

MANY SHIPS IN DISTRESS ON ATLANTIC

EARLY VOTE ON TAX BILL SEEN BY LAWRENCE

CONGRESS YIELDING TO PRESSURE BY PUBLIC.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE. Washington, Jan. 30.—The drive by the insurgent group led by Senator Norris of Nebraska to delay a vote on the tax bill beyond March 15th will not succeed. Sentiment in the senate is overwhelmingly in favor of early action, in fact, if cloture has to be imposed there will be a two-thirds vote available to do so.

The insurgent republicans do not command the power in this session which they have in the past because the democratic party is as eager for tax revision as are the republicans. Throughout the South the democratic strongholds elsewhere, the pressure from business as well as individual tax payers to have some action taken in time to pay the March 15th installment is so intense that no political or party resistance appears likely.

TO HAVE MAJORITY.

The democrats, of course, will offer amendments and so will the insurgent republicans, but these can be quickly disposed of by a majority vote. On final passage it would appear probable even at this date that the revenue measure may pass by as many as 75 to 21. The threat from the Norris group, however, may not be intended as a means of defeating the bill or even delaying its passage so much as it may be a drive to get the administration leaders to give more time for the consideration of amendments.

The mood of the administration leaders has been one of rushing the measure through. The opposition always wants more time. Senator Smoot is willing to have the bill thoroughly debated and fully considered on many occasions. By holding night sessions a few times he can soon determine whether there is any serious effort to delay the bill or merely to amend it. There is always a good deal of politics in a tax bill especially as between conservatives and radicals. The latter find much ammunition in the desire of the conservatives to reduce taxes for the benefit of persons of wealth.

The late Senator LaFollette always used to introduce a substitute tax bill or a substitute tariff bill embodying his ideas and insisted on discussing it. Those speeches formed the basis of his whole campaign on many occasions. The congressional elections are only a few months away. The radicals would like to make their record so they can go before the country especially in rural communities and attempt to prove that the conservatives favored the larger business interests of the country in their tax plan.

The democrats, in a sense, are doing the same thing. Many of the amendments offered would not only reduce the taxes for big business but would go much further in respect to small incomes. The administration is on the defensive because it has the responsibility of decision. The democrats say the taxes can be reduced by as much as $500,000,000 but they do not have the burden of making the government revenues meet expenses when that sum is taken out of receipts. So the democrats argue the deeper cuts can be made and the republicans simply answer that they cannot be.

SEN. COUZENS WANTS ESTATE TAX RESTORED

OFFERS AMENDMENT TO REVENUE BILL.

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The tax reduction bill was subjected to a dozen new amendments today, some on vital provisions, as the senate spent a four-hour session wrangling over the first controversial section to be reached in consideration of the measure.

While no rate sections were reached today, Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, opened the promised fight against repeal of the inheritance tax, offering amendments to restore the inheritance and gift taxes now in effect.

Considerable support for the amendment from western senators of both parties is anticipated by Senator Couzens whose move would not only block the proposed repeal of the inheritance levy voted by the senate finance committee but would negate the reductions in this tax provided by the house.

NON-CONTROVERSIALS CLEARED.

With the bill now cleared of all non-controversial items, leaders were confident tonight that, despite threats of a fight against several vital rate-reducing provisions, a final vote could be obtained by February 10 which would assure tax reduction by March 15 when first tax installments on 1925 incomes are due.

Approval was given today to a provision setting up a permanent congressional investigation committee which would be directed to inspect income tax returns and investigate administration of the internal revenue bureau. At the request of Senator Couzens, it was agreed that the committee would have to report all information discovered to congress.

STEAMER ROOSEVELT ARRIVES IN PORT.

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The paw of the Atlantic's week-long gale has slapped at nine more ships, sending them reeling and calling for help.

One, a sailing ship, was being towed to port tonight with her sails gone and her sides battered. Two other sailing ships have to untill the storm let them alone. Another, drifting with the wind, a fifth, a German tug, was being sought in reply to her S. O. S., still another had patched her injuries and was limping into port. The crew of still another, a little schooner, had been transferred to another ship.

The schooner and a tug were wrecked near Palm Beach, Fla., and part of the crew of the schooner was adrift in lifeboats.

To Honor Rescue Ship. The President Roosevelt, with the rescued crew of 25 men from the wrecked freighter Antinoe aboard, was nearing Queenstown tonight, where, reports said, a tremendous ovation was waiting them.

The five-masted schooner Bright, of Georgetown, Me., crtd for help today when she was 120 miles off Ambrose Light and the coast guard cutter Seneca went to her aid. All her winches had been smashed in by the high seas so that the crew could neither raise nor lower her sails. The winds had stripped her sails away and she was drifting helplessly when the Seneca took her in tow.

A German ship giving her name as the Causus, but believed to be the tug Caurus, sent an S. O. S., giving her position about 100 miles off the tip of the Spanish peninsula. T-3 DISABLED OFF FLORIDA

Submarine's Oil Supply Exhausted; Tug to Rescue.

Key West, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The submarine T-3 was reported late tonight anchored off the Florida coast near where she was disabled today when trouble developed in her fuel and caused an exhaustion of the oil supply.

Naval officers here expressed little fear for the safety of the undersea craft, though the sea in the vicinity was swept tonight by winds approximating gale intensity.

The naval tug Bay Springs is expected to reach the T-3 before dawn and will tow it to the naval base here for repairs.

ASKS FOR AID. Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A message received by the navy department said the submarine T-3 had run out of oil off Florida.

The first message received from the Key West commandant said the T-3 was off Bethel Buoy with her lubricating oil system leaking badly and her supply low. An effort was being made to reach Miami. A later message said: "Can proceed no further. Establish position six miles bearing five degrees from Bethel Shoals buoy. Require assistance to reach port."

The tug Bay Springs was enroute to the submarine's assistance, the navy announced.

The T-3 is not believed in a dangerous position, the department said, inasmuch as her commander pointed out in his first message that she would anchor when the oil supply was exhausted.

The T-3 is a fleet submarine of the first line and was built by the Fore River Steamboat corporation. Although messages were not received by the navy department until tonight the first radio relayed here by the seventh district commandant was filed by the submarine at 9:30 this morning, the second at 11 o'clock. The delay is believed to have been caused in the communications between the T-3 and Key West.

All general chairmen will be notified to present the demand to their respective railroad managements and to report back to national headquarters the results of conferences held.

Spanish Flier Makes 1,432 Miles in Non-Stop Journey. Francisco Lands at Island Near Mainland of Brazil. The distance traversed was about 1,432 miles, and the Spanish aviators now are only about 279 miles from Pernambuco, the Brazilian mainland.

The intrepid birdmen took off from Ribeiro do Inferno, Bay, Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, at 6:10 o'clock this morning. The flight was made under favorable weather conditions and seemingly without any untoward instances. Frequent radio messages from the Plus Ultra reported the progress of the voyage. It was originally estimated the flight would take 16 hours.

Only three men of the original five took part in today's adventure. Alfonso, the official photographer was left behind at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, and Ensign Duran, representing the Spanish military air service, was dropped off at Porto Praya. This enabled the seaplane to take on more fuel.

This flight was not only the longest thus far undertaken and the most hazardous, but it called for great endurance because of the crossing of the Equator, with broiling sun and depressing humidity.

Commander Franco, Capt. Luis de Aida, reserve pilot and Pablo Rada, mechanic, began the epochal flight last Friday morning from Palos, Spain, starting from the same spot as did Columbus in 1492. They reached Las Palmas the same day, in about eight hours. Their next stage was to Porto Praya, which they made last Tuesday in about nine and one-half hours. The total distance thus far traversed by the Spanish aviators is 2,385 miles.

ANOTHER POLAR FLIGHT PLANNED

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Convinced by his experience as commander of the navy section of the MacMillan expedition last summer that exploration of the Arctic by aircraft is practical, Lieut. Com. Richard E. Byrd, retired, is to lead an independent expedition into these regions this year for scientific observations and possibly a flight to the Pole.

At the same time, although its objects will be somewhat similar, it will not operate in competition with the expedition of the Detroit Aviation society, which plans a hop of this spring from Point Barrow, Alaska, for the North Pole, nor with the contemplated second effort of Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, to visit the Arctic by air.

Commander Byrd is 36 years old and has been a naval aviator since 1918. His home is in Winchester, Va., and he is a brother of governor-elect of Virginia, Harry Flood Byrd.

His spirit of adventure was indicated, when at 12 years of age he made a trip around the world alone. He holds the medal of honor for life saving and 17 citations for services performed over and above the call of duty. He was retired for disability in 1916, due to injuries received in an accident in line of duty, but since then has been on active duty much of the time, his services being utilized in special fields by the bureau of aeronautics.

ONLY 2 LEFT ON FISH TUG

Grand Haven, Mich., Jan. 30.—(AP)—After answering the diabolical calls of the fishing tug Indian late this evening, the Grand Trunk ferry Grand Haven continued its search for its missing sister ship, Milwaukee, without communicating its activities to watchers on the shore of Lake Michigan.

Theodore Graham, Sr., whose son was the first to be seen leaving the ice-jacked fishing tug Helen N. himself came ashore tonight, leaving two members of the crew aboard. The Indian, which has shared the Helen N's fate for two days, held fast by drifting ice floes, had changed the direction of its drift to the southward tonight. It was opposite White Lake at 6 o'clock.

The Grand Haven lay alongside the Indian for nearly an hour, but it was not known if a towline were cast to her or if the Grand Haven resupplied her crew, since she immediately proceeded in search of the Milwaukee.

It could not be ascertained definitely that a speed boat equipped with ice runners and manned by Detroit newspapermen, had gotten a line to the Helen N, but Graham came in over the ice, it was thought, with the assistance of a line.

Jackson, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Embedded in the ice, the body of Andrew Koscielnak, 37, who disappeared from his home here last October 19 was found in the Grand river mill pond here this afternoon by two boys playing in the vicinity. The lads, Frank Kokoak and Mike Ziva, both 13, noticed the object two weeks ago, but thought it was a dog and paid no attention to it. With warmer weather today, the ice fell away and a closer examination by the boys disclosed the head of a human being.

Koscielnak was struck by an interurban car last June and suffered a severe laceration on the scalp and body cuts. He was in the hospital ten days. According to his family and neighbors, he acted strangely after the accident, often leaving home for a day or two.

VIRGIN ISLANDS TELL TROUBLES

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A delegation from the newest of Uncle Sam's possessions, the Virgin Islands, told a long tale of tribulation today before the house insular committee. Some of the witnesses complained that the American government had too much authority, some bemoaned the appointment of "lame ducks" to the insular offices and some called attention to the passing of the important liquor trade of which St. Thomas Island once was the center. All of them described conditions as chaotic.

D. Hamilton Jackson of the council of St. Croix, said things were so bad that even the cripples were crawling out of the country. One group wanted St. Croix annexed to Porto Rico, suggesting that "Porto Rico then could take care of the federal expenses." Senor Davila, the Porto Rican delegate in congress, was present at the hearing but he refused to comment, saying that already he was the subject of heated press discussions at home. Rear Admiral Kittelle, who formerly was American governor of the islands, defended his "lame duck" appointments by saying that after the native voters had elected two-thirds of the councilmen "there really was nobody else left to select from."

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—It is too early to fully ascertain the benefits of prohibition, the house was told today by Chairman Grant Hudson of the alcoholic liquor committee. He quoted Chief Justice Taft as having said it would take 10 dry years to demonstrate the effects of the law. But in the six that have elapsed, said Representative Hudson, there have been many desirable changes, particularly among working men.

IN NEW YORK

New York.—Let this be a gentle warning to all good folk who, in planning a visit to New York, have more than an idle curiosity regarding the night clubs.

Dropping into one of the little cellars near Carnegie Hall with a friend I ordered two cups of coffee. The bill was $1.50 per cup for the Java and $2 per head for "coffee." Coffee and table were $7.

And that is really quite modest. Billy Rose's new Fifth Avenue Club, located in the brownstone belt, opened the other night at $10 cover-charge per such for the opening event. And they turned them away at that.

Charleston endurance contests are all the rage in the night clubs now. The record, thus far, belongs to Harriette, one of Gertrude Hoffman's products who cleared the 45-minute record of a Boston girl. During these dances a "trainer" supplies them with water while they step and sometimes provides other pouishment. And right here I will give two first editions to the Roberts Rules of Order to anyone who can remember the winner of the tango prize in 1914 or the dance marathon of a few years back.

Maxfield Parrish, now enjoying a ripe old age, sent a few of his pictures to a New York gallery and recently and a single painting sold for $50,000—one of the highest prices to date for a contemporary artist. Some such light sum—as half million dollars worth of pictures were sold, I am informed.

Please, don't mention "starving artists" again. And at the Quinn collection of "modernists" a Cézanne brought something like $20,000 and a total of a million dollars worth have thus far been sold.

Speaking of art—whatever has become of "September Morn'?" —GILBERT SWAN.

ONE CONSOLATION. Attendant—"Stop! You've just hit a man."

Children Should Drink More Milk

Milk contains a great deal of lime. Children need lime and plenty of it, especially for their growing bones and teeth. The lime in milk is easily changed in the body to bone. Big boys and girls, and even grown people, need lime, because the bones are always wearing away, little by little, and this wear must be replaced. Lime helps build bones and make them strong. Pasteurization protects the purity of your milk.

JOHNSON'S GARAGE
BARK RIVER.

1-17-26
OZONA, FLA., 30 miles north of Tampa:

Left Manistique January 1st, via Mackinac and Route 10 for Detroit. Bucked snow drifts for 30 miles between Rogers City and Alpena; through ditches, fields and any way to get through and did some real pulling. Stayed in Detroit and Albion five days. Arrived here January 14th, a. m.

Ran into heavy snow through Kentucky and Tennessee in the mountains and mud through Georgia—mud that was mud! Cars were being pulled through with tractors and some shipped on flat cars. Here is where we did some pulling—pushing mud up to the bottom of the radiator for miles. We got through without being stuck. Maybe good driving, but the main thing was plenty of power. 2097 miles and used 134 gallons of gas and did not use a wrench or pliers on the trip. Not a soft tire—some car.

Frequently we saw other cars with twisted axles, differentials torn out and engine troubles of all kinds, cars in ditches, some burned—through the Georgia mud section it looked like a modern version of Napoleon's retreat from the Battle of Waterloo. We put water in the radiator twice and got out on good roads—40 and 50 miles an hour was easy and quiet.

Do not start this trip during the snow and rainy season. She is a villian.

Yours,
J. W. GILLIGAN.

"The Pony Express" Opens First-Rate Week at Local Motion Picture Theatres

BETTY COMPSON AND RICARDO CORTEZ IN JAMES CRUZE'S "THE PONY EXPRESS," A PARAMOUNT PICTURE.

TODAY'S PROGRAMS At the Delft—"The Reckless Lady," an adaptation of Sir Philip Gibbs' famous story of Monte Carlo, with an all-star cast.

The widely heralded and long expected western special, "The Pony Express," which James Cruze directed for Paramount, with a brilliant cast of several thousand riders, headed by Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery, will make its local debut at the Delft Monday.

This mighty frontier cinemasterpiece gives Cruze the unique distinction of producing the only photoplay that seriously threatens the supremacy heretofore maintained by his first great epic, "The Covered Wagon."

Like its distinguished predecessor, "The Pony Express" is a powerful story combining historical fact with the element of romance that characterized the West of pioneer days.

The action of the plot is laid in 1860, in the dark days just before the Civil War, and deals with the struggle between North and South to gain control of California with its prestige and enormous resources of gold.

bitter political contest, with its plotting and intrigue, gun-fighting and bloodshed, the crack riders of the Pony Express played a significant and important part.

"The Midshipman," starring Ramon Novarro, which will be seen at the Delft Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was made at Annapolis Naval Academy and on the seas, the Navy Department extending full cooperation.

Morrison at Strand. For real horsemanship and rare nerve that displayed by Pete Morrison and Betty Goodman in "One Shot Ranger," the picture to be featured by the Strand Monday and Tuesday, deserves a medal.

Marty Durkin Was "Baby Talk" Lover

BY ROY J. GIBBONS, NEA Service Writer.

Chicago.—The women who have loved Marty Durkin came forward today to explain the secret of the fascination this dapper bandit had for them.

And the summing up of their remarks would indicate that Durkin was able to flit from sweetheart to sweetheart because—

1. He was good looking. 2. He was kind. 3. He could talk baby talk. 4. He could make love beautifully.

5. He never, never indulged in pand rough stuff. 6. He found out what they wanted, and acted accordingly.

First Wife Missing. Not all the testimony is in Durkin's first wife, a girl named Sadie Stroka, whom he married in 1922, cannot be found.

Not all here—not greatly averse, some of them, to basking in the reflected glory of the famous killer.

Sadie Stroka was Durkin's first wife. He left her a few months after the marriage and married Ruth Fieback, never bothering to get a divorce.

In between Ruth Fieback and Irma Sullivan there was Betty Werner, the girl who shared Durkin's rambles over the country and helped him out at least one occasion, to escape from the law, but who didn't marry him.

Durkin was living honestly as a railroad switchman when he met Ruth. He had not yet taken to wearing a bullet-proof vest and killing policemen.

"He sure had a way with women," she says. "Maybe I still love him. Who can tell? Maybe my love will come back. No, I haven't seen him yet." Betty Werner doesn't say much, but what she does say tells volumes.

"Aw, he was kind," she says. "Gee, he was kind to me and my baby. And, boy, isn't he the swell looker?"

Irma Sullivan then adds her statement. She married him only six weeks ago, when he drove into the little town of which she was the village belle, riding to her door in a stolen auto while police all over the country were looking for him.

Like a Little Boy. "He told me he was a bond and stock salesman," says Irma. "I believed him because he looked so innocent. And I'll always love him. I'll wait until I'm 50, if necessary, to have him."

"He made such grand love. And he talked baby talk beautifully. He was just like a little boy. Oh, I can't believe that he's a criminal."

And Durkin himself; how does he explain his fascination for women? Women rushed to kiss him when he reached Chicago in custody of the police. He has received daily love notes, at the jail, by the score.

"Why do they fall for you?" he was asked. "Can't say," he replied, "unless it's because I dress 'em up, feed 'em, treat 'em like they want to be treated and tell 'em everything."

"Rough stuff. Say, boy, you can't treat women rough these days and get away with it. Women want romance and looks. Find out what they want and be it."

Sheriff Acquitted of Liquor Violation

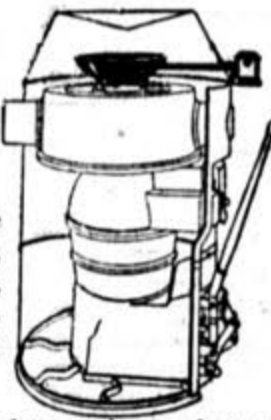

Cincinnati, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Richard B. Witt, sheriff of Hamilton county, was found not guilty by a jury in federal court late today of the charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law in connection with the sale and distribution of unlawful beer.

Witt was jointly indicted with seven others, including George Osterfeld, president of the Mobawk Brewing company. Osterfeld and four of the men pleaded guilty. One of the indicted men has not been apprehended.

Sentence of the men who pleaded guilty had been deferred pending the outcome of the Witt trial.

Michigan North Woods Club Members Believe in Game Conservation

The Michigan North Woods club, which recently purchased 40,000 acres of cut-over lands from the J. Stephenson Company, Trustees, of Wells, now has a membership of 150 devoted to the conservation of natural resources and the protection of wild game life in the upper Michigan woods, a bulletin from the club announces.

The club is composed of members of the Hamilton club, exclusive sportsmen organization of Chicago, who are interested in outdoor life. The bulletin emphasizes that it is not merely a hunting and fishing club. Its purposes are outlined in the bulletin as follows: "The current quota bringing the membership up to 150 has now been filled. The selective process is in effect. Membership is by invitation only. A prospective member must be nominated and vouched for. He must then pass the acid test. We are proud of the personnel of the Michigan North Woods club. But for the care exercised in nominating and selecting members, the present number would have been much larger.

We believe our members all to be gentlemen of excellent character and high standing in their respective communities. We are enclosing their names for your information. The board of directors has authorized the next twenty-five memberships only, sold at $700. The land is paid for and the tangible assets now owned by the club will justify this increase in price. Place the names of your eligible friends in nomination. They will then be communicated with either by letter or in person by a representative of the club. You should keep in close touch with your nominees and use your personal influence to interest them. The record of nominations made by some of our members does not show up as well as we might wish. Some have done well, while others have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. It does not require much time to fill out and return a nomination card. Each one should realize that he must bear his share of responsibility. You will not be in a position to criticize the personnel of this club if you fail to assist in selecting its members. If you haven't time to get them signed up, just give us their names and we will do the rest. We want and believe we are entitled to the co-operation of all our members. Each one has friends who would enjoy membership if given an opportunity to join. You can save your friend $100 by placing his name in nomination now, and he will thank you for doing so. Do not delay, or the present quota of 25 will be gone. A false impression exists that this is exclusively a hunting and fishing club. It is nothing of the kind. It is a recreation center. It is composed of a group of men who believe in: Conservation of natural resources, reforestation, who are interested in game breeding and fish culture, who can look into the future and visualize a time and condition when this vast tract of land which we own can be made to blossom as the rose. It is composed of men who, according to the answers to the questionnaires recently sent out, are interested in propagating and breeding wild fowl and animals, and in establishing a game preserve. We expect to produce ten game animals and birds to every one we kill. By way of recreation they love hiking, horseback riding, motoring, rowing, dancing, swimming, hunting and fishing; cards, golf, tennis and target shooting, photography and outdoor camp life. Of folks who love to commune with Nature—with the trees, the hills, the lakes and the rivers; who love the sunshine—the sky, the moon and the stars—the solitude of the open spaces. Who love the changing seasons, and especially the time when the flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land—

Who love the "mountains where the goodly cedar brings forth boughs and bears fruit, and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing—and in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell." Where "the shady trees cover him with their shadow, and the willows of the brook compass him about." Where "the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands." Where "the fir tree, the pine tree and the box, together beautify the place of thy sanctuary."

THAT'S FUNNY. "Hold old are you?" "Eleven years." "But you were only five last year." "That's right, five last year and six this year—eleven."—Berlin Dorfharber. Press Want Ads Get Results.

CONCERTS BY SPORRS GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Sporr, who will appear in a return concert at the Swedish Lutheran church here Tuesday, February 9, have received lavish praise from newspapers in every town in which they have appeared. Some of the press comments follow:

"Besides having a good, fine range and beautiful tone quality and a splendid technique Mme. Sporr possesses the gift of beautiful interpretation, carrying her audience easily and responsively into any mood she chooses. Her manner is simple and very charming and convincing, with inspirational facial expression. She sang the famous Jenny Lind Echo Song with great success. . . . She sang with great emotional feeling and interpretation. . . . Mr. Karl Sporr prefaced each number with an educational talk about the music. He speaks a beautiful Swedish which is a delight to listen to. Karl Sporr is a lecturer in Sweden and he plays the violin in an authoritative way with a beautiful tone and spirit."—Mankato Free Press, July 13, 1925.

"A highly entertaining and splendid musical concert was given by Mr. and Mrs. Karl Sporr. Mrs. Sporr excelled in her versions of the folk songs, especially in the 'Echo Song.' . . . The program covered a wide range of music from opera arias to folk music."—The Daily News-Herald, (Braddock), March 10, 1925.

"Karl Sporr draws a full, free tone of much beauty from his instrument. In both the classics and the engaging folk melodies, which closed the program, his interpretations and artistry were of high order. . . . Mrs. Sporr has a dramatic voice of power and lovely texture which is finely schooled."—Rockford Morning Star, October 18, 1924.

"That's FUNNY. 'Hold old are you?' 'Eleven years.' 'But you were only five last year.' 'That's right, five last year and six this year—eleven.'—Berlin Dorfharber.

The photo shows the top of the temple which is 22 feet long, 15 feet high and 5 feet wide.

HOAX—After "announcing" her marriage to Pope de Albro, staging a wedding party and posing for photographs with him, Wida Bennett, musical comedy star, confessed that she had hoaxed the public. TURNS UP WHY SHE SAVED—Here is Mrs. Josephine Laurie of Cleveland, who saved Albert Carelli from a death chair sentence by swearing she was with him at Chester Falls, O., the night he was alleged to have murdered a man in Pennsylvania. When Carelli and James Gibson, shown above with Mrs. Laurie, deserted her during a holdup at Cleveland, she was caught by the police. She then turned on Carelli and said she had lied about him being in Ohio at the time of the Pennsylvania murder. Carelli's parole from the death sentence caused a hot political fight in Pennsylvania.

WITH ONE ARM—Marshall Cliborne of Hartsville, Tenn., has only one arm, but he placed second in an old-time fiddlers' contest at Nashville. He holds the bow between his knees and moves the violin back and forth against it with his left arm.

FROM THE CANOE TO THE BAYS—G. H. G. Smyth, Canadian angler, landed in New York after having paddled his canoe 4200 miles. The voyage required 25 days. Starting from Nova Scotia, he went to Rome via London and Paris. He returned to New York on the S. S. Bankdale, then paddled from quarantine to South Ferry after being passed by customs officials.

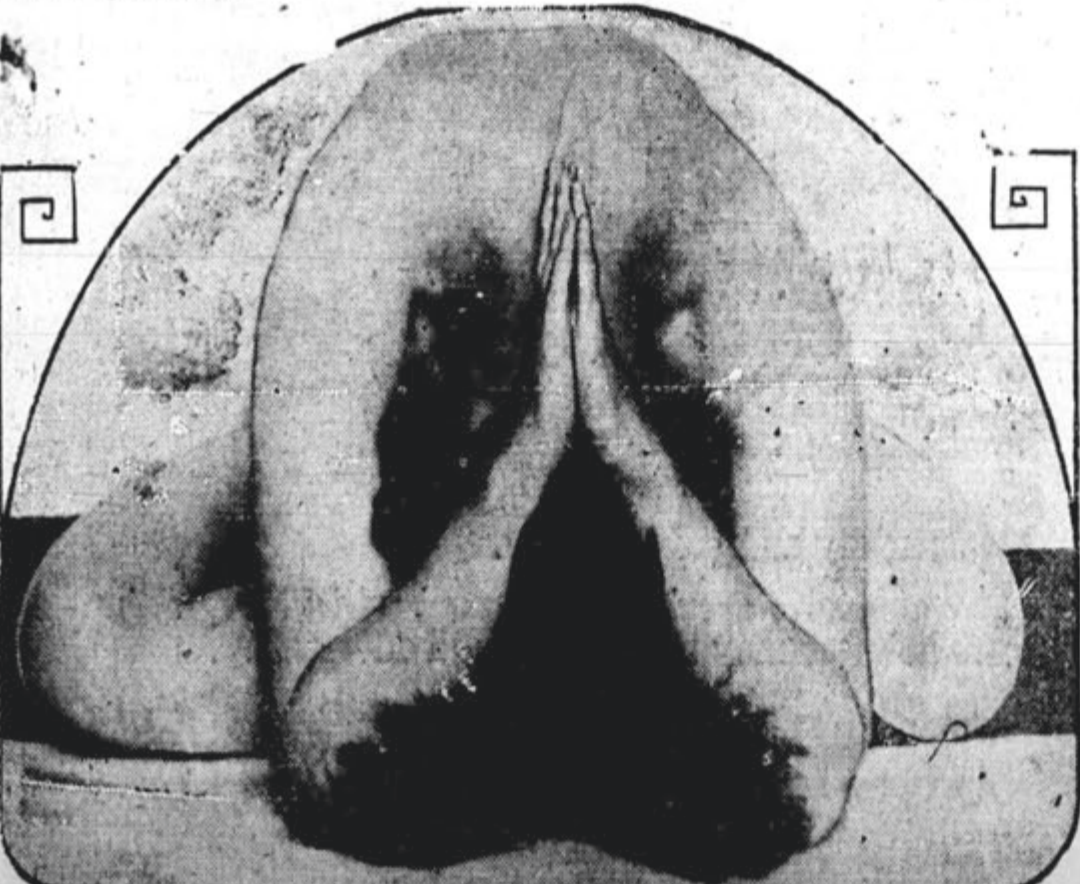

ELK OUSTED—William W. Woodcock, exiled ruler of Pawtucket Elks lodge, whose resignation has been ordered by Justice William H. Atwell, national grand exalted ruler. Atwell investigated reports of alleged liquor law violations by the Pawtucket lodge. In addition to ordering Woodcock's resignation he suspended the charter of the lodge for 60 days.

RELIEVING THE GUARD—"Bum," the monrel mascot of the U. S. naval area base at South Boston, Mass., doesn't know the general orders of a sentry, but he can go on post and keep out undesirable. His regular post is at the main gate of the base. When it's turn comes to sit up, salutes the corporal of the guard, and trots to duty. He is shown here returning the salute of Corporal Andrew E. Braderson.

FIND STILL'S 200 FEET DOWN—An elaborate whiskey distillery in an abandoned lead mine, 200 feet under the surface, was raided by federal prohibition men at Picher, Okla. Four 1000-gallon stills were seized, and the raiders found the distillers had piped gas, water and electricity into the old mine and had an electric elevator to take them up and down.

GRACE OF MOVEMENT AND FORM—Grace is art, believe the followers of the Bodenweiser school of Vienna. This pupil is interpreting one of the movements of Rudolph von Laban's "Gymnastic und Tanz."

FORD BUYS LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE—This little red schoolhouse, believed to be the oldest in New England, recently was purchased by Henry Ford and will be moved to Sudbury, Mass., to be added to his collection of early American buildings. This school was built in 1801 at Winchendon, Mass.

DURKIN'S WIFE MEETS BETTY, THE "OTHER WOMAN"—here is the first photograph of Ira Sullivan Durkin, 18-year-old bride of Martin Durkin, Chicago gunman. She is at the right, and the picture was taken after she reached Chicago and learned, not only that Durkin was a murderer, but that he had another sweetheart. The "other sweetheart," Betty Werner, who once helped Durkin escape imprisonment in California but who now threatens to tell police all she knows about him in reprisal for his marriage to Irma, is at the left. When she and Durkin met, after his arrest, Durkin asked her: "So they've made you bitter against me, have they?" She answered, "You did it yourself," and turned away. Inset is a picture of Durkin taken at the Chicago district attorney's office.

The sets are said to include a complete reproduction of the great Paris Opera House, interior, exterior and underground.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY

Spring is here, so far as the book publishing houses are concerned. Spring catalogs arrive in bright spring colors, and the first spring volumes pile up as the mercury drops down.

is hot blooded and fairly animal; there is a skeleton in the family closet concerning another menage kept by her wealthy father; her sister marries a philanderer with sadistic inclinations and her own brother fathers a child out of wedlock.

Such episodes right under her nose led to the confusion. An auto wreck produces her first paralysis. Her hubby-to-be runs off with the nurse. She decides to take the veil. Here again she bumps into reality, for she sees the Sister of Charity taking care of the unclean and tending those afflicted with ailments unpleasant to the eye.

The other spring books are, for the most part, European importations including three or four excellent English novels which will be revived at greater length in this department, but which are here formally introduced.

"Lodgers in London" (Little, Brown)—Adelaide Phillips, daughter of the versatile Eden Phillips, produces a first novel of real quality. She has her father's gift of deft characterization, and a fine humor that fairly bubbles over from a youthful heart.

FIVE COUNTIES MAY CONSTRUCT A SANATORIUM

At the next meeting of the Schoolcraft county board of supervisors, it is probable that suggestions will be submitted for the county's participation in the plan to build a tuberculosis sanatorium, supported jointly by the five counties of Luce, Mackinaw, Chippewa, Alger and Schoolcraft. The supervisors of Chippewa county have already voted 16 to 2 in favor of the proposal, and the matter will be brought up in other counties at supervisors' meetings this spring.

During the past month, Raymond Forsyth, field worker and lecturer for the Michigan Tuberculosis association, Lansing, has been working in the various counties involved, gathering statistics to be used for reference in furthering the five-county plan. At the present time, the Schoolcraft county sanatorium in Manistique has just been closed, and the suggestion should be favorably received by the supervisors.

Figures showing the relative construction and operating costs for each county indicate that the arrangement would not bring a big burden of expense to any one county. The taxable valuation of the five counties, as found in the state tax commission reports, gives the following totals:

Luce	$ 8,659,075
Mackinaw	$ 7,775,000
Chippewa	$ 27,332,690
Alger	$ 12,262,363
Schoolcraft	$ 10,700,000
Total	$67,729,128

With the one-mill-per-dollar tax allowed by law, the five counties would receive annually the sum of $67,729 for sanatorium purposes. The estimated construction cost is given as $2,500 per bed. A 60-bed institution would fill the needs of the five counties, it is believed. This would bring the construction cost up to $150,000. In three years time, the limit allowed by law, a one-mill tax on the above valuations would bring $263,187, enough to cover the construction cost, with a balance of over $22,000. A state aid is also available for maintenance.

The percentage of cost to be borne by each county could be prorated on the following basis:

Luce	12.3%	$ 19,210
Mackinaw	11.3%	21,920
Chippewa	40.3%	65,510
Alger	18.1%	30,770
Schoolcraft	15.8%	26,860
Total		$167,280

The relative needs of each county for the care of tubercular cases is indicated in state figures showing the average annual deaths from this disease in each county. These were as follows:

Luce	12
Mackinaw	11
Alger	31
Chippewa	31
Schoolcraft	10
Total	61

Lions Annex-Top Place in League

With the Manistique Elks' bowling season slightly past the half-way mark, the Lions have pitched themselves rather safely in first place and the other teams are trailing four to five games behind. The Lions have taken the long end of the series in practically every contest, and during the week took the Tigers into camp. The Bear Cats also won the series from the Pirates, the Pirates having been on the to-boggan for several weeks. The Giants continued their winning streak by taking two out of three from the Cubs.

Graphs secured high average during the week with 188 and also hit the maps for high score with 294. The bowlers had a good week of it, most of them increasing their averages.

The schedule for the coming week is as follows: Monday night the Pirates and Giants, Tuesday night the Lions and Bear Cats, and on Wednesday night the Cubs and Tigers.

GIRL BOWLERS BEAT MEN AT BRAULT ALLEYS

Rolling up a margin of 28 pins against their male opponents, three Manistique bowlers of the fair sex won a match from a three-man team at the Bault bowling alleys Thursday evening.

The ladies lost the first game of the match by 24 pins, tied with the men for the second, and came back in the first stanza 32 pins ahead of the other trio. A score of 180 in the third game, made by Miss Lulu Demars, was the factor that secured the match for the ladies. This was one of the high marks of the season for lady bowlers.

Revolutionary War Days Portrayed by Continental Four

A picture of the old Colonial days will be presented here on the evening of Monday February 1, at St. Joseph Auditorium when the Continental Four offers a new idea in Male Quartet music. This organization has been extremely successful in concert work during the past year or two, and one reason for it is the fact that they offer something quite out of the ordinary.

They appear in the first part of their program in the uniform of the old Continental army during the time of the Revolution, and present songs composed and written before that period and during those dark days when the fate of a nation hung in the balance. These songs have been especially harmonized for the quartet by some of the best musicians of the present day, including Jeanne Boyd of Chicago. Added interest to the program is given by the fact that they are all good singers and the solo work though the different members will be most valuable and interesting as illustrating the songs our forefathers loved and revered. This is not a mere novelty company, but the atmosphere of the revolutionary in both song and story is sustained throughout.

The second part of the program will be illustrative of modern music and many new songs of our own day will be introduced for the first time with plenty of fun and wholesome entertainment.

ARTISTS WILL APPEAR HERE FEBRUARY 8

Further announcement concerning the program will be made later.

SWENSON BROTHERS, Junior GLADSTONE, MICH.

BY THE NEA PLAY JURY

New York, Jan. 30—A young man who began with 35-cent music lessons because his parents couldn't afford to pay more holds the spotlight in the opera world just now.

W. Frank Harling is his name. Jot it down on your cuff for you will want to refer to it many times. It was his opera, "A Light From St. Agnes," given recently by the Chicago Opera company at a matinee premiere, that created an overnight sensation. The sensation became a veritable stampede and Harling fled to his hotel to avoid the kissing and cheering crowds.

Harling has since come to New York after signing a contract with Arthur Hopkins, the producer, to write a typically American opera, "Deep River," the scene of which will be "de south before de war." Which means that there will be a background of negro spirituals and levee syncopation—in brief a "jazz opera." The book has been written by Laurence Stallings of "What Price Glory?" and "The Big Parade" fame.

The vogue of dark melodies is the most important event of the New York musical season. Concert halls are jammed at the many negro spiritual recitals; Paul Whiteman has presented a short opera of negro Harlem, "135th Street," with music by Gershwin; two books of negro music, "Mellows" and "A Book of American Spirituals" are selling in many editions.

To return to Harling—he began his musical education in Boston at the age of eight when his mother discovered that he possessed unusual talent. Even 25 cents a lesson was a drain on the family budget at that time. When he was 13 he persuaded his parents to let him go to New York and enter Grace Church choir. Then there was a year in London at the Academy of Music, but he grew discouraged because of the financial outlook and, at 16, returned determined to go into business.

His parents were firm, however. And back he went to London to win a scholarship that put him under the direction of the Ysaie's. He had written a portion of an opera based on Hauptmann's "Sunken Bell" when the war broke out and the manuscript became lost in the melée.

Returning to America he wrote everything from Broadway ukulele songs to cabaret revues. He was working on a pantomime prologue when he met Mrs. Fiske, who told him the plot of "A Light From St. Agnes." He dropped everything to write music for the piece.

And now his struggles are at an end. He has become an outstanding musical figure. But he remains a champion of "in pan ally." The center of jazzdom has done more for American music than all the "diplo" movements, he contends.

Broadway has seen an unusually quiet two weeks.

At a season when productions are generally rushed on by the score but two plays and a couple of musical comedies have been put on.

"Move On," a newspaper play, is likely to do just that—and shortly. "Hello Lola" is Booth Tarkenton's "Seventeen" put in music, and presented by the Messrs. Shubert. Blythe Baksg is the "baby talk lady" and she can dance, play jazz on the piano and look strikingly pretty. Richard Keene is young Baxter and "Genesis" becomes a burnt cork part. Dancing and chorus work feature the production.

If you're making a list of what to see in New York, jot this down as one of the "dance and girl" performances to take in.

"WINDS OF CHANCE"

Featuring a cast in proportion and prominence seldom equaled in a single production, the Community Theatre on Monday and Tuesday will display Frank Lloyd's "Winds of Chance," a First National adaptation of Rex Beach's sensational novel of the same title.

Anna Q. Nilsson, Viola Dana, Ben Lyon, Victor McLaglen, Hobart Bosworth, Dorothy Sebastian, Claude Gillingwater, Philo McCullough, Charles Crockett, Fred Kohler, John T. Murray and Wade Boteler are among the principal members of the company which has re-enacted the thrilling struggles and romance of the Alaskan gold rush of 1897 and 1898 which Mr. Beach wove into an absorbing yarn.

"Winds of Chance" is said to represent the most accurate film play of its kind ever attempted, and, produced by the man who made the famous "The Sea Hawk" on the same pretentious scale, the pictorial story of our last frontier, with its wildness, its unique friendships, its quick fortunes and its failures, is reputed to be replete with thrilling incidents, surprises and tense dramatic scenes with unusual heart appeal.

Tellegen himself confesses that while his film work has provided him with a wide range of roles during his last two years of screen acting, the most interesting and satisfying chance came during the making of the Fox film production, "The Outsider," an adaptation of Dorothy Brandon's play, scheduled to open at the Lyric theatre.

we are already inextricably entangled with Europe economically. Conditions have changed a lot in the last 125 years.

WHY NOT BE GENEROUS?

Apropos of the possibility that the row over the location of the fifth normal may be thrown back on the legislature is noted that it may be composed by giving new normals to both the principal contenders.

But if the problem is to be met by further extension of state beneficence in the way of normals, this appears to be a penurious way of solving it.

Why not two new normals when there are at least half a dozen contenders for the prize of the proposed fifth institution?

Did not all of the half dozen show equal zeal in celebrating their glories and proving, beyond peradventure of doubt, that they were the only places where a sensibly disposed board of education could think of locating the new school?

To pick and choose between such an eager and assertive half dozen would appear to be far too much to ask a legislature to do. Distinction may await the member who takes a firm and final stand on the program.

LET THE DOCTOR LOOK YOU OVER.

"Intelligence is the price of life," Dr. Francis Carter Wood told students and faculty of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Carter warned particularly against relying on quack doctors and quack remedies.

He told of cases of cancer which would have been easily curable had the patient gone to a reputable physician, but which had become incurable through delay caused by reliance on quack remedies.

He said that today, even in enlightened communities, only 10 per cent of cancer cases are cured, whereas if prompt remedies were applied promptly in the beginning, 90 per cent or more would be cured.

OUR STANDARDS IN STYLE.

Miss Gerve Baronti, an author of the Orient, is touring the United States. She is a contributor to the Modern Review, a periodical published in India by Tagore, the Asian poet-laureate.

Born in Egypt of Italian and Egyptian parents, she has lived in China for eight years. Being a writer, she is accustomed to studying nations and peoples.

Miss Baronti informs us that the Oriental flappers imitate American women in dress and mode of living. The servant problem is as grave as it is here, but servants in the Orient do not scruple at helping themselves to rakes-off, which they call "squeeze."

The cultured visitor is not impressed by the style of American women. There is too much monotony in their apparel, she remarks. They all dress alike, look like her, and look like you.

For an explanation of this Miss Baronti should study our manufactures. We not only standardize machinery, but also clothing, hats and shoes. Perhaps it is because we are so completely standardized that we look upon excitement, including jazz, as amusement.

Economics as well as morals entered into the prohibition of the Charleston at a Baltimore woman's college. It was shaking the plaster off the dormitory walls.

John W. Weeks says Colonel Mitchell wasn't punished enough. Let's see! What did William say about Jaws?

Jack Dempsey says he is willing to fight Harry Wills and Harry Wills says he is willing to fight Jack Dempsey, but both murmured something or other about a half-million dollars.

Mercury is generally pictured as a sprinter but this week's weather performances indicate that he also does very well in the running high jump.

In other words, if the United States is sincere in its desire to settle international disputes by peaceful means instead of war it must favor the establishment of an international tribunal of justice, and not only favor it, but be a member of it.

SPINSTERHOOD

CHAPTER LX. The face of the woman hardened at the sound of the man's voice. She stood looking at Barbara, her eyes sweeping over the details of Barbara's costume, straight from Fifth avenue.

Then she glanced down at her own lavender wrapper and clutched the wet clothing in her arms still more tightly. In a moment she was gone and the sewing room door banged in Barbara's face.

The sound of quarreling came from behind the door. Barbara stood spellbound, while the voices grew louder and the woman in the room began to cry loudly.

Barbara started down the steps, she reached the hall and ran through it to the dining room. She pushed open the kitchen door. The room was empty. Barbara ran to the kitchen window.

Mrs. Crummett was emptying a garbage pail in a tall can near the back door. She straightened slowly and turned toward the steps.

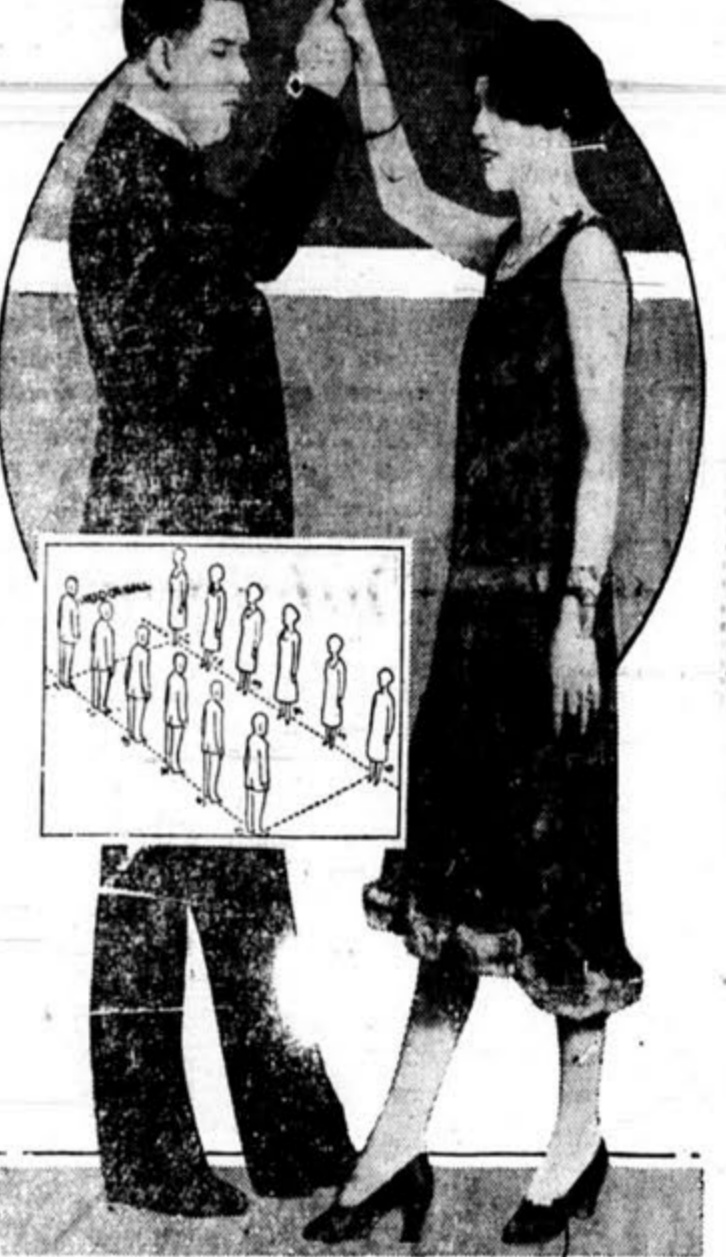

Coming in with the empty pail, she caught sight of Barbara, and the ready room visited her face again. "What's the matter now?" she asked, setting the pail down on the grease-stained floor beneath the sink.

"Who is Mrs. Briggs?" Barbara spoke as quietly as she could.

Mrs. Crummett laughed. "That's easy. Ask me another one. She's the wife of Mr. Briggs, of course."

Barbara's fingers twisted together. "Who is Mr. Briggs?" she asked, more amicably. "Do those

HOW TO DANCE THE VIRGINIA REEL

The Virginia Reel, or the "Sir Roger de Coverly," as some people know it, is a contra dance in which the couples form in two straight lines, six couples in each set. (See sketch). The metronome is 116.

In performance the dance, do not walk, but use a light springy trot step, with plenty of action from the toes and ankles. The head lady and foot gentleman begin all movements in the first period, and are immediately followed by the head gentleman and the foot lady who executed the same choreography.

being make a noise and bother you? Because if they do, I'll sure throw 'em out. If they were up with the rent, it would be different. They haven't even any baggage worth holding. Good riddance to 'em."

She saw that Barbara was interested, and waxed more discursive. "It's a fine lot of trouble I've had with 'em, anyhow. When they first came here, she wasn't divorced from the first chap. Walked into a respectable woman's house big as you please and said they was man and wife. But I soon found out different and made 'em take separate rooms. Only she didn't move her clothes and things out of his room, even then."

Mrs. Crummett shrugged an elephantine shrug. "Anyhow, I'd done my best. I was in the clear."

Barbara leaned against the wall. Mrs. Crummett pushed a chair against the cupboard and clambered upon it, reaching for a can on the topmost shelf.

"Come here three months ago. She told me her kid had just died and I thought it was Biggs' child. But seems it was the other husband's. She'd known Biggs before she was married, though, and he came back to town just in time, when she was bored sick with the swell. Her husband had a good business, but she couldn't stand his airs."

"Ouch!" Mrs. Crummett had let the can fall on her big toe. She stood on one foot, stork-wise, a moment, almost dancing with the pain.

"Well, you might help a body down!" she snapped at Barbara, who was still leaning against the wall, blank-eyed.

Barbara started and offered her a hand. Then she fled from the woman's groans and imprecations, through the dining room with its dusty table, through the bleak hall, up the stairs and into her own room.

Next door, the sounds of a violent brawl rose. Barbara could hear a man's voice, loud, bullying, flinging out epithets which the walls fortunately muffled past recognition. The woman's voice was lifted in sharp treble exclamations, with now and then a sob.

Barbara pressed her hands to her ears and looked helplessly around her. Her bars still stood by the bed and the blankets still hung over the bedstead where she had pulled them. Her comb and brush lay on a piece of paper on top of the dresser.

Barbara seized the grips and set them on the bed. She pulled them open and began to throw her things in. The sounds in the next room sank finally to silence.

Seeing the dry water pitcher, Barbara grasped its handle and started for the bathroom. She came back with it full of cold water and was about to pour it into the wash basin when her eyes fell on a grimy ring upon the porcelain. She set the pitcher down heavily.

The single towel on the rack at the back of the stand had the distinct print of five black fingers upon it. The soap in the little china dish had dissolved to the stage of jelly.

Barbara looked at her hands and ran to the mirror to see her face. It was pale and haggard.

She returned to the bathroom, but the ring on the porcelain was washed and tub was blacker than that in her own basin.

She went back to her room and opened her traveling bag. With cold cream and rouge, she made the best toilet she could. She applied powder and rouge and got her hat from the closet.

She looked at her watch. It was 11 o'clock. There would be no more buses for Escanaba until 12. Barbara paced the floor of the room.

Next door, the quarreling began again. Violetta was crying hysterically now, so that the whole house must hear her. The man's voice was a growl. He was evidently trying to shame her into quiet. Barbara sat by the fireplace, staring at the tomato can and the burnt matches in its depths.

Overhead the lady in the pink ruffles simpered at her. And the shiny grapes and fat bananas in the print on the wall grew shinier and fatter. The wind coming in at the window, whipped the blind savagely.

The jangling voices in the next room did not quiet. At last Barbara jumped up and ran out of the room. She went down the steps and out the front door.

For 20 minutes she walked up and down the street, so rapidly that her breath was coming fast and her cheeks were red.

Barbara looked at her watch. Just 20 minutes to wait. She turned in at Mrs. Crummett's door and was starting up the steps when the landlady appeared in the hall below.

"Hey, you're not leaving?" she shouted.

"Yes," said Barbara, shortly. "Is THAT so?" bellowed the woman. "And how about giving me notice? Here I've turned down three offers for that room this very morning, and one of them a society gent. Don't you think you can get away with anything like that? You'll have to pay me a week's rent at least."

Barbara turned around on the step. "I did not tell you how long I meant to stay, Mrs. Crummett," she said. "And I shall not pay you a week's rent."

"You'll pay me a week's rent or leave your baggage," shouted the woman.

Barbara's words came out crisply. "I'll pay you one night's rent, and you'll hold your tongue, or I'll have your place raided."

JESUS FEEDS FIVE THOUSAND MEN

TEXT: John 6:1-14.

After these things Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias.

A great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased.

And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

And the passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh.

When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?

(And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.)

Philip answered him, Two hundred penny-worth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him,

There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?

And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would.

When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 31: Jesus Feeds Five Thousand Men—John 6:1-14.

By WM. E. GILHOY, D. D. Editor of the Congregationalist.

This lesson concerning the feeding of the five thousand brings us straight into the heart of the whole question of the miraculous. There are many miracles of Jesus that might be explained upon the basis of higher laws, the nature of which has been partially discovered. We are realizing as never before the power of mind over matter.

Undoubtedly remarkable cures have been effected in recent years by those who have rather deliberately straight into the miraculous in exercising such influence, sometimes under religious auspices, but also in many instances without any association or profession of religion.

When one thinks of the personality and spiritual power of Jesus one is not amazed that the lame should have walked, that the deaf should have heard, and that many who were sick should have found new health and vigor in his presence.

We do not mean that miraculous circumstances are all to be explained upon this basis of psychology. It influences though we should probably find that all circumstances, no matter how seemingly miraculous, have been in accordance with laws that we have not yet discovered. But when we come

The door slammed, cutting off the trade and Barbara was on the porch again.

She ran down the walk, looking neither to right nor left. As she reached the gate, a shadow fell across the ground in front of her.

Barbara raised her head. "Bruce" she said.

"Her bags dropped to the ground. He had her hands. "How" she began, but he stopped her.

McDermott told me you might be here. I tried yesterday to get you at the hotel, just after the paper came on with the story of your renn.

It seems there never was a tot with so much action blast—She runs across the room and jumps, an' lands on daddy's chest. It's heaps of fun for baby, and keeps her dad on guard. It isn't very long before his breath is coming hard.

LYRICS OF LIFE

SNOW. A snowflake is the gentlest thing In all of nature. In the night, While weary hearts are slumbering, It turns a gray old world to white. However wrong the world may be, Reles it again in purity.

No thunders herald it, no blaze Of light illuminates the sky; It comes, and gentle hands it lays Upon the hills, however high, Upon the plains, however low, And makes them clean again with snow.

And we, who shout about the good That we will do, with thunders loud, I often wish we understood The noble are not always proud, Not always thunder from the peak, But softly come, and gently speak.

The deeds that help men most of all Come not with thunder, like the rains; Like snowflakes on the world they fall, And cool its hurts, and hide its stains. Come gently in some hour of night And turn a gray old world to white.

Babson Discusses Money Situation, Bond Market

BY ROGER W. BABSON, Babson Park, Fla., Jan. 30—(Special)—In an exclusive interview today, Roger W. Babson discusses the money market with special reference to mortgage bonds and other securities. His official statement is as follows:

"Money conditions at the moment are somewhat easier. This is evidenced by the call rate for money in New York. On the other hand, this is not highly significant as interest rates are usually somewhat lower after the turn of the year. However, as business works farther into the present period of expansion, a gradual firming up in rates should be expected due to a greater demand for money with which to finance trade. Rates should average higher during 1926 than during 1925.

Money Rates Stiffer.
"A study of the Babsonchart shows that money rates always stiffen as we enter a period of expansion, and we certainly are in such a period at the present time. This is confirmed by the Comptroller's Reports and the reports of the Federal Reserve banks. All of these show that loans have been steadily increasing during the past year although, unfortunately, speculators in Wall Street have received the greatest benefit from these loans. The reason for this is that when banks loan to Wall Street they can get their money at any time, whereas with loans to business men and farmers they cannot. The bankers cannot be blamed for following this policy of preferring to loan on Wall Street, but it is unfortunate. No statistics are available to show what is being loaned to the ultimate consumer on account of installment purchases; but this figure is exceedingly large and is probably increasing rapidly.

Stock Market Loans.
"When banks want their money from Wall Street brokers, these bankers are compelled to call upon their customers for the needed funds. If these customers have sufficient cash in the banks to pay up the brokers without selling the stocks upon which they are borrowing, this is very fine; but usually the man who buys stocks on margin cannot pay for them in full and is obliged to sell when the brokers want more margin. This selling causes a decline in stock prices. When stock prices fall, buyers become panic-stricken and prices go even lower. Hence, readers should keep in mind the definite relation between the money market and the stock market.

"Another significant straw which shows the way the wind is blowing, is the large amount of stock offerings we now see in the daily papers. These stocks, which are being offered for sale, may be perfectly good; but such offerings usually indicate that either the owners are selling out, or, fearful of being bothered by the banks, these corporations are changing their bank loans into stock issues. Doubtless this is a natural decline on account of increasing money rates, only the future can tell. Let me add, however, for the benefit of bankers, manufacturers, merchants and real estate men, that money rates should not increase enough during 1926 to embarrass general business. There is a tremendous amount of money in the country and the only reason why any legitimate business is not getting its share is because most banks prefer to loan their money on Wall Street than loan it in their local towns.

Good Corporation Bonds Scarce.
"Notwithstanding the large amount of stock issues offered, there has been a relatively small amount of good corporation bonds recently offered. Moreover, in the case of many offerings, one notices at the top of the advertisement: 'These bonds have all been sold and this advertisement is inserted only as a matter of record.' This scarcity of good corporation bonds is due both to the large demand from banks for good bonds when commercial paper rates are low, as they have been for the past year; and also to the fact that the corporations are now putting out stocks instead of bonds. There is a real scarcity of good first mortgage bonds of operating companies secured directly by the physical property.

"Usually the bond market declines with the stock market although, of course, to no such proportions. A rough rule is that for each ten points the stock market declines, the bond market will decline about two points. Moreover, the decline in bonds usually precedes the decline in stocks. Whether or not this rule will work during 1926 depends largely upon the working of the new tax law. Reducing surtaxes to a maximum of 20 per cent should help corporation bonds and the sale of mortgages and other forms of indebtedness. If the new tax law, which last month passed the house of representatives, is also passed by the senate and signed by the president, it should enable business men to borrow money more readily and more easily than heretofore. Whether or not this new tax law will help the bond market enough to offset fully to the character of the borrowers. Ascertain whether the financing is being done to enable the owners to get out of the business or to develop the business. Ascertain whether the borrowers are devoting their exclusive time to the business or whether they are mixed up with sidelines of various kinds which distract from the business. This is a great mistake for a man to neglect the business in which he was trained, in order to branch out into sidelines. Such new ventures take up one's time and often absorb capital which should be used for the original business. Finally, investigate the character of the borrowers, including their motives and record, remembering that men make values and souls make men.

Demand for Municipals.
"The anticipation of this same new tax law has helped the sale of taxable corporation securities, and has, at the same time, hurt the sale of securities which are non-taxable. The market for municipal, state and other non-taxable bonds has already suffered from the proposed new tax law. Hence, cities and towns which are contemplating selling bond issues within the next year or two had better sell now, in case the non-taxable bond market eases off still more. During the past few years the sale of non-taxables was exceedingly easy and all communities have taken advantage of the situation. All good things, however, can be overworked and the issuing and sale of non-taxable bonds has been no exception to the rule.

"If fewer state, county and municipal bonds are issued during the next year, it may be a good thing for the country. These counties, cities and towns have competed with business men for money and often have spent the money for things not very productive. While the national government has been getting out of debt, these states, counties, cities and towns have been increasing their debt to an alarming rate. Hence, any change which would reduce the borrowings of municipalities and other public groups should be a good thing.

Rule for Lending Money.
"During the inevitable readjustment, which may come during 1926, it is important that bankers, in connection with their loans, and the business men in connection with their credits, as well as investors in connection with their purchases, look carefully to the character of the borrowers. Ascertain whether the financing is being done to enable the owners to get out of the business or to develop the business. Ascertain whether the borrowers are devoting their exclusive time to the business or whether they are mixed up with sidelines of various kinds which distract from the business. This is a great mistake for a man to neglect the business in which he was trained, in order to branch out into sidelines. Such new ventures take up one's time and often absorb capital which should be used for the original business. Finally, investigate the character of the borrowers, including their motives and record, remembering that men make values and souls make men.

"Tin Ear" Looking for Parole to Get Him Out of Jail

"Tin Ear" has been an inmate of the Delta county jail less than a week but he enjoys all the privileges accorded to the most thoroughly trusted "trusties." In fact, "Tin Ear" has been invited, on several occasions, to remove himself permanently from the roll of inmates but he refuses to be chased out. The steam heat and the nourishing "chuck" put him in the class with the intentional vag who seeks jail as a comfortable winter resort.

"Tin Ear" is a dog and not much of a dog either, as dogs go. Given a bath he's white for an hour or two—all except one to-bacco-brown ear. In spite he's a runt. In general pluckitude he grades double-A-minus, but he's the most undauntedly affectionate creature imaginable.

So he'll probably remain at the jail until some boy or girl who wants a little, fuzzy white dog with a brown ear comes along, signs the official book as a parole officer, and gives him the home his appetite demands, his intelligence insists upon his loving nature deserves.

We don't know why girls leave home, but sometimes men leave home because they can't pay the taxes.

This Unit-Built Studebaker at a One-Profit Price—$1195 on the lowest time-payment rates in the world TODAY, no car in the world offers the purchaser lower time-payment rates than Studebaker.

That is because of five Studebaker factors which make possible financing rates so low that most competitive cars cannot even approach them.

In your own interest, note them:

1. Studebaker Stability . . . $100,000,000 in net assets, free of bonded debt and bank loans centered on the economical manufacturing of quality cars—assurance that no Studebaker will ever become an orphan.

2. "No Yearly Models" . . . which cuts depreciation to a minimum. Studebaker cars are kept constantly up-to-date.

3. Intrinsic Worth . . . due to Unit-Built Construction—a factor which makes Studebakers stay sold because they render outstanding service. Being designed and built as units, Studebaker cars function as units . . . their hundreds of parts are perfectly co-ordinated; thus scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation are built in.

4. One-Profit Prices . . . Only Ford and Studebaker manufacture cars under the One-Profit policy. No other makers have adequate facilities for making all bodies, all engines, all clutches, all gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. This One-Profit policy obviously increases the equity of every dollar invested in a Studebaker.

5. Re-Sale Value Maintained . . . because of the popularity of Certified Studebakers sold under the famous "Studebaker Dealers' Pledge" on used car sales.

These five factors constitute the basis on which banks of the United States generally provide credit at lowest rates for the buyers of Studebaker cars.

This low-cost credit is placed at your disposal through the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, which is engaged exclusively in financing the sale of cars, new and used, through Studebaker dealers.
