SHORT STORY TO BE READ AT CHURCH SERVICE

An especially attractive program has been planned for the evening service in the First Presbyterian church at 7:30 o'clock. This unique attraction will be a reading of that remarkable story, "The Mansion," by Dr. Henry Van Dyke. It sustains the interest from beginning to end and brings home to the heart one of the great truths of life. While the story is read by the pastor, the Rev. John B. Hubbard, there will be an organ accompaniment by Mrs. F. M. Fernstrom, suited to the various moods of the characters in the story, and involving twelve numbers on the organ, any one of which is worth attending to hear. The fascination of the story, coupled with the rich melody of the organ accompaniment make a combination that is most impressive.

The reading will take the place of the sermon in the regular evening service. This service is not only for the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, but for all who care to attend. Large crowds have attended the previous special services at the church.

Dr. Van Dyke was at one time ambassador from the United States to the Netherlands, and has just recently resigned as professor of English at Princeton University, and is internationally known as a writer of beautiful and stirring English.

"Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the only thing that relieved me of constipation"

Beware of the dangerous diseases which are constipation's toll.

Constipation is dreaded, not only for its insidious self, but for the serious diseases which may be traced to it. Mr. Palludon tells us the helpful story of his relief:

Doing hard work while constipated brought on piles, from which I suffered for two years. I tried almost every remedy without success. Finally I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and it has made me fit again. It is the only thing that helped me and I want everybody to know about it.

(Signed) JOHN PALLUDON, Clewiston, N. Y.

You can get sure, prompt, permanent relief from constipation. Simply eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. It is nature's own way of cleaning the intestine. It is a bulk food which sweeps the system of constipation's poisons and stimulates normal, healthy action.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to be permanently effective, if eaten regularly, or your grocer returns the purchase price. Eat it with milk, cream, fruits, or try the recipes printed on the package. Made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Your grocer sells it.

POSTAL RATES ARE RECEIVED

Detailed instructions relative to the revised rates of postage, effective April 15, have been received here by Postmaster John A. Semer. The most noticeable change is the rate of circular and printed matter, which will be one and a half cents for each two ounces, or fraction of two ounces. This means that ordinary small circulars will have to bear one and a half cent of postage stamps. No word as to the desirability or printing of such a stamp has yet been received. Books and catalogues, as well as sheets, bulbs, cuttings and plants, will retain the rate of one cent for each two ounces, up to eight ounces.

Post Cards Two Cents.
Post cards will be mailable at two cents, letter rates will remain unchanged.

There will be a definite line of demarcation between third and fourth class mails, there being no further attempt to distinguish between printed matter and merchandise. After April 15, both of the latter will be considered third class, with a rate of one and a half cent for two ounces, up to eight ounces, and beyond that weight, as fourth class, parcel post zone rates applying.

New Parcel Post Service.
Parcel post rates remain fundamentally the same except that a two cent service charge will be added on all parcels excepting those originating on rural routes. Special delivery service on parcel post will be supplanted by a "special handling" service, rated at 25 cents per parcel, which will procure first class handling.

Resident of City Fifty Two Years Called By Death

Mrs. Felicie Boudreau, widow of the late Laurent Boudreau, passed away at her home, 611 First Ave. South, Thursday afternoon at 12:40 o'clock, after an illness of four weeks, due to heart trouble and other complications. Mrs. Boudreau who was unusually active for a woman of four score years, had never known a day's illness until she was stricken a few weeks ago and it was with great reluctance that she was forced to remain in bed.

Mrs. Boudreau was a woman loved by all who knew her. Coming to this city from St. Lawrence, province of Quebec, Canada, where she was born, April 25th, 1844, she lived here continuously. She had many intimate friends, not only among the older residents, practically all of whom knew her well, but among the younger people.

Lived Here 52 Years.
Throughout her life, kindness and friendliness were her cardinal principles, and they gained for her the esteem of the community. Her paramount desire to help others manifested itself to a marked degree during the earlier period of her life, coming here 52 years ago when Escanaba was only a cluster of log houses scattered here and there. There were no hospitals and nurses were scarce. She extended her charity and mother love to all the needy as well as to her large circle of friends. She was always an active worker in St. Anne's parish. Her husband who was also widely known, preceded her in death three years ago, leaving as the sole survivor an only daughter, Miss Marie Boudreau of this city, to whom the heartfelt

Are fabrics this Spring. Rich, lustrous, beautifully colored, printed in designs sketched by some of our greatest artists—there is a natural beauty that requires no touching up.

Collars and bands of self material—dull and satin sides of fabrics used in contrast—the tone-on-tone idea—all are trimming touches that carry out the popular idea of ultra-simplicity that is so popular this season.

This tendency towards unadornment first became conspicuous when Mildy adopted the same severity in the cut of her gowns that she affected in the cut of her sleek, straight bob.

Today we find the smartest of her hats are untrimmed or self-trimmed. Her newest gowns are without the frills and bizarre color touches that marked her past. Her hose, more filmy and sheer in texture than ever, is now uncolored. And now that the smartest of her gowns are untrimmed—she is truly sans adorning.

In selecting your Spring frocks, be most careful in the choice of fabrics—choose the ones that will carry simple lines with distinction—fabrics that are sufficient unto themselves.

to continue a carefully planned street paving program, has been the basis of much favorable comment, not only among the people of Escanaba but in many nearby cities.
Commenting on the action of the Escanaba administration the Mining Journal of Marquette said:
"Escanaba has declared a paving holiday.
"Isn't that Escanaba has done all the necessary paving. Escanaba still has much paving that it ought to do.
"But if Escanaba did it this year it would involve running into debt. The commission has decided that the paving better wait until it can be paid for as the city goes along.
"it is a commendable decision.
"A city can not have a better asset than a balanced budget.
"Such a budget tells the world that the conduct of its affairs is in the hands of business men, and that the taxpayer is getting a good run for his money.
"Accept the principle that the budget must balance at the end of the year, and you have an encouragement of municipal thrift and close management.
"The city knows just where it stands, at all times. Its bills are paid promptly and its credit is of the best.
"Escanaba has contracted the balanced budget habit and finds it a habit hard to break."

WEAKNESS IS SHOWN.

While Escanaba for many years looked with envious eyes on the results accomplished by Marquette's commission form of government and continues to admire the admirable manner in which financial and general affairs of that city are conducted, developments of recent weeks have shown the weakness of the purely commission governmental plan. The Marquette municipal water department recently sought authority to purchase a truck for use in that department.

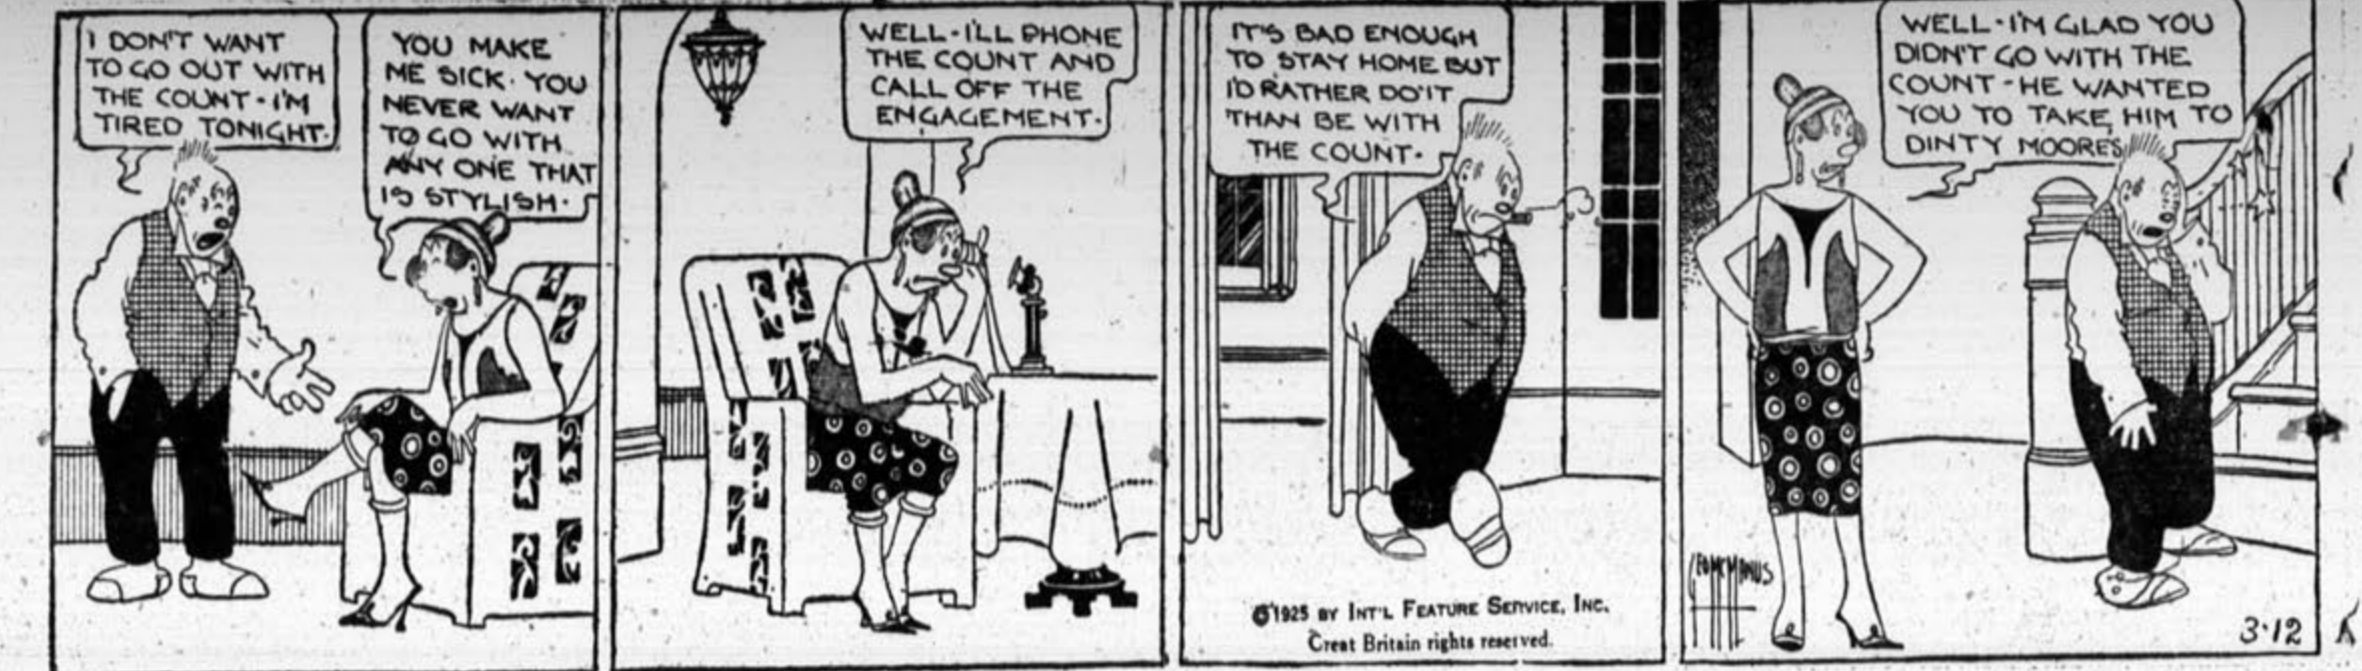

The departmental request resulted in some friction developing between the commissioners in charge of the various departments. As the result of the discussion, the Mining Journal suggested that a survey should be made of the trucks owned by the various city departments and an investigation might develop that another truck purchase was not necessary. It was suggested further that if it should be found that another department owned an extra truck it might be "loaned" to the water department, or "rented" by that department from the department owning the machine.

Such a situation could not develop in a council manager government. One directing head supervises the work of all municipal departments and all city owned trucks are used in every department as they are needed, making for what Escanaba considers, greater economy and greater efficiency for all city departments.

ACTION IS LAUDED.

The sound business judgment displayed by the administration in charge of Escanaba's affairs, in declaring a paving holiday for this city until funds are available from regular sources of revenue,

Chapter XLIII

At the time of her leaving Reed, Margaret Cramer formed but the slightest of Dorothy's reasons—the incident she had observed, the words she had heard, but an added pin prick to her determination. Reed did love her—Reed had broken his promises—Reed had not made her happy—these to Dorothy were the vital things then.
But the longer Dorothy was away from Reed the more she thought and learned of life, the more the incident stood out; took on a more sinister meaning.
No girl—no self-respecting girl—which Dorothy believed Margaret to be, would tell a man she loved him unless she thought her love was unreciprocated. Gradually Dorothy had come to believe that Reed had ceased to care for her, that Margaret Cramer had taken him from her. Dorothy couldn't understand it—didn't try to. To her Margaret was a plain, unattractive working girl who might know a lot about helping Reed, but who wasn't at all in his class.
Always averse to Margaret's presence in Reed's study, but mainly because it inhibited her freedom to interrupt, to demand attention, gradually the situation had assumed more importance until Dorothy came to give it as a reason why Reed did not want her there. Why he said she disturbed him so he couldn't work. But Dorothy had never mentioned the incident, never spoken to Margaret Cramer, not even to her father or mother. It seemed better to her that having her for a moment look at another—especially at his stenographer—the then go.

Lucille came in and tried to comfort her, but her words fell upon deaf ears. Dorothy could sense nothing but failure, foresee nothing but disaster.
"Only dad hadn't made me promise!" Dorothy cried. "It is the only cruel thing dad ever did, asking me to come back when I'm not wanted."
"You don't know you're not wanted," Lucille replied, and for answer Dorothy pointed to the paper.
"Newspaper twaddle!" Lucille sniffed. She was determined to treat every obstacle lightly until Dorothy had seen Reed. "No one pays any attention to such statements, and aside from that I don't believe it refers to Reed."
"I do," Dorothy replied.
"Well, I'm hungry. Let's order tea, and then I must run along home." Lucille summoned the waiter, ordered a substantial tea, and saw that Dorothy ate her toast, drank her tea. She also chatted of inconsequential things in the hope of cheering Dorothy before she left.
