

JURY DISCHARGED IN RICH-KING CASE

REJECT GERMAN POTASH LOAN AT WASHINGTON

STATE DEPARTMENT DEMANDED PRICE GUARANTEE.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1925, by the Escanaba Press.)

Washington, Dec. 2.—American bankers have lost the opportunity of making a $26,000,000 loan to the German potash syndicate and with it the American government has deprived itself of an opportunity to influence the price of potash for fertilizer.

Back of the action of the Department of State is the policy formulated by Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce, first inkling of which was given in his speech at Erie, Pennsylvania, a few weeks ago when he warned foreign monopolies that they must not expect to borrow money from the American people if they charged exorbitant prices to the American consumer.

The German potash industry is unique in that the whole world is more or less dependent upon it. A few deposits in California and here and there throughout the world where small sources of supply are available but the bulk of the potash comes from Germany and the prices are an important factor to the American farmer.

Americans Frozen Out.

Before the war, American business men endeavored to establish potash production in Germany but were frozen out by German interests even though the Department of State tried desperately during the Taft administration to obtain equality of treatment.

All this, however, did not influence the Washington government at this time for an entirely different aspect of affairs is presented. The German syndicate like many other monopolies needs funds for expansion and the United States is the principal source of money just now. There are funds available in Britain but the terms are not always as good because the supply of money is not as large.

No Price Guarantee.

The German potash interests were asked if they would guarantee the American consumer against a rise in prices. This they declined to do claiming they could not give assurances concerning the law of supply and demand. They were willing, however, to promise that no part of the funds obtained would be used in any way to curtail production and thus influence the price.

Rhinelander Annulment Case Will Go to Jury Today

Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y., is the new president of the national Women's Christian Temperance Union, succeeding Miss Anna Adams Gordon. She ran for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator in New York in 1920, polling the largest vote ever cast for a woman.

FIRE DAMAGE ONE MILLION

Two Persons Injured in Disastrous Blaze at Council Bluffs.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Property damage upwards to $1,000,000 was caused and two persons seriously injured by a disastrous fire which swept nine blocks of the business district here early today.

The fire started from an explosion by a defective boiler. Before it could be gotten under control it destroyed nine business blocks and a hotel.

J. McManis, a night watchman, was burned about the head and body. Walter J. Tierney, fire fighter, was seriously hurt several hours after the flames had been controlled when he rode a collapsing brick wall to the street. He was atop the wall when it crumbled.

Horned Doe Killed by Hunters, Report

Lansing, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A horned doe, the oddity for which deer hunters are always seeking and rarely finding, has been killed near the Turtle Lake Hunting club, according to advices received today by the conservation department. The deer is said to have horns three inches long. A hunter shot the animal by mistake, thinking it was a buck. The freak was turned over to a game warden and is being shipped here. Michigan State college and the University of Michigan scientists will be given an opportunity to examine the doe.

KIP FELL FOR ALICE, MILLS TELLS JURORS

LIKE ANTHONY FELL FOR CLEOPATRA, HE SAYS.

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 3.—(AP)—With a final appeal to the jury to free Leonard Kip Rhinelander "from this horrible, unnatural and absurd union," Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for the plaintiff, today closed his summation in young Rhinelander's suit for annulment of his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones, part negro house maid of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Summation having been completed for the defense, court was adjourned until tomorrow, when the jury will receive the case for deliberation. Justice Morschauser indicated that his charge will be brief.

"Alice Ensnared Kip." "Give this boy a chance to reclaim himself and the name he has been smirched under the bewilderment of the defendant," Mr. Mills pleaded. He accused Alice of having consistently pursued "a diabolical plan of campaign" to ensnare Rhinelander.

"She had brains," the lawyer said. "At the end of a year of her campaign she owned the boy, body and soul." Assuming the jury that Rhinelander's intelligence was below normal, the plaintiff's counsel declared that even brilliant mental ability is not proof against "the charms of an evil woman." Nor was Rhinelander the first man to fall under the spell of such charms, the lawyer asserted, averring that history is replete with the names of great men who likewise succumbed.

Alice Beatrice Jones, the lawyer said, was comparable in her ascendancy over young Rhinelander, to Delilah in her enslavement of Samson; to Salome; to the dusky Cleopatra with her hold of Mark Anthony; comparable in her charms to Helen of Troy.

The summation had a sensational moment when George Jones, father of Alice, jumped to his feet and shouted protestations at being termed a "taxicab driver." Mrs. Jones, Alice's mother, collapsed in tears and the court took a 15-minute recess.

Mills had stated that Jones had taken out a license to drive a taxicab, and that in the application, Jones had stated that he was "colored."

Jones shouted at the lawyer: "I'm no taxicab driver. I never was a taxicab driver."

When Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, sought to quiet him, Jones protested "don't let him say those things about me."

City Manager of Albion Given Job at Oberlin, Ohio

Oberlin, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—F. D. Herrick, city manager of Albion, Mich., was selected as the first city manager of Oberlin at a meeting of the city council here tonight. Official confirmation of the appointment will be given at the first meeting of the new city council on January 1 when Oberlin formally enters upon the city manager form of government.

Illegal Search Is Alleged in Liquor Trial at Toledo, O.

Toledo, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Claim was made at the hearing of Roy Owens, suspended city patrolman, on charges of violating the national prohibition act, that the participation of a federal prohibition agent in a raid conducted by state agents and on a state warrant was illegal and the federal agent has himself committed an illegal offense.

The case was continued until December 29. Attorneys for Owens argued the evidence obtained in a raid on the Owens home could not be received because of the illegality of the search, since it was participated in by a federal agent without a federal search warrant.

'MA' NAMES 2 ON ROAD BODY

Federal Gov't Is Probing Highway Funds in Texas.

Austin, Texas, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today appointed two members of the state highway commission, while the federal government began an investigation of federal highway funds in Texas and Speaker Lee Satterwhite sent out a letter asking legislators whether they were willing to pay their own expenses to a special session of the legislature.

El Moseley, a former street commissioner of Dallas and later representative of a national asphalt company, was named chairman of the highway commission to succeed Frank V. Lanham, and John Gage, farmer-banker of Stephenville, was named to succeed Joe Burkett. Lanham and Burkett resigned after the disclosure of alleged highway irregularities in the attorney general's suit against the American Road company, which resulted in a judgment of $600,000 for the state.

The federal investigation started with a conference between Attorney General Dan Moody and three government agents, Captain P. S. Wilson, chief engineer, United States bureau of public roads, W. J. O'Leary, administrative officer of the bureau, and A. R. Losh of Port Worth, supervisor of federal aid projects in Texas. Following the conference the federal officials began an examination of the books of the federal aid division of the highway department.

Captain Wilson said he was sent here from Washington at the request of Senators Morris Sheppard and Earle B. Mayfield of Texas.

The inspectors also talked briefly to Governor Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, to gain their ideas of highway matters.

Murray Body Corp. Into Receivership

Detroit, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Guardian Trust company was appointed receiver for the Murray Body corporation by Federal Judge Charles S. Simons today. A statement issued by the receiver said there would be no interruption in the working program of the corporation and indicated that the receivership was not the result of excessive liabilities but due to the lack of working capital.

The Murray Body corporation came into being about a year ago through a merger of the Towson Body company, the Widman Body company and the C. R. Wilson Body company.

FINANCE BILL IS PASSED BY FRENCH HOUSE

BRIAND APPEALS TO PATRIOTISM TO SAVE FRANCE.

Paris, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Premier Briand's appeal to the patriotism of all parties to unite to save France in the face of the economic and financial menace brought about by the adoption by the chamber of deputies today of the government's bill providing for inflation of the currency to the amount of 7,500,000,000 francs and additional taxation ranging from 20 to 100 per cent.

This evening the finance committee of the senate accepted the text of the financial bill as voted by the chamber and will recommend its adoption by the senate. Many modifications had been discussed and inserted when Premier Briand appeared before the committee. He declared to the members that unless the text was voted by the senate as adopted by the chamber "there was no government possible."

The senate itself met for only a few minutes and heard M. Berenger's report on the bill which it ruled should be published in the official journal tomorrow and discussed at the next sitting, which is set for 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

In the chamber the final vote on the bill as a whole was 257 to 229. It constituted the fifth vote of confidence in the government during the lengthy session. The smallest majority in the voting which the government received was seven—a vote of 246 to 239 on the inflation section of the bill.

Briand is Eloquent.

Premier Briand appeared before the house, having passed a sleepless night, tired and harassed, but he rose to heights of eloquence never surpassed in the history of French politics. Veteran parliamentarians agree that M. Briand is the only man in France who could have jammed through a measure of this sort against the temper of the house in the early hours of the morning.

After M. Loucheur, the finance minister, had failed to impress the assembly with technical explanations, Briand moved to the rostrum and made his appeal. A voice in the right center was heard to remark sarcastically: "There goes the cello soloist."

But the interrupting member, too, was cheering before the premier concluded.

Loucheur Exhausted.

The chamber adjourned at 12:15 p. m., and M. Briand had been without sleep since six o'clock yesterday morning when he left London. But he was on hand when the senate convened shortly before three o'clock. M. Loucheur was exhausted and had turned over to M. Leon Perrier the task of introducing the financial bill.

EX-SENATOR OF VERMONT DEAD

Hyde Park, Vt., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Former United States Senator Carroll Smalley Page died at his home here tonight at the age of 82, from a stroke of paralysis suffered November 24. He was governor of Vermont from 1890 to 1892 and served in the senate at Washington from 1908 to 1922.

Senator Page since the expiration in 1923 of his term as senator, has taken no active part in politics or business.

Maine's Champ Fiddler to Get Real Send-Off

Norway, Maine, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Banners proclaiming "Maine's champion fiddler" will stretch along the sides of the car in which A. M. Dunham and his wife, Mrs. Emma Dunham, will leave here next Monday morning to visit Henry Ford at Detroit. A committee was formed today to arrange a grand send-off.

When the veteran fiddler learned that Mr. Ford had obtained transportation for them from South Paris on the main line of the Canadian National Railway he declared:

"I was born in Norway, married in Norway, always lived in Norway and when I go to Detroit I shall board the train in my home town."

Accordingly Perley F. Ripley, local representative of the Detroit manufacturer, arranged for a parlor car to be switched over to Norway, the terminus of a branch line, a mile and a half from the twin town of South Paris.

Governor Ralph O. Brewster has accepted an invitation to be present when the veteran fiddler takes his departure. The governor will be accompanied by members of his staff.

The Norway and South Paris Kiwanis Club will unite with the board of trade organizations of the two towns for the celebration and the schools and stores will remain closed until after the departure of the train.

Blood Transfusion May Save Life of Woodsman

John Greis Gives Blood Voluntarily to Stranger.

Three pints of blood, given voluntarily by John Greis, 1600 North Sixteenth street, Wednesday night, to Moses Root, a Russian woodsman, may save the latter's life.

The blood transfusion was performed at St. Francis hospital and although Root's condition was still very serious last night, chances for his recovery were said to be materially improved. In fact, without the new blood, he could not have lived more than a few hours.

Mr. Greis suffered no ill effects from the ordeal. He was at his work as a foreman in the L. Stephenson company's plant at Wells as usual yesterday.

Root Found Dying.

Root was found in a dying condition, late Wednesday, in a room over a north side restaurant. Hemorrhages of the stomach and intestines had weakened him terribly. They were checked but the loss of blood had so weakened him that his chance of rallying was regarded as almost negligible. He was rushed to St. Francis hospital by the physician who attended him.

Mr. Greis was in the building, calling on a relative who is a medical patient here. Hearing of Root's condition he offered to give the latter—a stranger to him—the blood which doctors said probably meant life or death. The operation was performed immediately.

Root has no relatives in this locality. He is about 42 years of age and his last known address was Ralph.

CANNOT AGREE AFTER 8-HOUR DELIBERATION

BATTLE CREEK GIRL FILES $100,000 DAMAGE SUIT.

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The jury considering the case of Arthur Rich, son of a wealthy Battle Creek manufacturer, charged with felonious assault on Miss Louise King, was discharged here tonight after it had failed to reach an agreement.

The jury deliberated 7 hours and 50 minutes. The jurors retired at 2:20 this afternoon and were discharged at 10:10 tonight.

Stood Nine to Three. Jurors said after they were discharged that the last ballot stood nine to three for conviction. There was no dispute as to the law, the jurors said, the three men voting for acquittal having doubts as to fact.

The courtroom was crowded when the jurors announced that they had failed to reach an agreement, but there was no demonstration as the crowd had been warned by Judge North that there must be no action by the crowd. Attorneys for both sides indicated after the jury had reported that the result of the disagreement would be a motion for a change of venue for the next trial. Much trouble was had in getting a jury for the trial of this case because of the number of persons who said they had formed opinion in the matter.

Rich's Bond Continued. Rich was in court when the jury reported. He showed no emotion. Miss King was not in the courtroom. Rich's bond of $25,000 was continued.

Trial Lasts 10 Days.

Rich was charged with felonious assault upon Louise King, former Battle Creek college girl. The case, which has been on trial for the last ten days, resulted from an alleged attack upon the girl last May. The state charged Rich had taken the girl into an automobile with another couple; that they drove to the country club grounds, that Rich and Miss King got out of the machine and after going a short distance, Rich forced the girl to submit to him by tearing her clothing and biting her at least five times in the face, causing a fracture of the jaw and other injuries.

Say Girl Got Drunk.

The defense held that the King girl went voluntarily with Rich, that she became intoxicated and that the injuries suffered were caused when she was intoxicated either by falling or by striking her head against an automobile while efforts were being made to "sober her up."

Judge North, in instructing the jury, told them to acquit, if there was any doubt as to the guilt of the accused and to ignore the injuries said to have been suffered in considering their verdict. The maximum penalty for the crime in Michigan is life imprisonment.

Miss King, whose home is in Washington, Pa., is the daughter of a late United States district attorney of that state.

Rich Arrested Again.

The jury took four ballots. On the first and second it stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal. One other juror voted for conviction on the final ballot. The defendant was arrested.

Pinchot Calls Business Men to Meet to End Coal Strike

Father Curran Asks Operators to Reconsider Pinchot Plan.

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Activities of those who have been working for peace in the anthracite industry, including Governor Pinchot, brought a revival of hope tonight for an early settlement of the prolonged suspension. Today's development included:

The calling of a conference by the governor of business men and civic leaders of the anthracite field to discuss the situation.

Announcement by Rev. J. J. Curran of Wilkes Barre that he had forwarded communications to hard coal operators, asking them to reconsider the peace proposal of Governor Pinchot which they rejected last night.

Few Substitute Fuel.

A statement by J. B. Warriner, general manager of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company and member of the anthracite operators wage negotiating committee, in which he viewed with some alarm the "rapid displacement of anthracite by substitute fuels" and declared that renewed negotiations under the plan offered by the operators and rejected by John L. Lewis, president of the United Miner Workers, "might easily result in an agreement fair to all interests."

Pinchot Calls Meeting. Governor Pinchot, who is on a tour of western counties, telegraphed business men and leaders of civic organizations of the hard coal belt requesting that they meet him at Harrisburg next Tuesday to discuss the situation.

Father Curran, who yesterday conferred with both operators and miners, declined to say whether he had a new plan for ending the strike, but stated that he would probably have a "more complete" statement Saturday.

Mr. Warriner characterized Governor Pinchot's recent proposal as "so impractical and one-sided that it had to be rejected in its entirety," and added:

"The very closest analysis failed to find in it any basis for negotiations. It is perhaps a good thing that it is now definitely disposed of, as the way is clear for some solution."

Cooperation Asked. "Mr. Lewis has now agreed in principle to arbitration so this should constitute no further obstacle."

"The whole situation, in my opinion, must be viewed in the light of the present rapid displacement of anthracite by substitute fuels. We must all work together to fight this very evident menace to the prosperity of our region."

W. W. Inglis, chairman of the anthracite operators' negotiating committee, in a statement at Scranton tonight in which he compared Governor Pinchot's recent peace proposals with the plan submitted by the operators and rejected by President Lewis two weeks ago, said the mine owners' offer was still open and he believed "it will gain approval the more it is considered."

Naval Collier Is Caught by Hurricane; Has Close Escape

Ship Is Nearly Broken in Two in Storm Off Virginia Capes.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The naval collier Orion, a ship of almost the same type of the ill-fated Cyclops, was caught in the hurricane off the Virginia Capes last night and barely escaped being broken in two, a fate to which many marine authorities have attributed the mysterious loss of the Cyclops with all hands aboard.

The serious nature of the accident was not minimized by naval authorities here, but they preferred not to discuss it until after a survey has been completed. From unofficial sources, it was learned that the Orion's frames amidship had buckled and twisted and that she was leaking. Only the fact that her commander quickly turned about and headed back to port, it was believed, to save her with the closeness of a safe harbor saved her from disaster.

STORM SWEEPS NORTH.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The storm which lashed the Florida coast earlier in the week and broke out yesterday over New Jersey and New York reached such an intensity today that the coast guard headquarters at Asbury Park, ordered a double patrol along the entire New Jersey coast tonight.

No loss of life was reported. The Connecticut coast was pounded by high waves running before a rain-laden gale.

Beach structures at Coney Island were demolished and restaurants flooded. Marine police succeeded in taking a building in tow after the structure had been blown off its piles and drifted almost to Sandy Hook. When the building crashed into the sea several workmen had narrow escapes. It was $25,000 worth of canoes and small boats.

shortly after he left the court room on a capias as a result of a $100,000 damage suit filed against him by attorneys for Miss King after the jury retired today.

The arrest was a technical procedure bond for $20,000 in the civil case having been made before Rich left the courtroom.

The sheriff deferred his trip downstairs from the courtroom with the defendant for almost an hour due to the fact that a crowd had collected downstairs and a hostile demonstration was feared by officers.

The prisoner was finally taken down a rear stairway although there was no indication that the crowd in front was other than curious.

Courtroom Crowded. The jury went out at 2:22 o'clock this afternoon after receiving instructions from Judge North which required an hour in the telling. It followed a morning session devoted exclusively to the two-hour closing address of William J. Barnard of Paw Paw and an hour's address of Prosecutor Clyde Cortright.

The court room remained crowded when the jury retired and at six o'clock only a few had departed while the outside corridor was thickly populated.

Meanwhile, there was plenty of action behind the scenes. Attorney for Miss Louise King, complaining witness, filed suit for $100,000 damages against Arthur Rich and asked service by means of capias or seizure of the body of the defendant.

Allegations were that Arthur Rich beat, misused, mistreated, injured and carnally knew Miss King, that he beat her into insensibility and that great pain and agony resulted.

The sheriff, with the capias in his hand and defendant a few feet away from him, did not serve the paper pending the outcome of the jury's deliberations. If the defendant were found guilty he could serve it later, if acquitted or a hung jury resulted, he would accompany defendant and counsel to counsel's office where the paper would be served and bond provided.

ANOTHER ROW AT ARMY TRIAL

Reid Assails Member of Court; Howze Gives Warning Again.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(P)—Opposing counsel in the court-martial trial of Col. William Mitchell failed today to keep the peace as ordered yesterday by the court president, Maj. Gen. Robert L. Howze, and they were warned again that the tribunal "viewed with disfavor" the continued bickering and wrangling.

General Howze called the attention of the counsel for both sides to take notice. The warning was given during the cross-examination of Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the Shenandoah disaster, by Rep. Frank R. Reid of Illinois, chief defense counsel.

Reid Razes Gullion. Major Allen Gullion, assistant trial judge advocate, and objected a few seconds before to Mr. Reid's manner of examining the witnesses. The defense attorney referred to what he called his opponent's lack of comprehension, and added:

"Things get to your ears, but they never reach your brains." In the confusion that followed, General Howze ordered a three-minute recess and when the court reconvened, delivered his admonition.

Commander Rosendahl testified that Lieut. Com. Zachary Lansdowne did not protest against taking the Shenandoah on her fast flight into the middle west. The reduction effected in the automatic gas valves had nothing to do with the wrecking of the ship, he testified, and the gas escapes functioned satisfactorily during its last battle with the elements. These statements were supported by Lieut. Roland G. Mayer, construction officer of the Shenandoah.

Persistent efforts of the defense to show failure of the big dirigible's gas valves, as charged by Colonel Mitchell in his published statement, brought no concessions from the two navy officers, and when the court adjourned tonight, Mr. Reid was still grilling Lieutenant Mayer. He will conclude the cross-examination tomorrow.

Mellon Replies to Dry Force Critics

Washington, Dec. 3.—(P)—Criticism by prohibition organization of the administration's enforcement policies was carried direct to the White House today and the assault, which has gained momentum in recent weeks, brought a reply from the administration through Secretary Mellon.

The action of a committee made up of representatives of twenty-six national reform organizations in sending its views to the president was regarded by many as the first big effort in a fresh campaign by the drys, directed toward both the legislative and executive arms of the government and timed in advance of an anticipated drive by the wetts on the national prohibition act in the forthcoming session of congress.

WORLD COURT FOES FLAYED

Cummings Assails Borah and Followers in Speech.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 3.—(P)—Homer S. Cummings, who resigned recently from the Democratic national committee, speaking here tonight at a mass meeting in the interest of the United States adherence to the world court, centered his arguments in an attack on the group of so-called irreconcilables in the United States senate. He charged them with being solely responsible for the failure of this country to join the court and asserted their "pride of opinion is more important to them than the peace of the world."

"They convert the senate chamber into a veritable clinic of political obsession and mental complexes," he said. "They cling with pestilential persistence to the bunk of an idea from which long since all substance has departed. Led by Senator Borah, this little group stands between the United States and its great destiny. Who would not rather take the unanimous judgment of Roosevelt and Taft and Wilson and Harding and Coolidge and Root and Hughes than all the Borahs that can vex counsel and prostrate the activities of government."

"This power of a small group of senators to harass the president, frustrate his work, bring his purposes to naught and defy the sentiment of a whole people, has become one of the outstanding scandals of modern times. Senators wonder why the senate is unpopular. It is because the rules of the senate, which a majority of the senators support, permit a minority to stop the whole machinery of government with sterile debate, endless discussion, pitiful pettifoggery—reservations—reservations."

$325,736,000 Tax Cut Provided by Measure

Washington, Dec. 3.—(P)—The revenue bill, which the house ways and means committee will present to the house when it convenes Monday, provides for a saving to federal taxpayers of $325,736,000 in the calendar year beginning January 1.

Revised estimates prepared by the treasury today on the effect of the bill was finally approved yesterday showed that of this sum, $194,575,000 will result from the proposed cuts in the income taxes. The total annual reduction proposed by the measure will increase after next year, since the reductions in inheritance taxes will not be immediately felt. Eventually, revision of these rates is expected to cut government receipts by $20,000,000 annually. Also, many of the reductions in the excise and occupation taxes will not be in effect for the full twelve months.

SEE AIR FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Greater Recognition of Airplane Defense to Be Sought.

Washington, Dec. 3.—(P)—A fight to obtain for the airplane greater recognition in the national defense organization promises to be one of the major issues at the coming session of congress.

This became more apparent today with the announcement by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, that he favored unification of air activities and a statement by Representative Curry, Republican, California, that he would introduce two bills designed to give increased recognition to air activities.

Meanwhile, publication by the president's air board of the report on its inquiry into aviation problems, started speculation in various circles as to the possible nature of air legislation, if any, to be recommended by the administration.

The report was favorably received by both Secretary of War Davis and Secretary Wilbur who jointly urged creation of the board. The former characterized it as a "fine constructive effort toward taking the whole question (aviation) out of the run of controversy and misunderstanding" and the latter said he was "very much pleased" and felt the report would be "of very great assistance to us in the development of naval aviation."

Usher Confesses Theater Robbery

Detroit, Dec. 3.—(P)—Walter G. Fritchle, 22-year-old theatre usher, who was arrested today at the Hotel Lexington, confessed to Frank G. Szymanski, assistant prosecuting attorney, that he had taken part in the theft of $9,832 from the Grand Riviera theater, November 16, last.

He accused Oscar Davis, former manager of the theater, as his partner in the robbery, and made restitution of $4,932, police say.

Fritchle called the theater Wednesday night stating that he would make restitution of his share in theft. He was arrested today.

He said he and Davis took the money and took a trip from Toledo, where they purchased an automobile, to Cleveland and through New York state to Washington. At the capital, he said, he and Davis divided the loot and Davis disappeared. Fritchle declared Davis dared him to take the money, and had suggested a trip around the world.

CITY TO STICK TO NORTH 20TH

No Action Changing Order to Legal Department Taken.

Members of the city council last night declined, after a brief discussion, to alter its previous order to City Attorney T. J. Riley, instructing the legal department to take immediate steps to force a grade crossing across the Chicago and North-Western tracks on North Twentieth street. A condemnation petition—one of the necessary legal steps—will be prepared by Mr. Riley immediately for filing in circuit court, it was announced.

Councilman T. M. Judson, father of the project, who was absent from the last meeting when the objections of the North-Western and the Steel-Wallace corporation were recorded, declared he felt that the public welfare was at stake and that he did not, for one, propose to step aside for two objectors when scores of other interested parties need the crossing vitally.

"I can bring in a petition here with five hundred signatures, asking for this improvement," he told his colleagues. "As far as the railroad company is concerned, we all know they would object. We started a project to go over their tracks on Stephenson avenue. They kicked on that. Now we want to establish a grade crossing somewhere else to get the relief we sought in the first instance, and they're raising more objections.

"In more than one other instance the railroad company has failed to show a desire to co-operate with the people of Escanaba or to meet this administration half way. I feel that the people of this city need another crossing, that North Twentieth street is the logical place for it, and that we ought to go through with it as quickly as we can. One crossing was enough to take care of the traffic we had forty years ago, when automobiles were unknown. It isn't sufficient now and even the railroad company knows it isn't. There is no reason for changing our plans in this matter and I am opposed to changing them."

The matter was discussed, briefly, by others, but no change in the instructions was suggested.

Davies Explains Highway Problems to Menominee Men

H. H. Davies, of Escanaba, division engineer on the state highway staff, talked to the Menominee club Wednesday and the members of that organization, according to the Herald-Leader, learned more about road building and some of the problems confronting the state highway commission than ever before.

"Mr. Davies," the Herald-Leader says, "treated on the road problems for the greater part of half an hour and during his discussion traced the origin of good road building from the start which dates back several years to the present campaign being carried out in this state."

By facts and statistics he showed where Michigan stands well up among the leaders in states of the country. Few realized before they heard the speaker what an extensive plan of building is actually being carried out in Michigan and especially the upper peninsula, the roads used more than others by Menominee people.

The club enjoyed the talk of the road engineer which was evidenced by the ovation tendered him.

BOUNDARY CASE BRIEFS READY

Wisconsin-Michigan Suit Really "90 in One" Says Sawyer.

Menominee, Nov. 3.—Michigan's brief in its $30,000,000 boundary dispute case against Wisconsin, set for argument before the United States supreme court on Jan. 4, consists of 600 printed pages. There are 90 different questions for the court to decide, questions of law and questions of fact—Green Bay, Menominee river and Montreal river.

"It is practically 90 lawsuits in one," declared M. P. Sawyer, Menominee special counsel for Michigan. "There are 90 separate situations for the court to act upon."

While the general public as a rule has not considered the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary very seriously, Mr. Sawyer is convinced this opinion will be changed when the final decision is announced.

"Sure of Something."

"I am certain we will get a decree for something," he asserted. "It is absolutely shown, for one thing, that the boundary is not known in certain points—in the Menominee river and in Green Bay—and the court must make a decree to settle this part of the boundary. Having opened the question of determining the boundary Michigan expects the supreme court to determine it as it should be, disregarding past possession."

Approximately 1,000 square miles of territory valued in excess of $30,000,000 are involved. Half of this valuation is in the territory between the east and west branches of the Montreal river, including the city of Hurley, Wis. From the Montreal to the Brule is a strip 100 miles long averaging about 6 miles wide.

Wisconsin villages of Pence, Gile, Kimball, Montreal, Sand Rock, Festerville, Winchester, Crab Lake, Cisco, State Line (Land o' Lakes) and Hackley are in the strip. In the Menominee River 61 islands are involved, and the remainder of the disputed territory is in Green Bay, the disputed territory is in Green Bay, the island of Washington, Rock, Plum, Strawberries, Hat and Chambers.

Attorney Sawyer left today for Lansing for a conference with Attorney General Daugherty relative to the brief.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

The Delft theatre, today and tomorrow, is offering a double-feature program which should—and undoubtedly will—prove highly attractive to Escanaba movie fans.

The pictures head-lined are Charles Chaplin in "Pay Day," and Thomas Meighan in "The Man Who Found Himself," a Booth Tarkington story.

In "Pay Day," Mr. Chaplin has an entirely new line of situations, stunts and "gags," all put across in his inimitable style. Mack Swain, Edna Purviance and Sidney Chaplin are in the supporting cast. The story requires only two reels for the telling, but it is said to contain more laughs than any six-reel comedy ever turned out.

"The Man Who Found Himself" was written especially for Mr. Meighan by Booth Tarkington. It is the story of a man who serves a prison term then attempts to "come back." Virginia Valli plays opposite the star and the cast includes Frank Morgan, Julia Hoyt, Lynn Fontanne, Hugh Cameron, Victor Moore and Norman Trevor.

CITIZENS MUST REMOVE SNOW

Removal Ordinance Will Be Strictly Enforced Here.

Vigorous enforcement of the ordinance requiring citizens of Escanaba to keep their sidewalks free from snow, was demanded by Mayor W. J. Hanrahan at last night's meeting of the city council. "Escanaba is a beautiful city in the summer time. In the winter, after the snow starts, it presents a disgraceful appearance," he declared. "After this last snow storm I noticed that not more than a third of the sidewalks in the city were shoveled. We have an ordinance on the books which requires that every person must clear the walks of snow within 24 hours after a snowstorm. Part of the people have pride enough in their city and their neighborhood to do this without urging. The others should be forced to do likewise."

City Manager Fred R. Harris announced that an order would be issued to the police department early today, calling particular attention to the ordinance and insisting upon its enforcement.

off the Florida Keys, the pretty young girl pirate, captain of a modern run-runner, and the Secret Service Agent, who had baited and trailed her, finally bury their mutual hatred in a most amazing manner. This is but one of the big situations which occur in "Forbidden Cargo," coming to the Strand theatre Friday and Saturday. Brent's latest starring vehicle which provides this splendid actress with thrilling action against a colorful background of the new Spanish Main, the battle ground of the new boats and the modern galleons laden with gin and whiskey. Romance, adventure, a free wind and an open sea give this pirate story a tang of realism that is like a breath of the ocean itself.

Forty Hours Will Begin Sunday at Saint Patrick's

The annual Forty Hours' Devotions will be held at St. Patrick's church beginning with a solemn high mass Sunday, December 6, at 10:30 o'clock when Rev. Fr. J. Mockler, pastor of the parish, will be the celebrant, assisted by Very Rev. Fr. R. G. Jacques and Rev. Fr. N. Stehlin.

The Sunday evening service will consist of the rosary, sermon and benediction with the blessed sacrament.

ment. The sermon on Sunday evening will be given by Rev. Fr. F. Selfert of Dagdet who is a well-known pulpit orator. Monday evening Rev. Fr. George Stuntebeck of Loretto, another forceful speaker, will occupy the pulpit.

Confessions will be heard every afternoon at from 8 o'clock on and after the evening service. There will be masses daily at 5:30, 6:30 and high mass at 8 o'clock. Tuesday evening the solemn closing ceremonies will consist of a sermon, solemn procession and solemn benediction with the blessed sacrament when Very Rev. Fr. Henry Buchholz of Marquette will officiate, assisted by several priests of Delta county. Among the clergymen who are expected in the city for the ceremonies are: Rev. Fr. J. Guerin, Rapid River; Rev. Fr. T. Drongacz, Foster City; Rev. Fr. G. Stuntebeck, Loretto; Rev. Fr. F. Gaynet, Flat Rock; Rev. Fr. S. Maters, Gladstone; Rev. Fr. A. Colgnard of Perkins; Rev. Fr. D. Josepa Breaud, Bark River; Rev. Fr. P. N. Jurras, Schafer, and others.

An invitation is extended to the public to attend these devotions.

Half the world is half asleep

It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—even their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

Fired because he was always tired

"Drowsy Bill" they called him—a lifeless, eternally tired, old-young man. He tried hard enough, but his energies always sagged before the job was done. One day Bill was missing . . . fired.

In every walk of life you'll find men and women who are fighting constipation—the dread disease which robs the body of its energy and strength. But thank goodness, there is pleasant, safe, permanent relief from constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, thus stimulating regular, healthy action. ALL-BRAN urges nature to act normally—something that habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Delicious with fruit. Also use the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be careful! Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A part-bran product is only partially effective—maybe not at all. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Buy a package today. The original ALL-BRAN—ready-to-eat

YULE TREES TO ADORN STREETS

Merchants Make Plans for Handling Big Volume of Business.

Plans for decorating the street corners of Escanaba's business section with Christmas trees and appropriate "Shop Early" posters are being completed by J. J. Manning and S. Gilchrist, members of a special committee named by the Retailers group of the Chamber of Commerce. Work of putting the decorations in place will be done by the city, it was announced yesterday.

Special community advertising, which will be given wide circulation in this part of the peninsula, also is being arranged for, and other preparations are being made in the retail stores to take care of what is confidently expected to be a record-breaking holiday season.

Stores of the city have already put on their holiday dress. Window and inside merchandise displays in many of them are built around the Christmas gift idea. "Christmas shopping," said one prominent merchant yesterday, "is earlier than ever before. I can remember the time when no one ever thought of buying presents until a few days before Christmas. It would be interesting to know, right now, how many thousands of Christmas gifts have already been selected by shoppers. Some of these have been bought and put in temporary storage for weeks. Buyers no longer wait until the last minute. They start earlier and finish earlier, taking more time about it, trying to make selections before the stocks have begun to be depleted.

Shop Mornings.
"The last minute rush, of course, will always have with us, but it isn't nearly as heavy as it used to be. On the other hand, the volume of sales is very much larger, over the longer period, than it was in the times when Christmas shopping didn't begin until December 20."

"Nowadays, too, a large number of wise shoppers do their buying in the mornings, avoiding the jams and balancing up the day's activities of the stores."

Two Escanaba Girls Named on Augustana College Debate Team

Rock Island, Ill.—Elin Nelson and Tecla Carlson, Escanaba girls attending Augustana college, have been selected as members of the women's college debate team. Eight girls have been selected who will work together during this month. After the Christmas holidays two teams will be formed of three members and an alternate each. The question to be debated this year is, "Resolved: that the United States should enact uniform marriage and divorce laws." This is Miss Nelson's second year on the squad. Last year she was classed as one of the leading debaters. Escanaba is the only city which has more than one debate representative on the squad.

Dona Sauve Loses Fingers Monday

Dona Sauve of Marinette suffered the loss of two fingers while coupling cars in the Chicago and North-Western yards at Marinette Monday morning. His foot slipped and his hand was caught between the couplings and one of the cars. Mr. Sauve is known to many residents of this city, having made his home here for a number of years prior to going to Marinette.

Card Club.
A party of eight girls was invited to the home of Mary Ellen Budreau, 818 Second avenue south, Wednesday night, where they spent a pleasant evening at cards and dancing. First honors were awarded to Catherine Lewis while Elizabeth Lenhart received the consolation prize. Music was furnished by Miss Jeanette Gilguere and Miss Ethel Hawden.

Mother-Daughter Meeting.
The Escanaba Woman's club will hold a "Mother and Daughter" meeting in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church at 3 p. m. Wednesday, December 9, and it has been urged that the mothers invite their daughters to attend. "Better Homes" will be the topic of discussion. Refreshments will be served. Mrs. O. N. Hughtitt and Mrs. H. W. Reade are members of the committee in charge of the event.

Birthday Party Postponed.
The birthday party, planned by the Anna C. Smith Circle of Light Bearers of the Presbyterian church for Friday, December 4, has been postponed until December 11.

St. Stephen's Auxiliary.
St. Stephen's Auxiliary will meet this afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. D. B. McIntyre, 1518 First avenue south. A large attendance is desired.

Senior Ball Tonight.
One hundred twenty-five couples will attend the annual Senior Ball, the biggest and most colorful of the Escanaba high school's social events, which will be held at the high school gymnasium tonight. The affair is strictly invitational and no admission tickets will be sold at the door tonight. Attendance is limited to students and graduates of the high school.

The gymnasium has been prettily decorated in a novel scheme and, although the ball is informal, it will prove a colorful affair. Johnson's seven-piece orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music and has prepared a special program of fourteen numbers.

Epworth League Social.
The Epworth League of the Swedish Methodist church will hold its monthly social this evening at 8 o'clock in the church parlors. Mrs. Oscar Gidlund and Miss Bertha Kellberg will be the hostesses. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Birthday Party.
Mrs. Andrew Monson, 305 South Eighteenth street, was surprised by about seventy-five of her friends at her home on Monday evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. A delightful social hour was spent and refreshments were served. Mrs. Monson was presented with a floor lamp as a memento of the occasion.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil). The inventor, L. L. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month. Adv.

URGE GROWING OF SUGAR BEETS

Chamber of Commerce Will Sponsor Two Meetings Saturday.

Sugar beets as a sure-fire and profitable crop will be the topic emphasized Saturday at meetings to be conducted under auspices of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce in Rock and St. Nicholas. Speakers will include L. M. Beggs and J. E. Turner of Escanaba, and a representative of the Menominee River Sugar company. Alex Mattson of Stephenson, a farmer who has raised sugar beets successfully in that locality, also will speak at the Rock meeting.

The Chamber of Commerce is in no way connected with the sugar business, it is explained, but it is believed here that many farmers do not realize the value of beets. Michigan agricultural reports over a period of ten years show that they are about the surest and most profitable farm crop which can be grown in this locality, and the Menominee River plant, at Menominee, is greatly in need of more raw material, insuring a quick and stable market in this locality.

H. Koholota, of the Rock Co. operative association, will preside at the meeting there which is scheduled for 10 a. m., Saturday, and a prominent farmer of the St. Nicholas community will preside over the meeting to be held there at 2 p. m. of that day.

Mr. Turner, county agricultural agent, and the sugar plant expert will answer any and all questions about beets those in attendance may desire to ask.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE UNDER WAY

The Christmas Seal Sale for 1925, being conducted by the Delta-Menominee county branch of the Michigan Tuberculosis association

Quotas of stamps have been mailed out by the special committee of the Woman's club,

"If we knew the people in your community who will in time develop tuberculosis, we would direct most of our efforts toward this particular group and the tuberculosis problem would become relatively easy.

"Delta and Menominee counties are acting as one unit in this health campaign.

"The work is being financed by the sale of these Christmas Seal stamps, 200 of which are enclosed.

"If you don't feel that you can take $2 worth, just do the best you can, and return the balance, all, if you must.

Returns from the stamps mailed out are already coming in in Gladstone and indications are that this year practically all the seals will be disposed of at an early date.

MARBLE CARD WINS FROM SAW MILL BOWLERS

The Marble Card bowlers gave the Saw Mill team a beating Wednesday night winning the league match at the Community alleys by a score of 2507 to 2149.

Individual scores were: Cowell—229 191 198. Olive—144 170 177.

Team Average—167. SAW MILL. Beach—138 211 142.

THEATRES

"ARE PARENTS PEOPLE" "Are Parents People? Is the picture entertaining?"

It's a new Paramount production, coming to the Community today. Directed by Malcolm St. Clair, who made "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

Adolphe Menjou, Betty Bronson and Florence Vidor are featured in the picture, which was adapted for the screen by Frances Agnew from Alice Duer Miller's story, which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post.

The picture opens on the scene of Menjou and Miss Vidor, with trunks packed, all ready to set out—one for Paris, the other Reno.

That problem seemed to Lassiter to be the key to the situation. If he could solve it, he believed that the knot would be unraveled.

And what happened to the masked rider? That is one of the surprises that must keep until the production is shown at the Lyric Theatre, where it starts a two day run on today.

ATTENDS BIG MEETING AT IRONWOOD

Mrs. Hazel Bovin has returned to Gladstone from Ironwood where she represented the Gladstone telephone exchange of the Michigan Bell Telephone company at the telephone association meeting held there.

The meeting at Ironwood was the last quarterly meeting of the year and it was attended by a representative of every office in the Northern divisions.

During the sessions of the association meeting all phases of telephone work were discussed and problems were talked over with a beneficial interchange of ideas resulting.

A complete report on the meeting with an account of all action taken will be made by Mrs. Bovin at the next regular meeting of members of the exchange here.

Mrs. Bovin left Monday and returned here Wednesday night at the close of the meeting.

NIGHT SCHOOL CLASSES OPEN ON TUESDAY

Night school classes in Gladstone will open Tuesday night, Supt. C. H. Teague, of the public schools, who is arranging for the classes, announced yesterday.

The classes will be free of charge to all who wish to attend and indications from early inquiries in regard to night school, are that a large class will start in for the opening night.

There will be no tuition charges. Classes, with a competent instructor in charge, will be held regularly during the course.

The night school work is open to all who wish it and those in charge urge everyone who wants the work to take this opportunity of securing instruction under able guidance and without fees of any kind.

REGULAR BUSINESS AT MEETING

Routine business was transacted Wednesday night by members of the Gladstone Board of Education, at their regular meeting in the school office, Junior high school building.

All members of the board were present with the exception of Dr. James Mitchell.

The monthly report on school conditions was given by Supt. C. H. Teague, also gave an interesting report on a paper on Gladstone which had been requested to prepare for a state book.

Considerable time was spent in discussion of various matters on which action will be taken later.

The usual bills were allowed and the meeting adjourned.

GIRLS TEAM READY FOR HALF TONNERS

The Half-Ton team in Escanaba whose five members claimed to be about the best women bowlers around, are warned to look out for their honors.

A Gladstone team of girls, who, while they cannot claim the tonnage, know how to roll up the score is ready and willing for a match with the Half-ton bowlers and wants a game as soon as possible.

The members are Alice Cameron, Grace Corbet, Frances Heric Lucy Murphy and Lydie Stock and during the past few nights they have been bowling around 171 and 161.

EDNA MEANS GIVES PROGRAM HERE TONIGHT

Edna Means, one of the foremost entertainers on the lyceum stage today, who appeared in Gladstone two years ago, will return here tonight to appear in a program at the high school auditorium, as the second artist of the winter's lyceum season.

The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Tickets for those who have no season tickets will be on sale at the door.

To give a program with a purpose is described as the work of Edna Means. While entertaining her audiences, she seeks also to leave behind some message of helpfulness and worthiness.

"From the Passing Crowd" is the title of one group of readings on her program. The stories told and the characters depicted are taken from real life and human experiences, characters such as one passes every day on the street.

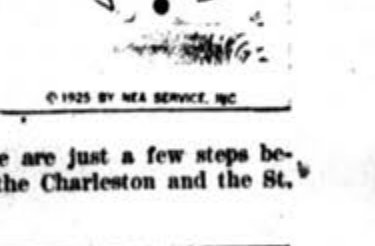

Other numbers, equally interesting go to make up her program which is one that will have something in it to please everyone.

Miss Means is one of the finest of platform readers and her ability is shown by the following accounts of her appearances in other cities:

High Praise. "No one will ever forget the 'Whistling Boy' nor the farmer who would go back to the farm, the vagaries and winsomeness of the Dutch girl and the dozens of other characterizations. The audience wept and laughed in quick transition for it was under an artist's art."

"Miss Means has a wonderful voice, a charming personality and an unusual mastery of her art."

Four Michigan Gridders Named on All-Conference Eleven

SEVEN COACHES SELECT GRANGE

Oosterbaan, Brown, Friedman and Hawkins on First Team.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The 1925 All-Conference football team, as selected by seven of the Big Ten coaches for the Associated Press tonight shows but one unanimous choice—Red Grange—at left halfback, although one coach placed him at quarterback place he resumed direction of the play in mid-season and almost single-handedly defeated the University of Pennsylvania.

Four Michigan players were named places on the first team, with six of seven coaches placing Benny Friedman at quarterback and Bennie Oosterbaan at left end. The two Bennies formed a forward passing combination responsible for a large part of Michigan's heavy scoring. These two were first and third of the leading Big Ten scorers this season, but not once inside the 25-yard line did Friedman call his own signal for a scoring play.

The coaches were unanimous in their choice of Brown of Michigan and Lowry of Northwestern as the outstanding centers of the "Big Ten" in 1925, but the majority gave Brown first choice.

Henderson at Center. Edwards of Michigan was the most frequently mentioned tackle, but injuries which kept him out of many games this year, caused his selection for second team in the opinion of most of the coaches, Henderson, Chicago, being the first choice tackle of five of the seven coaches.

Kassel, Illinois, and Romey, Iowa were favored by most of the coaches for end opposite Oosterbaan with Kassel getting most of the team votes.

With Friedman and Grange overwhelmingly endorsed for the backfield, the coaches differed greatly on the other two positions. Lewis of Northwestern; Fry, Iowa; McCarty, Chicago, and Joesting, Minnesota, being variously placed at halfback and fullback on both first and second teams. Lewis received the most first team votes for fullback, three coaches favoring him while a fourth placed him at halfback. McCarty received three votes for halfback and one for fullback, in addition to two second team votes as fullback.

Hess of Ohio, was on every list as a guard, either on the first or second teams.

Tabulation of Votes. The selections of the seven coaches for the All-Conference team, and the number of votes each player received were as follows:

ROMANCE IN FOOTBALL

MRS. HUGH BECKETT AND SON

Romance in football? Yes! It can be found there as well as any place else. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Beckett, out on the Pacific slope, will vouchsafe for those remarks. Here's their rather unusual story: Several years ago when young Hugh Beckett, now star halfback on the University of Washington team, was a senior in high school, a girl watched him from the sidelines. And she watched him intently. For he, you see, was her knight of the gridiron. Came the war. Young Hugh Beckett quit school. He and the miss, who had watched him so intently on the football field, were married. He went to France. Now he's back in college playing regularly. And on the sidelines are Mrs. Beckett and their baby girl, five, and baby boy, three. Ambitions? Yes! To make the boy the greatest halfback in America and the girl a real "grandstand goddess." And if the youngsters take after their dad and mother, it's a cinch.

"Pat" Arnold Wins Freshman Football Numeral at M. S. C.

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Michigan State College's 1926 football squad will be composed almost entirely of students from this state. With the passing of Voegel of Evanston, Ill., this year's center, the only regular on the squad for the past two years from out of the state, is eliminated. The freshman squad of numeral winners, with the exception of one man, are Michigan products. The freshmen will supply a number of weighty candidates for the 1926 Michigan State line. Four of the numeral winners are in the 200-pound class and an even dozen weigh 180 pounds or more. The freshmen numeral winners this year are: William F. Moeller, Nowaygo; Roy S. Fulton, Webberville; Carl R. Felt, Muskegon; Hugo F. Karnitz, Muskegon; Henry C. Arnold, Arnold; William H. McGill, Alpena; Rex C. Tuttle, Walled Lake; Fred W. Danziger, Detroit; Howard A. Douville, Alpena; Ernest F. Deacon, Lansing; James H. Bothwell, Saginaw; Harold M. Fisher, East Lansing; Daniel W. Webber, Columbus, Ohio; Edwin R. Childs, Adrian; John H. Anderson, Lansing; Dwight H. Archer, St. Joseph; Harold K. Haun, Charlotte; Jack Hornbeck, Lansing; George H. Smith, Kalamazoo; Burr D. Nevier, Battle Creek; James A. Zeller, Pontiac; Fred W. Barrat, Lansing; Glen H. Hitchings, Petoskey; Ralph T. Wills, Flint; Louis C. Hermel, Traversa City; Allen M. Eggert, Lansing; Charles J. Grabbil, Battle Creek; J. L. Joachim, St. Clair; Theodore F. Ehinger, Adrian; Edwin C. Richter, Bay City; and James A. Warren, Flint.

HOREMANS TO TOUR COUNTRY

New 18.2 Balkline Champ to Give Exhibitions of Cue Skill.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Assured of at least a 30-day tenure as world's champion 18.2 balkline billiards, Edouard Horemans, who last night in an extraordinary match defeated young Jake Schaefer, is planning to leave Chicago on a hastily arranged exhibition tour.

In the short, squat, curly-haired little left hander, American followers of the carom game will have a chance to see the first European holder of the popular balkline title in 20 years. The reign of Jake's father, later Willie Hoppe and finally, the son of "the wizard" as the elder Schaefer was known, lasted that long in its invincibility against European or Asiatic attack.

Lost by Five Points. It lacked only a meagre five points in a 1500-point match of remaining invulnerable last night, Schaefer falling after the most remarkable display of point making ever displayed in a contest for the world's championship.

He made a run of 422, several hundred less than the official records he and Horemans and several others of the top-notchers have made, but unmatched in world's championship play.

A peculiar agreement arrived at after Schaefer disputed a referee's decision in the second 500-point block Tuesday night requires that Horemans meet Schaefer inside of 30 days. That was required to prevent Schaefer forfeiting the match unless a new referee was appointed.

Referee is Peeved. The contest is sought by Detroit and Cleveland, but probably will be played in Orchestra hall here.

J. Herbert Lewis of Chicago, referee, is president of the Illinois State Billiardists' association, a man of private fortune, and interested in the game for his own good. He has officiated at many championship contests and never before was a decision disputed. He is said to feel keenly hurt over Schaefer's attitude and he may never act as referee again.

Corbett and LaVigne to See Strib Battle

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Two former world's champions are expected to be in opposite corners here tomorrow night when Young Stribling, the Georgia heavyweight boxer, meets Tommy Burns of Detroit in a 10-round contest.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, playing a local vaudeville engagement, is expected to be in Stribling's corner. George (Kid) LaVigne, former lightweight champion of the world, is expected to give advice from Burns' corner.

This will be Stribling's fourth fight in Grand Rapids inside of a year. BETTERS RECORD. Detroit, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Agnes Geraghty of the New York gymnasium association clipped two seconds from her own world's record for the 100-yard breast stroke competition in a 75-foot pool here tonight when she covered the distance in 23.35 seconds.

Miss Geraghty established the previous mark last March in the Metropolitan pool in New York City.

THE METHOD

IN CUSTODY

All along we have had the high cost of living and now we face the high cost of giving.

John Cashin of Chicago is under arrest and faces a serious charge in morals court, following the suicide of Mrs. Walter M. Hood, who killed herself while registered with him at a Chicago hotel. The two had registered as "Mr. and Mrs. Hood," and now Cashin says "I'd rather face a firing squad than meet 'Hood.' But if I do, I don't want to meet him.

BILLY EVANS Says

PLAYING RULES.

The football rules committee is usually more progressive than the experts who frame the baseball code. When a football season discloses some flaws in the grid rules the authorities in charge of that feature of the game immediately set about to rectify them. Often in an effort to clear up the situation they frame some rule that falls to work out. Such being the case, they immediately go back to the old interpretation which was more effective.

In other words the football rules committee is not nearly so conservative as the baseball experts.

GIFT SAFETY.

When the football rules committee gets together this winter the gift safety is going to be thoroughly discussed. The play has been overdone.

I have no particular thought as to how it can be remedied, but no doubt some handling of the situation will be worked out to curb the deliberate making of a safety in order to ward off the possibility of a touchdown.

The rule makers didn't have the gift safety in mind when they framed the rules covering the play. Now that a new angle has been placed on the safety some remedy must be sought.

The gift safety isn't in keeping with the best ethics of real sportsmanship. It savors more of the professional code than the collegiate.

However, it may prove as troublesome a point to the football strategists as the intentional pass has to the baseball experts.

A SUGGESTION.

While on the question of rules I want to repeat a suggestion that was made to me the other day by a former Big Ten star.

The suggestion deals with a change in the system of starting play at the beginning of the second half.

The system of starting the second half by kicking off from the center of the field is all wrong because it is unfair," he says. "Any rule that lacks fairness is all wet."

"For years I have argued for a change in the method of starting play in the second half. I contend it should be resumed at the point where the ball was when the first half ended.

"In other words, resumption of play between the second and third periods should be in the same manner as between the first and second and third and fourth.

"To illustrate my point. We will say that with perhaps seven minutes to play one of the teams carries the ball 75 yards down the field without once losing it. With the ball one yard from the coveted goal the first half ends.

"Simply because that march down the field was made in the second period it is wasted, because the rules state the ball shall be put in play from kickoff to start the third period. It isn't fair."

There appears to be considerable logic to the argument of the former Big Ten star on this feature of football rules.

FAVORS CHANGE.

I note where President John Heyder of the National League favors a return to the old system of calling games because of rain.

Originally if the umpire suspended play because of rain, and at the end of 30 minutes it was still raining, the game should be called off.

This was a good rule because it definitely covered the situation and offered an alternative in the matter. Big business caused the case, the rain will shortly cease after the former set limit of 30 minutes. If the suspension came before a legal game has been played it means the return of the money to the spectators. If it happened to be a big day, with say a gate of $75,000, it was quite a jolt to the club owners.

The rule was changed making it optional with the umpire. If he believed there was a chance of completing the game he could delay as long as he saw fit.

MINNEAPOLIS BEATS DULUTH IN HOCKEY

Minneapolis, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Minneapolis scored its first victory of the season in the new central group of the United States Amateur Hockey League here tonight by defeating Duluth, 1 to 0. The two teams played a scoreless tie last night.

YOUNG SELECTS ALL-AMERICAN

8 Eastern and 3 Middle West Stars on Eleven.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Eight Eastern stars and three Middle Western performers occupy places on an All-American lineup selected for the Associated Press today by Lou Young, head coach at the University of Pennsylvania, who also gives his choices for first and second All-Eastern companions.

Dartmouth is the only college placing more than one man on the following All-American eleven: Ends: Tully, Dartmouth, and Thayer, Pennsylvania.

Tackles: Chase, Pittsburgh, and Weir, Nebraska. Guards: Carey, Cornell, and Sturhahn, Yale.

Center: McMillan, Princeton. Quarterback: Friedman, Michigan. Halfbacks: Grange, Illinois, and Oberlander, Dartmouth. Fullback: Tryon, Colgate.

Holloway Leads Detroit Pitchers in Win Averages

Detroit, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Kenneth Holloway in his second full season with Detroit led all the rest of the Tiger pitchers in games won and lost but was near the bottom of the list in earned runs allowed, the official American League standings, released today, disclose.

Holloway's won-and-lost percentage was .765. He won 13 and lost four games. He is followed on the list by Dutch Leonard who won 11 and lost 4 games for an average of .733. George Daus ranked third winning 16 and losing 11 for .593. The order in which the others finished was:

W. L. Pct.
Stoner	10 9 .526
Whitehill	11 11 .500
Wells	6 9 .400
Doyle	4 7 .364
Collins	6 11 .353

Owen Carroll who was with the club only part of the season is credited with three victories and one defeat.

Jess Doyle was the Marberry of the team being used largely for relief. He finished 34 games. On 11 occasions he himself was relieved.

George Daus ranks first among the Tiger pitchers and fourth among all American League twirlers in earned run percentage. He allowed 3.16 earned runs per nine inning game. Penneck of New York and Coveskie and Johnson of Washington were the only pitchers topping him. Daus also shares with Whitehill the distinction of pitching shutouts during the season each being credited with one.

Whitehill also was one of the few pitchers who turned in a two-hit game during the year. George Daus pitched one four-hit game. Excepting for these games, Detroit pitchers turned in no notable performances.

Whitehill worked the most innings—239, with Daus next good for 228 innings. Whitehill also was the strikeout king of the club, whiffing 83. Leonard, who did not work a full season, struck out 65 and Daus got 58 on the third strike.

American Ass'n to Open Play April 13

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—After wrangling in an all-day session over the awarding of holiday dates, club owners of the American Association adjourned tonight without adopting a schedule for the 1926 season.

It was voted, however, to open the season on April 13, a day in advance of the major leagues' opening, and to play the usual program of 168 games. The season will open in Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Paul and Milwaukee.

When it became evident that no agreement could be reached on the schedule submitted, a schedule committee of three with President Hickey as chairman, was appointed to draft a new playing chart embodying all the suggestions made. This will be submitted to the club owners for a mail vote.

Escanaba Bowlers to Play Gladstone

The Escanaba city team will go to Gladstone Saturday evening to participate in a match game with the Gladstone city team at the Community alleys. The men from this city who are contemplating taking the trip are: Win Schuldes, Carl Sawyer, Edward Moersch, Hugh Blake and Earl Taylor. The Gladstone team has some good bowlers and a very exciting game is being looked forward to by local fans.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

Official Washington couldn't have had much to do with the Army-Navy game. We see it was run off without a scandal.

Safe crackers got less than $3,000 pulling a job at Tampa, Fla. This is the worst knock the vaunted prosperity of that state has got so far.

One of the beauties about having a team like Harvard is that none of your players is ever tempted by professional promoters.

Mr. O'Goofy was surprised to hear Oosterbaan is an All-American football player. "I thought he was an advertisement for a mattress," he said.

Is another swift month or so you'll be reading that "Johnson's arm is as good as ever," that "Cobb's triple beats Yarnigans" and that "Speaker makes circus catch against centerfield wall."

Who remembers the good old days when the A. A. U. and Charles Paddock's expense accounts were always good for a spread on the sports page?

Another encouraging feature of the Red Grange contract is that it shows all the money in the country has not been carried to Florida.

Cannefax, the champion, says billiards requires more nerve than any other sport. Thus indicating Cannefax has never been involved in a red-hot, grueling, man-to-man tiddle de winks game.

The heavyweight champion of Spain is coming over to challenge Dempsey. We suppose this is to be a bull-fighting engagement with both boys making the usual ringside weights.

While Mons. Coue had nothing to do with the recent football season, it was quite evident that every Saturday the boys were getting wetter and wetter.

King Tut would have been of little value in these times. He weighed less than 110 pounds and that's entirely too small to make any first class varsity team.

OFFICE OF RUM RING IS RAIDED

50 Prohibition Agents Take Part in Raid at New York.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Half a hundred prohibition agents, deputy United States marshals and special patrolmen today raided the offices of a liquor ring which prohibition agents said was the largest in the history of prohibition and was the "backbone of rum row."

A syndicate, which controlled 18 ocean steamers in the liquor trade, bribed coast guard officers, wholesalers and had its own secret service system for watching the movements of federal officers was said to have been broken by the raiders whose first round-up of the day netted 20 men and whose principal captive was "Bill" Dwyer, alleged head of the syndicate.

$40,000 Bail Set.
The ring's activities were said to be responsible for the bringing of millions of dollars worth of liquor into this country annually. Dwyer, arraigned before Judge Goddard on a specific charge of conspiring last July to bring 4,035 cases of liquor into the country hidden in the bunkers of the steamship Augusta, was held in $40,000 bail, although Asst. U. S. Attorney Steichman asked it be set at $75,000.

United States Attorney Buckner said he had been informed that Dwyer was an owner of the Montreal race track in Montreal, and the Coney Island race track in Cincinnati.

KNOW OF BRIBES.
Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Coast guard officials tonight declared they had known of the bribing of coast guard personnel for some time and had permitted it to continue to aid in attempts to apprehend the alleged wealthy law violators doing business along rum row.

The bribing of a $60-a-month seaman was a small matter compared with trapping illicit liquor operators making millions out of the business, they said, describing the coast guardsmen as only "minor pawns in the game" and asserting that those guilty would be court-martialed.

Flour Takes Another Jump as Wheat Rises

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Another advance of 25 cents a barrel in the price of flour, accompanied today's rise in wheat prices, standard spring patents flour selling at $8.25 a barrel, a new high for the season, and an advance of $1.50 a barrel since October 1. Today's quotation for flour compares with $6.25 a barrel at this time last year. At the high point of last season's big uptick, which culminated January 28, flour sold here at $10.50 a barrel.

State to Acquire Land to Protect Rights of Public

Lansing, Dec. 3.—(AP)—John Baird, state conservation commissioner, today warned Frank Collins of Toledo, the principal in a recent suit against two fishermen for trespassing, that the state intends to acquire his land along the Pine river, in Lake county. Judge Fred Lantz recently awarded Collins six cents damages against the men who fished the stream where the land on both sides is owned by Collins.

"100 Years of Life Near," Says Dr. Mayo

By NEA Service
Dr. William Mayo comes of a family that apparently thinks the practice of medicine is the only profession worth following. Since 1627 all of his direct ancestors have been doctors. His brother is a doctor. His daughters have married doctors. His nephews are doctors, and all of his nieces have married doctors. "The idea of being anything else has never even dawned on us," Dr. Mayo admits with a laugh. "Just as circus babies eighteen months old are taught to turn somersaults and learn to stand on the backs of horses almost before they can walk, so the Mayos, from father to son, have done their teething on a vulture of anatomy or physiology."

New Orleans, La.—The average length of human life will soon be 100 years.

Cancer will eventually be entirely under the control of medical science. Tuberculosis will be a rare ailment.

Good health will be the heritage of every person in America.

These are the outstanding declarations in an interview given exclusively to NEA Service by Dr. William Mayo, world famous surgeon, who, with his brother, conducted the great clinic that has made the little town of Rochester, Minn., known throughout the earth. He gave this interview seated on the deck of the yacht in which he has been cruising the Mississippi.

"Modern medicine," he began, "that in the past forty years has given humanity a life-span increase from an average of forty-two years to fifty-eight years, is on the threshold of discoveries compared to which all the marvels of medicine that have gone before are mere child's play."

Will Live 100 Years.
"Medicine will conquer the infirmities of age, and a normal life expectancy of 100 years is by no means a fantastic dream."

"Henry of Navarre said that he wanted to see every peasant in France have a chicken in the pot. A ruler of his power today would change that prescription and want to see health in every home in his realm. And it is possible."

"America's physicians and surgeons are wide awake and alert in their battle for public health. They know what they are doing and are becoming more expert day by day. Less and less the public is accepting disease and death as divine visitations and the will of God. It was only through our own indiscretions that disease has shortened life. The doctors are making us get back to the teachings of the Bible."

The famous physician leaned forward in his chair and almost shouted the word "Cancer!"

"I know that it can be cured now in its earlier stages, and it is often being cured by surgery after the early stages are past," he said.

"We are getting after cancer. More and more often we are conquering it. We have not succeeded entirely yet, but some day, maybe not in my time, we will succeed."

Medicine Divided On Cancer.
"Medicine is divided into two camps on cancer. One camp believes that cancer comes to the human body from the outside. The other camp works on the belief that cancer is produced inside the human body."

"I would not say that I am completely allied to either camp. Cancer is a world-wide problem, and we know this, at least—that it comes in many cases from irritations."

"The Chinese, for example, shave their heads with rough razors. Cancer of the scalp is extraordinarily prevalent in China."

"Go to Australia. There, where sand is blown into the face by the hot wind under a blazing sun, you will find cancer of the face prevalent."

"Go further into the Orient, into Kashmir, where the men climb in a couple of days from hot, damp valleys to the piercing cold of the high mountain passes, and you find them wearing basket-like arrangements strapped about the abdomen and containing charcoal. Cancer of the lower abdomen is extremely prevalent there."

"Locomotive engineers who sit year after year with one leg close to the firebox show a strong tendency to develop cancer of the shin. Once there was a smokers' cancer on the lips and tongue, particularly among smokers of the old-fashioned clay pipe. But clay pipes are so little used now that we have one case of smokers' cancer where we used to have a hundred."

"So we find that something always goes ahead of cancer, something. And modern medicine is working against cancer from both sides and is closing in on it."

Tuberculosis Vanishing.
"And in tuberculosis, public education in sanitation and health has done wonders. We know that we are getting rid of tuberculosis by stamping out the conditions that bring it. And we are checking cancer by stopping it before it is cancer."

"I lay it down as an absolute rule that every human being, from earliest childhood, should go to a doctor for a complete and thorough examination once a year, at the very least. If humanity did that there is no way to estimating the human lives that would be saved and lengthened."

"The newspapers can help to an extraordinary degree. Pitiless publicity for all fakes and quacks is humanity's only protection against the evils they bring."

Then Dr. Mayo turned to prohibition. He explained that lack of reliable data prevented him from saying what part of America's improvement in general health is due to prohibition, and declared:

"It was pure water that made prohibition in America, not any moral issue or political policy. I was in Vienna when that city first got pure drinking water, brought down to the city from the mountain springs. The Viennese suddenly learned that they could drink water without fear of sickness or death. In ten years after that the consumption of wines and beers in Vienna decreased 40 per cent."

"National prohibition is not a failure. Prohibition, as it now exists in America, is only a process of educating the American people to the need of prohibition, and an experiment leading to the institution of an established means of governmental control over intoxicating liquors."

Regulation of Liquor.
"Something will soon be done to regulate properly this great national problem. The time will come when a real method of sensible control and regulation which will be fair and just will be adopted."

"The American people are beginning to realize that something must be done. That is precisely the purpose of prohibition as we have it today. It is working toward an end, a good end, and for that reason I cannot feel that it is a failure."

Dr. Mayo added that his clinic was receiving fewer cases of alcoholism than in pre-prohibition days, and that surgical cases do not include as many instances of lowered resistance due to alcoholism as in former years.

The famous surgeon then took occasion to defend modern youth and the "jazz age," and scoffed at the notion that conditions among young people are worse than when he was a boy.

"If anything, they are better," he said. "Youth is more sophisticated; young people know more of evil and for that very reason are better equipped to face the problems of life."

"I am thoroughly in favor of short skirts. I hope never again to

EVOLUTION

Mrs. James H. Corbett, of Utica, N. Y., blames the disappearance of her daughter, Alice, upon the girl's studies of evolution at Smith college. She says the study undermined the girl's religion.

Paris.—The bobbed hair style is passing out in France. Fewer short hair cuts are seen each day, and long hair will soon form the popular hair dress, according to French style directors. Several large department stores have refused to employ bobbed-hair salesgirls.

The staff at the English ministry of agriculture to deal specially with rats has been reduced to one man.

see the return of the day when woman's skirts dragged on the ground and collected all the dust and dirt of the streets. And if a woman wants to bob her hair she should do so, it is cleaner and more healthful."

Wants to Start Life Again.
Here the interviewer put a question.

Dr. Mayo added that his clinic saved lives. You're in the work you love. You've had success, professionally and financially. If you could have your wish—any wish you might make—what would it be?"

The physician smiled gently. "If I had my wish," he replied, "I'd be a young doctor just starting out again. Or, better yet, a freshman at medical school."

"It is wonderful to contemplate the future of medicine. With humility and an open mind, if our doctors work hard and take nothing for granted, they shall yet make this world so much a better place to live in as few of us have ever dared to dream."

"And I wish that I was young again and in the ranks and starting life all over to work with them to do it."

BIKE RACE

New York, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The teams of DeBasts-Gooens and McNamara-Georgetti retained their lead at one o'clock this morning in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden after covering 1,626 miles, nine laps, against the record of 1,896 miles, seven laps made by Root and Clark in 1914.

There had been no material change in the other positions, the riders apparently being content to hold their places after damaging sprints the first half of the week.

NO "EAST SIDE," "WEST SIDE."

Physical conditions faced in the city of Manistique are not dissimilar to those found in Escanaba and any question that may remain in the minds of Manistique residents as to the results obtained through a council manager government, where an imaginary line divides a city into two sections, should find its answer in Escanaba.

Escanaba is naturally divided in to Escanaba proper and North Escanaba, each section having largely its own business and residence districts. The Manistique river divides that city into the "east side" and the "west side" and like Escanaba and North Escanaba, each has its own residence and business districts.

There existed the fear in Escanaba, before a council manager government was adopted, as it probably exists in Manistique today, that through representation of large in a council manager government, the larger section of the city would profit at the expense of the smaller section.

The contrary has proved the experience in Escanaba and residents of Manistique's "west side" can well accept a lesson from the page of North Escanaba's experience, under the form of government now in operation in this city and which is proposed for Manistique.

Under Escanaba's old aldermanic government, North Escanaba was accepted largely as the city's backdoor entrance. Modern improvements were given by the council to that section of the city when funds were available, after the needs of the city proper had received attention.

When the present council manager assumed charge of affairs of the city, North Escanaba enjoyed water sewerage and gas services only in a limited area. This in spite of the fact that all of those services were supplied under municipal control and direction. And the water and gas service furnished to even a limited area of North Escanaba, could scarcely be dignified by the name of "service."

A sickish, ten foot, dribbling, stream of water was the water service the average North Escanaba resident received at the end of his garden hose.

Conditions existing at North Escanaba commanded the attention of the city wide elected council and the city manager as soon as the new regime was established. Today every section of North Escanaba has water, gas, sewerage, electric and garbage collection service of an equal standard with any section of the city. The city's sidewalks limits have been extended to include practically all of North Escanaba.

Boulevard lights have been provided on two of the principal streets traversing that section of the city and members of the city council and the city manager are now exerting every effort with the state highway department, to reroute a state trunk-line highway through North Escanaba to provide another paved way, at a minimum cost, through that part of the city. A year ago the council manager government purchased a park site at North Escanaba and next season a beautiful breathing spot for that section of the city, will be opened to the public. During the past year, when a series of open air concerts were arranged by the municipal band, the concerts were alternated between Ludington park and the new North Escanaba park.

In the light of North Escanaba's experience, under a council manager government, the people of the "west side" at Manistique, cannot afford to hesitate in placing their stamp of approval upon a similar government for that city.

PAPERS AND READERS. A leading American editor comments on "the remarkable progress that has been made in the ethical standards of the press," not by any spasmodic effort at reform but by steady development over the last couple of decades.

He is doubtless right. Maybe that is why we hear less criticism of the press today than was customary not long ago. Fewer people roast the newspapers in public

THE MOVIE MECCA.

Hollywood, Calif., is grappling again with its major problem, which is not vice, as some outsiders fancy, but an over-supply of film talent. Or perhaps "talent" is the wrong word. Call it film material.

Most of it is material for mobs and nothing more. It plays the mob regularly in real life, as in art. The film producers are able, on an average, to use about 4,000 "extras." There are 40,000 would-be actors there, disillusioned about stardom and eager to take anything that turns up in the way of film work. Ten persons cannot live on one petty job. So there is a big economic problem in Hollywood, and an aggravation of social problems.

The Motion Picture Producers' Association is doing what it can to help matters. It is going to open a free employment bureau to connect available actors with jobs, and will try to steer into other lines of work those not fitted for the movies.

That, however, is mere palliation. The real remedy lies back home in a thousand American communities, where movie-mad persons, men, women, boys and girls, and even children, succumb to the lure of the screen and set out for Hollywood as California's original pioneers set out for the gold fields. It should be more generally understood that it isn't safe for anybody, no matter how talented, to go to the movie capital unless guaranteed a living job or equipped with an adequate grub stake.

Michigan's boundary dispute with Wisconsin is described as ninety lawsuits in one. As far as we are concerned, there are the Hurley annexation plot and eighty-nine minor matters.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

ONLY A HOUSE.

Only a house beneath the hill That sets the sky a-glow, A house that burns, as houses will - "I thought at first, you know, It maybe was the cotton mill; It's just a house beneath the hill.

"For, if it were the mill that burned A hundred men would fret, Tomorrow if no spindles turned A hundred would regret; But now we need not be concerned - It only was a house that burned."

But someone's loss is very great, And someone's heart is sore, And someone lingers at the gate, The gate that leads no more Where chair and book and table wait - Ah, someone's loss is very great.

Love labored here and fashioned things That money could not buy A woman fashions while she sings, Now red against the sky; And what insurance-ewer brings Us back the most-remembered things?

This was the house where Father died, And here our John was born, And Mary Jane became a bride One early April morn; A house, yet something more beside: This was the house where Father died.

"Only a house beneath the hill; I pray you, say not so. You do not know what treasures fill Some house of long ago. Say not again, as some folks will, "Only a house beneath the hill."

ALEXEI NIKOLAKOFF, world famous pianist, makes love to Barbara when she interviews him in his hotel suite. He laughs at her journalistic ambition and tells her "Women are not made for work. You can't beat life." Barbara writes a story about the inaugural wardrobe of Mrs. Ezra Hamilton, the governor's wife, giving details of the lingerie. Mrs. Hamilton calls up. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter VIII The name "Hamilton" brought Barbara to her feet. She stared wildly about her. Bob, her father confessor and counsellor in distress, was nowhere in sight. Barbara looked at Wells. What would he do in a pinch—stand by his reporter, or conciliate a patron?

There was no help for it. Barbara thought of McDermott's stanchness, and clung to the thought, as she made her way to the telephone. It was disconcertingly near the desk of the society editor.

"Is this Miss Barbara Hawley?" came the voice at the other end of the wire, a voice like frozen cream.

Barbara admitted the charge. "Have you any explanation to offer of the disgraceful article in today's Press?" Barbara fought for time. "Which disgraceful article?" she asked, and knew that she had made a tactical error.

er than ever. Suddenly Wells smiled. "Stand by, Miss Hawley," he said. "We won't give up the ship yet. I'm official welcoming committee for bootleggers, crook politicians and annoyed governors' wives."

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Ezra Hamilton swept in. She looked around for someone who might be Barbara before she wished her sables through the little swinging gate.

Barbara was not there to be impressed. She was out in the rest room, standing before the way mirror and dabbing handfuls of cold cream into a very grimy face.

When she left the rest room it was with a velvet skin and peachy bloom that would have given battle to the president's wife herself, if need had been.

Mrs. Ezra Hamilton was standing beside the city desk, talking volubly, and using her ringed hands to emphasize each sentence.

Barbara assumed her best professional manner—a manner of course but firm. She marched straight up to the enraged lady. "I am Barbara Hawley," she said coolly. "You wish to see me?"

Mrs. Hamilton stared at the girl, with her smooth skin, her child-like gray eyes and her unmistakable air of assurance. But she was not to be deterred.

fact," with a flash of humor. "I should think you'd appreciate that 'robe denuit' phrase. They cost more than mere nightgowns."

Her impudence surprised Wells, but not more than it surprised Barbara. Mrs. Hamilton was gasping.

Wells interposed. "The managing editor, Mr. McDermott, asked me to show you into his office when you arrived," he said.

"He is really the person in authority here and can give you greater satisfaction." Wells looked at Barbara's calm profile. His eyes expressed a mixture of anxiety and admiration. Then to the governor's wife, "Just come this way."

When he came back he said to Barbara, "No use in riling her any farther, Miss Hawley. Though I don't blame you much. These squawking women get my goat."

Barbara was exceedingly uncomfortable. She crossed the room, took down the file of the Press and settled herself to reading it, in a vain attempt to divert her mind from the angry lady in McDermott's office.

After many minutes McDermott's door opened. Mrs. Ezra Hamilton issued from it. She was putting on her gloves—the very gloves.

me?" It had been a heavy day. Barbara was so tired that she let her clothes lie on the floor where they dropped and crawled into bed.

Eight hours lay ahead before the turmoil would start again—eight blissful hours of unconsciousness. But she liked to be tired out when she went to bed. It kept her from lying awake to think about Bruce.

It seemed only a moment later that she was startled from sleep by the long and violent ringing of the telephone bell. She turned on the night light by her bed and glanced at her clock. It was two o'clock.

She seized a kimono and ran to the telephone. "Terribly sorry, Barbara, old girl. But it's McDermott's orders."

"There's a woman that's shot a man down at Nellie Marie's night club. They say the killer is the sister of a man high in national politics. Shot him over some kind of triangle mixup."

McDermott's going to put out an extra, and I'm to come by for you in 10 minutes, so you can cover up on the job side of it, while I do the straight police story."

He did not ask her whether she could make it. "All right," replied Barbara, and hung up. (To Be Continued)

SCIENTISTS TO SEEK PIGMIES

Airplane Expedition to Start out for Batavia in Fall.

BY HAROLD MATSON
NEA Service Writer

San Francisco—The chief of the pigmy tribe will beat his chest and screech his wildest war cry, summing bands of three-foot black men from their caves. And the naked midgets of savagery will scurry across swamps to look up from the jungle of the skies.

There they will see a gigantic bird, stiff-winged, swooping down with a roar, and the pigmies may scatter to shelter or they may hide in waiting, ready to make their kill when the strange bird alights.

If they dare to wait they will see the bird splash over the swamps, belching puffs of smoke; and out from the very body of the bird five creatures like themselves, but twice as big, will jump.

And if the pigmies still dare to attack they will find themselves in fits of coughing, great tears will run from their eyes, and then everything will go black. The pigmies will lose their sight.

All this is to happen on an island of Dutch New Guinea, off Batavia, in the jungle land of the pigmies—never trespassed by civilized people—if the expedition of Professor Matthew W. Stirling is a success.

Stirling, who was curator of the National Museum at Washington for five years, left San Francisco in November for Batavia. He expects to find the pigmy tribes which man has sought many times and as many times has failed to find; and he expects to do it with an airplane.

Home of Cannibals. The island of the pigmies is some 600 miles long and 200 miles wide. On its shore live head hunters and cannibals, wild men who are yet wild even to American tourists. If it were not for the high mountains, that rise 5,000 feet, and the dense jungle that cups the center of the island in swampy land, these cannibals long ago would have annihilated their little fellows of the island, the pigmies.

But penetrating the jungles is high impossible. Four hundred natives, using modern implements, worked eight months into the jungle with the last white expedition. They made only 40 miles, and never even saw footprints of a pigmy.

So Stirling means to establish his base along the coast, to take his all-metal, Liberty-motored airplane over the mountains and jungles, to land in the swamps, photograph and study the pigmies and then fly back.

"The pigmies live in the stone age," Stirling says. "When they see our plane they will be looking some 10,000 years ahead of their race. We will be Gods to them. We will strike matches, smoke cigars, shoot guns, click cameras—and they, we presume, will be awed and bow at our feet."

"Or they may see in us their devil and try to kill us. Then we shall throw tear-gas bombs at them and they will temporarily go blind."

It is all very simple to Professor Stirling. But what if the airplane crashes? He says they don't figure on that. What if the pigmies overpower them? That's another story.

Five in Party. With Stirling there are four men, each an expert in his line. Stanley Hedberg is the historian. R. K. Peck the photographer. S. E. Hammer chief mechanic, and Stirling is the anthropologist. The material they get on their daring trip will go to the Smithsonian Institute.

"But how about the head hunters and cannibals on the coast?"

"The Dutch government is helping us with them," Stirling replies. "They have promised to give us a military escort."

The party expects to fly into

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—Remember when there was an honorable trade known as "bell hanging?" It was way back in those dear dead days before electricity did its stuff.

Wandering in Greenwich Village I came upon a sign: "Bell hanger and locksmith." Needless to say, it is the locksmithing that keeps the shop proprietor, Peter Werner, busy today.

When door-bells came into vogue this was a most thriving trade. No fine doorway of the good-old-days was complete without a bell and then it became fashionable to have bells strung about the house. There were various ways of manipulating them: some worked by means of a crank; some on a straight line system and some by means of intricate interconnections.

Then came the electric bell and killed the quaint old signal system. But the old-time bell hangers will shake their heads and argue that, whatever the convenience, nothing can ever replace the melodic tinkle of the well-toned house bells of yesterday.

Padlocks or no padlocks, it seems that the Broadway night-lifers, both local and transient, will not stand for boozeeless night clubs.

Good food is actually old-fashioned. One by one places famous for their cooking have had to close their doors while quick-and-hasty counters pack them in.

Recently Albert Bouche arrived from Chicago and opened the Bal Masque, a liquorless night club. A fortune was spent upon entertainment and decoration. The covert charge was low. But the no-drinks rule was strictly enforced. Now Mons. Bouche goes back to Chicago. The place slowly starved and finally gave up. It is said that the proprietor of a recently padlocked night club will reopen it soon. Then watch its smoke.

Taxis to Florida can now be picked up on almost any New York street.

Not far from one of the railroad stations I saw an ornate taxi bearing the sign: "Taxi to Florida for $35."

By NEA Service.
London—Inspired by the antics of Rin-Tin-Tin, his canine brother, Pull Your Leg, champion British whippet, is believed to have forsaken the track for the films.

Pull Your Leg was sent to Pasadena recently by his owner, Councillor W. Doewra, of Great Yarmouth, where he was due to take part in the championship races.

He arrived safely at Los Angeles, but there someone carefully opened the crate in which he was journeying. Like a flash Pull Your Leg hopped out and left.

When last seen he was making all speed for Hollywood.

PRETTY PEGGY ACUSES MANAGER

Peggy Ladd, film actress, and former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, has filed suit at Los Angeles for $501,500 damages against S. P. Fineman, general manager, and the F. B. O. Studios. She charges Fineman with an attempted assault and further says that Fineman and another had her a prisoner in the film office as part of an alleged scheme of intimidation.

HOUDINI TRAPS MASTER MEDIUM

"We're All In Same Business", He Admits When Caught.

BY GEORGE BRITT
NEA Service Writer

Lily Dale, N. Y.—"Well, Houdini, we're all in the same business anyhow."

These words take on astounding significance when you get the picture as I did, standing beside this obscure village street.

They were spoken by P. L. O. A. Keeler, for 40 years an active and extremely successful "spiritualist medium" to Houdini, the stage magician, just after the latter had exposed Keeler in a seance fraud.

Houdini regarded this admission as an abject admission of trickery and as the crowning reward of the efforts of himself and two clever women helpers. Here was a confidante of departed spirits, a veritable high priest of the cult, stammering before an avowed slight-of-hand artist who fools people for their entertainment and admitting, "Houdini, we're in the same business."

The exposure of Keeler, Houdini believes, is the prelude to the end of his long war on fake mediums. No less an authority than Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, chief investigator for the American Society for Psychical Research, distinguishes Keeler by calling him "the arch deceiver who has beguiled more thousands than any other American slate-writing medium of our day."

Keeler has been denounced often, but never before has he been compelled to acknowledge being caught in trickery.

The campaign began a few weeks ago when Houdini sent to Keeler a young woman who used the name, Ethel Lockwood. That was just after the summer assembly of spiritualists here, when the medium had been doing a wholesale business in messages from the dead. Mrs. Lockwood, a weeping widow, implored him for words of consolation from eight departed friends—a husband and child, whom she never had, and others who were either fictitious or still alive in the flesh.

Keeler obtained messages from each one she named and charged her $3 for the lot. Then on the day of the exposure Houdini himself came here, accompanied by Mrs. Lockwood, Julia Lockwood and myself. Julia actually is Houdini's secretary, but she is quite small and was made up in juvenile costume so she looked the part of a 15-year-old girl, the "widow's" daughter.

The two girls went again to the medium's home, and for the customary $3 he gave Julia a seance. They sat at a table upon which lay a slate, she says. The girl wrote questions upon paper which she folded and placed before her, and after a time the medium produced from under the slate cards bearing spirit replies. One such message, printed with yellow crayon, purported to come from the girl's deceased child sister. It says:

"Dear Julie, Dear Mama: I am happy. I have all I want. Papa got me two new skates. I have fun. I am your best girl and sister. Evelyn."

Houdini himself with a flare for the theatrical had intended to ask for a seance. He colored his hair gray with some stage whitewash and wore long tinted glasses. He proposed, also, to put on false whiskers, but in the hurry of the trip he failed to bring them.

While the girls visited Keeler, Houdini and I waited. They had just joined us and we were preparing to go to the medium's home when he came down street. Keeler was a large man with quite an air of reverence.

Houdini here dropped his nervousness and almost comic antics and became a really impressive crusader. He accused the medium of being a charlatan who took money from widows and orphans for false spirit messages and then revealed his own identity.

"I've tried to get you for long time, Keeler," he said, "and now I've got you 100 per cent, am Houdini!"

From this point on Keeler was a beaten man. He stood frozen in his tracks, helpless distress betrayed in his stolid smile.

"If you want a chance now, I like a seance," said Houdini. "I posted a guarantee of $10.00 that I can duplicate any manifestation any medium produces, and the offer is open to you."

"Why, Houdini, you know won't try any seance with you said the white-haired medium."

"You're getting careless, too," taunted Houdini. "These girls don't look dangerous, but they have been watching me do you kind of tricks for months. They'll me you are terribly crude and raw. This little one says she has to laugh at you. You actually dropped your cards."

"Yes, now I remember, I did let some cards fall," said Keeler. "It was cold today, and the light the girl did not look suspicious so I didn't take pains to put over the work slick."

"I have wanted to see you Houdini. Really, I have. I have sent you word to come here but I didn't want to write anything. If I could have been sure of it being confidential, I'd have written you that I never would try to put over any spirit message on you. After all, Houdini, we are all in the same business."

Keeler besought the girls to take back the money they had taken for their seances. "It's all in the business, now, and I can't take money from you," he said. But they refused it.

They shook hands at parting like brothers in a lodge; Houdini the showman, exulting at his unmasking of pompous deceit, and Keeler, the medium, cast down by the failure of his spirits to warn him of the nemesis which evertook him.

Escanaba Fined for Tagging Deer He Didn't Shoot

Iron Mountain, Dec. 3.—John Anderson of Escanaba sprang a new one on Judge Spencer when he appeared in court on a charge of tagging a deer he did not shoot. He was picked up at Escanaba by Deputy Game Warden Herman Leisner on complaint of the man he claimed to have brought down the buck. Just for that he paid $50 and costs.

"And the next time you play tag with some one else's venison remember you may be 'it' again," warned the judge.

STROM THRILLS IRON MOUNTAIN

Local Attorney's Address Called Best Ever Heard There.

Iron Mountain, Dec. 3.—In what was characterized by President Symonds as the "best chamber of commerce talk ever given in the city of Iron Mountain," Torval E. Strom of Escanaba made plain to the members of the Iron Mountain Chamber of Commerce in a forum meeting here Tuesday night the duties of the organization in the community.

After he had traced the chamber of commerce movement from its origin, shown something of its development and its effectiveness during the war period, Mr. Strom declared that it maintains an attitude of patriotism and loyalty and service to the community in which it functions.

The speaker cited several instances showing how the concerted actions of chambers of commerce have assisted in the growth and development of communities and in the conduct of civic affairs generally.

Pointing to the oft-abused subject of "new industries," Mr. Strom cast new light on a topic which seems to arise whenever commercial organizations convene for discussion. "We tried it in Escanaba. You are trying it here. They all do—but let me say that you are wasting your time and money when you devote any considerable effort towards securing new industries today."

New Industries "Out."

Mr. Strom then explained that the country today is overriden with idle factory buildings. "During the war," he said, "many new industries were created—industries occasioned by an emergency and demands never before known. Just as suddenly were many of these industries discontinued immediately following the armistice, and I believe it is conservative to say that not more than 50 per cent of these establishments are in operation today."

There is no further need nor demand for their product. "Consequently, throughout the length and breadth of the land, we have a wealth of available factory sites and buildings—many of them, no doubt, far more suited, as far as transportation and raw materials are concerned, than sites which we are offering up here. The sites and buildings are for sale at very reasonable figures. They are 'black marks' in the communities as far as industrial progress is concerned and the civic officials are eager that they be used. Let us forget, for a time at least about new industries."

"Look About You!"

The speaker emphasized that the effort which is usually spent in "boosting" for new industries might better be spent in the development of the ones already established in the community. "In Escanaba we had to have someone come in from New York and tell us to 'lay off' the new industries. He told us to look to our own doors. We did that, and found some 40 very fine industries within our own gates which weren't averse to a little 'boosting.' Since then we have tried to confine our efforts in that line to the home product. We have found it by far the preferable way."

In closing, Mr. Strom said: "Your chamber of commerce becomes practical and worth while only when the members are pledged to a very definite program of effort, involving careful thought and consideration, followed directly by distinct and serious action. Talking is not doing. Think first, then talk—a little—but above all, act when the time is right and you will have a successful chamber of commerce."

The speaker urged every member of the organization to devote himself wholeheartedly to the work, particularly duty.

WHY WE SAY IT.

London—Mr. Mrs. and Madam are three common English words, often used by persons who never reflect on their original meaning. Mr. is a corruption of Master. Mrs. is a corruption of Mistress and Madam is our way of writing the French Ma Dame.

Siamese cats are first-rate vermin destroyers.

State Owned Ferry Shows Large Gain in Cars Handled

Nearly 20,000 more trucks and cars passed across the Straits of Mackinac this year than in 1924, a compilation of figures by the Michigan State Ferry officials at St. Ignace shows. This year, 59,165 cars crossed the Straits as compared with 40,000 last year. The figures were issued by the State Ferry officials yesterday and include the car passage up to December 1.

The tremendous increase in tourist traffic in 1925 over 1924 is seen as an indication of the increased knowledge that the country as a whole is obtaining of the beauties of the Cloverland Parks, camp sites and better roads. It reflects the increasing flow of the tourist population to the woods and streams of the upper peninsula.

During the summer at the straits the two ferries, Mackinaw City and St. Ignace were loaded to capacity on nearly every trip. In the daytime and late at night long lines of cars could be seen on the piers waiting their turn to cross. With the advent of fall the traffic gradually fell off but quickly revived with the opening of deer season in the upper peninsula.

Officials counted 5,824 cars crossing north and south bound during the 15 days of the hunting season. Official figures show that 2,292 deer were transported across the Straits by the lower Michigan hunters. Besides the deer there were 10 moose, 12 bear, five wolves, seven foxes and two wild cats.

AT THE DELFT

Cora Y. Corson and Her Girls Enthusiastically Greeted.

Cora Youngblood Corson and her charming and talented girl associates, offer a well-balanced and highly entertaining assortment of music as the feature of the current bill at the Delft theatre.

Without question, the act is the best of its type which Escanaba theatre goers ever have listened to. The selections range all the way from the classics and old-time songs such as "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," to the most modern jazz movements and the girls demonstrate that they can dance as well as they can play. Among the solos the audience liked best was a baritone number by Miss Corson.

All of the girls are "easy on the eye" and the costuming is first-class. "Made for Love," is the screen story on the bill. It is a true story of an American artist working among the ruins of ancient Egypt and some thrilling moments are unfolded. The picture is starred. The supporting cast includes Edmund Bertram Grashy and Ethel Carson sextette and "Made for Love" will be shown at the Delft again today.

AT THE STAND.

Harry Carey's newest picture "The Texas Trail," now playing at the Strand theatre, is a cyclone of action. A dashing hero, a pretty heroine, a desperate bad man and a couple of other characters thrown in to take sides for or against the hero and some fast riding give the picture the elements which western picture fans like best.

Mr. Carey is at his best in "The Texas Trail." Ethel Shannon is his leading woman. Sidney Franklin also has a splendid part.

Folks who like "westerns" are certain to be highly pleased with the program at the Strand today.

Time and Place of Rich Trial Will Be Decided Next Week

Lansing, Dec. 30—(AP)—The time and place of the re-trial of Arthur Rich, Battle Creek youth charged with attacking Louise King, Battle Creek co-ed, probably will not be decided before next week. Because of the fact that the current term of court in Ingham county ends January 11, it was considered likely that the case will go over into the January term. Cases on the January docket ordinarily are heard in Mason, the county seat. There is a possibility, however, that an exception will be made to bring the Rich trial to Lansing. Judges Leland W. Carr and Charles B. Collingwood will determine which judge shall sit, when the case will be heard, and where.

The trial was officially transferred to Ingham county today, when Clyde B. Cortright, prosecuting attorney of Calhoun county, O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general, filed Judge North's order changing the venue and the records of the first trial with the county clerk.

Rotary Clubs Will Hold Joint Meeting

Members of the Gladstone and Escanaba Rotary clubs will participate in a joint meeting at the boarding house on Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, when they will elect officers for the year. Roney of Appleton, district attorney for International Rotary, will be the guest of the two clubs. A chicken dinner, such as can only be served at the Wells boarding house, is to be provided and officers of the two clubs believe that this announcement will insure a 100 per cent attendance from both Escanaba and Gladstone.

Follies Girl Begins Campaign Against "Artistic" Photographs

At the left is Louise Brooks in a pose which she concedes would not drive a husband away. At the right would be, had circumstances been otherwise, one of the art poses which she is suing to suppress.

New York—The nudity that is art in sculpture, and in painting, and in drawings for the magazine covers—

Is it art in photography, also? "And besides," questions Miss Louise Brooks, late of Wichita, Kas., and the Follies, who posed for Photographer John De Mirjian in next to nothing except pale pink drapery—

"Besides," questions young Miss Brooks, "what would my husband, when I get one, think?"

The questioning young Miss Brooks has filed Broadway's first injunction suit to prevent a camera man from supplying press agents, periodicals, and the public generally with a show girl's pictures.

De Mirjian, defendant in the suit, expresses Broadway's amazement. "Have I not photographed a thousand others wearing mabe a shoe, maybe a hat, maybe a shawl?" he responds. "And not only the girls of the shows, but the women of society as well?"

True, the young Miss Brooks concedes. And De Mirjian, further, was "extremely nice about it" as Louise, fresh from Wichita's conventional confines, faced his camera and removed her kimono, leaving herself clad in little but elementary symmetry.

"But that," she explains, "was two years ago, when I was young and silly. They add to it, of course—it's the publicity price that every girl new to Broadway must pay. I wasn't very crazy about it, but I understood it was part of my job."

"Now I've moved up from Broadway into the pictures. And it's different. There's more dignity in the pictures. And some of these days I hope to have a husband."

"What would he think, if after marrying me he should be confronted on every hand with photos of his wife in the role of September Morn, such as Mr. De Mirjian made?"

"What, indeed? Young Miss Brooks of Wichita nickered her eyebrows as she sought an answer. "I think that if I were the husband under such circumstances, I would protest very strenuously against my wife going back to her career," she observed at last.

"Foolish!" Photographer De Mirjian ejaculates.

"Do not the married women of New York's best society, I repeat, come for pictures of the same kind? They tell me, of course, that the pictures are for private distribution, and that I must not reveal them even in my exhibition cases. But is not the principle the same, from the viewpoint of the matrimonial question? And is it not vindication of art?"

Unhesitating distinctions are drawn by young Miss Brooks of Wichita as she describes nudity which is naughty—with matrimony in mind—and nudity which is nice. Mental reactions are the ones that are decisive. And so far as mental reactions are concerned,

DELTA HOTEL ESCANABA

SPEED URGED ON FLORIDA ROADS

Minimum 25 Miles Per Hour; Laggards Arrested.

BY BOB DORMAN NEA Service-Writer

Washington, D. C.—The camp at St. Augustine, my first night in Florida, was too crowded to get a good rest. Next to me was a party from Kentucky with four children, all of whom gave every indication of whooping cough. A worried mother tried to soothe them, but they cried and coughed the night through.

Therein lies the tragedy of the many tourists who have left their all to follow the lure that is Florida. It's on the kiddies that the discomforts of dirty roads and blistering heat of a southern sun tell the most.

In nearly every camp one sees tired and crying kiddies, from babes in arms, up.

We got away gladly from the camp and headed south over a road built 20 years before. Just comfortably wide enough for one car, it meant that for every vehicle traveling the other way, one had to give up half the road. And the road outside the paving is full of holes and ruts.

This lasts, however, only 90 miles south of Jax. From there on a magnificent road leads clear into Miami, 292 miles.

We stayed at a hotel that night at Melbourne Fla., at regular tourist rates. The next day we arrived at beautiful and magic Miami.

Traffic conditions there in spite of an efficient traffic force are terrible. Parking in the downtown section, unless one is there by 7 in the morning, is impossible. Traffic congestion is one at ten speed.

I found myself driving down the main street at 35 miles an hour with cars at each corner yelling "speed it up," "get on by!"

Cross the causeway two vehicle-wide, that leads to Miami Beach is a test for any driver's nerve and skill. Twenty-five miles an hour is the slowest permitted, and 35 is requested.

One driver was fined $25 while it's all a matter of drapes and costumes, to-wit:

Drapes—naughty. Costumes—nice.

There's no chance in the two classifications, moreover, even when the costume is decidedly scantier than the drape.

And would young Miss Brooks, pursuant to her views of niceness, naughtiness, and the possible puritanical leanings of her future husband, be kind enough to pose in her pajamas?

"Oh yes—gladly," replied she.

I was in Miami for driving slower than 25 miles.

Miami is crowded. Tents are being put up to take care of those unable to find houses. And the big winter rush is now on.

For those who have plenty of money, accommodations are easily available. But for the man of middle class, finding a reasonable place to put his family is like looking for the needle in a haystack.

We happened to hit Miami when it was hot. Of course along the ocean it was cool, but away— We were glad to turn northward.

While I drove the 266 miles between Miami and Daytona, my wife kept track of the southward bound foreign tourist cars; that is, those loaded with baggage.

We passed 697 from 7 in the morning until 5:15 in the afternoon. How many we missed while at lunch we do not know.

From Jacksonville, we drove to Savannah, Ga., after having two broken springs repaired; one broken spring caused by a road hog, who gave me the alternative of crashing head on or taking the ditch.

Beyond a doubt, the worst road in Georgia lies from where our entrees that state from Jacksonville on to Brunswick. Full of immense holes, but deep in dirt, it is enough to ruin a car. It is also narrow. We passed one unwary motorist who had skidded into a water-glad ditch when another car forced him too close to the side of the road.

Three Georgians were vainly trying to push it out. I tried to help push, but it was no go.

So we picked it up and lifted it back to terra firma. Thank goodness it wasn't a Cadillac.

From Savannah the road improved a trifle, until we hit South Carolina. Then it became the old story of corduroy roads, even worse than in the West.

North Carolina was as good as before, but the roads of eastern Virginia are on a par with South Carolina.

Reaching Washington we were more than glad to find ourselves once more where the worst one can expect is an occasional detour.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank my kind friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted me at the time of the death of my beloved daughter, and also those kind friends who sent flowers and spiritual offerings and also those kind friends who donated their cars.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv)

Bark River Phone Service Restored

Telephone service at Bark River, destroyed by fire which burned the telephone central office in that village Saturday has been completely restored. A crew of ten men went to work Sunday and after three days of hard labor succeeded in putting all lines in order.

The new central office is located at the Frank Perrow hotel and is only a short distance from the place which was destroyed.

CAUTION.

She: Dearest, will you love me when I'm old?
He: Love you? I shall idolize you—you're not going to look like your mother, are you?

CAID OF THANKS. We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our neighbors and those who assisted us in any way during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Farley. Such genuine expressions of good-will will not be forgotten. Oliver Farley and family. 7768-365-11.

CONFESSIONS A FAKE. Birmingham—Albert Manning, a tinker, walked into the post- office and gave himself up. He had killed a woman. He was found by the police. Police could find no evidence of the crime and Manning released.

GOLDEN RULE

Arthur Nash (above), wealthy Cincinnati clothing manufacturer, is called "Golden Rule Nash" because of his humanitarian policies. Now he has asked Governor Donahy of Ohio to pardon John A. Sybell (below), who has served three years of a 25-year term for robbery of one of Nash's pay-rolls—a robbery that cost Nash over $8000. Nash promises to give Sybell a job and be responsible for his behavior if he is released.

Mrs. Oliver Farley Is Laid to Rest in Cemetery at Garden

Garden—The late Mrs. Oliver Farley was born in Garden, November 26, 1864. She spent practically the whole of her life in this district. As previously re- ported, she passed away at the family home here, December 19, the funeral being held the follow- ing Tuesday from the local Cath- olic church. A large number of sorrowing and sympathizing friends of the family were present.

Besides the husband, she is survived by the following chil- dren: Mrs. Charles Winter, Miss Edith Farley, Mrs. Edward Joque, all of Garden; Mrs. John R. Her- ic of Manistique; Joe Farley, Mrs. Edward Purtil, George Farley, all of Garden; Alfred Farley, Manistique; Mrs. Eugene John- son, Alpena; Miss Madge Farley and Donald Farley, both of Gar- den. There are also two sisters: Mrs. Angus Aird of Escanaba; and Mrs. Edward Hogarty of Manis- tique; and three brothers: George Thompson, Rapid River, and Jess Thompson, Iron Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Farley were mar- ried in Garden 46 years ago. Deceased was one of the most popular women in the commu- nity. A hard-working and devoted mother of a large family, she was always ready to lend a sym- pathizing ear to those outside of her own family circle who were in need of advice or help. Her spec- ious home was the regular meet- ing place of every member of her family, with their wives or hus- bands and children very many times during the year. She was especially happy when entertain- ing such gatherings.

Not only was Mrs. Farley widely known as the Garden penin- sula, but, as the one largely re- sponsible for the successful op- eration of the Farley hotel, she is known all over the state, as well as in other states. Hundreds of tourists and commercial men who have visited this place will remember the excellent provision which she made for their needs. It will miss her on subsequent

PERSONALS

Edward Goff of Kates Bay has purchased a Ford sedan.

Cyrus LaMotte of Iron Mountain spent the Christmas vacation with friends and relatives in the Garden district.

Alice Lamkey of Manistique spent the Christmas vacation with her people here.

Myrtle Lamkey of Munising spent the holidays at the home of her father at Van's Harbor.

A. V. Buckholtz of Escanaba visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Walch on Christmas Day.

A. V. Buckholtz and Mrs. J. Walter returned to Fairport Friday last, and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Russell.

The usual midnight mass was omitted from the program of the local Catholic church. Two masses were given on Christmas morning, Reverend Father Meira officiating.

Vernon Hazen returned from a trip to Iron Mountain on Monday night. Fred Winters accompanied him part of the way.

One of the quietest Christmas seasons for many years, so far as this peninsula is concerned, has passed into history. Holiday traf- fic was quiet; business was quiet, and social activities were at the minimum. The only real activi- ties to be noted was the move- ment of fish, mostly suckers, from Van's Harbor to the Cooks de- pot. This, we believe, constituted a record and taxed the energies of the local ivery company to its capacity. However, everything moved according to schedule.

Walter Stelwagen and Wil- moted to Escanaba Monday. Peter Deloria, who had been visit- ing his parents here, returned to the city with him, and started work again Tuesday morning at the Delta Hardware company's store there.

A few shipments of hides and furs, mostly weasels, are being made from the local postoffice.

Hubert Roberts has returned to his home at Escanaba after spending several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Walch.

Mrs. Oscar Russell and Mrs. John Rusford of Fairport were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Walch last week.

Paul Lamkey made a business trip to Manistique last week.

Mrs. Tillie McLeod attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Len Foye of Manistique last week.

Jerome Walch of Van's harbor reports an exceptionally big lift of suckers last week.

Rita McCauley, a student at Garden high, is spending her vaca- tion with her parents at Fair- port.

Mrs. Duncan McLeod has moved into the Ward home at Van's Harbor where she will make her home for the winter. Mrs. Ward is spending the winter in Glad- stone.

Kolman Casper spent the whole of the Christmas vacation con- fined to his home with a severe cold. Dr. Foote has been making frequent calls. Mr. Casper is slowly improving.

Mrs. James Hennessey entertain- ed at her home on Christmas Day; William McNally and fam- ily, Harry Hennessey and fam- ily, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Gaffney all of Garden, and Henry Abel and fam- ily and Mr. and Mrs. Finley Mc- Cashum of Escanaba.

Mrs. Wilmer Bennett of Nahma made a business trip to Garden Tuesday.

Some time during last week- end, the gate of the Hennessey au- to truck was dropped off in the Van's Harbor district. The ser- vice would be appreciated if the finder would return it or notify the local ivery barn.

Philip Chandanois of Nahma is spending two weeks with his brother, Henry, and wife, Jack Larsen returned Thurs- day from L'Anse. On account of the bad roads, caused largely by snowdrifts, it took him 11 hours to make the trip which usually occupied five or six hours. He was tired on his arrival here.

Mrs. Vernon Hulrasson of Fair- port was in town Monday.

here of the death of Mrs. Albert Foye which took place at Manis- tique on Sunday morning. Mrs. Foye was for many years a resi- dent of Van's Harbor and was a sister of Mr. Choquette of Gar- den.

Leo Foye, wife and infant child motored to Manistique on Sun- day. The former returned early on Monday morning. His wife and child will remain in the city for a week or more.

Local fishermen received their first returns for the season on Monday morning. According to statements made by some of the men, prices are not nearly as good as they should be.

Business at the Garden post of- fice was not nearly as large dur- ing the last two weeks as in the corresponding period of a year ago. This was due in large part to the fact that commercial fish- ermen did not get the first checks of the season until after the holi- day period.

Lucille Boudreau, a teacher at the grade schools has gone to Chi- cago where she is spending a part of her Christmas vacation.

Miss Sloane, teacher at the Kate's Bay school is spending her vacation at her home in Mason- ville.

A number of Garden people at- tended the Christmas exercises given by the Kate's Bay pupils on Tuesday evening.

Special Christmas exercises marked the close of the Garden High school last Thursday. The exercises were followed by the usual exchange of gifts.

Ermaline Boudreau, a student at the Marquette Normal school is home and spending her vaca- tion with her parents, Octave Bou- dreau and wife.

Fred Winters motored to Manis- tique on Thursday and spent Christmas Day with his sister, Mrs. J. Hebert.

Henry Abel, wife and son Tony, Finley McCashum and wife, motored over from Escanaba and spent Christmas Day with rela- tives here. Tony remains and is spending his vacation here.

Wm. Winter Jr. made a busi- ness trip to Manistique on Tues- day.

Mrs. Alex McLeod is keeping house at the home of Wesley Gray, during the absence of Mrs. Gray. The latter is spending sev- eral weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Casey of Manis- tique.

It is stated that the biggest shipment of fish leaving the Cooks depot, was sent out on Monday. Most of these were suckers ship- ped out by Garden fishermen.

Local fishermen have been shipping most of their catches to Chicago markets in the past. Dur- ing the present season, one or two New York firms are trying hard to compete with the Chi- cago buyers. A few shipments have already been made to the more distant city. It is expected that others will follow.

Mrs. Mary McPhee of Fayette was a business caller in town on Tuesday.

Peter Deloria of Escanaba ar- rived on Thursday and spent the
