change. The state political situation of course is different. The opposition to the reelection of Governor Joseph Dixon, Republican, is so intense that his defeat would cause no surprise. The Democrats are active in their state fight but the national ticket seems somewhat neglected here. This was McAdoo country. The Democratic national organization appears hardly to be functioning with respect to Montana, nor does it appear that the Democratic national organization has even gotten

WHALEBACK HAS NOT REPORTED SINCE SUNDAY

Owners To Start Search This Morning

Cleveland, Sept. 24.—The whaleback steamer Clifton, formerly the Samuel Mather, bound from Sturgeon Bay to Detroit, with twenty-five on board, is more than fifty hours overdue in Lake Huron, officers of the Progress Steamship Company, of Cleveland, her owners, announced tonight.

Nothing has been heard of the freighter since 10:20 Sunday morning when she passed Cackinaw. Under favorable conditions she should have reached Detroit Monday night, but a 56-mile gale swept Lake Huron from the southwest Sunday, shifted to the northwest and was blowing hard Monday, and many large vessels were 24 to 30 hours late in Lake Huron and lower Lake Superior.

Several vessels which had been requested to look out for the Clifton today reported they found no trace of her. If no word is received from the vessel tomorrow morning a search will be started. The Clifton was loaded with stone and was commanded by Captain Emmett Gallagher, of Chicago. W. J. Orting, of Milwaukee, is chief engineer. She was built in 1892, has a 308-foot keel, 30-foot beam and 24-foot depth. Her capacity is 8500 tons.

TAX REDUCTION TO BE SOUGHT BY PRESIDENT

Less Interference With Business Is Planned

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Coolidge today renewed his pledge for an administration of economy at home and harmony in foreign relations so that taxes might be reduced and peace and prosperity be established.

Speaking before delegates attending the convention of the National Association of Retail Druggists, the president also declared for the policy of less interference by the government in business and urged as a guide in such relations the principle of "service and mutual consideration."

The brief speech was delivered at noon from the south portico of the White House, after Mr. Coolidge had spent a busy morning receiving callers on various missions and attending to other business. This afternoon he completed an address he will make tomorrow night at Philadelphia at exercises celebrating the 150th anniversary of the meeting of the first continental congress.

In connection with his study of the tariff commission report on the sugar duty, the president received an appeal today from A. N. Mathers, representing the Farms Co-operative Beet Growers Association of Nebraska, to retain the present tariff. Mr. Mathers said he represented, in addition to the beet growers, many other industries in the states west of the Mississippi river. Mr. Coolidge is expected to announce a decision soon on this report, in which it is understood a majority of the commission has recommended a reduction in the present rates.

The president today designated Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, to represent him at the Pulitzer Prize races in Dayton, October 3.

COUZENS GETS FULL SUPPORT OF DELEGATES

Senator Is Applauded When He Appears at Convention.

(By The Associated Press.)

Detroit, Sept. 24.—Without a dissenting vote, the Republicans of Michigan, in their state convention here today, officially named the party colors to the mast of Senator James Couzens' campaign and swept the Grosseck state of candidates into nomination.

Secretary of State Charles J. DeLand, Attorney General Andrew H. Dougherty and Auditor General O. B. Fuller were nominated without opposition. Frank D. McKay, of Grand Rapids, the administration choice, was given the nomination for state treasurer unanimously. None of the candidates were opposed when it came to the final showdown. State Senator John W. Smith, of Port Huron, stepped aside to give Deland the undivided support of the convention for secretary of state. Roy Clark, of Berrien county, and John K. Brower, of Big Rapids, waived their claims to the treasurer nomination in favor of McKay.

Couzens Appears. The feature of the assembly was the appearance of Senator Couzens on the platform—his first before a political convention—the tumultuous ovation given by the delegates, and his pugnacious stand, in the few remarks he made. Addressing the convention he declared that he is and always will be a Republican, but insisted that he has the right to think and act for himself and will not be a "rubber stamp" public official. In the midst of his discourse a delegate far in the back of the packed assembly hall shouted:

"Where do you stand, wet or dry?"

The senator squared away in a fighting attitude. "I stand where I have always stood. My position has been explained in speeches and through the press. I will not go into detail on the proposition for it would take all afternoon. To myself I reserve the right to think as I will. But as long as the statutes and the constitution stand as they do I will abide by them."

He was given a rousing ovation. The delegates rose and cheered. The meeting went into another uproar when Governor Grosseck took the platform.

Klan Not Mentioned. The convention, as expected, steered away from any mention of the Ku Klux Klan or religious issues for slight censure. A resolution was adopted declaring that it is the sense of the convention that the primary law should be modified. Governor Grosseck, on the other hand, defended the primary system, as he did in the party's convention last spring. "In no other way," he declared, "could the voters be given such a wide expression of their choice of candidates."

The governor followed Judge Ernest A. Snow, of Saginaw, the keynote speaker, who attacked the primary system and urged a return to the convention plan of selecting nominees. The resolution commended Senator Couzens highly. "We offer to the people as our candidate for United States senator a keen, able business man; a Republican pledged to the principles of our party and an adherent and

EDGE IS GIVEN 62,000 MAJORITY OVER OPPONENT

Four Candidates To Be In Race For This Seat

Newark, N. J., Sept. 24.—With returns from yesterday's primary election almost complete, United States Senator Walter E. Edge tonight had a majority of nearly 62,000 votes over National Committeeman Hamilton F. Kean, his opponent, for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Of the state's 2,559 districts only 47 tonight had failed to report. The available unofficial figures were: Edge, 239,352; Kean, 177,394.

A four-cornered senatorial contest in the state became a certainty for the general election with the nomination of the present senator for senator. Dr. James K. Shields, Republican, former superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League who has publicly differed with Senator Edge on prohibition, entered the race last week as an independent, explaining he would withdraw only in the event of Mr. Kean's nomination.

Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly of Trenton, will be the Democratic opponent while George L. Record of Jersey City, styling himself an "independent progressive" is the fourth candidate.

Honduran Peace Move Breaks Down; New War Is Begun.

(By The Associated Press.)

The government is preparing for an attack on Santa Rosa Copan.

San Salvador, Sept. 24.—Advices received from revolutionary sources in Honduras are to the effect that peace parleys between the government and the revolutionists in that country have broken down. The negotiations are said to have failed because the proposals of the Honduran government to the representatives of General Ferrera, the rebel leader, did not comply with the treaty of Amapala and would not insure a lasting peace.

General Ferrera is reported to have begun an attack on Comayagua.

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 24.—The British diplomatic officials here today denied reports printed in the press of Guatemala and other states of Central America, according to which British Honduras is to revert to Guatemala and the United States would be permitted to establish a naval base in the ceded territory as part payment of the British debt to the United States.

Representative Is Indicted By Jury

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 24.—Representative John Philip Hill, was today indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of manufacturing and unlawfully possessing wine and cider at his home here, and with maintaining a public nuisance thereby.

The indictment which contains six counts, is a result of his avowed efforts during the past two years to obtain a definition of the term "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices." In Section 29 of the Volstead act, Mr. Hill contended that under it, farmers were allowed to make cider with an alcoholic content of more than one half of one per cent, while city dwellers were restricted to beer of just that percentage.

SHANGHAI FIGHTING MARKING TIME AT PRESENT.

(By The Associated Press.)

Tokio, Sept. 25.—A communique issued by Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian leader at war with the central government at Peking, claims that his air forces bombed the enemy's headquarters at Shanhaikwan yesterday morning, destroying a hotel in which the headquarters is located and killing many, according to the Nishi Nishi's Mukden correspondent.

The communique also claims that Manchurian airplanes bombed a train arriving at Shanhaikwan from Peking, wounding several of the passengers. The Hochi's Mukden correspondent says Chang's fifth army, composed of Mongolian troops, drove back the central government's troops near Shanhaikwan on the Chihli-Manchurian border.

A special dispatch to the Keesel news agency from Mukden quotes one of Chang's staff officers as saying that the Manchurian leader has 18 airplanes at the front with over 1,000 bombs, including 400 one-pounders. He claims that hundreds were killed when the train was bombed at Shanhaikwan yesterday, 13 airplanes taking part in the raid.

JERUSALEM IS DESCRIBED BY FRED ERICKSON

Former Escanaba Man Pays Visit to Holy Land.

What is by far the most interesting letter ever written by an Escanaban, describing a visit to any point, is a letter written by Frederick Erickson to his father, Edward Erickson, telling of his visit to Jerusalem. Mr. Erickson has been abroad for several months and the following letter gives eloquent evidence of his ability as a narrator:

Jerusalem, Aug. 5, 1924.
Dear Father—
In my last letter I think I told you some thing of my journey from New York to Jerusalem, and of my reception here by the American Colony. I can scarcely recall that I am in the Holy City—Holy for Christians, Jews and Mohammedans alike. We read so much about Jerusalem in the Bible, and sing so many hymns about it in church, that we tend to read and sing all reality out of it, so that we do not often think of Jerusalem as an honest-to-goodness town with hotels, a railway station and electric lights. I could easily understand the story which one of the ladies here in the colony told me. She was paying a visit to the United States and went into a drug store to buy some candy. The clerk happened to ask her where she came from, and when she answered "Jerusalem," his eyes grew big, and he answered in all seriousness: "Jerusalem? Why that is in Heaven!" and would take no money for the candy.
A Real City
But Jerusalem is a very real city, and what is more, it gives a sense of reality to the Biblical narratives not achieved by any amount of study at home. But the traveler must remain here awhile, and breathe the atmosphere of the place—dig beneath the surface, in order to find this sense of reality. When you first arrive you are distracted by the utter strangeness of everything. The languages, the dress of the people, or I should say, different peoples, for almost every race and religion is represented. You must become accustomed to the odd twisting streets, the intense glare of the sun, the queer stinches that assault your nostrils, the manners of the people and their way of doing business. You must learn to dodge donkeys and camels and automobiles, and avoid jumping into women carrying heavy burdens on their heads—specially jars of water. One of the young men of the colony was thoroughly drenched the other day as the result of such a collision.

When you have been here for a while and can take all this for granted, then you begin to see beyond the externals, and to realize how almost every foot of ground in Jerusalem, and indeed, of all Palestine, calls up memories of the stories in the Old and New Testaments, and of the Crusaders. I have followed the injunction in the 48th Psalm, where it says "walk about Zion, and go round about her; tell the towers thereof. Mark well her bulwarks, consider her palaces." and the wonder of it grows daily.

The Size of Connecticut.
The Holy Land, as you know, between the Mediterranean Sea and the Jordan Valley and includes modern Palestine and most of Syria—a strip of land running generally north and south about two hundred miles long and fifty miles wide or about as large as Connecticut, one of the smallest States in the Union. Yet in this little country is found every variety of soil and climate from the everlasting snows of Lebanon to the eternal tropics of the Jordan valley; from the well watered gardens and forests of Damascus to the barren wildernesses about Jerusalem and the Arabian desert stretching to the east; from the flat plains of the Philistia to the lofty mountains of Judea.

To give you a picture of the lay of the land, we may roughly divide the country into four narrow strips running north and south, beginning with the plain along the Mediterranean Sea. Here lived the Philistines of Bible times. The sea coast to the north of Mount Carmel belonged to the ancient Phoenicians who were great shipbuilders, and friendly with the Israelites during the palmy days of the kingdom. Indeed the King of Tyre greatly assisted King Solomon in the building of the Temple. (I Kings—Ch. V.)

Next to the coastal plain lies the hill country, the battle fields of the Israelites and the Philistines, and between this and the Jordan valley rises a high range of mountains among the peaks of which Jerusalem is perched, over two thousand feet above the Mediterranean. To the east of here mountains the land drops some three thousand four hundred feet to the Jordan valley and the Dead Sea.—The lowest part of the earth's surface not covered with water, about one thousand three hundred feet below sea level—all this within a shorter distance than lies between Escanaba and Marinette; from where I sit writing this in Jerusalem, I can walk to the Mount of Olives (about fifteen minutes) and see the River Jordan and the Dead Sea. Or I can go to the top of the first hill to the west and see the Mediterranean. In fact, from the top of almost any hill in Palestine you can see one or the other. You can well imagine that all this variety of country and climate has had its effect on the people in different parts of the country, and as until recently they have never traveled from one place to another, they have preserved their customs and dress unchanged for hundreds of years. Many villages have a distinctive manner of dressing. Already I can tell a woman from Bethlehem at a glance. Many villagers pass their whole lives knowing nothing of any village or town but their own, and are ready to believe anything that is told them by travelers. The story is told of a hill-country man who journeyed to the coast. Reaching the sea-port late in the day, he rushed down to the water's edge to see the sea before they covered it up for the night!

so that now one can make a journey in a few hours that formerly required many days. There are few railroads here, and where there are no auto roads one must still depend on donkeys or camels. A great deal of merchandise is transported by camels, and as you go along the main high ways you are constantly meeting caravans. Also large flocks of sheep and goats.

Visits Nazareth.
Two weeks ago I had the opportunity to make one of a party going to Nazareth. There were four of us. Miss H., a University of Michigan graduate who lives in Pensacola, and who knows people I know in both cities; Miss A., a Ph. D. from Wellesley; and Mr. B., a Y. M. C. A. secretary from Nashville, Tenn.; and the Mohammedan chauffeur with an unpronounceable Arab name. I called him Nebuchadnezzar for short.

From Jerusalem to Nazareth is about as far as from Escanaba to Marquette, and good road all the way—but with a difference in scenery! We left Jerusalem by the Damascus road that winds among barren hills covered with white stones. I did not know there could be so many stones in the world! There seems to be nothing BUT stones in Palestine, ranging in size from pebbles to boulders. They cover the fields, and the hills of stratified rock and the rough valleys between, worn down by the short lived winter torrents. But now all is dry, and there is no vegetation of any sort, except where the fields are artificially watered from cisterns or springs. You soon learn to judge the country by the amount of water it has—I can more easily understand the importance of every reference to the Bible to water. Here in Jerusalem the water is brought from a great distance and we have to be economical in its use.

A Road of Memories.
We had gone but a short distance along the Damascus road so crowded with memories ever since the days when Abraham went up and down among these hills, when we came to a huge mound of scarcely distinguishable ruins which had once been Nob where David in an emergency ate the show-bread which was lawful only for the priests. (I Sam. Ch. 21). A little further we came to a still bigger pile of ruins on a high hill which had once been Gibeah where The Levite's concubine met such a terrible fate, resulting in a battle in which some sixty-five thousand Israelites were slain (Judges 20 and 21) Here also was the home of Saul (I Sam. 15 or 34) Off to the left rose the mountain of Mizpah where Samuel J. Judged Israel for twenty years. From here it was but a short drive to the hill of Ramah where the prophet Samuel was born (I Sam. 1) and where he is said to be buried. Later this hill and its castle became the dividing line between the two kingdoms (I Kings 15) and witnessed many lively scenes. Now it is a lonely hill surmounted by desolate ruins.

Beroth Recalls History.
About an hour after leaving Jerusalem we came upon the extensive ruins of the city of Beroth which called up memories of the conquest of Canaan by the children of Israel after their escape from Egypt, and the trick whereby the people of Beroth saved their skins (Joshua 10) as this would be the end of a day's journey from Jerusalem by caravan, it is believed that it is here that Jesus was missed by his parents on their return journey to Nazareth, the first time they took Him to Jerusalem after His twelfth birthday.

Next we passed Bethel, a little village on a high hill, housing some four hundred people. Here, as you know, was the scene of Jacob's famous dream (Gen. 28) I half expected that the natives would try to show us the ladder, or at least the stones on which Jacob rested his head. I have been shown so many impossible things that it would not have surprised me in the least. It was in Bethel also that Jeroboam out of jealousy set up a golden calf to prevent the people going to Jerusalem to worship (I Kings 12) and through this village came Elijah and Elisha on the eve of the former's translation (II Kings 2).

Scene of Tabernacle.
A little later we passed Lebanon to the north of Shiloh, where the Tabernacle of Jehovah stood, with the Ark of the Covenant, and here lived the boy Samuel with the prophet Eli.
We were now in the country of Samaria, and soon came to Gerizim, the mount of blessing, and Ebal, the mount of cursing (Deut. 11) two round hills standing close together. At the foot of the former is the tomb of Joseph and Jacob well. The well belongs to the Greek church and is protected by a chapel. A kindly Greek priest led us down a long flight of steps into this chapel (for it must be remembered that all the ancient sites are much below the present level; for where people live together they always collect rubbish, which in the course of centuries sometimes buries whole cities). The well is certainly very ancient, and here, if tradition tell the truth, on these very stones sat Jesus as He talked with the Samaritan woman, as related in the fourth chapter of St. John. The priest drew water that we might drink from the well, and then let down a lighted candle that we might see how deep it is. And it is indeed very deep, and walled in by very ancient masonry.

Hold to Ancient Religion.
Returning to the auto, we passed between the hills of blessing and cursing and so came to the city of Shechem. To recite its history would be to quote many pages of the Bible from the time of Abraham on. Shechem, or rather Nablus as it is called today, is a quaint little town with narrow winding streets full of busy bazaars. Its peculiar interest is that here is situated the synagogue of the Samaritans, who separated themselves from the Jews many centuries ago, and hold tenaciously to their peculiar form of religion. Their hold mountain is not Jerusalem, but Gerizim where they perform their religious sacrifices. (John 4 vs. 20) Today they number only about one hundred and twenty and some fifty were killed during the late war. We climbed up the hill to their synagogue which is no larger than the largest room in our house in Escanaba. These Samaritans are a gentle people, with soft dark eyes, soft voices and quiet manners. They showed us the book of the law—a large roll of manuscript, which they declared in all seriousness was three thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven years old, and was written by the grandson of Aaron!

We returned from the synagogue of the Samaritans to the garage where we found Nebuchadnezzar filling the tank of his trusty Ford on the spot where Rehoboam had been crowned king of Israel, and we were soon on our way northward.

As we traveled from the mountains of Judaea to the lower hills of Samaria, the country became less forbidding in its aspect, and there were more signs of water—trees, an occasional garden and sometimes wild vegetation trying to make headway among the stones. Cultivated fields and green meadows became still more numerous as we neared the plains south of Nazareth.

To tell you of all the historic places through which we passed would be to write a book. Merely to mention a few, there was Sebastia, the ancient capital of Samaria and the Northern Kingdom till it was taken by Sargon in 722 B. C.; we crossed the pleasant plain of Dathan where Joseph was cast into a pit by his brothers and then sold as a slave to the Midianites (yes, they will show you the identical pit); Teln between the hills of Samaria and the extensive plain of Tezeel, where Jesus healed ten lepers; Gilboa, where Saul and Jonathan were slain by the Philistines, and Tezeel where King Ahab had his summer residence, where he captured Naboth's vineyard by foul play, and where his wife met her wretched death. As we passed this ruined city rising above the plain, a verse of that wicked and well known "Sunday School Song" kept ringing through my head:

Oh, Ahab had a lovely wife, her name was Tezebel;
When hanging out some clothes one day from off the roof she fell
"Your wife has gone entirely to the dogs," they told the King;
The King he said he never heard of such a dog-gone thing!
(I Kings 21, vs. 23)

Finally Heach Nazareth.
We passed very near to Shunem, where Elisha raised the widow's son, and Endor where Saul visited a witch who raised the ghost of Samuel. We crossed the great plain of Esdraelon, over which have been fought many battles by the armies of Joshua, of Sisea, of Josiah, of Napoleon, and of General Allenby. From this plain we climbed by a zig-zag road the hills surrounding Nazareth, and descended into the city of the boy-hood home of Jesus.

We received a kindly welcome at the Carz Nova, the hospice kept by the Franciscan order. I cannot say enough in praise of the work which these good priests are doing in the Holy Land. Having refreshed ourselves at the hospice, we visited the sites pointed out as the homes of St. Joseph and the Blessed Virgin. But if any site be convincing, even to the most skeptical, surely it is the Virgins Fountain. This is the only water supply for the whole town, and members of the Holy Family must often have come here for water.

From Jerusalem to Nazareth, no further than from Escanaba to Marquette! Yet where in all the world could you find a drive of eighty miles so replete with interest, except in this wonderland of Palestine.

New York Democrats are to meet in convention at Syracuse today to nominate candidates for governor and other State officers to be voted for in November.

DELTA FARMERS TO JOIN TOUR

Will See Badger Dairy Herds and Visit National Show.
Twenty-five Delta county men will participate in the dairy tour of upper peninsula farmers, which will leave Green Bay Monday morning, and will complete its inspection of the Wisconsin dairy district with its arrival in Milwaukee to attend the National Dairy show. Details of the county's participation in the tour are being worked out by J. E. Turner, county agricultural agent.

The tour through Wisconsin to Milwaukee will take the farmers of the upper peninsula through some of the best dairying country in the United States, and give them the opportunity to inspect some of the best dairy herds in the world.
From Monday until Wednesday the tour will be taken slowly so that frequent stops can be made.
Five Automobiles.
The Delta delegates will travel in five automobiles, carrying from four to six passengers each. Lodging will be unfurnished free to the tourists. Delegates are required to take only blankets and their personal necessities. A large truck has been provided to transport coats and sleeping quarters have been arranged for on the trip.

NEW COMEDY TO BE OFFERED BY "REX" TONIGHT

"Kitty Be Careful" One of the Week's Best

"Kitty, Be Careful," a new and lively comedy drama, will be the Thursday night offering of the Rex Stock company, playing a week's engagement at the Delft theatre. It will be followed, on Friday night, by the feature production of the week, Cyril Maude's "Grumpy." Both are exceptionally clever plays, and should create something of a stir among local theatre fans. In "Wedding Bells," last night, the company again scored heavily, Miss Zana Vaughn, Mr. Sniegrove and their associates, keeping the big audience in a continual gale of laughter throughout the evening. The Rex company is meeting with enthusiastic receptions at each appearance this week, many old admirers of the organization declaring it to be the best Mr. Sniegrove ever has brought to Escanaba.

WHAT IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY?

A question that should develop within the next few months in Delta and Menominee counties is the measure of support that should be accorded by these counties to the Michigan Anti-Tuberculosis Association in the annual sale of Christmas seals. The value of the work being carried out in the state at large by the association is unquestioned, but the responsibility resting upon counties that have erected and are supporting their own tuberculosis sanitariums, is a proper subject for discussion. While Delta and Menominee counties, which own and support by taxation a most successful sanitarium at Powers, may owe something to the state association as a means of aiding other counties, not equipped with sanitariums, to wage a battle against tuberculosis, it can hardly be successfully argued that our measure of support should be equal to that of all other counties.

For many years it has been the custom to arrange an annual campaign for the sale of Christmas seals, one half of the proceeds going to the state anti-tuberculosis association and the remainder expended for purely local anti-tuberculosis work. Delta county will not desire to shirk her legitimate part of the burden of supporting such a laudable work as the Michigan anti-tuberculosis association is doing, but in fairness to the people of a county who are annually spending dollars for a cause where other counties are spending pennies, some credit at least is due such counties as Delta and Menominee in fixing quotas as to the amounts raised and as to the percentage retained by the local organizations for purely Delta county work.

Before the next campaign is launched some thought should be given as to Delta county's actual responsibility to the state-wide cause and the credit that is due this county for the work it is already doing for a cause so thoroughly humanitarian that Delta county does not intend to reckon its cost.

ON THE WANE.

In all probability the present campaign will witness the first evidence of the decline of a radical movement in national affairs that has been making itself felt at Washington for the past several years. Evidence is accumulating that the people of the nation have been pretty well fed up on LaFolletteism and all of the other isms it represents and in November will deliver a rebuke to that element in the nation's population that for years has been seeking to allow class rule to replace sane, majority government. A lot of people will follow what seems a popular cause, but when it comes to actually attacking the fundamental principles of a government that has allowed those governed by it to thrive as have no people before in history, fundamental common sense usually asserts itself.

NO LIQUOR ISSUE IN NOVEMBER.

When the Michigan supreme court denied application for a writ of mandamus directing Secretary of State DeLand to submit the proposed constitutional amendment seeking to make the Michigan constitution conform with the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law, the chance that the wet and dry issue might be injected into the state's November election was removed. And this is well. Michigan is dry under the Constitution of the

EMBARRASSING QUESTIONS.

Clarence was home from college on his mid-year vacation and mother was unpacking his clothing and hanging them in the closet. Taking a coat from his suitcase she found a pawn ticket hanging from one of the buttons. "Clarence, what is this tag on your coat?" "Oh, that's a check, mother; it was at a dance and checked my coat."

Presently mother hauled out a pair of trousers and there also bore a tag. With a rather surprised look she turned to Clarence and asked: "Clarence, my boy, just what sort of a dance was it?" "Belle Hop."

The old doctor wasn't the only one in the village who thought pityingly of Alvira, although others did not express themselves so freely. Alvira was too shy, too reserved for a girl 20 years old, too quiet. Most of the villagers were not unlike Drucilla in many ways, Puritanical, narrow; but the younger generation had almost literally taken the bit in their teeth, and they danced, went to motion pictures, and conducted themselves generally as healthy, happy, normal young people should. But it made Alvira's aloofness more noticeable, an aloofness for which they did not blame her aunt, believing Alvira did not care for pleasure, or she would take it—as the others did—whether Drucilla objected or not. One advantage Alvira had gained from her Spartan upbringing: she was a healthy, beautiful girl, with a complexion of wonderful clearness and fineness, bright eyes, and an easy graceful carriage gained by long walks and her delight in the outdoors. At 20 Alvira could easily have been the belle of the village. Instead she was but a little brown mouse of a girl, who kept away from other young people. Tomorrow—Aunt Drucilla Passes Away. Minneapolis is to be the meeting place today of the annual convention of the National Association of Legal Aid organizations.

ALVIRA TEACHES SCHOOL. Chapter VII. After finishing her course at the normal school, Alvira and her aunt returned to Mentone. Alvira would now teach. But Drucilla was taken ill, her rheumatism made her almost helpless for a time and Alvira was obliged to give up the idea of teaching for that year. To care for the invalid, manage the house, took most of Alvira's time. Drucilla Anderson would not have a hired girl and a woman came in twice a week to clean, wash and iron. A man did the outside work, all else devolved on Alvira. The year passed slowly, one day so like another. Alvira kept up her practice, but gave up her place in the choir, she couldn't leave her aunt alone. Alvira realized, now that she was older, all she owed the stern woman who had been father and mother to her. She was less inclined to rebel at what at times had seemed unfair to her, although she still longed to mingle with other girls, do as they did. But she was busy, and busy people have little time for regretful thoughts. She had her books, her music, and in the summer, her garden. She was not consciously unhappy, ever. Yet neither was she consciously happy. She lived her life as her aunt ordered it, never complaining, seldom objecting. Alvira's friendships with the village girls, never strong ones, gradually died out almost altogether. True they invited her to join their parties, their occasions she took the school, that

BARBLESS HOOKS FAVORED BY MANY SPORTSMEN

U. P. Conservationists Meet Next Month in Iron River.

Iron River, Sept. 24.—Iron River will be host to the semi-annual meeting of the Northern Michigan's Sportmen's association on November 4, when the organization will meet for a discussion of fall and winter business. Local arrangements are in charge of Aaron Kinney, president of the local sportsmen club.

The Iron River meeting will be one of importance because the Association will agree on legislation to be presented before the state's legislature when it convenes in January. Changes will be recommended in the fish and game laws, and action will be taken to send a representative to Lansing during the sessions of the legislature to observe the proceedings with regard to legislative measures which concern sportsmen.

Several matters now under consideration include these of barbed hooks, protection for the black bear, a change in the partridge season, a rod license and a change in the opening of the bass season.

Change in Final Law
At a recent meeting of sportsmen of two lower Michigan counties the members recommended a change in trout laws, suggesting that no trout under 12 inches long be taken from any stream or lake, that the catch per day be limited to 15 fish and that 25 in possession be the limit. The meeting also advised a law limiting the catch of brook to five a day and 20 inches long as a minimum. Motor boats are contrary to sportsmanlike fishing, it was declared.

STORES CLOSE SUNDAY.

Jos. Deloria, long time postmaster of this village scarcely knew how to pass away his time on Sunday last. This was the first occasion when all Garden stores closed down all day on Sunday and Mr. Deloria was heartily in sympathy with the movement to make Sunday a day of rest. For the first time in a period of forty-four years, this office was closed all day on Sunday. But the time hung heavily on his hands. No church services in the morning due to the general quarantine in the village, no movies at night, most everybody keeping very much to himself made it a Sabbath long to be remembered.

EXHIBIT HALL IS MECCA OF FAIR VISITORS

If a prize were awarded for the most interesting booth at the schoolcraft county fair, the judges would have a hard time making their decision.

In the main exhibit hall at the county fair grounds this year are 30 separate booths, representing Manistique and Schoolcraft county business firms and institutions. Numbered among exhibitors are:

The Bowman Chevrolet Co., The Peasins Motor Co., Lundstrom Garage Co., Ekstrom Lumber Co., The People's Store, Manistique Telephone Co., Farm Bureau, County Agent, Waddell Lumber and Supply Co., Hewitt Grocery Co., Public Health nurse, Waters and Stammers, Manistique Dairy Products Co., Gero and Light and Power Co., Gero and Carroll, A. S. Putnam, Manual training department, Gunnarson and Kefauver, Manistique Public Schools (various departments), Boys and Girls' Clubs, The Bullock Ranch, Seneca (S. E. Sutherland, M. R.), Manistique Bank, Vern Haskins Honey Exhibit, Child Welfare, L. Rosenthal, Pioneer Tribune, First National Bank.

Vegetables Are Good.

In addition to these, the main exhibit hall this year contains the finest display of vegetables, and farm produce seen here in some time. The women's department this year is also especially fine, with a wealth of exhibits, both cookery and fancy work.

The school exhibits are varied, more so than ever before, and the work displayed is a revelation of modern teaching methods. The manual training department of the local school also has an exhibit space, prepared under the direction of the manual training teachers, S. B. Carlyon. The auto mechanics department, a popular course, in which 25 boys

COURT CLOSES AFTER A TWO DAYS SESSION

After a brief session of only two days, the September term of Schoolcraft county circuit court came to a close Tuesday afternoon.

Among the most important matters taken up at this session was the dissolution of the Riverside Coal Company of this city, on petition of a majority of the stockholders, and the appointment of John I. Bellaire as receiver of the company. Mr. Bellaire, who was one of the stockholders, will take charge of the concern at once.

Helps The Farmers.

Miniature replicas of model farm buildings, shown in detail, are a feature of the farm booth, prepared by the county agent, T. K. Shane, and Miss Hazel Wickwire, secretary of the farm bureau. The farm buildings are loaned by the Michigan Agricultural College, and are explained by the demonstrator in charge, Mr. Shane, has a corner devoted to dairy rations, with a graphical illustration of two separate combinations. Special stress is also laid on the pure-bred sire movement.

Outside of the school at farm booths, the booths of local merchants are all carefully planned, and made attractive and interesting in enough so that they each hold the attention of the fair visitors for several minutes. The main exhibit hall is a feature of the fair no one can afford to miss.

CANNING CHAMPS TO DEMONSTRATE THIS AFTERNOON

The Schoolcraft county girls' canning club team, winners of first place at Chatham, and second place at the Detroit State Fair, will give demonstrations today at the Schoolcraft county fair.

The demonstrations take place in the Boys and Girls' Club booth at the end of the big exhibit hall beginning at 2:45, and the team that won second in competitions from all over the state will show housewives some pointers in canning. Later in the afternoon, at 3:30, the Boys' Potato Club will present their work on the prevention of potato diseases and care of the crop. Isaac Pawley, Jr., of Gulliver, and Alfred Quinlan, of Thompson, were the two who composed the potato team at the State Fair.

On the championship canning club team are Lillian Anderson and Sophia Cherneski. Miss Ella Anderson, leader of the Manistique Heights canning club, is also assisting in the fair arrangements.

A calf judging contest for the members of the calf club was also a part of the fair activities planned for club members by P. G. Lundin, club leader.

Jack Dempsey Will Be in Town Tonight

Beginning tonight, Jack Dempsey will appear at the Gero theater every other Thursday in a series of eight pictures, "Fight and Win" in which he plays the part of the unbeatable Jack O'Day.

The world's heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, is known everywhere in the world. Since his sensational leap to the championship, when he defeated Jess Willard, he has been the outstanding figure in the world of sports. Held invincible, he has never yet met an opponent who even caused him any apprehension in the ring. Angel Firpo, Tommy Gibbons, Georges Carpentier—all have been beaten by him. Many sports writers claim he is the greatest fighter in the entire history of the ring.

Jack Dempsey was born in Colorado, and as a boy worked his way through grade school and high school. During his high school days he became noted as an amateur fighter, and finally, in Utah, entered the ring professionally. He next went to Oakland, Cal., where he appeared in small bouts, and it was there he was "discovered" by Gerald Beaumont, now the famous author, and then an Oakland sporting editor. No wonder he jumped at the opportunity to star in a series of fight pictures for Universal which were written by Beaumont.

Dempsey, out of the ring, is a big, lovable chap. He idolizes his mother and sister. He loves to play with children and dogs, and though he makes his living fighting, he is as tender as a woman.

The organization is now engaged in a campaign to clean up outstanding unpaid dues, and the committee in charge has collected from a score or more of the club members.

PASTOR RETURNS.

Rev. J. H. Gliddon of Manistique, has returned to this city after attending the 69th annual Detroit conference of the Methodist church.

ISHPEMING IN BIG GAME HERE SATURDAY

The second home game of the football season will be played Saturday afternoon when Ishpeming journeys here to meet the high school squad in what is expected to be a hotly contested battle.

The game is of particular interest because of the fact that Ishpeming staged a real surprise last Saturday and upset all dope predictions by beating Marquette 14 to 0.

This would indicate that Ishpeming must have about as strong a team as the locals had last year. Their score in the Marquette game stood 19 to 0 and Marquette has a good share of its old men back.

With the promise of a peppy game Saturday a good old fashioned crowd of football fans should be out to see it, something which might go a ways toward erasing the poor record made last Saturday when only a handful of boosters were out with the men for the opening game of the season.

The men have been working hard this week and are ready to put their best into the game Saturday and they should have the support of every loyal sport follower in the town.

Gladstone fans have not witnessed a defeat on their home field for over two years," said one old time talking it over yesterday, "and they are perhaps getting overconfident. But there is always a first time and any one of these days may see that time unless the team is given the support it deserves. A team is always ready to do good work if the rest of the town is interested in its doing it."

PEG WEARS SAME CLOTHES IN PICTURE

The quaint dresses, hats and shoes Laurette Taylor wore in enacting the role of Peg in the Metro screen version of J. Hartley Manners' famous play "Peg O' My Heart" which is now at the Community theatre, are the same Miss Taylor wore when she made her debut as "Peg" on the stage.

It was in Los Angeles that "Peg O' My Heart" was first produced about ten years ago. After a successful run in the western city, Miss Taylor and "Peg" came to New York, and captivated the Eastern metropolis, making a record run for continuous performances.

BAND PLANS DISCUSSED; NO ACTION

Discussion of the project to organize and finance a Gladstone band was held to some extent Tuesday night at the Booster club meeting but the small attendance prevented action being taken and another meeting has been called for Tuesday evening, September 30.

It is urged that all officers make it a point to be present at this meeting and also as many members of the association as possible.

The attitude of members of an association which tells them that they can pay a fee once a year and then turn all the work over to the officers is wrong, it was pointed out yesterday, and what Gladstone needs more than their money is their active assistance shown in attendance at meetings to make suggestions as to the line of action to be carried out and to assist in carrying out the work.

Discussion of the band proposition by the few present Tuesday night brought out the information that it may be possible to obtain the services of a Gladstone man, a newcomer here, who has had considerable experience in band work, especially in leading, and who could probably be induced to take charge here if assured of having enough musicians interested to form a good sized organization. He has also had experience in teaching beginners and during the winter could lay the foundation for a band that would be a real credit to the city.

NINTH STREET EXCAVATION IS STARTED

Excavation has been started by Nebel Brothers, contractors, on Ninth street preparatory to the pouring of concrete for the pavement which is being constructed by the state, county and city.

The big concrete mixer which has been in use on Minnesota avenue has been moved to Ninth street and will be placed in operation.

All main portions of the Minnesota avenue pavement have been completed and a small batch mixer will be used for the work remaining on the street intersections.

This assures the completion of the Minnesota avenue work well within the contract time, October 15th, and the finishing of a good share of the Ninth street work before cold weather.

FANNIE HURST THEORY IN LYRIC FILM

Fannie Hurst's startling matrimonial ideas have reached the screen at last.

They are being visualized at the Lyric theatre, where "Daring Youth," presented by B. F. Zeidman and distributed through Principal Pictures, is the feature.

The well-known authoress contented, at the time of her marriage, that too much familiarity caused marriage to lose its romance. As a result she and her husband keep separate establishments with each other over the telephone.

Clarence Dohnt and Arthur Poppy, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William DeKeyser have returned to their home at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
