GOOD FELLOWS STILL WANTED

Little Girl Goes Fifty-Fifty With Someone Who Needs Dolly.

Two good-sized truck loads of toys, given to the municipal welfare department by youngsters who had outgrown them and by parents of the children who had tired of the playthings, have been repaired by members of the fire department and will be distributed with the Christmas baskets which the Escanaba Woman's club and the Salvation Army will provide for unfortunate families next week.

The toys range from tiny dolls and tin mechanical contrivances, to large rocking horses, rickshaws, chairs, black boards, skates, sleds, teeter-totter outfits and many larger and more substantial articles.

Children Generous.

Some of them came to the city hall badly in need of repair. A few were in good condition. The firemen have given many of their leisure hours to the repair work. They have everything in ship-shape, bright and as good as new. The toys will gladden the hearts of many an Escanaba child whose faith in Christmas otherwise would have been destroyed.

It is surprising how many of the toys have been taken to the city hall by their original owners. Joseph Greenfield, director of the welfare department, said. One little girl came with two dolls yesterday. "They're all the dolls I've got," she said. "I expect there's lots of little girls who would like to have one of them. You can take which ever one you want, and I'll keep the other one."

"Good Fellow" Spirit.

"It is surprising," said Mr. Greenfield, "could be spread about among the men and women of the city. There would be no need for the appeals for volunteer 'Good Fellows' to contribute to the Woman's club Christmas basket fund. There'd be more money available without asking than the club could use."

Unfortunately, however, not all of the people of the city are following the little girl's example of dividing "fifty-fifty" with those who will be without Christmas things unless somebody lends a helping hand. The fund is not large enough. Miss Martha Green, chairman of the Woman's club philanthropic committee, can still use considerable money in preparing the baskets.

Good Fellows who want to really "make the words 'Merry Christmas' mean something are asked to send their checks to her without delay.

LUMBER TRADE

According to reports from all producing sections, the lumber market during the last week has been unusually active for this time of the year, when inventories and the close approach of the holidays normally have a deadening effect. There has, of course, compared with the very considerable demand during the latter part of November, been some lessening, but this has not been nearly as marked as had been expected. Inquiries meanwhile are very plentiful, and all indications point to even more active buying by both retail dealers and industrial consumers soon after the first of the year, says the American Lumberman, Chicago. The recent demand has depleted stocks of many popular items, and wholesalers report growing difficulty in placing orders, both in the South and on the west Coast. The mills, having accumulated sizable order files, show no eagerness for new business and are consistent in their refusal of orders for future delivery unless the price is left open; this because they have confidence in the market's strength. Prices are very firm in practically every wood and are steadily advancing.

Southern pine is in a most advantageous situation. Not only has it enjoyed a continued excellent demand from southern cities and agricultural districts, but has also had a good call from other sections, particularly the middle West. A most encouraging trade has begun to develop in the oil fields. Placements of railroad and car materials since the national election have had much to do with the present strength of the market. Exports have also improved lately and promise well for the next year.

Douglas fir has enjoyed a big demand for rail delivery to the middle West and east, and its cargo delivery to the Atlantic seaboard. Shipments are being made as fast as the lumber is produced and there are virtually no stocks available on the Coast. Western pines have also benefited by the recent situation. While demand for shop lumber has remained relatively poor, that for yard stock has been heavy and has resulted in a materially stronger market.

A good demand continues to be reported by hardwood manufacturers, with nearly all the consuming industries actively in the market. There is also an improved outlook for business from the automobile industry, which fact is especially encouraging to the hardwood mills. Hardwood prices have showed further strengthening, practically all along the line, but have not advanced materially as yet.

"CAL" REVIEWS FARM PROBLEMS

President Has Long Talks With Agriculture Leaders.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Copyright 1924, by the Escanaba Press.)

Washington, Dec. 19.—President Coolidge gave a considerable part of his day to the discussion of agriculture.

Judge R. W. Bingham, of Louisville, chairman of the National Council of the Cooperative Marketing Associations of America, had a long conference with the president which was followed by another between Mr. Coolidge and A. C. Harrison, of Santa Paula, California, president of the California Farm Bureau and R. W. Wilson, president of the American Cooperative Society of California, the latter two having been granted an engagement at the request of Gray Silver, the head of the American Farm Bureau.

Judge Bingham's visit had nothing to do with that of the other two cooperative farm leaders, his discussion covering mainly the important conference that is to be held on January 5 of all the principal co-operative organizations in the farm world. Judge Bingham has associated with him on the national council such men as Carl Williams of Oklahoma; Aaron Sapiro of California; Dan Wallace of St. Paul, Minn.; and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Rejects Big Group.

This group represents a membership of more than 600,000 farmers who are actively engaged in cooperative marketing. It is run on business principles and beginning of a real step toward the ideal state in agriculture which has been urged for a generation. It is one of the devices by which the farmer is learning to help himself without government interference or much government assistance.

The fact that the president talked with Judge Bingham at length means that he recognizes the importance of the national council of the cooperatives and it would not be surprising if he delivered a carefully prepared address on agricultural policy when the meeting occurs.

The cooperatives represented by Judge Bingham realize that the government can help to coordinate in various ways and can especially be of assistance in bringing the department of agriculture to the aid of the farmer. But, by and large the cooperatives want to work out their own problems and they have already been encouraged by the success of the last three years to believe that such a formula is best for all concerned.

Commission Meets Jan. 5.

By a coincidence the agricultural commission appointed by President Coolidge to investigate the whole farm problem resumes its sessions here on January 5, so there is no doubt that the co-

GAS HOLDER IS OFF THE TRACK

City Crews Fighting Severe Cold to Put It Back in Working Order.

Gas plant employees, assisted by a crew of other municipal utilities forces, were still working frantically late last night to repair the relief gas holder at the plant which apparently exploded yesterday morning to take a Christmas holiday vacation.

The holder is surrounded by a steel jacket which rises up and down, according to the quantity of its contents, on little wheels which run on a track. The holder "jumped off the track" and one side slipped out of the mechanism, twenty inches.

Immediate steps were taken to remove the gas from the holder by pumping it into the mains, and to make arrangements to supply the city's gas needs while repairs were being made. The cold was severe and the work extremely difficult. It had not been completed last night.

No Fear of Shutdown.

"Gas users need not be alarmed," City Manager Fred R. Harris said last night. "There will be no shortage unless something else gives way which is not an impossibility, under the increased strain on the remaining units of the plant, but which is unlikely. We have many men on the job as can think it will be long before the repairs are completed.

"Strange," he added, "how such accidents and breakdowns always happen on the coldest days of the year."

Christmas Tree at Foot of Ludington

Escanaba's municipal Christmas tree will be set up at the foot of Ludington street, near the bay, in stand of on the corner of South 11th street and First avenue, the city council has decided. All travelers who enter Ludington street from many blocks will be able to see the brightly illuminated symbol of the great holiday. Workers were putting the tree in place yesterday.

HUNGARY WON'T RETURN TO RED REGIME AGAIN

(By The Associated Press.)

East Lansing, Mich.—The fact that Hungary had Bolshevism for a few months after the war is the best guarantee that Hungary never will have Bolshevism again was the joint answer of Dr. Geza Doby, of the University of Budapest and Dr. Alexander Kotlan of the Veterinary College of Budapest, to the question of what effect the Slav experiment had upon the thinking people of Hungary. The two doctors from the Budapest schools are at the Michigan Agricultural College for a year on an exchange of professorship basis brought about through the activities of the American-Hungarian Foundation.

Dr. Doby is professor of agronomy at the University of Budapest and Dr. Kotlan is lecturer in zoology and parasitology in the veterinary college, with the title of assistant professor. At the close of the present school year they expect to return to their respective schools with a view to adding to the commercial exchanges between the two countries.

products and is in the market to buy manufactured materials, especially those involving the use of steel or iron and in the last 12 months has increased its importation of automobiles more than 200 per cent, they estimated.

Loans Will Help.

The doctors expect the recently negotiated loans to assist the country materially in getting back to normal conditions. Hungarian money has been virtually stable for a year, they said, and the nation is in a transitional stage, moving toward the "gold crown" basis which the two men believe will insure the pre-war stability of their currency.

Both expressed surprise at the size of the United States, the number of automobiles here and the proportions of business, as well as the unusual size of the colleges and universities in this country. The student population of Hungary is not as stable as it is in this nation, they said, but asserted that it has been increasing in stability of their currency.

The foundation which brought the men to this country has the approval of the Hungarian government and the Hungarian schools. Count Paul Teleki, former prime minister and a professor, is the appointee of both the state and the schools to cooperate with the movement.

Four-wheel Brakes, Balloon Tires—and Now DUCO Finish

Since the days of the first "horseless carriage" the motor car industry has been continually revolutionized. Self-starters, balloon tires, four-wheel brakes—these and other improvements have changed the "old-fashioned pleasure car of today" into the modern car of today.

Yet until du Pont chemists perfected DUCO, no radical change had been made in motor car finishes.

Purchasers of these cars are proving to their own satisfaction every claim made for this finish. DUCO is waterproof, weatherproof, it actually improves with age. It has a distinctive, soft lustre that scratches hardly affect it. It is easy to clean with soap, sponges and water, ice, steam, kerosene, and mud. Here come to your shop and see us. New York, Dec. 19.—Spectacular advances in special stocks featured today's market which advanced vigorously until just before the close when heavy week end profit taking sales forced recessions of 1 to 3 points from the earlier highs in many issues. Despite the sharp curtailment in wire service to middle western and far western points because of sleet storms, trading was in enormous volume, the day's sales running over two million shares.

Some of the biggest gains took place in stocks in which a large short interest is believed to exist. The general rail average was slightly lower at the close although New York Central, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville, Southern Railway, Missouri Pacific preferred, Baltimore & Ohio preferred and Chicago Northwestern preferred all broke through their previous 1924 highs.

United States Steel common responded to the further stiffening of commodity prices by touching 119%, the highest quotation since 1917. Crucible and Sloss-Sheffield also touched new tops while Gulf States Steel was run up about four points and then cancelled half of its gain.

Copper shares responded to reports of an increased export demand and additional sales of the red metal at 14 1/2 cents a pound, the year's high. Oil shares were galvanized into action by a remarkable bullish demonstration in the Pan-American issues, each of which closed more than 2 points higher.

Call money held steady at 2 1/2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet. The foreign exchange developed moderate strength. Demand sterling ruled about three-quarters of a cent higher around $4.70 1/2 and French francs were quoted four points higher at 5.29 1/2 cents. Argentine pesos sold round 29 cents, the highest rate reached in recent years.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Cattle, receipts 5,000; most fed steers firm; bulk fed steers 8.00 at 9.50; she stock uneven; averaging about steady; beef heifers dull at week's decline; other classes generally steady; stockers and feeders slow; bulk vealers 9.00 at 9.25; choice kind 10.00 at 10.50 to outsiders.

Student Paid His Way by Banditry (By The Associated Press.) Detroit, Dec. 19.—Arrested last night after he is alleged to have held up two gasoline stations and as he was about to attempt a third, Daniel Agnew, 20, told police he was a University of Michigan student and that he conceived the idea of getting the money to pay him through his college course.

CONFERENCE OF WOMEN TO STUDY CAUSES OF WAR Will Seek Means to Bring World Peace.

By NEA Service. Washington—What causes war? How can these causes be removed and cures instituted to bring about world and community peace? Eight of the largest national women's organizations in the United States have decided that world peace is a far more complicated thing than can be obtained by the simple expedient of adopting slogans and establishing "no more war days."

Such subjects as over-population, armament competition, economic rivalries, and the mass psychology for war as causes of conflict will be explained by experts and specialists. After the course in "causes," there will be a course in possible "cures" and at the end of the week a definite program of work for the future will be formed. Delegates will then be expected to carry to their communities a practical education for peace.

prominent in perfecting the organization are Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who will act as general chairman of the conference; Miss Helen Swain of Cleveland, president of the National League of Women Voters; Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt of Oakland, Calif., president of the American Association of University Women; Mrs. George B. Ford of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A.; and Mrs. John Ferguson of New York, of the council of Women for Home Missions.

Delegates will attend from the American Association of University Women, the National League of Women Voters, Council of Jewish Women, the National Y. W. C. A., the W. C. T. U., the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Council of Women for Home Missions and the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions in North America.

SAYS TOBACCO PLAYS HAVOC WITH BEAUTY Pola Negri Opposed to Women Smoking.

BY JACK JUNGMEYER NEA Service Writer

Hollywood.—You may have observed that the cigaret is no longer used merely to characterize the "bad woman" in films. In practically every play pretending to any sophistication the heroine as well as the female villain smokes more or less. The screen has reflected and perhaps helped cultivate the growing tolerance of the cigaret among women—its divorcement from morals.

Many feminine screen stars and featured players smoke. Many smoke in private whose film roles, they feel, will not yet permit them to indulge lady nicotine on the stage. Pola Negri does not smoke. There was a time when she did. She gave it up. And she deplores the influence the screen may have had in forming the habit among young women. Deplores it not on any ethical ground, but because of physical effects, especially upon girls who consider their unclouded beauty an asset.

Iron Trade Review

Cleveland, O., Dec. 19.—Iron Trade Review, yesterday, said: New buying of iron and steel has slowed down leaving producers in possession of well-filled order books, a fundamental market condition that appears very promising. All record now available including the 506,899 ton increase in the Steel Corporation bookings accent the heavy volume of buying that took place in November. The feature of the present situation continues the active way in which users have been converting book obligations into definite business by ordering out material to their plants.

these large consumers of steel who are more interested in fortifying themselves on their future requirements.

At Cleveland, one underframe manufacturer has contracted for more than 50,000 tons for delivery by July 1.

Final figures on building steel awards for November show a total of 220,000 tons or 85 per cent of capacity. The largest total since March 19, 1923.

Reappearance in the market of the American Radiator Company with an inquiry for 60,000 tons for second quarter may foreshadow another large buying movement in pig iron. Cleveland reports pending inquiry of 100,000 tons. At Chicago 20,000 tons of basic have been closed. Certainty of higher coke costs due to the advance in wages has further strengthened pig iron prices. All grades at Pittsburgh have advanced 50 cents to $1 further this week.

IN NEW YORK

New York.—Sixty girls in a sweatshop in Brooklyn were ordered to leave the building when it caught fire. They refused because they were being paid for piece-work and didn't want to lose any time. "We have faith in the firemen and we need the money for Christmas," one of the explained.

Cap Higgins, the artist who fought in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, has purchased an old Grog-Jorgenson rifle. "I'll hang the rifle on the wall and tell visitors that I used it in Luzon," he says. "After while I'll come to believe my own story and by the time my boy inherits the rifle it will be a priceless heirloom of a very brave soldier."

Sea Captains report that compasses are affected to a very marked degree by the steel in New York's buildings. The reaction of the needle varies as many new buildings go up. I am told by Joseph Prendergast, who is both architect and sea-faring man.

"The steak she ordered was so big you could have milked it if it had been any bigger." I heard Al Herman, black-face comedian, spring that line. I doubt if it is new, for so many of his gag wear whiskers.

New York has very freakish weather. A western man tells me that he motored from Ridgefield, Conn., to White Plains in a snow storm the other day. It was quite cold. From White Plains into the city the sun was shining and he needed no overcoat. Amateur weather sharks claim that the bulk of water in Long Island Sound protects New York City from many cold waves.

MIXED UP TITLES. One of our high-school boys went to the library and asked for a copy of "Venus and Adenoids." A search through all the books on physiology failed to reveal it. The librarian asked the name of the author, and the student replied it was Shakespeare. Further questioning brought out the fact that he wanted "Venus and Adenoids."

MERELY A DETAIL.

Electrification of the municipal water pumping station, by the addition of machinery costing $10,000 to permit a saving of $6,000 annually; cannot but be recognized as a sound business step taken by the city administration.

Electrification of the city water pumping station was considered a number of years ago by various administrations, under the old aldermanic form of government, but in spite of the sizable annual saving admitted as possible through the change, the municipality was continually without funds to finance the project and it never proceeded beyond the "consideration" stage.

That it is now possible to make the change, in the regular course of a year's improvement program, is an eloquent commentary upon the manner in which Escanaba's council manager government is functioning.

And this in spite of the fact that the city's debts are being paid off, city taxes are being reduced and more public improvements are going forward than ever before in the history of Escanaba.

And there are cities that persist in clinging to an aldermanic form of government.

LAKE BOATS FOR SALE.
Great Lake states may well take an interest in the announcement from Detroit that the White Star Navigation company, succeeded in point of age and size by only one line on the lakes, is offering for sale almost its entire fleet and all its waterfront, keeping but a single vessel in service.

When Senator LaFollette obtained passage of his high wage and good living measure it was probably his belief that he was acting in the best interest of American seamen.

The trouble is that no tariff keeps out the competition of foreign ships for American trade, and no immigration restrictions prohibit the handling of foreign ships in American and other ports by comparatively inexpensive foreign labor.

To maintain the high wages of the LaFollette bill and at the same time keep a large private fleet in business and sailors in employment requires a subsidy. That seems more obvious now than when President Harding was urging it.

In addition to driving American vessels from the lakes, every port is a sufferer from the LaFollette seamen's law. Escanaba and Gladstone are eloquent examples of such sufferers.

A NEW DRESS AND A PARTY

Chapter XXVI.

Trixie's lunch with Lenora had been delightful, the shopping a success. A new dinner dress and hat, both black, some dainty shoes and gloves, one of the new scarfs in brilliant colors so much in vogue, and Trixie declared it a day—what would Claude say when he saw her dressed all in flimsy black, with a picture hat, like the girl in the painting he had shown her?

Trixie insisted Lenora go with her to Clarissa's studio. "I'll only stay a little while, Lenora. I must be at home when they deliver my things."

disappeared. Gladstone is the home of a grain elevator and extensive docking facilities that have stood unused for years, an investment made worthless by a law that is each year driving more and more vessels from routes and a service they have covered for years.

replied, remembering Clarissa had been divorced, and consequently must have been horribly unhappy. Frank Morton strolled in about four o'clock. He was told the news that Tom had gone away; that Trixie was now available evenings.

"I'll give a party tonight. We mustn't let Trixie be lonely," he declared. "May I use your phone to round up the crowd, Clarissa?"

"Go as far as you like!" I'll send you the monthly bill when it comes in."

They all laughed, but Clarissa's speech had jarred Trixie a little. She had heard Clarissa make such remarks before—about bills, and the like—and she always felt a bit ashamed. Had Clarissa no pride?

She, Trixie, could talk of money to Tom, of paying bills, but she was her husband. She was sure she never could talk to any other man.

Trixie hurried away before the telephoning was ended, but not before she knew that Claude was free, would be at the party. She had been at home but a few minutes when her parcels from the shops arrived. She grew almost faint as she thought she would have missed them had she remained longer, would have been obliged to attend the party in her old clothes.

Trixie spent an hour unpacking and admiring her purchases, then bathed and did her hair. Dinner time came and went, but she was oblivious, felt no hunger. The clock struck seven. Suddenly she remembered Tom, her promise to eat regularly.

with a glass of milk. She rinsed the glass, glad she had no dishes to clear away, then dressed—a process that took some time. "Fine feathers DO make fine birds," Trixie told herself as she looked in the mirror, wishing she had a chevel glass like those in the shops so she might see her entire figure. She tilted the glass on her bureau, but still dissatisfied, climbed on a chair. In this manner she got a sort of view on her skirt, her dainty slippers, and sighing with satisfaction, she threw the brilliant scarf over her shoulders and left the apartment.

Trixie was welcomed boisterously at the studio. Compliments flew about, were showered upon her.

"I didn't know you COULD look so lovely, Trixie, that any human being could," Frank Morton declared.

"You're very sweet in that dress and hat, Trixie. Too bad Tom isn't here to see you," Homer Wheeler said.

Trixie was exultant and joyous too. This was something like. It was going to be just as she had pictured it—the evenings at the studios when one was not embarrassed by being shabby. The door opened and Claude, standing on the threshold made a deep bow, turned to Morton, and said:

"Introduce me to the charming lady in black, Frank. I shall not be happy until I know her."

LICKETY-SNIP The Christmas Sprite

BY MARJORIE HOWE DIXON

Susie Belle chuckled softly. George demanded to know what she was laughing at. "Look! Look! Isn't he perfectly cunning—he's coming this way!" Susie clapped her hands. George looked round, and saw a most adorable elf dancing toward them astride a great shining pair of scissors. His quaint suit with tiny pine cones, and his perky cap of cherry red, set against one eye, was crowned with a bunch of holly berries. "Who are you, Sir?" asked George.

"I'm Lickety Snip, the Christmas Sprite," and with this the elf turned a quick handspiral off his steed, caught the scissors by the handles and clashed the blades right merrily. "And this old boy," said he bowing low, "is my good steed, Two Blades, the fastest and most cutting of all the scissors in Santa's Shop." Two Blades acknowledged the introduction by rearing on his handles and falling with a mighty thump! George and Susie Belle stood hand in hand watching this fascinating exhibition. "We're very pleased to meet you," they chorused. "Can you do any other tricks?" "Indeed we can," said Lickety Snip proudly. "You should see the little sprite suddenly jumped up and caught one end of it. "Here's Brown Paper," he cried. "Now I'll make you a hole so you can climb through and watch us, for the paper had fallen down all over them. Two Blades, cut a hole through quickly and then cut the sweetest little set of steps you ever saw for George and Susie Belle to climb up. George helped his sister, and then came Lickety Snip and last of all Two Blades. "Ladies first!" cried the elf. "We're off."

And up and down clashed Two Blades with Lickety Snip directing him, going into funny little forners and finally ending in a grand snip. "Oh! Oh!" cried Susie Belle. "It's the most beautiful Paper Doll, and it's as big as me. I never did have such a nice Big Paper Doll."

George helped her fold the big doll carefully so as she could sit down beside the elf and watch, for Two Blades was already clashing his blades with impatience ready to be off on the next exciting excursion. "Now, for St. George and the Dragon!" shouted Lickety Snip, and off he dashed again with his possible to follow, so swiftly did the strange pair dash about, into and out of the corners, cutting around in all sorts of swift little twists and turns. "What will it be, do you suppose?" asked Susie Belle. George didn't know, but in a minute back raced Lickety Snip and Two Blades. "There, isn't he a beauty," cried the elf, and he held up a wonderful kite in the shape of a dragon!

Tourists Remember Boys Who Returned Missing Suitcase

"Please send us immediately, the names of the two small boys who found our suitcase in the street and returned it to us through your department," a letter to Chief of Police John J. Tolan from George P. Mettnacht of Manitowoc, received here yesterday requested. "We want to remember the youngsters at Christmas time." Mack Olds, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Olds, and Robert Young, of Saginaw, who was visiting at the R. E. Cheney home here last summer, were the youngsters. They found the suitcase in a street where it had fallen from an automobile and took it to the police station. The police traced it to Manitowoc and saw that it was restored to its owners. The incident occurred last July. The boys and the police department had forgotten it. Apparently Mr. Mettnacht had not.

Bottle of Milk Was Only "Moonshine," Policemen Discover

"A bottle of milk," when its cardboard cover was removed, yielded nearly a quart of moonshine whiskey yesterday at the saloon of Adolph Petre, 1400 Ludington street. Petre enameled a milk bottle white, filled it with "moon" and placed it in an inconspicuous corner of his ice chest. The enamel, however, had chipped somewhat and the eagle eyes of the raiders discovered the ruse. Petre was arrested on a charge of possession of liquor. The sanitary conditions of his place, which are said to be very bad, will be checked up in the meantime and if necessary, the establishment will be closed until it has been given a thorough cleaning. Bits of Handwork for Gifts

BY MARJORIE HOWE DIXON

One hears so much of the personal touch—and among the gift suggestions for this year, the personal touch is more than ever emphasized.

The use of dolls in gift making has become so general that one may buy several sizes, from the baby ones with wire skirts, to act as telephone shields and lamps, to the very tiniest Dutch head to fasten to the handle of a powder puff.

Among the larger dolls are those of the French variety used as cushion tops, spreading their ruffled voluminous skirts over the cushion itself. Then there are the whimsical and wicked-eyed French dolls made of wire and stuffed with cotton, who can twine their necks with no effort whatever.

With a sweet cap had all her skirts trimmed with scalloped blue ribbon with tiny threads of silver running through them. Underneath she concealed the fluffiest of powder puffs.

Narrow white lace on pink ribbon made her pretty skirts, while her merry face painted on white silk peered out from a cunning lace bonnet tied beneath her chin. Another pretty gift to a baby was a white silk pussy, to hold sachet, Cotton filled with sweet fragrance filled the funny little kitten, whose face was painted. Its body ended in a long, slim tail of silk bound by heavy silk thread.

And speaking of kittens, these favorite toys of the tiniest person, one will find kittens of all kinds among the stamped—ready-to-be-embroidered sets. Children can make many of these, and rabbits, too. The designs are simple and easy to execute and not too difficult for small fingers.

An older girl might enjoy making a pretty lady of crepe paper on a half pint mayonnaise jar. Any small glass jar with screw-on lid will do. She will need a small pool of copper wire, some fresh, clean cotton and some crepe paper in dainty colors. Lavender and green are pretty together. A pink dress, with green and lavender ribbons has its charm, too.

First she may make a cotton body covered with white crepe, and wire this firmly to the lid of the jar. A round head can be wired from the body and the extension of the two ends of wire will make ears. These are wound with cotton and covered with white, too.

Paints will be needed for the face, and the hair is made of the cotton sewed in place. Now to dress the lady. First the girl must gather a strip of crepe paper and wire it to the jar itself. This is an underskirt. The lady then has made for her an overskirt attached to the body so that the lady herself may be unscrewed from the top of the jar. Tiny ribbons of the crepe paper will make pretty decorations for the dress which should be kept in the general period of the hoop-skirted eighteen-sixties. The completed result may be used either as a candy jar, or as a container for tiny guest-powder-puffs.

A more elaborate piece of work requiring more materials and time, too, will be the composition of an entire dresser set in black satin edged with gold set. If one did not care for the lace, narrow pink and lavender ribbon could be substituted, for the edging.

Two cardboard trays would be usable, one for pins and the other for the nail things—the buffer, nail file, etc. A cover in or isinglass over the inside lining of satin is practical if one cares to go to that expense. The edging is the same for all the dresser appointments. A case is made for the talcum powder can of the satin, and a round box is covered for face powder. These are decorated with flat bouquets of silk flowers, primly tied with ribbons. The hand mirror, er set might be completely renewed by this decorative treatment, in case one was fond of the old set, and desired to keep it in use. The general effect is very handsome and will be sure to please the recipient.

AMUNDSON'S SAILORS WANT TO COME BACK Are Tired of 2 1/2 Years in Northern Seas.

By NEA Service.

Seattle, Wash.—After two and a half years of drifting in arctic ice, the handful of hardy adventurers that put to sea in Roald Amundsen's schooner Maud is beginning to weaken.

All hands are ready to call it a day and come back. But, caught in the ice, they can't. All they can do is drift on and on, waiting for tide or Fate to pull them out.

That is the gist of the latest report on the expedition received by U. S. Weather Bureau officials.

The expedition was launched on the quite well established theory that the movement of arctic ice, caused by ocean currents, is over the north pole. Amundsen's plan was to force the Maud under her own power as far north as possible, then let her drift with the floes. His idea was to collect almost every conceivable type of geological, oceanological and meteorological information.

Most important of all, by plumbing the depths of the sea and gathering data on wind, tidal and other conditions, he hoped to enable science to predict weather conditions in the temperate regions six months ahead.

First Trip Unsuccessful. With this in mind, Amundsen set out with the Maud in 1919, but the venture was short lived. The next year the schooner was pulled out of the ice and rescued off northern Siberia by the U. S. coast-guard cutter Bear.

Undiscouraged by this, Amundsen resolved to try again, and in 1922 the Maud sailed through Bering Straits with a dozen men on board.

The ship was provisioned for seven years. It also had on board seven boxes, containing Christmas presents for the crew—one box for each Christmas they might be marooned. And a phonograph donated by the girls of Norway.

For a time the Maud kept in touch with the U. S. Weather Bureau by radio. Then she drifted out of range.

The message that just came was relayed. It stated that the Maud was north of Wrangel Island, caught in the floes, and drifting rapidly to the north and west.

Just why the explorers were discouraged and ready—though unable—to turn back, was not specified. The nerve strain of being cared together, helpless, in the stark, frozen wastes of the far north—perhaps of listening to the same talking machine records over and over again, of knowing months in advance what each dinner menu would be—is believed to have played its part.

Nerve Strain Telling. And the message failed to tell whether they had overcome their urge to break into the remaining Christmas boxes!

Amundsen, who did not accompany the expedition in person, is preparing meanwhile to fly over the pole by aircraft. It is reported from Christiana that he has been provided with a fund of $100,000 for the venture.

It will be his third attempt. His first polar air project—a flight from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen—failed when his machine went bad. His second effort was halted by lack of funds.

But the benefits to the science of weather forecasting derived from even a most successful arctic expedition are substantial.

According to Charles F. Marvin, Weather Bureau chief, "If we could receive regular polar weather reports day by day and year after year, there is no telling what we might learn."

"I cannot predict that we would be able to forecast weather for an entire season in advance, but there is at least that hope.

"But reports sent down by individual arctic expeditions are too desultory to be used as an accurate basis for calculations. So far they have done us little good."

JACK EASTWOOD INJURED IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Jack Eastwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Eastwood, Oden Avenue, who was injured in an auto accident, Saturday, Dec. 13, is reported to be recovering and will be discharged from the hospital at Ann Arbor today. He will arrive in this city in a few days to spend the holidays with his parents.

Jack, who is a student at Ann Arbor, in company with four other students, left by auto for Ypsilanti where they were invited to dinner at the home of one of the occupants of the car.

A car coming from Ypsilanti skidded on the icy road, catching the fender of the car as they passed and caused it to turn over on its side. The driver of the car, Mr. Thom, whose home is in Chicago, suffered a fractured skull and collar bone and was rushed to a Ypsilanti hospital. His parents came from Chicago and have been with him since.

Eastwood sustained injuries to his right shoulder which did not appear serious at first and he was taken to the students' home at Ann Arbor. Later he consulted Dr. Badgley, who placed the shoulder in a cast and fastened his arm to his side, as it was discovered he had a fractured shoulder blade. His friends are hoping for a speedy recovery.
