

DEBATE TEAMS MEET FRIDAY

Last Debate at Local High Auditorium This Season.

Warren Edwards, John Hughes and Robert Beggs will be the members of the Escanaba high school negative debating team that will compete with Herched Grosnell, Marion Bouchner and Stanley Peterson of Menominee on Friday night of this week at the high school auditorium. Menominee sends word to this city that they have one of the best prepared teams that they have ever sent to this city and hope to carry the decision back to the Stetline city.

Edward Curran will captain the Escanaba affirmative team at Iron Mountain and he will have Janet Owen and Harry Erickson as his teammates. The local affirmative has since the beginning of the season completely revised its case and they will give the Pilgrimage one of the best exhibitions of debating skill that they try from that city has met with this year.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM TURAN.
Mrs. William Turan, aged 18, of Isabella, formerly Miss Lillian Mosier of Rapid River, passed away at an early hour Wednesday morning at a local hospital, where she had been taken two weeks ago, suffering from a fractured hip, a goiter and a complication of diseases. Mrs. Turan had been ill for a year and a half and was injured when she fell near the camp where the couple were living this winter at Isabella. Her condition continued to grow more serious and she was removed to this city in a critical condition.

MUSCLE SHOALS MILITARY ASSET

BY GEORGE BRITT
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—The big Wilson dam—or, in construction gang parlance, Dam No. 2—is the backbone and vitals of the whole Muscle Shoals project. There are other imposing features, however.

There are two big plants, fully equipped for making nitrogen out of thin air. The largest can supply explosives for an army of a million and a quarter men, and it embraces one of the largest steam power units in the world.

There is a great rock quarry to furnish raw material for the nitrogen fixation process, and there are ready-made industrial villages, including not only workers' homes, but schools, hotels and a hospital.

On blueprints there are also two other big dams, which form important parts of the navigation improvement and power conservation scheme.

World's Largest Dam.
To inspect Muscle Shoals intelligently, however, begin at the Wilson dam. With the powerhouse at its south end, it forms a barrier 4300 feet long across the Tennessee river at Florence, Ala., and is the largest dam in the world. Others are longer, or higher, but for bulk over all it is supreme.

It is 140 feet high from foundations to the floor of the bridge which runs along its top, and it is 205 feet thick at the bottom where it is keyed into the stone riverbed. You can take its masonry and lay a pavement 18 inches wide and an inch and a half thick around the earth at the equator.

At the north end of the dam are two locks, one after the other. Each lock chamber is 300 feet long and 60 wide, and each has a lift capacity of 46½ feet.

In the powerhouse are to be a total of 18 turbine generators. At present four generators of 30,000 horsepower have been completed and set to work. Four others of 35,000 horsepower will be ready to go in a couple of months. Ten others, which are to bring the total capacity up to 600,000 horsepower are for future installation.

The cost of the dam, locks and powerhouse is figured approximately at $50,000,000.

War Launched Work.
Back of the Muscle Shoals development is the feverish motive of war-time necessity. The United States needed nitrogen to make ammunition and the only supply was in Chile, far away and uncertain. Chemists said they could reverse the process of an exploding shell. In stead of releasing the force of nitrogen suddenly, with a bang, they would recapture it from the atmosphere to be loaded into a gun.

"FIRE FLYER" HERE SATURDAY

Train Visits Gladstone Today; Rock and McFarland Friday.

The Forest Fire Flyer, containing some graphic and interesting exhibits and accompanied by a corps of excellent speakers, arrived in Delta county yesterday, holding a splendid meeting at Rapid River in the afternoon.

The train will go to Gladstone today for a meeting at 9 o'clock. Later in the day it will be switched onto the Chicago & North-Western line and it will visit McFarland Friday morning and Rock Friday afternoon.

The meeting in Escanaba will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning, aboard the flyer in the North-Western yards. The flyer and its personnel will remain here all day Saturday and Sunday for a rest, moving on to Foster City Monday.

Large crowds have greeted the train everywhere. Chambers of commerce, business men's clubs, civic clubs, woman's clubs and the public schools have been extending excellent co-operation and there is every indication that the campaign will be tremendously successful.

FRATERNAL

Card Party Tonight.
The Past Noble Grands club will give a card party this evening at the I. O. O. F. hall when Rebekahs, Odd Fellows and their friends will be entertained with a program of five hundred and bridge after which attractive prizes will be awarded to the holders of high scores. Lunch will also be served. A good time is assured all who attend.

Maybe these suggestions will help vary the sickroom tray. EGG-NOG, custard, orangeade, cream of celery soup, grape juice, junket, coodled eggs, omelet, asparagus soup, gelatins, and meat broths.

To make an eggnog, have 1 beaten egg, yolk and white beaten separately, 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar, 3-4 cup milk, nutmeg. Add the sugar to the beaten yolk, then add the white, the milk, and beat until thoroughly mixed. Chill.

The first Christmas dinner at the White House was in 1800.

Crude Coffin With Human Bones Found Near Lake Linden

Lake Linden, Mich., Mar. 17—(P)—Discovery of a crude coffin, made of roughly hewn pine, containing fragments of human bones, believed to be those of an Indian, has been reported to village officials by Adolph Dupuis, Lake Linden resident. The find was made while excavating for a cellar at the Dupuis home.

Diving into the history of the village reveals the fact that the place never was used as a burial ground by the Indians. During the early days, when Lake Linden was but a hamlet, it was the custom when a river driver was drowned during a log drive to inter his body along the shore. Many, however, are inclined to doubt that the body was that of a logger.

It is estimated that the coffin was placed there about 75 years ago.

OUR footwear is becoming even more prominent in the part assumed in the costume of the well dressed woman. There are two obvious reasons for this: One, that with the extremely short skirts and nude hose, our shoes are much more prominent than ever before. The second reason is that we are considering our costumes as a whole—nowadays and anything as important as our shoes must fit into the color scheme harmoniously. And this does not only mean in color but in general line and feeling.

For Daytime

The newest thing for general daytime wear, particularly for street wear, is the high cut pump and sometimes a shoe that is cut so high over the instep that it is a closer relative to the oxford than the pump. At present, the high cut pump is seen on fully eighty percent of the well shod feet. But—these higher cut shoes are distinctly a new trend and, as such, will bear watching.

The Combinations

The most popular materials are kid, patent leather and antelope. But these materials are scarcely ever by themselves. They are usually found in combination with each other, or with lizard. For example, some very smart patent leather pumps are trimmed with a buckle of blonde or being lizard with a lizard heel matching the buckle. At other times, a patent leather pump is trimmed with lizard which forms a buckle or some trimming on a buckle as well as a tiny scalloped band around the top of the shoe. Another favored combination for an all black shoe is kid trimmed with patent leather.

In the high cut shoe the upper part is sometimes of antelope while the lower part and the heel are of patent leather. Black satin is also being used for daytime shoes. Some black satin oxfords are seen, but they are a very feminized, high-heeled oxford far removed from the simple brogue of seasons past. Black or black shoes are chosen according to the color of the costume.

Certainly There Are Strap Slippers

The strap slipper is far too popular to be dropped from the mode, so, of course, it is here in many clever new interpretations. The strap slipper is especially attractive with afternoon frocks but it is also worn interchangeably with the pump. Some of the newest of these have a sabot strap, that is a strap which goes high across the instep and continues across each side of the shoe and joins the sole. The strap slipper is found in the same combinations of leather as the pump, but instead of having a contrasting buckle to match the heel, it is the strap which matches. However, there is one thing that all of these shoes have in common, and that is the very high heel. The spike heel, sometimes between two and three inches high, is seen on all shoes except those for active sports.

With Sports Togs

The low heeled oxford, peel oxford or two-strap slipper of white buckskin trimmed with brown or black leather will be worn for actual sports. The linen slipper in pastel tones is very popular with the light frocks of summer, and much more practical than the pastel dresden of last year. Parchment kid, a lovely creamy tone just off white, is new and lovely with light frocks—especially the printed chiffons with a light background. There are even a few slippers of Panama.

The Evening Mode

The evening mode is very gorgeous and glittering with interwoven sandals of gold or silver kid jeweled heels and straps—to say nothing of some satin slippers exquisitely embroidered. These satin slippers are frequently chosen to harmonize with the frock rather than match it. Nude hosiery is worn with all these shoes except the grey or black trimmed with grey when a matching shade of blonde is chosen.

RADIO SLANDER.

A Chicago radio announcer has been arrested for announcing over the radio that State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and a companion were sitting at the front table at a notorious cafe, from which a dance music program was being broadcast.

The arrest will no doubt be the means of a court test on just what constitutes "freedom of the air." Free speech in this country is pretty well defined, but there is no precedent for dealing with irresponsible and malicious radio talk.

Radio talks should be put on a responsible basis, both for the sake of the stations and for public protection. The public is protected from newspaper libel by state laws; there should be similar laws enacted for radio.

A THRILL FOR SEATTLE.

Seattle voters last week had a chance to vote for a woman for mayor or for city manager form of government. The woman won, indicating that Seattle preferred a thrill in city government rather than a step in the direction of good government.

Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, the new mayor, may be a splendid woman; she may have lots of business acumen; she may be a diplomat in handling city councils; but she can not hope to do for Seattle what a modern type of municipal government would do.

But Seattle has not lost its chance; within a couple of years, that city's electorate will have discovered that even a woman can do little to promote good government through an antiquated governmental machine, and with other large cities adopting this newer and more modern system, Seattle can be expected to fall in line.

TWO MORE SENTENCED.

Two Waukegan, Ill., young men were sentenced to life imprisonment after convictions on statutory charges—attacking young girls. The case was almost parallel with the Rich case.

We wonder if the young girls and young men and their parents have profited by the result of two trials. In the Rich case, the life of the girl who was attacked has been ruined because of the publicity she received; the life of the defendant is shattered, as are the lives of the two Waukegan youths.

There is a moral in the two cases which parents would do well to drive home to their sons and daughters. This may be the age of jazz but young womanhood and young manhood should continue to be inviolate.

TEAR BOMBS AND LAUGHTER.

The tear bomb is taking its place in maintaining peace. In several instances of late criminals in southern states have been protected by tear bombs against threatened mob violence. Tear bombs were used to disperse rioters in the mining regions of Pennsylvania.

This is a simple and effective weapon. It is better than calling out firemen to turn the hose on mobs. No one can do much when tear bombs confront him. One may say lightly that women have used tears for years as weapons of defense, most effectively, too.

A BRITISH VIEW.

The United States of America is the land of divorce. Nowhere, except in Soviet Russia, is it easier legally to break the marriage tie, and in a country whose traditions are Puritan and whose legislation is still influenced by Puritanic prejudice, there exists today what is, in effect, legalized sexual promiscuity. It has therefore caused some little surprise that an Englishwoman has not been permitted to land in New York on the ground that she has been guilty of "moral turpitude."

Dog collars are being worn, as neck ornaments, by the flappers of Montclair, N. J. All that an impetuous shriek needs to effect a capture is a snap-chain. Which recalls to an old timer that it's a long way back to the days when the girls wore strips of red flannel, or woolen stockings, or bags of asafetida, around their necks.

Federal officers have arrested 112 men in a liquor roundup in Cleveland. One of the men is innocent. Our secret agents inform us that there are only 111 bona fide bootleggers in that city.

The best chicks, says the department of agriculture, are hatched before May 15. The hens used to know that but can you teach an incubator to read a calendar?

The government is considering placing a tax on moonshine liquor. The plan seems to have the same flaw that characterized a famous recipe for cooking rabbit.

Up to a late hour yesterday, the Escanaba health department had received no reports of heat prostrations or sunstrokes.

Down in Missouri a judge has issued an injunction restraining a wife from picking her husband's pockets. It won't be long before one can purchase injunctions at any cigar store, three for a dime, with premium coupons thrown in.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

SWALLOWING.
The virtues mortals must possess
Have all been mentioned more or less,
And yet the older that I get,
I find that there's another yet.

The older that you get, my son,
My girl, the longer race you run,
The more you'll wonder at the rest,
The little meanness of mankind.

I would not have a man too meek,
A human doormat, so to speak,
And yet occasions will arise,
Yes, even when they do you wrong,

Some seem to think that every word
We must resent as soon as heard,
Yet one can oftentimes be right
And yet not need to go to war.

WILL COLLECT TAX ON MOON

Andrews Prepares to Enforce Provisions of New Statute.

News of the decision of Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, federal prohibition director, to collect from the bootlegger the entire cost of smushing his illegal business, has been received with interest by local enforcement authorities.

The federal authorities will act under a provision written into the new tax reduction law, imposing a tax of $6.40 a gallon on all distilled spirits which are diverted to beverage purposes.

While the government will not know how much liquor a bootlegger has made, unless he confesses, he can be taxed on the quantity he is convicted of manufacturing or selling. On a charge involving 100 gallons, he would be forced to pay $640. officials stated.

This drastic new plan has already been put into effect in Texas and western Pennsylvania, Andrews announced, and shortly will be extended to every other state.

It is expected, as Andrews expects, two major results are expected: First, a big increase in the price of bootleg liquor.

Second, it will lift the burden of prohibition enforcement from the "dry" taxpayer and shift it to the "wet" taxpayer.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Mar. 17.—Robins may be the recognized harbingers of spring in many places, but in New York spring comes dancing up the street in the wake of the first hurdy-gurdy.

When the asthmatic strains of "O Sole Mio" come from the curbstone it's a pretty good sign that the first warm rain is waiting just around the corner somewhere.

They come long before the first buds or the first green blades of grass. And this raggedy, disheveled, mendicant army comes gradually to hold a place in the lives of apartment, flat and hotel dwellers that is difficult to describe to one who has not lived in New York.

There is an impersonal affection for these wandering music makers. Doubtless it is the suggestion of carnival, gayety and song. The city has crushed its own upon lives throughout a rushing day. Only the rattle and banging of traffic has come through open windows. Cries and street calls and noises that echo only rush and worry and the turmoil. Not one thing from the outside to relax or bring the imagination and message of escape.

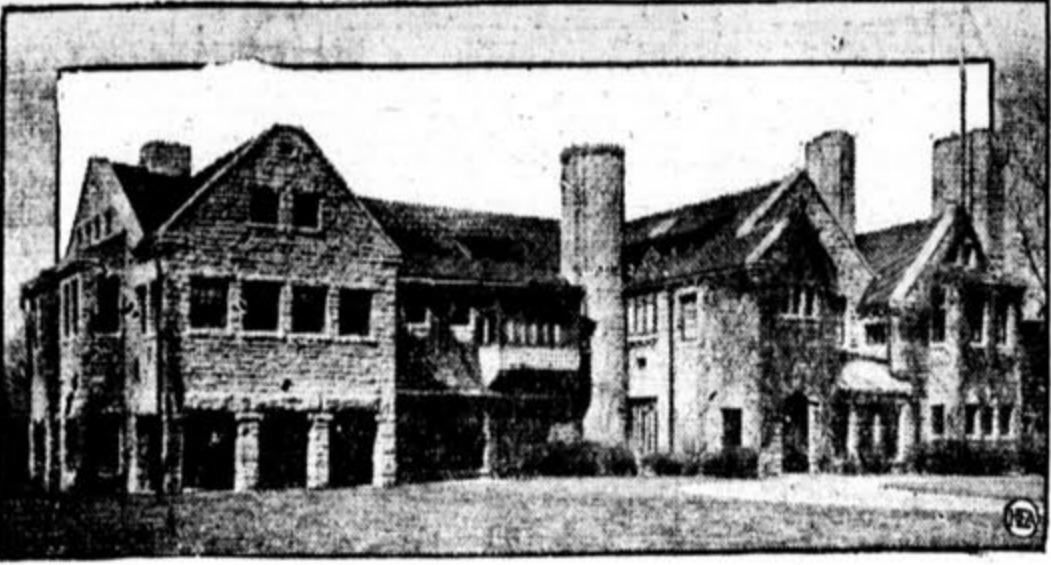

And then—there it comes! Way down the street some place? Tin panny and rattle-de-bany! But it's a tune—a gay tune or sad tune? What matters it? A ear is as good as a smile as an escape for trapped emotions.

It's the same old tune. You can almost see the swarzen-faced, bent old man who trundles his dilapidated, pathetic music maker. You can even see the smirking sort of smile that he forces as he waves his hat around and looks expectantly up at your window.

It's a forced gesture. No one knows it better than you. He is quite as impersonal about it as you are. Perhaps you will remark something about "the poor old thing." But you won't really mean it. In the back of your mind you will begin to figure up his collections. Your reckoning will tell you that if he picked up 50 cents in your block, in the course of ten minutes, it is reasonable to believe that he will do the same in the next. You figure it up—let's see, 50 cents every ten minutes—$3 an hour.

If he does that any percentage of the day he has a nice fat income. The next time he comes past you watch him closer. Yes, he's as ragged and unfed looking as before. Yet, before your very eyes you see him get 60 cents this time. . . . "He's probably got ten times as much money in the bank as I have," you tell yourself. Yet you give him a dime. . . . The point is that the organ grinder has become a symbol of poverty to you and you have become a symbol of prosperity to him. It's an even shake.

Freshmen Edit Esky High Spots

The freshman class of the Escanaba high school will probably be the precursor in the high school to day when the Esky High Spots is issued because they are the editors of the school paper for the present. This is something new in the line of newspaper work, it being the first time that any class has had the opportunity to edit a paper. Each class in the high school will have an opportunity to display its skill at newswriting sometime during the year as the sophomores and Juniors and the seniors will each edit an issue before June.

He was soon in the midst of a blinding blizzard and until night fall overtook him when he decided to quit and head a fire and await daylight.

Lyko Helped His Wife

An Oklahoma man, Mr. Gallion, tells about the help Lyko gave his wife after other remedies had failed. His letter says: "The wonderful relief Lyko has given my wife has been taking all kinds of medicine which did no good. I saw Lyko advertised and got it and it is doing her lots of good."

"I was subject to constipation, my kidneys were out of order and I was run-down and so nervous I could hardly get along. I was advised by my physician to try Lyko. I got relief at once," is what R. Sledge of Mississippi reports.

Could Not Eat—Now Well

Walter Schultz of San Francisco says: "For many years I tried everything to build me up, I was run-down in health, could not eat, my condition was very bad. A friend recommended Lyko. Today I am a happy man, I have got my health back."

that you want to be my sweetheart. I don't want a sweetheart and I do want a friend." "Oh, don't worry about me," cheerfully remarked Jim. "What do you want to do, take a taxi or do you want to go into the first eating place we come to?" "That's much better. I'd rather walk."
