PONZI LIVE ON $15 PER WEEK

Mrs. Ponzi Declares She Likes it Better Than Wealth

Jacksonville, Fla.—Rose Ponzi, wee little wife of the famous Boston Italian who towered to fame and glory as a get-rich-quick financier only to fall abruptly into a federal prison as a convicted swindler, is glad because she's poor again.

A tiny hall bedroom with an iron bed, a dresser, a couple of chairs and a hideous red rug on the floor, constitutes the range of her life now.

And she likes it better than the $100,000 mansion in a Boston suburb in which she lived until her husband crashed in 1919. "That life didn't fit me," she says. "This is ugly. But it fits."

"There is peace in my heart today. For we are doing our best and we love one another."

Charles Ponzi came down here this fall with a sentence in the Massachusetts state prison hanging over his head and some $2,000,000 in debts owing to various investors who had lost in his Boston investment fiasco. He came with one purpose—to stave off the prison sentence until he could make a profit of $2,000,000 in Florida real estate and pay off every cent he owes.

Rigid Economy. Accordingly the Ponzi household is now run on a most rigid economy basis. Ponzi, who used to tip waiters with $5 bills, and his wife who had a $10,000 drawing account for "pin money" when they were at the height of their prosperity, are now literally counting the pennies.

They are rooming fairly close in town so that Ponzi can walk to work and save street car fare. He limits himself to three cigarettes a day. The two boast that their living expenses total only $15 a week. Ponzi still wears the suits that he bought five years ago, in his hey day.

Rose Ponzi tells you that she is glad she is so small—she weighs only 90 pounds. For she can make a dress out of two yards of material. She proudly displays the frock she is wearing, with the remark that it cost her only $5—it looks as though it cost eight times that much.

She carefully presses Ponzi's suits, mends his shirts, scrubs and washes and saves, fully confident that her husband will yet be able to look the world in the face with the consciousness that he owes no man.

"I'm just a broomstick and mop woman after all," she says. "I am happier—oh, so much happier—today, digging out the dust in this poor little flat than I ever was in the days when my husband brought me diamond pins."

Happy Once More. "Some women are born to live rich. I am not one of them. Life has bruised my heart these past years. It has brought me to this $750-a-week room. But I am myself again."

"Back in those days when we hired private detectives to pose as butlers to guard the silver and tapestries and pictures in that Boston mansion I felt poreal. I used to say, 'Rose Ponzi, this is not your life. You do not fit here. Some day you will wake up.'"

The girl stops talking to apply her broom to the carpet. Then she turns and says, fiercely: "I would do anything for Charley!"

A pause. She goes on: "I want to ask you and the world one question. They say my Charley was crooked. Look at me and tell me if I look like a woman who would live with a man she thought was crooked."

Believes in Him. "If you say that I do not look like a crook, why would I stay with a crook? I am free. I have no children. I can earn good money. You are any other woman, know that I stay by Charley because I love him with all my heart."

"And every woman knows that

QUIT BECAUSE OF MITCHELL TRIAL

no woman of my sort loves a man whom she doesn't believe in."

Ponzi, too, appears desperately in earnest about this business of paying back his $2,000,000 indebtedness. He has an office in a stuffy little basement here—gets it rent free—and there, with one solitary office boy in contrast to the huge staff he had in Boston, he is carrying on.

"I am fighting against time," he says. "I must make thousands a day. I sit here, expecting any moment to hear that my little moment of reprieve is over and that I must go to prison at once."

"She'll Carry On." "If they beat me to it—well, there's the kid, my wife, Rose, the darling—there's a head for you. She'll go on with it and we'll stand before the world yet as honest as new-born babes, owing no penny!"

Ponzi smiles when you ask him about economy. "Rose is right," he says. "We were not fitted for that other life. We belong with the workers."

"I have plenty of suits left over from my palmy days. It proves that it pays to buy the best. I never paid less than $150 for a suit in those days and I can wear them now, thanks to Rosa, who keeps them like new."

Ponzi's "Charbon Land Syndicate," which guarantees 200 per cent profits in 90 days, sounds fantastic. "But he swears no one will lose a penny by it. And, incidentally, he showed a stack of letters a foot high, containing checks from investors all over the country."

He buys huge plots of farm land, divides them into tiny lots,

25 and 50 feet, and sells them for $10 each. Then he promises to return three lots for each $10 purchase.

MODERN CHORUS GIRL DOESN'T SMOKE OR DATE

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
New York—Gertrude Hoffman started a new style in dancing years ago, and today she's starting something else—a new model in chorus girls.

The 18 girls in her company who dance, fence, sing, swing on the trapeze and do acrobatic work in "Artists and Models," a New York revue, are even more famous for what they don't do than for what they do.

They don't smoke. They don't drink cocktails. They don't frequent cabarets or night clubs.

They don't encourage the stage door Johnny or the butter-and-egg man.

They haven't anything like the freedom of the flapper or the dizzy delights of the debutante. In fact, all over Broadway, they are regarded as model young women.

I went to Miss Hoffmann, and put this question to her: How do they get that way? What form of discipline is effective in these days?

How can she keep her 18 beautiful chorus girls uncontaminated by the jazz age, when they live in the thick of it, when many mothers can't keep daughters from "flasks and fags"?

Whereupon Miss Hoffmann replied:

"I give them something better to do. I give them hard work and rigid hours. They observe training rules just as a football team does. And this automatically shuts off the late suppers, drinks and cigars. They can't do that sort of thing and do their work."

"I don't make rules. I merely point out natural ones. I stress the importance of work and health. I show them how they affect their breathing with cigarettes and their heart and nerves with stimulants."

The girls of my company are young. Some are but 16. They need to be protected and guided until they reach an age of judgment."

Then Miss Hoffmann, who has been on the stage and knows its seamy side as well as its triumphs, explained to me she didn't believe in the modern theory that girls have to know about life.

"A young girl should be protected, not shoved out to sink or swim when she isn't trained for the ordeal," she went on. "A girl needs guidance from older women, but it must be sympathetic and logical—not just blanket restrictions."

"And if you deny freedom, you must substitute ambition. My girls work. They have to have sleep. Every morning except Sunday they go to school where I teach them dancing, pantomime and acting, and other instructors coach them in acrobatics, fencing and ballet.

"They are learning to be useful and self-supporting as well as to express themselves and contribute to the beauty of life. None of them has ever been ill, or left me for any reason—even though I am considered a strict disciplinarian."

Even Cupid can't compete with Miss Hoffmann when it comes to winning her girls.

"In the four years they have been with me not one has married. They've lived in London, Paris and America. Some have considered matrimony, but when they asked my advice, as they always do, I invariably advise against it."

"Understand, I have no objection to matrimony. I'm married myself and have been for 25 years—to the same man. But I have never been dependent. I've always had my career as well as my husband and my children. I couldn't have been happy any other way, and I believe the average modern girl is built that way, too."

"Marriage is important but so is a career, and so is getting one's stride before one starts to travel. If a girl has had a busy, happy life up to 25, she will have much better judgment in choosing a mate and will make a better wife than if she marries before her character is thoroughly formed."

So it is not strange that the Hoffmann girls have become the standard of the theatrical profession. They have made the new type of chorus girl popular. If other stage aspirants copy Miss Hoffmann's new model in show girls as they did her dances, the old-fashioned chorus girl who kept the Gay White Way gay after midnight will become only a memory.

Dog Licenses Are Expected to Move Rapidly Thu 10th

About 125 dog licenses had been issued at the police station when the books were stored away last night. Police believe that at least 200 additional dog owners will apply for licenses today, and tomorrow.

After January 10, a penalty fee of $2 per license must be charged. It is provided by the state law. The rates now are $2 for a male dog and $4 for a female dog. After Saturday, it will cost $4 for a license for a male dog and $6 for a female dog.

Consequently, today and Saturday are expected to be busy days in the office of John J. Toian, chief of police.

GLORIA'S HUBBY REALLY WORKS

At Least He's Gone into the Publishing Business.

New York.—"Hank" de la Falaise, American business man.

"Hank" de la Falaise, otherwise known as the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Courdey, best known to Americans as the husband of Gloria Swanson, works!

"Hank" is to become a publisher of French authors.

There are many authors of the present generation in France who are writing worth-while books," he declared.

"Hank" has formed business connections with Bernard Grasset, French publisher, and has obtained American publishing and motion picture rights to the productions of more than 60 French authors.

Among the books which he expects to produce here, in translation, are the memoirs of Eleanor Duse.

This business adventure of the marquis is not a leap in the dark. He was in business before coming to America.

"French publishers are partly responsible for this. They do not advertise. Publishing is not purely a commercial venture in France, but is taken up from the standpoint of supporting the art of writing."

But the same restrictions will not hold here. The marquis intends to advertise.

For the present he has a small office, large enough for a desk, a telephone and a quantity of books.

"I intend to read each book, and see whether it is worth publishing," he said.

"A false impression of French literature has been created in this country, and I want to assist in breaking that impression. True, some of the stories would require close censoring before presentation to an American audience, but there are many others which would not require this.

Breakfast—Sections of grape fruit, cereal, thin cream, crisp graham toast, rice griddle cakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped oysters, creamed potatoes, hearts of celery, brown bread, lemon jelly with whipped cream, molasses cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Ham baked in milk, baked sweet potatoes, creamed spinach, head lettuce with Russian dressing, rolled oats bread, squash pie, milk, coffee.

Children under school age should not be allowed to eat the ham or salad dressing suggested in the dinner menu.

MARKET NEWS STOCK PRICES APPEAR FIRM

Table with columns for Date, Industrials, Railroads, and various stock prices.

New York, Jan. 7.—(P)—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone today despite the uncertainty regarding a change in New York Federal reserve bank discount rate which was raised from 3 1/2 to 4 percent after the market closed.

In revival of speculative interest in the motor shares, particularly some of the low-priced issues, Hudson was bid up over 4 points to 12 1/2, closing just below the top.

Wheat broke 3 to nearly 5 points on professional selling based on the failure of foreign markets to follow the Chicago advance and reports that Argentine crop failures were exaggerated.

Special buying of Norfolk and Western sent that stock up nearly 4 points to 15 1/2, a new high record. Delaware and Hudson, which is expected to announce the segregation of its coal properties before the end of the year jumped 2 points to 16 1/2, the highest in over 20 years.

Oil gathered strength on merger reports and stiffening commodity prices. Associated, which is being sought as a unit in the new Barnsdall merger, advanced 2 points to 47 1/2, the peak price for the present $25 par stock.

Foreign exchanges moved within their narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher at $4.84 1/2 in reflection of the improved showing made in the weekly statement of the Bank of England.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Diseheartened over light volume of new speculative buying and over smallness of export demand a good many traders let their wheat holdings languish, almost regardless of price.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—The Chicago butter market today showed demand with slight improvement and although the bulk of the crop in northern Argentina is not the complete failure that has been widely assumed.

On Christmas Day the "shop early" slogan changes to "shop early."

REVIVE STOCKS SWEAT BOXES IN GEORGIA JAILS

Public Sentiment Opposes Cruel Treatment.

Atlanta, Ga.—Stocks, sweat boxes and various other primitive forms of punishment have been in vogue in Georgia's convict camp since the lash was legally abolished.

So widespread has become a revolt of public sentiment against the punishment methods used by warden that the state prison commission has called a conference to adopt new regulations.

Stocks and sweat boxes particularly are denounced by Georgians interested in prison reform, as harking back to the days when convicts were subjected to more ruthless brutality than the beasts of the field.

Reports have been made to the prison commission by several committeemen which investigated prison conditions in the state. These disclosed that following abolition of whipping, wardens were left virtually to their own devices in penalizing convicts.

Stocks and sweat boxes appear to have been the favorite substitutes. But they have not been the only ones.

In one country camp, a prisoner to be punished was backed up to a post, and his arms chained behind the post. His arms then were raised as high as possible and the chain fastened on a nail.

Another report told of a convict being confined in a shallow box, just large enough to hold him, and of molasses being poured over his exposed face. His arms were fastened so that he was powerless to brush away the filth.

Use of stocks and sweat boxes is described and defended by Superintendent A. A. Clarke of the convict camps in Fulton county.

These devices are resorted to, said Clarke, only when less severe methods of punishment have failed to make recalcitrant convicts obey orders.

A white youth sentenced as a vagrant refused to work, Clarke said. He was placed in a "solitary box," a fraction higher than the average man, with holes bored in the top. Bread and water were passed through a small sliding panel in the door.

had to stand upright in the dark when the door was closed. "I thought a night of that would tame him," said Clarke. "But after six days, on bread and water, he was as stubborn as ever."

Clarke further explained: "When a man stays in the stocks too long his arms and legs swell, and they have to be taken to the hospital for treatment."

He remarked: "This is a prison camp, not a hotel. We do the best we can by the men. We get the very lowest element."

All prisoners in Clarke's camps are compelled to bathe twice a week. They are fed three times daily.

"Twice a week," said the superintendent, "the men get fresh fish and fresh meat. They have all the helpings they want."

The prison commission has called county physicians and other interested officials into the conference, at which a ban on further use of stocks and sweat boxes was discussed.

Mancheater—What is believed to have been the shortest murder trial on record took place here recently.

He was accused of murdering his sweetheart. He pleaded guilty. "Do you realize what you are doing?" the judge asked.

"You know that by your plea of guilty the sentence is in no way affected?"

The judge then sentenced him to hang by the neck until dead.

Hunt the bright side. If you had a few more friends maybe they would borrow your money.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT. A skillful blending of melodrama, sophisticated comedy, spectacular scenes, and unusual photographic effects has made "Sporting Life."

Much of the story is frank melodrama, and with it Tournour has combined a quality with which melodrama does not always go hand in hand—reality.

Bert Lytell and Marian Nixon make a great pair of lovers. Bert Lord who wins the reputation as the dashing young English is the most extravagant man in London, and Marian as the sweet, innocent English girl.

Others in the cast, all of whom give creditable performances, are Cyril Chadwick, Paulette Duval, Charles Delaney, George Seligman, Ena Gregory, Kathleen Clifford and others.

AT THE STRAND. There will be a regular bargain counter rush tonight for the Strand theatre with the opening of the new First National release, "What Fools Men."

With such favorites as Lewis Stone, Shirley Mason, Barbara Bedford, Ethel Gray Terry, David Torrence and others in the cast, fans of many affiliations will be pleased.

It costs a small fortune to make one watch, automobile or fountain pen. It takes a large part of the brains and of the factory to make just one of any manufactured product—but if a thousand or a million can be made, the cost of each comes toppling down.

Advertising, by multiplying the number sold, makes it possible to slash costs. Advertising, by opening up undreamed-of markets, has brought within reach of the people thousands of things which formerly were luxuries only of the rich.

When you buy an advertised article, you join in the popular movement to cut down production costs. America's millions of shoppers, by buying advertised goods, are every day forcing factories to be made larger and commodities to be produced for less.

To buy advertised goods is to start savings on their way to your pocket.

OPEN DRIVE ON WOLVES IN U. P.

Vizena Making Plans for Extensive Campaign During Winter.

Seeking to rid the Upper Peninsula of wolves, coyotes and other predatory animals, the state department of conservation is arranging for an extensive campaign during the winter months.

J. A. Vizena, assistant state game warden, is now visiting the various districts, wardens and state trappers throughout the peninsula to make preparations for the season's work.

Mr. Vizena declares that predatory animals in the Upper Peninsula cause the conservation department much trouble and a considerable expenditure of money is being spent annually to kill them. That they are increasing in number in several districts in northern Michigan is the belief of conservation officers in those regions and the problem of eradicating them is becoming more difficult.

John B. Lapham, state trapper who has been operating in the lower peninsula, has been transferred to the Rapid River district, and will be assisted by the conservation officers in that vicinity. Other appointments and changes will undoubtedly be made, Mr. Vizena stated, to cope with the situation in each section of the peninsula.

DON'T FOOL YOUR WIFE, PASTOR IN NEW YORK WARNS

New York—Trust in God, follow the Golden Rule, and DON'T TRY TO FOOL YOUR WIVES!

It's the king of American sermons that Rev. Edwin A. Corbett is preaching to the kings, and all the multitude of courtiers, who frequent their business palaces.

Raymond Corbett is the new "Bishop of Wall Street," designated as such when the late "Bishop" John G. Williams died.

The Morgan, the Rockefellers, and nearly all the rest of the men whose names are great in New York money matters look him up under notable auspices that the Cross carries on at the corner of Wall and Broad streets, in the shadow of the New York Stock Exchange.

No stranger to Wall street and its spiritual needs is "Bishop" Corbett. For 12 years he collaborated with "Bishop" Wilkins, his predecessor, in daily 10-minute talks to a list of 700.

"Talk plainly, if only men are here," Raymond Corbett tells his wives. I remind them, I have intention that lets them in mighty dignity on the secret if their husbands are untrue.

"If there are women in the crowd, I curb my remarks somewhat."

Installation of Officers. The U. S. C. F. Branch No. 3 held their installation of officers at St. Anne's hall Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock after which a delicious lunch was served. A large number of members attended the exercises.

The following officers were installed: Chaplain—Rev. Fr. G. Jacques. President—Mrs. Alphonsine Fillion. Vice President—Mrs. Mathilda Chartier.

Past President—Mrs. Exilda Beaumier. Recording Secretary—Mrs. Delina Laplante. Financial Secretary—Mrs. Rosia Barron.

Treasurer—Mrs. Della Godin. Installing Officer—Mrs. Denise Brashaw.

1st Director—Mrs. Silvina Fillion. 2nd Director—Mrs. Celia Beauchamp. 3rd Director—Mrs. Alexina Melochie.

Messenger—Mrs. Marie Dupont. Sentinel—Mrs. Evelyn Shy. Delegate to state convention—Mrs. Alphonsine Fillion. Alternate—Mrs. Cecelia Godin.

Maccabee Merger. Local members of the Maccabees are greatly interested in a proposed merger between that society and the Ladies of the Maccabees which was to have been voted on at the Maccabees international convention in Detroit, this week.

The Ladies of the Maccabees approved the merger by a two-thirds majority at a convention on December 11, and if it carries in the other society, the combination will result in one of the strongest fraternal benefit associations in the world, with a membership of over 250,000, nearly 500 local lodges, assets in excess of $29,000,000, and fully organized departments of men, women and children.

An affirmative vote in the Maccabees convention is practically certain, according to A. W. Frye, supreme commander, and the merger will go into effect 90 days after its approval by the Michigan commissioner of insurance.

While the Maccabees and the Ladies of the Maccabees have hitherto had no official connection, they have been brother and sister societies ever since the organization of the latter in 1886, with mutual aims and interests. In the opinion of leaders in both societies, these can be better carried out by operating as one association instead of two, with competition eliminated, reduced expense, and one society giving whole family protection instead of the husband belonging to one and the wife to another.

Under the Maccabees' plan of organization, men and women members are on an absolute equality but meet in separate lodges, uniting only when mutually desired for social purposes.

The L. O. T. M. local branches will thus retain their full identity and their own ritual, and the ladies will have full representation in the society's governing body according to their membership.
