

CHAMBERLIN FLYING OVER ATLANTIC

EITHER SMITH OR REED WILL BE NOMINATED

REPUBLICANS POLL NATION, SOUND SENTIMENT.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright 1927, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, June 4.—If the opinion of 800 leading Republicans on who is the most likely to be the Democratic candidate counts for anything, Governor Al Smith and Senator James Reed of Missouri, are in the lead with public sentiment at the moment.

Watch Reed Closely.

It is with respect to the Democratic race that the Burke poll is interesting for it shows just which democratic candidates are most feared. The candidacy of Governor Smith is considered by most of the Republicans to be progressing but their second choice is Jim Reed of Missouri. The truth is the senator has more frequently voted with the Republicans on questions of foreign policy such as the league of nations and the world court than he has with the Democratic. In the last congress he expressed the opinion that the hands of President Coolidge should be upheld in the Mexican dispute. This attitude is believed to have won him many friends in the Republican ranks.

Reed is "Wet."

The important thing, however, is that Senator Jim Reed's candidacy is attracting attention. His tour of the south is doubtless to get second choice promises. Many a candidate has made headway in a convention because he has accumulated second choice pledges. Mr. Reed is a "wet" but he is invading the dry south just the same and is such a forceful speaker that he usually makes friends wherever he speaks.

FEDERAL FLOOD RELIEF URGED

Mississippi Representatives to Lay Plans Before Cal.

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—Recommendations for recognition of flood control as a national responsibility, immediate federal relief for sufferers in the present Mississippi river flood, and for the appointment of a presidential conference on flood control, will be placed before President Calvin Coolidge at his earliest convenience.

The last official act of the executive committee of the flood control conference which ended a three-day session here today is authorization for its ex-officio chairman, Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, to go to Washington and place before the president the conclusions finally embodied in resolutions passed today without a dissenting vote among the 1,800 who shouted their votes.

FLOOD DIMINISHES.

New Orleans, June 4.—(AP)—With the flood threat rapidly diminishing in the lower Atchafalaya river basins, plans went forward today for reconstruction of the upper reaches where the waters continue to recede.

OCEAN FLYER STEAMS HOME ON DESTROYER

LINDBERGH LEAVES FRANCE CHEERED BY CROWDS.

Cherbourg, France, June 4.—(AP)—The U. S. cruiser Memphis steamed out of Cherbourg harbor at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, taking Capt. Charles Lindbergh home.

To the last minute the American trans-Atlantic lone flyer was lauded in speeches and cheered by the people and when at last he finally stepped ashore from French soil he was made to feel, perhaps as never before during his stay, that he carries with him a sentiment that can be won only by great things done as he has done them, modestly.

The plot of the good monoplane, the "Spirit of St. Louis," aboard the Memphis tonight will be able for the first time since he glided down on LeBourget field to go to bed without thinking of what ceremony or what crush awaits him on the morrow. Also, for the first time in a fortnight he will be removed from the dangerous temptations to take chances with strange aircraft.

The American boy goes home in a blaze of glory, and probably just in time not to perceive the fatigue he experienced in the prolonged effort of the French people to give him his due, but he goes in full possession of a French admiration and with a message which, told in his modest, earnest way, cannot fail to bring France and the United States closer together.

His last day in France was Cherbourg's greatest of all days. The reception in the ancient town square in front of Cherbourg's town hall was such as might have rejoiced the heart of Louis XIV, but it certainly was much more hearty than any event that great king ever received when he visited this port.

Planes Buzz Overhead.

The air was full of buzzing airplane motors while the mayor was reading his address. The aviator himself appeared more moved by this than by any of the attentions he had received before.

BERLIN MAKES READY

Berlin, June 4.—(AP)—If Clarence D. Chamberlin, pilot of the Bellanca plane Columbia, has any destination other than Berlin in mind, government and municipal officials and officers of the aero club do not appear to be aware of it.

Winds Help Oceanic Hop

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—Navy hydrographers, studying the progress made on the Chamberlin-Levine flight, reported late today that the two airmen should encounter even more favorable weather over the Atlantic than did Captain Charles A. Lindbergh.

On either the great circle or modified great circle route, they said ideal weather prevailed with the probability that the huge plane would be aided by favorable winds of 12 to 28 miles velocity.

The hydrographers estimated that, unless forced down, the Columbia should reach Berlin, if that city proves to be its destination, about 5:45 p. m. tomorrow, eastern standard time, or about Sunday midnight Berlin time. If the plane goes to Rome, they figured it should arrive there at about 9:45 p. m. tomorrow eastern standard, or 3:45 a. m. Monday, Rome time.

WILL IS MADE.

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Charles A. Levine, co-pilot with Clarence D. Chamberlin on the Columbia monoplane flight to Europe, made his will and "took every other step a man ordinarily takes before going on an ocean voyage," his attorney, Samuel Hartman, said tonight.

WATCH ANXIOUSLY.

New York, June 4.—(AP)—The wives of Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine tonight divided their time between tracing the progress of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia on maps showing its course across the Atlantic Ocean and making preparations to follow their flying husbands by steamer.

Reassured by the reports from points along the course where the plane had been sighted, Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine both were highly confident that the flight would be a success.

Mrs. Chamberlin in her suite in the Hotel Pennsylvania where she plans to wait for a cable informing her where the Columbia has landed said she will sail to join her husband wherever he is as soon as word is received.

Lansing, June 4.—(AP)—Attorneys for Dr. George A. Fritch, former Detroit physician, serving a 15-year term in Jackson prison for manslaughter, today resumed their fight to have him released. The physician was sentenced on the manslaughter charge October 28, 1919, after numerous efforts to secure his conviction upon charges of performing illegal operations in Detroit.

500 GALLONS OF GAS—THEN OFF TO EUROPE

One filling of its gasoline tanks kept this Bellanca monoplane aloft for more than 51 hours on a record-breaking test flight over Long Island, New York, recently. Now the plane's builder, G. M. Bellanca (in set), Clarence Chamberlin, pilot, and Charles Levine, passenger, hope one filling will take it from New York across the Atlantic to Europe.

PLANE LEAVES COAST BEHIND AT TREPASSEY

47 MINUTES BEHIND SCHEDULE LINDY FOLLOWED.

(By The Associated Press) Clear weather with favoring west winds attended the Chamberlin-Levine trans-Atlantic flight in its second and most hazardous phase, when the plane headed out over the ocean in the 1,900 mile reach to the Irish coast, according to radio reports received by the Associated Press from ships in the north Atlantic.

PLANE LEAVES COAST BEHIND AT TREPASSEY

Calculations based on an average speed of 100 miles per hour indicated that the Bellanca monoplane Columbia would reach the Irish coast about 3 p. m. eastern daylight savings time today providing Chamberlin holds her on the great circle course.

PLANE LEAVES COAST BEHIND AT TREPASSEY

As the airplane carries no radio and is flying well north of steamship lines it was considered improbable that it would be reported again until close to Ireland.

PLANE LEAVES COAST BEHIND AT TREPASSEY

When Chamberlin headed out to sea he had completed the first leg of his flight in 12 hours and 15 minutes. Although he left the Newfoundland coast 90 minutes earlier than Lindbergh had done, Chamberlin was 47 minutes behind the time the Spirit of St. Louis took for the first 1,000 miles. The Bellanca plane left New York an hour and 40 minutes earlier than Lindbergh and cut off nearly 100 miles by heading out to sea at Cape Race, N. F., while Lindbergh went on to St. Johns.

Ideal weather was reported as the little plane flew true on its course from the United States to Nova Scotia and so on toward its indefinite goal.

Tail winds were helping the plane's early success and promised to assist all the way across the ocean. In the late afternoon the plane was sighted off Nova Scotia and apparently holding to an offshore course which reduced chances of observation of its progress.

Beside him in the cabin was Charles A. Levine, his financial backer and a surprise member of the crew. Levine is 30 years old, began life as a stable boy and then became wealthy as a dealer in metals. Until the very last moment it was not known that Levine, who is managing director of the company which owns the Columbia, was going along. Absolute secrecy had been maintained as to the man who would accompany Chamberlin and even Levine's own wife did not know of his intention.

Many Sight Seers. There was not a craft about that was not utilized for sight-seeing purposes when Lindbergh finally climbed down from the Seine to the motor launch and broke contact with the soil of France.

Then the crowd set up almost in unison the best of all parting cries: "When are you coming back, Lindbergh? When are you coming back?"

WASHINGTON PLANS.

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—Official Washington divided its time today between following the course of the dramatic flight of the airplane "Columbia," from New York for an unnamed destination in Europe and arranging for the reception here next Saturday of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, who left Cherbourg, France, today, for the national capital, on the cruiser Memphis.

Arriving here at noon next Saturday, Captain Lindbergh will be personally welcomed and decorated by President Coolidge; will remain here over Sunday and take off from Bolling field between 6 a. m. and 8 a. m. Monday, June 13, for New York, in his monoplane "Spirit of St. Louis," in which he made his epochal air voyage.

Arrangements for the reception of the world's flying hero were completed today. Cavalry Escort. Captain Lindbergh will be escorted to the Washington monument grounds by the "president's own" troop of cavalry and there will be welcomed by the president and presented with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the highest award of the American air service.

A military parade will form behind the aviator at Peace Monument, on the west side of the capitol and follow him to the monument grounds. There will be about 2,000 in this line of march, the committee holding the number low on the theory that the thousands who will crowd the national capital that day will want to see Lindbergh and not a parade. Since Lindbergh is a regular army reserve officer, the army will have the place of prominence in the pageant. Then the navy will have its place.

Coolidge in Stand. President Coolidge will await the aviator on a special stand at the foot of the knoll upon which the monument to the father of this country to-day. Grouped around this stand will be the cabinet, the supreme court, the diplomatic corps, senators and representatives and government officials.

Robert Nungesser, brother of Capt. Charles Nungesser, who with Capt. Francois Coli, have been missing since their attempt to span the Atlantic Ocean from Paris will have a place in the president's stand. Robert Nungesser is a resident of Washington, conducting a machine shop here.

Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the celebrated flyer, also is expected to be in this stand. A special committee of women, headed by Miss Mabel T. Boardman of the American Red Cross, was appointed to welcome Mrs. Lindbergh to Washington and to arrange for her program while she and her son are guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge at the temporary White House.

MOTHER LEAVES FRIDAY. Detroit, June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh will leave here next Friday for Washington, accompanied by Acting Mayor John C. Lodge, her uncle, to take part in the official reception for her son, Charles A. Lindbergh, according to plans announced today coincident with the flyer's embarking for home. Mrs. Lindbergh formally accepted an invitation from President and Mrs. Coolidge to participate in the welcoming ceremonies.

IRISH DECENT. New York, June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, in a letter to the American-Irish Historical Society, today disclosed the fact that her maternal grandmother, Emma B. Kissane, was born in Douglas, Isle of Mann where the family moved from Tipperary. They later returned to Ireland. The letter was in answer to one sent by John J. Murphy, from

It is expected that Perryman will do the hurling for the Press boys while Groff will do the receiving. The opposing battery has not been announced.

Ex-Corporal Dunned On Magazine Cover

Washington.—(AP)—Jay H. Williams of Gettysburg, S. D., has been induced to "join up" again under Hanford MacNider, Assistant Secretary of War and president of the Second Division Association.

Williams was a corporal in the Sixth Marines, attached to the Second Division during the war, while MacNider was progressing with the outfit to the rank of Lieutenant and Colonel. They met during and after the war, and MacNider has a bulky file of correspondence as a result.

Getting ready for the Second Division reunion here June 4, MacNider signed 35,000 letters urging veterans eligible to membership to attach a dollar to an enclosed blank and add their names to the 5,000 on the association's roll. The one addressed to Williams was the one reduced on the outfit's publication, "The Indian Head," and Williams, after thinking it over for a week, replied:

"That's the first time I was ever dunned on the front page of a magazine; and I never thought, in 1918, that any horse-riding officer would ever get me to join anything again. You win. Here's my dollar."

"I'm almost tempted to attend one of the reunions. Possibly I would have the good fortune to meet a certain dirty lout whom I have been wanting to meet for the past eight or nine years. If I ever meet him, all I want is some neutral by-standers and a little room to work in."

"There is also the dude who owes me 100 marks from a poker game in Rheinbrohl; and I might meet an old friend, a corporal who stole the best cuts of meat from the supplies of the officers' mess, and who always carried a little gold bar for his cap and a slicker to cover his uniform when he spent a late evening in the company of Corporal Goff and myself.

"Come to think of it, there are lots of good reasons for joining your outfit."

CAMPERS URGED TO BE CAREFUL

Izaak Walton League Drafts Code for Motor Tourists.

With the approach of vacation days and the resultant summer excursions into the country and mountains by millions of city people, the Izaak Walton League of America has drafted a code of etiquette, which if adhered to by those unused to outdoor customs and requirements, will be the means of elimination of much of the animosity existing between farmers and city people during the summer months.

"The first thing to remember is everything belongs to somebody," Seth E. Gordon, extension director of the Walton league, declared. "Failure to shut gates, with the result that cattle and other livestock soon find the openings and sometimes roam miles from their pastures, is almost unforgetable from the farmer's point of view—and he is justified."

Avoid Disfiguring.
"Disfiguring and displacement of various natural resources and man-made requisites of outdoor life is always prevalent, but common decency should avoid all such actions. The self-styled 'hiker' who continually cadges for rides makes life most unpleasant for the motorist. The sportsman never trespasses on prohibited ground, nor will he or she fish or hunt on posted land. Those whose bent takes them across planted fields can never hope to see the prohibited lands of the farmer, the prohibiting of which was in numerous cases caused by the unthinking city person's short cut through and across fields of grain and other crops, or freshly seeded soil. The trip around the field would not exhaust anybody."

Roaring Fire Unnecessary.
"One of the most important phases of camp-life," Mr. Gordon further stated, "is the building of cook-fires. These are a necessity, but a roaring inferno is never necessary. The correct fire should be low and one-fifth the size of the clearing made for that purpose. Large fires not only prevent proper cooking, but destroy forests. When camp is broken, the fires should never be scattered with a kick, but instead should be effectively 'drowned' with water. It is well to make sure that peat around the fire is not burning underground. A single spark may fly a hundred feet and be the means of destroying a million trees. A prime courtesy of the outdoors is to leave all campsites free of rubbish or any other waste. This is important from a health angle, if from no other."

A pleasing and self-satisfying act is the leaving of a note of thanks in any wilderness shelter used. It is well to remember that the vac-

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

A celebrated French specialist in heart disease said that when a patient seeks advice for palpitations of the heart only the physician may infer that the reaction is a nervous one and that the patient does not have an actual disease of the tissues of the heart. The person who complains of palpitation of the heart is usually a woman under 50 years of age with a certain amount of disordered digestion. When the palpitations come on the patient usually exhibits great distress and may even faint away. The scientific physician will endeavor first to determine if the tissues of the heart are normal. This he does by finding out if the heart is enlarged beyond its usual borders and if it lies in the usual position. He will listen to the sounds of the heart to see if murmurs are present, indicating that the valves of the heart do not operate efficiently. He will look for swellings of the extremities which may be taken as a sign that the heart is unable to pump the blood all the way around the circulatory system. It will also be necessary to find out how much work the heart can do without distress. Among the methods of testing the capacity of the heart are such simple steps as hopping on one foot, running up and down stairs, lifting weights a certain number of times, or other rapid and regular movements. Examination of the heart while the patient lies absolutely still does not give an opportunity to determine how much the heart can do when its reserves are called upon, as may frequently be the case when a person runs for a street car. Sir James Mackenzie said that the heart would never fail if its muscle were never given more work than it can do without exhaustion.

Besides the tests mentioned, the physician is now able to study the movements of the heart by the use of a number of electrical devices of great sensitivity. These show the propulsion of the heart beat through the various parts of the organ, and are indeed so sensitive as almost to be able to record every twitch of a fiber. When the heart tissues are found to be normal by every possible test, and the heart is able to react in a normal manner to unusual strains, the physician must determine if the usual symptoms are due to some nervous reaction. This may involve a study of all the circumstances of the patient's

North Star Lodge, S. F. A. May Build New Building Here

Whether North Star Lodge No. 27, Scandinavian Fraternity of America, will make extensive repairs to its present building or will erect a new building in the immediate future, will be decided within the next few weeks, it was learned here yesterday. The matter has been submitted in a referendum to the members and an early decision is expected.

The rapid growth of the lodge in recent years has made it necessary to make provisions for more spacious quarters.

S. M. Johnson is chairman of the special building committee and other members are: M. C. Anderson, John S. Bach, August Bloomstrom, R. W. Carlson, John Holmgren, Gust Nelson and Gust Gustafson.

brushed back a few wisps of hair that had strayed over her dark olive forehead. "It's merely that I've made up my mind about a few things where I've been weak and foolish before."

But a tiny scrap of green, which to the old man seemed just another leaf caught in the eye.

In a few moments they had left the puffing Schwartz, and were once more inside Elise's brilliant living room.

"Did you go to see Prentiss yesterday as you intended?" Vilak asked as he leaned over and caught a brilliant fly creeping dangerously close to a spider web in the corner.

He lifted it from the web and set it on the floor. In a moment it was again crawling toward the web.

She nodded. "After all, we are the only Americans here, and I felt like a beast for not trying to do something for him."

"Did you see him?" "Yes... and no." She was silent a moment.

Vilak grunted "Humph... what happened?" "He came running out of his house, opened the gate, and set that enormous mastiff of his on me if I hadn't been a fairly good tree climber it would have been very... pleasant."

Vilak took out his cigaret case and smoked thoughtfully. Nunnally and Elise talked quietly.

The old man was enchanted by her charm and intelligence. He added his persuasions to those of her cousin that she leave Porto Verde as quickly as possible.

"I'm afraid that I'll have to contradict you in turn, esteemed cousin. I'm going."

"Haven't you had enough happiness when you went out there in the daytime? You want more trouble?" "That's not the question," she said.

He pressed her hand gently, strolled to the door and returned with a bundle, part of which he gave to the old man.

He helped the old man into his saddle, leaped in himself, and waving a half-amused, half-troubled goody to his cousin who stood peering after them.

They retraced their route until they neared the bridge which crossed the river.

They stepped their horses nearer and through the brush saw five or six torches burning brightly, by the light of which some twenty or thirty men were hurrying about pitching a tent.

They were the customary motley of black, Indian, and half-breed, with an occasional surly individual who appeared to be white.

They were clad in the nondescript clothing of the typical Brazilian laborer, here a once brilliant purple shirt hanging out over vivid green breeches.

Most were the dregs of their races, with cruel eyes and vicious, degenerate faces.

"Those in the States aren't the gentlest creatures in the world but they can't hold a candle to the ones they get down here."

They dismantled, stepped through the brush and reached the open. In a little depression of the land a bright fire was burning. Nunnally looked at it.

"Er... why have they that... er... yes... that?" he asked in a whisper. "It's hot tonight... very hot. And they're not using it to... er... melt anything. It's... singular... er... singular."

Vilak stared thoughtfully at the blaze. "Fires can be used for other things than heat," he answered. He bent down and drew something out of the hot cinders.

"Perhaps that, for instance. Mean anything to you?" "The old man's sleepy eyes narrowed behind his glasses.

He could see what appeared to be a small bit of charred wood no different than the other pieces of branches which formed the glowing embers.

"No... er... it... er... means nothing... er... nothing." Vilak tossed it back into the fire.

(To Be Continued.) There is adventure ahead of Nunnally and Vilak. The night is filled with a thousand unseen dangers.

IN NEW YORK

New York, June 2.—Rural atmosphere, such as might be found in farm towns before they ceased being "hick" and became modern, is to be found in many parts of Manhattan.

Wander east on Twenty-third street and, before you have gone more than a few hundred yards, the breeze will begin to carry the aroma of horse-flesh and pungent stable smells.

Huge horseshoes of gold and black hang from the fronts of these places and carved stallions swing about in the breeze as weather vanes.

Now and then a lonely rattle, caught somehow in the great city, wanders up and stands wistfully filling his lungs with forgotten farm smells.

Farsightedness And Its Correction

When the eyeball is too short for the power of the lens system of the eye: In this case the image of the object looked at will fall behind the retina, and we say such an eye is farsighted.

The use of glasses with a convex lens of the proper power will throw the image forward and correct the trouble. The defect is known as hyperopia, or hypermetropia.

In the case of nearsight or farsight the image thrown upon the retina would be blurred unless glasses with properly prescribed lenses were used—just as the image would be upon the film in the camera if the lens system were out of focus.

THE TINYMITES

Story by Hal Cochran—Pictures by Knick

The shell house was a wondrous place. A smile spread on each Tiny's face, as all around the house they looked, while King Roar led the way. They found some cots that looked brand new, and they were made of seashells, too. When King Roar said, "That's where you'll sleep," the Tinies yelled "Hurray!"

Then Clowny stopped and looked them o'er. Said he, "I fear they'll make us sore. The seashells look so sharp and hard, they'll keep us all awake." Old King Roar laughed to beat the band. He answered, "You don't understand. When all the shells are covered up, a dandy bed they make."

He then brought blankets by the score. Said he, "That's what we use these for. They're spread upon the little shells, and you'll soon understand." This made the Tinies broadly grin. The beds were made and they crawled in. It thrilled them all to know the king had made them all by hand.

Next morning, when the sun was high, and clearest blue was in the sky, the happy band of Tinymites went strolling down the beach. They went out on a dock, quite long, and hoped that they weren't doing wrong. They tried to pick some water flowers, but found them out of reach.

Just then the king himself appeared, and when he smiled, the bunch were cheered. Their good friend said, "I've something here to open up your eyes." He then unwrapped a bundle small, while being watched by one and all. And, when they saw what it contained, they looked on in surprise.

"A diving helmet," Scouty said. "I'll bet 'twill fit right on my head. I wonder, can I try it on, and will you show me how?" "You bet I will," the king replied. "It's not so hard to crawl inside. As long as you have asked me first, we'll put it on right now."

Abner Bangs Thrilled, Benefitted by Medicine Show Out at Misery Bay

Misery Bay, June 4. (To the Editor)—Two bigly gigantic events have decadently transpired in our community recently of late date. We are agog with pandemonium out our way.

One of them is the arrival of Idaho Jack, the snake doctor, who convertantly change the old mill into a dry goods store.

The other is the visitation among us of the Great Doctor Spiegel and his medicine show.

Idaho Jack is a personage of such teeming importance that I will leave him for the subject of a special separate epistle to be written in the future a little later. He is to stay in our midst permanently all the time.

But Doctor the Great Spiegel will soon be going into other pastures green to conquer and I want to discuss him while he is amidst us where he can reap some of the beneficial help of my virtile pen.

I can never be sufficiently thankful enough that Doctor Spiegel the Great came to Misery Bay. I was just thinking of taking out a group sick and accident policy on the family for $11 and a subscription to a magazine, but now for $8 I have not only bought enough medicine to last us for five years even if an epidemic hits us, but I have also got a chance to win the diamond ring beset with emeralds to be gave away free Saturday night.

The Great Spiegel is not selling medicine. Far be it from him to do such. He is advertising it and the price he charges for it is far beneath the actual cost of manufacture. He says so himself.

It is an elixer compounded of roots, barks, herbs, berries, shrubs and blossoms which a band of Indians gather on the hills the mountains, the prairies and the plains. It is all made out of vegetables. Dock not only guarantees it himself but the United States also guarantees it under the pure food and drug act.

You know, I thought I was tolerably healthy till I heard Dock talk. Then he told me about specks floating before my eyes, a bad taste in my mouth, a pain in my back in the morning, an unaccustomed weariness, lack of energy, shortness of breath, headaches, dry joints (not Idaho Jack's) and other symptoms. These, he said, was nature's warnings and I better do something about them before it was too late.

Dock's medicine will cure appendicitis, hernia, rheumatism, Bright's disease, dandruff, halitosis, anthrax, seven-year-itch, paralysis of the bone, paranoia, hay fever, that tired feeling, stomach ulcers, nervous convulsions, croup, mange, boils, nose-bleed, leprosy, cancer, catarrh, fallen arches, jaundice, heart murmur, gall stones and ptomain poison. Just those ailments and no more. He does not claim it is a cure all.

Besides that it is good for polishing silver, exterminating cock roaches, relieving toothache, flavoring bread pudding, removing hair, freckles and warts, preventing rust, softening hard water and spraying fruit trees.

Further more, with every bottle you get free directions and a chance on the diamond-emerald ring.

That is saying nothing of the free show—a man that walks on a wire, a juggler, a bucking wing dancer, an Irish, Dutch, Jewish, Italian, blackface comedian and a mouth organ player—all of which is the same person disguised differently.

So I am getting free entertainment for nothing and maybe a diamond ring, and all my family will be free of the complaintive diseases above enumeratively mentioned.

Sincerely & Truly
ABNER BANGS, esq.

PS: The school teacher that boards at my place says she thinks maybe Dock is a fraud.

George O'Hara as "Ralph Tanner," a young reporter with real aspirations is the central hub around which revolves a series of exciting incidents.

GAME REFUGE CONTEMPLATED

Chicagoans Also Want Tract Protected From Trespassers.

Five thousand acres of the 23,000 acres owned in Schoolcraft county by the Great Northwoods club of Chicago, is to be set aside as a permanent game refuge and the Michigan conservation department will be asked to cooperate in the protection of the wild life there, it was learned here yesterday. A party of members of the club is now enroute from Chicago to Manistique to designate the preserve portion and start arrangements for its protection.

Members of the club have been stirred by reports that trespassers have invaded their grounds and taken heavy toll of the native wild game. The district is noted for the abundance of deer, bear and wild fowl it has produced.

The 18,000 acres will be further developed as a hunting ground for the club members. It is understood, with 5,000 acres in a preserve upon which no hunting will be permitted by anyone, in or out of season.

The Great Northwoods club is said not to be connected in any way with the North Woods club which has a large tract of land in the Negaunee area.

"even a feature-for-feature comparison does not reveal the full extent of Oakland's value supremacy" Knowing the Oakland tradition of advanced engineering, you have probably sensed that the Greater Oakland Six offers certain things not found in other cars. But even a feature-for-feature comparison does not reveal the full extent of Oakland's value supremacy—for that is based not merely on these features plus super-precision construction! That, we believe, is the strongest assurance of lasting satisfaction a buyer could demand. And apparently tens of thousands of buyers have thought likewise. For the growth of Oakland popularity last year was an outstanding feat of recent automobile history—and that growth will be surpassed this year.

Make your own test and see how CHRYSLER "60" differs from any other six of its price

Get behind the wheel—and Chrysler "60" will give you 60 miles and more an hour as long as you care to have it with an ease and lack of effort that can only be described as typically Chrysler. At high speed, step on the brake—the same simple, safe and sure hydraulic four-wheel brake as on the higher-priced Chrysler "70" or Imperial "80"—and the "60" will gently glide to rest or give you a split-second full-stop for the emergency. Test Chrysler "60" any way you will. For ease of performance and riding, ease of control and handling, there's no getting away from the fact that the six-cylinder Chrysler "60"—with seven-bearing crankshaft, invar-strut pistons, manifold heat control, impulse neutralizer, oil filter, air cleaner, full pressure lubrication, road levelizers and many other features—is obviously unapproachable value in its price class. We invite you to drive the "60" and note its outstanding differences on the road. Experience its superiorities and never again will you be content with any car offering less in performance at such price.

Chrysler "60" prices—Touring Car $1075; Club Coupe, $1125; Coach $1145; Roadster (with rumble seat) $1175; Coupe (with rumble seat) $1245; Sedan, $1245. F. O. B. MANY CHILDREN PARTLY DEAF

School Nurse Makes Public Facts Disclosed in Survey.

Twenty-nine children in the Escanaba public schools are partially deaf in both ears and 39 are deaf in one ear, according to a survey recently completed by Miss Agnes O'Connor, school nurse.

This is not an unusual situation, nor is the percentage alarmingly high, Miss O'Connor said. It is estimated that there are about 3,000-000 partially deaf children in the United States and the average for the nation is about one in seven, according to public health experts. It is important to know which children do not hear well. A partially deaf child may be classed as feeble minded or as a poor student when the only trouble is that he does not hear the other children recite or does not know what the teacher is saying. If one-seventh of the pupils hear poorly, the fact must have some effect on the progress of the class in their books. Poor hearing has some effect on attention, behavior and deportment.

It is also important to know which children are partially deaf because of what can be done for them. Operation on tonsils and adenoids will cure deafness in some cases and improve the hearing in others, according to medical authorities. A little supervised care at home will cure many cases. For cases which can not be cured, special classes, lip reading and other measures sometimes are employed.

To Hold Clinic. The Escanaba survey was conducted over a period of six weeks. The teachers, by simple tests, picked out groups of children who displayed symptoms of deafness. Miss O'Connor then gave advanced tests to members of these groups.

It is believed that many of the youngsters who can afford tonsil-adenoid operations, can be benefited at the clinic to be held by the Escanaba Woman's club, June 15-16.

It is addressed to the public and reads as follows: "You may not be able to be present in person at the national reception for Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh at Washington but for ten cents you can make his welcome home the most impressive national reception ever tendered anyone by sending by air mail a personal expression of appreciation of his great exploit that has so rebounded to the credit and glory of American aviation. All mail should be addressed: Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, care of Postmaster General, Washington, D. C." and should carry the air mail postage, 10 cents per half ounce and the envelope marked "via air mail only." These letters may be deposited in any post office box.

Oct. 1910 Walter Wellman failed in first attempt to cross Atlantic, flying in dirigible which came down 1000 miles out

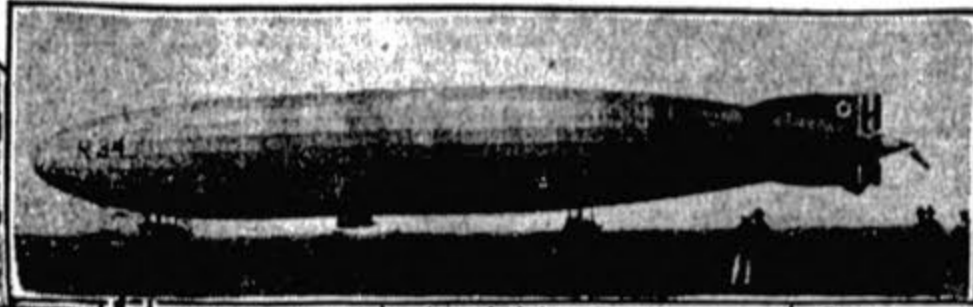

July 25, 1909 Louis Blériot flew over English Channel

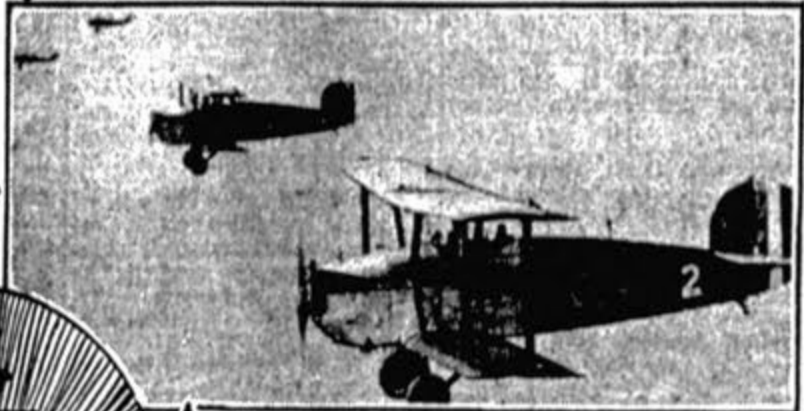

June 1919 Capt. John Alcock of England made a non stop transAtlantic flight

April--September, 1925 U.S. army planes flew around the world

March 31, 1926 Lieut. John C. Macready broke altitude record with mark of 39,586 feet

June 24, 1924 Lieut. Russell Maughan flew from New York to San Francisco between dawn & dusk.

May, 1926--Lieut. Com. Richard E. Byrd, U.S.N., and Roald Amundsen flew over the North Pole within a few days of each other

May 21-22, 1927 Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh made non-stop flight from New York to Paris

By NEA Service

A queer contrivance of wood and varnished silk, carrying a cumbersome gasoline engine and attended by the shaking of many gray-bearded heads in which there nestled a secure conviction that "it wouldn't work," slid along the ground and then fluttered through the air a few hundred feet one day 24 years ago.

Orville and Wilbur Wright, bicycle makers and mechanics, had made the world's first airplane flight.

Little over 33 hours of continuous flight.

The outlandish machine that the Wright brothers took aloft has undergone several improvements.

All over Europe and America men began to experiment with airplanes after that first flight of the Wright brothers. There were many, many fatalities--no aviator was ever sure, when he went up for a ten-minute ride, that he would come down alive--but the development of the airplane went on without a letup.

Louis Blériot. His odd-looking monoplane flew from Calais to Dover in 23 minutes, and the press of the world hailed his stunt with wild acclaim. It proved a huge spur to further achievement.

Doubted Aviation's Future There were not lacking, however, "level-headed" men who agreed that aviation would never be anything more than a costly and dangerous toy.

Despite these croaks, aviation went on. In the fall of 1910 came the first attempt to cross the Atlantic. Walter Wellman, in a non-rigid dirigible which carried a car made like a boat, took off from Atlantic City, N. J., with a crew of five men to fly to France.

do this until some epoch-making discovery is made of which we now have no conception.

And a cartoon appeared in an American newspaper, showing airplanes buzzing around a flaming taper, scorching their wings and falling. It called attention to the fact that more than 200 aviators had been killed, and asked gravely, "Is the game worth the candle?"

War Boomed Aviation. The World War, while it interrupted almost all "stunt" flights, nevertheless was a boon to aviation in that constant military use of planes provided many refinements and made flying much commoner and much safer.

later when he crashed while flying in France.

rupt almost all "stunt" flights, nevertheless was a boon to aviation in that constant military use of planes provided many refinements and made flying much commoner and much safer.

From then on records fell rapidly. Lieutenant Russell Maughan of the U. S. army "beat the sun" in a famous dawn-to-dusk flight from New York to San Francisco in 1924, leaving just at daybreak and arriving in San Francisco just before dark.

Breaks Altitude Record. Two years later Lieutenant John C. Macready got farther away from the earth than any other man that ever lived attaining an altitude of 39,586 feet at Dayton, O. This record, incidentally, was later eclipsed by French army flyers.

In 1925 the globe was girdled by air for the first time. Four U. S. army planes took off from San Diego to make the flight; one plane was wrecked in Alaska, and another was forced down in mid-Atlantic; but two planes made the entire trip, and the plane that came down in the ocean was repaired and resumed the flight in New England. The trip took from April to September.

A year ago came another epic feat when Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., flew a big Fokker monoplane from Spitzbergen to the North Pole, being the first man to fly a plane over the hub of the earth. He was followed a few days later by Roald Amundsen, instead of flying back to Spitzbergen, flew on to Alaska, going completely across the top of the world.

And then came Lindbergh's flight--the most spectacular, and probably the most dangerous, of them all.

What Will Be the Next? What the next stunt will be can only be guessed. Already there is talk of a trans-Pacific flight. Lindbergh himself forecasts commercial airplane flights across the Atlantic in the near future. Henry Ford hints that he may build giant planes to carry 100 passengers on such trips. A German firm is building a big dirigible for regular service to South America. At Akron, O., two dirigibles larger than any ever built are under construction for the government.

Byrd, hero of the polar flight, plans to duplicate Lindbergh's feat. One thing is certain: those who predicted, a decade and a half ago, that "aviation would never be practical" must be trying now to forget that they ever said it!

"Poor Man's College" Prepares Students For Lives Of Hard Work

Siloam Springs, Ark.--Because most all young men and women who go to college nowadays emerge with their sheep-skins, all ready to grab up a white collar job--

Because there aren't half enough white collar jobs to go around--

And because the young grads can't do anything but white collar--

John Brown started his colleges. The one young fellow who can't get in is the one who wants to "do anything" when he's through--except work.

Won't Use Idlers. John Brown sends him off pronto to one of the refined, genteel, gentlemen's colleges where he'll learn to take his straight, wear a claw-hammer, and graduate prepared "to do anything," but in reality to do nothing.

"The Poor Man's College" is the popular name given old John Brown's college for boys at Siloam Springs, Ark., and his college for girls at Sulphur Springs, Ark.

John Brown is an evangelist. He's no Elmer Gantry, either, even if he can clear $50,000 a year with his exhortations.

John Brown's preachings take him into every corner of the southwest states. He knows his Arkansas. He knows every four corners in it. He knows the life, the joys and sorrows of the farm boy and girl. He knows his state's need of good farmers, good dairymen and women, good mechanics, good carpenters.

Education for Work. He saw the need of the land, he gives a promissory note, and that settles the money business until he's through.

But how does a school meet expenses if it has no tuition money? John Brown is a business wizard as well as a $50,000 a year evangelist.

He has his expense money coming in from three sources.

First of all, from the earnings of the products manufactured at the school, and the receipts of the school dairies and farms.

When a student enters, he chooses his vocation. He attends classes four hours a day and works four hours a day. If he chooses the farming course, his work is in the fields. If it's the dairy course, he works in the dairy and with the stock. If he chooses the mechanical course, he works in the shops.

The school sells brushes, does cabinet work, maintains a complete print shop and will take building jobs.

The girls do interior decorating, dressmaking, trim hats, decorate and paint furniture, cook and work in the dairy.

The school expenses are helped, of course, by generous donations from people who wouldn't give "a red cent to one of these danged white collar schools," but who are in complete sympathy with "Poor Man's College."

And, last but not least, Preacher John Brown's yearly earnings of $50,000 from his evangelizing are turned over to his schools with the exception of $3,000, which he retains as a stipulated salary.

He built his first school seven years ago on a high bluff in the Ozarks. The poor boys came swarming to help build the rambling buildings, eager at the chance of education, to be partly paid for by four hours work a day. There were 100 students that first year. This year there are 600.

The boys have just finished building a $200,000 dormitory. Graduates have entered higher universities and are eagerly sought for jobs.

Weed Out Applicants. Five thousand applications for admission to the John Brown colleges are received yearly. The few hundred accepted are called by rigorous character, qualification, difficult intelligence tests, ambition and life purpose.

The "college" is really a school in three sections--grammar school, beginning with the fifth grade, high school, and three years of college work.

His Test Tubes Give To All Humanity An Increased Enjoyment Of Existence

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
NEA Service Writer

Baltimore--"Without pecuniary advantage to himself, he has done more than any other living American scientist to promote human enjoyment of life."

A slight blush of embarrassment colors the lean face of the kindly old man who steps up to receive one of the greatest honors the world of science has to bestow--the Willard Gibbs Medal awarded by the American Chemical Society in recognition of a scientist's work as a great benefactor of mankind.

A Cherished Award. The gold medal carries with it only a slight financial reward in comparison with the value of great work done by its recipient. But the award itself is an honor cherished far more than money by such as work for it.

Thus does Dr. John J. Abel, head of the department of pharmacology of the Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, go down in the annals of science as one of the greatest in history. For it has been through his persistent efforts that mankind is being relieved of many ills. His name will be mentioned in the same breath as those of Osler and Pasteur, men who have advanced medical science over tremendous gaps.

Yet Abel, like Pasteur, is no physician. His is the science of drugs, their composition and their action on living organisms. He is a chemist, biologist and physicist combined, but as such he has done invaluable good to medicine. He has helped medicine be more certain of itself and its remedies.

At the age of 70, Dr. Abel sees his contributions to medicine applied throughout the civilized world. But he is not yet through. He is still active, refusing to forsake his chemical laboratory where his search is directed toward another benefit to mankind.

For the present Dr. Abel is best known for his isolation of adrenalin from the ductless glands above the kidneys. His was the first success in extracting what is termed a "pure principle" from any of the ductless glands of the human body where, it is now known, the most powerful and useful drugs are manufactured.

Prof. John J. Abel

Isolated by Dr. Abel, it was found to be a drug that fortifies the heart against the shock of an operation and often prevents heart failure in severe cases of pneumonia.

This is the drug that has revived many an infant that had been pronounced dead, by being injected into the heart.

Thirty Years' Study. Dr. Abel isolated this "pure principle" thirty years ago, at Johns Hopkins. But he refused to stop there. He studied the human extract until he discovered its complex composition, and then he proceeded to duplicate it for commercial and quantity production. This he has done and now adrenalin is a commercial drug whose base is epinephrin, supplied as glandular extract from packing houses.

Now, despite his completed span of life, Dr. Abel is pursuing the mysteries of insulin, another gland product discovered by Drs. Banting and Macleod of Toronto, as treatment for diabetes. Dr. Abel has already isolated insulin in the form of a chemically pure crystal, after two years of patient research.

As a result, the standard of insulin has been established. No longer is it necessary to test every sample of it on living animals to make sure it has the right strength for human use.

But Dr. Abel is looking further, to analyze the chemical content of this crystal, just as he had done in the case of adrenalin, and then to make the synthetic manufacture of insulin possible.

Thus come assurance of an effective cure for diabetes, so that victims of this disease will not have to take insulin daily to prevent its recurrence. Dr. Abel's time in his laboratory, day and night, is spent on this research.

Many Activities. These have been the high-lights in Dr. Abel's career as a pharmacologist. Sandwiched in are lesser activities, but great in themselves--invention of an "artificial kidney" that washes poisons from the blood; application of sulphonephthalein, an acid derivative of coal tar, as a test to determine the condition of the kidneys; isolation of another extract called butagin which offers possibilities for synthetic manufacture as a heart stimulant.

The Willard Gibbs Medal is only the latest of many honors bestowed on this scientist. Besides his medical and his degrees for which he worked, he holds honorary degrees awarded at five different times, among them the doctor of science degree from Michigan, Pittsburgh and Harvard, and the doctor of laws degree from Cambridge.

Smallpox Menace to Tourist Trade, Says Dr. Kiefer

Calling attention to the seriousness of the smallpox epidemic now prevalent in Michigan as affecting the tourist trade, Dr. A. R. Tucker, Manistique health officer, has received a communication from Guy L. Kiefer, M. D., commissioner of the state department of health...

Following is an extract from the commissioner's letter: "You are probably aware of the fact that smallpox is unusually prevalent in Michigan. During the first 24 days of May, 151 cases of smallpox have been reported to this department."

"The disease is spreading. Your community may or may not have had recent cases of smallpox, but in either case, the disease exists not far from you and may at any time make its appearance in your community unless you take measures to have a general vaccination campaign immediately."

"If the smallpox continues to spread, as it is at present, two things are going to happen: "1. People of this state are going to die of confluent or hemorrhagic smallpox."

"2. The summer resort business of the state will be ruined. "This letter is an appeal to your community to immediately institute a general vaccination campaign to apply to all persons, both young and old, who have not been successfully vaccinated within the past five years."

"If you will wire us the probable number of vaccine points which you will need, this department will be glad to send them to you free of charge. "The concerted action of the various communities in the state in bringing about immediate general vaccination is the only hope of preventing what may easily become a serious epidemic."

"For the protection of the resort business—the second largest industry in the state—as well as the protection of the public health, we confidently expect you to heed this appeal. If concerted action is not obtained, it will probably be necessary for this department to warn prospective tourists through newspaper publicity of the existence or threatened existence of smallpox in various communities, of which your community may be one."

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sewing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine.

At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition. She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

THEATRES

JACKIE COOGAN.

That Coogan boy is here again in his newest screen offering, "Old Clothes," which will open Monday at the Community theater. During the youthful star's amazing career he has been associated with practically every type of role that a juvenile actor can portray, but he's never as sweet and lovable or as funny as when he is revealed in the urchin role he made famous in "The Kid."

In his latest opus this tiny genius has ample opportunity to give vent to all of his boyish enthusiasm and pranks and in that natural, unassuming style which is all his own, he hops home with another success to his credit. This boy is more than a motion picture star—he is a national institution and we regret that Dad Coogan, who supervises all of Jackie's pictures, has established the policy of two pictures per year for his famous son.

LYRIC TODAY.

"Whispering Wires," Fox Films latest mystery comedy, is based on the noted stage success of the same name which thrilled Broadway for almost a year. The stage play was considered by press and public as one of the finest ever presented on the American stage. Pre-view critics have pronounced the film version even better, owing to the virtually unlimited scope of the camera. Many scenes not possible on the stage have been incorporated in the screen version, which comes to the Lyric theater today.

The story of "Whispering Wires" is by Henry Leverage. The play was written by Kate McLaurin. L. G. Rigby prepared the scenario and Albert Ray directed the production. Beautiful Anita Stewart is the featured

VERDICT FOR E. R. CARTER IN CAR SUIT

A verdict of no cause for action was returned by a jury in Justice Ranguette's court in Escanaba, Friday in the case of George P. Britz versus E. R. Carter, in which the automobile salesman sought to recover a $300 commission on a Hudson car sale.

The trouble followed the purchase of a car in Lansing by Mr. Carter. Mr. Britz brought suit, stating that Mr. Carter had given him an order for the car on March 1, and that he had lost the commission through the Lansing purchase. Mr. Carter declared that Britz was not in business on that date and that further, he had been responsible for a breach in the contract.

The case was taken into Justice Ranguette's court, and came up for hearing Friday afternoon. A jury trial was held, upon demand of Britz. The verdict of no cause for action was returned after 30 minutes' deliberation.

The defendant was represented by Atty. John Wendill Bird of Lansing, former prosecutor of Ingham county. Mr. Britz was represented by Atty. James C. Baker of Escanaba.

NEW YORK STOCKS (Last Sales)

Table of stock prices for various companies like Am. Can., Am. Car & Pky., Am. Locomotive, etc.

New York, June 4—Heavy buying of the public utilities several of which mounted to record high levels, featured the irregular recovery of prices in today's brief session of the stock market.

Today's business news was mixed in character. Houston Oil was the individual feature, soaring 3 1/2 points to a new high record of 159 as against a low of 60 1/4 early in the year.

Delaware & Hudson was again the leader in the railroad group, jumping 7 1/2 points to a new record of 222 1/2. Good buying support also developed in Nickel Plate, Norfolk & Southern and Texas Pacific.

The rise in the public utilities reflected the steady increase in earnings of the principal operating and holding companies, particularly those with large electric properties.

Standard Industrials, which were freely offered yesterday, received support today. General Motors again crossed 200 for a gain of more than 2 points and U. S. Steel common closed 14 1/2 points higher at 124 1/2.

Foreign exchanges held steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.55 1/2 and French francs just below 3.91 1/2 cents.

Saint and Sinner

By Anne Austin

BEGINNING THE SECOND PHASE OF SAINT AND SINNER.

"What's the big idea, Sis? A family pow-wow?" "Long" Lane, very conscious of his new dignity as a husband and of his twenty-two and a half years, strode briskly into the Lane living room in the shabby little house on Myrtle Street. "Come on in, Fay!" he called back over his shoulder to the girl who hesitated in the doorway. "You're family too, sweet child, isn't she a sweet child, Faith?" the boy's voice went suddenly warm and rich with prideful love as he swept the pretty girl into his arms and challenged his sister with his glowing dark eyes.

"She's a sweet child and a pretty woman, as well as the happiest looking wife I ever saw," Faith answered generously, her own hand instinctively toward Bob Hathaway, who sat beside her on the cretonne-covered sofa. "I hope, I shall be able to compete with her for that title," she added softly, her large soft brown eyes misting over with sudden tears of happiness.

"So that's the ticket," grinned "Long" Lane. "Thought it was about time you two bill-and-coo artists got hitched. Going to break the news to Dad this afternoon?" "I'm not going to tell you a thing until we're all here," Faith returned, smilingly, but a little shiver of fear made her hand tremble in Bob's. "It was not going to be easy to readjust the lives of the entire family so that they would all fit happily into new conditions. But it was her job. They all looked to her now, since Mrs. Lane had died, as the real head of the family, although she was only twenty-one years old.

Her heart contracted sharply with pity as her father, Jim Lane, came shuffling into the room, her younger sister, Joy, just turned ten, clinging to his hand. These last few months of sorrow over the sudden death of his wife, and of heartbreaking trouble and disgrace over his daughter's "Cherry's unjust imprisonment and trial for the murder of her aged fiancée, Ralph Cluny, had permanently bowed his shoulders and marked his thin face with lines which no future well-being could eradicate.

Faith looked at him with infinite pity and understanding in her loving brown eyes. He was an old man, broken and almost spent, although thirty. "You've sacrificed yourself often enough for us," Cherry surprised them all by flaring up in defense of her sister, of whose selfishness she had made use all her life. "I'll stay here and keep house for Dad and Joy."

"You forget, Cherry, darling," that you're not going to be well enough to work for very long. Why, honey, you're going to need more than any of the others. "I hate myself!" Cherry's hands dropped from Bob's hair and clenched against her breast. "I don't want to have a baby—Chris' baby! I'm not married, really. It's not fair. I've had enough to bear without this! Oh, I hate Chris!"

"Everybody listen, please," Faith cried, forcing herself to ignore her sister's outburst. "This is what Bob and I have planned to do, if the rest of you agree. You know those two houses you built for Bob in Enfield, Dad? You didn't know then that you were building your future home, did you? For Bob and I and you and Joy and Cherry are going to live in the corner house."

"Well, I like that!" "Long" blustered, forgetting his dignity. "Where do Fay and I come in?" "You don't come in," Faith laughed. "You stay right here, if you like the house well enough. You can pay Dad rent for it, and make it into an awfully nice little home for two. And plenty of room for expansion of the family," she smiled significantly.

"Well," Jim Lane considered, pleased at finding a prospective landlord, "I reckon fifty dollars a month would be about right." "Cherry," Faith turned to her sister appealingly. "I hope we can make you happy and comfortable, darling. You're sure you won't go back to Chris? Not that I want you to," she added quickly, "but I want to have things settled today."

(Ruth Wilson, Corr.) Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cox and family of Escanaba visited Mr. and Mrs. Andy Magnusson and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gustafson on Monday.

Harold Anderson is visiting at the Magnusson home. Mrs. Andy Magnusson and Lillian Gorham attended the motion picture show at Alton Tuesday night. Oscar Magnusson and sister, Mrs. Emily Olson and children attended church at Alton Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Jerve Johnson.

As soon as possible, "Cherry" answered. "He doesn't know there's going to be a baby. I'd rather die than let him know!" she added with passionate vehemence. There had already been far too much publicity for the ill-fated Lane family, Faith thought, with a brief recurrence of the bitterness she had known when Cherry's name had been blazoned on the front page of every newspaper in the country. But it was all over now. She tried to comfort herself. Cherry had been cleared of the charge of murdering old Mr. Cluny on the day they were to have been married. She and Bob had discovered the real murderer, Hutchinson, who was soon to be tried.

Faith realized, as her eyes wandered lovingly from one face to another, that their future would not be an easy one to work out happily. Cherry hated the man, Christopher Wiley, for whom she had just her millionaire fiancé. And now she was to be the mother of his child, a child she did not want. Pleasure-loving, beautiful, puffed little Cherry, who had followed her notoriety as an accused murderess, a national heroine, would not easily reconcile herself to being a wife who was yet not a wife, a girl and yet not a girl, for she was to become a mother.

And a dark premonition stirred in Faith's heart, warned her that Cherry, incorrigible flirt that she had been, was not through with love and playing at love, Cherry's hands fluttered over Bob's hair. "What if Cherry had never really lost her love for Bob Hathaway, even if she had been so infatuated with Chris Wiley that she had eloped with him on the very night of her wedding to another man? Cherry had had Bob's love first. He had come to her—Faith—only after Cherry had proved untrustworthy. Was she foolishly tempting fate in arranging for her adored little sister to live with her and the man who would soon be her husband?"

"It's all settled then?" Faith asked. "Bob and I want to be married as soon as we can get the house furnished. Now, let's all go and see the new house." Faith laughed, but her eyes, as they sought Bob's were shadowed with a faint worry. Was she doing the best thing? But—what else could she do? Oh, she loved them all! She wanted to spread her arms and gather them all to her breast, forcing them all to love each other enough and yet not too much, protecting them from themselves and from the world.

Bob's eyes, as brilliant as blue sapphires, seemed to leap to her with love and understanding. TOMORROW: Cherry becomes a newspaper heroine again for a day.

Iron Mountain Cops Five Firsts in Relay Meet

KINGSFORD WINS TWO MILE RACE

Escanaba's Team Takes Three Seconds and a Third.

Iron Mountain, June 4—(Special)—Lead by the flashy Reese, Iron Mountain's speedy relay team made a clean sweep of the relay carnival here this afternoon, capturing five of the six events. Kingsford was the only other school to cop a first, their victory coming in the two-mile race.

Pressing Reese hard for individual honors of the meet was Ekholm, stocky trackster, who shone brilliantly in the field events, winning the discus and shot puts.

Experiencing an off day, Escanaba's team had three seconds and a third to show for the afternoon's competition. The Hilltop entrants in the field events fared worse, coping only a second and two thirds.

The 440 relay witnessed a gallant battle between Escanaba's sprinters and their Mountaineer rivals. Reese, first man to carry the stick, gave Iron Mountain a wide lead at the start, but in succeeding laps the Orange and Black fought gamely and Escanaba crossed the tape second by a foot.

The results are as follows: Distance Medley—Iron Mountain, first; Gladstone, second; Escanaba, third.

440 Relay—Iron Mountain, first; Escanaba, second; and Norway, third.

Split Medley Relay—Iron Mountain, first; Escanaba, second; and Norway, third.

One Mile Relay—Iron Mountain, first; Gladstone, second; and Crystal Falls, third.

880 Relay—Iron Mountain, first; Escanaba, second; and Norway, third.

Two Mile Relay—Kingsford, first; Gladstone, second, and way, third.

Field Events. Discus—Ekholm, Iron Mountain, first; Olso, Escanaba, second.

Javelin—Switzer, Gladstone, first; Crystal Falls, second; and Ronzani, Iron Mountain, third.

High Jump—Iron Mountain, first; Norway, second; Crystal Falls, third; Escanaba, fourth.

Shot Put—Ekholm, Iron Mountain, first; Ronzani, Iron Mountain, second; Brown, Escanaba, third; and Manthey, Escanaba, fourth.

State Normal Cops Collegiate Track Meet at Ypsilanti

Ypsilanti, Mich., June 4—(AP)—Michigan State Normal won the first meet of the Michigan collegiate conference here today with a total of 62 points. Detroit City college, a challenger for the title until the last event, had been completed with second, with 54 1/2.

Western State Normal scored 43 1/2 points and Central State Normal 5. The local team scored in all events of the program but the high jump. Detroit missed points in three events but had a chance to win the broad jump and the relay to be heard from. Western State Normal, however, took the major share of points in the broad jump, while Simms, an unknown leaper, took second place for Ypsilanti, making winning of the meet a certainty. The Detroit relay runners attained a little revenge when they took the mile relay, the most thrilling event of the afternoon. Strong outprinting Haines, Kalamazoo, and Fey, Ypsilanti, to win the coveted trophy.

The weight events provided the best marks of the day. Allman tossing the discus 147 feet, 7 inches, largely against the prevailing wind while Zuber put the shot 45 feet, 2 inches. Both of these marks are better than the existing Michigan collegiate marks.

Negro Boys Carry Off National Meet

Chicago, June 4—(AP)—The five ebony feet of three negro boys, aided by a white companion, carried Northeast high school of Detroit into the interscholastic track championship of America today.

This quartet, matching speed and brawn with 1,000 other boys from 182 high schools in 33 states, won the 23rd national interscholastic meet held under the auspices of the University of Chicago on Soldiers' field by scoring 23 points.

The squad from St. Collins, Colo., winners of the 1925 and 1926 titles, finished second with 18 1/2 points. Cass Tech high of Detroit, a three man team composed of a negro, a Mexican and a white youth was third with 12 points. Kokomo, Ind., tied with Masonic Home high of Fort Worth, Texas, for fourth with 10 points each.

Three world's records for interscholastic competition were smashed, and another was tied. Tommy Warner, 17-year-old youth from Kokomo, Ind., claimed the day's record for 100 yards by lifting himself 12 feet. 10 1/2 inches in the pole vault, breaking a record that has withstood attack for 15 years. The former of 12 feet was set by Percy Graham of University high school of Chicago in 1915.

INDEES PLAY WELLS TODAY

Rails Invade Manistique; Cooks Plays Gladstone; Rapid vs. Nahma.

GAMES TODAY. Wells at Independents. C. & N. W. at Manistique. Cooks at Gladstone. Rapid River at Nahma.

The Wells baseball team with Everett Wells on the mound will invade South Park this afternoon. Their opponents will be the Independents.

The Delta-Schoolcraft League schedule sends the Northwesterners to Manistique, the Cooks team to Gladstone and Rapid River to Nahma. All games will be of decided importance in the league "dope" in that they will demonstrate whether spurts and slumps of the last week-end were merely flashes or may be expected to continue.

It is probable that Manager Fred Olmstead will send Burns or Brotherton to the firing line against the Wells team this afternoon. Burns pitched good ball last Sunday against the Railroaders. Brotherton also is in good shape if the boss decides to call on him. Olmstead's lineup will be somewhat strengthened by shifts and additions. It was said.

In Everett Wells, Manager Phil Clark has a slabster who has, in seasons past, demonstrated his ability to puzzle opposing batters and the remainder of the lineup is well-balanced. Dopesters believe that Wells will be among the real contenders for the league pennant.

Fans also will be watching closely the Gladstone team which won both of its week-end encounters, indicating that Manager Venne has an unusually potent wallop.

The average money loss in value per case of eggs resulting from damage in transit amount to 1.65 cents, according to test recently made by the Department of Agriculture.

Search as you may among cars selling for or around this price. Nowhere else will $1485 buy such VALUE, such costly, LUXURIOUS quality. NONE have the style. NONE have such high character in finish and fittings.

Step into the front seat and SEE the luxury. A costly walnut effect on the instrument board before you, on the door panels beside and behind you.

Choose Mohair Velvet upholstery all around, cushioned deeply on the seats, tailored smartly on the side walls.

And when it comes to performance, NOT ONE comes even NEAR this spirited Nash. There is absolutely no comparison! Step on the starter, then on the accelerator—and GO! The soft even flow of power is due to the ultra-modern crankshaft. It has 7 main bearings—three or four MORE than most other cars. A bearing at every possible place to hold the shaft firm and rigid.

It has BIGGER bearings too—wider and stronger ones. MORE bearing surface than any other Six in its price class.

Try a long steep hill and feel the EXTRA power. Nash straight-line drive sends the power DIRECT from motor to rear axle—no energy wasted by angles or curves along its route.

American Golfers Capture Ryan Cup

Worcester, Mass., June 4—(AP)—America's professional golf team today won the Samuel Ryder cup, emblematic of supremacy of professional golfers in the United States and Great Britain, 9 1/2 to 2 1/2, because they knew what to do with the ball after it reached the green. The winners were slipped here and there in getting on the green, but once there they were about their business with neatness and dispatch.

Starting the final day's play of singles with a lead of two points, gained in three victories to one defeat in the two-ball foursomes yesterday, the Americans won six matches, lost one and halved one. Although putting won the day for the home team, it was an able putt from the club of George Duncan, the veteran Wentworth pro, that saved the visitors from a rout.

They had only one-half of one point for the singles play when Duncan, stading all even with Joe Turnesa at the 36th hole, slammed a dashing putt against the back of the cup for a birdie 3 giving him the victory.

BRAKES, LIGHTS BEING TESTED

State - County Officers Work Together In Drive.
Hundreds of Delta county motorists have been stopped during the past few days by Dan Van Wagner, of the secretary of state department, Lansing, and members of the sheriff's office in a check-up on operator's licenses.

Many drivers when stopped have said that they have licenses, but do not carry them on their person. The officers impress upon them that anyone owning a license who does not carry it with them, is as liable to arrest as a person who drives without having applied for a license.

Residents of Escanaba and Gladstone are requested to apply at the city police departments for their licenses. People living in townships outside of these two cities will apply at the sheriff's office for their tags.

In order to avoid any confusion in other cities of the peninsula where the check-up is being held, those who have filed applications for licenses, but who have not received them, are asked to apply at the Escanaba police department for an acknowledgement of their application if planning on leaving the city for a few days.

A check-up on brakes and headlights is carried on in connection with the operator's license drive. Hundreds of cars have been ordered to garages because of brakes and headlights that do not measure up to the state standard.
