

ANTI-GROESBECK FORCE WORKING

Rebellious Republicans Seeking Strong Candidate.

Lansing, Mar. 13—(AP)—A combination of rebellious Republicans and the solid Democratic party is seeking, through separate methods, the downfall of Gov. Alex Groesbeck. The fall elections are far ahead, but the factions antagonistic to the governor have been busy for several weeks, and the results of their quiet maneuvering are becoming visible.

It is readily admitted that the anti-Groesbeck faction is canvassing the field of possible candidates to settle upon one man who they hope will be powerful enough to defeat the incumbent governor, should he seek re-election. Fred Green of Ionia, Thomas Read, former lieutenant-governor, Burt D. Cady, former chairman of the Republican state central committee, W. W. Potter, member of the public utilities commission, and John S. Haggerty, the latter the former close friend of the governor, have been mentioned.

The anti-Groesbeckians assure the state Republican convention of a fight, with Haggerty and John W. Smith, mayor of Detroit, lined up solidly with the faction fighting the governor.

In the primaries, however, Governor Groesbeck would show considerable strength. His warder Woodward project, the opening of the state fair grounds to the public and his agreement with the Grand Trunk Railroad are all accomplishments which are expected to bring him a large Wayne county vote; a vote which the Smith-Haggerty faction may find hard to overthrow.

The Democrats, sensing an internal fight among the Republicans, are searching for a strong candidate, and there are stories that Gov. Al. Smith of New York may come into Michigan to aid them.

BY THE NEA PLAY JURY.
New York, March 13.—"We have come to the optical age in the theater. I think it is generally conceded that we live in a mechanical-industrial era. The principles of such a time are being applied to a stage that keeps up with its time."

"Literature belongs to books. There is no time in this busy day to sit in theaters waiting for the outcome of stories. Humanity has made great strides in all directions, but the theater has stayed practically unchanged."

"The actorless theater is certain. The actor is the most undependable element in a theater production."

Thus announces Frederick Kiesler, the Austrian designer, who has recently brought the International Theater Exposition to New York. The exposition consists of several thousand theater models, sketches and costume arrangements for "the modern theater."

It's Engineering.
"Constructivism" is the outstanding note. It dominates those sections devoted to the Russian, German, Austrian, Czechoslovakian and Polish exhibits. It is "engineering," rather than "stage designing." It is to the theater what the skyscraper is to building construction.

Those accustomed to settings of pink rose gardens, and blue skies had best shed a tear for their old friends. The prophets of the new stage announce that even the very modern cubist and futurist backdrops; even the Rhenhardt type of set is now old-fashioned. Creations that look like scenic railways, loop the loops, stairways, runways, slides and what have you are used—but steel is coming in, as well.

This is all part of the "youth movement" of Europe, they explain.

The "mechanical theater" is one of the up and coming ideas. It is further announced. Life-sized figures, garbed in sort of armor-plate, move about, much like puppets. Color, movement, design and other mediums take the place of plot and drama as it is now known.

Kiesler himself is the inventor of the "endless theater" in which the stage has no beginning and no end, like a scenic railway. It is stupendous in size and the audience becomes a part of the vast show which includes wandering choruses, masses, processions, films, fights, machinery—the hundred and one things that can be done. Figuring it out from the sketches is as simple as finding one's way out of a crystal maze.

Explaining this, Kiesler says: "The theater of the future will develop vitality of all known human powers. We must have theaters that represent the age. The future theater will be a stadium of art; all life for all people. It will bring forth absolutely new architectural forms. Some will accommodate two audiences at once for different events."

And—oh yes—the films are going the same way. Six experimental films are ready in Europe.

And, again—oh yes—music will have its inning, too. George Antheil, now living in Paris, has composed a "mechanical ballet" for ten electric pianos and a choir.

COL. COOLIDGE GROWS WEAKER; HEART BETTER

this little Green Mountain hamlet follow with deepest interest every phase of the struggle. There is only one topic of conversation these days in the store, the only social exchange of the village: "How is John today?" is the question whenever Dr. Cram of Bridgewater, the Coolidge family physician, passes the store.

When Deputy Sheriff Angus MacCauley, the colonel's bodyguard, drops in for the mail or to telephone, an eager group surrounds him to ask the same question. These Vermont folk, normally repressed and silent, have shaken off their taciturnity in the face of the "squire's grave illness."

No Visitors Admitted.
The weekly community dance tonight in the hall over Miss Florence Cilley's store is being held only because members of Colonel Coolidge's household sanctioned it. These Saturday night dances afford the country folk their sole diversion in winter, but after the sinking spell suffered by the president's father Thursday night, Miss Cilley decided to call off the week's fixture. Sheriff McCauley, Mrs. May Johnson, the nurse, and Dr. Cram himself were consulted, and they advised that the village entertainment be held as usual.

Colonel Coolidge would have it that way if he were asked, to settle it, they ruled.

The Coolidge home is closely guarded. No visitors are admitted at any time and Sheriff McCauley sees that the general store has all the news that may be made public, and there inquirers must go for their information.

RAILWAYS LOSE IN RATE CASE

Washington, Mar. 13—(AP)—Transcontinental railroads failed today for the second time in five years to win interstate commerce commission approval of reduced freight rates on long hauls without applying the cuts to intermediate movements.

The case decided today was that of the western transcontinental carriers, who sought reductions on 47 commodities moving from origin territory west of the Indiana state line to Pacific coast terminals in an effort to cope with eastern manufacturers who can ship through the Panama canal.

By a 7 to 3 vote, with Commissioners Esch, Meyer and Hitchcock dissenting, the commission held that while the carriers hoped to stimulate traffic through the proposed reductions and increase net revenues, they had not applied the cuts to intermediate destinations because this would have "more than offset the gain from increased traffic to the ports."

The case had been pending for three years and involved the long and short haul provision of Section four of the interstate commerce act which marks it discretionary with the commission to grant relief by permitting lower rates for long than for short hauls. The Gooding bill, pending in the senate, would wipe out this discretionary power.

American Foreign Trade Favorable

Washington, Mar. 13—(AP)—American foreign trade made gratifying progress in 1925, in the opinion of the commerce department, and the outlook for 1926 is "altogether favorable."

In a review made public today the department noted especially the increased exports to European countries. The one-third decrease in this country's favorable trade balance last year was attributed to normal, healthy causes.

The year 1926 marks the centenary of the beginning of the tool-making industry in Hartford, Conn.

THE WEEK ON BROADWAY.

Prohibition discussion from the footlights comes as a timely accompaniment to the flareup of prohibition affairs at the national capital.

The play is "Still Waters," by Augustus Thomas, and Thomas has the leading role. It has to do with the hypocrisy of senators and other lawmakers in the matter of dry enforcement. All of the arguments to be heard on street corners may be found there, and such as may have been overlooked are supplied by Thomas in certain speeches.

Its popularity is assured by the fact that it echoes most of the privately and openly expressed opinions of millions of disgusted citizens. Our own opinion is that the best presentation of the liquor problem would be through a Gilbert and Sullivan type of operetta.

"Square Crooks," by James P. Judge, is a slight variation on the familiar "honest crook" theme in that it makes the crooks so completely virtuous that the play becomes a comedy. A slightly wider drawing would have turned it into satire.

"The Masque of Venice," by George Gribble, has an alluring title, but it is a pretty dull play. It deals with an English novelist who enjoys a few weeks of carnival thanks to a nymphomaniac character. But it is weak stuff and will not last long.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY.

Through an amusing publishing coincidence, the writing Norris—Kathleen and Charles—find themselves engaged in a literary adventure that has no precedent.

By this coincidence their latest novels were released upon the same hour. And now a very husband and wife race for popularity is underway.

The two books are quite as different as the average husband and wife, for instance.

Kathleen's tale, "The Black Flemings" (Doubleday, Page) is quite as "sweet" as most of her very popular writings. The course of true love never is so rough but that it quickly can be smoothed before the last page. The touch is soft and tender. The Flemings are a wealthy, social crew. But, ah, there is Gabrielle—so sweet and good and virtuous—who is naught but a poor relation. Fear not! Cinderella has never lingered in her corner; not since the day she was first written for the fairy tales. And, again, fear not! Kathleen's great army of readers will fairly devour this latest opus.

As for Charles, he has turned out a hard-boiled tale, "Pig Iron" (Dutton's). This writing gent has a very genius for the short and peppy title, as witness, "Bread," "Salt" and the others. Here we find Samuel Smith ascending to industrial heights. He follows an ambitious dream, in which great hordes of men obey his slightest command. He is shown in New York in the early eighties. Then come years of stirring competition. In these chapters Norris has written a strong story and his character is typical and true.

At 60, Samuel is shown reflecting philosophically on the worth whiteness of his success and a brooding sense of failure hangs upon him. Norris, it seems to us, has done nothing quite so good since "Salt."

The latest report from Baker & Taylor, wholesalers, shows the six books in greatest demand are, in order:

- The Private Life of Helen of Troy (Hobbs-Merrill), by John Erskine, a best seller that truly deserves its popularity, as amusing and civilized a bit of reading as the year has produced.
- Fannie Hurst's "Appassionata" (Knopf); we told you so some weeks back.
- Anita Loos' highly diverting "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" (Boni, Liveright).

Philip Gibbs' war-time novel, "The Unchanging Quest" (Doubleday, Page).
Christopher Morley's fantasy, "Thunder on the Left" (Doubleday, Page).
"The Lion's Skin" (Little, Brown), one of Sabatini's early writings.

Spring books fairly inundate this desk. Of these, some of the outstanding are:

"The Plumed Serpent" (Knopf) by D. H. Lawrence—A fat volume, fairly bursting with the color of Mexico, and this color is bright and fascinating. However one may disagree with Lawrence's method of writing, however one may differ with his so-called "sex novels," there can be no doubt of his genius for swaying his reader's emotions and awakening through moods, rather than ideas.

This book is of Mexico, and one feels that it is Mexico and the people of Mexico. The story itself concerns a cult that rises to restore certain Aztec religious rites, with a modern spirit injected. One reads behind this cult a thump at our own ribs; a call to awaken our slumbering possibilities. It is a quite remarkable volume.

"All the Sad Young Men" (Scribner's), by F. Scott Fitzgerald—This will be reviewed in greater detail in a future letter. It is a collection of stories of which "The Rich Boy," "Absolution," and "Winter Dreams" seem to us particularly fine. For fine irony there is another, "Rags Martin and the Prince of Wales." A few of them should have been edited out. Altogether there are nine tales, some sad and some gay, and those that are good are very good. The book will surely make even more solid the place of young Fitzgerald in contemporary writing.

Retrial of Negroes to Open on April 5

Detroit, Mar. 13—(AP)—Believing that it has the strongest case against Henry Sweet, the state announced today that he would be the first to be tried of the 11 negroes charged with murder as a result of the death last fall of Leon Breiner. The trial will start April 5, a delay having been granted at the request of Clarence Darrow, chief defense attorney, who said that his colleague, Arthur Garfield Hays, could not be here until that date.

Dr. Ossian H. Sweet, negro dentist, and the other negroes, including Mrs. Sweet, will be tried separately. At the first trial of all the negroes, the jury could not agree.

Breiner was shot during a demonstration outside the home in a white neighborhood into which Dr. Sweet had recently moved. The negroes had barricaded themselves inside the house, fearing violence.

JOE L'BEAU TO ENTER CONTEST

James Champ Also Will Play in Elks' Fiddling Bee.

Joe LaBeau, of Ishpeming, sent in his entry for the Elks' Old Fiddlers' contest yesterday.

Joe says he knows 33 tunes, one of them, "The Canada Logging Bee," he intimates, is a four-string knockout. He also inquires whether he will be permitted to play his whole repertoire. That's quite a big order but George E. Harvey, of the Elks' committee, said last night it might be possible to arrange for a complete evening's recital by Joe at a later date.

At any rate, Joe's entry was number 17 in the contest.

Entry number 18 came from one of Escanaba's oldest residents, James Champ. He was here before the city was and he has been fiddling all that time. He also makes violins and probably will perform upon an instrument of his own design and construction.

The entry blank for the contest is printed on this page again today, for the convenience of anyone who desired to enter. The date is April 7. The blank should be mailed to the Daily Press, or to the Escanaba Elks' club.

Howard Hetzler, Rail President, Dies in Hinsdale

Chicago, Mar. 13—(AP)—Howard G. Hetzler, president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, which controls the Dearborn passenger terminal and president of the Belt Railway company of Chicago, died today at his home in Hinsdale, a suburb.

General Butler Has 10 Teeth Extracted

San Diego, Cal., Mar. 13—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who a few days ago started army and navy service circles by his charges of intoxication against Col. Alexander S. Williams of the marine corps, today had 10 infected teeth extracted at the navy hospital here. It was said at the hospital that General Butler was much weakened by the dental work.

Meanwhile official circles were rife with rumors that an effort would be made to stop the court-martial proceedings against Colonel Williams. Nobody in authority was willing to be quoted, however.

To Request Strike Probe by Congress

New York, Mar. 13—(AP)—Congressional investigation of conditions in the New Jersey textile strike district will be sought next Tuesday by a committee of strikers headed by Albert Weisbord, strike organizer, and accompanied by Frank P. Walsh, New York attorney. This was announced after a conference between Walsh and Weisbord today.

Triples Arrive to Fulfill Wish of 11 Years Ago

San Pedro, Cal., Mar. 13—(AP)—When Mr. and Mrs. Grant Buehl married they agreed that three children, two boys and a girl, would be the right size for their family.

For 11 years there was none, but yesterday triples arrived—two boys and a girl. The mother and children are doing well.

Baltimore, Md., Mar. 13—(AP)—Sugar in the forward hold of the British steamer Tafia, from Port Taraf, continued to smolder tonight. Fire boats which had followed the craft in from Sandy Point, 25 miles down the Chesapeake poured water through her hatches as she lay at her dock. Firemen said the inner portions of the cargo might smolder for a day or more.

TO RECEIVE SHOALS BIDS

Washington, Mar. 13—(AP)—Congress now stands ready through a special committee to receive bids for a private lease of Muskego Shoals.

Final action was taken today when the senate accepted the house amendments to a concurrent resolution authorizing a joint congressional committee to negotiate a lease and report back to congress.

Vice President Dawes named Senators Dineen, Illinois; Sackett, Kentucky, Republicans; and Hedin, Alabama, Democrat, to represent the senate on the committee, and Speaker Longworth selected for the house, Representatives Morin, Pennsylvania and James, Michigan, Republicans.

FREE RIBBLE OF GRAVE CHARGE

"No Cause for Action" Is Ruling of Judge McEwen.

Robert Ribble, itinerant lumberjack who was charged with criminal assault upon a young woman employe of a lumber camp at Isabella, was released from custody Friday night following a preliminary examination before Judge C. D. McEwen.

"No cause for action" was the court's ruling after the testimony against Ribble had been presented. No evidence was produced to prove that the crime of rape was committed.

The Ribble case created considerable stir in the Isabella section about three weeks ago. All sorts of conflicting reports were afloat. Finally, Ribble, after an all-day search, was taken into custody at Nahma and brought to this city where he was arraigned and his bond fixed at $10,000. He was unable to furnish this amount.

It was then claimed that the condition of the girl in the case made it impossible for her to testify and a delay was granted.

The story told by the girl and her relatives on the day of the supposed attack and that which was unfolded at the examination were widely different. Ribble had insisted, from the outset, that he had been made the victim of a "frame-up" by the girl.

SERVICES AT ST. PATRICK'S.

The Lenten services at St. Patrick's church which had been scheduled for Wednesday evening will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock instead, owing to the feast of St. Patrick falling on Wednesday.

The feast day of the patron saint of the parish will be solemnly observed at the local parish with a solemn high mass at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning when Rev. Fr. J. Mockler, pastor, will be the celebrant, assisted by Rev. Fr. Neil Stehlin and Rev. Fr. A. Weachter. It is expected that every member of the parish will receive holy communion on this day and confessions will be heard Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 6 and in the evening from 7 to 10 o'clock.

At the 8 o'clock mass Rev. Fr. Stehlin will deliver a sermon, using as his topic "Ireland's Debt to St. Patrick."

Fr. Stehlin is recognized as a very forceful speaker and his sermons during the Lenten period have drawn crowds to the services.

Interesting Exhibits of New Fashions

Children's Togs
IN TUNE WITH SPRING.

Like the flowers that will soon bloom again, the new modes for tots are aglow with gay color, and as light some and debonair as a spring day. Dainty coats, frocks and hats of finest materials and all exquisitely fashioned.

New Ensembles
FOR THE SPRING BRIDE.

Delightfully trimmed with fur and augmented with beads or embroidery, presented in all the new shades of Blue, Tan, Grey and Navy, these new Ensembles offer a variety of choice that is certain to instantly win the hearts of brides of the coming season. As expected, these ensembles maintain the high Erickson standards of value and correct sizing.

HONORS ARE DIVIDED BETWEEN
Cape Coats and Plain Coats

The complete showing of new Erickson Coats assembled for our opening indicate the extreme versatility in silhouette and fabric that prevails in the spring mode. Many models sponsor the cape back, some are severely tailored, while others have the flared skirt or long searf color.

Tweeds and kashas, plain or woven in patterns are excellent for street and sport, while silk reps are smart for dress.

Once each year, Springtime makes its appearance, bringing with it a colorful, new aspect to all our surroundings.

This Spring the vogue sparkles with a profusion of newalties. The silhouette skilfully reflects the modernist in gracefully molded creations that permit perfect freedom of movement and action. Skirts are constantly swaying with infinite tiers and clusters of pleats. For decoration, these fluttering skirts turn to riotously embroidered pockets that are outrivalled only by the magnificent vestees that have recently entrenched themselves. Short capes are in high favor and are a very integral part of one's Spring Costume.

Sashes tie saucily in front and float off below the hem, thus achieving the voguish uneven hem-line. Belts and sleeves are gay with buttons and unusually clever, novel buckles. The tale of sleeves is long drawn out, with its climax just above the cuff in the form of bright embroideries and piquant flares.

Erickson's have drawn upon every style most for all that is new and interesting. Your visit to our opening is certain to be rich in interest.

INTERESTING

GRANHOLM CASE UP ON MONDAY

Officials Will Not Await Return of Chemist's Report.

The preliminary examination into the case of Fred Cress, William Burnell and Dan McCann, charged jointly by the police with having murdered John Granholm, of Ensign, in the Burnell hotel several weeks ago, will be held Monday in Judge C. D. McEwen's court, it was announced definitely yesterday.

The chemist's analysis of the contents of Granholm's stomach will not be available Monday, it was stated. Word has been received from the state university that no report can be made for at least two weeks and authorities have decided to proceed without this phase of the case.

The hearing had already been postponed twice and it is desired to get the matter out of the way without further delay.

Granholm was found strangled to death with a shoestring in his room in the hotel. Burnell, who managed the bar-room of the establishment, Cress the leasee, and McCann, a boarder there, were taken into custody the same day and later charged with first degree murder. Cress and Burnell have been at liberty on bonds, McCann having been unable to find a surety for his bail.

THE DAY IN WASHINGTON

The senate accepted the Muscle Shoals resolution as modified by the house.

A divided commerce committee report was given the house on foreign monopolies. Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, took up the cudgels for prohibition in a senate speech.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, proposed that all railroads be consolidated into one system.

Benjamin M. Day was named to succeed Henry H. Curran as immigration commissioner at Ellis Island.

Mid-west farm leaders worked on a farm relief bill for presentation to the house agriculture committee.

The interstate commerce commission denied an application of western transcontinental roads for certain commodity rate reductions.

OBITUARY

PHIL B. SULLIVAN.

Funeral services for Phil B. Sullivan, veteran North-western railway engineer who died at his home at Green Bay Thursday from Bright's disease, will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church at Green Bay with burial in Fort Howard cemetery.

Mr. Sullivan was an "old-timer" in railroad circles, having begun his career when a lad just entering his "teens" selling papers on the train. He later worked as a brakeman and later transferred to firing. He was born at Granville, Pa., Feb. 20, 1854, and came to Chicago when a child. He began his railroad career in Chicago. More than fifty years ago he was promoted to engineer on the Galena Division and later he served on the Peninsula Division. He retired one year ago after fifty years' service as an engineer.

Besides his widow and son, Phillip, Jr., he is survived by five children by a previous marriage, Frank Sullivan of Milwaukee, Henry Sullivan, Mrs. Edward Keffler, Mrs. Fred Rust of Chicago and Mrs. Adolph Pfister of Sheboygan.

Several local railroad men have planned on going to Green Bay for the funeral services.

FRANK DOBNIK.

Funeral services for Frank Dobnik were held at St. Joseph's church Saturday afternoon when a short "libera" service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Mathias Neila, O. F. M. Burial was made in St. Anne's cemetery. Requiem high mass will be held Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. A brother and sister of the deceased arrived from Milwaukee yesterday to take charge of the body which had been prepared for burial at the Allo Funeral Home.

MRS. PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

A large number of beautiful floral pieces have been sent to Ford River to the home of the Zimmerman family where the body of Mrs. Paul Zimmerman will remain until Monday afternoon at one o'clock when funeral services will be conducted at the home with Rev. C. A. Lund of this city officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in West Ford River cemetery.

MRS. ANDREW WALSTAD.

A devoted wife and mother was called to her reward yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Andrew Walstad of Danforth passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Nelson, 415 South Seventeenth street, at 1:30 o'clock after an illness of one year due to dropsy.

The family lived on a farm at Danforth but came to this city last fall when Mrs. Walstad was placed under the care of local physicians.

Mrs. Walstad was born at Trondheim, Norway, June 28, 1857, and came to this country in 1896. She was widely known among the people in the Danforth district and had a host of friends who will be shocked to hear of her death.

Besides her husband—Mrs. Walstad leaves to mourn her the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Ole Olson of Newhall, Martin Walstad of Danforth, Mrs. Alfred Nelson, C. A. Walstad and Paul Walstad of this city. Ten grandchildren also survive.

The body was prepared for burial at the Anderson Funeral Parlor and will be returned to the home of Mrs. Nelson this morning where it will remain until Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock when services will be held at the residence and at 2:30 at the Norwegian Danish Lutheran church with Rev. L. B. Sateren, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in Lakeview cemetery.

North-Western Will Help Farm Clubs

The Chicago and North-Western Railway will give its energetic support, this year, to Boys' and Girls' club work. It was announced at the local offices yesterday. The road will give as prizes 100 free trips to the Annual Live Stock Show at Chicago. These prizes (one for each of the counties traversed by that railway) will be awarded to the boy or girl in each county who, in the judgment of the local agricultural authorities, has done most during the year to advance the cause of scientific farming and stock raising. These trips in the past have been of great value to the fortunate winners, enabling them to visit not only the Live Stock Show with its multitude of educational features, but also one of the world's great cities.

THE KING OF BUSYORA has three royal milk maids. Any other person daring to touch the royal cows would probably be burned alive. Rather stringent health regulations of a kind we should say, and useless too, maybe, but the king at least knows whom to blame if things go wrong.

YOUR household has no royal milkmaids. Neither does present day practice permit burning alive. Notwithstanding these limitations you command an infinitely better milk supply than the King with all his retinue.

Every dairy farmer producing your milk is a specialist trained in the science of clean milk production. Our city health department and our production superintendent see to that. When you add to this the meticulously strict methods prevailing in our plant and the insurance which only proper pasteurization can give, you have a service which all the royal milk maids and their sacred cows could never hope to provide.

FARM LEADERS ARE WORRIED

Relief Bill Has Rocky Road to Travel in Congress.

Washington, Mar. 13.—(P)—Doubt and anxiety have begun to appear in the ranks of the farm representatives who a fortnight ago confidently marched on Washington, demanding legislation.

After long labor, a relief bill is taking form in the house agriculture committee. But it is a long haul and a rocky road from the committee room to the president's desk at the White House and administration leaders apparently are counting on an adjournment of congress sometime in May.

Farm Leaders Worried. Some committee members still predict that a bill will be laid before Mr. Coolidge for his signature before congress goes home, but others qualify their predictions. The farm leaders themselves have not by all means abandoned hope although they manifestly are worried over the difficulties and delays that beset them.

At the very beginning of their invasion of the capital the farm delegations were taken back by the expected manner of their reception. They were welcomed on every hand, but were told to get together around a table and decide just what it was they wanted. Then the trouble began. The more they consulted with one another and with members of the house committee the more the whole project became obscured in a cloud of argument and a tangle of technicalities.

Many Obstacles Ahead. Undeniable progress has been made, but the views of many witnesses are yet to be heard. Then after a bill has been perfected, it will have to take its chances in the usual legislative jam that precedes the close of a session. There still are important appropriations bills pending and the senate is engulfed with a multiplicity of measures ranging from contested nominations to foreign debt settlements.

The agriculture committee was not in session but on Monday, it will resume its hearings with the farm delegation from 11 middle western states, presenting for the first time a complete draft of its plan for federal insurance of surplus crop by means of an equalization fee. Besides the members of this delegation, Chairman Haugen has a list of more than a score of prospective witnesses, who want to be heard for or against this or other pending bills.

Mr. Haugen said today the committee could not refuse to hear anyone who cared to come to Washington to discuss relief legislation. Under present plans, the testimony will be taken on every one of two dozen pending measures if anyone wants to be heard.

Macready Attempts New Altitude Mark

Dayton, O., Mar. 13.—(P)—Lieut. John A. Macready of McCook Field today made another attempt to make a world's altitude record, but whether he was successful will not be definitely established until official recording instruments have been calibrated by the United States bureau of standards at Washington.

The unofficial reading made by officials here showed the veteran army pilot had reached 35,025 feet, which is 56 feet short of the record held by Lieutenant Callizo, French aviator. This reading, McCook Field officials say, might be exceeded by that of other instruments as the one calibrated today had worked imperfectly at a high altitude, the mechanism apparently having stopped for a time. The other McCook Field barograph will not be calibrated until next week.

Lieutenant Macready showed no ill effects of the flight and asserted it was "not quite so cold" as the flight he made last month in an attempt to set an altitude record. The temperature, according to the instrument, was 74 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

The faster you try to wait the longer it seems to take you.

These include Theima Erickson, Dorothy Lemire, Jane Kennedy, Leone Firkus, Irene Koppes, Loreta Neiden and Marie Powell.

The orchestra will furnish Irish airs and the shamrocks will be displayed on every cent label. A moving picture, "Rainbow Riley," will also be shown.

Secured Marshall's Story Under Duress, His Counsel Alleges

Philadelphia, Mar. 13.—(P)—Counsel for David L. Marshall, chiropractor, on trial for the murder of Miss Anna May Dietrich, made it plain today that the defense would contend that Marshall's admission that he dismembered the body in his office was obtained by intimidation.

William Taylor, district attorney of Delaware county, who testified to the confession, would not admit that any illegal method was used to obtain the statement.

Counsel for the defense, however, brought out from the assistant that Marshall said he was "all in" just after he admitted dismembering the body and that Marshall signed the confession just before 7 or 8 o'clock on the morning of January 26. Marshall had been in the hands of the district attorney from about 6 o'clock the night before.

The state expects to close its case about Tuesday. Marshall is expected to take the stand as the first witness in his own behalf.

LEGION POST WILL SPONSOR HOME COMING

August Mattson Post, American Legion, went on record Friday night as willing to sponsor a home coming celebration during the Fourth of July holidays if the sentiment of the people is in favor of it.

The post will ask that every organization in the city appoint one man to serve on a general committee to start work on plans at once and to secure cooperation in making it the biggest celebration Gladstone has ever held.

The home coming will be in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the village of Gladstone. It will be the first home coming ever held here.

Discussion of this and other matters were the chief matters of interest at the business meeting of the post.

Following the meeting a cribbage tournament was opened. Twelve contestants entered and at the close of the games three were tied in the lead, William Green, Ben Chaffield and William Jackey, who had won four out of five games.

Tournament. The tournament will continue through a series of 25 games, with the next contests at the March 26 meeting. A prize will be awarded the winner.

An old-fashioned game of marbles, played as it was played when the members of the Legion were boys, was another feature.

A smoker was held later in the evening and a lunch was served.

T. E. O'DONNELL GIVES ADDRESS HERE TONIGHT

An address that will crowd a big audience will be given tonight at the Eagles' hall when Judge Thomas E. O'Donnell of Kansas City, prominent speaker, will give a talk here.

Judge O'Donnell is coming to Gladstone under the sponsorship of the Gladstone Aerie of Eagles. His address will deal with matters of vital interest to everyone as well as problems of direct concern to members of the Eagles' lodge. It will be of general appeal and presented by a speaker of the unquestioned ability of Judge O'Donnell will be an attraction for everyone, regardless of whether or not he is connected with the aerie.

The old age pension plan is one of the subjects which the speaker will discuss and his wide knowledge on this present day problem will make this part of his address of particular interest.

Public Gathering. The meeting tonight at the Eagles' hall will be a public gathering of both men and women with a cordial invitation extended to all to attend. It will begin at 8 o'clock.

OBRECHT SHOW OPENS WEEK HERE MONDAY

The Obrecht Sisters' Stock company will appear at the Community theatre for a six-day engagement commencing Monday.

The company will present all royalty plays and polite vaudeville, featuring the Obrecht Sisters' famous ladies' orchestra. The opening play Monday, "The Goose Hangs High," a delightful comedy of American life by Lewis Beach, comes highly recommended as being one of the most interesting American plays of recent years. A strong vein of comedy pervails throughout the play and yet there is an air of sentimentality and a cleverly woven plot that holds your entire interest until the drop of the final curtain.

NEW OFFICER HOLDS FIRST MEETING HERE

Ensign August Sundberg, new officer of the Salvation Army here, will hold his first meeting at the Army hall, 812 Delta avenue this evening at 8 o'clock.

Ensign Sundberg is a talented speaker and is in addition a singer and a player of a number of musical instruments. Everyone is cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Miss Cornelia Henderson is spending the weekend at her home in Escanaba.

Mrs. Ida T. Scott of Manistique called on Gladstone friends Thursday afternoon.

CENTRAL UNIT OF P-T MEETS ON WEDNESDAY

Regular meeting of the Central School Parent-Teachers association will be held Wednesday evening in the Senior high school building beginning at 8 o'clock.

Election of officers which comes during the March meetings will be held at this time. Other business will also come before the members.

A report on the Older Boys' Conference at Marquette will be given by Cleve Moore who was one of the delegates sent to the conference by the Parent-Teacher council.

A social hour with community games will follow. Refreshments will be served. Each person is asked to take a plate and spoon with him.

All members of the unit are urged to be present and a cordial invitation is extended to all others interested in the movement.

The committee in charge of the social hour is made up of Mrs. Fred Filmore, chairman, Mrs. D. N. Kee, Mrs. Henry Cassidy, Mrs. Ed. Van Honr, Mrs. W. C. Prales and Mrs. M. I. Call.

The committee will be assisted by Mrs. Raymond Empson in the community games.

Just received on Columbia records, by Henry Ford's Old-Fashioned Dance Orchestra, a number of old-time dances, including quadrilles, reels, polkas, etc. Estenson, corner Tenth and Delta. G875-72-21.

Joins Margaret Henke in Girls' Band Engagement

Miss Blanche Olson of this city, left Saturday morning for Philadelphia where she will open an engagement as a member of the Ingenue Girls' Band of which Miss Margaret Henke of this city is a member.

The band will return to the Hippodrome theatre at New York at the close of Philadelphia engagement.

The band is composed of sixteen girl players, one dancer and one singer.

Under the new arrangement Miss Olson and Miss Henke will be pianists of the organization.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Matt Gunter has left for Indianapolis, called by the death of a relative.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bushong and daughter, Mary Alice, have left on a trip through California.

There's no Reason for it!

You don't have to take chances with your own car, or the other fellow's. Our Trade-in-Plan eliminates skidding. No matter how many miles are left in your tires, if your tread is worn your skid protection is gone.

We'll buy that treadless mileage, whatever it may be, by making you an allowance for it on new Generals.

Then you can forget skidding. General's non-skid tread holds with a double grip. Plus that, you get additional skid protection because General's low-pressure feature makes these pliant tires hug closely to the pavement. It gives them wider traction than tires requiring regular inflation.

Think of the advantages of always running on unworn rubber. That's what our Trade-in-Plan makes possible.

Come in, let us explain it fully. So many are taking advantage of it—why don't you?

FOUR FILED IN COUNCIL RACE

Two more candidates for the Manistique city council filed nominating petitions at the city hall on Friday, making a total of four nominees who have filed to date.

The last two petitions filed were for Hubert Norton and N. F. Christensen, both Westside merchants, whose entry in the race was announced a few days ago. Council candidates previously filed were John Girvin and Benjamin Gero, Sr.

Several other petitions are known to have the required number of signatures, but candidates have so far deferred the process of filing at the city hall. There are two more days left for this rite, as all must be in by March 16. April 5 is election day.

Just received a large consignment of the latest style dresses. Factory samples, beautiful, for the "change of ownership" sale at Rosenthal's. Come early if you want one at the sale price. M733-71-31.

Giants Slip; Race Is Waxing Warmer

Losing three straight to the Pirates, the leading Giants received another severe setback during the past week of bowling in the Elks' league at Manistique. Forshar, filling in for Hall for the Pirates, was in rare form, hitting the maples for an average of 197, while his teammates were all getting good counts, resulting in totals of 712, 716 and 719. This is the best set of games rolled this season registered by any of the teams. The Lions bested the Bear Cats by winning two out of three. Waters for the Lions hit his stride, and the Bear Cats were unable to overcome the resulting high game rolled by the Lions. The Cubs went down to defeat by losing two out of three to the Pirates.

Incidentally, the highest team total for the season was reached by the Cubs in this match with the Pirates. They rolled up a count of 759 pins, without counting handicaps.

The race for first place has now become intensely interesting, as all teams are within easy reach of high honors, only three games separating the teams from the coveted position.

Forshar hit the high mark for the week with 248. This is the highest game rolled for some time, Soutard following with 232, with Remell and Crowe also hitting over the 200 mark. Southard also was second for high average, getting 192, with Bolitho third with 184.

On Monday night the Pirates and Cubs will roll a double-header in order to bring the schedule to date. Tuesday night the Lions and Giants will get together, and Wednesday night the Tigers and Bear Cats meet.

MALE SINGERS HERE TUESDAY

The N. S. N. Men's Glee club of Marquette comes to Manistique on Tuesday evening, March 16, appearing at the auditorium under the auspices of the Students' association of Manistique.

There are 15 men in the glee club organization, which includes a brass band, orchestra and string quartet, in addition to the vocal ensembles, quartet, solos and duets.

Members of the Students' association are pushing the sale of tickets, and will use the net profits to help cover the deficit of the season's lyceum course.

An excellent entertainment is anticipated for Tuesday evening.

Roof Catches On Fire from Sparks

Sparks from a chimney are held responsible for a fire at the W. L. Orr residence, 219 Lake street, shortly before 4:00 p. m., Friday.

The blaze started in the shingles of the roof. Prompt application of a pail of water prevented serious damage, and the fire was practically extinguished when the fire department arrived.

A good-sized crowd attended the party at the Masonic hall Friday evening.

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE. New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON. Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge".

ARTICLE No. 19

A great many players seem to be in doubt as to whether or not they are justified in taking advantage of the personal element in auction. In other words, is it fair and within the ethics of the game to note and take advantage of the mannerisms or characteristics of your fellow players? The answer is simple. You are playing a game with three other people, your partner and two opponents, and it is not only allowable, but it is your duty to study them as carefully as you do your cards. The players in the game are just as important as the cards and should be studied and analyzed just as carefully. If you are playing with strangers, it is rather difficult to profit by such analysis, but when you are playing constantly with the same group you should take into account all of the characteristics of the different players, when bidding, playing the dummy or playing against the declarer. You can bid freely with one partner but must be conservative with another. You can take a chance against one opponent but must be very careful of being doubled with another. If one opponent does double, look out, for you are probably beaten; but if another doubles, figure on an extra trick or so. In the play of the hands, however, a little different point arises. It is considered good form to hesitate or otherwise indicate by your method of play, that you do or do not hold certain cards. If a player becomes noted for doing this as a matter of habit, however, his opponents are certainly justified in taking due advantage. One player, for example, always gives a nervous cough when he holds the missing honor and the opponent leads through his hand. He has tried hard to cure himself of this habit but without success. As a result, his opponents play for this signal and nearly always get the necessary information. Another player had a habit of always redoubling when doubled. The word "double" seemed to call up in his mind the word "redouble" and he was helpless to refrain from saying it. Every player at the table has the same opportunity of drawing conclusions that you have, so be on the alert at all times for the human element. Bridge is a game of wit and the player who can best match his wits against the others is the winning player. On the other hand, always avoid unfair tactics, such as private conventions or signals. Unpremeditated slips or mannerisms should be taken advantage of but watch out for those that are made with the intention of deceiving. For example, if you have a singleton of the suit led, you should play it promptly and not hesitate. Hesitation in such a case would lead your opponent to believe that you have a choice of two or more cards and might influence his play to his disadvantage. Such tactics are not manners and are distinctly unfair. Play a man's game, man fashion, at all times. One of the types of players that one meets very often is the player who always tries to take his partner out of a double. He gets the idea into his head that his partner has made a bad bid or he wouldn't have been doubled and that it is his duty to rescue him. Here are two hands that came up recently which are excellent examples of what not to do:

Manistique Legion Triples Membership; Banquet April 8th

During the past month, the membership of Manistique Post, No. 83, American Legion, has been increased 200 per cent. according to a report of Adjutant George Dupont, made at the monthly meeting held on Thursday of last week.

A list of 21 additional prospects was given out to the recruiting committee, with orders to bring them into the fold without delay. As an incentive to the membership workers, one American Legion auto radiator emblem will be given to each of the first four veterans who bring in five paid-up memberships for 1920. These emblems will be donated by Dept. Com. J. J. Herbert, Past Post Com. A. R. Tucker, and Post Com. L. A. Danielson.

The activities of the local post will be concentrated on increasing the list of paid-up members during the next month also, working in accord with the nationwide policy of the Legion as announced by Nat. Com. J. R. McQuigg in a letter received by the local post commander.

Discuss Warfare Fund. As a semi-windup for the local campaign, plans have been laid for a banquet on April 8, the date of the next regular post meeting.

Arrangements are in charge of a committee composed of E. T. Lundstrom, Harry T. Nelson and Dr. A. R. Tucker. This committee will make provisions for the place where the banquet, arranged for the serving by a church society or other organization, and provide for an after-dinner program of music and speakers. Another 200 per cent boost in the membership total is the goal set by the local post, and they hope to be able to report having attained this goal by the date of the banquet.

The meeting last Thursday was marked by the biggest attendance of the year. It was conducted in approved ritualistic form, and was followed by a lunch, program and session of cards. Music was provided by the Italian trio. The lunch, served saloon style, consisted of rye bread, brackstein cheese, sausage and coffee.

One of the features of the business session was a short talk by Department Commander Herbert, in which he gave the history of the much-discussed welfare fund, and events that led up to the recent attempt to discredit those in charge of the administration of the relief work.

The investigation authorized by the legislature, and approved by Legion officials, will give the Michigan Legion very favorable publicity when the legislative report is published. Mr. Herbert declared.

MEETING POSTPONED.

Due to the fact that the Forest Fire Fighting Flyer will arrive in Manistique on Tuesday, the Manistique Chamber of Commerce has decided to postpone their regular meeting from Monday noon to Tuesday noon, and at that time members will listen to talks on fire prevention and conservation, given by men who are accompanying the special train.

Among those on the list of speakers are: Dr. Raphael Zorn, director, Lake States Forestry Experiment headquarters, St. Paul; Crosby Hoar, district forest inspector, Duluth; L. F. Livingston, Michigan State college; George Amundson, agricultural engineering specialist, Michigan State college, and G. E. Bishop, secretary-manager, U. P. Development bureau.

Definite assurance has been received by Chamber of Commerce officials that the above men will be present at the meeting to be held in the Elks temple Tuesday noon.

NEW YORK, Mar. 13.—(AP)—Stock prices turned decidedly reactionary in today's market under heavy liquidation for both accounts. In view of the sustained rise of prices during the first five days of the week, when most of the ground lost in last week's reaction was recovered, the decline was generally regarded as a natural correction of a weakened technical position...

A comparison of the work of the two houses of congress thus far shows greatly to the credit of the lower body. Its proceedings have been orderly, earnest and thoughtful and bespeak an excellent quality of leadership.

True, the senate passed the tax bill, but only after every effort had been made by certain of its members to ruin it, or at least to put it in such shape either for political reasons or those of personal animosity to its sponsors, as the hope that thereby discredit might be thrown both upon the latter and upon the administration.

In their direct dealings with the treasury or with matters indirectly relating to that department, some of the senate seem to be suffering from an "inferiority complex." Conscious inferiority usually accentuates that quality in its unfortunate possessor blinding him to the virtues and abilities of others, breeding within him petty jealousies, and making him unable to give credit where credit, because of work well and honestly done, is really due.

A patriot is defined as one who loves his country and zealously guards its welfare; patriotism, as devotion to one's country. There is no gift either of worldly goods or of position that this country could make to the Secretary of the Treasury that could in the least degree add to his personal well being or confer upon him greater material comfort than he now enjoys.

Thereafter the checks tell in what part of the city your apartment is located, with the account indicating when you will change your boudoir from a plain domicile to an "apartment." They tell whether your buying is hit and miss or methodical, whether the wife is putting on the dog or not and a hurriedly dispatched wire from New York indicates whether you are putting on the big butter and egg man front when you shouldn't.

It is not conjecture with the bank clerk whether facts about you are facts or fancy, fabulous or fictitious, whether you are playing the Don Quixote or are thrifty. He knows. Salaries are no secrets to him.

What stories he could tip off, for it is not long in matter of duplicity, dualism or domestic trouble until the checks tell the tale. Clerks know long before the police or the victims when there is another Ponzi getting away with another's money. But you never hear them telling about it.

So it is that checks are an accurate and close barometer of human affairs. They show hobbies, follies, hopes, realization of ambition, success or failure.

A THOUGHT

Let every man be swift to hear; slow to speak, slow to wrath.—Jas. 1:19.

If anger proceeds from a great cause, it turns to fury; if from a small cause, it is peevishness; and so it is always either terrible or ridiculous.—Jeremy Taylor.

When a man grabs your hand and pumps it up and down he is trying to get something out of you.

YOUR BANK CLERK

Your bank clerk knows. Every chapter of human life is in your checkbook, for few of the transactions of life are without financial interpretation and there is no event that does not pass under the scrutiny of the bookkeeper in his bank cage or the clearing house clerks.

This bank clerk knows more about your daily affairs of heart, work, home and what they cost in cold cash than you think, and he never tells, for it is the ethics of the profession to keep silent. Yet women are succeeding in the banking business.

Though he or she may never see you, in checking over your bank account they know your status of living, whether you are eating tenderloins when you should be satisfied with hash, whether that new car was really justified and, during the last weeks, whether you had your wings badly clipped by margins as one of the shorn lambs.

Checks are a complete statistical record of human life. From the time the checks to a hospital and physician indicate birth to the stage of schoolboy, cadet and college youth to manhood until the undertaker is paid, the check-book tells all.

Checks tell of romance, for Florida's bills must be paid; of successful marriages and it's no

THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 44, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow stub.

What the devil are you talking about? asked Fogarty through lips that were tightly clenched on his cigar. And Jimmy told him the story of the encounter he had had.

"Kid Divis? Sure, I know him." Lieutenant O'Day reached in the drawer where he had cached his "chewing." "Why?" he asked.

"This man Divis," said O'Day, "was one of the first we brought in here when we first began to search for Ike Jensen. Someone tipped me off that Divis was an old associate of Jensen's but he swore up and down, when we got him in here, that he hadn't seen Ike for weeks. Said he must have left town."

"He lied to you, then," Jimmy declared. "Divis was with Jensen the night Jensen and I had that little mixup. He was the fellow I told you about that came running up afterward with a gun."

"Good Lord!" O'Day spit savagely into the cuspidor. "And we let him go!" "You remember, Lieutenant, I described the man as a fellow with a broken nose? We looked for his picture in the Bertillon room."

"Sure, but we didn't have it. The Kid's never had anything proved on him. But how could we know, Rand? Believe me, we got a lot of guys with broken noses when we started pulling in the boys we thought could steer us onto Ike Jensen."

Barry Colvin laughed. "I imagine so. Nice boys—all of them." Jimmy said: "Well, I'd bet my last nickel that Kid Divis was the man who was with him that night. I wish we had him now."

"We'll look for him, Rand. I'll start right away," O'Day pressed a button. "It was early the following afternoon that Mary Lowell, not back long from luncheon, looked up to find beside her desk a stockily built young man with a pug nose, carefully parted black hair and an engaging smile."

"Come on, Barry," said Jimmy. "It's all over. Just a street fight between a couple of toughs." Then he saw Thomas Fogarty, surveying the scene through amused eyes. A cigar stuck at a rakish angle from his mouth. He removed it to spit on the sidewalk, and then he laughed, a quiet contemptuous laugh.

Jimmy touched his elbow. "Hello, Mr. Fogarty." "Why, hello, Mr. Rand. Haven't seen you for a long time. Did you see it?" He jerked a casual thumb in the direction of the patrol.

"Yes, I saw it, all right," he introduced Barry Colvin. "Glad to know you, Mr. Colvin." "Nice boys, weren't they?" Barry said with his ever-ready grin. "And how that little guy—the one who got away—could sock!"

"Yeah," said Fogarty. "I've seen 'em before. One of 'em was Kid Divis. He used to be a pug. Used to be pretty good preliminary boy, but he wouldn't train."

a girl named Olga Maynard. Jim found her—he found her in a restaurant one night while you and he were together." She was staring at him in wide-eyed amazement. "Then that was the—" she broke off. "Go ahead, Mr. Colvin."

"He met her the next night—in the same place. At first he tried to trap her into an admission. Then, when he told her the police were looking for her on a murder charge, she fainted dead away. Jim told me that you saw that, and that you quite naturally failed to understand it."

"Now he's convinced that the girl was absolutely innocent of any connection with the murder. In fact, she's been helping him in his search for the suspect."

"That's all, Miss Lowell. I won't bother you any longer," Barry picked up his hat. "I just had to tell you, because I thought you'd like to know that, as far as Jim was concerned, you ought to know. He wouldn't tell you himself. He said it was too late."

When Barry saw Jimmy Rand that evening, he said: "Jim, I want you to remember this day. If you've got a notebook, mark the date in it. Some day you're going to appreciate me for what I am—a great benefactor to mankind."

CHAPTER XL Jimmy said to Barry Colvin, as they were getting ready for bed: "There's been a lot in the last week or so to take my mind off my real job here. Seeing that fellow Kid Divis last night made me realize it. I'm through mooncalfing around. I'm going to find that man Jensen or bust. And when I find him I'm going to learn who's at the bottom of it all. I don't think he is."

"What did O'Day tell you about Divis? Did he locate him again?" "No. But we will, don't worry, Barry. It occurred to you that a strange, weird sort of mystery this whole thing is? Our newest clew, you might say, is this man Divis. Checking back from him the other links in the chain are Jensen, the anonymous letters, Olga Maynard, Tom Fogarty and the yellow ticket stub."

"Yes, and the little shooting party that was planned for you. Don't forget the famous shot in the park, Jim, or the rendezvous with Jensen."

"The one thing we can be thankful for most of all is the yellow stub. Thank God for that. If we ever do run this thing down, it will be because of the insignificant little piece of cardboard. Without it we'd have been lost; we'd still be in Grafton, most likely."

"There's an old saying, Jim, that there is no murderer smart enough to get away without leaving some clew behind. I'm beginning to believe it. I've never heard of one that succeeded in doing it, and I've read about quite a few murder cases."

"It's a law of retribution, Barry—or something that amounts to the same thing. You know, I imagine I can visualize that murderer and trace the man who did it through every step he took. After it was over, of course, God, I can't bear to think of the actual—"

"I know," said Barry softly. "I can see him," Jimmy continued, "as he put on his hat and overcoat, then fumbling out the handkerchief and laying it on the dresser. In this case, you know, the murderer was so confident of not being traced that, out of sheer bravado, he deliberately left the handkerchief on the scene."

"Maybe not bravado entirely," put in Barry. "Perhaps he calculated to throw the police onto the wrong scent by bringing in the woman angle. You know how they persisted in believing that some woman was mixed up in it. And then, of course, when Olga Maynard entered into it, they just knew they were right. They still think so back in Grafton, Jim."

"Well, of course the handkerchief wouldn't have led us anywhere, but the murderer failed to reckon with the yellow stub. You know, Barry," he said musingly, "that phrase, 'the yellow stub,' sort of fascinates me. It isn't just a theater ticket coupon. To me it's always been the yellow stub, ever since that night in that awful room when someone—oh yes, it was a newspaper reporter—picked it up and remarked that it would make a good headline. He called it the mystery of the yellow stub."

CHRIST'S LAST WORDS

Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me.

In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am there ye may be also.

And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know. Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way? Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also; and henceforth ye know him, and have seen him. Philip saith unto him, Lord, show us the father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Show us the Father? Believeth thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself; but the Father, that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else believe me for the very works' sake. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall be done also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it. If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever; Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 14, Christ's Last Words With His Disciples. John 14:1-7.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist. Probably few words ever spoken or written have brought more comfort to troubled hearts than the words of Jesus that are recorded in this 14th chapter of John. "Let not your heart be troubled." What an appeal that exhortation in itself makes to troubled humanity!

Jesus not only says, "Let not your heart be troubled," but he justifies this exhortation. He bases the hope of comfort in himself, also in me." He is the way and the truth and the life; the way to lead us to God the Father. He is as sure that there is a heavenly Father and a heavenly home as that he himself constitutes the way.

What did Jesus mean by these words? He was a man born with in the knowledge of some of those who listened to him, who had lived his earthly life in their environment from babyhood to manhood. Is it not striking that we are not in any way repelled by the greatness of such claims?

Where some other might rouse our disgust or resentment by making great pretensions of authority and knowledge, we feel instinctively that there is something really humble and quiet about this claim of Jesus to be the way by which men come to God.

Was Jesus speaking of himself to run it down, if I can. I'm sure that the motive for my father's murder comes somewhere from out of his past. That's why it's worth investigating."

The Very Idea!

By Ed. O'Brien.

FRIENDSHIP. The east is east and the west is west and some like this, or the other best. When in the east, it west is far, and the east's the same when it's west you are.

A man may hail from a far coast, move some place else, his work engrossed, but he never forgets it, after all—that desire, and that far-off call.

As Burns once said, a man's man, who can make real friends like a real man can. He can step right in where there are no breaks in the friendship when he pulls up stakes.

There ain't no word like the word "goodbye," when you shout it out to a tip-top guy. He can shake your hand and be on his way, but the good old feeling sticks for aye.

There are more than 500 broadcasting stations in this country, not counting gospel, ... When a man is sufferin' ... ing from overwork, the ... rest of the family hopes it ... isn't contagious.

We always think the stork has a big bill, but when he leaves and the doctor comes, we find out how small it is in comparison.

She aimed to cut her weight a bit. With exercise galore. Instead of eating lunch, she took a roll upon the floor.

NOW, HONESTLY— Consider the friendly waitress. She's the girl who walks a million miles a day, totting a million dishes a day, and attempts to satisfy a million odd appetites a day.

We all get peeved at her—maybe because she neglects to bring more butter—or because she makes a slight mistake in our order.

And we persist in forgetting that she's just a human being. It's pretty soft for the rest of us to simply walk in and order her around.

Let's make it a bit softer for her by returning the friendliness and the patience she gives us. Maybe women figure that money kept in their hosiery draws more interest.

DREAMER: What would you do if you inherited a million? LOAFER: Nothing! Just live on the interest.

TRY THIS ON YOUR MANDOLIN: He was a good judge of drum music 'cause he always heard both sides.

You can't live without your income, and most of us can't live within it!

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

THE VERY POOR. I am not sure the very poor Are only those who want for things: In school or camp some little tramp To some new friend or teacher clings. His clothes are fine, of right design, Indeed, no garments I recall As rich as his—and yet he is The poorest beggar of them all.

The poor it's said, must beg for bread, Yet they have riches far above The little lad whose heart is sad Because he needs to beg for love, Whose father gives, but father lives Removed from lands the children know, Whose mother likes the little tikes, But simply can't be bothered, though.

And so they send him to a friend Or stranger in some other town, And say that soon, at least in June, His dad or mother will come down. They promise; then it's June again, And from a train they watch him climb, And kiss his brow, and tell him how And where he'll spend the summertime.

But little I with gold can buy, But little we can give a child: The public schools, and life's hard rules, A little home where God has smiled, A father's grip, companionship, A mother's love forever sure— I wonder which are really richer, I wonder which the very poor?

5 WOMEN ON JURY PANNEL

Will Exercise Constitutional Rights for First Time.

Names of fifteen women are included in the jury pannel for the spring term of Delta county circuit court which opens here April 7. For the first time in the county's history, women will be given the opportunity, if they desire, to serve as jurors. Heretofore they have been utilized as jurors because of the lack of proper jury room facilities. The courthouse recently has been remodeled, however, and it is expected that some of the women listed will see actual service.

The complete jury list follows:

Escanaba.
Ebel Murphy, Clyde J. Burns, Gertrude Cotton, L. N. Schemmel, Josephine Harvey, C. P. Johnson, John Lindsay, Grace Gallagher, Herman Lull, Axel Johnson, Marie Joss, Henry Almonroder.

TODAY'S PROGRAMS

At the Delft: Mary Philbin supported by Elliot Dexter and Gladys Brockwell, in a film version of Stephen J. Locke's greatest novel, "Stella Maris." At the Strand: "The Desert's Price," starring Buck Jones. It's a William MacLeod Raine story.

"The Plastic Age," Percy Marks' startling novel of youth which had such a tremendous sale last year, will be seen on the Delft screen Monday and Tuesday. Clara Bow and Donald Keith are featured. It is a college story, very modern in its conception and treatment. Football and flipperism are the themes. In the supporting cast are: Mary Alden, Henry B. Walthall, Gilbert Roland and other notables.

"Rainbow Riley," Johnny Hines in "Rainbow Riley" will be the Delft attraction Wednesday—St. Patrick's Day—under the auspices of the ladies of St. Patrick's parish. The story is adapted from "The Cub," a famous stage comedy and those who have seen the Hines screen version declare the pepsy comedian is at his best in it. It is a tale of a cub reporter who is sent to the Kentucky mountains to report a feud. Arriving there he is immediately immersed in a barrel of trouble and it takes all of his ingenuity to get him out with a whole skin. Supporting Hines are Dan Mason, Brenda Bond, Bradley Barker, John Hamilton, Harlan Knight and other favorites.

"The Golden Strain," a Peter B. Kyne story with a cast which includes Madge Bellamy, Hobart Bosworth, Frank Beal, Kenneth Harlan, Ann Pennington, Lawford Davidson and Frank McGlynn, Jr., will be the Delft's attraction Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Strand Programs.

Thrilling feats of horsemanship; roaring fun scattered profusely through the story and the warm breath of young romance are outstanding elements of "That Man Jack," in which Bob Custer, the western star, comes to the Strand Monday. One stunt in particular reveals the agile Texas youth as a horseman of no mean skill and daring. It is a Roman ride in which Bob stands astride two horses as they draw a buckboard in swift flight down a winding mountain trail. Other thrilling stunts enliven this engrossing narrative of the ranges, in which Bob Custer is to be seen supported by Mary Beth Millford, Monte Collins, Hayford Hobbs and Buck Moutton.

Tom Mix and Tony, his "wonder horse" will be seen at the Strand Wednesday and Thursday in "The Yankee Senator," a story of Old Mexico. In the cast are Margaret Livingston, Olive Jordan, Alex B. Francis, Martha Mattox and Francis McDonald.

Friday and Saturday will bring Reed Howes to the Strand, in his new feature, "The Cyclone Cavalier." On the same bill will be new chapters of "The Green Archer."

Junior Debators at St. Joseph's High Win Over Seniors

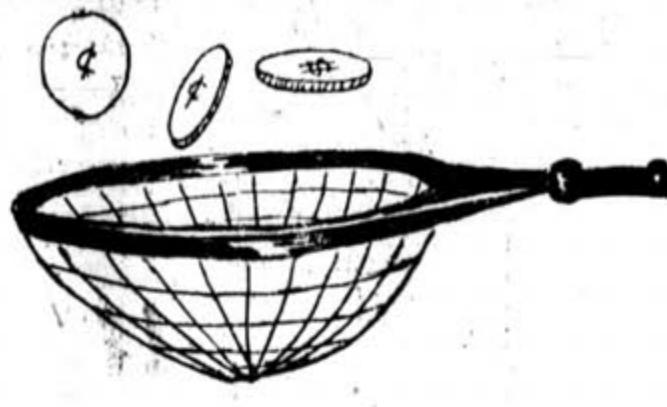

Junior class debaters at St. Joseph's high school handed the senior team a real defeat Friday afternoon in a lively and spirited contest. The question discussed was: "Resolved, that the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution should be adopted."

The senior team consisting of Victor Moreau, Clarence Morrow and Eugene Roemer upheld the affirmative. The juniors' speakers were Hillary Larson, Robert Raymond and Marvin Hirt.

The judges, Mrs. S. W. Brennan, Fr. Fabian Horner and Fr. Nicol Strehlin, gave the negatives a unanimous decision. The debate was well attended.
