

pressed him as chauffeur and in the next 30 minutes, dashed 60 miles over rain-soaked concrete highways to Indiana Harbor, Ind., which boasts of a large Mexican settlement. Still taking Krichak with them, they forced a taxicab chauffeur to race with them to a corner in southeast Chicago near which one of the escaped convicts knew relatives lived.

Alarm Was Spread.
Meanwhile, the alarm had been spread from Joliet and Chicago policemen and detectives had rushed to the outskirts of town.

Careening wildly through the night, the commandeered taxicab was spied by Serg. John Klasko of the detective bureau and two men of his squad.

Klasko forced the wildly racing taxicab to the curb and at that moment the Mexicans opened fire.

George Grant, shot through the abdomen and probably fatally wounded and William Frost, shot in the arm and leg, were put out of the fight and Klasko alone was left. The Mexicans along with their taxicab and ran. Klasko took careful aim and dropped Gregario Rizo with a bullet just under the heart. He probably will die.

In the fusillade, the chauffeur of the stolen taxicab, John Marcinak, 23, was shot in the leg.

Detectives Comb District.
The district was combed by squads of detectives and policemen and 20 minutes later Torres was arrested with two other Mexicans as he walked from a house.

That left at large only Bernardo Ho, a cripple who hobbles on a crutch, to re-enforce legs shattered by some of the 21 bullets received after the prison break of last May.

It was believed that all the prison breakers would be accounted for before dawn.

Back at Joliet the three others, Charles Duchowski, Charles Shader and Walter Staleski, finally called out they would surrender after reserve guards had been rushed to the jail and tear bombs had been tossed into their cell.

A strange bit of action by Duchowski was his turning to Gibbons, the guard who had sat in front of the Mexicans' cell, the man who later was upbraided when the investigation got under way.

Break Cost $1,500.
"This cost $1,500," was the only bit of information obtained from the Americans. It was snarled out by Duchowski, who was credited with being the leader in the penitentiary break of last May.

One of the women arrested today is Mrs. Rose Knight, who was found to have in her possession a letter in Spanish from Rizo. The other woman is Miss Juanita Jallardo, 19, who admitted she visited Rizo last Wednesday with her brother.

Today's attempted jail delivery takes rank with that of the same men and James Price from the state penitentiary last May and with that of Tommy O'Connor from the Cook county (Chicago) jail, December 12, 1921. Just before he was to have been hanged for the murder of P. J. O'Neill, a policeman as the most sensational in Illinois history.

Railroad Station, 2 Elevators Burn; Damage Is $35,000

Melvin, Mich., March 12.—(P)—Damage estimated at $35,000 was done here today by fire which destroyed the Pere Marquette station and two elevators of the Kerr Grain and Hay company. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated machine in one of the elevators.

The office and records of the grain company were saved through the cooperation of the Yale fire department.

MAYORS WANT GAS TAX
One hundred and fifty mayors and municipal officials of New Jersey, who attended a convention of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, adopted a resolution urging the legislature to pass a two-cent gasoline tax.

Pretty soon Tex Rickard will be asking the eager young contestants for their Congressional Records.

INVITATIONS TO MEET EXTENDED

U. S. Still Hopeful of Five Power Naval Disarmament.

Washington, Mar. 12.—(P)—Formal invitation to participate in a naval arms conference at Geneva were transmitted today to the British and Japanese governments, both of whom previously advised the state department that they would accept.

The invitations, transmitted to the British and Japanese ambassadors here by Acting Secretary Grew, proposed that the Geneva naval discussions begin June 1 or soon thereafter and expressed regret of the American government that France and Italy had seen fit to decline the suggestion that they also participate. Hope was expressed, however, that both European governments would be represented informally.

The notes of invitation to Great Britain and Japan were made public by the department with the agreement of the two ambassadors.

Urgo Five-Power Parley.
Publication of the formal invitation served to disclose that all three governments now have expressed hopes that France and Italy would find it possible to take some part in the Geneva negotiations.

As anticipated, the invitation leaves the door to the fullest discussion at Geneva wide open. No suggestions of any kind as to any means for extending the theory of tonnage limitation to other than capital ships and aircraft carriers is presented, nor is any of the three governments committed in advance on any phase of the questions that will arise at Geneva.

An element of the discussions at Geneva is bound to be the question of the relation of naval air forces to surface craft. Whether there is any possibility of extending limitations even to various types of naval aircraft remains to be seen, although it is to be anticipated that whatever possibilities may exist in that direction will be looked over carefully at the three-power conference.

Personnel Not Disclosed.
The Washington government had not decided today whether additional naval personnel would be assigned to Geneva for the conference. The matter will be discussed at the navy department but there is no particular reason for haste, and developments at the sessions of the Geneva preparatory commission which reopens March 31 may have much to do with a decision.

If the present staff of naval experts is tied up by committee work of the preparatory commission, additional naval officers undoubtedly will be assigned in order that they may be delay on that account in the three-power negotiations.

CALLE'S FEARS U. S. MOVE TO BALK OBREGON

out bringing matters to a climax. His advice unquestionably has been sought by President Calles in the present emergency and there is every reason to believe that he has suggested compromise.

President Coolidge has indicated that if the main issue—confiscation—could be settled there would be no difficulty in reaching an understanding on the collateral questions growing out of that controversy. The press dispatches which go so far as to say amendments may be proposed to the Mexican constitution so as to eliminate any construction of the constitution as retroactive sound too good to be true to Washington officials though they realize that such a course and only that will put the relations between the United States and Mexico on a permanently satisfactory basis.

Faced With Embargo.
Even if the amendments are not immediately adopted the effect from the Mexican chief executive will be to prevent confiscations in the interim.

In a nutshell, Mexico is faced with the possibility of an embargo on arms being lifted so that all factions can get munitions and she is faced with a ban on her borrowing of money in the United States unless she respects the rights lawfully acquired of foreign nationals. Her decision to follow a policy of conciliation rather than hostility to foreign capital as reported from Mexico City is hailed as a sign that economic influence is a more powerful factor nowadays than military threats.

AUTO WELL ADVERTISED.
Manufacturers of automobiles and automobile accessories were the largest users of national newspaper and magazine advertising in 1926, according to a report by the United States Department of Commerce.

Headline says "Germ's home life bare." But it was a story from some laboratory and not a divorce court at all.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY

It has suddenly become fashionable to ask embarrassing questions.

Yes, the sort your little boy, Rollo, has been asking.

Such questionnaires, we might add, are very likely to turn out to be the long lost little brother of the cross-word puzzle.

"Ask Me Another!" (Viking Press), the first of these erudition testers to make its appearance, seems to prove that the nation is ready for problems of all sorts, so long as prohibition isn't one of them. If you doubt this, then consider, please, that 25,000 copies were disposed of almost before the presses cooled, leaving the poor publishers with the problem of telling the retailers that no more would be available until a special fifth—or was it a sixth?—edition could be turned out.

The moral of this volume, as near as we can figure out, is this: where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to waste a dollar or so on a copy.

Perhaps the vogue can be accounted for by those insidious advertisements which have been appearing, telling of the colossal knowledge of a certain anonymous gentleman who steals the interest of the evening by revealing his encyclopedic knowledge on this and that. Personally, such an individual would bore us to death and our own experience has been that we became the hit of the evening on occasions when we were able to reveal inside details of the Peaches-Browning trial or the Chaplin divorce suit.

But since the question book threatens to repeat the cross-word craze, perhaps we had best give it serious attention. The editor, Justin Spafford and Leden Esty, late of Amherst—tried each set of 50 questions on some established notable and the mental score of each appears boldly upon every page.

Thus Anita Loos scored 80 on one set and Heywood Brown was unable to name the most popular type of tractor. The sturdy Ernest Boyd scored but 72 in another set, whereas Bill Tilden, the tennis shark, hit off a good 78; H. I. Phillips, who writes funny stuff, also got 80 and James Weldon Johnson, who sings spirituals, achieved a similar average. Dr. Frank Crane got 90, but his questions were easier than some of the others.

There are moments when one suspects the editors of slightly sardonic jabs.

Thus, there appears a question: "What sensational football player wore the number 77 on his back through the 1925 season?" Simple indeed! Of course it's Red Grange.

And the next question is: "Who is David Kinley?" Of course, we gave up. He is merely president of the university at which Red Grange played.

Perhaps it was because we had been tackling questions that we turned to a book by Charles W. Wood, late of a New York newspaper feature writer, entitled, "The Myth of the Individual" (John Day Co.)

And it is a document which is going to cause many an argument running far into the night. Wood, who claims no laurels as scientist, has tackled the job of figuring out just what man is and where he stands today. And, in so doing, he kicks science and general theory upstairs—doing it in a most amusing and casual way; at times a completely convincing way.

It is difficult in limited space to outline Wood's method of reasoning and concluding, but a summary may be found in this paragraph: "Man is neither an animal nor a spirit. Man is not an individual. Neither rivalry nor self-preservation figures in human motives. Man's dominant passion is to lose himself in the life of all humanity."

Human life, he finds, is not what the philosophers, religionists and economists have conceived it. He sees man swallowed completely by social organization, machinery and mass movement. He has no great patience with biological data, pointing out that man refutes the scientific conclusions.

In times of war man particularly shows his paradoxical situation. Wood points out that millions prepare to battle for things of which they know nothing. Beasts at least know when to fight and how.

And there is the machine, itself. Wood feels that man can never again become an individual. Organization has bound him. Through the machine, man can serve his fellows and, in a sense, it is a super-communism. And Wood does not feel that God can help much, since there are so many interpretations of God and religion. It is not so much in Christ as in the Christ spirit that hope lies, he feels, for the rise of the true "son of man."

FEDERAL ROAD SIGNS YELLOW

New U. S. Road Markers Will Be Erected in U. P. Soon.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground, erection of the new federal "Yellow" road signs will be begun, it has been learned here. It is probable that the work will be done through the county road commission.

Conversion of highways M-12 and M-25 into federal highways will mean the changing in color and design of all road signs except at railroad crossings.

The federal highway department requires all signs to show yellow backgrounds with black letters. The government has standardized signs and colors for trunk line arterials in order to make them more safe for traffic and these will be the same in all states.

The only exception in Michigan is on railroad crossing warnings, which will be left in black and white because of a state law establishing these colors.

A distinction between "curve" and "turn" signs is to be made this year. The department has established an arbitrary ruling that where cars can safely make the bend at the rate of 35 miles an hour it will be called a "curve" and where it is necessary to slow down it will be called a "turn."

All intersecting county roads will be properly marked both on the county roads and on the trunk lines to indicate the approaching intersections.

BRIEFLY TOLD

Older Boys' Supper Tuesday Night—Most people do not think that the modern boy is good for much of anything. However, that theory will be proven false next Tuesday night when young men, members of the Older Boys' class of the Presbyterian church, served at their third annual supper. According to the boys' statement issued yesterday, they will prove that there are no better waiters outside of the Waldorf-Astoria and Statler hotels. The supper is sponsored each year by the senior boys of the Sunday school and the proceeds turned over to some worthy cause, this year to the upkeep expense of the new gymnasium. It will be possible to serve about 150 persons at one time in the new parlors. Serving will begin at 6:30 until 7:30 o'clock. The assembly orchestra under R. W. Nordling will play while the meal is on. The public is invited to attend.

Westminster Circle Meet—The Westminster Circle of the First Presbyterian church will meet at the home of Viola Christie at the Ludington hotel at 7 o'clock Monday evening. Roll call will be answered with facts concerning Africa.

meanness you will find them, never fear. But if you keep looking for kindness and honesty and bravery and loyalty, you will find those qualities in abundance too.

Why is it that one man can live for years in one neighborhood and find it delightful, while another will move to the same place and in three weeks' time will go about bewailing the shoddiness of the people among whom he lives? Why does one man see fine qualities and fine people in a certain city while another man can see only base qualities and base people?

It is because the shadows of ourselves fill the world for us and color all we see.

If you feel that everyone about you is low and unworthy don't announce the fact. You may remind people of the mother who announced that the whole army was out of step but her Jim.

24 VOTES FOR UNDERWOOD

The United States suffered a loss when the 49th Congress adjourned. The adjournment marked the return of Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, to private life.

It is rare that a political leader draws as many tributes from men of the opposite party as Senator Underwood did. He ends his long term of public service with a record that contains much worthy of praise and little deserving of criticism.

Besides—who will ever forget that oft-repeated war cry, "24 votes for Underwood"? The man's name brought a light-hearted touch to one of the bitterest political fights in decades. For that alone, if for nothing else, Underwood will always have a warm place in our memory.

RULING THE AIR, TOO

Just where is the dominion of the United States government going to end, anyhow—on the moon?

The government first left the ground when it established a weather bureau and a meteorological service. Then it put in a department of aeronautics. Now it has set up a federal radio board.

Go as high as you like, the rules and regulations of the U. S. government will still follow you. Perhaps we should call our president by a new title—"Prince of the Powers of the Air."

So They Say

There's one gleam of silver from the Far Eastern cloud. China isn't likely to expect the United States to pay for her war.

Politics is either a matter of passing the buck or passing the doe.—El Paso Times.

As the war grows intense in China it doesn't seem possible that all those armies can keep away from one another and avoid an accident.—Wichita Eagle.

One trouble with teeth in the Prohibition Law is that they require so much gold filling.—Seattle Argus.

Most wives, it is said, walk more than a mile in preparing a meal. Ah this is cruel! The deliriousness should deliver their stiff Chicago Tribune.

Horses will become extinct, say scientists. It will not happen soon enough to be any relief to the Prince of Wales.—Washington Star.

World peace will finally come when nobody wants to fight any longer than a world's champion fighter does.—San Diego Union.

The butchers use everything about the hog but the squeal, and the consumer uses that when he holds the price of pork.—Durham Sun.

Now to be sure, the S. P. A. is a worthy organization and we are all glad to see it get the money it can. And in the same token, there probably are a good many of us who can understand the feeling that lay behind that little quip about human beings.

It's the kind of remark you hear quite often, and the person who makes it is usually given credit for a clear-eyed, shrewd insight into the souls of his fellow men.

Yet, on the whole, making nasty cracks about mankind is rather a cheap way of getting credit for real insight; and more often than not it reveals more about the person who makes the remark than it does about mankind as a whole.

It has often been said that one sees in the human race only what one sees in one's own heart.

Which is just another way of seeing that your fellow man is what you choose to consider him. You will find in your neighbors the qualities you look for. If you are eternally on the alert to see evidences of cheapness and untruthfulness and selfishness and

AMERICAN CEMETERY IN FRANCE

France Bears Few Scars of World War Ten Years Ago

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of five articles dealing with the American cemeteries abroad where rest 30,000 American soldiers who were either killed in action or died as a result of war service. The next article will be published next Sunday.

By Richard Loelke Jones. Ten years after the declaration of war by the United States against Germany in 1917 there remain in Europe few traces of the American Expeditionary Forces which proved the deciding factors in the conflict. For the most part, the battlefields have grown up with weeds, or have been restored to cultivation by the plow. The hotels, the barracks, the hospitals we used have been returned long since to peace time duty. A few unofficial monuments mark certain battle scenes, but the official battle monuments are yet in the preliminary stages. The American Legionnaires who return to Europe for their convalescence at Paris next September will miss a great many sights which were familiar in 1917 and 1918. But there are eight permanent, plain and prominent monuments of the Legionnaires of ten years ago—the eight American Military Cemeteries overseas. These cemeteries, the final resting places of more than thirty thousand of those who followed Pershing overseas, are now handsome, well kept, solemn fields of honor. At dawn the flag is raised over each of them. Each sunset it is lowered. In each the crosses stand in steady rows, white against a background of green sod, and a first budding of young trees gives promise of greater beauty as the years roll by. Here are the lasting records of the A. E. F.

Six of the American cemeteries are on the battlefields, on ground taken from the enemy by the power of American arms, on ground restored to France and to Belgium by our delivering sword. The other two are near the great cities of London and Paris. Here is the list of them and the number of those who lie therein:

Table with 3 columns: Official Name, Location Near, No. of Graves. Includes Flanders Field, Somme Cemetery, Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, etc.

More than half of our soldier dead overseas were brought home to the states for burial. Some of these rest in the home town cemeteries, others in the national cemetery at Arlington, on the Potomac. While it was the almost universal hope of members of the A. E. F. that the glorious dead should rest in the fields on which they fought and fell, relatives at home did not share that hope, and did not at the time visualize the eight fine permanent cemeteries in Europe, nor foresee that our government would spend millions of dollars to make and keep these fields of honor in perpetual and sacred memory of those whose resting place they are.

Remain Undisturbed. Of the dead not brought back to America, those which were in 1919 already resting at Suresnes or Brookwood, or at the sites selected for the battlefield cemeteries, remained undisturbed. The others, from scattering, temporary battlefield cemeteries, were reverently moved to their permanent resting places. This task, carefully and thoroughly performed by the Graves Registration Service of the army, resulted in an almost complete identification of our soldier dead.

The cemeteries remain in charge of the Graves Registration Service, which maintains rest houses at each, has caretakers in charge, keeps complete records for the use of visitors and maintains the grounds, landscape gardening and improvements. Further beautifying of the cemeteries has been placed in charge of the American Battle Monuments Commission, a body created by Congress to take charge of the whole plan and problem of American memorials in Europe.

This monument question is no simple one, as anyone who ever visited the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, will bear witness. States, cities, divisions, brigades, companies, and private citizens, not to mention memorial associations and societies, are all vying for the privilege of placing a monument at this point, a memorial to that. The government commission must decide where there shall be monuments and who shall raise them. In a similar way the cemeteries have offered a problem. Should individuals be allowed to place special headstones on monuments for their loved ones? Shall churches or societies be allowed to erect chapels at the cemeteries? And so forth.

The chairman of the Battle Monuments Commission is General John J. Pershing. Its membership, appointed by President Coolidge and serving without salary, includes Robert G. Woodside, of Pittsburgh, Vice-Chairman, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, Congressman John Philip Hill, Congressman Finis J. Garrett, Col. D. John Markey, of Maryland, and Mrs. Frederic W. Bently, Major X. H. Price, a regular army officer on duty at Washington, is secretary.

After careful studies, this Commission outlined a complete plan for official battle monuments in the zones occupied by American forces in offensive operations, and a corresponding plan for the improvement of the American cemeteries. Thus there is now in force, and taking effect by gradual steps of construction, a genuine, thorough, basely-sound plan for the permanent marking of the American battlefields, and the continuing beautification of the cemeteries.

The most expensive phase of the cemetery work to be done is the erection of chapels. These will be suitable for sacred purposes, but non-sectarian. The larger ones will probably have a room that will be something of a museum of battle relics, as well as the chapel room. Another matter now well in hand is completing masonry walls around the cemeteries, a work only delayed in places while waiting for the determination of definite plans for the chapels, as these in many cemeteries will have an effect on the location of the walls.

Insofar as personal monuments in the cemeteries are concerned, the Commission adopted an iron clad, final rule that there will be no special personal monuments. Over each grave will be a headstone, and these will be the same for officers and privates, rich and poor, young and old. The name, rank, organization and home state will be engraved on each stone. And they will lie side by side, as they fell, equal in glory as in sacrifice.

Plans Are Tack. The plans for the battle monuments are another and even larger task of the commission. They are well under way, and form a project which should be completed in about two years.

The first of the American cemeteries to be so designated, and to receive American dead, was that hillside tract on Mont Valerien, overlooking Paris and the Seine valley, and called Suresnes. Everyone from America goes to Suresnes, both in tribute to our honored dead, and because there is no finer view of the city of Paris from any nearby hilltop. Suresnes is three miles from the city limits, on the right of the Seine below the city. The cemetery stands well up on the highest of several hills, and from its gates the panorama is uninterrupted for many miles.

At Suresnes are buried many who died in Paris hospitals from wounds sustained in battle, and others who fell victims of disease and accidents. It is most complete of all the American cemeteries in France, insofar as time has completed it by growing the trees larger, the shrubbery thicker and finer. Suresnes already belongs to the ages, a fit resting place for heroes, far up above the towers of Notre Dame and the Arc de Triomphe, commanding forever what is perhaps the loveliest of the famous valleys of the world.

Services at Suresnes. At Suresnes, because of its proximity to Paris, the American Ambassador speaks at the services each Memorial Day. Many other noted Americans have here paid their tribute to the silent ranks, the most noteworthy being President Wilson, who dedicated this cemetery in 1919.

Presidents and premiers of France have spoken here, and the whole American colony of Paris pays tribute here each thirtieth of May. While it thus receives perhaps the most public attention of any American cemetery in France, Suresnes is not, after all, located on a field of battle. Those who rest there did not fall there, although many of them are battle casualties. But Americans, save those whose own kin and kin lie in some special cemetery, will want to visit Suresnes, and also one or more of the battlefield burial grounds.

Close to another great city, London, is another American Military Cemetery, that of Brookwood. It lies twenty-eight miles southwest of the city, easily reached by hourly train service. Here lie 437 men of the American forces who died in England or adjacent waters during the World War.

Brookwood Old. Brookwood Cemetery is many years old. The American section, set aside entirely for our troops, adjoins a new British section reserved for soldiers of the World War. The cemetery is a beauty spot, carefully cared for through generations. The American section lies on level ground, but leading toward a lovely, grass-covered slope. An American chapel will be built in this section under plans approved by the Battle Monuments Commission.

Some of those now resting at Brookwood lost their lives in submarine sinkings of transports bearing American troops. Their remains were gathered from scattering-points on the Scotch coast where they came ashore. Others lie here who died in training camps in England, or in hospitals there.

The cemetery at Clivedon, Lord Astor's estate, once gave temporary shelter to the remains of several Yanks. Only two now rest there, the others have been brought home or moved to Brookwood.

England Takes Pains. England, like the United States, has been at great pains in caring for the graves of her honored dead. Evidence of this will be seen at Brookwood, where the British military cemetery adjoins ours. Later in France we will see the fine care given by our other allies to the resting places of their dead.

Suresnes and Brookwood are as handsome cemeteries as will be found anywhere, in any land. Both have lost the semblance of newness. They are calm, settled, complete in aspect, restful and reposed. Our battlefield cemeteries may lack a little of this completeness, but they are growing older and more settled looking each year. And all of them will have the perpetual guardianship of Uncle Sam.

CHAPTER XLIV "Not going in this morning?" Stone said, after Pelton, who was with her, had made introductions.

"Not until later," Carmelita Valdon told him. "About noon, I think, today."

"Then you've no time for a chair ride with me. Do take pity on my loneliness and come for a ride. The chairs fascinate me and I hate to go alone."

It was not the habit of Carmelita Valdon to turn down anything in the shape of attention from any presentable man. And Fleming Stone was decidedly presentable.

So Carmelita smiled on him and declared she'd love to go.

"See you when I come back, Dan," she said gaily to Pelton, who watched the pair depart, uncertain whether he wanted Stone to interview her or not.

"Be good to her," he called out, as a warning to the detective, who answered with a smile and a nod, and then glanced at Carmelita.

"I fancy everybody is good to you," he said in his gentle voice, so full of subtle flattery and yet impersonal, too.

"Yes," she said slowly, "everybody but Fate."

"And Fate is cruel?"

"They were slowly rolling along the boardwalk, the sun not yet high enough to be unpleasantly warm, the sea breeze coming in crisp and cool and the stolid, half-awake negro pushing them utterly oblivious, if indeed he could hear their conversation."

"Yes, Mr. Stone," and Carmelita turned a grave countenance to his own. "Fate is nearly always cruel to a woman."

"Oh, what a sweeping assertion! And what an untrue one! Surely you don't mean that— you, with the world at your feet—with all the gifts nature can bestow—"

"Never mind that sort of talk. And it is we who have—as you say—nature's gifts, looks, charm, power, all the feminine arts, who oftentimes get cruel blows from Fate, that are none the less terrible because unknown to the world at large."

Without appearing to do so, Stone scrutinized her keenly. Either this woman was all Miss Folsom had painted her, and she was deliberately setting out to fascinate him, or Pelton was right and she was troubled, but not by reason of a guilty conscience regarding Folsom's murder.

"I think, Mrs. Valdon," he said gently, "it would be better if we talked plainly. You know, I dare say, that I am down here to investigate the death of Garrett Folsom. There are reasons why I should ask you some questions and I have chosen this way to do it, thinking it would be the least annoying to you."

Carmelita thanked him with one of her best smiles.

"You are good," she said, with a ring of sincerity in her tone. "Let us talk plainly then. In the first place, I did not kill Mr. Folsom."

"But you are glad he is dead," Stone said quietly.

"She gave him a startled glance. "I hate to put it so badly," she said, as if thinking this over, "but, well, I am not really sorry. Or, to come nearer the truth, I'm glad only for one reason. Otherwise I wish the man were still alive."

"You're glad he's dead because that gave you opportunity to retrieve your letters which he held."

"You must have been told that," she said, looking straight at him, "and nobody could have told you but Dan Pelton. Yes, I did get my letters back, and I never could have done that so long as Garrett Folsom was alive."

"And so you are suspected, in some quarters, of having killed him in order to accomplish that end."

"Some quarters, meaning his sister I suppose. Does any one else suspect me, Mr. Stone?"

"That I don't know. But it would not be out of the question for Miss Folsom to spread such a suspicion."

"I know it wouldn't. She hates me. I wonder why?"

"Partly because you two are so diametrically opposed in character and type and partly because she really thinks you killed her brother."

"My dear Mr. Stone, I couldn't kill anybody. I really couldn't. Miss Folsom might; she's the killer sort. But I'm not."

"That's no argument, Mrs. Valdon. To kill a man one doesn't have to perform the actual deed oneself."

"Fleming Stone had dropped his charming manner, and now he spoke with the steely, hard voice that had so often struck terror to the heart of a wrongdoer.

"Oh!" Carmelita gave a little gasp. "You mean—"

"That some one else could have done it—at your bidding. Who was the man with the white mustache?"

At once Stone saw he had drawn blank.

Purposely, he had sprung this question suddenly, feeling sure he could tell by her reaction whether she knew of the man or not.

Clearly she did not. For her uncomprehending look and her untripped voice were so indubitably sincere that the detective was forced to believe her.

"The man with the white mustache? I've not the slightest idea. But he most certainly was no agent of mine! And I tell you, Mr. Stone, I had no hand in Garrett Folsom's death. Either directly or indirectly."

"But as soon as he was dead, you hastened to get your letters?"

"I did indeed! And a hard time I had of it! I subsidized servants; I begged keys from friends; I tried every way I could think of—and I finally got them. Now they are burned up, and if the police accuse me of murder because of it they will have to prove it. But they can't get the letters!"

Her smile of triumph went further toward convincing Stone of her innocence regarding the murder than any assurances could have done. To his mind it was clear that she was so anxious to get her letters and so relieved at having got them that the thought of a more serious accusation had not yet sunk very deeply into her mind. And this, of course, for the reason that she had no guilty knowledge of the crime itself.

"The letters were so very important then?" he asked casually.

"Important to me because of your disclosure of some facts in my past life which I wish kept secret. Facts which would be of small interest to the general public but which were of enough importance to give Garrett Folsom hold-over me that he never let me forget. Now they are destroyed, and my soul is at peace."

She was silent a moment and then turned to him, with a really lovely smile, and said, "My soul couldn't be at peace if I had killed him, could it?"

"No, Mrs. Valdon," Stone said, giving her a keen look. "I think it could not. I'm not prepared to say I can tell a criminal by looking at one, but I will say that I think I can tell by talking to one. And my judgment, my experience and my instinct all shout to me your innocence in the matter of Folsom's death. Now the question of those letters need never be ever mentioned, if we can find out who did kill Folsom. That's all his sister wants; that's all the police want; that's all I want—to learn the identity of the murderer. No one has any justifiable concern with your letters or their import if you are not connected with the crime."

"What are you leading up to?" she asked gravely.

"Just this. You know—probably from some evidence you ran across while getting your own letters—you know something you have not yet told. I want you to tell it to me."

(To Be Continued)

Does Carmelita Valdon, whom Stone believes innocent, hold the key to the Folsom mystery? Don't miss the remaining chapters.

IN NEW YORK

New York.—The old rafters of the Metropolitan Opera stage are musty with past romances. There is the tale, for instance, of Paul Althouse, for ten years a leading tenor, and Caruso's costume. Althouse has it to this day, and it is an heirloom of no small sentimental value.

Shortly after Althouse had made his debut he was called upon to play a double bill with Caruso, the younger man as Turrida in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Caruso in "Pagliacci."

Althouse appeared back stage in a costume that flashed his newness and blatant colors. Caruso, his artistic sensibilities stirred, demanded that it be taken off at once.

"You cannot go on stage with that terrible outfit, my boy," cried the great tenor. "It's terrible, you cannot."

"What shall I do?" asked the trembling Althouse. "I have no other. And the curtain rises in a few moments."

"No, no!" Caruso stormed, waving to Pasquale Amato, the baritone, who stood nearby. Each grabbed a leg of the costume, while an attendant rushed to Caruso's private wardrobe, returning with a great array of costumes.

"You shall wear this tonight. And then you may have it as a souvenir," commented Caruso with a slap on the back.

And a priceless heirloom it is today.

Speaking of music, an amusing story is related by Ernest Schilling, New York and Boston bass, and with much success.

It is the habit of this conductor to go among the children after the concert and talk to them about the great composers and their work.

One day he was telling them about Haydn and after he finished, he asked:

"Now, children, I want you to tell me what you think of in connection with Haydn?"

"That's easy," came an small male voice. "I think of hide an' go seek."

Broadway is just a bit worried about its theater problem. Not the naughty plays so much as the empty houses. More and more the theater has been degenerating into a real estate game, with not enough products to fill. The percentage of empty houses during the fast passing season has been stop and ponder. And with less shipping in and more shows closing, there will probably be an unprecedented area of darkness.

Which means, of course, an increase in the already large list of unemployed actors. A precarious game the acting has been this year. Agencies daily face crowded corridors and office lines. Invariably there is the shake of the head and the shuffling away of another heavy-hearted one.

Not a pleasant report to send forth into a country where, no doubt, a considerable percentage of the young population dreams of a stage career. But a scene to ponder on if the urge is too strong to resist.

BECAUSE OF YOU

When the day is over, When the night is near, What remains to heal the pains, What to still the fear? Only this will answer, Only this will do— Just the thought you something wrought For someone else than you.

When the labor's ended, When the day is done, When you come returning home As westward sinks the sun, Something else must soothe you Than the thought of hire, Something fine, some thought divine, Though the limbs may tire.

If today you fashioned Something for mankind, Coat to warm, a roof from storm, Food to feed the mind, Only this will answer, Only this will do— That the earth has more of worth Tonight, because of you.

THEY LIED TO WIN A FORTUNE

Only One of Three Girls Tells Truth; Unhappiness Follows.

Q. Curtis, millionaire department store owner, tried a strange experiment in philanthropy and conducted a contest among his employees to find the three girls whose ambitions seemed most worthy of furthering.

Those three—Billy Wells, Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton—went to his home to live for a year. His money was at their disposal to help them follow their chosen careers.

Of the three, only Billy Wells had told the truth about her ambition. The other two lied, not knowing what the prize was to be. When the girls learned that one of them was to inherit the millionaire's fortune, the home of T. Q. Curtis immediately became a place of jealousy and intrigue.

Curtis learned, too late, that money cannot buy everything. Before his experiment was over, he had nearly wrecked the lives of the girls and destroyed the happiness of the other.

This is the strangest story that is unfolded in "Daughters of Midas," Anne Austin's latest serial. Be sure to read every chapter. It starts Sunday, March 20, in The Press.

"Daughters of Midas" is a thrilling story of the girl of today, written by the author of "Saint and Sinner," now running daily in The Press.

Arm Crushed When He Falls Beneath Box Car's Wheels

John Britz, 41, of Lathrop, suffered injuries to his right arm necessitating its amputation, when he fell beneath the cars while attempting to board freight train No. 41, backing out of a North-Western siding at Lathrop yesterday afternoon at 1:25 o'clock.

Britz grabbed for the railing of the caboose, which was moving slowly, and missed his hold, falling beneath the truck of the next car. Although Charles Lantz, brakeman, immediately noticed the mishap and signalled the engineer, the wheels had crushed Britz's right arm, which was flung across the track when he fell.

The injured man was taken to the Gwinn hospital where his arm was amputated at the shoulder.

The freight train operates between Escanaba and Ishpeming, and was backing onto the main line, preparatory to resuming the trip to Ishpeming, when the accident occurred.

Four hundred and forty certificates of automobile registrations and licenses to drive were revoked or suspended during a period of two weeks by Charles A. Harnett, New York commissioner of motor vehicles.

THE TINYMITES

Story by Hal Cochran—Pictures by Knick

(READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURES)

The Tinymites then left Boy Blue, since he had nothing more to do. His sheep and cows were safe and sound, so he went back to sleep. Before he closed his eyes he said, "Just take that roadway straight ahead and when you reach the end of it, just climb the hillside steep."

"What will we find when we get there?" asked Clowny. Then he showed despair, "cause wee Boy Blue had closed his eyes and gone to slumberland. "Oh, well," he added, after while, "I guess that's just Boy Blue's queer style, but how he sleeps so very sound, I cannot understand."

"Oh, what do we care," Coppy said. "He's tired of us, let's go ahead and climb the hill he told us to. Perhaps a thrill's in store. There's still are folks we have not met in this queer land, and say, I'll bet that someone lives atop that hill. That's what he told us for."

So, off they went, a happy crowd, and feeling really rather proud to think that they could travel round to any place they liked. Though tired, they simply didn't mind as long as there were things to find. Nobody stopped to figure up how many miles they'd hiked.

The hill was very long and steep and Clowny found it hard to keep up with the rest, "cause he would stop to catch a breath or two. But, in about an hour or less, they reached the end of their distress, and perched upon the hilltop, all a-wondering what to do.

"Oh, look," said Scouty, "bet I know who that fair girl is, with the hoe. It's Mary, Mary. Quite Contrary, in her garden patch." Then Mary motioned to the band and shouted, "Come and lend a hand, and help me cart my garden stuff. There's really quite a batch."

PASSION PLAY TO BE GIVEN

"The Upper Room" Inspiring Dream of Christ's Life.

"The Upper Room" a religious play, will be presented in St. Joseph's auditorium Sunday afternoon and evening, March 20, and Monday evening, March 21, under auspices of St. Anne's branch of the Holy Name society. The play will be produced by local talent, members of St. Anne's parish.

"The Upper Room," a Lenten production from the pen of Robert Benson, is a beautiful drama of the passion of Christ. The drama portrays the last supper, the road to Mount Calvary, the crucifixion, the scenes at the foot of the cross, etc.

Many moving picture films and short-reel views have been shown on this subject, but the drama as portrayed by local talent will be far more interesting and inspiring.

The scene laid in the upper room of the inn shows the Lord seated at the last supper, with the Apostles John and Peter, Judas the traitor, and Samuël, son of the landlord, Achaz, which will be played by Miss Janette Moreau, Mary Magdalene will be played by Mrs. Thomas St. Jacques, and Mary, the Mother of Jesus, will be portrayed by Miss Mildred Delorier.

Others taking part are Joseph Lequia, G. H. Benson, Gust Trotter, Victor Moreau, Wilfrid Dupont, Pat Newitt, Alice Newitt, Joseph Delorier. The singing aids in giving a stirring appeal to the audience. Rev. Fr. Thomas Drenagac is directing the cast.

Tickets are on sale and it is expected that a large crowd will attend each performance.

Harold Lloyd's Latest Riot, "The Kid Brother" Coming to Delft Monday

TODAY'S PROGRAMS.

AT THE DELFT—Marie Prevost in a new comedy drama, "Man Bait." The cast also includes Kenneth Thompson and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

AT THE STRAND—Richard Talmadge in a speedy "action" melodrama, "Doubling With Danger."

Harold Lloyd will be surrounded by his usual capable complement of supporting players in his second Paramount release, "The Kid Brother," which comes to the Delft Theatre Monday for a three-day showing.

Again heading his support will be Jobyna Ralston, who probably terminates her career as Lloyd's leading lady with this production, after appearing in all his pictures for the last three years. Miss Ralston will be introduced as the girl with the medicine show which offers a concentrated source of laughter and drama in "The Kid Brother." This is one of Jobyna's most fetching roles, and should win her many new admirers.

Appearing as Harold's father is Walter James, who for years appeared on the legitimate stage and soon after entering motion pictures, played Mary Pickford's father in "Little Annie Rooney."

Olin Francis and Leo Willis, portraying Lloyd's oldest brothers, have been featured in numerous pictures. Francis' most recent work was as the second mate with John Barrymore in "The Sea Beast." Willis played in many of Bill Hart's pictures, and is a familiar figure in Hal Roach comedies.

Ralph Yearsley, the bully, will never be forgotten for performances in "Tobias David," "Wild Oranges," and a number of other offerings.

Constantine Romanoff, who gives a splendid performance as the medicine show's strong man, took to the part naturally, for he is one of America's foremost wrestlers and a championship contender.

Eddie Boland, ballyhoo artist with the same show, gives a winning portrayal. Nothing new for Eddie, as he traveled for several years with a medicine show in the same capacity he delineates on the screen. Boland has been featured in comedies, and in former days did a number of pictures with Lloyd.

Strand Monday-Tuesday. "Dynamite Dan," Kenneth McDonald's newest contribution to the screen is said to be a sensation in more respects than one. Besides giving the famous stunt man his first opportunity to show his marvelous stilt ability, the picture boasts of the largest coterie of motion picture beauties ever assembled in one picture. In the beauty contest conducted by the Los Angeles Examiner in which over five thousand aspirants were entered, twenty-five girls were judged perfect types.

The Sunset Production Company immediately signed them all to support McDonald in "Dynamite Dan." The local fans will be greatly interested in seeing this vast array of queenly beauties.

Others in the cast are, Jack Richardson, Diana Aiden, Boris Karloff, Jack Waltemeyer and Eddie Harris.

The picture will be shown at the Strand Monday and Tuesday.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Steering is never tiring —when you drive a Nash

A cheerful willingness to answer your hand on the wheel is one of the very first things you notice, when you drive a Nash.

In many ways, Nash has provided for the ease and comfort of the arms that steer the car. In getting into or out of a tight place at the curb you will particularly notice the slight effort needed.

When you turn a corner, you'll welcome the shorter wind-up of the steering wheel.

In an emergency, this short turn of the wheel means quick responsiveness—and an accident averted. Nash steering is easier—faster—less tiring on the arms and wrists—ininitely safer in dense traffic.

Nothing has been spared to build a more delightful car to drive. This steering mechanism is, beyond question, the most expensive type built today for cars in the Nash price field.

Like the steering, every detail in the car reflects the Nash determination to lead the world in motor car value.

Another instance of the outstanding excellence in Nash design is the 7-bearing motor—without a doubt the smoothest type in all the world.

DOUBT IF DEER ARE STARVING

Hulbert Stories Make Very Little Impression Here.

"Looks to me like somebody has some hay to sell," said E. C. Voght, former president of the Michigan Congress of Wild Life Clubs and a conservationist of long experience, said yesterday when he was shown reports that deer are again starving in the Hulbert district in Chippewa county. "That section," said Mr. Voght, "seems to be the only one in Michigan in which the deer go hungry. They feed them hay every year."

Mr. Voght's views were echoed by other Escanaba men who have had long experience in such matters. H. W. Agnow, of Hulbert, has painted a gloomy picture of conditions in the deer yard there, and in response to skeptical comments, he recalls that many Hulbert sportsmen agree with him. He estimates that at least 3,000 deer are on the verge of starvation and that many already have starved to death.

The Sault News says: "Agnow also affirmed that there are many wolves in the yard, sometimes packs of four or five are seen, and he cites incidents when wolves came to Paul's yard and to Taylor's and Dyer's camps."

"The yard area comprises about 50 square miles. During the past 12 years it has been largely cut over and most of the feed and cover destroyed. Deer that in the summer and fall roam from Sault Ste. Marie west into Luce county and from south of M-25 north to Lake Superior, winter in the Hulbert yard. From now on conditions will be repeated. Four years ago the loss was heavy, but nothing like the conditions here now. That spring a landlooker reported seeing 125 dead deer in one section. Another counted 11. That year Mr. Nelson

New Building Material to be Manufactured by "Universal Magnesite"

By negotiations closed last week, the Universal Magnesite Products company, of Escanaba, has leased from the National Building Units corporation, of Philadelphia, the patents for the manufacture of a building material that has stood exhaustive laboratory tests, as well as the test of a number of years in the nation-wide use. The Escanaba company has secured the exclusive right for the manufacture of "Cincrete" blocks in the entire upper peninsula of Michigan, and the work of remodeling the company's plant on Stephenson avenue, to accommodate the new industry, is already under way. New machinery used in the manufacture of blocks has already been ordered and it is confidently expected that the Escanaba plant will be turning out the new product within 60 days. To make possible the expansion of the business of the Universal Magnesite Products company and provide for the launching of the company's new department, a limited amount of the company's stock is being distributed to local purchasers.

Widely Adopted.

Cincrete blocks have enjoyed a wide and rapidly developing use throughout the east and the central west for the past several years and it is believed that its introduction to builders in the upper peninsula will meet with immediate success.

Cincrete has been employed in building operations since 1916, but its commercial history under modern conditions is of recent date.

"What is needed here is a competent man the year around who can and will travel the yard, who knows enough about deer to judge their condition. Mr. Nelson does not," Agnow concluded.

ern plant operation dates from the establishment of such a plant at Lancaster, Pa., in 1920. In 1925 the industry had grown to such an extent that there were, in that year, in active operation throughout the country, a total of seventy plants, having a total capacity of forty million units, equivalent to nearly five hundred million brick, and having an annual sales value of over $7,000,000.

To Meet Every Need.

Cincrete is manufactured in units of dimensions that meet every requirement of the building trade for use as outside walls, partition walls, floor slabs and lintels. It is made under formula, with exact proportions of Portland cement and a carefully crushed and graded aggregate of clean steam boiler clinders. The units are made into the various shapes and sizes required by the building industry, by the means of modern machinery, and are carefully cured and seasoned, permitting the units to meet every compression test required in various building codes throughout the country.

Has Many Features.

The outstanding features of Cincrete are its comparative lightness in weight, coupled with great strength; its insulating qualities, as regards heat and cold, due to its cellular nature; its extremely low capillary, as regards conduction of moisture or sweating, due again to its cellular construction; its extreme fire resistant and non-combustible qualities, due to the materials from which it is made; its adaptability to either plaster or interior walls or stucco on exterior walls, because of the direct key which its rough surface affords, together with its economy features, which involve great savings in labor, because of the rapidity with which it can be laid and the saving in material, because of the relatively small amount of plaster or stucco required to cover to a uniform surface, as compared to other building units.

Eliminates Lath.

The use of Cincrete blocks on interior walls and partitions completely eliminates the use of lath of any kind and one of its most unique and outstanding features is the fact that nails can be driven into it and will hold equally well as when driven into wood. A test conducted by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory proved conclusively that Cincrete had exactly similar nailing qualities as yellow pine, and with its use wood trim can be nailed directly to the blocks without the use of wood plugs or strips.

Cincrete has been proven in most exhaustive tests to be sound-proof and has been called one of the most perfect materials yet introduced for insulation against heat and cold.

Used in All Buildings. It is being widely used throughout the country in the construction of homes, schools, theatres, factories and every type of building. The Milwaukee Journal recently completed the construction of a model home, at Wauwatosa, that is built entirely of Cincrete, and the attention of home builders throughout the country is being attracted to this material. In the construction of a new million dollar theatre in Detroit, the entire interior of the theatre was given the appearance of marble block construction by the application of a single coat of paint to the bare Cincrete blocks.

Officials of the Universal Magnesite Products company, of Escanaba, are preparing to conduct an intensive campaign for the introduction of this new building material in every section of the upper peninsula.

- Announces - THE SEDAN FUNERAL CAR

Body by Miller—Chassis by Graham.

THE new Sedan Funeral Car received this week and to be operated by the Delta Taxi Co., is a true exponent of the modern trend in funeral vehicles. Aristocratic body lines are matched with an interior planned to the smallest detail.

In the rear compartment the deep blue upholstery and mahogany woodwork contrast beautifully with the nickel-plated hardware and serve to create a rich and dignified compartment in which to carry a handsome casket.

The casket table itself is equipped with long rollers at the extreme rear, thus facilitating the placing of the casket in the car. The curve at the rear of the funeral car has been carefully worked out and designed so that the pall-bearers can step up to the very edge of the casket table and do not have to lift the casket far forward after it has been raised to be placed in the hearse.

The flower tray is adjustable in height, being supported by two nickel bars which extend across casket compartment and can be tilted easily to the rear and flowers loaded or unloaded.

Not the slightest detail has been overlooked in this aristocrat of funeral cars.

The Delta Taxi Company invite inspection of their new Sedan Funeral Car. Arrangements for engagement can be made through any funeral director or by calling the Delta Taxi Co., Phone 1149.

Goodyear's New Balloon Tire for Fords and Chevrolets

Ever since Balloon Tires were introduced, Goodyear has been experimenting with tread designs to develop a tread which would match the Goodyear Balloon Carcass made of Supertwist Cord. Finally out of all of these tests has come the new tire shown above.

It is the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread scientifically redesigned for Balloon Tire use. The first big advantages of this new tread are traction and resistance to skidding.

The sharp-edged diamond-shaped blocks are placed in a semi-flat design so that they not only grip the road but they retain their usefulness longer than any non-skid tread ever before tried.

The second big advantage is long, slow, even tread wear as opposed to the "cupping" and uneven wear so noticeable in many other Balloon Tires.

And with these virtues of traction, non-skid and long wear, this new tread is perfectly quiet and does not produce the vibration of many non-skid designs.

Let us show you this new tire. Think what a wonderful tire it is for spring driving.

ST. ANNE'S TO HONOR JESUITS

Event to Commemorate Deeds of Early Missionaries to Indians.

Among the several feasts to be celebrated by St. Anne's parish within the week is March 16, the first veneration held in this region in honor of the Jesuit missionaries, Fathers Isaac Jogues, Jean de Brebeuf, Noel Chabanel, Anthony Daniel, Charles Garnier, Gabriel Lalonde, and the two laymen, Rene Goupil and John Lalande.

The names of these noble men hold an honored place in the heroic story that immortalizes the origin of our country. The history of their achievements is no myth nor legend, but an account of incomparable devotion with which, they, all men of exquisite culture and refinement, labored among human beings who had fallen from man's high estate into the depths of barbarism. They were animated by the highest motives, namely love of God and human souls, and they crimsoned with their blood the soil of North America, the field of their labor.

In 1625 the Jesuits arrived in Canada, and toiled most zealously among the barbarous Indians, endeavoring to convert them into Christianity. In 1629 Quebec was taken by the English and the missionaries returned home. On the restoration of Canada to the French three years later, the Jesuits resumed their missionary activity.

Tortured by Mohawks, Father Jogues, the Apostle of the Iroquois, and his companion, Rene Goupil, were captured by the Mohawks and carried to New York where they were cruelly tortured. Goupil was tomahawked on September 25, 1636, for having made the Sign of the Cross, and taught it to some Indian children. During his captivity, Father Jogues baptized many and began to instruct them in the elements of Christianity. He was eventually ransomed by the Dutch governor and taken back to France. Everywhere in Europe he was honored for his sufferings. But once more his apostolic spirit prompted him to return to the savage tribes of the New World. With his companion, John Lalande, he went among the Mohawks. This tribe was suffering from an epidemic and the failure of their crops. They blamed both misfortunes on the missionary and declared that a box of pious articles which he carried, harbored a devil beneath its covers. On October 18, 1644, they invited him to a dinner. As he was entering the cabin door a tomahawk put an end to his life. On the following day Lalande met the same fate.

Fathers Brebeuf and Daniel attempted to convert the Hurons.

Just as Father Daniel had finished saying mass on July 4, 1648, in the Huron village of Teanastoye, called by the missionaries, St. Joseph, a band of Iroquois arrived. The father baptized those Mohawks whom he had been preparing for Christianity, and encouraged all with the words: "My brothers, today we shall be in Heaven." Pronouncing the Holy Name, he died, pierced through the breast. The savages threw his body into the flames.

Crowned With Success.

After years of toil and hardships of every kind, the labors of these missionaries were crowned with success, and almost the whole Huron nation embraced the faith. Later, Father Lalonde arrived to assist Father Brebeuf in conduction of a mission. Both were captured by an enemy tribe and tied to the stake. They were then frightfully tortured, their members torn bit by bit from their delicate bodies. At last, when the sun had risen on March 17, 1649, they closed their long martyrdom and rested in the Lord.

The martyrs of the tobacco nation, Fathers Charles Garnier and Noel Chabanel, labored side by side in the village of St. John the Baptist. Here Father Garnier, himself grievously wounded by the Iroquois, crawled to the side of a poor suffering Indian in order to assist him to die with. As he gave the last absolution, an Iroquois tomahawk clove his skull. The next day, December 8, 1649, Father Chabanel received his death blow from the axe of an apostate. Thus closed the crimson record of the first half of the seventeenth century in the north.

"These brave missionaries, in venturing their all in behalf of the spiritual and physical welfare of the savages in America, deserve something of the nation as well as

GAS, LIGHTING PLANTS GROW

Large Increases Shown Last Year; Water Use Falls Off.

The Escanaba municipal water plant pumped 494,456,000 gallons of water in 1926 as compared with 509,728,000 gallons the previous year, according to figures made public yesterday by City Manager T. F. Kessler. The city manager is now at work on his annual budget which will be submitted to the council in April. These figures will be set up in his annual report. In spite of the fact that the plant handled 16,000,000 gallons less, the drop in revenue was not large, $65,783.64 in 1926 as compared with $67,079.60 the preceding year. The cost of pumping was reduced from .058 per thousand gallons in 1925 to .0735 per thousand gallons in 1926, Mr. Kessler's figures show.

While wet weather was reducing the water consumption, there was a substantial increase in the quantity of gas used. The municipal gas plant manufactured 51,105,000 cubic feet last year as compared with 48,800,000 in 1925. Revenue from the sale of gas increased from $70,658.39 in 1925 to $73,724.95 last year. The cost of production of the gas, due to the increased cost of raw materials, increased slightly during the year.

The electric plant purchased 3,346,860 KWH during 1926 as compared with 3,290,070 KWH in 1925. Revenue from the electric plant increased from $132,205.39 in 1925 to $152,324.46 last year.

The novena in honor of St. Therese which is going on at St. Patrick's church has surpassed the expectations of the pastor. Each morning at the two masses scores receive Holy Communion, and venerate the relic, which has now been placed in a new gold reliquary, received recently.

The number of persons who go to church in the afternoons for private devotions is very large. The number of communicants for the first two days of the novena was over 600 and each day the number increases.

This evening at 7:30, Rev. Fr. R. Bergeron will preach on the fourth commandment, "Honor Thy Father and Mother," a sermon especially adapted to the youth of the present day and age. After the sermon there will be benediction with the blessed sacrament. A cordial invitation is extended and a hearty welcome awaits all who attend.

Washington, Mar. 12—(P)—Walter Cochran, 30-year-old Hollywood, Cal., real estate dealer, won the world's championship 18.5 ball-line billiard tournament tonight, defeating Jake Schaefer of Chicago, 400 to 180.

Although he had been a threat in several tournaments, Cochran never before had won the championship. His victory tonight gave him a final standing of five victories and one defeat, that at the hands of Willis Hoppe of New York, champion.

Previous to their match tonight, Cochran and Schaefer, twice champion, were tied for first place. Defeat by the Californian gave the Chicago expert, whose father in his day was without a peer as a billiard player, a final rating of four wins and two defeats.

One of Schaefer's setbacks was administered by Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, who in matches won and lost, was tied with him for second place.

With a fifty-fifty standing of three wins and three lost matches, were Edouard Horemans of Belgium and Felix Grange of France, while below them and topping only Kinsey Mastuyama of Japan, who lost all his six matches, was Hoppe, winner of the world championship nearly a score of times. In the tournament, ended tonight, the New York wizard made a poor showing, winning only two matches, one of them from Cochran while he lost four.

For real elimination, why doesn't Mr. Rickard bring over one of the fillbustering senators and let him turn loose his vocal jabs?

Give Princeton credit for one thing. . . . It made Harvard schedule some football teams for next fall.

They're charging now that hockey games in New York were "sloughed." . . . Maybe the players only let the game slide.

A New York senator demands that the leather pushers give their right names. . . . But suppose they don't know how to spell them, senator?

CONTRACT WARS GRIP LEAGUERS

"Holdout League" Has Already Dug Into Club Treasuries.

New York, Mar. 12—(P)—The major league training grind came to the end of its third week in a drumfire of contract wars which already have ploried the fortifications of at least a half dozen club treasuries.

Two New York clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds appear the most seriously involved in fighting off the assaults of the "holdout league." Of this quartet, the Yankees seem likely to suffer the most damages. Two of their stars, Herb Pennock, crack southpaw, and Outfielder Bob Meusel are battling for big pay increases. Each is said to demand a $20,000 salary.

Urban Shocker, veteran, right-hand pitcher, who was holding out for the same figure, today finally signed. Shocker had packed his grip at St. Petersburg, Fla., and was ready to return home when the club finally came to his terms, according to the pitcher's announcement.

Salary jumps already have been conceded many of his regulars by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner. Babe Ruth extracted a $210,000 contract for the next three years after asking $100,000 for the 1927 campaign. Outfielder Earl Combs was next to fall in line after a long pen and ink duel, while Tony Lazzeri, Mark Koenig and Joe Dugan also were listed in the holdout brigade for a time.

Critics consider as even more serious the salary differences of Eddie Roush with the Giants. The former Red outfielder, obtained in a deal which sent George Kelly to Cincinnati, is a perennial holdout, but this year his fight appears more serious than usual, for baseball men bear he is demanding $30,000 and a three-year contract. President Stoneham's original offer to Roush was $19,000 on a three-year basis, which was the figure Eddie demanded from the Reds.

Tommy Thevenou, brilliant shortstop of the Cardinals, demands considerably more than the $5,000 he received a year ago and refuses

Griffith Drops 5 Players From Club

Tampa, Fla., Mar. 12—(P)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, tonight announced release of five players. Johnny Dobbs, manager of the Birmingham Southern association club, obtained four of the members.

Clarence Thomas, southpaw

McNamara, "Iron Man" of Six-Day Bike Race, Wins

New York, Mar. 12—(P)—Reggie McNamara, "iron man" of six-day bike racing, and his Italian partner, Franco Georgetti, tonight won the forty-second annual grind in Madison Square Garden. The championship team repeated their victory of a year ago with a three lap margin over Otto Fritl, and Tony Beckman, German-American entry, and Bobby Walthour and Freddie Spencer, American team, when New York's semi-annual sleepless week closed at 11 p. m.

Scenario Writer Is Known in This City

"Upstage" feature picture for tonight at the Gero theater, has an added interest for Manistique folks, outside of the absorbing theme of the story, in that the scenario was prepared by Lorna Moon, former wife of Walter Moon of Manistique. This production, starring Norma Shearer, is Mrs. Moon's first work under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer banner. Previous successes to her credit are: "Don't Tell Everything," "Too Much Wife," and "Her Husband's Trademark," starring Gloria Swanson and Wally Reid. These were written for Famous Players-Lasky, with whom Mrs. Moon became connected in 1920.

"Upstage" is a story of vaudeville life, laid behind the scenes in a vaudeville theater, and the vaudevillians furnished the cast of "trouper" for the production. In the scene showing "rehearsal morning" in the vaudeville theater, several of the lion tamer, dancers and others got their act ready while Miss Shearer, as a vaudeville newcomer, practiced steps with Oscar Shaw, himself a vaudeville celebrity, who played the leading man.

The cast of players includes Oscar Shaw in the leading male role, Dorothy Phillips, Ward Crane, T. Holtz, Wren Lee and others of note. Monta Bell directed the new production.

Total stock sales 1,034,700 shares.

New York, Mar. 12.—(AP)—Extensive week-end readjustment of speculative accounts imparted irregularity to the price movement in today's stock market. Trading was fairly heavy for a half-holiday session, with major speculative operations again on the upside.

Easy money coupled with reports of improving business, appears to be the foundation on which the "bull" movement is based. Further proof of the ease of the money situation was seen in the weekly clearing house statement showing excess reserves in excess of $60,000,000, the largest in over a year on the eve of the federal income tax payment date. Reports that the proposed strike of soft coal miners in the Pennsylvania fields on April 1 would be averted and the denial of Ford price cuts also helped to maintain bullish sentiment.

Rails again were the leaders. Heavy profit-taking in such issues as Atchison, Norfolk and Western and Gulf, Mobile & Northern, all of which closed 1 to 3 1/2 points lower, resulted in the development of new leaders such as Union Pacific, Western Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern, all of which closed 1 to nearly 5 points higher. Some of the selling in Atchison may have been inspired by President Hoover's denial that a stock dividend was in contemplation or that the road was committed to a higher dividend policy on the present stock.

Norfolk & Southern, which was bid up in spectacular fashion yesterday, moved up nearly 4 points to another new record high at 6 1/2 today but later lost all its gain. Unconfirmed reports of a possible compromise in the eastern railroad consolidation controversy attracted widespread attention.

Furries of selling swept through the market, but offerings generally were well absorbed. Oils also were subjected to pressure as a result of the extension of recent crude oil price cuts and another cut in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, effective Monday.

SAINT and SINNER

Churchill beamed as he stood aside to allow the two sisters to greet each other. When Faith had kissed Cherry twice, her arms holding the little figure tight against her breast, the lawyer thrust out a hand to his lovely little client.

"Well, well, Miss Cherry, you're looking a perfect picture! If all my clients were as pretty as you are, I'd never lose a case."

At the press tables, pencils raced over pads of yellow paper. Two artists sketched furiously.

Jim Lazo, humble, darkly flushed with shame at his conspicuous, stumbled toward his daughter, mumbled something beneath his breath, then, drawing a trembling hand across his eyes, he sank back into his chair. Cherry fluttered to her seat between her father and Faith.

What she said to Faith was characteristic: "Do I look all right, honey? Gee, I'm scared stiff, but nobody could tell it, could they? Isn't Churchill the old hypocrite? I had an awful fight with him last night because I told him I simply wouldn't, under any circumstances, no matter how the trial goes against me, let him try to slip in a self-defense plea. Thanks for these stockings, darling. Aren't the little leather slippers cute? The shoe store sent over the nicest salesman you ever saw. Tried to flirt with me, the devil! Oh, by the way, I got four proposals of marriage yesterday. Churchill wants me to give the letters to the papers, but I won't do it. Isn't he a nut on publicity? He'll simply die if they don't run his picture and sketches of him every day. Oh, that good-looking artist is sketching me now. I hope he doesn't make my nose any more pug than it is—"

Faith listened with a slight smile on her lips, alighting in a word now and then, but her eyes were fixed on the door through which Cherry had come. What was keeping Chris Wiley, Cherry's co-defendant?

"Where is Chris, Cherry?" Faith asked at last, in a whisper. "Oh, hadn't you heard?"

Cherry's eyes narrowed and her voice grew cold. "He is sick, or so Churchill says. Chris' own special lawyer, Mr. Penny, is going to ask for a separate trial for Chris, because Churchill won't agree to have my trial adjourned. He feels that he has sympathy for me up to fever heat now, and he doesn't want it to cool during a long adjournment."

"But what is the matter with Chris? The papers haven't mentioned his illness," Faith protested, genuine concern in her voice. "He was stricken with mastitis in the middle of the night, and was rushed to the hospital," Cherry answered carelessly. "He's being operated on this morning."

"After all, Cherry darling, Faith reminded her gently, "he's your husband. Don't you care—at all!"

"I'm sorry he's sick," Cherry answered briefly, but her golden eyes held no pity.

Further conversation between them was interrupted by the court crier announcing the approach of the judge. The chatter of voices, the rustle of papers, was stilled instantly, to be succeeded by the scraping sound of hundreds of feet as every person in the courtroom rose to pay honor to the majesty of the law, in the person of stern-faced, tight-lipped old Judge Grimshaw, whose tall, heavy body was draped in the black folds of the traditional judge's robes.

The court crier changed with the fervor of a religious devotee the age-old formula, that fearful, spell-weaving "eyes, eyes," which is the prelude to every grim drama at which the blind goddess presides.

TOMORROW: While jurors are being chosen, public sympathy veers sharply toward Chris Wiley, lying critically ill in a hospital.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Mar. 12.—Export sales here and at the Gulf of Mexico brought about a late upward in wheat values today, barely overcoming earlier declines. Wheat finished irregular, 3-5c net lower to 1/2c at 3-5c advance, corn 1-6c at 1/2c to 3/4c up, oats at 1/2c to 3/4c gain and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of five cents.

About sixty thousand bushels of No. 2 hard wheat all shipment from Chicago to the seaboard was included in today's export business. Other factors which helped to rally the Chicago market near the end of the day were a little increase in commission house buying of foreign deliveries.

Most of the time today, however, the wheat market showed a downward trend with May reaching a new low level for the present movement. Heavy snows and rain in the southwest and west, especially in northern Kansas and western Nebraska had a bearish influence.

Wheat and oats closed strong and at the best prices of the day. Stormy weather and slacking of receipts of corn were chiefly responsible. There was talk of export business to oats.

Ishpeming Beats Stambaugh in U. P. Cage Finals

WISCONSIN WINS CONFERENCE INDOOR TRACK MEET

HEMATITE FIVE WINS, 25 TO 22

MacDougall Leads Team to Victory in Fast Contest.

Marquette, Mar. 12—(Special)—Ishpeming high school's basketball team won the championship of the upper peninsula here tonight when it defeated Stambaugh, 25 to 22, in one of the best and fastest games of the tenth annual tournament conducted by the Northern State Normal school.

Ishpeming, which copped the honors in Class B by defeating Marquette, 23 to 19, this afternoon, went into the last game on even terms with the Iron county crew which put Wakefield out of the running in Class C, 23 to 18.

Stambaugh jumped into a 9 to 4 lead in the first quarter, but MacDougall, four-year veteran of the Ishpeming team, found the hoop in the second period and put the Hematite five in the lead by one point, 15 to 14. MacDougall was the mainstay of his team, and, besides playing a great offensive game, with the help of Luoma, kept Anderson, Swanson and Maki, Stambaugh's offensive combination, to a much smaller score than they were able to run up against Wakefield.

Play Defensive Game.

The defensive work of the two teams held down the scoring in the third period. Ishpeming led after the three-quarter tie, 23 to 18, and played a stalling game in the final stanza. The champions scored five points in this quarter to Stambaugh's four.

Ishpeming will be the upper peninsula representative in the state Class B tournament in Detroit, while Stambaugh will be eligible to compete in the Class C tournament. The winner of the Gwin-Stephenson tilt wins the right to enter the Class D meet.

Last year, two upper peninsula teams, Newberry, in Class C, and Michigan, in Class D, won the state championship, but both were eliminated from participating in the regional tourney when they lost in the district cage meets last week.

Horse Racing Under Certificate Sales System Is Banned

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Mar. 12—(P)—Horse racing in Florida under the certificate selling system gave its last futile kick and expired at Pompano this afternoon. Deputy Sheriff Kendall announced to the crowd that the Broward county sheriff's office closed the gates with a large crowd from nearby resorts looking on.

Halted yesterday after running one race by the arrest of two officers of the Pompano Horse club and two horsemen, the spring meet rallied when County Judge Shippey acquitted the four.

Officers of the Horse club early today announced that races would be held and Gov. John W. Martin countered with a telegram to Sheriff Paul C. Bryan telling him to stop the gambling or he would be replaced with another sheriff.

Fifty-five minutes after last time for the first race, Deputy Sheriff Kendall announced to the crowd that the races had been cancelled.

Tennis Season Is Officially Opened by Erickson, Coan

Miss Sprng, 1927, whose return to the frozen northlands this year has topped "early" records without regard for age-old precedents, broke another record yesterday that is likely to stand the test of many years.

The tennis season was officially opened on the asphalt court when Matt Erickson and John Coan, juvenile tennis stars, clashed in the first set this year.

Matt and John were the first to discover how effectively Old Sol had worked on the snow banks of the court, and immediately following their discovery, they resurfaced their tennis rackets for the season's opening encounter.

Flanagan's Bull Pups, the Orioles, the Press Carriers, the Black Hawks and other younger teams will be urged to enter and any other team of similar age will be invited. C. M. Burns, manager of the E. F. U. Ramblers, announced yesterday that a silver loving cup, which will serve as a trophy until one team has won it two years in succession, will be hung up.

Any juvenile team which has played one or more games can enter, it was stipulated. The date now considered is March 26. Entries must be in the hands of Mr. Beaudin on or before March 23. High school letter men and reserves and players who participated in the senior league play, are ineligible.

Man 'O War Quietly Munches Oats; Not Interested in Race

Louisville, Mar. 12—(P)—Man 'O War, quietly munching his oats on a farm in the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, is little concerned with the approaching Kentucky Derby. Denied the opportunity of running this year in the race in which he established his record as a "wonder horse," he is seven times represented in the 53rd renewal of the classic to be run at Churchill Downs, Saturday, May 14.

Daily Press Tournament All-Star Team Selected

BY GEORGE ST. LOUIS.

The second annual amateur basketball tournament, conducted and sponsored by the Daily Press was concluded Friday night by a hectic struggle for supremacy which witnessed the triumph of the Ramblers over the Tynaslingers after an exhibition of basketball that would do credit to any cage team in the country.

The entire tournament was an overwhelmingly success from every angle. The actual participants merited in every case the support and encouragement they received from their cohorts and friends. The sportsmanship and general attitude of the spectators was of a high order. The teams were exceptionally well matched and play was for the most part, close, clean and hard fought. The officials are especially to be congratulated on the efficient manner in which they handled the games.

M'GINNIS TAKES 3 FIRST PLACES

Chicago, Mar. 12—(P)—The Cardinal of Wisconsin flashed to a surprising victory in the Western Conference indoor track and field championship tonight.

The Badgers, scoring in eight of the 10 events, chiefly through the brilliant performance of Charles McGinnis, winner of three first places, piled up a total of 28 points, with Ohio State second with 18. Iowa was third with 14 1/2.

Michigan was fourth in the tabled points with 12 and Illinois fifth with 11. Chicago was sixth with 9 1/2 and Northwestern seventh with 9. Minnesota pulled up in eight place with 6 points and Purdue ninth with 1. Indiana was the only conference team that failed to break into the scoring.

McGinnis is star.

McGinnis, Wisconsin's star, winner of the all-around championship in the Illinois carnival two weeks ago, individually counted for 16 of Wisconsin's 28 points. He also established a new Big Ten record in the running high jump, the only record broken in the meet.

McGinnis' achievement in winning in conference competition was equaled only by Carl Johnson, the former University of Michigan star, Johnson, in 1918 and 1919, scored triple triumphs in dash, hurdles and high jump.

The traditional rivals, Michigan and Ohio State, fought it out for honors in the 50-yard dash with Howard Kries of the Buckeyes springing a surprise by defeating the Wolverine fier, Hester, to the tape in a blanket finish in :05 5-10.

Kennedy Wins Easily.

Harold Kennedy of Ohio State, holder of the conference indoor record for the mile run, raced to an easy victory in this event tonight, breaking the tape eight yards ahead of Rue, of Illinois, in 4:30 1-5, much slower than his record of 4:22 2-5 set a year ago.

After capturing the pole vault with a leap of 12 ft., 10 in., McGinnis of Wisconsin registered his second victory of the meet when he won the 60-yard high hurdles in :07 6-10.

Iowa's hopes to score heavily in this event were blasted when after placing three of the six men in the finals, all three were disqualified for knocking down two or more hurdles.

Hunn Wins Two-Mile.

Hunn, Iowa, sprinted through the last lap to outdistance a field of 22 starters in the pushing two-mile run in the slow time of 9:44 2-10. John Zola of Wisconsin, who alternated with Hunn for the lead until the final lap, faded in the finish and was beaten by Hornberger of Michigan for second place.

The Summaries:

One-mile run: Won by Kennedy Ohio State; Rue, Illinois, second; Petaja, Wisconsin, third; Little, Purdue, fourth. Time 4:30 1-5.

Pole Vault: Won by McGinnis, Wisconsin (12 ft., 10 in.); White Illinois, Northrup, Michigan, and Boyle, Iowa, tied for second, third and fourth (12 ft., 6 in.).

50-yard Dash: Won by Kries, Ohio State; Hester, Michigan, second; Hermansen, Northwestern, third; Cahill, Iowa, fourth. Time :05 5-10.

440-yard Run: Won by Dougan Wisconsin; Catlin, Minnesota, second; Kries, Ohio State, third; Chlester, Michigan, fourth. Time :52 2-10.

880-yard Run: Won by Williams Chicago; Bevan Ohio State second; Erickson, Wisconsin, third; Stitt, Illinois, fourth. Time 1:59 5-10.

Shot Put: Won by Lyon, Illinois (47 ft., 3 in.); Lewis, Northwestern, second (46 ft., 1-2 in.); Karsten, Northwestern, third (45 ft., 6 1/2 in.); Forwald, Iowa, fourth (44 ft., 4 1/2 in.).

The tournament failed to develop an outstanding back guard. Tobin of the Ramblers played fine basketball all through, his coolness in every crisis playing an important part in each game. Hard to get behind, opposing forwards were forced to shoot from the floor and their scoring materially decreased. Charley, Lakawise, he dribbled, passed and pivoted well. Johnson (Press), Johnson (Roughhousers), Holt (Baracas), and Ingebrizen all displayed the qualities that go to make up a strong defense.

The players mentioned for positions on the honorary teams were in general cited for teamwork, individual ability, aggressiveness, sportsmanship and value to their respective teams. In selecting the teams there was little to choose between for most of the positions, so nearly were the rivals matched. The players winning berths on the first team might well be defeated by the second team or equally, vice versa. However, with Schou at center, Lough and Norlin forwards and DeMars and Tobin at guard, a well-balanced team, combining a high-powered offense with an intelligent, hard-working defense, would be placed on the floor, one thoroughly capable of maintaining as a team, the high calibre of basketball they displayed as individuals.

Pittsburgh Pirates Suffer From Hurts

Paso Robles, Cal., Mar. 12—(P)—Hard luck has visited the training camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates with the result that three regulars are on the bench with minor injuries. They are Glenn Wright, star shortstop; Herman Layne, left fielder and Clyde Barnhart, another outfielder, but who has been doing some duty in the infield.

Wright was put out of commission with a sprained thumb while Layne was knocked unconscious yesterday in a collision with "Kiki" Caylor, centerfielder. They were both after a fly ball. Barnhart split his right hand slightly while fielding a ball.

Style and Shape mean a virtually nothing if the fit isn't there.

Receivership for House of David Is Denied A. Wright

Grand Rapids, Mar. 12—(AP)—Application of Arthur Wright, former member of the Israelite House of David, Benton Harbor, for appointment of a temporary receiver for the institution, was denied today by District Judge Fred M. Raymond. The court, however, continued in force the temporary injunction obtained by Wright, restraining Benjamin Purnell and Mary Purnell, cult leaders, from disposing of the property during the suit.

Wright asked an accounting for his services while he was a member of the colony. His claims for money turned over to the cult officers and for his services total approximately $17,000.
