PUBLIC SAFETY FUNDS ARE CUT

Senate Committee Slices Highway Patrol Money Request in Half. (By The Associated Press.) Lansing, Mar. 24.—The senate committee on state affairs today reported out the appropriation bill for the state department of public safety with cuts totaling approximately $500,000. The highest cut was made in the appropriation asked to rebuild the summer highways a total which was $1,415,000. The original request was for $5,200,000 for 1925 and $5,000,000 for 1926. The appropriation in the bill is for $2,785,000 for 1925 and $2,750,000 for 1926. The bill also introduced two bills which add to the law list of bills already before the legislature relative to the carrying of dangerous weapons. In the bill introduced Tuesday is a request to consist of the county prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs and chiefs of police of cities in the various counties, to set up with the power to issue or refuse permits to carry arms. A penalty for the carrying of a pistol on the public highway, without a permit or in any place of business unless the place is owned or controlled by the person carrying the arms. Peace officers, members of the army and federal officials are excepted from these provisions. Uniform Fish Laws. The Michigan public utilities commission would be given the power of supervision over the operation of motor vehicles not running on tracks, but operated by railroads or street car companies, under provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Horatio Kautzer. It would not be necessary for the railroads or street car companies to obtain permits to operate. Adjoining municipalities by a three-fifths vote of their various legislative bodies would be authorized to make ordinances, on property located on or near the boundaries of each municipality, according to provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Roy Herrald. In the time of Queen Elizabeth a law was passed that no new building could be erected within three miles of London. Kegan, Ill., returned to her home after a visit in the city. Miss Jennie Nelson of Dargett is visiting friends in the city. Mr. and Mrs. George Schroeder returned last night from a visit to Detroit, Saginaw and Schwanau, Mich.

PULKKINEN TO BE RETURNED TO JAIL HERE

Richard Pulkkinen, of Rock, who wandered out of the circuit room last January and disappeared, shortly after Judge R. C. Flannigan had fined him $400 and $100 costs, has been taken into custody at Hurley, Wis., and will be returned to Escanaba immediately to serve six months in the county jail. Pulkkinen, with a score of others, was sentenced by Judge Flannigan just before the afternoon recess of circuit court. During recess he managed to elude the officers and he made a clean getaway. He was traced to Hurley by Sheriff J. L. Gagney and will be brought here today.

BOND TAXATION BILLS OPPOSED

Senate Refers Truettner, Martin Measures To Judiciary Body. (By The Associated Press.) Lansing, Mich., Mar. 24.—The state's policy of exempting certain bonds and securities from taxation found sufficient defenders in a stormy session of the state senate Tuesday, to scotch the virtual defeat of the Martin and Truettner bond tax bills. With the exception of two staunch champions of security taxation, Senators Howard Baxter of Grand Rapids and Vincent Martin of Fruitport, the measures found but little support from other members of the senate and were referred to the committee on judiciary by a large majority vote. Senator Walter F. Truettner, sponsor for one bill, remained silent, during the debate.

CAR OVERTURNS, DRIVER IS HURT

Ed Jernstrom Suffers Severe Cut As Result of Accident. Edward Jernstrom, 809 South 19th street, is at St. Francis hospital, suffering from a deep three-inch cut in his forehead and a severe shaking up as the result of an automobile accident near the belt, Chemical plant last night. When questioned by Sheriff Carney at the hospital last night shortly after coming out from under the ambulance, Jernstrom had but a haze idea of what had happened and was unable to say what had brought about the overturning of the car. It is however thought that something went wrong with the mechanism and that Jernstrom lost control.

Martin Bill Debated. Debate on the question of abolishing the so-called tax exempt intangibles was initiated when the Martin bill which would place a two mill tax on domestic securities came up for consideration in the committee of the whole. Senator Pearson immediately moved that the bill be referred back to the judiciary committee. Senator Martin rose in defense of his measure declaring that to send the bill back to committee meant its defeat, and stated that in his opinion the imposition of such a tax would benefit the majority of small property holders in the state in relieving them from a excessive property tax. Senator Baxter declared that such legislation would benefit 95 per cent of the citizenry, and would only affect the 5 per cent who hold the majority of bonds taxed under the provisions of the bill. Would Hurt Farmer. Opposition to the measure gained voice when Senator Pearson, Harvey A. Penney of Saginaw and David H. Butler of Foster, declared a security bond tax would raise the rates paid by the borrower and in this manner, hurt the interest of the farmer and smaller business man. Various members who declared their opposition to the two bills stated they would favor and vote for a federal law removing the entire class of tax exempt intangibles. They expressed the opinion that the imposition of a bond tax on the smaller political units would affect a hardship which would be eliminated if a uniform law for the whole country was effected. The Truettner bill which would impose a 3 mill tax on foreign securities which was included in the general discussion on the

The overturned car was discovered shortly before 10 o'clock last night by Harry Tibert of this city. He investigated the wreck and found Jernstrom in an unconscious condition. Picking him up he rushed him to St. Francis hospital where medical assistance was rendered. Examination revealed that the skull had not been fractured and it is thought that Jernstrom is not suffering from any other injuries except the cut in his forehead. An X-ray examination will, however, be made today. The car was badly smashed up, but an examination failed to reveal that it had been in a collision. It was lying in the ditch by the side of the road. Jernstrom is thought to have been alone in the car at the time of the accident, although earlier in the evening he was accompanied by an unidentified man. Martin measure, was referred to the judiciary committee, by a vote of 23 to 8. Bankers Oppose. Both measures reached consideration on the floor of the senate only after a stormy passage, from committee back to committee, during which process, they have been discussed in open hearings and many times amended. The motion which sent them into the judiciary committee is interpreted as the end of consideration in this session of the legislature. Both bills were approved and supported by George Lord, chairman of the state tax commission and were considered a part of the administration tax program. The united opposition of certain banker groups and other organizations, including municipalities and individual members of the legislature are credited with removing the bills from further consideration.

SMART ENSEMBLE SUITS

A delightful choice for Spring and a wise one, too, for these suits will give a two-fold service throughout the season. Straight chic lines that create a charming impression of smartness.

Many of these Suits have Frocks made entirely of Silk. In others the Frock is of Silk and the Material of the Coat.

There are touches of embroidery on some, others are banded in contrasting fabric, still others are trimmed with fur on the collar or about the bottom. These suits are very practical. The coat may be worn with other frocks and the frock may be worn as a separate costume.

NEW FROCKS FOR SPRING

In delightful array the new styles pass, each one confirming the preference of fashion for the softly flaring silhouette. Charmingly individual for the needs and preference of maid or matron. Here a flounce, there a graceful jabot breaks the straight line, yet keeps the simplicity that is the test of smartness.

Frocks of airy printed crepes, flat crepe, crepe-back satin, or georgette. With bands of contrasting fabric or allover embroidery.

SOLONS DEBATE POLLUTION BILL

Supporters Charge State Health Department Opposes Measure.

(By The Associated Press.)
Lansing, Mich., Mar. 24.—The Smedley stream pollution bill, after stirring up a storm of controversy involving the comparative fitness of the state health and conservation departments to administer its provisions, suffered a temporary setback in the house today. On motion of Representative Curtis Evans, of Mackinac, who was supported by Curtis, Colburn, James T. Pishon, Kalamazoo, and other of the measure's opponents, it was referred back to the ways and means committee. Sharp protests against deferential action on its passage were offered by friends of the proposed act.

Curtis Evans said, "Heated charges against the health department were made in the course of the debate. Representative Harold Smedley, of Kent, the measure's sponsor, asserted that the health department had done little to curb stream pollution. He charged that Dr. R. M. Olin, head of the department, has worked openly against the bill. Samples of water sent to the department have wasted away on shelves, and Dr. Olin stated he would not hire a man to analyze them, the only time the health department has concerned itself has been when a loss of human life was involved, he argued, adding that the power of enforcing the pollution act should be taken away entirely from Dr. Olin's department and placed in the conservation department. The bill proposed authorizing the conservation director to employ his own chemists and sanitary engineers, to make analysis and investigate cases of alleged pollution.

To Save Humans.
Representative Evans first attempted to have the bill sent to the public health committee. The lives of human beings are more important than those of fish, he insisted, and urged the house to let the health committee to consider the measure. Its friends apparently sensed an effort to eliminate the provision to allow the conservation department an unrestrained hand and retain in the health department the chemical and analytical phases of pollution. Representative Curtis and Pishon supported the Evans motion, stating that in view of the charges made against Dr. Olin by Representative Smedley he should be given a chance to appear before the health committee. Representative Curtis spoke of the fully supplying work properly belonging in the health department and Representative Pishon denied that the health department has done nothing to halt pollution. In the vicinity of Kalamazoo, he asserted, excellent work has been done by Dr. Olin and his staff. Representative Chester M. Howell and John Crutcheild of Saginaw, participated in an argument as to whether the officials and people of Saginaw, which is the heart of a district which has been lavishly pictured as a victim of pollution, are for or against the Smedley bill. Representative Howell insisted they are, and Representative Crutcheild countered with the statement they were not.

To Seek Amendments.
The Evans motion to send the bill back to the health committee lost 51 to 46. The same representative then moved to send to the ways and means committee, claiming it provided for the expenditure of money. This motion carried 54 to 49. Indications were, after the storm of debate had subsided, that the bill's enemies will endeavor to secure amendments to eliminate the more drastic provisions and to restate the health department in charge of the scientific division of pollution abatement.

There was a flurry of talk throughout the argument regarding whether Dr. Olin had worked against the bill and whether its broad provisions might not injure industries and municipalities. Representative Evans stated that he had talked to no one from the health department.

SENATE PASSES PEARSON BILL

(By The Associated Press.)
Lansing, Mich., Mar. 24.
The Pearson timber tax bill which provides for the establishment of a commercial forest reserve into which the department of conservation would place certain potential timber lands, subject to a small state tax, was approved by the senate Tuesday without debate.

Under provisions of the Pearson bill, land placed in the commercial reserve would be subject to a tax of from 5 to 12 1/2 cents per acre, to be determined by the department. The state would pay a nominal tax of 5 cents per acre, the total tax collected to be turned over to the counties.

The state would receive one-eighth and the county one-eighth of the amount collected when the owner cut the matured timber.

The measure represents the combined efforts of lumbermen, conservationists and state officials to frame a measure which would encourage the replanting of waste lands by the individual owners, and at the same time protect the various counties from loss of taxable lands. At the present time large tracts of land, upon which timber could be grown, are reverting to the state, tax delinquent, while both the state and the county are the losers.

It is not expected that the house will oppose the measure.

FARMERS WILL MEET HERE TO TALK MARKET

Means of solving some of the marketing problems of the farmers of this locality, will be discussed Saturday afternoon in the city hall, at a meeting called by Joseph Greenfield, municipal market master.

The municipal curb market, last season, was a big success in every way, but Mr. Greenfield believes that by continued cooperation between the city market department and the growers, several other good things can be accomplished.

Several speakers of prominence will address the meeting. All of the farmers of this community are invited and urged to attend.

Freshmen Hold Debate at St. Jos. High School

The Freshmen of St. Joseph's High School held their first debate of the year Tuesday. The question was "That Algebra is More Beneficial to a High School Student Than Latin." The three affirmative speakers were Alphonix Hebard, Vincent McGee and Beatrice Moran. The negative speakers were Roy Farrell, Dorothy Casey and Lucile Valind.

The Negative side won scoring two to one. The judges were Marie Clement, Willard Laviolette and Donald Rutherford. The debaters did well considering this was their first experience.

House Moving on Pavements Illegal

The moving of houses, on rollers, over the paved streets of the city is illegal in Escanaba. Owners of houses must procure permits to move them over other streets. These facts were emphasized by City Manager Fred R. Harris yesterday when it was reported to police headquarters that a house was being moved out on Lake Shore Drive. The work was stopped until the necessary arrangements could be made.

GIVE TO THE STRICKEN.

Through a movement launched on Monday the people of the city of Escanaba are to be given the opportunity to join the nation in supplying the needs of the stricken people through sections of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Tennessee, visited last Wednesday by a devastating tornado.

The heart of the nation has gone out to the people of that stricken zone as in no former catastrophe. Every form of efficient rescue and recovery work has been promptly carried out, but it is recognized that it will be weeks before many of the families in that area can again become self-supporting and provide themselves with even temporary homes.

Escanaba and Delta county have never failed in such a humanitarian test and we will not fall in this emergency.

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

In spite of recommendations to the contrary made by the Michigan Congress of Game Clubs, the Ming bill, providing for a six day cartridge hunting season and other conservation measures, has passed the house at Lansing with a dissenting vote.

farther for real conservation than even the so-called "sportsmen" recommend. In former years it has been the legislature that has shown an inclination to balk at giving sid length for needed conservation laws.

It is likely also that visits by members of the legislature to sections of the state where natural game fish streams and game cover abounds, have been a mighty influence upon the conservation committee members of the house and senate.

CONCERNING MR. RUTH.

Our Mr. Evans (Billy) advises readers of our sport page, who have heard reports that Mr. George Herman Ruth is "all in" physically and financially, to withhold their tears for a time.

Picturing Ruth returning from the race tracks with his pockets cleaned, has been a favorite winter pastime with certain baseball circles. They've painted at least one pathetic portrait every year since the Babe began knocking the ball inside.

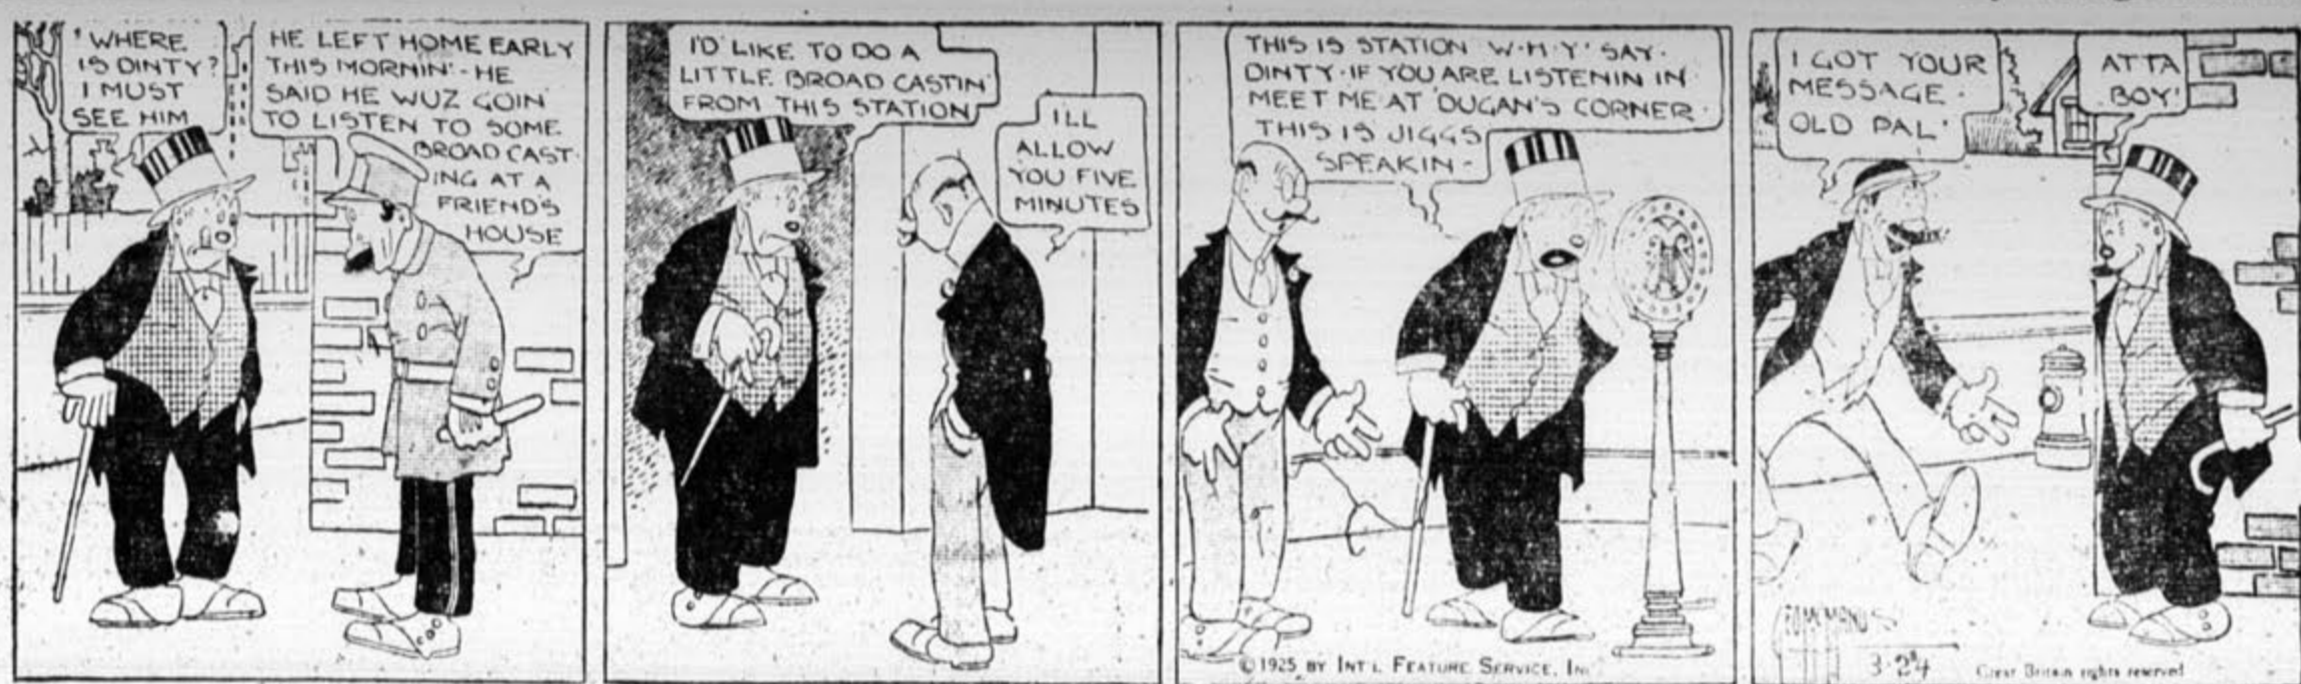

Mr. Evans thinks the reports were bunk. He says so. He sees little comfort for the pitchers in Ruth's springtime performances, and he hints that the race track gamblers left sufficient change in the Babe's pockets to tide him over until the next pay day at least. It is well.

look after our children—we have outside attractions, social obligations, the children can take care of themselves. And what wrong is it?

"Children demand the undivided attention of the father and the mother. The home is the best training ground of youth. Destroy the home and you destroy the future citizenry for the home is the vital factor in the life of every boy and of every girl."

Social environment was the next topic under the pastor's subject. "Every community has its own complexion, its own physiognomy, reflecting the life of its members, and its dominating tendencies. When a community fails to realize its obligations toward the younger generation then there is real danger. The dangers are various. When the young man sees the bootlegger driving around in his limousine, he sees a public scandal, a logical argument for his growing idea that law may be broken with impunity. Disrespect for law, disrespect of all lawfully constituted authority follow and you have disaster. If the child does not learn to respect law, what will be his career? Here comes responsibility toward the younger citizenry. You may not realize its full import but nevertheless it is a cold and stubborn fact."

Education. "Take another phase, 'education,' continued the Rev. Father Maier. 'We spend great sums of money for education. Is it worth while? I will leave that to you to answer. Education should not be considered but should be equipment for life. The function of the school is to fashion the body, develop the mind and moral principals. Do our schools equip for life? You may apply the test. Are boys and girls when they leave school competent, successful? You may answer.'

Under problems of education, the pastor spoke of the necessary motive which has turned the motion picture to a large extent from a high ideal to educate, saving in regard to children that the average movie is not adapted for the mentality of a child and that there should be special productions for the children that would be of the proper mental calibre for their tender minds, and of the press, which portrays scandals unfit for the mind of a child, and which familiarizes the child with crime at an early age.

"If you wish to have good children and that should be the end and object of education," he continued, "you must not overlook the development of the important factors, religion, people seem to have no interest in religion. They have forgotten the fact that Christianity civilized the world. Children need more religion. There is little in the home. There is absolutely none in the schools. If you wish to have good morals you must have religion. You cannot make a man good by statutes, but you can by a final appeal to the Supreme Being. When that is done he must depend on man-made laws and everything man-made crumbles. Teach the child by saying, 'I want you to do it because there is a God in Heaven and you are responsible to Him for every thought, word and deed, and in temptation he will turn to God. With religious ideas a child will have morality. I do not care what certain theories of psychology and ethics say, a man without God has principles the result of a certain respect for his fellow-man, but it takes a Sovereign soul to penetrate a soul and mind. The important thing is inculcating into plastic minds the idea of God, a reward and a punishment in the hereafter.

Apply in Community. "I want you to take these remarks and carry them out into the community," the pastor concluded. "It needs them. They are applicable. There is room for work among our children. We must save them for our country for they must take up our work when our time is ended. I call upon you to join hands to work for the generations that are still unperceived, that will be called upon to carry the burden that we have been called upon to carry thus far."

The musical numbers given included vocal selections by Miss Antoinette LaPine, accompanied by Bernice Swan; Floyd Marble, accompanied by Mrs. H. W. Blackwell; Mrs. Matthew Wagner, accompanied by Viola Foster, and piano number by Miss Astrid Skogquist. Miss Swan played the accompaniment for the assembly singing which opened and closed the meeting.

CURWOOD STORY OF THE NORTH AT THE LYRIC

An important event is the coming to the Lyric theatre for two days, today and Thursday, of 'The Hunted Woman,' one of the most powerful stories of the frozen North ever penned by James Oliver Curwood, the famed chronicler of that rugged land where dog sledges are rapid transit.

Heralded by William Fox as one of the most ambitious Alaskan pictures ever to issue from its studios this virile, picturesque story is said to have involved tremendous hardships. Seven of the principal members of the cast spent two weeks in the east snowy wastes where the thermometer ranged from 12 to 22 degrees below zero.

C. & N. W. Railroad Heads Inspecting Escanaba Property. W. H. Finley, president of the Chicago & North-Western railway system, and a party of other officials from the general office, arrived in two special business cars yesterday afternoon to make an inspection of the track now being relaid. An inspection of the railroad bed was also made enroute from Chicago.
