

BYRD WILL LEAVE AT DAWN FOR PARIS

LATE REPORTS FORECAST BIG CUT IN TAXES

TAXPAYERS TO FEEL REDUCTION EARLY NEXT YEAR.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright 1927, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, June 24.—Latest treasury figures absolutely assure a substantial tax reduction. This will be felt by the tax payer next March on the basis of incomes being earned during the current year, 1927.

This is the situation which while gratifying officials is not going to make them issue any rosy promises at this time. For the only uncertain factor in the whole problem is the spending proclivity of the next congress and there are indications that it is by no means a mere desire to appropriate for special needs but an urgent necessity to take care of the Mississippi flood requirements and programs already used for public buildings and related projects.

The politics of the matter, however has been apparent from the first and is conceded by Republican leaders who admit that it is necessary to make as good a show as possible for the presidential campaign and also stimulate the prosperity of the country by providing more funds for general spending that might otherwise have gone to pay taxes.

Democrats Demand Cut. Under the circumstances, the Democrats are preparing to combat the Republican plan by cutting the tax rates still further and if that isn't feasible then they will advocate cuts where a larger number of taxpayers will be affected. This has been a Democratic policy for several years and has been difficult for the Republicans to overcome except by a series of compromises.

The big question which will not be answered until there is a more intensive analysis of the returns is the exact productivity of the present rates. A feeling is being developed that the tax rates can be reduced on several items, because the rate is less burdensome there is less avoidance and a better collection. This unquestionably will be the arguments used in an attempt to get sur-tax rates down, though there is little hope that any material change in surtax rates can be made. The tax payer affected by surtaxes will undoubtedly get some relief. The drive next time will be to repeal many of the indirect taxes, to reduce corporation taxes back to their rates of two years ago and to raise the exemption limits so as to relieve an even larger number of persons of the obligations of paying anything.

Polices at Stake. It would not be surprising to see an effort made by some groups in congress to exempt all married persons with an income of $5,000 or under from further taxation. This will not be easily defeated if voters comes under that limit and there are hardly more than 700,000 persons with incomes of $10,000 or over. There is a school of thought in congress which objects to the idea of taxing a few people to pay the entire expenses of government and they will instead advocate that all small tax is preferable at all times to total exemption and is safer in the long run from the standpoint of being able to calculate indefinitely on future income for the government.

Graft Uncovered in Loan Shark Bureaus

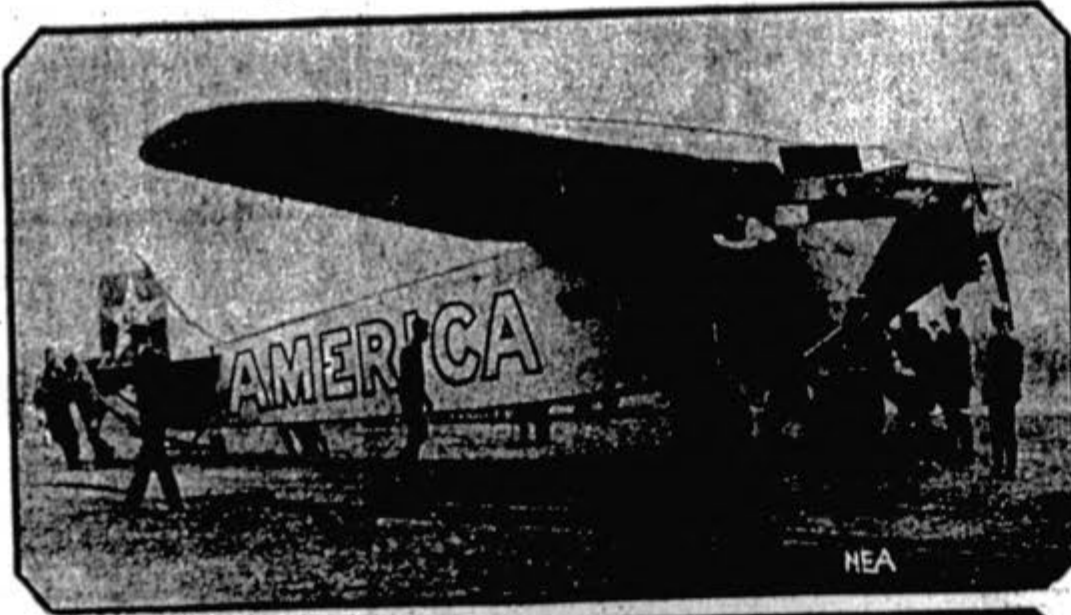

Detroit, June 25.—(AP)—A number of minor officials of local industries have been in collusion with salary loan operators, and have threatened to cause the discharge of employees who failed to make their interest payments amounting to 240 per cent a year according to S. B. Kempton, attorney for the Better Business Bureau, sponsors of the investigation which resulted in the arrest of a number of the operators here last week.

Kempton said the evidence regarding the minor officials was contained in letters seized in the raids. "The deeper we go into this matter the more evidence we discover of wholesale corruption, conspiracy and graft," he said. "Not only are street railway officials involved but railroad and factory executives. In many cases when a borrower was delinquent in his payments an official of his company would bring pressure on him."

"We find that the salary buyers frequently charged a rate of interest far in excess of 20 per cent a month. If they thought a man had to have money they would charge him whatever they thought they could get away with."

The picture of Byrd and his companions was taken while they were preparing the big triple-motored monoplane, America (above) for her ocean jaunt, with Europe the goal. FLYER'S DAY IN NEW YORK BUSY

Lindbergh House Guest of Davison, Aviation Chief.

New York, June 25.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the home of F. Trabee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation, at Glen Cove, Long Island, late today after hurrying through a day of conferences in New York. The New York-to-Paris flyer refused to see reporters and his spokesman stated briefly that he had accepted nothing and declined nothing as yet in the way of commercial offers.

"Colonel Lindbergh has had a very busy day, attending entirely to his own personal business affairs and none of which has been definitely decided upon," said Harry R. Knight, one of Lindbergh's backers from St. Louis. "No final arrangements or agreements have been reached, nor is it expected that anything of this nature will be available for a few days. He has no official engagements for tomorrow."

Mr. Knight and Harold Bitby, of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, accompanied Lindbergh to the city. They returned to the Davison estate in Mr. Davison's yacht. Lindbergh retired for a nap before dinner. It is expected that he will remain at the Davison home all day tomorrow. Two detectives are on constant guard at the gates of the estate, changing shifts every twelve hours, and they stop all comers, afoot or in automobile. "How does Lindbergh spend his time?" inquirers asked. "Does he talk—does he read?" "Oh, he has a great time poring over atlases and maps," a member of the household replied.

Two Die, Nine Hurt in Flint Accidents

Flint, June 25.—(AP)—Two dead and nine injured, one critically, was the toll in two automobile accidents near here tonight.

The dead are Richard Rock, six months old, and Dorothy May Turneval, seven months old. The injured: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rock and son, Edwin, 3; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Turneval and four children. Mrs. Rock has a fractured skull.

The Rock family automobile was struck by a D. U. R. freight train at a crossing three miles south of Flint. The Turneval auto was hit by another car and hurled into the ditch eight miles northeast of here. The driver of the other car did not stop. The Rocks live in Flint and the Turnevals in Mount Morris. All of the injured are in a local hospital.

Communists Favor Expelling Trotsky

Moscow, June 25.—(AP)—The dismissal for violation of party discipline of Leon Trotsky and Gregory Zinovieff, from the central committee of the all-Russian communist party was recommended today by the Praidium of the central control committee. Both Trotsky and Zinovieff were censured last month by the communist international for having criticized Russia's policy in China. This was considered a breach of party discipline.

They have been heading an opposition movement against the soviet government but the Stalin faction managed to rally sufficient strength to overcome the difficulties without, however, being able to heal the breach.

ARMY AVIATORS READY FOR HOP

Fokker Plane Arrives in Frisco for Pacific Flight.

San Francisco, June 25.—(AP)—Groomed to be first away in the race to span the Pacific ocean between California and Honolulu by air, the United States army's trimotored Fokker monoplane arrived here this afternoon for the start. The plane was flown from San Diego by Lieut. Lester J. Maitland and Albert F. Hegenberger, pilot and navigator, respectively, of the Hawaii flight.

Speculation was rife as to the starting time of the army plane, which has a rival in a civilian plane being rushed to completion here by Ernest L. Smith, San Francisco aviator, and C. H. Carter of Los Angeles, navigator. The weather reports today were that midway between the mainland and Hawaii bumpy air currents, rain and fog prevailed. Except for this mid-ocean condition the weather was favorable for flying.

Annual Adventist Convention Closes

Holly, Mich., June 25.—(AP)—The annual meeting of the eastern Michigan division of the Seventh Day Adventist church came to a close here tonight when commencement exercises were held for the 15 elementary schools operated by the church. There were 32 graduates in the classes this year, coming from Detroit, Pontiac, Lansing, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint and other cities where the church maintains parochial schools.

BOARD OPPOSES SALARY BOOST

Decision Affects 75,000 Western Conductors, Trainmen.

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—A United States board of mediation today decided conductors and trainmen on 55 western railroads are not now entitled to an increase in wages and held that yardmen on the same roads should receive an increase of 7 1/2 per cent.

Today's awards affect approximately 75,000 employees. Twenty-five thousand yardmen which is retroactive to March 1, this year. The rail workers refused a raise including conductors, brakemen and baggage-men. Two members of the board dissented from the opinion reached by the other four members. They filed a minority opinion holding that conductors and trainmen should receive an increase as well as yardmen.

In denying an increase to conductors and trainmen they majority based its conclusions on agricultural conditions in the west and its belief that men in those services now are receiving pay commensurate with wages paid trainmen and conductors on eastern and southern roads where increases of 7 1/2 per cent recently were granted.

Third Woman Slayer Sentenced to Hang

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Cassler of Crown Point, Ind., today became the third person of her sex to be sentenced to death in Illinois. Neither of the other two was hanged, however, and one of them was acquitted at a second trial. The other sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

The death penalty was imposed reluctantly by Judge Philip L. Sullivan who, even after the jury returned its verdict, gave Mrs. Cassler a chance to change her plea to guilty and be sentenced to life imprisonment, as were her confessed accomplices, Loren Patrick and Mrs. Lillian Frazer. Patrick confessed that he was the actual slayer of William Lindstrom, a cabinet maker with whom Mrs. Frazer had lived but of whom she had fled.

At the time of the slaying Mrs. Cassler admittedly sat in an automobile outside Lindstrom's home but Patrick, who worked for Mrs. Cassler, and Mrs. Frazer testified that the condemned woman plotted the slaying so she could obtain $7,500 life insurance. Mrs. Cassler is a mother of four children.

Perks Up at Jap Peace Talk

Washington, June 25.—(AP)—Insistence upon American naval parity with Great Britain, down to the smallest war craft and interest in undercurrent of discussions at Geneva of a possible Japanese-American permanent peace treaty characterized official Washington reaction today as the naval limitation conference closed its first week.

Although the Japanese treaty question still is far from an official diplomatic status, reports from Geneva that such a pact might develop from the naval deliberations attracted keen attention. They came at a time when the United States and France are considering procedure for negotiating a similar agreement to outlaw war.

Coincidentally, the Japanese ambassador, Tsuneo Matsudara, called on Secretary Kellogg today, presumably to discuss developments at Geneva. Afterwards, Mr. Kellogg said the subject of a peace treaty was not mentioned. His only comment was that the relations between the two countries were as friendly as those of the United States and France.

Articles Irritate. There were indications today of irritation here of the flood of statements published in Europe in connection with the British naval proposal, chiefly articles in favor of British supremacy on the sea. They brought forth a statement by one high official that this government will not and cannot accept anything but parity with Great Britain on every class of ship.

The American government can see no reason why the British empire should have superiority on account of trade routes or possessions or any other reason, and it was emphasized that at the Washington arms conference the British delegation agreed to an equal ratio for all classes of ships. Coupled with the insistence upon naval parity was a strong belief that Great Britain will not press much farther her proposal to go back to the 1921 treaty to scale down the maximum tonnage agreed upon for battleships, airplane carriers and cruisers.

Stern Opposition. In the event the British do insist upon the treaty revision, however, it was expected they would encounter the stern opposition of the Americans and Japanese. Ambassador Hugh Gibson head of the American group, and the Japanese delegate have cabled the British proposal to their governments and negative answers from both capitals were forecast.

The chief objection to revising at present the 1921 pact—the absence from Geneva of the French and Italians—was reinforced today by reiteration of the department's contention that the conference was not intended to reach an agreement which would be effective beyond 1936, the year in which the arms treaty may terminate.

Under the replacement tables agreed on at Washington no battleships may be replaced until 1931.

In that year, it was again pointed out, the signatory powers will meet to consider wholesale revision of the pact. The Japanese tonight refused to discuss the mooted Japanese-American perpetual peace pact, further than to say that the reports on this subject were "greatly exaggerated and speculative."

Gibson Prepared. The American government has probably been advised that negotiations for such a pact are at least a possibility, and it is believed also that if Admiral Salto makes a definite move, Mr. Gibson will be in position to know what attitude to take.

Japan has officially informed the American delegation that she wants 70 per cent auxiliary warships to every 100 per cent that the United States. This means that Japan demands a ratio of 3.5, instead of 3, as fixed at Washington for capital ships, and the Americans must decide whether this augmentation can be agreed to.

The week ends with the Americans standing firmly against any reopening of the Washington treaty before 1931, when a second conference will be held at Washington with France and Italy participating, for the purpose of studying the size of warships in the light of the development of science.

FLAG ASSURES MEN BEST JOB ON EARTH—CAL

PRESIDENT SPEAKS TO LEGISLATORS OF DAKOTA.

Rapid City, S. D., June 25.—(AP)—Under an American flag, whipping from a pole on the front lawn of the summer White House, President Coolidge declared today that this emblem gave assurance of "best occupation or job on earth."

"That is what the American flag means," he told members of the South Dakota legislature and their families who had left their work at the capital city Pierre to bring him an official welcome.

"Anyone who is under the American flag," he added, "has an occupation or you may call it a job. No matter what field it is—in industry, agriculture or commerce, or whatever it may be—that person can be assured of the best job of anyone on earth. Naturally, we all want to better ourselves, but that is not better American ideal."

The legislators had come 200 miles from Pierre to welcome the president and Mrs. Coolidge, having recessed from a special session called to consider an appropriation bill vetoed at the regular session last spring. It was a gathering typical in every way of the great northwest and mingling with those whose dwelling bespoke their college breeding were those whose only education had been the wide stretches of nature that lay on every hand.

Well to the fore were the lawyers, bankers and a few merchants as well dressed and poised as Mr. Coolidge himself, and in back of them some farmer members, with the sunburned countenance of the corn and wheat fields. Before the president spoke, he with Mrs. Coolidge had shaken hands with the legislators. When he was called upon by H. E. Covey, lieutenant governor of the state, to say a few words, the president swerved from his announced intention of not speaking and said:

"I can scarcely let this opportunity pass without expressing my very sincere appreciation of the cordial invitation sent to me last summer by your state. Mrs. Coolidge and I found the location exceedingly acceptable to us. It reminds me very much of my native hills of Vermont, except that things here are perhaps on a larger scale."

When Mr. Coolidge had concluded his informal talk, a husky voiced member called out: "Let's hear from the first lady, too." The party of legislators and their families were swelled considerably by natives and tourists who seized the opportunity to slip into the informal reception line and shake hands with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

The president caused considerable laughter in his talk when he remarked, in comparing Vermont with the Black Hills, that "some of the fish here don't look quite natural—some of the trout are larger than I caught as a boy."

"But that is just an example," he went on, "that things here are on a larger scale. The hills are higher. The plains wider. There's more cattle here. I see more brood mares followed by their colts and more sheep."

"But everything is the same type and of the same variety, and it makes me feel at home. Here, as there, we are under the same flag and wherever we are situated we are better conditioned than anyone else on earth."

"I want to thank you for inviting me here and more so for coming here."

Youth, 13, Shoots Mother, 2 Sisters, Then Kills Self

Columbus, Kansas, June 25.—(AP)—William Justice, 13, late today shot and killed his mother, probably fatally wounded two sisters, 9 and 17 years old and then killed himself, at his farm home near Mineral, Kansas.

The boy and his brother had been cultivating corn in a field nearby and it is believed he became deranged from the heat. William went to the house for a drink. Obtaining a 12 gauge shotgun he shot and killed his mother.

Calmly reloading the gun he then shot his two sisters, reloading and killed himself.

The two girls were rushed to a hospital at Pittsburg, Kansas. It is not believed either can live.

EXPLORER WILL STUDY ESKIMOS

MacMillan Embarks on Lengthy Voyage to Far North.

Wiscasset, Me., June 25.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander Donald B. MacMillan, noted Arctic explorer, started today on the first lap of his eleventh voyage in 19 years into the northern wastes. MacMillan's boats, the Bowdoin and Radio, carrying the 12 members of the Rawson-MacMillan-Field Museum expedition, sailed from here late this afternoon to spend 15 months in the frozen north to study punik ruins in Greenland, and to trace Eskimo legends that a strange race settled in that land centuries ago.

The expedition also will make a special study of meteorological conditions with reference to aviation. The Bowdoin and the Radio will anchor tonight at Christmas Cove.

In addition to the Bowdoin and the Radio, MacMillan's squadron included the Seeko, a 35-foot power boat. Study of the punik ruins will be made by Dr. Duncan Strong of Chicago, anthropologist for the Field Museum. Another member of the party is Kenneth Rawson, son of Frederick H. Rawson, Chicago banker, who is financing the expedition.

Before the boats got away the customary farewell exercises were held on the steps of the century old Congregational Church. MacMillan said the Bowdoin would be "frozen in" at Keuk, near Nain, at 58 north latitude, where a two-story frame building 45 feet by 24 will be constructed as a "guest house" for visiting Indians and Eskimos who will be studied. Others will remain on the Bowdoin to keep it warm and in fit condition.

The Radio will return about September 5, going to North Labrador next summer to bring them back. Next summer the men will go on to Baffin Land to further explore the coast and return in September, 1928.

Groesbeck Got Word of Petosky Normal School Site in '26

Lansing, June 25.—(AP)—The state board of education today was requested by a delegation from Petosky to indicate to Gov. Fred W. Green that the board in February 1926, transferred its action of selecting Petosky as a site for the fifth normal, to former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck. The northern city was selected by the old board in 1926 as the location for a proposed new normal school and record of the action was said to have been transferred to the governor at that time.

There appeared to be no record of the transfer in the governor's office, according to Wilford L. Coffey, superintendent of public instruction, and the present board was asked to transfer the action of the old board to Governor Green. The board sent a confidential report to the governor as a result of the request today.

Ludington Men Net Monster Sturgeon

Ludington, Mich., June 25.—(AP)—John Reinberg and son Wesley of Ludington, netted one of the largest sturgeon caught by local commercial fishermen in years, off Hig Point Sable Friday afternoon. The sturgeon weighed 175 pounds. He was six and one-half feet long. He was taken in a pond net and brought into the fishing boat by a noose, after a 30 minute battle. Bortel Brothers, commercial fishermen of Summit township, caught a sturgeon weighing 140 pounds at Big Point Sable the same afternoon.

STORM CLOUDS PART; FLYERS READY TO HOP

FIELD CROSS - WIND ONLY OBSTACLE TO START.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26.—(AP)—The monoplane "America" will hop off for France between 4 and 6 o'clock this morning if there is no cross wind on the field at that time.

Shortly before 1 o'clock Grover Whalen, vice president of the America Trans-Oceanic company, announced that a take-off should be positively decided on if the winds swing around to make leaving the runway possible.

At that time the wind was southeast and would have to swing almost to due west to give the plane the head wind it needs to take the air.

A cross-wind makes a hop-off impossible. The wind during the night had been swinging in the right direction and it was believed it would be in excellent position by dawn.

Conditions Not Ideal. "We have decided to go," Whalen said. "Conditions are not ideal, but we have never asked that."

"They are good and if this local wind gets right to let the ship into the air it will start as soon as it's all loaded."

He set the earliest possible moment for a takeoff at 4 o'clock and said that if the wind was not right then they would stand by until 6. If the wind should not come around by then, he said, the flight would be put off another day as an early morning take-off is deemed advisable.

At Whalen's statement, activity was redoubled about the great plane, where it squatted in the glare of an army searchlight at the top of the runway.

The men who had been pumping gasoline into the great tanks for the past hour accelerated their motions and mechanics oiled and greased and tested stays and bolts as though racing against time.

Food Packed Away. Food for the flyers was packed away in the cabin, two roast chickens, 20 sandwiches, coffee and tea.

Com. Richard E. Byrd and his three associates, Bert Acosta, George Noville and Bert Balchen, continued to rest, or try to rest, at their hotel in Garden City as the final preparations were made for their flight.

With the dying of the wind a fine rizzle started falling but it was not believed this would develop enough to do any damage.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 25.—(AP)—Reports of favorable weather conditions for a flight to Paris received here at 10:10 o'clock tonight caused Commander Richard E. Byrd to instruct his "shipmates" in the giant monoplane "America" to "go to bed and get some sleep" in case it should be decided to take off for Paris at dawn tomorrow.

Grover A. Whalen, vice president of the America Trans-Oceanic company, sponsors of the America's proposed non-stop flight across the Atlantic, speaking for Commander Byrd, said the final decision as to a takeoff in the morning would be announced at midnight.

The latest weather report received from the United States weather bureau in New York showed that it was clear but stormy and that a high pressure area, or good weather "wave" was "building up" off Newfoundland.

Local Wind Adverse. Whalen informed the weather bureau by telephone that the wind was blowing almost due south across the field, pointing out that a westerly wind would be needed for the takeoff.

"The wind is a local one and will shift around to the southwest," said the weather man, "before 4 o'clock in the morning."

Whalen appeared optimistic but declined to express any opinion as to whether or not an early Sunday morning start for Paris would be decided upon.

Meanwhile, the big three-motored Fokker monoplane stood on a specially constructed mound at the east end of the Roosevelt Field runway, practically ready to go as soon as the weather man, who holds the post of unofficial starter, gave the word. The "America" had more than 300 gallons of gasoline in her tanks. T. Harold Kinkade of the Wright Aeronautical corporation said only two hours would be required to fuel the plane to her capacity of 1300 gallons.

At 11:35 Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautical association, arrived at the hangar. Adams came from Washington Thursday to seal the barograph before the flight starts.

He was asked whether his appearance meant that a hop-off was certain for the coming dawn. "Oh, no," he replied. "But the weather man told me this afternoon there was a fifty-fifty chance of a fight so I came out from town. There's a possibility all right. I wanted to be right at hand."

Just before midnight a great army searchlight was brought over on a truck from Mitchell Field and trained on the "America."

The light was so strong that it made the ship plainly visible from the hangar, three-quarters of a mile away. The "America" perched like a great lustrous moth in the surrounding darkness, as mechanics hustled about greasing up the landing gear and testing struts and stay wires.

At this time no definite word had yet been received concerning a hop-off from Commander Byrd.

James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist, however, reached on the telephone by newspapermen at the hangar, said one storm was brewing in Pennsylvania and another was sweeping over from Lake Erie.

"In my opinion," he said, "it would take fancy navigating for the 'America' to get off at 4 o'clock in the morning."

Four o'clock in the morning, Byrd has said, is the best time for a take-off as the air has better lift at that time and by leaving at that time daylight is assured over the first leg of the flight to Newfoundland.

Weapons Taken from Rum Officials

Detroit, June 25—(AP)—Elimination of the use of firearms or other weapons by members of the border prohibition patrol here and of all ruthless or perilous actions by federal officers assigned to prevent smuggling, effective immediately, was announced today by Carey D. Ferguson, collector of customs for the port of Detroit.

"The use of any unnecessary force by officers working under my supervision, will not be tolerated and no ruthless or perilous actions will be employed on the Detroit river or anywhere else in this district," Mr. Ferguson said. "I have instructed all officers to refrain from the use of firearms or other dangerous weapons except in self defense, and I have told them in explicit terms that any unnecessary reckless conduct on their part will be grounds for dismissal. They are to be guided solely by the provisions of the law in enforcing the law in a manner that will command respect. It is not my desire to use illegal means to enforce the law or to invade the constitutional rights of anyone."

One federal prohibition officer from this district was recently convicted in federal court on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of a mail carrier who he shot to death when he mistook the man for a rum runner. Charges are pending against another for the killing of a father and his young daughter who were run down and drowned in their launch by a prohibition patrol boat.

SOCIAL

Belts-Weycker.

A pretty June wedding was solemnized at the parsonage of the Salem Evangelical Lutheran church at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Elsie S. Belts, daughter of Mrs. Augusta Belts, 225 North Eleventh street, became the bride of Clarence G. Weycker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Weycker, 1014 Eighth avenue south. Rev. Christ A. F. Doehler performed the ceremony. Miss Luella Weycker, sister of the bridegroom, and Daniel Hawkins, a close friend, were the attendants.

The bride presented a charming picture in a gown of pale green beaded georgette, with a contrasting white hat and white tulle scarf. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses. Her attendant was attired in a beautiful peach colored georgette gown with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's mother, covers being laid for thirty guests. The happy couple left for Milwaukee where they will make their future home. Out-of-town relatives and friends who attended the ceremony were Mrs. Peter Bloom of Iron Mountain and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lund of Gladstone.

Speedy Interurbans Collide; Four Dead

Dayton, O., June 25—(AP)—Four persons are known to be dead and fifteen reported injured in a head-on collision between a local and a limited traction car near McCook Field tonight. Additions may be made to the dead when reports are received from local hospitals where injured passengers were taken.

The known dead are: John Bemberton, Piqua, motor man on local car.

Harley Folkert, 26, Tipppecanoe City, nursery employee.

Ben Reed, address unknown.

V. Julius, address unknown.

The cars telescoped when the limited car, which had disobeyed instructions according to officials of the Dayton and Troy Traction company, crashed head-on into the local. The northbound limited failed to heed instructions that the two cars should pass at "number 100" and passed that point.

The cars stayed upright on the track, but were badly splintered after the crash. Witnesses say that more than one-third of the inside of the local car was engulfed by the northbound limited.

LEAPS TO WALK TO CHEAT FIRE

John Saladuka Wakes Up to Find Room Full of Smoke.

Awakened by the smoke fumes from a burning mattress on which he was sleeping, John Saladuka escaped possible death from suffocation at 9:50 o'clock last night when he leaped through the second story window of his rooming house, 1605 Sheridan Road, to the cement walk below.

Saladuka, it is said, went to sleep smoking a cigarette. He had been dozing only a short while when smoke from the smoldering mattress awakened him.

Frantically snatching the burning bed clothing, Saladuka attempted to drag it through the door. This failing, he sought vainly for some water to extinguish the blaze.

Almost overcome by the dense smoke which filled the upstairs, Saladuka staggered to the window of his bedroom and leaped to the sidewalk below. Passersby noticed him lying on the ground and heeding his cries, called the fire department. The fire was easily put out with chemicals.

Saladuka is painfully but not seriously injured.

15 Planes Qualify for Ford Air Tour

Detroit, June 25—(AP)—Fifteen airplanes, ranging in type from the small "touring" model to the big three-motored Ford transport, capable of carrying eight passengers and two pilots, had qualified tonight for the national air tour starting from the Ford airport here at 10 a. m. Monday.

In the preliminary tests, completed today, Harvey C. Mumert, piloting a Mercury, entered from Hammondsport, N. Y., made the highest speed, 130.3 miles an hour.

Clyde P. Clevenger was first in the takeoff tests, when he took his plane off in 9.96 seconds. In the landing tests, Randolph C. Page, in Hamilton metal plane, Milwaukee's entry, took first honors by bringing his machine to a dead stop in 5.93 seconds from the instant his landing gear touched the ground.

It was officially announced today that the distance of the tour, taking the contestants from Detroit to the Atlantic seaboard, thence to Dallas, Texas, Omaha, Neb., Chicago and back to Detroit, will total 4,006 miles. Stops are planned in 24 cities.

Cathedral Saved by Cement in Big Gaps

Berlin—A collapse which threatened to destroy the famous cathedral at Mayence has been averted after two years of strenuous and often dangerous effort.

Great cracks had appeared in the walls and supporting pillars of the venerable structure, some of them wide enough to permit a man's arm to be inserted.

The work of filling in the gaps with cement seemed so dangerous that the workers refused to start their tasks until the men directing the operations preceded them. Ten thousand cubic meters of cement have been poured into the foundations the last two years. The structure is now regarded as safe.

Among those indicted were I. F. Rouse, vice president of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, and S. C. Lewis, resigned president of the Julian Petroleum Corporation. Both were charged with two counts of conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses and violating the state corporate securities act.

Lewis and 13 others appeared in superior court and posted bonds of $200,000 to guarantee their appearance later. Lewis and Rouse each put up $25,000.

Michigan Printers Gather for Confab

Flint, Mich., June 25—(AP)—Delegates to the twentieth annual convention of the Michigan Typographical Union which opens Monday, began to arrive today and the majority of the 250 visitors are expected by noon Sunday.

Frank J. Morrison of New York, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, who is a member of the printers' union, and Seth R. Brown of Los Angeles, first vice president of the International Typographical Union have accepted invitations to attend the convention.

On tomorrow's program will be a baseball game in the morning between teams of printers from the Saginaw News Courier and the Flint Journal.

The business sessions will open Monday and continue through Tuesday.

Sixteen Injured in Crossing Accident

East St. Louis, Ill., June 25—(AP)—Sixteen persons were injured, four seriously, when a limited train of the East St. Louis and Suburban Railway company sideswiped a special car of the same line on the Oak Hill, Ill., siding late today. The seriously injured were brought to a hospital here.

Humorists Lampoon Standard Utensils

Berlin—Frau Marie Elisabeth Leuders, member of the German Reichstag who was selected as one of the three women to represent the feminist organizations of the world at the Geneva economic conference, must submit to a good deal of "kidding" by the newspapers because of her campaign at Geneva in favor of the "typification and standardization of household implements."

Editorial paragraph writers picture a future world in which French, Germans, and Russians will use salt cellars made exactly alike, where the nations on both sides of the Atlantic will buy shoes that do not vary in the slightest as to shape and model, and the Japanese, American and Mexican housewife will use exactly the same pots and pans for cooking.

Form Coalition Against U. S. Movie Invasion

Paris—Europe expects soon to form a movie coalition against America.

Charles Delac, representing French producers, distributors and exhibitors, recently told a German organization representing the industry there, that the two countries will shortly, by force of circumstances, co-operate for their own and for Europe's protection. France, Germany, Italy, England and possibly Spain are regarded as likely to join the European "bloc" to resist the American "invasion," as it is called.

France asks only reciprocity from Germany. It is recognized by all the European movie chiefs that there must be interchange of pictures to afford variety. The American proportion is considered altogether too large and many, like Delac, take it for granted there will be some sort of "protection" to restrict the number of American pictures.

Rich Oregon Woman Strangled to Death

Portland, Ore., June 25—(AP)—Her half-clad body stretched out on her bed, her hands tied behind her back and her feet bound together, Mrs. Zell Stebbins, 32, was found strangled to death in her well-furnished apartment in a residential district here today. It was believed the crime was committed yesterday.

A man's handkerchief, wadded up, had been stuffed in the woman's mouth as a gag. No evident motive had been discovered by police tonight. A pillow slip had been rolled up and bound tightly around the woman's throat. A quilt partly covered her body.

Windsor Breweries Sell to Purchaser

Windsor, June 25—(AP)—With lower prices prevailing and a greatly facilitated delivery system, the three local breweries today began selling beer direct to the purchaser.

Permit holders welcomed the new regulation, and the breweries did a thriving business. A government representative is stationed at each brewery and acts in an advisory capacity. Five cartons of beer each containing 24 pints, may be purchased for approximately seven cents a bottle, in quantity lots.

Atlantic Aviators in Czecho-Slovakia

Marienbad, Czecho-Slovakia, June 25—(AP)—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine visited two famous cities of Czecho-Slovakia today.

Hopping off from Prague this morning the trans-Atlantic flyers landed at 10:15 a. m. at Pilsen. After being guests of honor at a luncheon they visited the famous brewery where Pilsener beer is made and continued their flight during the afternoon to this city.

The aviators were received with great enthusiasm wherever they appeared.

Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Levine motored to Carlsbad this afternoon and returned to Marienbad to attend a banquet in honor of the aviators.

Tomorrow Chamberlin and Levine intend to hop off for Warsaw and it is understood that from there they would fly to Moscow, thereby delaying their arrival at Paris.

Coal operators in Ohio and Pennsylvania who compete with the West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia mines for the lake cargo trade are expected to protest the reduction and, another fight is foreseen before the change is allowed to become effective.

Cases before the commission involving the lake cargo rates have been heard, re-heard and heard again, and adjustments made in them several times. Any fluctuation in the freight rates affects the production of thirty million tons of coal annually, switching the business from northern to southern mines, or vice versa as advantage appears.

CITIES APPROVE CONCRETE LOOP

Escanaba Chamber of Commerce Suggests Road Around Lake.

The Escanaba Chamber of Commerce suggestion that cities on all sides of Lake Michigan make a concerted effort to secure a "concrete loop" around the lake, has been enthusiastically received in all the districts through which the proposed trail would pass.

Replies to letters sent out by Secretary O. I. Bandoen, without exception, have voted approval of the proposal. Several influential newspapers have backed it with sympathetic editorials and civic and commercial organizations also have promised cooperation.

Letters were still coming in yesterday and probably will continue to reach Mr. Bandoen's office for several days. Not all of those who received the letters have had time to reply.

Improvement Necessary

The Sheboygan Press was one of the first Wisconsin newspapers to comment on the suggestion. "We are heartily sold upon the plan proposed by the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce," said an editorial in Tuesday's issue of that paper. "If tourists are to be encouraged and these residents of these four states are to share the pleasure that a route of that character furnishes, it will be necessary to permanently improve the highway. You can set along with gravel for local purposes but it is like squandering your money to fill in every spring and after every heavy rainfall." Commenting on the scenic beauties of the route, the fact that about 600 miles of the 1000 miles of the route already is concrete, the Press continues: "All Power to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce! The entire population of Wisconsin ought to back a program of this character, providing, as it does, an avenue whereby the people of the Badger State can enjoy the marvelous wonders at their own doorstep that have been denied them through lack of proper highways."

"A Loop of Loops"

The Michigan City (Indiana) News, Wednesday, in an editorial, said:

"A loop of this kind would be a loop of all loops. One of the most beautiful and enjoyable of automobile tours surely would be the one looping Lake Michigan. The route contemplated is over highways already established, a considerable portion of which is already concreted, leaving only a few short links—a comparatively few miles—to be completed. The completion of these links would afford a tour of approximately 1,000 miles which would traverse a country which is a revelation to millions in the central west.

The news then reprints most of Mr. Bandoen's letter, and adds: "It might be added that the concrete ribbon loop around Lake Michigan would fit in nicely with the new 200-foot concrete highway now under way from the Wisconsin state line through Illinois and Indiana to Michigan City."

Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, says: "Of course we would like to see the entire route concreted and will do all within our power to hasten the concreting of the Wisconsin section. To that extent we are with you, and will make an earnest effort to secure the early completion of a concrete highway looping Lake Michigan."

Well Known Editors Respond

Felix M. Church, publisher of the Grand Haven Tribune is another influential newspaper man who quickly endorsed the proposal. "The Grand Haven Daily Tribune is heartily in favor of the proposal." "Let's go," he writes.

Harry Musselwhite, another widely known newspaper man, publisher of the Manistee News-Advocate says: "I want you to know that I heartily endorse the project. This drive, which I have taken a couple of times, even when the sand between St. Ignace and Manistee was pretty deep in spots and deeper in others, is wholly delightful and unsurpassed for scenic beauties. Probably a concerted effort through an organization of representatives of interested cities on both sides of the lake would be the best means of getting action."

Ivan C. Lewis, manager of the Hart Courier, is another Lower Michigan publisher who has made the loop. "The writer made this trip long before 1924 and it was the most enjoyable automobile tour I ever made," he says. "There is little doubt but what a concrete road would greatly increase the number of tourists."

Edward E. Smith, secretary of the Oshkosh Chamber of Commerce says: "Wisconsin's part of the loop is about completed. Special effort will be made to concrete the balance of 41 as quickly as possible. A Looping Lake Michigan Association may be practical when we have hard surfaced roads which will stand the heavy traffic."

Racine Favors It

The Racine Association of Commerce, through J. A. Beard, secretary of the retail division, says: "As an officer of this Association and also secretary of the Racine Motor Club, I certainly am in favor of any proposition that will secure the early completion of a concrete highway Looping Lake Michigan. I think the best way to accomplish this would be to organize a Lake Michigan Loop Association. You can count on the writer on this proposition at any time."

"Looping Lake Michigan. Why not?" asks C. F. Coffman, editor of the Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter. "The plan offers every advantage, more so than is generally appreciated."

L. C. Harvey, secretary of the Oconto Chamber of Commerce replies that his organization believes an organized effort to secure the concreting of the loop should be made, and that an association should be formed. He points out that Wisconsin's portion of the Loop will be completed soon.

All Comments Favorable

The matter will be referred to the Chamber of Commerce directorate at St. Joseph by its secretary, Ray W. Davis at the next meeting, Mr. Davis writes.

No project, launched in this section, has aroused so much enthusiastic endorsement. Of the replies received thus far, all have been favorable. Many more replies are expected within the next few days.

St. Francis Shower to Be Held Sunday

The linen shower for St. Francis hospital has been planned for Sunday, July 3, when the articles which have been promised will be delivered at the institution and arranged on display for the dedication which will be held Sunday, July 10.

Anyone planning on donating articles for the hospital is urged to bring them to the sisters during the week or next Sunday as some of the articles are to be used to decorate and furnish the rooms for the opening at which time the doors will be thrown open to the general public for inspection.

Several articles have already been received and these will be displayed with those donated during the coming week. Many articles of linen will be needed for the new building and for the chapel. Many useful gifts have already been presented to the hospital, for which the sisters are very grateful. A list of sizes and articles needed can be secured at any time at the hospital, if anyone wishes to make them at home.

THE TINYMITES Story by Hal Cochran—Pictures by Knick

The pelicans and Tinymites were surely funny looking sights. The blackness from the smoke cloud made them dark as they could be. Said Scouty, "I am not so keen for soot. I wish that I were clean. I'm glad that we're up in the air where no one else can see."

Then Clowny snapped, amid deep sighs, "The soot is getting in my eyes. I feel just like I'd crawled clear through a stove pipe full of dust. Let's hope the wind will blow it loose. For soot like this we have no use." The others all agreed with him, with very deep disgust.

They sailed along on hour or so, just praying that the wind would blow, but everything was very still, with not a trace of breeze. The Tinymites kept peering out from where they rode, and looking 'bout. They hoped that they'd fly low enough to hop off in some trees.

But all the pelicans stayed high. Then everyone heard Carpy cry, "Oh look, below. What's that I see?" We've passed away from land." And, sure enough, not far below they saw a little brooklet flow. Said Copy, "Gee, if we could wash that surely would be grand."

Just at this moment every bird, as if what Carpy said they'd heard, began to drop down toward the stream. The Tinies all were glad. Said Scouty, "Here's where we all get a ducking 'till we're soaking wet. I'll bet the water's chilly, but at that 'twont be so bad."

The pelicans then swooped down low and Clowny shouted, "Here we go." And, as they hit the water it was quite a thrilling scene. The birds dove in and out again a dozen times or so, and then the Tinymites soon noticed that they all were washed up clean.

COLONEL OLIVER VISITS BROTHER

High Army Man Returns to Fort After Short Stay Here.

Col. L. W. Oliver, a former resident of Escanaba returned last night to Fort Riley, Kan., after visiting for several days with his brother, Clinton Oliver in this city.

Col. Oliver was born in Escanaba and attended school here. He is a graduate of Escanaba high school and attended two years at Michigan university before entering West Point military academy from which he was graduated as Second Lieutenant in 1899.

As Sec. Lieutenant, Col. Oliver served in Cuba and in the Philippines. In 1901 he was appointed First Lieutenant. After five years of competent service he was made a captain in 1906 in which rank he remained until 1917.

With the entry of the United States into the World War Col. Oliver was made a major and was chief of staff of the sixteenth division stationed at San Diego, Cal. He was also chief of staff at the port of embarkation at Hoboken, N. J., during 1917 and 1918. The regiments of which Col. Oliver, then a Major, was chief of staff were in charge of officers and ships and had two large camps in the suburbs of New York.

In 1920, due to his competent service as major at the port of embarkation, Colonel Oliver was made a Lieutenant Colonel in which capacity he served until 1923 when he was made Colonel and put in charge of Fort Riley cavalry division in Kansas.

Although Colonel Oliver was in high rank during the World War he did not serve overseas. He was more valuable to the country as chief of staff at San Diego and at Hoboken.

The Fort Riley cavalry school is ranked foremost among regiments of its kind in the world by army officials. The school is exceptionally well known because of its rigid teachings. A riding team from the Fort Riley regiment will be entered in the Olympic games in 1928.

Four polo teams have been organized at the Fort, one of which plays today at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in the finals of the Rocky Mountain circuit polo tournament.

During his visit with his brother, Colonel Oliver spent his time enjoying the fishing facilities in this section and in renewing old acquaintances. "Although I have not been in Escanaba for many years I am glad to get back here and see my old friends," Colonel Oliver said yesterday.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY

Out from the western ranch where Mary Roberts Rinehart has been chasing sunsets during odd summer months, there has come a tale to which the author has applied the unwestern title of "Lost Ecstasy" (Doran).

For some time the range riders for Moss, Doran have been shooting their way into the cabin of this particular chuck-line writer, and have stood whooping it up for Mrs. Rinehart's forthcoming volume. We have been told that it was Mrs. Rinehart's very best; that it was a fine chronicle of the passing of the cattle barons; that it would be the summer's very biggest seller. We are certain of the latter.

Let us peer within the covers. On Page 1, old Uncle Lucius Dowling lies dying, leaving his ranch and steers and cowboys to his city-dwelling offspring, not the least of whom is Kay, the bobbed-haired granddaughter.

Love Takes a Hand. On Page 15 they all are headed toward the cobalt blue of the western hills, including Herbert, "papa's secretary," who is soft and clubbish and has lanolin hair. Does he love Kay? And how!

On Page 21 "a tall figure moved forward, touched his Stetson hat, stood immobile." It was Tom McNair, the handsome, devil-may-care cowpuncher. On Page 23 they have reached the ranch. Sub-title: "Good night, Mr. McNair..." "His smile warmed and even thrilled her."

Oh, yes, Tom McNair had sex appeal, as all the girls within 40 miles of the ranch had reason to know. By Page 35 he is taking Kay for a ride out on the range, is singing a verse from "The Cowboy's Lament," and "he was astounded to see tears in her eyes." She has puffed a cigaret and Tom has told her "nice ladies don't smoke out here."

Here Comes the Clash. Meanwhile conversations between characters are overheard as casually out there in the great open spaces as they are from behind the screen of drawing rooms in the second act. Can it be she is falling in love with Tom? This cannot go on! They live in different worlds. East is sophisticated and west is cowpuncher and never the twain shall mingle.

Page 50—Herbert, the secretary, and Tom have clashed over who's going to take Kay to a party. Subtitle: "He's not your kind!" "Ah, but he's a man, and because you know he's a man and not a tailor's dummy, you're afraid!"

Pages 60 to 80—Tom has gone down to the round-up, won prizes, and gone on a swell drunken debauch. What sort of a cowboy hero is it who doesn't? Kay, thinking she has driven him to drink, meets him upon his return, clad in her nightie. Moonlight. Camera! Subtitle: "I'm not worth it!" "Tom!"

The Superficial East. Back east again. How superficial they all are! Kay is writing from love. They all see it and hoot!

another cocktail. Meanwhile Tom, who stayed west, has killed a convenient Indian, which gives the plot a chance to send him scooting east to join Kay. Of course Tom gets swanked on city cocktails, becomes the butt of the city boys, and loses a motorist. In disgrace he flees westward. But Kay has seen the bull in the china shop, as it were.

Back east again. Kay decides to wed Herbert, the secretary. But her heart's in the west. Shh, there we have the title cue: "lost ecstasy!" Meanwhile, the ranch game on the frits, Tom has gone riding with a circus outfit.

Does Kay go to the show and see him? Don't be foolish, Gertrude! Subtitle: "Suddenly she knew what she was going to do. She was going to Tom McNair if he wanted her."

Tom gets shot up in an old feud. Things go from bad to worse. He takes to cattle raising. But it doesn't go. Kay, the city daughter, toils and sweats. There is a show-down. Tom beats it. But why go on? They get together on the last page again! Wherever we rest our case. The last part of the book is the best. There is some shrewd writing, with long flashes of character comprehension.

For further information on cowpunchers we refer you to anything by Will James or Ross Santee, both of whom have "punched." For the most part "Lost Ecstasy" seems to us cliché-cluttered and done in the fashion of the subtitles.

Some day someone really is going to write a novel of the west and there will be no "cowbody and the lady" situation in it.

Cutworm, Creature Of Night, Killed By Poisoned Bran

Cutworms, foes of the truck patch, are night time bandits. Their depredations show next morning when the sun winks the seedling tomatoes, the cabbage leaves, lettuce and melons eaten during nocturnal revelry.

The cutworm is the young, or caterpillar, of the night-flying moth. His whole life is made up of darkness. The exception is observed on cloudy, gloom-cast days, when the worm may come from a convenient hole in the ground to feast upon young, tender plant leaves and stalks.

The moth lays its eggs upon plants or other objects and in some cases directly on the ground. The eggs hatch into cutworms of many descriptions. The common ones are stout, soft-bodied, smooth or nearly smooth and cylindrical. They vary in color from gray to brown or nearly black, and sometimes are spotted or marked with stripes.

Many kinds of cutworms go through the winter in the soil and begin work again early in the spring. In addition to vegetable crops they attack ornamental plants and field crops.

It's a slow process, but cutworms may be found individually and killed—after their night's damage is done. Invariably they will burrow to a shallow depth beside the plant on which they have fed.

Cutworms can be destroyed by using a poisoned bran bait. A reliable mixture is 1 peck of 5 pounds of bran; 1-4 pound of white arsenic or Paris green; 1 pint of syrup or molasses, and 3 or 4 quarts of water. For more extensive use the ingredients may be increased proportionately.

U. S. entomologists warn that it is necessary to thoroughly mix the poison and the bran so that each particle will carry enough poison to kill. The syrup and water should be mixed and then added to the mixed bran and poison. Stirring should be done slowly.

The bait should be placed along the rows or about the base of the plant, in the evening. Care should be taken to keep the mixture away from animals or irresponsible persons.

13,000 Feet Up In Darkness And Fog Lindbergh Dived From Plane

Thirteen thousand feet up in the night air, with the perils of darkness compounded many times by dense, clammy fog that no eye or light could pierce—

The gasoline tanks of his airplane drained dry during a vain search for a landing place—

There was "Charlie" Lindbergh, the boy marvel of aviation.

What happened? Lindbergh himself tells in this second of two articles on how he cheated death while flying the night air mail over Illinois on November 8 last.

Lindbergh's official report of the almost fantastic experience is presented by The Press through NEA Service.

By Charles A. Lindbergh
In an Official Air Mail Service Report.

I took off from Lambert-St. Louis Field at 4:20 p. m. November 3, arrived at Springfield, Ill., at 5:15 and after a five-minute stop for mail took the air again and headed for Peoria.

The ceiling at Springfield was about 600 feet, and the weather report from Peoria, which was telephoned to St. Louis earlier in the afternoon, gave the flying conditions as entirely passable.

I encountered darkness about 25 miles north of Springfield. The ceiling had lowered to around 400 feet and a light snow was falling. At South Pekin the forward visibility of ground light from a 150-foot altitude was less than 1/4 mile and over Pekin the town lights were indistinct from 200 feet above.

After passing Pekin I flew at an altimeter reading of 600 feet for about five minutes, when the lightness of the haze below indicated that I was over Peoria. Twice I could see lights on the ground and descended to less than 200 feet before they disappeared from view. I tried to bank around one group of lights, but was unable to turn quickly enough to keep them in sight.

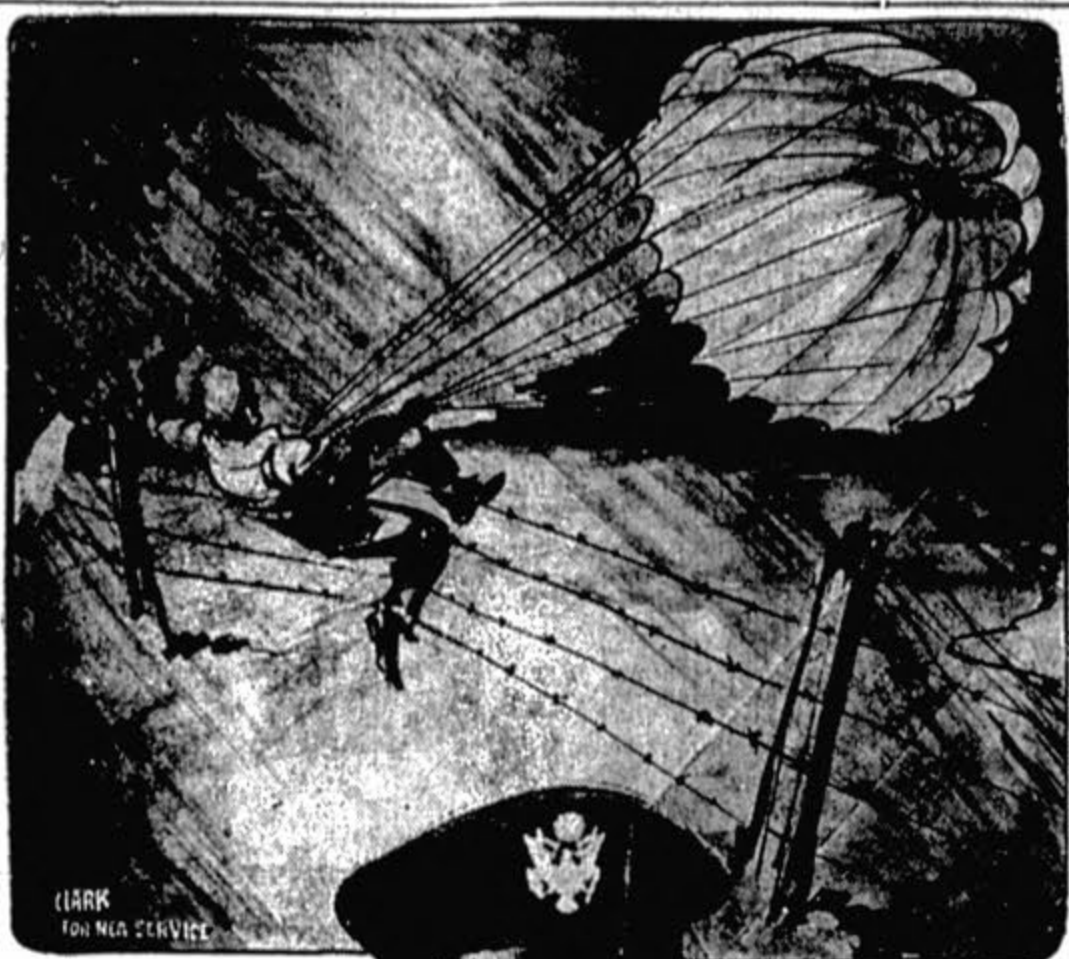

On to Chicago

After circling in the vicinity of Peoria for 20 minutes I decided to try to find better weather conditions by flying northeast toward Chicago. I had ferried a ship from Chicago to St. Louis in the early afternoon and at that time the ceiling and visibility were much better near Chicago than elsewhere along the route.

Enough gas for about 1 hour and ten minutes flying remained in the main tank and twenty minutes in the reserve. This was hardly enough to return to St. Louis even had I been able to navigate directly to the field by dead reckoning and flying blind the greater portion of the way. The only lights along our route at present are on the field at Peoria, consequently, unless I could pick up a beacon on the Transcontinental route my only alternative would be to drop the parachute flare and land by its light together with what little assistance the wing lights would be in the snow and rain. The territory towards Chicago was much more favorable for a night landing than that falls to St. Louis.

Flare Falls to Work

I flew northeast at about 2000 feet for thirty minutes then dropped down to 600 feet. There were numerous breaks in the clouds this time and occasionally ground lights could be seen from over 500 feet. I passed over a few minutes later came to a fairly clear place in the clouds. I pulled up to about 600 feet, released the parachute flare, whipped the ship around to get into the wind and under the flare which lit at once but instead of floating down slowly, dropped like a rock. For an instant I saw the ground, then total darkness. My ship was in a steep bank and for a few seconds after being blinded by the intense light I had trouble righting it. I then tried to find the ground with the wing lights, but their glare was worse than useless in the haze.

When about ten minutes gas remained in the pressure tank and still I could not see the faintest outline of any object on the ground I decided to leave the ship rather than attempt to land blindly. I turned back southwest toward less populated country and started climbing in an attempt to get over the clouds before jumping.

The Last Chance

The main tank went dry at 7:51, and the reserve at 8:10. The altimeter then registered approximately 14,000 feet yet the top of the clouds was apparently several thousand feet higher. I rolled the stabilizer, cut the switches, pulled the ship up into a stall, and was about to go out over the left side of the cockpit while the airspeed registered about 70 miles per hour and the altimeter 13,000 feet.

I pulled the rip cord immediately after clearing the stabilizer. The Irving chute functioned perfectly. I had left the ship head first and was falling in this position when the risers whipped me around into an upright position and the chute opened.

Down Through the Snow

The last I saw or heard of the D. H. was as it disappeared into the clouds just after my chute opened. I placed the rip cord in my pocket and took out my flashlight. It was snowing and very cold. For the first minute or so the parachute descended smoothly, then commenced an excessive oscillation which continued for about five minutes and which I was unable to check.

The first indication that I was near the ground was a gradual darkening of the space below. The snow had turned to rain and although my chute was thoroughly soaked its oscillation had greatly decreased. I directed the beam from the 500-foot spotlight downward but the ground appeared so suddenly that I landed directly on top of a barbed wire fence without seeing it.

He Wasn't Hurt

The fence helped to break my fall and the bars did not penetrate the heavy flying suit. The chute was blown over the fence and was held open for some time by the gusts of winds before collapsing. I rolled it up into its pack and started toward the nearest light. Soon I came to a road which I followed about a mile to the town of Corvill, Ill. I telephoned a report to St. Louis and endeavored to obtain some news of where the ship had landed. The only information that I could obtain was from one of a group of farmers in the general store, a Mr. Thompson, who stated that his neighbor had heard the plane crash but could only guess at its general direction.

I rode with Mr. Thompson to his farm and after leaving the parachute in his house we canvassed the neighbors for any information concerning the plane. After searching for over an hour without result I left instructions to place a guard over the mail in case it was found before I returned and went to Chicago for another ship.

Finds the Wreck

On arriving over Corvill the next morning I found the wreck with a small crowd gathered about it less than 500 feet back of the house where I had left the parachute. The nose and wheels had struck the ground at about the same time and after sliding along for about 75 feet it had piled up in the pasture beside a hedge fence. One wheel had come off and was standing inflated against the wall of the inside of a hog house a hundred yards further on. It had gone through two fences and the wall of the house. The wings were badly splintered but the tubular fuselage although badly bent in places, had held its general form even in the mauling. The parachute from the flare was hanging on the tailskid.

There were three sacks of mail in the plane. One, a full bag, from St. Louis, had been split open and some of the mail oil-soaked but legible. The other two were only partially full and were undamaged.

I delivered the mail to Maywood by plane to be dispatched on the next ships out.

Ontario had a ten-year drought. It passed a provincial temperance act in 1916, and stood by it until last fall. Of late years, however, it had been plainly apparent that the tide of public sentiment was going against prohibition.

The Swing of the Pendulum.

In 1918 retention of the temperance act was put up for popular vote. The drys won by a majority of around 407,000.

In 1921 there was a vote on whether the importation of liquors into the province should be prohibited. The dry majority shrank to 347,000.

In 1925 another plebiscite was held on prohibition. The drys won, but by a scant 34,000 majority.

Last year Premier Ferguson was finishing his first term. He had sponsored, a year previous, the introduction of 4.4 per cent beer, but it soon became apparent that this pleased nobody. So, last fall, Ferguson drafted his liquor control bill. It passed parliament by a huge majority, and Ferguson made it his sole plank in the provincial election.

The voters upheld it by a majority of nearly 300,000 votes.

Ontario Liquor Board Wields Weighty Powers; Responsible Citizen Heads It

BY ROY J. GIBBONS
NEA Service Writer

Toronto, Ont.—When Premier Ferguson saw an overwhelming majority uphold his "wet" platform in the 1926 elections, he promised to appoint "a strong man" as head of the Ontario Liquor Control Board. He has kept his promise.

D. B. Hanna, the man he named, formerly was president of the Canadian National Railways, and generally is considered one of the biggest men in Canada. Certainly he is one of the wealthiest. He is Chief Commissioner of the Liquor Control Board and has two assistants, R. J. Manion and Stewart McClenaghan.

No Appeal from Board's Rulings

The board, which has its headquarters here, wields a tremendous amount of power. It may do just about as it pleases in regulating the sale and distribution of liquor. It may sell to whom and when it pleases, any place in Ontario except in certain sections which are under local option. The law gives the board very wide discretionary powers, and there is no appeal from its rulings.

It may revoke or suspend citizen permits. It may determine the amount of liquor anyone can buy. It has sole charge of the licensing of breweries and distilleries and wineries.

Hanna thus outlines the situation:

"We are not going to make it hard for any persons to get a drink if they do so within the spirit and the letter of the law.

"But I want it strictly understood that we are not going to stand for any nonsense from anybody. We are not going to have Ontario made the scene of any bacchanalian riots or Belshazzar feasts.

TOPICS OF LIFE IN WASHINGTON

Washington.—The national capital has many points of singularity, but it seems to have a fairly normal police department.

Much of its time is devoted to tracking down erring motorists and similar amateur criminals in the absence of an adequate supply of skilled artisans. In misdemeanor, and its members take a lively interest in the outstanding news developments and sporting events when not too violently engaged otherwise.

While Captain Lindbergh was making aviation history and excellent time en route to Paris, the newspapers and press associations were, of course, deluged with telephone calls, with the police amply represented. One voice of authority which reached The Associated Press in that manner asked the usual question, and received the reply, "He's over Ireland."

"Ah," exclaimed the envious cap, "and ain't that grand place to be!"

A police department without at least one scoffer at the "13" hoodoo can hardly be considered well organized. Washington is a bit above the average in that respect, having a detective sergeant, Joseph Clifford Morgan, who not only enjoys a "Friday, the 13th" birthday now and then, but his mother and many other relatives have been born on the hoodoo date.

Another family slogan—"Married at 16; grandmother at 32"—may be rarer than Sergeant Morgan's predilection toward hoodoo numerology but it is becoming almost as firmly established and fully as distinguished in Washington. Mrs. Etta Sullivan, who is now 35, has two granddaughters, having become the capital's youngest grandmother at 32, the same age at which she elevated her own mother to that daughter, all married at 15 and were mothers at 16.

Just how mothers ought to regard "one-arm" driving is, and probably always will be, a warmly debated, unanswered question. Mrs. Sidonie Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Association, didn't attempt to answer it in her address before the American Child Health Association convention, but she did have a few words to say which might be applied by some mothers to the "one arm" issue.

"The mother must be friendly with her child," she said, "but she must also affect indifference regarding a thousand important details."

Caesar's Chariot Was a Humble Thing, After All

Back in the days when the Apian Way was the Broadway of the Roman empire and Mark Antony was trying to egg Caesar in to taking a third term, a man who inherited a chariot from his grandfather could go driving in it with the assurance that it would still be right in style.

But nowadays the world moves faster, and yesterday's snappy turnout is today's antique. In proof of this, gaze on the two pictures printed herewith.

Above is the latest thing in automobiles for the year 1905.

The wheel, you will notice, is on the right hand side. Nestling on the running board is a contrivance slightly smaller than a steamer trunk; this is the tank that generates gas for the headlights.

When night comes the driver descends, opens the light and applies a match—and everything is lovely if the wind isn't too strong.

Beside the seat is the big rubber bulb which, when squeezed, works the horn. Note how the headlights on the dashboard are covered with tarpaulins, so that they may be protected from dust and mud during the daytime.

Now here is the point of all this. This automobile was the first automobile ever owned by an inhabitant of Denison, Ill. The owner, sitting at the wheel, is E. C. Chamberlin, a jeweler. Besides sits his son, Clarence; in the rear seat are Mrs. Chamberlin, the daughter, Ethel, and a friend.

This car then was the very latest word, and you may be sure that young Clarence swelled with pride when he rode in it, perched high on the front seat.

Now cast your eyes on the lower picture.

It shows an airplane named Columbia. Standing beside it is the same Clarence Chamberlin who occupies the front seat in the upper picture.

Twenty-two years ago the automobile above was the finest thing in the way of transportation that engineers had been able to devise.

Today we have the Columbia. The world does move. Clarence Chamberlin, who has progressed in 22 years from the time-worn bus above to the natty transoceanic flyer below, can testify to it.

Ex-Teacher Puts Rule Of Law And Order In "Bloody Williamson"

By NEA Service

Marion, Ill.—A square-jawed, gray-eyed young man who used to be a high school teacher is just now putting the finishing touches on what everyone else figures was an impossible job.

He has restored law and order to "Bloody Williamson" county.

The man is Sheriff Oren Coleman. He is 38, a bachelor, a World War veteran and a University of Illinois graduate. Without any blare of publicity trumpets he has taken one of the hardest law enforcement jobs in the United States and has made good.

Peace Reigns Again

The bombings, machine gun battles, ambushes, massed fights and broad-daylight assassinations that formerly were regular features of Williamson county's every-day life are ended. The rival gangs that once ruled the county, with the ruthless freedom of medieval robber barons are broken up, their leaders in jail and their hangouts deserted.

Most astonishing of all—it is even getting relatively hard to get a drink in Williamson county!

To be sure, Coleman didn't do all of this unaided. It took co-operation—co-operation with federal officials, co-operation with sheriffs of other counties, co-operation with authorities in various cities. But one of Coleman's chief distinctions is that, in refreshing contrast to some of his predecessors, he was disposed to seek co-operation.

Coleman took office last December. The famous Williamson county gangs at that time ruled supreme. Charlie Birger and his henchmen were fighting the Shelton brothers and their followers for control of the district's rum-running business. They went about their work openly. They committed robberies and murders in broad daylight, and scored concealment afterward. It seemed as if Williamson county would never rid itself of them.

Arrests His Henchmen

First of all, Coleman called sheriffs and states attorneys of nearby counties into conference and got their pledges of co-operation. Then he saw to it that his deputies were given arms as good as those of the gangsters—army rifles, machine guns and bullet-proof vests. And then he got busy.

On December 27 he led three deputies to the home of Jackie Williams, north of Herrin, a hangout of the Birger gang. Coleman led his men in; the gangsters, taken by surprise, were unable to draw their guns, and, to their amazement, found themselves actually under arrest.

As a result of that raid, Harry Thomas, serving a life term for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams; Ray Hyland is under indictment and awaiting trial for another murder; and Ray Rone and Danny Brown are serving 10-year terms for other crimes.

A week later Coleman led his deputies out and brought in four men charged with the murder of H. S. Phillips, a Carbondale merchant. These men are now awaiting trial.

Then he turned his attention to the liquor trade that had been flourishing so freely. He began to move, and to move rapidly. Since the first of the year he has arrested more than 60 bootleggers. Not a single shot was fired in any one of the raids, and more than 40 of the 60 arrested promptly pleaded guilty without waiting for trial.

Arrests Birger Himself

At last, one morning, Williamson county citizens awoke to learn that Charlie Birger himself was under arrest charged with murder.

More, as days went by, it became evident that the charge was serious business, and that Birger was actually in trouble at last. Williamson county began to believe that a new order of affairs actually had dawned.

They were right. States Attorney Arlie O. Boswell predicts that in less than a year every gang war murder in Williamson county will have been cleared up. Herrin, Marion and adjacent towns are enjoying a taste of real law and order once more.

Coleman was by vocation a high school principal. Last year he was about to enter the race for county school superintendent when friends induced him to run for sheriff. He had never had any experience as an enforcement officer; but Williamson county was full of men who had been his pupils, and they had a pretty good idea of the sort of sheriff he would make. He was elected overwhelmingly.

When he took office Coleman made a few characteristic remarks.

"I ran for sheriff," he said, "not because I wanted office, but because I was dissatisfied with the way things were going and the events that were taking place. We don't need laws so much as we need enforcement.

Not Acting 'Glory'

"I'm not seeking any glory in this office. I don't want anyone to refuse support or help because they fear I will succeed. I'll sign a pledge before God that I will not run for any office if that will cause the people of this country to get back of me and give me their whole-hearted support."

He has said very little since then. He has made a reputation for tactfulness. Charlie Birger once remarked, "This is the only sheriff in southern Illinois I can't call over the phone and engage in conversation."

One of Birger's lieutenants, sent around to Coleman's office shortly after election to find out what the gangsters might expect, reported, "This bird is pretty smart. He doesn't talk much."

But oh, how he has acted!

Manufacturing Centers Moving to South, West

Babson Park, Mass., June 25.—During the past three weeks Roger W. Babson has been making a survey of manufacturing conditions in the West and South. He has returned very optimistic on opportunities in certain Southern states and believes that the West will continue to do more and more manufacturing. His complete statement is as follows:

Difficulties Facing New England Manufacturers.

"For some time my New England friends have been complaining about the poor conditions in the textile mills and the shoe factories of New England. Moreover, their statements have been backed up by statistics. All published figures show that most New England mills have been suffering severely the past two or three years. This has resulted in a decline in the price of many mill stocks and a general breaking up of mills. Considering what New England has done for the entire country, and especially considering that New England created the textile industry and the shoe industry, this is at least unfortunate if not unjust. We know that New England has the capital and the brains to compete successfully with any part of the country. Moreover, its waterpower possibilities should give it very cheap hydro-electric service.

"Upon going West I visited St. Louis and some of the other Western shoe manufacturing centers. As reported, I found these busy. The St. Louis factories, which are now among the largest in the world, are very busy; while shoe factories in the smaller towns are not complaining. When reaching the textile centers of the South, I found the Southern cotton mills exceptionally busy. Many mills are working not only all day, but also all night. Coming from New England as I did (where mills are shut down entirely or working only two or three days a week) to the Southland and finding the mills working twenty-four hours a day, the change was very impressive. Moreover, the Southern manufacturers are apparently happy and very hopeful.

"Southern Success Due to Labor. In talking with some of the large mill owners of the South, I referred to the report in the North that Mr. Hines, the new head of the Cotton Manufacturers Association, has been given the task of 'eliminating night work in the Southern mills.' Southern manufacturers were very indignant at this report, stating that Mr. Hines' job is to secure additional use for cotton goods. This clearly illustrates the two different points of view between the North and the South. Southern mills are running nights primarily because there is an excess labor supply, but also because it is so cool nights that the employees prefer night work. I see little hope of getting Southern mills not to run nights so long as they can sell the goods. I cannot speak too highly of the character of the Southern white labor who are working in these mills. They are a fine lot of men and women who come from the mountains with health, ambition and a desire to work.

"There is a spirit of friendliness and co-operation in these Southern mills which is unknown in New England cities. Of course, this same situation once existed in Lowell, Lawrence and other Massachusetts mill centers, and the South may not enjoy this condition fifty years hence, but today labor conditions there are ideal. It is a mistake to think that Southern mills are successful because they are near the cotton fields, or that Western shoe factories are successful because they are near the ranches. Freight rates on raw cotton or leather are very low and are little or no factor in the price of the manufac-

Beginning July 1st, jitney and regular dances will alternate every other Wednesday. Four local orchestras will furnish the music for the summer season. They are Midnight Entertainers, Arcadians, Johnson's and Lundin's.

General Business Outlook. "During this trip I did not find general business any better than was expected. The volume of business is good everywhere, but it is very hard to make profits on declining commodity prices. Many manufacturers called to my attention that this is the first time in history that commodity prices have declined while the country enjoyed a period of prosperity. They all wonder how long they can continue to keep their plants going and at the same time reduce prices. I tell them that they are just learning that the great World War is over. Apparently many manufacturers and merchants have failed to recognize this fact. This especially applies to the price of farm lands. Those farmers operating on pre-war conditions are doing very well, but those farmers who still think the war is on and expect to continue to receive wartime prices for land and grains are naturally unhappy, even though the Babsonchart still registers 8 per cent above normal.

"In conclusion let me say that I still have faith in New England. New England has always been handicapped. Its natural resources from the first consisted only of rocks and bushes; it has always lacked the rich fertile soil, the great timber forests, the inexhaustible ore supplies and the other natural resources of the West and South. On the other

SUPERVISORS MEET MONDAY

"Osier Township" Will Give Board Spirited Session.

The attempt of a number of residents of the northern part of Masonville township to organize a separate township to be known as Osier, will be one of the principal items of business to be taken up by the Delta county board of supervisors at its meeting Monday.

The proposed township would take 90 sections from the present township, being more than half of its present territory. Supervisor W. J. Miller of Masonville and other township officers will wage a determined fight against the proposed separation. It has been indicated. The Osier faction also has employed counsel and it is probable that the hearing before the board will be a spirited affair.

Medal Trails Bishop for Nineteen Months

Berlin (AP)—Dr. John L. Nuelson, bishop of the American M. E. church in charge of the central European area, has had the honorary cross of the German Red Cross trailing behind him for 19 months without knowing it.

Dr. Nuelson was finally located at Zurich, Switzerland, and the German consul-general there was instructed by the government to bestow it upon him formally. Bishop Nuelson has been an outstanding figure in relieving distress in central Europe and Russia since the war. The German government decided to bestow upon him the "honorary cross of the first class with ribbon." It is the highest decoration in the German republic.

The diploma granting the decoration was issued in November, 1925. Bishop Nuelson was then in the United States. The German embassy at Washington tried to locate him in New York and Cincinnati, but the bishop moved too fast and had always just left when the decoration reached the German consuls.

The honorary cross was returned to Berlin and eventually bestowed at Zurich.

Paris Visits Are Holidays for Prince

Paris (AP) Paris means holidays from official duties to the hard-working Prince of Wales.

When England's heir is in the city of pleasure he likes to throw off social obligations and enjoy himself as thoroughly as any American visitor. He is one of the enthusiastic patrons of the Montmartre's dance clubs.

When he was in Paris for a few days en route to Spain Wales made his stay a time of rest and relaxation. There were no official calls, aside from a brief visit to the British embassy. Morning rides in the Bois de Boulogne and fast games of squash ball at the newly opened squash rackets court were part of his program. Prince George was his companion on these expeditions. There was dancing nightly every night and several night clubs entertained the Prince of Wales unawares, not recognizing His Highness in the young man who was addressed as the Earl of Chester.

Show German Modes At Parisian Races

Paris (AP)—German mannequins are parading the fashions of Berlin at Paris race courses for the first time since the war. The group of buxom German mannequins causes much comment. They first appeared at Longchamps for the Sunday races wearing long ostrich feather boas and basket-weave straw hats which attracted much attention, as both are foreign to Parisian style this season.

French mannequins are indignant that the Berlin houses should send German girls to wear the German styles instead of employing French mannequins. French dressmakers now send large fashion collections to Berlin each season. Nearly all of the big houses have resumed their Berlin showings although the sales do not equal those of pre-war days.

HAS WEEK OF WEEKS.
Rochester, N. Y.—There were many events on Rochester's municipal program this month. During a single week, the town celebrated "egg week," "bicycle week," "clean-up and paint-up week," "hard-of-hearing week," "baby week," "lingerie week," and "Peter Pan week." In addition there were two murder investigations and a murder trial.

Arbor Day was started by ex-Gov. J. S. Morton of Nebraska. The first was celebrated in 1872.

Doughboy Pays for Trespassing to Fish

Berlin (AP)—Haunted by a guilty conscience for eight years because he sneaked over the fence and cast his hook and line in the waters of a private fishing ground near Koblenz, an unidentified former American doughboy with the occupational forces of Gen. Henry T. Allen has sent $10 with a letter of explanation to the fisherman who had leased the rights to that portion of the Rhine river. The veteran indicated that he felt a $10 bill was a fair price for three fish and a soothed conscience.

Fishing as well as hunting rights are rigidly protected in Germany. Even trespassing on leased game preserves is severely punished. Good free fishing grounds are rare.

Six Costumes in Three-For Summer Week-ending

A TRIO OF TWO-IN-ONES WHICH SOLVE THE LIMITED-LUGGAGE PROBLEM

TRAVEL—EVENING

Two-in-one No. 1 for the week-end: turn the coat of this cool traveling crepe ensemble and you have a beige jacket that will serve for evening.

BY HENRI BENDEL

For NEA Service

New York—Torrill summer days and attending week-end parties in the country or at the beach bring the eternal feminine question:

"What shall I wear?"

Of all the taxing clothes problems of hot days, the appropriate wardrobe for the week-end house party is one of the hardest. At any rate I have it put to me many, many times.

Always, I advise the most careful selection of the traveling costume, using it as a base around which to build the week-end outfit. If it is appropriately planned it will serve for several occasions and dispense with several additional frocks.

Today I have pictured what I consider the ideal week-end outfit of what appears to be three costumes but can be stretched to six with a little use of the imagination.

Cool and Non-wrinkling.

The traveling costume, with its hat and gloves, is a Molyneux import of green and beige figured crepe of the lightweight summer variety that achieves coolness and at the same time will not wrinkle.

The frock is fashioned with a slip of beige silk kasha—a material of unusual soft beauty—that serves both as a vestee and a drop skirt to the frock. It is sleeveless and the neckline is collarless.

The coat is full length and lined throughout with the beige silk kasha and for the week-end party is ideal because it is reversible. When evening comes and the party dashes off to the country club to a dance, this coat, reversed, becomes the smartest of simple little evening coats, and obviates the need of carrying another.

The first costume packed should always be a sports outfit. But it is necessary to pick it with care that it may serve for, say, Sunday morning breakfast as well

English Girls Wear Boys' Plus Fours

London—Plus-four girls are becoming numerous on British tennis courts, golf courses and beaches, and dealers are getting uneasy about their stock of feminine sports outfits.

Women are even going in for Oxford bags and buying entire suits in men's shops. Oxford bags, with regulation male flannel jackets to match and heavy masculine sweaters are much sought by women customers in large London clothing shops.

Dealers are surprised that many of the young girls who buy such garments can wear the men's clothing without alterations. Caps are the only masculine headgear the girls favor. In fact, most of the Eton-cropped girls say they prefer to go bareheaded, as brown complexions are now in high favor in England.

Two-in-one No. 2 for the week-end: remove the sash-bottomed, flowered coat of this chiffon dinner frock, and it becomes a formal evening gown.

as tennis on Saturday afternoon.

I choose for this a smart little three-piece sports model of gray and orchid—the skirt of pleated gray flat crepe of the new Lindbergh shade known as "plane gray." Its border is a wide band of orchid and the sleeveless jumper and jacket are of exquisitely fine jersey of the same delicate orchid shade with banding of gray. For golf or tennis the sleeveless jumper frock is ideal. Add the jacket and the valuable orchid flower accessory and you have a neat lounging costume for the country club porch or an evening

Jersey Weaves Gain New Lease On Wear

Paris (P)—A revival of jersey and undiminished popularity for kasha materials is forecast for winter by the collections of French fabric manufacturers. At Rodiers', the birthplace of kasha and home of styles in woolen fabrics, jersey has a leading place among the new materials. It appears in various forms and under various names. Two of the new stuffs are called djerakabulle and djerakajour. The latter is an open mesh, while djerakabulle has an uneven pebbled surface.

WATERMELON TIME

Port Meade, Fla.—Governor Martin was officially advised of the opening of the watermelon season by the presentation of two melons, one weighing 61 1/4 pounds and the other 52.

SPORTS—AFTERNOON

Two-in-one No. 3 for the week-end: over the sleeveless jumper of this jersey sports costume, don a matching coat, bedecked with a flower, and you're frocked for the afternoon.

Skin Culture-Summer's Most Important Duty

BY NINON

NEA Service Writer

Summer, with its soft blue sky and relaxing warm days, we greet with open arms.

But, is each of us doing her bit to prepare to meet beauty with beauty?

For, of what use are the pleasant days and alluring fairy moonlight nights if one is not looking her best? Skin should glow with healthy color, eyes should sparkle, hair should shine.

Care of the skin is perhaps the most important duty owned beauty in summer time. For with the glare of sun, sweep of wind and splash of waves, tender skin is at the mercy of the elements unless She Who Cares will devote a little time and attention daily to her face.

First of all, get an expert facial just to learn that invigorating rotating motion that eradicates wrinkles and lifts sagging muscles. At this time, too, have your skin diagnosed so you will know whether to buy your beauty aids for oily, dry or normal skin.

Then lay in your supplies: A jar each of some standard, thin, cleansing cream, a good tissue builder or tonic cream, an astringent and a non-greasy vanishing cream. Also a standard rubber face pater and a box of cotton.

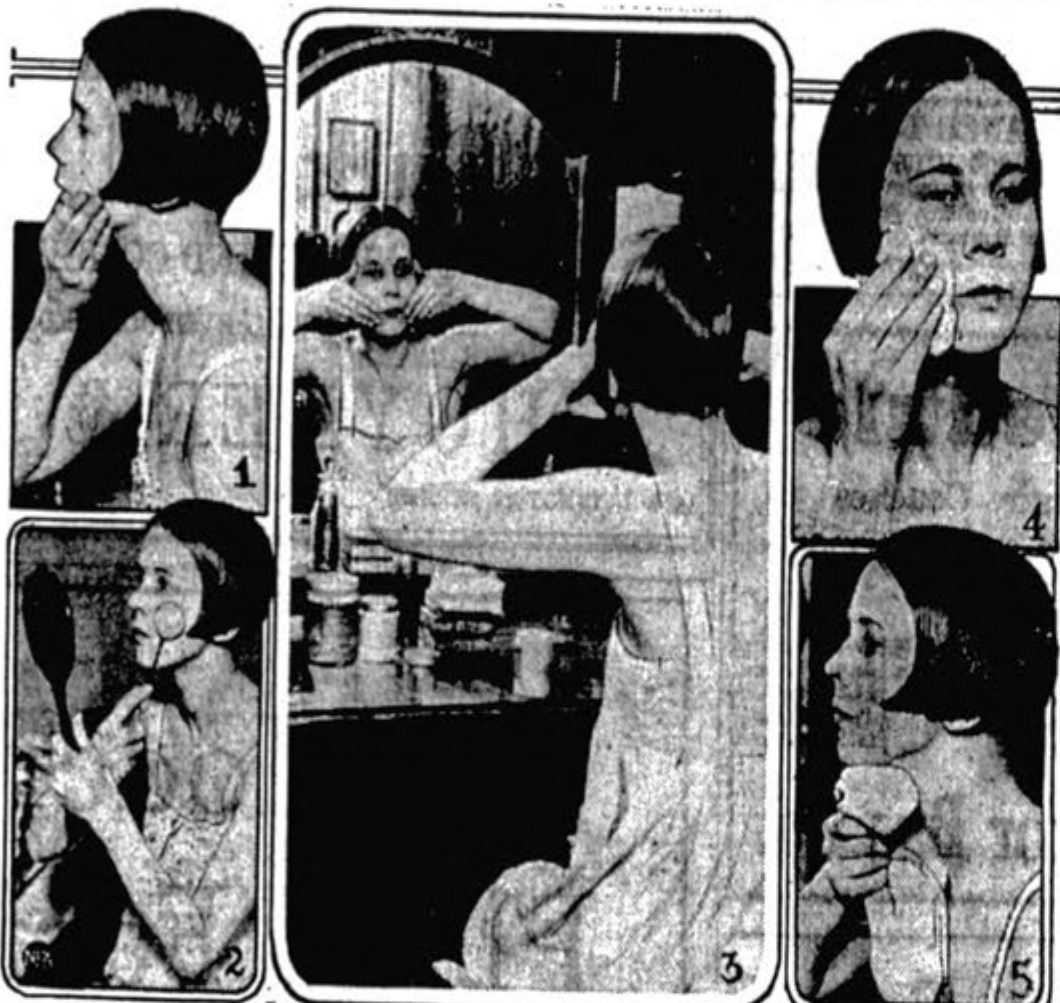

Step by Step.

Beginning your treatment, get your supplies together, sit down quietly before a good mirror and begin.

First, apply the cleansing cream, beginning at the chin and rubbing upwards, always, as the facial experts do. Go gently but thoroughly over the entire face and neck, loosening all the particles of dirt. For in the matter of skin treatment, cleanliness comes second to nothing.

Now wipe off all traces of cream with a soft towel or tissue paper.

Second, apply a little of the tissue cream and with your face pater gently whip the sluggish skin to invigorating life.

Third, when the pater has softly patted in as much of the cream as your skin can absorb, begin the massage. Place your thumbs at your temples, with arms well up, and gently massage the facial muscles that lie under the surface of the skin and are responsible for that much-desired, firm, rounded contour. Always rub upwards, and not too hard.

Again wipe face and neck with towel, using the same upward stroke.

Fourth, a dip a wad of cotton in astringent and lightly go over the entire face and neck. This can, are the next results that will accrue.

Remember that a thin, non-greasy vanishing cream and a soft powder make the best base.

There are many special preparations for outdoor sports that appreciably increase summer beauty and therefore deserve consideration. These include sun powder, water-proof cream, and of course freckle cream, that come both mild and strong to suit the varying crops certain misses grow.

FLYING PANELS

Summer coats in white and light shades are adopting flying panels to give softness to the silhouette without adding bulk to the figure.

Name Newest Styles for Famous Lovers

Paris—The new ensemble costumes at a Paris dress house have been named for famous lovers of history. The coats are named for the man, the dresses for the woman. The idea is a relief to the woman who sees many hundreds of models paraded each season, many of them bearing the same names.

Only a few houses have abandoned the custom of naming each model, and designating them by number instead.

Mannish Blouse Has Approval of Paris

Paris (P)—The blouse with the masculine collar, worn with a sizeable cravat is Paris' pet for sport these days.

Most gossamer women have adopted the shirts with soft collars which fasten just at the base of the neck. Many blouses have long sleeves with cuffs of the faltered type fastened with links. For morning shopping wear the shirt blouse is often seen with tailored suits

New Traveling Cases Include Silk Sheets

Paris (P)—A new underarm traveling case put out of Paris contains silk pyjamas and dressing gown, and a silk sheet and pillow case. Now the fastidious traveler may have the luxurious appointments of her own bedroom, even on a Pullman.

The silk in the traveling sets is so fine that garments and sheets fold up into a sack not much larger than the envelope bags women carry for shopping or the races.

Shaded Stockings Leave Paris Cold

Paris (P)—Parisian ideas do not embrace the new shaded stockings which certain manufacturers of sport hose have put upon the market.

The French woman sniffs, as a rule, at the vari-shaded hose of silk and wool mixture which make such an appeal to the English and American sportswoman. Plain beige is the general choice for sport of the French woman.

Aviation Helmets are Now Necessities

Paris (P)—Now that fashionable people can step into a plane whenever the spirit moves them and fly to London, Berlin or Vienna in a few hours, the aviation helmet is a part of smart wardrobes.

An airplane costume is as necessary now as a motor coat. Fleece-lined leather helmet and an enveloping leather coat are the usual choice of the flying traveler.

Hats and Scarfs of Chinese Design

Paris (P)—The little mandarin turbans which made their appearance earlier in the season are now matched with small scarves embroidered in similar design.

The debutantes with small features and straight bobbed hair wear the Chinese hats with a great deal of chic. At the Long-champs course recently a girl wore a black satin hat and scarf embroidered in almond green and lemon yellow, with a two-piece silk sport dress of green.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

BY WADE WERNER

(Motion Picture Feature Editor) Hollywood, Cal.—Raymond Griffith is going to give his famous hat a rest.

He wants to show the serious public what he can do in screen drama.

"It is my ambition," said Griffith, "to produce pictures in which my personality will be submerged and the story itself will be the thing. Of course it will be impossible to jump abruptly into straight drama."

The high hat comedian plans to develop dramatic roles gradually until he is just as popular in any kind of headgear.

Mary Presents Cousin

Being a cousin of Mary Pickford entitled Isabelle Sheridan to a fling at the movies, even though she was headed by the University of Southern California toward a business career. As a result of the importunities of her famous relative, Miss Sheridan will be seen by film fans in Mary's latest picture. Her debut into screenland equalizes the Pickford-Fairbanks count—Mary and Jack already representing the Pickfordas with Douglas, senior and junior, and Flobeile holding up the Fairbanks end.

Badges Lose Glamor

There are so many badges in the screen colony that it is hard to get anywhere with a traffic policeman by flashing one.

It seems that every other actor is an honorary fire chief, chief of police, special policeman or deputy sheriff. The badge may have been acquired on location in a friendly city, or when the actor made a personal appearance at some community pageant or fête. Or the presentation may have been promoted for publicity purposes.

Occasionally it carries real responsibility. Several players are chiefs of volunteer fire departments at their studios.

Old-Fashioned Rise

John Waters is one of the few boys who have started at the bottom and gradually worked up in the movies. Usually one either leaps to success or flops. Waters is only 30, but he has been climbing for 15 years. He began work as a stage hand in New York at the age of 12, became property man at the old Biograph studio, came to Hollywood as an assistant director, had his first chance to direct a picture two years ago and now is winning important assignments.

Hollywood, Cal.—Inhabitants of this movie metropolis will be going about on tiptoes and speaking in whispers if the studios all turn to making motion pictures that talk.

At Warner Brothers studio, where the first attempt to film a feature-length picture with talking and singing episodes is under way, elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent outside noises from spoiling the production.

The scenes are filmed and recorded in a stage about the size of a high school gymnasium and as sound-proof as it is possible to make it without cutting off all ventilation. The camera men operate in felt-lined tanks with little windows, so that the purr of their machines will not register.

Rehearsal Important

Even the director has to throw away his megaphone and keep quiet. Once he gives the word to start a scene he cannot bark any directions without injecting his voice into the record. Each scene is rehearsed until the director is satisfied all his players can go through with it as if before an audience.

When the big wax discs on which the music and voices are recorded begin to move in synchrony with the camera there is no stopping them until an entire disc—the accompaniment to about 1,000 feet of film—has been recorded.

Whistles Silenced

Ordinary street noises will not penetrate to the sound-proof stage, says Alan Crossland, director of Al Jolson in the new production. A shrill whistle, however, or the clamor of fire apparatus will spoil a scene. So the noon whistle at the studio is not permitted to blow when Crossland is recording and police and fire departments are requested to silence sirens and bells in the neighborhood of the studio.

Run of Weddings

Girls who love to plan weddings would like Jean Lorraine's job. Jean is usually saying "I do" at a make-believe altar and recently played a bride in five pictures, one after another. She has been a bride in real life too.

WOMEN'S PGE—

WOMEN'S PGE—

Paris—Trailing draperies which approach closer and closer to the ankle are slowly but surely forcing down the skirts of evening dresses. One of the newest models draperies which hang several inches below the hem are almost invariable. Designers agree that the draperies prestage a return to longer skirts for formal wear.

GOOD AND CROOKED

Evelyn Brent has been in so many "crook" pictures she hardly feels at home in a film unless there is a jail in the story somewhere. She has played the heroine in more than 20 such melodramas, 14 of them consecutively without a break in the crime wave. Her latest role makes her the object of strife between rival gangsters in "Underworld." A gentleman crook, played by Clive Brook, finally wins her affections and, of course, gives up crime.

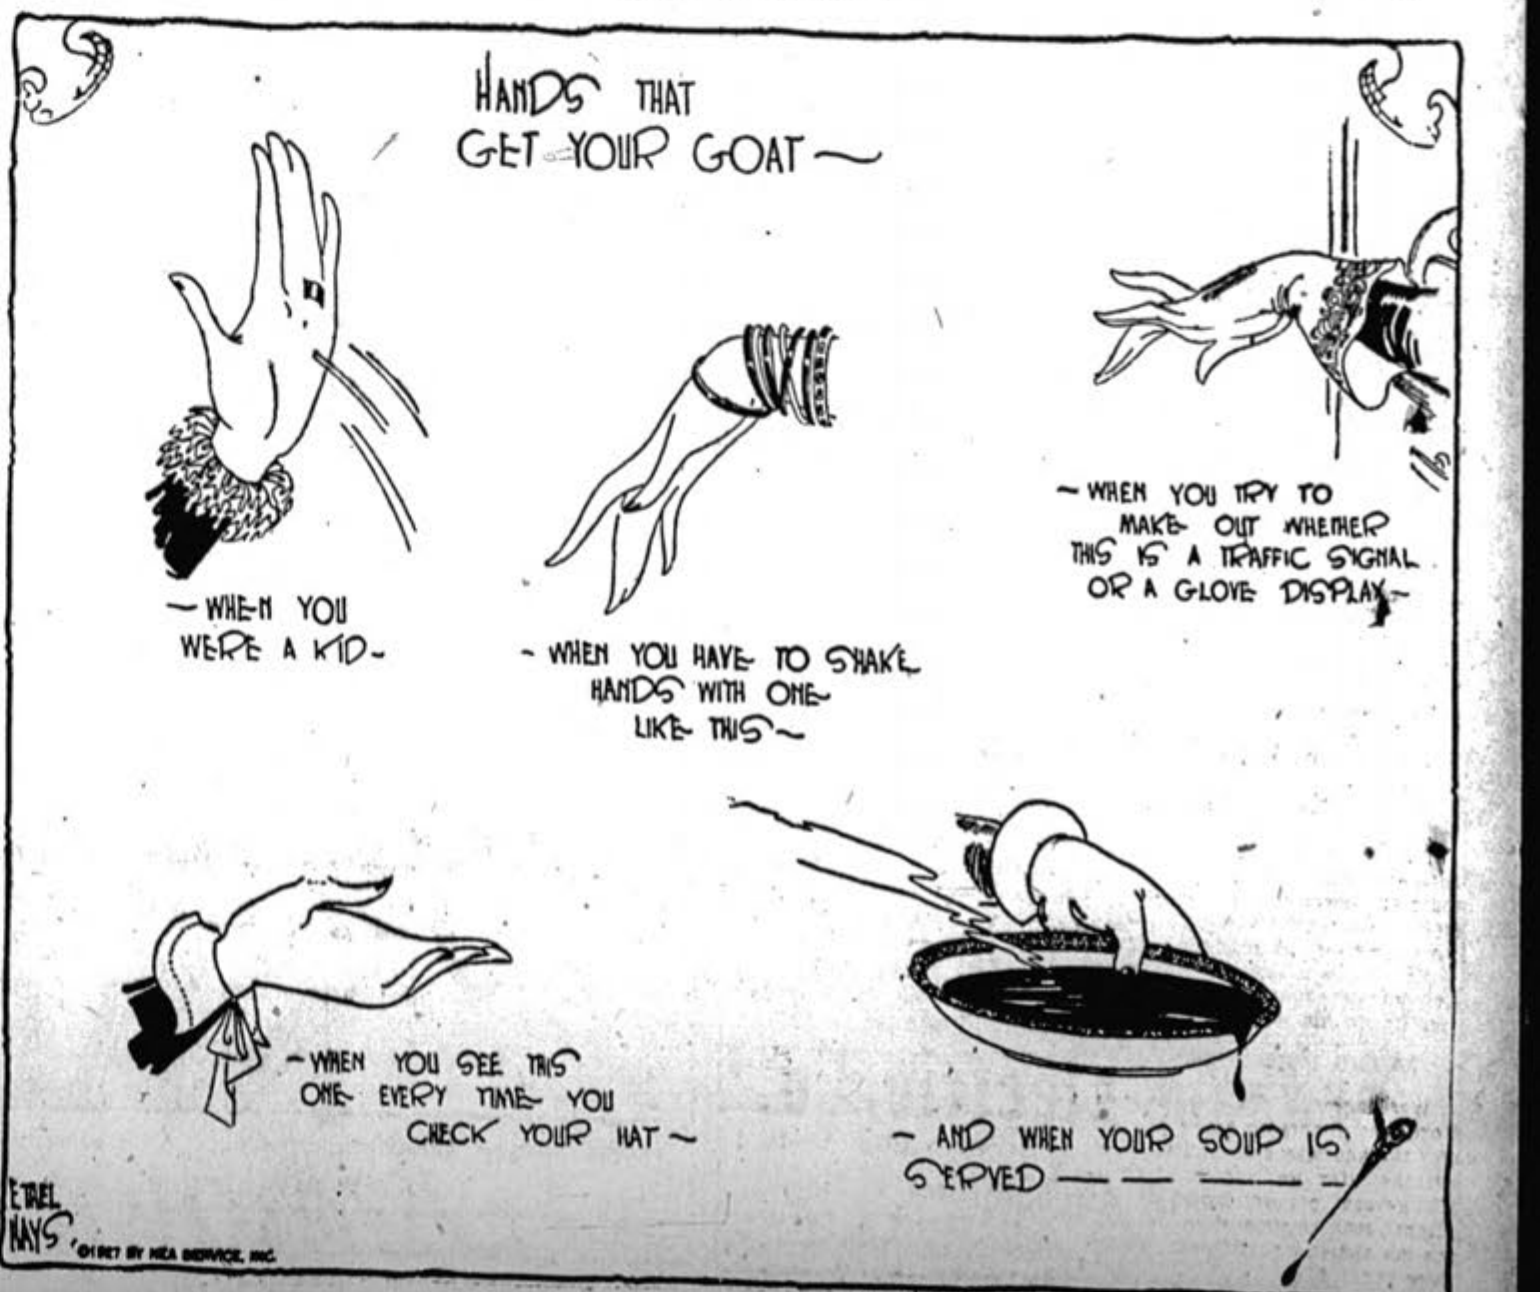

OLD MOVIE SCHOOL

It would be hard to find any one theater whose graduates have been more uniformly successful in pictures than Richard Dix, Douglas McLean, Edmond Lowe and Warner Baxter, who played together in the old Morocco stock company in Los Angeles. Corinne Griffith might be said to be related to the house by marriage, for her husband, Walter Morosco, was treasurer when Dix and the others were on the payroll.

FILM OF HATE

Love may conquer all, in life as in motion pictures, but hate is the most powerful of all emotions while it lasts, observes Hobart Bosworth, who has hated and been hated in so many films that many picture-goers have come to love him for it. Just now he is hating his way to another homicidal climax in "The Blood Ship," a picture in which he hopes to better his success in "The Sea Wolf" of a dozen years ago.

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two health talks on Seasickness—its cause and cure.

Seasickness Malady Puzzles Best Medical Science. There are as many views of the cause of seasickness as there are specialties in the practice of medicine. Neither the physiologic nature nor the causes of the condition are known. Attempts to treat the condition by all sorts of medicines have failed in most instances, and mechanical appliances of one type or another or habits of life have been equally without effect.

The Russian physiologist, W. W. Boldyreff, has recently considered the various available views as to the nature of this disturbance. Boldyreff points out that seasickness is not confined to people on the ocean, but may be associated with various types of land occupation. Some persons develop the condition when riding on street cars or trains, some by swinging and seasawing, some persons get it when houses are shaken by the wind, other by riding up and down on elevators.

Rocking is not the special motion most frequently responsible, as is obvious from the fact that babies do not get seasick when rocked, and that rocking chairs are widely used without producing seasickness in adults.

Some persons develop the type of nausea associated with seasickness when climbing mountains or looking down from high places.

Many persons become quite seasick during aerial flights so many indeed that the airplanes flying between London and Paris are regularly equipped for taking care of the nausea of passengers. Nor is seasickness confined to human beings exclusively, since this type of disturbance has been seen in most domestic animals and even in birds.

The Russian physiologist has noted that the attacks come on at regular intervals and that they accompany an abundant secretion of saliva. A series of experiments on the stomach causes Boldyreff to believe that the symptoms of seasickness are associated with peristaltic activity of the stomach due to irritation of the lining of the intestines by the digestive juices which come into it in large quantities. Disorders of the stomach and of the intestines predispose to seasickness, and he has found that persons with such disorders may be caused to have an attack of seasickness by filling the small intestine with a large amount of saliva or of water.

The periodic activity of the stomach and intestines, which seems to have something to do with seasickness, he believes, is more pronounced in young people and in animals, more noticeable in women than in men. It is increased by cooling of the body and stopped temporarily by fear or pain, but coming back, as these sensations cease, with greater force.

JUNE WEDDING IS SOLEMNIZED SATURDAY P. M.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Drevdahl, 644 Arbutus avenue, was the scene of a pretty June wedding Saturday afternoon when their daughter Edith became the bride of John C. Morrison of Marquette.

The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Miss Alice Flagstad of Marquette was the bridesmaid and Leonard Morrison of Marquette was the other attendant. Mrs. Paul R. Baldwin presided at the piano as the bride made her way to the improvised altar, on the arm of her father.

The ceremony took place at one o'clock, by Rev. Charles Boyd, Marquette.

The bride was charming in a gown of pink georgette, and a tulle veil, surmounted by a headband of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of pick tea-roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a gown of similar material in a shade of yellow, and a tulle veil and pearl headband to match. She carried a bouquet of roses.

A luncheon at the home followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left for a ten day motor trip after which they will make their home in Marquette.

Out of town relatives and friends who attended the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson of Detroit, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Drevdahl of Marquette, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Drevdahl of Cleveland, O.

REPORTS SHOW A GOOD YEAR

Methodists Commend Rev. Colenso At Annual Meeting.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Alice Memorial Methodist Episcopal church was held at the church Friday, June 24. Rev. Dr. G. W. Olmsted, superintendent of the Marquette district of the church presided.

Reports covering the activities of the various organizations within the church were heard. The pastor Rev. H. W. Colenso reported for the church in general, Mrs. Frank Cole for the Ladies' Aid society, Miss Charlotte Marble for the Epworth league, Mrs. T. Springer for the Women's Foreign Missionary society, W. S. Skellenger for the Sunday school, Rev. Colenso for the Junior Epworth league in the absence of Mrs. F. F. Cowen and I. N. Bushong for the estimating committee and finance.

The reports brought out an interesting series of facts which indicated the excellent spiritual and financial condition of the church. Forty-one members were taken during the church year and twenty-two have been received on probation through baptism and instruction.

The average attendance in the Sunday school during the year was 183. The total enrollment of the Sunday school apart from the cradle roll and home department is now 234. In addition to this number 63 are on the cradle roll and 40 in the home department, making a total of 339. Ninety-nine per cent of the officers and ninety per cent of the teachers were in attendance during the year. The Sunday school is out of debt with a balance in the treasury. The school spent $407 for supplies and benevolences since the beginning of the church year. Much credit for this gratifying condition is due Superintendent Skellenger and the teachers and officers of the school.

The Epworth league reported a membership of fifty and the Junior Epworth league a membership of sixty. Both organizations have done a good work in their departments. Other groups presenting good reports are the Young Women's Foreign Missionary society, the Standard Bearers, King's Herald and the Little Light Bearers. Their work along missionary lines has been outstanding.

The estimating committee presented the budget for the coming year. It will approximate five thousand dollars. The budget was accepted and approved by the conference. Much credit is due Rev. Colenso for his work in guiding the activities of the entire church. He was given a unanimous invitation to continue as the pastor of the church for an indefinite period. Plans are now contemplated which will include the painting of the church and parsonage.

The following committees were chosen for the coming year: Trustees: J. N. Bushong, chairman, M. W. Lancaster, W. L. Marble, J. D. Staple, R. J. Riley, F. F. Cowen, Stewards.

H. W. Smith, chairman, W. S. Skellenger, R. J. Riley, J. A. Bredahl, R. G. Davis, E. D. Vanhorn, I. N. Bushong, Percy Cameron, William Marble, Wesley Struble, F. F. Soven, J. P. MONDAY AT THE COMMUNITY.

Most pictures are claimed to be the screen masterpieces of the generation. But, "Memory Lane," the new John M. Stahl-First National drama showing Monday at the Community is the film classic of two generations.

This claim is based on the fact that "Memory Lane" is bringing out the old folks, who are bringing with them their young married children. Both generations see in the picture an object lesson in married life which they feel is too important to be missed.

In the cast of "Memory Lane" are Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel. They play the part of a young married couple, natives of a small New England village. William Haines enacts the role of a former lover, who returns to the happily-married wife to walk once more with her down memory lane.

All who have seen the picture call it one of the most touching stories of love shown in many moons. The old folks are said to be enthusiastic about it—and so are the young folks.

THE LYRIC TODAY.

If you were posing as the sister of the man you secretly loved and were discovered, would you take the next train out of town, or would you stay and win his love?

Viola Dana, in "Naughty Nannette," her fourth starring picture, for FBO, runs away, but the man—being a go-getter—doesn't let it go at that. This is one of the novel twists to the story of stumby life in which Miss Dana is ably supported by Ed Brownell, Joe Young and Helen Foster. The picture was made under the very capable direction of J. Leo Meehan, who is famed for his handling of the Gene Stratton Porter productions.

"Naughty Nannette" comes to the Lyric Theatre for a showing today only.

Monday and Tuesday Robert McKim, who plays a leading role in "The Wolf Hunters," the screen adaptation of the novel by James Oliver Curwood, spent several years of his early youth in the country ruled by the Royal Mounted Police, about whom the story figures. The picture comes to the Lyric Theatre Monday for two days, a Rayart production with an all-star cast.

"I learned to know the ways of the 'Mounties' pretty well," said McKim. "They're a fine lot of men, and only the crooks fear them, for they go out of their way to help the worthy. It's not so soft for me in the picture: I play a crook."

In the cast with McKim are Virginia Brown Faire, Alan Roscoe, Mildred Harris and David Torrance and other favorites. Stuart Paton was the director, and according to all reports he made a splendid job of it.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY KEEP WELL

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Here is Proof

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellowood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and had fine results. The condition I was in made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask 'How is housekeeping?' and he says, 'It is just like being in Heaven!'"

MARKET NEWS

MARKET BLOWS HOT AND COLD

STOCK SALES AVERAGES. Twenty Twenty Date Industrials Railroads Saturday - 156.34 143.53 Friday - 156.44 142.44 Week ago - 157.42 144.38 Year ago - 137.54 118.51 High 1927 - 159.61 145.58 Low 1927 - 141.23 125.58 Total stock sales 714,100 shares.

New York, June 25.—(P)—The stock market alternately blew hot and cold today, with final price quotations disclosing widespread irregularity. Trading which was relatively light in volume, was almost entirely professional in character.

The credit situation came to the fore again when the weekly clearing house statement, issued after the close, disclosed the fourth consecutive deficit in reserve, amounting to $6,657,830 as compared with a deficit of $12,887,140 the week before.

Weakness again cropped out in the oil and copper shares today as a result of the unsatisfactory trade conditions. New low prices for the year were registered by Anaconda, Chile, Cerro de Pasco, Nevada, and Ray Copper, and Maryland Oil, Phillips Petroleum, General Asphalt, common and preferred and Beacon Hill.

Railroad equipments continued their rise on talk of big orders on hand in prospect. Baldwin Locomotive touched a new record high for all time at 322, and General Railway Signal attained a new peak at 121 7/8.

Revival of activity and strength in some of the low priced shares, particularly Western Pacific, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred "So" preferred and Western Maryland, featured the railroad group. Chesapeake and Ohio closed a point higher despite the rather pessimistic forecast of earnings by President Harahan.

Clearing house officials reported that four successive deficits in reserve had never before been reported, but attached no special significance to the occurrence.

Outside of the establishment of another new high since 1920 in Italian lire at 5.38 1/2 cents to 25 point drop in Japanese yen to 47.20 cents, there were no developments of importance in foreign exchange trading. Demand sterling and French francs held steady around $4.85 5/16 and 3.91 1/4 cents respectively.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, June 25.—Regulation fourth of July weather today, hot and sunny, just right for wheat and corn, gave all the grain markets a decided downward slant. Wheat closed unsettled, 5-1/2 to 5-1/4; corn 1 3/4 to 2 3/8 off, oats at 1/2 to 1/4 decline, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 1/2.

With conditions tip-top for progress of the wheat harvest and for helping the corn crop to make an approach again toward normal, general selling of cereals developed early. Reports from the wheat harvest region said the outlook could not well be better.

Some indications today pointed to a better export demand looking for wheat. One Chicago house disposed of 125,000 bushels of red wheat to Europe, the shipment to be taken out of store in the east. There was talk prevalent also that by the time any new wheat reaches Chicago, old stock promises to be down to small proportions.

In addition to widespread improved conditions for new corn growth, pointing of some old corn in the west, it is now being as having spoiled was an incentive to sell. The market was without any adequate support from buyers, and on the price breaks which took place, general developments to stop losses at various fixed limits were automatically forced into execution. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions reflected the downward trend of grain values and of hogs.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago, June 25.—Hogs, receipts 4,000; around the lower than Friday's average, 2 1/2; bulk 160 to 220 pounds, 8.90 to 9.10; 220 to 300 pound, heaviest of season, most packing, 7.40 to 7.55; practical, 7.10 to 7.25; heavy weight hogs, 8.40 to 8.50; medium, 8.55 to 9.10; light, 8.40 to 8.50.

Cattle, receipts 200; compared with week ago, good to choice weight steers and choice medium weights and long yearlings, strong to a shade higher; highest of season, other grades uneven; weak to 40c lower; mostly 25 to 40c off on grassy kinds; long yearlings, 12.00; medium yearlings to 12.50; grass cows and heifers, 10.00 lower; bulls 50c down; vealers 25c lower.

Sheep, receipts 3,000; practically none on sale today; fat lambs, closing 11.25 to 11.50 lower; sheep steady; feeding lambs strong to 25c higher; week's top fat range lambs, 15.00; fat native lambs, 10.00; yearlings, 12.00; fat ewes, 6.50; feeding lambs, 11.75.

CHICAGO BUTTER

Chicago, June 25.—Light offerings of 22 score butter today coupled with fairly active demand resulted in 1/2c advance on that grade. The market for the bulk of season was steady with supplies fairly liberal and trade slow.

AMUSEMENTS

TODAY'S PROGRAMS AT THE DELFT: "The Sea Ticker," a drama in which Milton Sills and Mary Astor are featured.

AT THE STRAND: "The Valley of Hell," a western drama featuring Francis McDonald.

John Barrymore in "The Beloved Rogue," his first United Artists Picture, will be seen next Monday and Tuesday at the Delft theatre.

As Francois Villon, the immortal French beggar-poet, Barrymore loves 'em and leaves 'em in fifteenth century Paris; he plays pranks on the King and the Duke of Burgundy, leads his beggar band in routs and jousts, composes undying roundels in hovel while carousing inhabitants of the strange Court of Miracles.

John Barrymore is Villon, the heart-and-jail-breaking idol of the underworld of Paris, the crackling personality that inspired the pens of Swinburne and Robert Louis Stevenson. Conrad Veidt, the great German character actor, is King Louis XI—his first role in an American production. Marceline Day is Charlotte.

The cast of experienced players supporting Barrymore includes, aside from Veidt and Miss Day, Lawson Butt, Mack Swain, Henry Victor, Louis Beaubien, Slim Summerville, Nigel de Brulier and Jane Winton. Beggars, courtiers and lovely ladies-in-waiting are so plentifully supplied that more than fifteen hundred actors appear in the cast of "The Beloved Rogue."

AT THE STRAND Those able actors and actresses who are "less than stars" in screenland do not often have opportunity to demonstrate their full worth without jeopardizing the important position of the principal characters. Not so, however, in "God's Great Wilderness," the Hartford Production which comes to the Strand Monday.

Mary Carr, whose fame in mother roles on the screen dates from her marvelous success in "Over The Hill," is again the ideal mother in this great picture.

Besides Lillian Rich, Joseph Bennett, Russell Simpson and Mary Carr, an outstanding bit of character acting is that of Tom Bates, in the role of Peter Marks, a typical small town busybody, deaf, rheumatic and mischievous in his dogate. But for Marks' espionage and gossip, the final crisis in the story could not have occurred. He is an important link in the chain that binds together one of the strongest series of melodramatic incidents that has been presented in motion pictures in many a season.

Interior Minister Aids Conservation Berlin—While Walter von Keudell is a busy man with the many duties of his office as the new German Minister of the Interior, he still finds time to pursue his long time hobby of nature protection.

Herr von Keudell has set aside buildings and grounds on his estate at Bellingen, near Berlin, to help determine how best to conserve the country's natural beauties with its wild animal and bird life, preventing ruthless despoliment by the march of modern progress. It is the first German research station for this purpose.

Geologists, botanists and zoologists will take up work in this institute, which will be outfitted with a complete library and all the necessary instruments. The entire plant will be directed by Dr. Klöse, "Nature Protection Commissary" of the Province of Brandenburg.

The patron of the new plant, it will be recalled, had some difficulty in maintaining his place in the cabinet at the inception of the new Marx ministry. His record during the Kapp Putsch of 1921 was sharply attacked by the opposition, but he was accorded a vote of confidence after a certificate of political soundness had been given him by Chancellor Marx in the Reichstag.

TIME—MALE BEAUTY Male Beauty Contest Limited to Blondes Paris—France is pretty well fed up with ordinary beauty contests, says the editor of a physical culture magazine who is organizing a contest for the handsomest Frenchman.

The idea has been approved enthusiastically by the press to insure its success, provided enough men throw their modesty to the winds and enter.

The brunette Frenchman, however, won't have a chance. The contest, it is announced, will be only for men of the Gallic type—blond, tall and as near as possible in appearance to Vergingtorix, that almost legendary Gaul who struck terror to the legions of Julius Caesar.

Contestants must have blond mustaches. In five states of the Union, a girl may marry at the age of 12, with the consent of her parents. These states are Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi and Virginia.

Saint and Sinner

Faith and Bob looked at her, rigid with anger and amazement, as Cherry stood just inside the door, her light coat—a beautiful coat that Ralph Cluny's money had paid for the autumn before—falling open to show the crumpled little gold colored georgette dress that scarcely covered the dimpled caps of her knees. Her hat was in her hand, her bright copper-and-gold curls tousled as if swift winds had roused through them. Her cheeks were flying flags of excitement, her round, ruddy mouth still parted over the laughter with which she had bidden her escort good night, her golden eyes wide, blazing, triumphant.

"Waiting up for me, you funny old dear?" she challenged them, in a voice electric with excitement. "I thought I'd give you two an evening to yourselves. Heaven knows you've hinted often enough that you'd like one! Enjoy it!"

"Cherry!" Faith's strangled cry preceded her jerky rising from the couch where she had been huddling in fright. "Where in the world have you been? We've been worried sick about you—"

"She walked toward her sister stiffly, her limbs still tremulous with relief and anger, then she reached out her arms in a sudden, overpowering rush of tenderness.

"Funny Faith!" Cherry gurgled. "I'm a grown-up woman, darling. Don't be an idiot! I simply went shopping, ran into Selma Pruitt, accepted her invitation to dinner, then went dancing with George Pruitt. Is there anything so terrible about that?"

"Come to bed, Faith," Bob rose and stretched with an elaborate pretense of unconcern. Cherry's small body stiffened, anger darting like sparks of fire from her golden eyes. "So I'm in disgrace, am I, Mr. Bob Hathaway? Trying to turn my own sister against me, aren't you? I'd like to know what business it is of yours if I choose to enjoy myself for one evening? God knows I've been sickeningly good since Thanksgiving Day! It's the first time I've danced in public—"

ence of opinion. She did not dare look at him as she preceded Cherry to the little bathroom at the end of the hall, the bath that belonged to Cherry and Joy alone. Her body still felt stiff and queer as she bent to turn on the hot water, as she spread the gay little bath mat for Cherry's feet, as she arranged towels and soap for Cherry's convenience.

As Faith turned blindly away from her tasks of love, Cherry flung herself against her sister's breast, clung to her shoulders. "Don't hate me, Faith! I had to have one last fling! I just had to! I couldn't go on living—like this—just waiting—for some thing—I don't want—oh, it isn't fair! I'm tricked! I'm tricked! Save me, Faith! Do something! I tell you I can't bear it to be a mother! I'll hate—Oh! Oh! Oh! Her voice was rising on a crescendo of terror and shame; the nails of her tiny hands dug into Faith's shoulders.

TOMORROW: Cherry opens her heart and mind to Faith. Privately owned vehicles in Japan may not be painted red, for that color is reserved for the imperial household.

That Keeps Faith With Your Engine In the final analysis it's performance that counts. First, watch how high-powered Quality gas shoots you out of a traffic jam in second speed. Then, when you've struck a long smooth highway, notice how your motor settles down to a long-distance run with nary a sound. It is performance that counts! And Quality performance means POWER!

TOM JOHNSON QUILTS PURPLE

Widely Known Marinette Coach Has Accepted Job In Kentucky.

Marinette, June 25.—Tom Johnson, one of the most famous high school football coaches in the middle west will have charge of the Marinette grid squad next season. He has signed a contract to coach the squad at the male high school in Louisville, Ky., and Charles Hulsten, superintendent of schools in Marinette, received a telegram from Mr. Johnson asking that he be released from further work in Marinette and his wishes were complied with.

Undoubtedly he receives a much better salary in Louisville and other conditions are probably more desirable. His decision to leave Marinette will come as a great surprise as it was assumed that he was scheduled for the coming season. In fact he had signed a contract. The Louisville offer must have been much better.

There will be general regret in Marinette at his departure and football prospects for the coming season across the river take a decided drop. Marinette authorities will make efforts immediately to sign one capable man to succeed the veteran Purple coach who has piloted the Purple to so many championships and made Marinette high one of the most feared opponents in the high school football circles of Wisconsin.

HANDY MANDY WINS LATONIA

Filly Springs Surprise by Breaking 1 1/2 Mile Track Record.

Latonia, Ky., June 25.—(AP)—Handy Mandy, a virgin filly in the winner's class today turned what was predicted to be a very uninteresting Latonia derby into a historic classic which shattered the track and American records for the one and one-half mile.

Three lengths ahead of Dolan, the eastern colt, she finished and paid part of a howling crowd of 30,000, $9.80 for each $2 mutual ticket and collected for Hal Price Headley of Lexington, Ky., her owner $24,350.

There were three big surprises in the finish, for Dolan copped the second prize and War Eagle, one of the E. B. McLean entries was third. Jock and Buddy Bauer, picked generally for first and second, were tucked out at the stretch, and Roder Stocking, who was given an outside chance to win, got unruly and put himself out of the running before the race was half done.

It was the first race the daughter of Brown Prince II and Mandy Hamilton had ever won and she strutted her stuff under the smart handling of jockey Earl Poole.

Her time for the distance was 2:28 3-5 seconds, which was one fifth of a second faster than the old American record set by Man O' War and beat the old Latonia track record of 2:29 1-5 seconds set by Fire Brand.

HOLLOWAY PUTS STUFF ON BALL

Holds Chicago to Seven Hits; Tavenner Gets Home Run.

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Detroit made it three straight over the White Sox today when they shut out Chicago, 4 to 0. Kenneth Holloway held Chicago to seven scattered hits and was given spectacular support by Gehring and Tavenner. Detroit on the other hand bunched their hits, including a home run by Tavenner, with a man on and won handily.

Holloway held the Sox to seven scattered hits and was complete master of the situation at all times. Only two Chicago runners reached third base and these after two were out. Sharing honors with Holloway was Tavenner, diminutive shortstop, whose home run carried at least three hundred feet and landed in the right field pavilion.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the fourth inning when Tavenner hit his circuit clout. Fothergill fled out to Falk and Hellmann dodged to left center. Ward tossed out Blue, Hellmann going to third. Tavenner was next up and scored. Hellmann ahead of him. Peck threw out Woodall, ending the session.

Detroit added another in the sixth. Ward tossed out Manush. Fothergill singled to right. Blue singled to center, sending Fothergill to third. On an attempted double steal, Fothergill scored when McCurdy dropped Clancy's throw. Tavenner was out at first, Clancy to Blankenship.

Blankenship was replaced in the box by Cole in the eighth, but the Tigers managed to push over another tally in that session. Manush struck out and Fothergill popped out to Peck. Hellmann walked and stole second. Blue singled to left, scoring Hellmann. Blue took second on a balk but Peck threw out Tavenner, checking the rally.

Typeslingers To Play White Sox

The Daily Press Typeslingers will again engage in a baseball game, this time with the strong Escanaba White Sox, who have been running wild over teams they have met this season. The Typeslingers have a good record of three games won and one lost so far and the encounter this morning, which takes place at the South Park diamond at 9:30 will prove to be a well played and close battle.

The White Sox will no doubt use LaCrosse on the mound, who has been pitching wonderful ball while the Typeslingers will have Perryman in the pitchers' box. Perryman also has tossed good ball, losing only his last contest by a narrow margin of one run. The Press Typeslingers are still very anxious to schedule games with local or outside teams who would like to meet a good team. Any managers wishing games may communicate with Charles Perryman or Roland St. Mitchell at the Press office.

Pennsylvania Bans Sunday Ball Games

Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—Professional baseball is a business and a worldly employment and, if played on Sunday in Pennsylvania, is a violation of the so-called blue laws of 1794, the state supreme court decided today.

The decision is the result of a test game played on Sunday, August 22, last year, between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox.

Only three cities in the major leagues do not play Sunday baseball—Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Boston.

Five of the seven justices agreed in the majority opinion. The other two members of the court dissented from the majority only in the method of stopping it.

The law of 1794 provides a penalty of only four dollars for engaging in worldly employment and does not provide any additional penalty for repeated offenses. Thus it was possible under the law to pay a fine each week and continue the violation, it was said.

The commonwealth of Pennsylvania, however, brought quo warranto proceedings in the Dauphin county court at Harrisburg asking for an injunction against the Athletics playing Sunday baseball on the ground that the club was violating its charter rights in breaking the law. Penalty for violating the injunction would be revocation of the charter.

The supreme court took the view of the state and affirmed the Dauphin county court which had issued a perpetual injunction.

ATHLETICS COP DOUBLE HEADER

Break Yankee's String of Nine Straight Victories.

New York, June 25.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics handed the Yankees a double drubbing today by 7 to 6 and 4 to 2, breaking New York's winning streak which had been stretched to nine straight. At the same time the Mackmen sheared two full games of the Yankees' hold on the league pinnacle, which is now eight contests.

In the first tussle, Lefty Grove worked well up to the ninth, striking out ten batters. Three successive hits were bunched off him in the final frame and he gave away to Pate who barely held the Philadelphia lead.

Babe Ruth again had trouble with his right knee and relief after the first inning of the final struggle. Lamar hit a home run in the first inning and after New York took the lead in the sixth, crashed a triple with two on base.

Pittsburgh, June 25.—(AP)—The narrow margin held by Pittsburgh in the National League pennant race was further shortened today when the league leaders were defeated by Chicago, 6 to 4, giving the Cubs a clean sweep of the two-game series.

Carlson was in rare form and held the hard-hitting Pirates to eight hits. Aldridge, Morrison and Cveugros labored on the mound for Pittsburgh and allowed ten bingles.

The NUT CRACKER
by Joe Williams

A wrestling trust controls the grappling business in America, Illinois legislators learn. Tell Judge Landis. Maybe he'll fine 'em 25 millions.

The only thing grapplers lack is hooks.

It seems easier to collect that veterans' bonus than to get a match with a wrestling champion without first mortgaging all the gold in one's teeth.

In order to fall before a wrestling champion, a challenger had to have some kind of down payment.

It seems the wrestlers are all well fixed.

A challenger can't afford to win a match until he has saved a few hundred thousand and has a couple of homes to give away.

Says Architecture and Dancing Akin

Paris—Architecture and the Black Bottom have more in common than is apparent to the uninitiated, says Adolpho Loos, eminent architect of Vienna.

Loos brought his pupils to Paris as much to let them learn the new dances as to make them familiar with the trends in design.

"The Black Bottom and the Charleston typify the new rhythm of modern life," he says. "An architect of today to be successful must be able to translate that rhythm into something of beauty in brick and stone."

Professor Loos has won the applause of no less an expert than Josephine Baker for a "perfectly executed Charleston."
