

HUGE DIRIGIBLE IS NOW "LOS ANGELES"

Highway Finance Will Come Before Legislature

HOLD LICENSE SALE PENDING POSSIBLE ENACTMENT OF NEW LICENSE LAW TO FEBRUARY 1

TAX YIELDING 20 MILLIONS TO BE PROPOSED.

(By The Associated Press.)
Lansing, Mich., Nov. 25.—The state legislature will be asked to turn its attention to highway finance immediately after convening next January 7, and the state will mark time on the sale of automobile license plates, pending the possible enactment of a new license law. The state administrative board today decided to defer the issuance of 1925 plates until February 1, hoping that the legislature will pass an immediate effect highway finance program by that time. Simultaneously Governor Groesbeck revealed that he will ask the assembly to approve a combination weight and gasoline tax which will yield at least $20,000,000 a year.

Governor's Plan Outlined.
The governor's plan of finance comprises a levy of 70 cents per hundred pound on cars, or a graduated weight tax with light cars paying less than heavy cars and trucks paying more than passenger vehicles, and a one or two cent gasoline tax. At 70 cents per hundred the license tax for light cars would be practically the same as now, and would be only more for heavy vehicles. According to figures compiled in the department of state there are about 740,000,000 pounds of automobiles in the state and a 70 cent levy would yield close to $17,000,000. A two cent gasoline tax would net between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000, it is figured. The governor believes that $2,000,000 a year will be sufficient, however, and is of the opinion that either the weight tax or the gasoline tax can be cut or one cent. His plan provides for returning to the counties an amount equal to what they receive under the present horsepower and weight license fee. Half of the license money taken in is apportioned back to the counties, and this amount to about $5,000,000 this year. After paying the counties this amount, the state would have $14,000,000 left for construction, retirement of bonds, rewards and so forth. With the federal aid that is granted, the governor believes this sum will be enough.

Enactment Doubtful.
Whether the legislature will enact a highway finance law in the first two or three weeks of the session is an open question. It is conceded that the same battle lines that disrupted the 1923 session will be present to some extent in the coming assembly. A deadlock on the percentage of money to be raised by weight or gasoline taxes would delay legislation and require further action relative to the issuance of 1925 license plates. Some members are understood to favor a low license fee and a higher gasoline tax. Delegations from Warren and perhaps other industrial centers may attempt to shunt off the gasoline tax completely and put the entire burden on a weight levy. The governor intimated that he will sign either a weight tax or a combination weight and gasoline tax measure, if so drawn that it will return neither an excessive nor an insufficient revenue. His plan is taken as an open plea for harmony.

Secretary of State Charles J. DeLoach today notified all branch offices to hold up the sale of 1925 plates. New cars purchased between January 1 and the time the new plates are put on sale will probably be taken care of with loaned 1924 plates.

CONTESTS WILL BE CARRIED TO NEXT CONGRESS Three Are Certain Thus Far; Other Is Possible

(By The Associated Press.)
Washington, Nov. 25.—The senate of the next congress will be called upon to decide at least three election contests. A fourth will be added to the list unless the present senate disposes of the contest against Senator Mayfield, Democrat, Texas, which has been the subject of investigation for nearly two years.

Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, has informed senators in Washington that he will contest the election of Sam G. Branton, Democrat, who was awarded the election by the official count.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, will be forced to defend his election. Daniel J. Steck, his Democratic opponent having announced plans for bringing a contest. An unusual situation has developed in this contest, as several Republican leaders, including Senator Smoot of Utah, have announced their intention of supporting Steck. Out of a total of more than 1,000,000 votes, Brookhart was declared winner by around 755 ballots. Steck claims he would have won if ballots marked with arrows, placed there by overzealous supporters had not been thrown out.

Friends of Senator Johnson, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, say he will contest the election of his opponent, Representative Schall, Republican. Senator Johnson claims Schall made untrue charges against him during the campaign in violation of Minnesota's corrupt practices act.

TWO DAYS ALL TAKEN TO PICK FORBES JURORS

Pair of Veterans Will Sit on Jury; Are Unchallenged.

(By The Associated Press.)
Chicago, Nov. 25.—The trial of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the veterans' bureau and J. W. Thompson, St. Louis and Chicago contractor, on charges of defrauding the government on veterans' hospitalization contracts, had progressed tonight to the point of opening statements by counsel.

After two days of examination, a jury satisfactory to the defendants and to the government was obtained, the defense challenging but five veniremen and the government two. Relationship to war veterans and opinions on war contracts were searchingly examined, but two world war veterans were accepted as jurors. A third juror had a son killed and another wounded in the war, but was accepted.

Potter To Open.
Ralph F. Potter, special assistant attorney general, will make the opening address for the government when the trial is resumed tomorrow, and Colonel James E. Easby-Smith, Forbes' counsel, and Rudolph Loughlin, Thompson's counsel, will make the opening statements for the defense.

Judge George H. Carpenter indicated today that introduction of testimony probably would be put over until Monday, when court is adjourned tomorrow for Thanksgiving.

The separation, by Judge Carpenter's ruling on the government's motion, of the two charges in the indictment—conspiracy to bribe a federal official, and conspiracy to defraud the government, has changed plans of both the prosecution and defense considerably, it was indicated.

The government chose to try first the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government in the selection of veterans' hospital sites and the awarding of contracts for the construction of those hospitals.

Counsel for Thompson today questioned the jurors about union labor sympathies, and their views on the fairness of war time and post-war cost-plus contracts. Two jurors proved to have been affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America, but were accepted.

Defense Move Known.
On the fraud charge, it was indicated by the defense, the wife and mother-in-law of Elias H. Mortimer, of Philadelphia, one of the government's principal witnesses, will be called by the defense. Mrs. Caroline Votaw, sister of the late President Harding, also may be called by the defense, if the government does not summon her as a witness, it was understood. Mrs. Votaw was connected with the rehabilitation work in the veterans' bureau while Forbes was director.

The jurors selected to try Forbes and Thompson are: Michael Finn, South Pullman, Ill., miner.
William P. Randall, Brookfield, Ill., salesman.
C. P. Fattland, Sheridan, Ill., farmer.
George L. Hay, DeKalb, Ill., justice of the peace.
Frank W. Hadlock, Elgin, Ill., retired business man.
Ernest A. Clark, Chicago, electrical contractor, a captain in the world war.
Theodore Babcox, Waukegan, Ill., engineer.
Herbert K. Saul, Chicago, salesman.
John B. Schofield, Millbrook, Ill., farmer.
Howard H. Thomas, Solon Mills, Ill., road contractor, world war veteran.
O. Dana Richardson, Elgin, Ill., insurance man.
Morris Kelley, Batavia, Ill., retired.

TAILOR'S LABEL BRINGS ARREST OF LEO KORETZ

Nova Scotia Bank Official Sent for Police

(By The Associated Press.)
Halifax, Nov. 25.—Accident and a taste for good clothes led to the arrest of Leo Koretz, after he had for almost a year successfully evaded arrest for Chicago land swindles said to total more than $2,000,000.

Horace A. Fleming, secretary of the board of directors of the Bank of Nova Scotia, admitted today that it was through information sent by him to the Chicago authorities that Koretz had been apprehended. The tell-tale clue that brought Nova Scotia's "eccentric retired millionaire" of the past year to justice was a label in a coat made by a Chicago tailor.

Koretz, known here as Lou Keyte, a cultured gentleman who devoted his life to gratifying a hobby for rare books and the up-building of a fine estate he had purchased near Halifax, ordered a new suit of F. J. Hiltz, Halifax tailor, two weeks ago. Hiltz previously had made three suits of silk, fur trimmed for his client, who had expressed himself quite pleased with them, despite the cost of $150 a suit.

The cultured Mr. Keyte explained that he was particular as to the cut of his suit. He couldn't explain just what he wanted, but he could show Hiltz, he said, producing an old suit.
"Copy that suit," he said, as he left, "and then renovate 'the old one.' It'll do for lolling about in."

Hiltz noticed that the label had been cut from the coat's inside pocket, but in renovating the garment came upon another label in the lining. It bore the name of "Leo Koretz" over the signature of an exclusive Chicago tailor.

Fleming, another customer, happened into the shop about that time, and Hiltz began to discuss the "eccentric retired millionaire," showing the banker the hidden label.

Fleming, knowing that his bank had given "Keyte" high endorsement, communicated the peculiar find to the Chicago authorities last week and Assistant State's Attorney Sbarbaro and McSwiggan immediately came here to arrest the "eccentric millionaire," who is said to have confessed and who now is awaiting extradition.

The jury was out six hours and took a total of 15 ballots. Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger, of Milwaukee, presiding in the trial, will pass sentence on the men tomorrow. ### AMENDMENTS OF IMPORTANCE TO BE BROUGHT UP

Bankruptcy Laws Will Be Perfected by Supreme Court.

(By The Associated Press.)
Washington, Nov. 25.—Important amendments to the bankruptcy and equity rules of the federal courts throughout the country to meet abuses which have developed recently especially in bankruptcy proceedings, are expected to come from the supreme court, on the basis of recommendations by the judicial conference of senior circuit judges in session here, which has found the subject one of the most pressing of those demanding its attention.

Chief Justice Taft, ex chairman of the conference, today transmitted to the supreme court the recommendations of the conference which were adopted after full consultation with every circuit and district judge, committees representing the American Bar and the National Credit Men's Association and with representatives of both organizations. The court, which has complete authority to act in the matter, has taken the proposals under consideration and is expected to announce its conclusions without delay.

Change Is Outlined.
One of the proposed changes to the bankruptcy rules would add to general order V a provision requiring petitioners in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings whose claims rest upon an assignment or transfer from some other person, to annex to one of the petitions filed all instruments of assignment and transfer and an affidavit stating the consideration paid for the assignment of the claims, declaring that the persons making the affidavit is the legal owner and entitled to all the benefits, and that the claims were not purchased for the purpose of instituting a bankruptcy proceedings upon them.

An amendment to general order XIII of the bankruptcy rules would provide that a receiver or marshal appointed by the court under the bankruptcy act to take possession of the assets of a bankrupt prior to the appointment or election of a trustee, shall be deemed to be a mere custodian within the meaning of section 48 of the act, unless his duties and compensation are specifically extended by order of court upon proper cause shown.

Must Tell Agreements.
Another new general order would provide that before entering an order confirming a settlement the court shall require all persons who may have waived dividends or fees to set forth in writing and under oath all agreements made by respect to them, whether with the bankrupt, his attorney, or any other person, and also would require an affidavit by the bankrupt that he has not directly or indirectly paid or promised any consideration to any attorney, trustee, receiver, creditor, or other persons in connection with the proceedings except those set forth in the affidavit.

GOMPERS AGAIN NAMED AS HEAD OF FEDERATION

Service To Labor Movement Is Main Aim

(By The Associated Press.)
El Paso, Texas, Nov. 25.—Samuel Gompers, completing 61 years of service in the American labor movement, today was unanimously re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor, a post he has held every year but one since the organization of the federation in 1881.

Closing in his 74th year the 44th annual convention of the organization, which the daring nights of his boyhood imagination conceived more than a decade before the federation came into being, Mr. Gompers, militant, erect, looking to the future, dedicated himself anew to the prosecution of his work.

"I have but one ambition," he said to the convention. "I want only to be of service in whatever way I can to the progress and advancement of the American labor movement."

"Oppose Pay Cuts."
He paused an instant, and when he resumed, he spoke not as the "grand old man of labor," honored and acclaimed by his co-workers, but as the vigorous fighting leader of the American Federation of Labor, again ready for the fray.

"There is just this one thing that I want to impress upon this convention before we adjourn," he said, "and through you I hope to impress it upon all who work with us in the American movement.

"Come what may in industry, American wage earners will resist to the end any effort to reduce wages.

"The attitude of the American Federation of Labor is that any industry which will not support its workers on the level of American standards of life had best get out of the business."

He paused again.
"In accordance with the vote of the delegates, I now declare the 44th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor adjourned sine die."

Re-elected with Mr. Gompers were eight vice presidents, the secretary and treasurer all unanimously.

Morrison Old in Office.

WEATHER IS PERFECT FOR OCCASION; MANY OUT.

(By The Associated Press.)
Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 25.—Successfully completing her first flight since the epoch-making trans-Atlantic journey which brought her from Germany, the land of her construction, the newly-christened naval dirigible Los Angeles tonight proudly took her place in the big hangar along side the sister ship, Shenandoah, as an American craft.

The ship was sighted at 7:33 but did not come to earth until 9:12 because of unfavorable winds. At 9:35 the ground crew had hauled the ship into the hangar.

Commander J. J. Klein, Jr., of the new dirigible, said it was a very enjoyable trip and without unusual incident, save for the breaking of a rope during the process of landing the bulk of Bolling Field, Washington, previous to the christening ceremonies.

Washington, Nov. 25.—A vast gray bulk, roaring northward through the darkness, the United States airliner Los Angeles sped tonight to take her appointed station as a commissioned ship of the navy, but none the less a ship of peace.

Somewhere ahead of her in the blackness fled a half score of homing pigeons, carrying to the Lakehurst station that will full pomp and ceremony the name of the California city had been bestowed upon the ship, by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the nation's president. With that act the designation ZR-3 she has carried so long passed off the navy's rolls, the name, Los Angeles, signifying the peaceful mission she has been assigned by international agreement, blossoming in its place.

Day Near Perfect.
It was almost a perfect day for the christening. The air grew came nosing out of the blue-gray haze to the northward just before one o'clock, the sun had broken through the banking clouds of the morning and sweeping the sky clear moment by moment. The trip south from Lakehurst was made swiftly and the ZR-3 as she throbbed still was, found herself with more than two hours of aerial loafing to do before she came down at Naval Air Station at Anacostia, since the President and Mrs. Coolidge were not due to arrive before 2:45 p. m.

The ship came on toward the station, dipping for a close look as she passed. Only two of her five motors were running and they were turning lazily to keep her moving. Below, the ground crew was ranked on the field, but there was no more than a handful then of the thousands who later fought their way out from the city to witness her landing.

Washingtonians Gape.
Swinging slowly westward, the windows of her cabins and control car crowded with peering faces, the airship began a leisurely turn about Washington. In the streets below there was a craning of necks and eager shouts of "there she is, as the distant hum of her motors carried down news of her passage.

Up past the great dome of the capitol the ship sauntered, dipping and rising as though in friendly salute to the figure of Freedom that towers above the stately structure. Oh again over the White House and the Washington Monument, dipping and rising, the ship plowed along through a bath of golden sunlight softened by the autumn haze.

The distant roar of guns at the navy yard, across the narrow river branch from the air station, told the President and Mrs. Coolidge were coming by barge. The word went crackling by radio to Commander J. H. Klein, the skipper of the airship who had brought her down from Lakehurst on her maiden voyage under American command for the christening.

Thousands Attend.
Meanwhile, the President and Mrs. Coolidge had taken places in

TRADING SLACK; HIGHER PRICES RULE GENERALLY

U. S. Steel Common Leads Final Spurt

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Nov. 25.—The pace of trading in stocks gave signs of slackening today but the market was galvanized into a fresh burst of activity just before the close when U. S. Steel common led a brisk rally in leading industrial and railroad shares. Price averages of both groups eclipsed their previous 1924 high records, with the general average of all stocks going to the highest levels in years.

Total sales fell slightly below two million shares.
Fifty new high records were established during the day's trading. Heavy selling of American Can, which followed official denials that a stock dividend was under consideration, at one time caused general liquidation. These reactionary tendencies were overcome by the heavy flow of buying orders which poured into the market in the last hour.

Good demonstrations of group strength were given by the food and leather issues. Among the issues which bettered their previous high prices were Austin-Nichols common and preferred and Central Leather common and preferred to scale new peaks.

Commodity prices were lower. Wheat broke 2-1/8 to 3-1/4 a bushel as exporters began to re-eel previous purchases and new Argentine wheat was offered abroad at concessions from prevailing prices here. Favorable weather contributed to a decline of 13-3 to 23-4 cents a bushel in corn prices. A decline of 1-4 to 1-2 cent a pound in cotton was attributed to speculative selling.

No Developments Are Reported in Sheatsley Case

(By The Associated Press.)

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—Investigators seeking a solution of the Bexley furnace mystery tonight awaited a report from Chemist C. F. Long and Dr. H. M. Brandage, a pathologist, which is expected to show whether or not brownish crimson stains discovered yesterday on a number of articles in the Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church parsonage, where the practically cremated body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 50, was found in the furnace, November 17, are splashes of human blood.

Prosecutor King announced that the report would not be available before tomorrow. The Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of the victim, at Paris, O., where he and his four children are visiting relatives, announced that the stains were "probably rabbit blood," he explained that he shot four rabbits two days before the tragedy and that they were dressed in the parsonage basement.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his children, Milton 20, Clarence 16, Elizabeth 14, and Alice 10, are expected to return here tomorrow. Mr. King and Detective Harry Carson today went to Lithopolis where they interviewed Mrs. Gladys Redelfs, who the prosecutor believes was the last friend of the family to see the victim alive. Mrs. Redelfs is the wife of the pastor of the Lutheran Church at Lithopolis, 18 miles southeast of Columbus.

She told investigators, they said, that Mrs. Sheatsley appeared to be in a normal state of mind the day of her visit. Two weeks previous she had visited the home and had sold Mrs. Sheatsley some Christmas cards. Her last visit was for the purpose of delivering them.

Charlie Chaplin Marries Leading Lady in Mexico

(By The Associated Press.)

Mexico City, Nov. 25.—At 5 o'clock this morning, in the little town of Empalme, near Guaymas, on the Gulf of California, Charlie Chaplin was married to Lita Grey, his leading lady, by Civil Justice Antonio Haro, according to dispatches received here from Guaymas.

Immediately after the ceremony, the newly married couple returned to Guaymas, reaching there at 7 o'clock. The wedding party had breakfast at the Hotel Albin and afterwards went to their suite of rooms, which had been reserved in the hotel.

The witnesses at the marriage in Empalme today were the same as those who appeared with the couple there October 14, when they secured a marriage license, but were unable to have the ceremony performed because of legal technicalities.

During his trip from the United States to Mexico, Chaplin is said to have refused to make any statement to special American newspaper correspondents or local newspaper men, and the bride and a member of her family and their companies were equally reticent.

Washington Sent Down by Gunfire from Battleship

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 25.—The hull of the uncompleted battleship Washington was sent to the bottom today by gunfire from the battleship Texas off the Virginia capes, says a brief official report received at the navy department from Rear Admiral C. F. Hughes, president of the special navy board which conducted various tests against the hull during the week preceding the sinking.

No details as to the nature of the fire directed by the Texas at the Washington's hull was contained in the official report. According to the pre-arranged schedule of tests, however, use of the 14-inch guns of the battleship Texas against the hull was to be made the permit observation of the results of high-angle fire against the protective-deck construction of the doomed hull. Since the program did not call for salvo fire at short range against the broadside armor of the hull, it was assumed in the absence of details the decks of the Washington had proved effective and sent her to the bottom.

Detroit, Nov. 25.—Testimony before the one-man grand jury to investigate charges of irregularities involving large sums of money in several of the city departments, will not be presented before Friday, Paul W. Voorheis, prosecuting attorney, announced today. Investigators of the city are completing their inquiry into the records of the various departments said to be involved in the irregularities. Mayor John W. Smith announced the mayor added that numerous written and oral complaints received by him reaching numerous departments will be presented to the grand jury.

Meanwhile it was intimated precautions will be taken to keep information secured secret until placed before the grand jury. The investigation was initiated following the admission of John J. Knight, former superintendent of the street cleaning department, that authorization was given by him for payment to a draying company for delivery of cinders to the city, which were never received. Investigation of this department will be taken before the jury first, Mayor Smith said.

Alleged Robber Is Arraigned; Stands Mute; Bail Heavy

(By The Associated Press.)

Detroit, Nov. 25.—Charged with complicity in the $29,000 robbery last May of the West End branch of the Bank of Detroit, Stanley Podalski, alias Caldwell, stands mute when arraigned in Judge Cotter's court here today. His bond was fixed at $35,000 and examination set for December 1.

Podalski was brought here from Chicago where he was arrested recently with several others, after police of that city had been forced to resort to a tear gas bombardment to effect the capture. At that time he was suspected of participating in the invasion of a West Elizabeth St., "blind pig" here last August, when Frank Hage, members of the local detective force, was killed. Witnesses sent to Chicago failed to identify Podalski as a member of the "hi-jacking" party, but employees of the Bank of Detroit positively identified him as one of two men who robbed the branch bank.

Egypt Situation Is Quiet; British Are Well Prepared

(By The Associated Press.)

London, Nov. 25.—All reports from Egypt today agree that the population is quiet and Cairo is calm. It is the calm which precedes the storm there are innumerable indications that the British are prepared. Several British warships are proceeding to Egyptian waters and troops are being sent to strategic stations in that country; an entire battalion is being moved across the Mediterranean from Malta.

The press of Great Britain is for the most part supporting the government's every demand upon the Egyptians and all action which has been taken in Egypt by the government. Some of the Liberal papers appear to be of the opinion that the demands are a bit too strong and suggest that the league of nations ought to be put to work on the situation.

Paris, Nov. 25.—The chamber of deputies today gave the government a vote of confidence, 318 to 196, on an interpellation by Deputy Pierre Taittinger regarding incidents which occurred during the march across Paris by communists at the Jares ceremonies Sunday.

The interpellation brought about a violent scene in the house, and after a lengthy debate Premier Herriot declared that an adverse vote would mean that the house had lost confidence in the government.

M. Taittinger denounced Sunday's progress as a "revolutionary saturnalia." He said that General Nollet, minister of war, had been compelled to flee in order to escape the revolutionary manifestation, and that passersby were forced to salute the red flag. When he declared that the danger had been increased by the presence of the international underworld, the extreme left called loudly upon him to speak of the international underworld and Billiet's cheques.

This was a reference to Senator Billiet, who, as president of the Association of Economic Interests, is accused by the left of handling a heavy election fund in the recent election. M. Taittinger immediately charged the members of the present government with receiving money from the association, and responding to pressing cries for names, said that a certain list of the Rhone department, in which M. Herriot's name appeared, had received a subvention from this association.

Premier Herriot explained that this incident had to do with the 1919 elections, not 1924, as the deputy wished it to appear.

Cries for further names prevented M. Taittinger from proceeding with his speech, but the deputy declared that he would give names only before a commission of inquiry. He became so exasperated that amid the clamor for names, the slamming of desk lids and the brandishing of fists, M. Taittinger left the speaker's stand.

The Chelsea plant was leased by the state several months ago for three years at $75,000 a year, with an agreement that the state may purchase at any time and apply all rent paid on the purchase price. Prison labor is employed in making the cement.

Auto Salesman Is Jailed for Forgery

(By The Associated Press.)

Owosso, Mich., Nov. 25.—Charles Ellerbrock, 22 years old, automobile salesman of this city, was sentenced to from three to five years in the Michigan state reformatory at Ionia today for forgery, with recommendation that he be transferred at once to the state hospital for the criminal insane.

Ellerbrock was arrested in Lumberton, N. C., where surgeons declared they found evidence of an old fracture of the skull, and advised an operation to relieve pressure on the brain, which they considered responsible for his criminal tendencies. Ellerbrock, upon his return here, agreed to submit to an operation.

Failure of local physicians aided by the X-ray, as well as experts at the University of Michigan hospital, failed to find trace of the fracture, resulted in the prison sentence.

Steger Given First "M" Certificate

YOST TALKS AT ANNUAL DINNER

(By The Associated Press.)
Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 25.—Herbert Steger, prominent member of the 1924 Michigan football squad, tonight received the first certificate of the right to wear the Michigan "M." Robert Brown, of Ypsilanti, who was today elected captain of the 1925 team, received the second certificate, and other members of the team who were awarded the letter, received their certificates in alphabetical order.

(The certificates show that the holder is entitled to wear the University letter. This is the first year such certificates have been presented. The presentation was made at a football banquet given in co-operation with the business men of the city, at which men students of the University as well as athletes were invited.)

Presented by Wymen.
The certificates were presented by Professor E. E. Wymen, line coach, who told the football men that the Michigan letter was "won by few but respected by all."

Coach Fielding Yost, said in a talk to those present at the dinner, that the attempt to evade strength in the making of a football schedule was a confession of weakness. He called attention to the fact that Michigan competes against other universities in nine other sports and it would be comparatively easy for the school to hold its own but that Michigan wanted to be considerably better than the other schools.

He asserted that the "will to win" has given Michigan a remarkable record in the past and insures continued success in the future.

Praises Little, field coach, told the team and the guests that a comeback like the one the 1924 team made following the Illinois defeat was worth more than a dozen paper championships.

"I am prouder of this squad than any other I have coached," Little commented. "By this I do not mean that any of you gave more than Kipke, with all of his ability, but that you were able to do more than other players of equal ability might do. You played the hardest schedule any Michigan team ever had and you won a distinct achievement."

Professor Ralph H. Aigler, chairman of the board of control of athletics, spoke on the benefits of football to the spectators. He said the game was worth while because of the lessons and inspirations given the vast throngs that witnessed the contest.

Rickard Will Not Broadcast Fights; Attendance Is Cut

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Nov. 25.—Radio broadcasting of boxing bouts is at an end as far as Tex Rickard is concerned, it was learned at Madison Square Garden today. The reason given by one close to the New York promoter is that use of the radio keeps down attendance at bouts.

Garden officials said that the radio listener has been satisfied with a blow by blow story as broadcast and therefore has not contributed his financial share to the sport of the sport.

Whether the attendance at the Willis-Pirpo bout in Jersey City last summer when only 40,000 of an anticipated 75,000 appeared, had influenced the reported decision, the informant would not say.

Rickard is said to have lost $5,000 on the Boyle's Thirty Acres combat, but at the time the lack of interest was laid to Pirpo's legal deficiencies rather than the presence of the radio.

Football fans this fall have thronged American stadiums to greater numbers than ever and at great importance contest the radio has told its story.

Battle Creek Man Is Arrested; Last of Hi-Jacker Gang

(By The Associated Press.)
Chicago, Nov. 25.—Harry Wade Hill, 26, of Battle Creek, Michigan, believed to be the last of a ring of Michigan hi-jackers responsible for two murders and several liquor robberies, was arrested tonight by Fred H. Hessler, inspector in charge of the Michigan State Police, and his assistant, Stanley Ferguson.

Melvin Brown, Homer Noels and Leo Sauerman are now serving life sentences for the murder of Alex Dombroski, of Detroit, who refused to admit them when they sought entrance to his house in the guise of prohibition agents.

At their trial the name of Harry Hill was mentioned, but the authorities could find no trace of him and so believed that the trio had attempted to shift the blame upon a mythical person conceived by themselves. Liquor robberies and the murder of Dombroski's widow, the only witness to the first killing, followed and in the trials and inquiries that ensued Hill's name was again mentioned. He was traced to Chicago and located several days ago. Tonight Inspector Hessler found him in a Y. M. C. A., building where he had been receiving mail.

Detroit, Nov. 25.—The arrest in Chicago of Harry Hill may serve to re-open the case of Leo Sauerman, who is now serving a life sentence in Marquette prison for complicity in the slaying here of Alex Dombroski. Sauerman was convicted on identification by Mrs. Dombroski, as one of the trio who killed Dombroski. Melvin Brown and Homer Noels, alleged accomplices, testified that Sauerman was not a member of the party.

The state held that Harry Hill, named by Brown and Noels as the third member of the group was a mythical person. Friends and relatives of Sauerman tried several times, without success to get the case reopened but failed largely because they were unable to produce Hill.

Parillo Permitted To Collect Reward

(By The Associated Press.)
Montreal, Nov. 25.—Adam Parillo, one of the men arrested for the holdup of the collection car of the Bank of Hochelaga last April, when the chauffeur, Henri Cleroux, was killed, today received his reward for having turned state's evidence.

He was permitted to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter, rather than first degree murder. Crown Prosecutor R. L. Calder, told the court that Parillo's evidence had aided materially in the conviction of three of the four men recently hanged for participation in the robbery and murder. Sentence was deferred.

Suit Is Filed To Shut Lansing Plant

(By The Associated Press.)
Lansing, Mich., Nov. 25.—Eaton county has started suit to restrain the city of Lansing from operating its municipal pigery and garbage disposal plant there, according to notice received by the mayor today. Eaton county residents object to the presence of the plant and demand a permanent injunction. The city will fight the case.

CAGE CODE IS ALTERED SOME

Uniformity of Interpretation Object of Rules Makers.

To assure greater uniformity in interpretation and to eliminate wholesale fouling, the joint basketball rules committee has made a number of minor changes in the basketball playing code for the ensuing season. While the changes will not materially affect the style of the amateur game as now played, they will tend to clarify the code by shifting the burden of the defense, thereby giving officials a tangible basis for a decision instead of making technical violations a matter of judgment.

The most important change from the players' point of view makes guarding from the rear, where there is resultant contact, a personal foul. This makes the rule more binding, and decisions become mandatory instead of arbitrary. Last year guarding from the rear was not personal foul unless, in the opinion of the official, there was holding, blocking or any other foul enumerated in the rules. This year, guarding from the rear becomes a personal foul as soon as there is personal contact between the two players which gives the official something tangible to work on.

Changes Summarized.
Other changes in the 1924 basketball code can be summarized as follows:
The rule pertaining to running with the ball was clarified by specifying that the ball must leave a player's hand before the pivot foot leaves the floor.
The jumping rule which compels a player to have his hand behind his back while jumping was modified so that in the event the offending team gets possession of the ball after the violation play shall continue without interruption, but in the event the team making the violation gets possession the infraction gets possession the infraction gets possession the infraction gets possession.

Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois Realizes Football Victories are Won on Merit, yet he is the most superstitious individual in all the world.

The number of "Red" Grange is 77. Zuppke is well aware that in African golf, 7 is a potent number. He has supplied Grange with two of them.

Last season Illinois tied with Michigan for the Big Ten title. This year Zuppke insisted every man wear the same numerals as last season.

They do say that Mrs. Zuppke once made a trip to Minneapolis for the Minnesota game. Illinois was soundly trounced. Mrs. Zuppke makes no more trips to the Minnesota game.

Mother Won Him Over.
Incidentally Mrs. Zuppke must occupy the same seat at all the games played in the Illinois stadium.

The story goes that a number of years back a certain student who didn't have one chance in a thousand came out for the football team.

Just about the time Zuppke was about to tell the young man he was better qualified for some other sport, he received a letter from the boy's mother, telling him of her great pride in having a son fighting for Illinois and that she constantly prayed for the team's success.

Is Strict Disciplinarian.
Zuppke is a strict disciplinarian. He doesn't feel that sympathy and sentiment have a place in football, yet the mother interest won him over.

For three years he carried the young man on the squad and gave him a number of chances to break into the lineup in games that were clinched.

"Just didn't have the heart to fire the young man from the squad after I got that letter from his mother," explained Zuppke.

"And what's more I didn't want her to stop praying for Illinois."

So after all, mother interest can get under the toughest hide of a major college coach, who is up against so many problems that he becomes more or less hard boiled in his viewpoint.

Once upon a time Illinois rooters, at a certain away-from-home game, decided to change their cheering section.

Shifted Cheering Sections.
Several previous visits of Illinois to that city had resulted in victories. Zuppke was wild when he learned the student body had changed sections.

Since victory means much more than advantageous seats, the tickets which had been distributed were collected, sent back and the old lucky section reserved.

Illinois won the game and of course Zuppke sprang the "I-told-you-so" stuff.

Bob Zuppke is one of the greatest coaches of all time. He has turned out many remarkable teams. Under him Illinois has attained world-wide gridiron prestige.

Zuppke realizes games are won on merit but he continues to be superstitious.

THREE COUNTS FILED AGAINST GOTHAM PAPER

(By The Associated Press.)
New York, Nov. 25.—On three counts charging "unlawful" publication of tax returns, the New York Tribune Company, publishers of The Herald-Tribune, was indicted by a federal grand jury today.

In a court presided over by Federal Judge J. Stanley Webster of Washington, the indictment was obtained by John E. Joyce, assistant United States district attorney, at the request of Attorney General Stone. No individuals were named in the suit.

Mr. Joyce said the proceeding was brought solely to test the legality of the publication of income tax returns, which he said occurred on October 25. Individuals whose names were cited were not complainants, said Mr. Joyce. Their names were selected at random from general lists the Herald-Tribune published. An early trial was promised the publishers.

Refrained Oct. 24.
The Herald-Tribune refrained from printing tax lists on the morning of October 24, after the treasury department's order that lists be made available to public inspection. Other local papers carried long lists of names and taxes paid but the Herald-Tribune had only a news story which included a statement, saying in part:
"In obedience to the law the Herald-Tribune is refraining from printing the lists."
The next day, however, this paper began publishing the lists, accompanied by another statement, which said, in part:
"The Herald-Tribune yesterday omitted the income tax figures from its news columns in the conviction that they should be made public and in compliance with the ruling of the treasury department."
"The facts, which never should have been made known, have become general news of immediate importance. The Herald-Tribune recognized that the treasury ruling had become ineffective. It therefore, prints today the figures made public with the collectors in internal revenue without vouching for their accuracy."

Gloves Don't Fit; Fight Called Off

(By The Associated Press.)
Dayton, O., Nov. 25.—Romero Rojas and Mike Conroy, scheduled for a 12-round fight here tonight, failed to cross mitts when Conroy claimed he could not get gloves to fit his hands. Rojas was ready for the fight but the bout was called off by the Montgomery County Boxing commission after a delay of an hour while Conroy tried on various sets of gloves.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.—Two new opponents, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and William and Mary College, appear on the Harvard football schedule for 1925, made public today by the Harvard Athletic Association subject to the formal approval of the athletic committee.

The schedule follows, games to be played at the stadium unless otherwise indicated:
October 3, Rensselaer; October 10, Middlebury; 17, Holy Cross; 24, Dartmouth; 31, William and Mary; November 7, Princeton at Princeton; 14th, Brown at Providence; 21, Yale.

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 25.—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, who was injured near here late yesterday when his automobile overturned, was reported improved at a local hospital today. Johnson suffered severe lacerations about the head and body.

New Proposition Is Made Johnson in Baseball Deal

(By The Associated Press.)
Reno, Nov. 25.—A tentative proposition whereby Walter Johnson, Washington pitching ace, may become playing manager and part owner of the Oakland Coast League baseball team was discussed here tonight when Johnson and Cal Ewing and Del Howard, owners of the Oakland Club, met for a few minutes between trains. Johnson said that Ewing and Howard were going to Washington to confer with Clarke Griffith, Washington owner, before making a definite proposal.

ZUPPKE ALWAYS SUPERSTITIOUS

of their own initiative desire to return to private life or elective offices. Both Mr. Weeks and Mr. New are former members of the United States Senate. Mr. Weeks was caught in the maelstrom of local politics in Massachusetts in 1918 after a good legislative record in the senate here. Mr. New was the victim of a division in his own party in Indiana when he lost to Beveridge in the primaries, and then Beveridge was in turn beaten by Ralston, democrat. Factional quarrels played a part in the final result.

Summarizing the entire cabinet situation, therefore, the chances of change would seem to narrow down to four portfolios—war department, labor, interior, post-office, and of these labor and interior are the only ones in which there has been an indication that the incumbents are anxious to return to private life. The cabinet of President Coolidge on the whole undergo little change for another year at least.

FOUR CABINET MEMBERS WANT TO QUIT JOBS

Coolidge May Persuade All of Present "Family" to Stay.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1924, by the Escanaba Press.)
Washington, Nov. 24.—Although the election is three weeks old, enough has happened to indicate that very few changes will be made in the cabinet of President Coolidge on the fourth of March and that the re-organization of the official family will take place in the interim after congress has adjourned.

There is at the moment no certainty that there will be a single vacancy. Even James J. Davis, secretary of labor, may stay. In announcing the fact that Mr. Davis had volunteered his resignation, the president was careful to indicate that he still hoped to prevail on Mr. Davis to remain. There are certain circumstances under which he may be prevailed upon. The job of selecting a secretary of labor is no easy one and as a rule stirs up all sorts of factional difficulties the best solution of which may prove in this case the retention of the incumbent. Mr. Davis' relationship, however, to the fraternal order of the Moose of which he is the virtual head may require his return to private life.

CHICAGO BUTTER.
Chicago, Nov. 25.—Prices advanced sharply in the butter market today with trading quiet. Stocks of butter on the street were slightly heavier and buyers did not appear as willing to pay premiums on during the next few days. The central lead car market was firm with trading light.

Puddings—Hot and Cold

One doesn't mind staying a little longer in the kitchen to prepare some special dish these days while the weather is cool and we have had a rest from the kitchen during the warm summer days. In fact, unless the heat is on in your home, you would just a little prefer to have your oven going while you are preparing your meals.

Your children are, without doubt, just like all others—simply starved when they come in from school. Are you really successful in keeping them from spilling their dinners by eating a lot of sweets? Fruits are so much better to stay that appetite without entirely removing the keen edge which should be held over until the dinner or supper time. However, if you haven't fruit handy, a fruit juice lemonade or a slice of bread and butter, but surely no more.

Where there is both older and younger children at the table, and when all are served the same foods, and possibly a dear grandmother or grandfather who does not eat as heartily as in the past, it is sometimes quite a problem to plan successfully a tasty meal suitable to them all.

For such weather as we usually have in the fall and winter months, puddings, hot and cold, seem not only appropriate but adaptable to all ages, especially digested and good for old and young, are the custards of various kinds, and the fruit or plain gelatine desserts—and the souffles, hot or cold.

There are some people who cannot seem to bake a custard without its becoming watery—but the secret of success in making a custard is correct measurements. Custard baked in a shell—a custard pie—is a favorite dessert almost everywhere. A baked caramel or chocolate custard pudding, or possibly a pineapple or date custard, is popular, too.

The reasons custards seem to be such a stumbling block to many women may be traced either to a wrong proportion of ingredients or too high an oven temperature during baking.

Experience has proven to me that one egg to one cup of milk is the correct proportion if individual custards are made—while six eggs to one quart of milk are necessary if you desire to make a large custard. The other ingredients—the sweetening and flavoring, are a matter of taste and may be used according to preference. Although too much sugar may cause the custard to become watery.

There are several jelly powders or gelatine preparations on the market that may be used with great convenience in the making of jellies and desserts, colored and flavored with pure fruit flavors. Some require only boiling water added, while others are unsweetened and need cold water and soaked before the hot water is added. Fruit or nuts may be added to give variety.

These, with the custards, are old standbys of the housewife who knows that moderate oven of 325 degrees Fahrenheit is best for custards while the gelatine desserts require but a cold place.

An old-fashioned rice pudding, cooked in milk, with raisins and sugar, baked slowly and stirred occasionally, is a very good pudding. A steamed fruit pudding, with a creamy sauce, is popular too, as well as a fresh peach or apple dumpling, when the fruit is in season.

Besides the steamed chocolate pudding recipe given below, try "Mammy's Sweet Potato Pudding," as the sweet potatoes are now plentiful in the markets, and it makes an excellent main dish at luncheon, or an accompaniment with meat at dinner.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding.
1/2 cup sugar.
1/2 level teaspoon salt.
6 tablespoons melted butter.
4 squares chocolate.
2 eggs.
1/2 cup milk.
2 cups flour.
2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder.

Melt the chocolate, add the butter, sugar, well-beaten eggs, and alternately add to this the milk and sifted dry ingredients. Steam one hour in a well-greased mold. Serve with cream sauce.

Mammy's Sweet Potato Pudding.
Grate three medium-sized sweet potatoes. Beat together one cup sugar, three eggs, a tablespoon butter, a teaspoon vanilla and a pint of milk. Add to the grated potato.

Pour in a buttered pan. Drop bits of butter on top and halves of marshmallow if desired. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven.

Old-Fashioned Rice Pudding.
1 tablespoon uncooked rice.
1 quart milk.
1-3 cup sugar.
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon.
1 teaspoon salt.

Wash the rice and add the milk, sugar, flavoring and salt. Pour the mixture into a good sized baking dish, and cook in the oven slowly for about 2 1/2 hours, stirring occasionally. If allowed to cook slowly, the milk thickens to a creamy consistency and the rice swells to several times its original size. If double the quantity of rice is used, the mixture does not require such long cooking, as the rice in swelling thickens the liquid more rapidly, but the product is not so creamy. Often a half cup of raisins is added to the pudding and allowed to cook down with the milk.

HOLD ANNUAL VENISON FEED

Rev. J. B. Hubbard Principal Speaker At K. P. Dinner.

Rev. John B. Hubbard of the First Presbyterian Church was the principal speaker at the tenth annual Knights of Pythias venison "feed" held at the club rooms last night. About 265 members and guests attended the affair which was pronounced one of the most successful K. P. social functions held for a long time.

The evening's festivities were opened with a prayer by the Rev. Mr. Hubbard, following which a number of songs were sung by the entire assemblage. These included "Hall Hall," "America," and "Escanaba."

Following the dinner, an interesting program of talks and musical selections were rendered. In addition to Mr. Hubbard's address on "Unfinished Business," short talks were also given by Principal R. E. Cheney of the High School, who spoke on "Athletics," and Supt. W. E. Olds, whose topic was "Happiness." C. E. Lewis acted as toastmaster.

Among the musical entertainers were the Gas House Trio, the K. of P. Instrumental Quartet, Mr. J. Greenfield, who rendered a concertina solo, K. Waggenhauser, giving a saxophone solo, Roy Pearson with a violin solo, and Dewey Mollin, of Marquette, who played several selections on the musical saw.

Awards were made at this time to the winners of the pool tournament conducted last winter and also to the winners of the Indoor Circus ticket selling contest. William Olson, who won first prize in the pool tournament was presented with a ring, and O. R. Browy a charm for second place. G. Carlson, who sold the greatest number of circus tickets was presented with a gold watch and A. DeLong, who was second, with $20 in cash.

The members of the football squad and the men members of the high school faculty were guests of the K. P. Lodge at the "feed."

St. Anne's P. T. A.

The first regular meeting of the St. Anne's Parent-Teacher Association was held last night at St. Anne's school. Sixty-seven members of the organization were present. An excellent program was given by the pupils of the school followed by a short address by the Rev. Fr. Jacques. Mrs. Arthur Barron, the president of the association, presided.

A questionnaire sent to 24,000 prominent men in this country this year showed that 11 per cent were clergymen's children.

ODD JOBS ARE BEING SOUGHT BY H. S. BOYS

Are Willing To Do Any Jobs Around House

The Boys' Employment department organized last year at the Escanaba high school is functioning again this year and any person in the city who wants some odd jobs done need only call the high school, phone 468, and ask for Donald Cook. A boy will immediately be dispatched to do the work and first-class service is promised. The boys are willing to do any kind of work—cleaning windows, putting up storm windows, splitting wood or any of the innumerable things that need to be done before the arrival of the winter snows.

The boys will work after school and Saturdays and this week they will also be free on Friday. Any one wishing work done on Friday or Saturday should call the high school today.

OWNS STRANGE CAT.

London.—The proprietor of a local movie house received a cat and a litter of kittens by express, this morning. "Dear Sir: Every time I see a new reel at your theater, there is always a picture of a cat who is nursing dogs or chickens or mice—anything but kittens. I think it is unusual, therefore, that my cat is nursing real kittens. Please take their pictures. A FRIEND."

A COMMENDABLE PROGRAM.

Announcement of plans of the city administration to not only maintain Ludington street free from snow during the winter months but to provide a sidewalk plowing service for every section of the city, has been received with great satisfaction by all of the people of Escanaba.

Last year a start was made in establishing a sidewalk cleaning service, but no effort was made to clear the winter's accumulation of snow from Ludington street, until spring and the announcement that a carefully planned sidewalk service is to be supplied this winter, in addition to removing snow from the pavements in the city's business district, is most welcome news.

HEARTENING NEWS.

The fact that the plant of the Steel Wallace Corporation in this city is to resume operations on Jan. 1, is one of the most cheering bits of news to develop in Escanaba in many months.

The extreme faith in the future demonstrated by James R. Andrews a few weeks ago, when he leased the saw mill at the Steele-Wallace plant, made possible the resumption of operations at the big plant much earlier than had even been expected by officials of the company, as under the arrangements made with Mr. Andrews, he will furnish both power and logs for the operation of the main plant.

PLENTY OF WARNING.

Considerable fuss was kicked up last New Year's day because the Escanaba police department, acting under state instructions, forbade motorists to drive automobiles equipped with "deceased" license plates.

No such excuse will be valid this year. Bulletins from the office of the secretary of state announce that the license plates for 1925 will be placed on sale Dec. 1, and that "there is no authority that can grant an extension for the use of 1924 plates."

It is further stated in the bulletins that "every car not equipped with 1925 license plates the first day of January 1925 will be operating illegally and both the sheriff and chief of police have been advised accordingly."

Motorists will have more than a month in which to get the new plates. If they are arrested on New Year's Day it will not be the fault of the sheriff, the police department nor the state of Michigan.

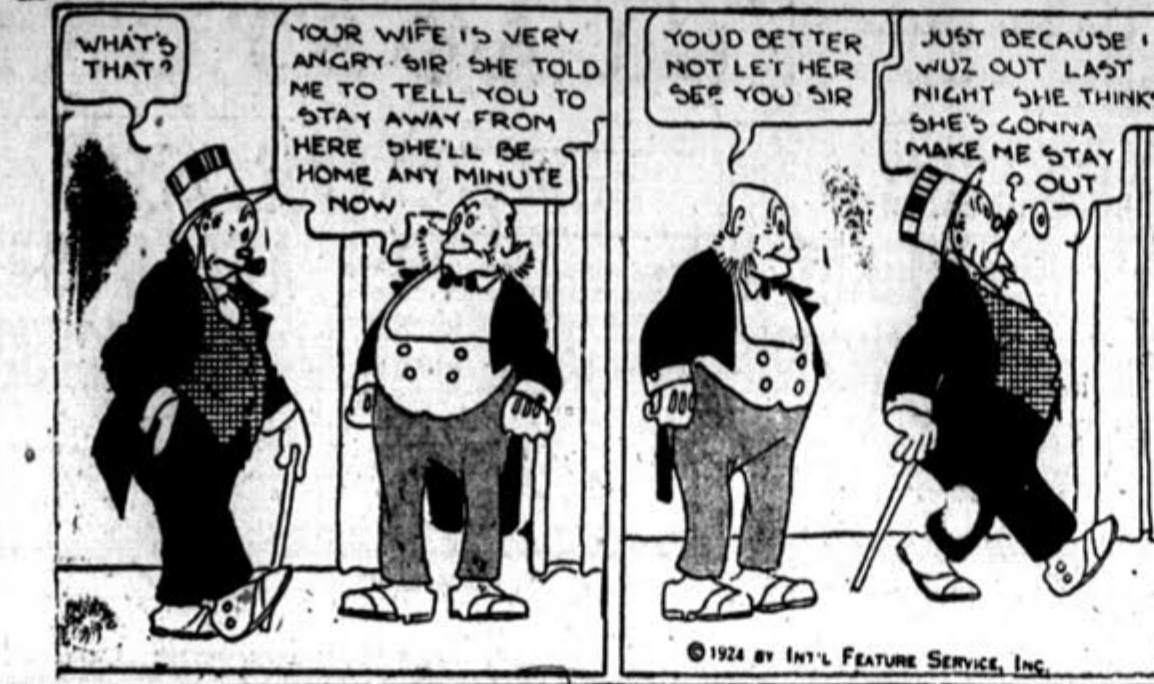

LOTTERY NEWS.

The press is frequently asked to publish news items and advertisements about lotteries and raffles. It is forced to decline for the reason that the publication of such information would be in violation of the federal laws and not only would render the paper unavailable but would make its publishers liable to prosecution.

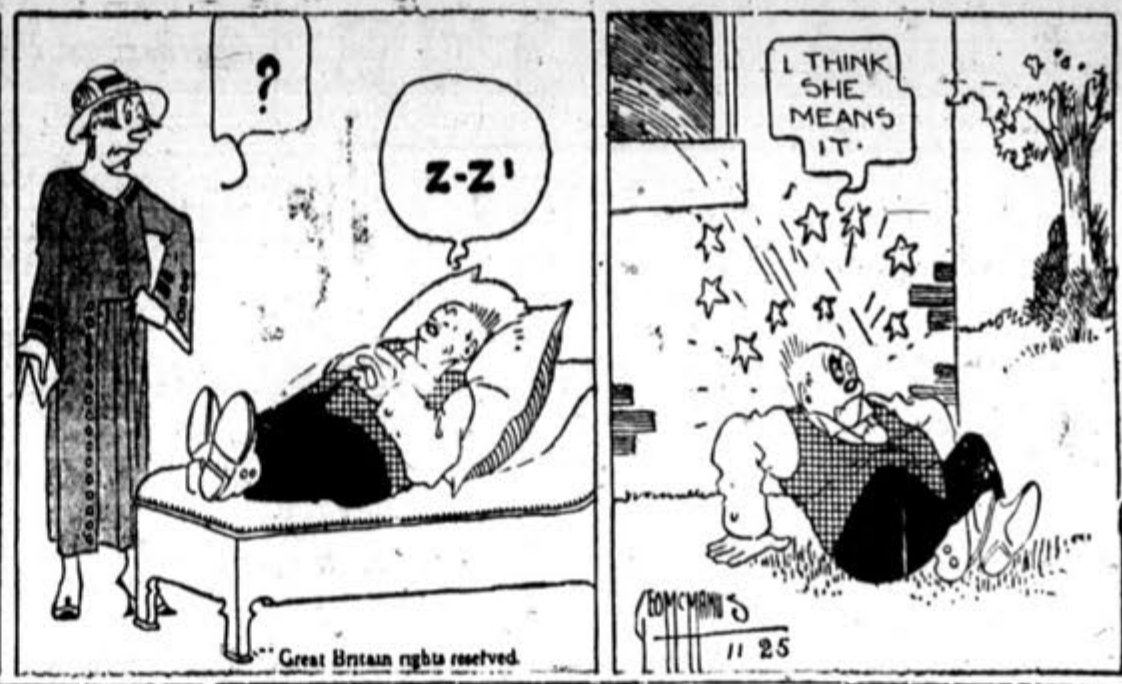

The fact that the lottery or raffle is being conducted for a charitable or worthy purpose makes no difference under the law. Many of our readers are familiar with this section of the postal regulations. The numerous requests which have come to this office recently, however, indicate that many others are not. Much as the Press would like to accommodate its friends by printing items of the class mentioned, it can not knowingly incur the wrath of Uncle Sam.

SEATS FOR THREE.

Chapter VI. Three seats! Struggling with her tears Trixie hurried along her dinner.

"Thank goodness, I made a dessert," she muttered. Then: "I won't let things make me unhappy—I won't!"

"You are so cozy here you make me regret I'm not married," Homer Wheeler remarked to Tom and Trixie at dinner.

"Nothing like a home of your own, Homer!" Tom returned, "it's great to stretch your legs under your own table."

Wheeler complimented Trixie upon each course, and Trixie, delighted that Tom should bear her housekeeping praise, loosened up and chatted and laughed as she hadn't for days.

"Some good time!" Tom said, yawning prodigiously. "It was lovely!" Trixie agreed. "I like Mr. Wheeler, Tom. He's so agreeable, so much the gentleman."

"Homer's a good skate. He thinks you are the whole cheese; said he didn't see how you ever fell for a good-for-nothing like me," Tom replied.

"Come on to bed, Trix, never mind talking business. It will be time to get up before I get to sleep."

Tom fell asleep at once, but not so Trixie.

"I won't worry any more, won't try to hold him back. I like a good time as well as he does. He can make money if he works, and as long as he refuses to let me work it is up to him."

Trixie felt more comfortable after she had argued this point out to her satisfaction. Tom had insisted she give up her position, her independence, avowing he would always take good care of her.

Tom slept late the next morning, she was helpless now, would do the best she could with what Tom gave her, beyond that—well—as he said, it was his affair.

"You'll like all the boys," Tom told her. "My friends are all good fellows. It's great to be able to bring them home with me, I told them you'd make them welcome. Some day we'll show them how to live."

But in spite of her resolve not to worry, Trixie did not feel at all comfortable when the next week Tom confessed again that he had not made even his $50. He gave Trixie $21, keeping his share just the same. She said: "I'm disappointed Tom. I thought perhaps you'd make as much as you did last week."

"Would have, but Burton had a tip on the races, and I spent two afternoons at the track." Tom was frankness itself about what he did, his feeling that he had a right to do as he pleased prevented any attempt at deceiving her.

In a way Trixie realized she must not force Tom to hide what he did from her by finding fault, but it was hard to keep quiet.

"Did you bet too, Tom?" she asked. "Only a few dollars. Won on one horse, lost on the other. So that was why he couldn't give her her allowance. He had lost at the races. For the first time Trixie wondered what he earned. Had he only lost the $4 he had taken from her share, or had he made more than $50 and lost that as well?"

The Brainards had no credit. Trixie had to live on what Tom gave her. Just once she had told the grocer she would pay the next time she came and he had grudgingly consented to wait, hinting he gave no credit unless he had good references as to his consumer's ability to pay.

Thus, encouraged one week, disappointed the next, Trixie struggled along, seldom having money for herself, although Tom never seemed to deny himself and constantly assured Trixie that they would soon be on easy street.

AT THE DELFT. Alaska—land of ice-clad mountains where towns have been born overnight and have disappeared as quickly—

On the same program will be Boldue's Saxophone band—formerly the Brown Saxophone Six—in what promises to be an unusually pleasing musical offering.

The feature picture in which Meighan is said to have done exceptional work, is an adaptation of James Oliver Curwood's novel, "The Alaskan." It is an out-door story based upon conditions which are so recent they can scarcely be called history.

A talented cast, has been assembled that, among others, includes Estelle Taylor, Frank Salmolis, Charles Ogle, Frank Cambeau and Anna May Wong.

AT THE STRAND.

Tom Mix will feature the Wednesday-Thursday holiday bill at the Strand theatre, in his latest picture, "Pals in Blue." It is described as the story of "Devoted friends, two men inseparable pals since childhood" and is filled with the action and thrills which always accompany Tom Mix to the screen.

In the east with Mr. Mix are some of his better known associates of former pictures including Ada Gleason, Al Merrill, Bob Anderson, Sid Jordan, Eugente Ford and Edward Brady.

The scenes are laid in the west of a generation ago, and there is a military flavor.

"The Beloved Vagabond," a screen version of William J. Locke's most widely read story, in which Carlyle Blackwell is featured, will be shown in St. Joseph's auditorium Thursday afternoon and night.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov.—See Sawing up and down Broadway I saw Eddie Cantor, passing like a dark shadow. Some day I'll get personal and ask him how much he weighs.

Saw Jules Brulster, the senatorial looking husband of Hope Hampton, with the spirit of battle in his eye. Hope, you know, was displaced by Willa Bennett as "Madame Pompadour" at the eleventh hour and 59th minute of the play's debut on Broadway.

Saw George Gershwin, who, methinks, is one of the greatest living pianists, even though he is a devotee of jazz.

Greenwich Village rapidly is becoming passé, now that bobbed hair, equality of sexes, self-termination and other such subjects have become common property of the nation.

However, the many little oddities which originated in New York's Bohemia have left their effect on other sections of the city. This is particularly true of restaurants.

Every section of the city uptown and downtown, Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn and even Staten Island, are dotted with little eating places that have no table-cloth but plenty of atmosphere. They all stress individuality and low prices.

One restaurant near the Pennsylvania Station thus blurbs itself: "A quaint place, a comfortable place, an unusual place, a quiet place, a clean wholesome place, a distinctly different place." Furthermore it proclaims that acting people many come there and enjoy "the personal touch of a master cook."

On Eighth avenue in the Thirties one may see almost any day druggists waiting for their peddlers. Thin, worried and pale they stand for hours while the peddler eludes the police. Most of them are ragged, but occasionally you may see a prosperous looking individual pathetically huddled with the down-and-outers to participate in his new-found curse.

CITY COUNCIL STANDING PAT ON ROAD ROW

Representing the city of Manistique, a committee of four was scheduled to leave here last night for Lansing for a conference with the governor and highway officials in regard to the change made in the routing of the new M-12 trunk line highway at Manistique.

A formal protest against the proposed change was made by the local city council at a meeting which lasted until midnight on Monday, and concluded with the appointment of the following committee to make the Lansing trip: F. N. Cookson, Benjamin Gero, Sr., Mayor Harry Erikson and City Attorney James C. Wood.

At the present time the city and the highway commission are at loggerheads, the city refusing to provide a right of way for the new route as re-surveyed along the lake shore, and all construction work on this section has been stopped, pending a settlement of the tangle.

Cuts Farm in Two.

When the new lake shore route first received the official stamp of approval from Highway Commissioner F. F. Rogers, it was agreed that the city would furnish the right of way for the new road along the lake, and would also acquire all land between the road and the lake, for park purposes, so as to prevent any building between the scenic highway route and the lake. At that time it was understood that the road would follow what is known as the "meander line" of the lake, and lie mostly on property that was deeded to the city as a park by the Chicago Lumber Company many years ago. The road was laid out along this route, but was later changed without consulting city officials, it is claimed.

The changes were made to eliminate certain curves, according to highway department officials. The new route as it is now laid out cuts very nearly through the middle of the J. W. Lanier farm, besides hitting other additional lake shore property. If the city is to provide the right of way here it will be necessary to purchase not only the land to be taken up by the road, but also all the land between the road and the lake, according to the original agreement with the State Highway Department. This the city refuses to do, and members of the council issued a point blank refusal at the meeting Monday night. It was also intimated that the city officials would oppose any effort to place the road on the alternative route down Oak Street.

Contractor Quits. Property owners affected by the change, together with members of the board of county road commissioners, were present at the council session, and the matter was threshed out from every angle.

One of the men whose land would be cut by the new road stated that he would be willing to give a strip of land for the road as it was originally placed, but placed a price on his property if the new route is followed. Other property owners present were questioned, and announced the prices they would ask for the land. One of them refused to name a price, saying that he would wait for condemnation proceedings.

The net result of the tangle is that road work has been stopped and the contractors crew idle, awaiting the result of the conference at Lansing.

BIG TURKEY DINNER AT Liberty Cafe Thanksgiving Day

Hendrickson Denies Irregularity Charge

My attention has just been called to an article appearing on page six of the issue of the Daily Press for September 26th, 1924. This article is headed: "Evidence of Crooked Work Found in Accounts of N. E. Hendrickson at Riverside." The article then goes on to say that your reporter at Manistique had interviewed me at the Park Hotel when the doors of the Riverside Coal & Produce Company were closed in July, last, and asked me what statement I wished to make regarding the closing up of this company. He quotes me as asking him to keep it "under his hat for a while." This is true, as the affairs of the Company were being gone over and there was nothing to say for publication at the time, and none of us knew just what the result would be.

The article goes on then to say that Mr. John L. Bellaire, another member of the firm, had, at the time the article was written, stated that I had a pretty good reason for asking this reporter to keep the matter under his hat. This is not true, because the only reason I had was that we did not care to give the matter any more publicity than was necessary before we could liquidate the affairs of the Company.

The article then goes on to state that I had made a hurried departure from Manistique the next day, and left behind a collection of cleverly juggled accounts in the office of the Riverside Coal Company, covering a deficit of over $19,000.00, which Bellaire claimed was found when the books were examined after my departure. Further that my "padded" personal salary and expense accounts showed where the money went. Then follows a copy of what is alleged to be a statement of July 1st, 1924, as it appeared on the books of the Riverside Coal & Produce Company, then showing a surplus of about $9,900.00. Introducing this statement in the article is an allegation that the "following articles appear on Mr. Hendrickson's 'doctored' statement. After the publication of this alleged statement of July 1st, 1924, which was in fact not a statement of assets and liabilities alone, but a copy of the trial balance as it appeared on the books on that day, a further statement purporting to show assets and liabilities, as of July 29th, 1924, is published in the article, with the assertion that it is the statement of conditions found by John Bellaire and Mr. Long, of Manistique, after completing their examination of the books of the Company. This statement purports to show a deficit in the surplus account of over $19,000.00 as stated above. Then follows a copy of my "personal account" taken from the "accounts payable ledger," which is introduced as an example of the manner in which credits were issued to me by myself. It is further said that my salary had originally been $200.00 a month, and that I had increased it to $300.00, and had drawn large amounts as back salary.

One reading the article in question would be led to believe that in the handling of the affairs of this Company, I was an arch criminal, and had juggled the accounts and had embezzled the funds. As it may be of interest to you and your readers to know the truth of the matter and to be set right as to the facts, so they may properly judge, I will state that this examination of the books was made while I was at Manistique, and that I stayed there nearly a week after Mr. Bellaire and Mr. Long had finished their examination, and that I made no hurried departure from the city, and have not been further than one hundred miles from Manistique since this business was closed, and if there has been any criminal conduct of the affairs on my part, I have been easily within the reach for the service of any process which the parties interested might see fit to issue.

When I purchased an interest in this business, consisting of sixty-four shares of the stock, I was induced to do so by Mr. Edmundson, who then held the controlling interest in the business or the majority of the stock issued. I was asked to buy stock in the Company and was offered a salary of $200.00 per month to manage the business. At the time that I purchased my stock, I was shown a statement of its condition, prepared by the Company for the purpose of the Federal Income Tax Returns. This statement had been signed by Mr. Edmundson, as President, and Mr. Shiner, as Secretary and Treasurer of the Company. I was assured by Mr. Edmundson that Mr. Shiner was a banker and dependable, and that the statement was correct.

The statement in question showed that the Company had total assets of about $58,000.00; and total liabilities, outside of the capital stock of something over $33,000.00; and a net worth of over $24,000.00; and that there was issued and outstanding about $23,000.00 worth of stock, so that the Company had a surplus of over $1,300.00.

On the strength of these showings, I invested my money in its stock; first, $2,300.00 in cash; and later on I borrowed $1,500.00 more, and put it into the business, with the distinct understanding that when the books had been checked and audited, and the net worth of the concern had been found, I should pay par for my stock, if the net worth of the Company showed that it was worth that much; but if the net worth of the Company showed it to be worth less, my account should be adjusted, and a refund made of anything in excess of the stock over the

Until the books could be audited and the actual net worth of the stock could be learned, I was to pay for my stock seventy-five cents on the dollar of par value, which would make the price of the sixty-four shares to me, $4,800.00; and if upon complete examination of the affairs of the Company, the stock was worth less than that, the difference was to be refunded to me. After I had paid in my first $3,800.00, I later on paid $1,000.00 more out of my salary, so that I paid the full $4,800.00 for my stock.

I went into this business on the first of April, 1922, having met Mr. Edmundson at Escanaba by appointment and at his request in February of that year, at which time he commenced to negotiate with me to purchase this stock, and an interest in the business. When I took charge as manager in April, 1922, I found that Mr. H. W. Christenson, the "bookkeeper," had been ill and in the hospital for an operation, and that the books had not been posted nor entries made for four months or more on account of his absence. It was therefore impossible for us to make any kind of an audit of the affairs or accounts for many months after I took charge.

Before I took charge, it apparently had been arranged that Mr. Bellaire and Mr. Strehl, who held some stock, should be employed by the Company at a salary of $150.00 a month each. These men were doing common labor in the business, and others could have been employed to do the same amount, and kind of work for perhaps eighty or ninety dollars per month. I soon saw that the overhead of the business would be too heavy, and I voluntarily offered these men that if they would submit to a cut in their salary, I would also, but they refused to do this, and naturally I insisted upon my original contracted salary, the payments of which appear in my personal account and upon which there is due me now a balance of about $1,100.00 on the Company.

Additional Manistique News Will Be Found on Page 12.

represented to me as worth $57,000.00; and that liabilities amounted to over $38,000.00, instead of $33,000.00, as they had been so represented to me. The Company, therefore, instead of having a net worth of over $24,000.00 at the time I was sold the stock, had practically no net worth at all, the stock was in fact, worthless.

When I found these conditions, I put the matter up to Mr. Christenson and Mr. Edmundson, and at a directors' meeting, a resolution was adopted authorizing me to take a refund of $25.00 per share on the stock I had purchased, in the year 1923; and it was understood that I should take another refund in the year 1924 for the same amount. This I have done, as is shown by my personal account. As a matter of fact, I am entitled also to the refund of the balance I paid on this stock which at the time it was sold to me as of the value of $75.00 per share, was worth nothing at all.

The statement of July 1, 1924, which as I have stated is a trial balance of the business, was made up on the basis of the accounts and entries as they had existed when I went into the business, with, of course, the additions and changes made thereafter and up to the first of July by virtue of the operations of the Company. If that statement is "doctored" if that statement is done before I came into the Company.

As the matter now stands, this concern owes me the balance of $1,600.00 which I paid on my stock, and $1,100.00 which is due me on my salary account, and should see that the coal which was purchased for the coal business, on my personal credit, is paid for so that I may be relieved of the obligation of $2,500.00 above mentioned; and in addition, it should see to it that I am repaid on the $8,500.00 worth of notes owing to the banks at the time I went into the concern.

If I have been guilty of any crookedness in this matter, I am willing to stand trial, and show up the whole business as it was, and see that justice places the blame where it properly belongs. I can show my reputation and character up to the time I came to Manistique to have been absolutely clear and of the highest type. It so remained during the time I was at Manistique and it still is kept by me on proper standards of honesty and high ideals. It is worth more to me than the city of Manistique or any other town contains in material things, and I simply ask that you publish this interview that the intelligent and right-minded people of Manistique and Escanaba, who are the readers of this paper, may fully understand the facts. I not only was defrauded when I was induced to go into this company, but I am now being boldly accused of things which I never committed, and I propose that the libel against my good name shall either be retracted by those responsible or compensated for in damages.

I very quickly learned also that the credit rating of the company was so poor that they could not buy any coal on its own credit, and all the coal that was bought, I personally had to guarantee the payment of. I bought it from old business friends and associates of mine who were in the wholesale coal business; and, at the present time, I am at least morally obligated to the extent of about $2,500.00 for coal so purchased. In addition to that I was compelled to endorse renewal notes to the extent of about $8,500.00, which the concern owed the banks at the time I went into the business.

As time went along, I constantly kept finding various items of losses in assets, and misrepresentation in liabilities, which had not been properly listed in the statement of the condition of the company shown me at the time I bought into it. I found, for instance, that although the statement shown me listed "accounts receivable," owing to the company, of something over $23,000.00, that, as a matter of fact, the assets amounted to very little over $11,000.00; because, over $8,600.00 worth of the accounts were positively lost and of no value, and a land contract worth not over $3,500.00 had been listed at $7,000.00. I also found that the inventories shown me, amounting to nearly $11,000.00, were in fact worth $2,400.00 less, because of losses on "oil dug," which had been purchased and could not be sold, and still is on hand, so far as I know. The lighting plant was on the inventory at $275.00 more than it was worth, as we found when we sold it. I also found that in the delivery equipment, a truck which had cost the company $1,200.00 second handed, was listed as of the value of $2,000.00 after the company had used it a season. I also found that the value of the buildings had been put in the statement at $3,000.00 more than they were worth. I also found that over $2,700.00 worth of debts which the company owed had not been entered in the accounts or statement of liabilities or otherwise.

The result was that I found that at the time the stock had been sold to me, the assets of the company were not worth over $37,000.00; whereas, intentionally, or in error, they had been

THANKSGIVING DANCE at ISABELLA Thursday, Nov. 27 Music by Gladstone Orchestra

Thanksgiving Dance TONIGHT AT Pine Grove Pavilion Music by E. L. GROULEAU AND HIS ORCHESTRA

LICENSE IS REVOKED BY COMMISSION

A precedent in the handling of liquor law violations by the Gladstone authorities was established Monday night when the beverage license granted to Albert Larson was revoked by a unanimous vote of the city commission.

The action followed by the arrest of Larson by Chief Eric Lindahl on November 12 and his trial on the charge of having a quart of moonshine whisky in his possession during which he was found guilty and was ordered to pay a fine and costs.

According to regular procedure Larson was served a notice to appear before the commission or to have a counsel appear for him Monday night to answer charges of violation of provisions of the ordinance under which his license was granted. No one appeared and the commissioners voted to revoke his license.

This course of action, it was stated yesterday by a member of the city administration, will be taken in every like violation brought to notice, the commissioners cooperating in every manner possible with the police authorities.

A petition presented sometime ago for an overhead street light at the corner of Eleventh and Dakota avenues was investigated and considered by the commission but in view of the fact that the proposed light was for the alternate corner on which lights are not installed, the petition was disapproved at this time as a matter of economy.

The monthly financial report and the regular monthly statements covering reconciliation of bank accounts was read by Manager F. R. Buechner and approved. The report showed that at the end of October, the seventh month of the fiscal year the city was operating well within the budget limits in all departments.

The commission granted a pool room license to Henry Bourbonnais, 582 North Tenth street. All members of the commission were present at Monday's meeting as well as the city attorney and the city manager.

Faculty Members Guests at Party

BUSY WEEKS AHEAD FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Activities at the Gladstone high school will be arranged for the next few weeks promise a busy time of it before the school closes for the Christmas vacation holidays.

The opening of the lyceum course which is being given Gladstone under the auspices of the high school is the most important number in which the public is generally interested.

The Cathedral Choir, a notable musical organization consisting of a double mixed quartet and an organ accompanist, will open the season here on December 2. The Cathedral Choir needs no introduction to those who know music and while the number is being brought here at a great expense, promoters believe that a worth while attraction of its kind is something that will be appreciated in Gladstone.

Teams made up of seniors are now busy conducting the ticket sale for the course.

Athletic activities will follow closely the opening of the lyceum course. The class basketball tournament, a forerunner of the

The same system of having the tax receipts ready when the property owners call at the city hall to pay the assessment will be followed, this method eliminating confusion when the office is crowded.

The winter taxes include the county, state, school, sanatorium and agriculture tax. This includes all taxes for the year, with the exception of the city assessment which was taken care of in July and the special assessments which come up during the year.

Wyoconda, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so miserable I could scarcely go about my daily work. I was in such misery. But after I began taking this second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the fourth while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins since ever since. I recommend this Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."

THE NEA PLAY JURY'S TEN BEST PLAYS

The Firebrand, The Guardman, The Show-Off, Expressing Willie, Cobra, Rain, What Price Glory, Mimick, Dancing Mothers, The Best People.

BY THE NEA PLAY JURY

New York, Nov. 22.—Theatrical entertainment which has the popular elements of song, dance and mirth seems on analysis a poor second to the dramas in public appeal.

The figures are surprising. People flock to the big musical shows at the start, but the march does not continue. There is to be considered, of course, the size of theaters, but that does not explain entirely.

Heading the musical shows is "Kid Boots" which has seen more than 365 performances. Four plays have been going longer than that: "Abe's Irish Rose" with 1055, "Rain," 823, "White Cargo" 433 and "The Show-Off" 414.

In "Annie Dear," Billie Burke is as beautiful as she ever appeared in all of her charming life, and her husband, Flo Ziegfeld, is as lavish of stage furniture as in any previous dream.

The spell of Maude Adams is too strong to be broken by Marilyn Miller's "Peter Pan."

Miss Miller dances as no other actress in America can, but her dancing doesn't quite console her audiences for the whimsical, assured Peter Pan of blessed memory.

1893—Terrence V. Powderly resigned the leadership of the Knights of Labor.

POULTRY SCHOOL WILL BE STAGED HERE DEC. 8-9

State Experts to Be Heard in Two-Day Sessions

Culling, feeding and housing of poultry and the prevention and cure of poultry diseases, will be the principal topics of lectures and demonstrations to be given Dec. 8 and 9, in the Escanaba city hall by Dr. C. E. Staffseth and J. A. Hanna, extension specialists of Michigan Agricultural college.

Time will improve the performance. It is expensively fitted. Much of the singing is good. Miss Bennett is beautiful and can be expected to develop her part from what must have been hasty preparation. She has able helpers in the cast.

"The Steam Roller" at the Princess, gathers momentum as it rolls along. The name comes from the character of Amelia Dill, an old maid who dominates her household and flattens out all contrary wills.

"Desire Under the Elms" is a pitiless tragedy by Eugene O'Neill, presented at the Greenwich Village Theatre. It is a story of the stern and rockbound coast of New England, the characters reflecting the setting.

A son waiting to receive the home farm at the death of his father sees the old man married again and bound by a promise that if any child is born, it shall receive the inheritance.

Mary Morris and Walter Huston stand out in the excellent cast of actors.

Love Stories Of Famous Americans

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE. Northampton, Mass.—Burnings of the love fire in the bosom of calm, cautious Calvin Coolidge may be hard to imagine. The girl is still his sweetheart today. Back in 1893, when Coolidge was a young lawyer here, and Grace Goodhue a teacher in the Clark School for the Deaf and Blind, they met. Coolidge had spied the girl as he looked out of his window. A mutual friend introduced them. Northampton was a small place, and news spread fast. Cal was a-courting! But he was not a fervid lover. He took Miss Goodhue on walks and made punctilious calls upon her. He took her to none of the dances, for the young man too bashful to dance. Lucy Advises Him. One day Coolidge dropped into the shop of James Lucey for a chat. Lucey was—and still is—the village shoemaker and philosopher. "Look here, young man," Lucey said to Coolidge, pretending to be very cross. "You aren't getting anywhere! You want to walk closer to Grace. Don't go up the street as if you didn't know her, for some of these other young men around town will come and walk between you. "When you walk home with her tonight, walk very close. And when you get in her parlor, sit very close to her on the lounge. "First look at her shoes. Tell her what pretty feet she has. Then look at her skirt. Tell her what a pretty dress she has on. "Then look into her eyes. Tell her what wonderful eyes she has, and how you know she's going to make some young man a wonderful wife, and how you hope to be that man." Whether Coolidge followed this advice or not will never be known. But a short time later their engagement was announced. Cal Kept Silent. But Coolidge knew little of the delicacies of dealings with the fair sex. He did not know that it was his place to ask her to name the wedding day. The school term closed. Miss Goodhue went to her home in Vermont, greatly puzzled. She did not know whether she should stay there and work on her tulle, or whether she should make arrangements to return to the school the following term. While she was in this quandry, Coolidge appeared at her home, dressed in his best clothes. Miss Goodhue's father met him at the door. "Up here on a business trip?" he asked. "No, not a business trip," Coolidge replied, shifting to his other foot. "On a pleasure trip?" "No, that is, not exactly," Coolidge replied. "You see, I came up here to marry your daughter." This surprised Goodhue. "Why, I don't think she's ready," he exclaimed. "Well," said Coolidge, his natural calm returning to him as he took a seat on the porch. "I'll wait. It may have been sudden news to the girl that they were to be married right away, but she was prepared for the ceremony in a few months. They were married on Oct. 4, 1905. And, say their friends, they are sweethearts yet.

Ben Richie Freed, Promises to Leave State of Michigan

Ben Richie, who had been in jail awaiting preliminary examination on charges of threatening to do great bodily harm, and attempted burglary, was liberated yesterday, with the understanding that he was to leave the state immediately. The young woman who claimed that Richie threatened her life failed to appear for the examination and the attempted robbery charge. In which it was doubtful whether there was sufficient evidence, was dismissed when Richie announced his intention of leaving the state of Michigan, getting along the best way it could without him. He has been in a number of scrapes here in the last few months.

New Sewer Line Half Completed

The new sewer and gas main project in the alley east of Washington avenue between Tenth avenue north and 12th avenue north, is more than half completed. It was said at the city engineering department yesterday. Incidentally, in checking up the total mileage of gas and water mains, sewers and electric circuits, City Manager Fred R. Harris, whose years of experience with utilities of all kinds qualifies him to estimate accurately, said he did not believe a city of similar size in Michigan could even approach the local record.

Paving Bond Lost; "Outlets" Covered

Steps to protect the owner of a $500 municipal paving bond, which recently "checked" missing, from loss, were taken by city officials yesterday when the fact that the bond had been misplaced was reported to them. The bond is one of the $29,000 issue, and although it is negotiable, banks and other persons who generally handle such paper were given the number and asked to be on the look-out. City Manager Fred R. Harris also announced that, in interest on the coupons, as well as the principal, had been stopped at the city hall.

Three Arrested in Raid on Garfield House Bar Monday

James Rivits has been charged with sale of whisky and keeping a place where drinks were sold, Victor Johnson has been charged with sale and possession of moonshine and Ole Burquist with possession, as the result of a raid, staged Monday night, by the police department on the Garfield House, 1000 First avenue north. All three men waived examination when arraigned yesterday before Judge C. D. McEwen, and furnished bonds of $500 each for their preliminary examination, which will be held Dec. 1. In the meantime, the cases may be transferred to federal court, police officials intimated.

TOM SIMS SAYS

Well, statistics show soft-drink drinking is declining, maybe because people are learning to do without chasers. Man was beating his wife in Chicago. She pushed him off the porch, three floors up. He fell hard for her. What we can't see is how a one-eyed gets married, unless he learns to steer an auto with his knees. Duquoin (Ill.) couple got married. Courted 25 years. Imagine shaving every day for 25 years. Charles Dickens' old home has been made into a girl's school, where they may play the dickens. St. Louis man, alarmed because his wife couldn't talk, called the doctor. She was drunk. It's expensive, but you might try it. A woman in hand is worth two in a tantrum. South Africa's diamond output is over two million karats yearly. But that isn't so much. We mine more coal than that. South Dakota man claims he has a razor that has been used 65 years, but we don't know how often. Even if it did take her a long time to do it, at St. Louis woman has been going to Sunday school 98 years. One overlooked blessing of those who get out for Sunday school is the trip makes them hungry for Sunday dinner.

"SHIEK" SCREEN LOVER IS LOSING FAVOR STEADILY

"Strong Man" Type Once More In Foreground. BY JACK JUNGMEYER NEA Service Writer Hollywood.—The majority of men have watched the decline of the "sheik" lover vogue on the screen with grunts of relief. Most women have marked its passing without a sigh of regret. Why this is so may be obvious to movie moguls. But it has called forth a lot of none too lucid explanations from the motion picture commentators. Elmer Glyn, who is not without reputation as an interpreter of love phenomena, has an explanation both simple and sound. "The so-called 'sheik' type of lover," says Mrs. Glyn, "could not have remained in favor long because he was not resourceful, merely predatory. He does not represent security to the female subconscious mind. "The strong man spells security to woman. "Woman has never been attracted by the strong man merely because he may be gruff, uncouth, savage. Her love for the virile male goes back to the beginning of the race, when humans were governed largely by three urges having to do with food, safety and procreation. "These three major concerns are still at the base of practically every impulse that moves humans, with all the superstructure of civilization imposed upon them. "The strong man is still the cunning, resourceful provider and protector. Woman will have preference for him, with only here and there an exception, until she as a sex has been completely emancipated from the fears, physical and economic, which have made her dependent upon the male. "Civilization, Mrs. Glyn appends, has woven a fourth primary longing from the three basic passions, the yearning for romance—idealized love. The temporary acceptance of the screen "sheik," she surmises, was a groping expression of this longing for romance—which always seems to be beckoning from far horizons and strange men. "The sleek effete, misnamed "sheik" provoked curiosity but couldn't sustain serious interest. As his screen successor, Mrs. Glyn points to the type of man portraying "Prince Gyztko" in her "His Hour," produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "He not only fulfills the three primitive conditions," she says, "but has the fourth which civilization has added. Women will always prefer this kind of lover. They are bored to death with mushy weaklings, sweet good boys and suave parasites."

WORK OF DRYS BRUTAL-BITTER JOKE-PINCHOT

(By The Associated Press.) Columbus, O., Nov. 24.—The work of the federal prohibition department was declared to be "a bitter and brutal job" by Governor Gifford Pinchot, Penn., in an address before the Methodist Episcopal Men's Council here tonight. He appealed for "public condemnation of buyers of illicit liquor, whose money is the sole incentive to the bootlegger."

Crediting teaching of temperance in public schools with developing public sentiment which made possible enactment of the nation's dry laws, Dr. William S. Bovard, Chicago, corresponding secretary of the board of education, M. E. church, predicted world peace will come only when children of the world are "prejudiced unwaveringly" against the use of physical force "to settle international disputes."

"Attacks on the eighteenth amendment are based on nothing higher than greed or appetite," said Governor Pinchot. "The criminals who break the eighteenth amendment for their pleasure or profit can never win. We know that we shall beat them in the end, but the harm that they do in the meantime is enormous. The moral integrity of the people of the United States is at stake in this conflict."

Amendment to Last. "The eighteenth amendment will never be repealed. It will stand as long as alcohol is a menace to the human race. There is no fear of any successful attack on the Volstead law. Every year that passes sees the eighteenth amendment stronger in the respect and confidence of the American people than it was ever before."

"Every year that passes sees this law better obeyed. It is still far from being satisfactorily obeyed. Law enforcement, so far as the federal enforcement is concerned is universally regarded as a joke, and a bitter and brutal joke at that. The eighteenth amendment will never be thoroughly enforced until the men in charge of its enforcement are in sympathy with the law; until the enforcement unit in Washington makes an honest effort, which it never yet has made, to do the duty for which the people of America maintain it."

Lang & Hess Music Store Object of Burner's Attack.

Fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, at the Lang & Hess music store early yesterday morning was reported to M. J. Lang, one of the proprietors, with sufficient promptness to enable the fire department to extinguish it without damage. Police and fire officials are investigating in an effort to find the perpetrator. The fire-bug had loosened a board on the east side of the building which is screened from view by a billboard, and has stuffed a bundle of oil-soaked waste into the opening. It had just started to burn well when a passerby saw the reflection under the board and gave the alarm. Mr. Lang was on his way to the store at the time and was notified. So was the fire department. A chemical outfit was sufficient to quench the blaze. Nipped at Start. Had the fire been given a few minutes added start, it is doubtful whether the building could have been saved without serious damage to its contents, firemen said. The store is heavily stocked with holiday goods. Members of the firm estimated yesterday that less than one-quarter of the value of the stock was covered by insurance.

And Women Must Weep

BY GEORGE BRITT. NEA Service Writer. New York, Nov. 22.—"To Silver—whose job was harder than looping the Atlantic, and a damn sight more important, W. W. N." This inscription, hand-written by William Washburn Nutting in the first copy of his book, "The Track of the Typhoon," is a consoling treasure now to "Silver" as she awaits news of him and his boat, the "Leiv Eiriksson." "Silver" is Mrs. Nutting. Her husband, with Arthur S. Hildebrand, author, John Olaf Todahl, marine artist, and Theodore Fleischer, Norwegian government scientist, sailed westward from Frederikshaab, Greenland, in a 42-foot "skoitte" on Sept. 9. After more than two months, she still is waiting, in spite of an alarm broadcast along the North Atlantic coasts and ship lanes and a special search by the United States cruiser Trenton. Boats are Nutting's hobby and business. He writes of them and then gets out of his armchair and sails them. He built a boat on an inland lake in Indiana when he was 12 years old. The present trip from Bergen by way of Iceland and Greenland is the first voyage over that tossing, ice-choked northern path in a boat so small since the vikings sailed their dragon ships to Vinland. It was undertaken to demonstrate the safety of small boats and to inspire moderns to find their play on the challenging robust sea. Mrs. Nutting exemplifies one of Kingsley's heroines in his poignant "Three Fishers," who went sailing away to the west, each thinking of the woman who loved him best. More than ten years ago her husband alone sailed his 28-foot boat, the Nerels, to Newfoundland and back. He was away four and a half months, and she heard only occasionally from him. In 1921 he sailed the 45-foot Typhoon to the Cowes regatta, and was long overdue on his return across the Atlantic. But never has she had such a hope-straining wait as now. "If he should never come back, this is just the way he would have wanted to go," she says with a brave look in her tearless blue eyes. She is a daughter and a granddaughter of seamen, this reddish-haired, slender woman who has been "Bill" Nutting's partner for 18 years. Her home suggests the sea, with its furnishings of sea books and logs of old voyages, and marine pictures and the models and gear of boats. "I wanted to make this trip," says Mrs. Nutting. "Sometimes I think he had a premonition of evil. It could have been arranged for me to go, but he said to me, 'If this should be the end, I couldn't bear to think of the children losing both parents at once.' "Of course, that is best, because the children need me, and he is free to think only of the trip. He is the only one I want to please." There are two children, Jack, 12, and Lee Caroline, 4. Lee was born while her father was away on the Typhoon trip. Kingsley's lines fit naturally into the story: "But men must work, and women must weep, Though storms be sudden, and waters deep, And the harbor bar be moaning." Every ringing of the telephone bell, every knock at the door, every letter, is a thunderous, tantalizing question to the woman who waits at home. The dog, "Baldy," whimpers restlessly. The children burst into nervous tears. "There are so many inlets and beaches along Greenland and Labrador," says Mrs. Nutting. "They could easily be in one of them, cut off from the world until warm weather. I shall keep hoping until spring, and then hope some more. "I wish I were with him, wherever he is." This wish again recalls the "Three Fishers": "And the sooner it's over, the sooner to sleep, And good-bye to the bar and its moaning."

WORE SPURS TO ESCAPE BEARS

Colored Hunter of Cass County Thot Squirrels Were "Bobcats"

He strapped a pair of telephone linemen's spurs on his legs to enable him to climb trees and thus escape from the bears. Then he loaded his big Luger revolver and shot at a squirrel which someone told him was a bob cat. The bullet went crashing through another hunter's automobile. Thirty old-time venison chasers left the vicinity immediately. The gullible hunter was one of a party of four Cass county negroes who appeared last week in the woods near Helena, with a white man for a cook. None of them had ever been in the woods before. Their shooting was so promiscuous and their marksmanship so poor that a number of Escanaba men,

90 Per Cent of World's Motor Cars on Our Highways

There are 16,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States—approximately 90 per cent of all in the world. This total is being increased at the rate of 4,000,000 a year. What is the saturation point? Ask any one of the 16,000,000 motorists trying to make headway through the countless traffic jams on some of our concrete highways. He will tell you, from the standpoint of comfort and safety in driving, the saturation point is already in sight. Not a very encouraging outlook, is it, for the man about to buy his first automobile? So you see car owners and prospective car owners are both interested—and have an immediate task confronting them. What are you going to do about it? Even now you are curtailing the use of your car because you do not want to endure the discomfort, inconvenience and danger of traveling on congested, narrow highways. Your highway officials need your support. They can't do much unless you stand squarely behind them. To delay building more highways wide enough and strong enough to meet all the requirements of modern traffic will cost you more money than will an adequate system of Concrete Roads and Streets. ### WARNING GIVEN MOTOR OWNERS

Thousands May Be Unable to Get License Plates Promptly.

Thousands of automobile owners in Michigan will be unable to procure license plates for their motor vehicles in 1925 because they can not present certificates of title in their own name with their application for 1925 registration, according to a recent bulletin from the office of the secretary of state.

The bulletin continues: "There are thousands of people who have a transferred title from the former owner, on an assigned title from some dealer that they have failed to present to the Secretary of State for title in their own name, although the law specifically says this shall (not may) be done within ten days."

"There are two reasons for this situation. It is caused first, by the class of people who always fail to comply with the law, either title or registration, until positively forced to do so by the law enforcing officers. The other class, and by far the largest number, are those who have a mistaken idea, possibly through ignorance of the law, but more often through misinformation that their transferred title or re-assigned title is all that they require.

Must Have Certificate.
"Because of the large registration in the state, only those persons who are issued license plates at any of the state's branch offices which present a certificate of title required by the law, will be compelled to mail their transfers to the Lansing office, and unless this is done immediately, they will probably be held up for weeks, as a terrific congestion is looked for at Lansing in the title division, as was the case last year, with nobody to blame but the title holders themselves. This will result in the tying up of thousands of cars as they will not be permitted to operate on 1924 license plates, and there is to be no extension of time beyond January 1, but to avoid congestion, and give people an opportunity to secure their 1925 plates without the rush and jam that occurs the first of the year, the local branch office will start issuing 1925 plates on and after December first."

WAVE OF CRIME IN CHICAGO IS YET UNCHECKED

(By The Associated Press.)
Chicago, Nov. 24—Major criminal depredations continued in Chicago today as State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe announced that he would end "all violations and wipe this county and city clean."

He made his statement before the opening of a grand jury inquiry into the murder of Eddie Tancil, Cicero roadhouse owner, yesterday, and the slaying of Dion O'Banion, florist-gunsman, two weeks ago.

Early tonight two armed men forced George Heaney, 30, messenger for the Pantheon Theater, out of a taxi-cab and robbed him of $6,000 in currency, which he was carrying to a bank three blocks away. The cab driver, witnessing the holdup, fled and is being sought by the police for questioning.

Sam Masotosky and his son, Benjamin, were held up in their second hand store by two men and robbed of $2,500 in jewels and $200 in currency.

Burglars broke into the Klein Jewelry Shop in the heart of the loop district and made away with $50,000 in diamonds, currency and jewelry. Mounted gems valued at $150,000 were overlooked. The safe of the Pershing Theater was cracked and $2,000 in money taken. An unusual number of minor holdups was reported to the police.

The grand jury began its investigation into gangland warfare by summoning Martin Sinec, waiter in Tancil's saloon, a witness to the slaying of his employer and who was himself wounded, and Roman Hempel, the bartender. That the O'Banion killing would be subjected to inquiry at the same time was indicated when William F. Schofield, the gangster's partner in the florist business, and several children who saw the flight of the murderers, appeared before the jury when the Tancil witnesses were dismissed.

Drunken Driver Is Fined $100, Costs

None of the occupants of either machine were injured but the automobiles were badly damaged.

HOLSTEIN MEN HEAR REPORTS

Annual Meeting Held in City Hall Auditorium Yesterday.

The annual meeting, making the close of the first year in the history of the Danforth Holstein Fresian Association, in which business men of Escanaba and farmers of the Danforth community are cooperating, was held yesterday at the city hall, when August Severinsen of Nowhall and C. W. Malloch, vice president of the State Savings Bank of Escanaba, were re-elected as directors of the association, each for a term of three years.

Reports read at yesterday's meeting by Joseph Turner, secretary-manager of the association, showed that the first year in the history of the association has been an eminently successful one, in spite of the fact that it was undertaken under most unpropitious circumstances. The entire shipment of 16 pure bred Holstein cows and one bull suffered from the effects of the long trip from the lower peninsula, which consumed five days and was undertaken when severe winter weather conditions prevailed.

Balance in Treasury.
The reports showed that the total shipment cost, delivered in Escanaba was $3,556.88 and at the close of the fiscal year there remained in the association treasury $846.44. Of the original herd there are now in the hands of the farmer members of the association, 11 cows and one of the best bulls ever brought to the peninsula. Cows that proved unsatisfactory were killed for beef and two of the number have been replaced by an additional purchase. Another cow is now to be replaced at the farm of Charles Cota. The increase in calves born to the original shipment of cows was five heifer calves and seven bulls. Five of the bull calves were sold to farmers in various sections of Delta county for $130 and two remain to be disposed of.

The butter fat test of all of the cows owned by the association and submitted at yesterday's meeting, showed that all made most satisfactory records for two year old heifers.

Farmers Satisfied.
Within a year the pure blooded bull brought to Delta county by the association and being cared for at Ferguson Bros. farm, will have become the father of 44 calves, tending additional impetus to the better cow movement in this county.

All of the farmers interested in the association yesterday expressed themselves as eminently satisfied with the results accomplished during the first year and are looking forward to a far more successful record in the coming year.

John Loomis Taken Into Custody for Marquette Police

John Loomis, arrested here yesterday by Sheriff J. P. Carney at the request of Marquette county authorities, was taken to Marquette last night to be arraigned on a charge of embezzlement.

Postal inspectors also desire to question Loomis, it was said, about his movements the night last April when the Chatham postoffice was dynamited and robbed. Orville Moffett, an convict, is under arrest, charged with the Chatham "job." He was a close friend of Loomis, it was said, and postal officials are known to believe that Loomis' automobile may have been used by the two men on the night of the Alger county blast.

Loomis was not questioned here about either the embezzlement case or any knowledge he may have of the Chatham explosion.

EARLY MAILING IS ADVOCATED

Postal Force Here Prepares to Maintain Last Year's High Standard

Postal employees will be permitted again this year to eat Christmas dinner with their families. Postmaster John A. Semer has received a bulletin from Postmaster-General Harry S. New ordering all work suspended at 11 a. m. on Christmas-Day, except what is necessary to dispatching outgoing first class mail and newspapers. There will be no rural delivery service on that day.

Pointing out that the greatest task of the year is the handling of Christmas mail, Mr. New urges early preparation on the part of postal employees and early mailing in the part of the public.

The Bulletin.
His bulletin follows: "All work in postoffices, including carrier service, shall be discontinued at 11 o'clock on Christmas morning, except such as is absolutely necessary for dispatching outgoing first-class mail and newspapers, and receiving but not working incoming mail. There will be no rural delivery service on that day."

"This message is sent to you for the purpose of impressing upon you the importance of making your plans early and pursuing them vigorously to the end that Christmas mail may be handled to the satisfaction of all."

Last year the Escanaba postoffice staff established a remarkable record in its handling of the Christmas load. The men worked long hours at high pressure, but when the Christmas dinner whistle blew there were no undelivered packages on the shelves at the postoffice. The same sort of service will be the goal of the staff this year.

Public Must Help.
Co-operation of patrons of the office is a necessary factor. "If you want your Christmas mail delivered on time, see that you mail the gifts you send early enough to reach their destination on time," the clerks urge. Stormy weather and snow blockades also add to the troubles of the postal department in moving the enormous amount of mail matter shipped during the pre-holiday period.

In this connection the postmaster calls attention to the fact that Christmas mail for delivery on rural routes should be dropped in time to arrive at destination by Wednesday, December 24, as there will be no deliveries made over these routes on Christmas day. For the first time in the history of the service, Christmas was observed as a holiday by all rural route carriers last year. The experiment proved so successful that it will be continued indefinitely.

Careful Mailing.

Milestones of Service

THIS rioting, pushing, fast-stepping age of ours, with all its complexity, concentration and achievements, never could have attained its present development had it not been for petroleum and the long list of useful products which stem from this one widely distributed raw material.

Today, when almost everything we do, from the felling of trees to the keeping of accounts, is accomplished with mechanical assistance, the refining of crude oil and the compounding of the numberless products derived from this base is one, if not the most essential of all industries.

From crude petroleum come the most readily procured, best and cheapest lubricating oils and greases, and from the same source we get gasoline, the most economical, most mobile and most compact source of power yet discovered.

In the upbuilding of this great industry the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been a pioneer; an advanced worker on the forefront of progress.

Today, skillful, highly trained men working with every facility which science, or their own ingenuity can suggest, are striving to perfect still further, the score of useful products going to the public under the brands of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Throughout the ten middle western states in which this company maintains distributing facilities, is an ever-growing organization working, building to insure every person in the territory getting standardized, superior quality petroleum products he needs, when and where he wants them.

And always the company is looking forward, building and training for the year to come.

Office boys of thirty years ago are Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) today—office boys of today are being schooled, trained and developed for places on the Board thirty years from now.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the record it has made in keeping ahead of the times, and believes that each progressive step has been marked by a milestone of service to the thirty million people of the Middle West.

Under the leadership of Mr. Gilbert, these voices have been blended into a perfect singing unit of astonishing power and beauty.

A dramatized cathedral choir service is given, sung to the accompaniment of an especially constructed reed organ and presented in choir vestments and with special lighting and scenic effects.

Opening with a church procession, among other sacred numbers, such selections as "The Festival Te Deum," "The Sanctus," "Prayer," from Lohengrin, the "Hallelujah Chorus," and "The Reconciliation," are sung.

Another part of the company's program, given in full evening dress, includes selections from both grand opera and light opera.

Ample Leg Room Is Provided in Cars Built by French

Paris.—Long legs have finally overcome tradition in the French automobile. Until this year the body with liberal room in the driver's seat has been rare.

"We've always known the driver was cramped," said one of the leading factory's representatives recently, "but what would you have us do? In the first cars the driver sat up straight. Later the manufacturer built the body for a short chauffeur, and with most of the room in the back for the owner and his friends. Someone then adopted the standard of about five feet for as the height of the driver and this has been maintained. Many people complained, but the practice continued except where the owner ordered a special body and had it built so he himself might drive. But now foreigners, particularly Americans, have presented a strong argument, and it has been a simple matter to make the change so the leg-room in front is no longer a sign of the car's price."

SOUTH AMERICA NOW GETS JAP HOME SEEKERS

Lima, Peru.—The economic future of Peru being largely dependent on immigration, because the native population is small, the country today takes an especial interest in the foreigners who journey from their own lands to settle within the boundaries of the Peruvian republic.

The question of the coming of Japanese has attracted attention, particularly as the Japanese quotas have lately increased. Also it is reported here that a company has been formed in Japan to encourage emigration to both Peru and Brazil. There is a feeling locally that the moment has come to regulate immigration from Japan; that with Peruvian borders Peru should safeguard her own interests. The ability of the Japanese successfully to engage in various enterprises, and in some cases to undersell native merchants, coupled with the fact that they are clannish and slow in assimilating the customs of the country, has not made them popular here. Nevertheless a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation between Peru and Japan signed in Washington in 1915 and subsequently revoked, recently has been renewed.

Peru has in the past tried to stimulate immigration from Italy and Germany, whose people have been found especially adaptable to the needs of the country and who make good Peruvian citizens. A continuation of these efforts would, it is believed, find popular support.

There are today no restrictions upon the entry of Japanese into Peru, yet remarkably few have so far come here. Reliable estimates place the present number at 10,000. Peru has a total population of 4,500,000. Lima counts about 6,000 Japanese residents, the others living in the provinces.

Unlike the Chinese, whose entrance into the country is restricted and who, in many cases, are employed on the various ranches as coolie laborers, the Japanese are both progressive and enterprising. Many of them are engaged in lucrative business ventures, principally grocery and wine stores, furniture and wood working establishments, coffee shops, restaurants, barber shops, shirt makers, bakery establishments and general trade merchants. In very rare instances do the Japanese in Peru engage in menial forms of labor. In the city of Lima, grocery stores especially are controlled by them, and they also control the only rubber manufacturing plant in the republic.

Regarding recent reports that the recall of the Peruvian minister at Tokio was connected with the immigration of Japanese to Peru, information obtained in reliable quarters indicates such was not the case. The minister asked for leave of absence and transfer to another post.

RAILWAY CREWS MAKING SURVEY OF CROSSING

Conference Between City and C. & N. W. May Result

Chicago & North-Western construction engineers have been engaged the last few days in making a survey of the district, surrounding the Stephenson avenue crossing, which would be affected if a grade separation should be decided upon between the railway and the city, or ordered by the state utilities commission.

The matter of a grade separation has been a topic of correspondence between the city administration and North-Western officials for some time past. At a recent meeting, the city council instructed the city manager to notify the company that it would expect a definite answer to its proposal for a conference within a short time. Otherwise, it was announced that the city would refer the matter to the state utilities commission.
