Commander Byrd's "America" On Way To Paris

Trans-Atlantic Plane Keeping in Touch With Shore Radio Stations

MAKE SCIENTIFIC EXPERIMENTS AS GIANT AIRCRAFT FLIES OVER ATLANTIC WITH FOUR PASSENGERS.

(BULLETIN) Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 30—(AP)—At one o'clock this morning the automatic radio signals of the America still were audible at the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Corporation of America, the corporation reported to the field here.

(BULLETIN) Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 30—(AP)—A radio message received from the monoplane America via the Radio Corporation of America station at Chatham, Mass., at 2:32 eastern daylight time this morning said: "We have seen neither land nor water since four p. m. yesterday on account of dense fog and low clouds covering an enormous area."

"Byrd."

New York, June 29—(AP)—Richard E. Byrd's flying test tube, the monoplane America, was on its way to France tonight on the first scientific adventure in non-stop ocean flight.

The America was south of the Newfoundland coast at 2:55 o'clock, eastern daylight time, this afternoon, nine hours and 31 minutes after leaving Roosevelt Field at 5:24 this morning. Reports on her speed were conflicting. The Associated Press log showed nearly 100 miles an hour. The flight over Nova Scotia was covered in one hour better time than that made by Charles A. Lindbergh in the Spirit of St. Louis.

The scientist-aviators who manned the America were conducting, as they flew, technical experiments which promised to aid the advancement of commercial flying in the days to come and as they experimented radioed to their friends ashore their progress, observations and greetings—an accomplishment in itself new to oceanic aviation.

That others may fly in safety later on, Byrd and his three companions, faced the dangers of uncharted winds to wrest the secrets of the elements out of the regions where storms are brewed.

The purpose of the flight, over an air trail already blazed by two planes primarily interested in speed and distance, was the study of atmospheric conditions over the ocean at different altitudes.

It was planned to attempt to formulate some broad general rules by which aviators may be able to subjugate the winds to a condition of servitude, and to make allies out of storms which at present are the airman's principal enemies.

Less than eight hours after the take-off, Commander Byrd himself indicated that the purpose of his flight was already being achieved. A message from the America picked up at Halifax concluded: "We think we are getting some scientific data."

He did not say what this data was, or of what practical use he believed it could be put to, but from the hopeful tone of the message it was guessed that Byrd, a modest and conservative man, had made important discoveries which might be expected to have direct effect on flying of the future.

Keeps In Touch With Shore.

The America flew during the day through weather which was fitting subject for scientific experimentation. There were large patches of fog to be passed through, in the places the wind was unfavorable and other ways opportunity was offered to study conditions at present inimical to flying.

The science of communication reached new heights during the day as Byrd kept in almost constant communication with ship and shore by radio. Not only did he write his own progress report and deliver it back to his starting point as he wrote, but he sent messages to friends and congratulations to fellow aviators.

The other members of the party, Bert Acosta, pilot, and Bert Balchen, relief man, did not sign any of the messages nor were they mentioned in any of them, except under the general heading of "we" but this was taken to indicate that all was well with them.

Unexpected Start. The America is the first trans-Atlantic plane from which it has been possible to conduct communication tests as both Charles Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin forebore carrying radio sets.

The flight got under way this morning with a suddenness in striking contrast with the many delays which held up a start during the past few days.

Naval Meet Turns Attention to Problems of Cruisers and Guns

Lindbergh Returns to St. Louis After Trip to New York

St. Louis, June 29—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Lambert-St. Louis flying field near here about 7 o'clock tonight after his flight from New York in a single-seated army pursuit plane. He was accompanied by Major Thomas Lanphier in a similar plane. The flyers were to have landed at Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., but changed their plans and came on to the Lambert-St. Louis flying field.

ASK VOTE ON GAS TAX LAW

Petitions Out for Referendum on Leland Bill.

Detroit, June 29—(AP)—Petitions asking a referendum vote on the Leland three-cent gasoline tax law recently signed by Gov. Fred W. Green, will be issued Thursday, Richard W. Reading, city clerk and chairman of the referendum committee, said today.

The petitions approved by the Detroit city council and the Detroit Automobile club, seek to halt the enforcement of a law which would increase the gasoline tax from two to three cents. Should the necessary 31,500 signatures be secured the opponents of the increase would present the petition to John S. Haggerty, secretary of state, for approval and ask its incorporation in the issues to be faced at the November election in 1928.

Officials of the Michigan Farm Bureau and Grange who had been quoted as opposing the law passed by the 1927 legislature have denied and definite stand against enforcement of the law. The Leland bill as passed by the legislature, was acknowledged by Governor Green as an administration measure, aimed to bring additional funds for construction and maintenance of trunk line highways.

It has been considered probable that Haggerty, as secretary of state, would refuse to acknowledge the petition, in which case the opponents of the measure would refer final decision to the state supreme court through mandamus proceedings.

Leaders in the fight to halt enforcement of the new law in September have been Senator Arthur E. Wood and Representative Robert Wardell of Detroit and officials of the Detroit Automobile club.

Both Governor Green and Frank S. Rogers, state highway commissioner, have announced that if additional highway construction is to be considered, additional funds must be obtained.

Coolidge Looks on As Nation Makes History

Rapid City, S. D., June 29—(AP)—From a far-away corner of the great northwest, President Coolidge looked out today upon a world in which the nation of which he is the head, was writing new chapters for history.

He sat in his bare and simple office in the high school building of a town of 3,000 and heard of the successful termination, and the beginning of the Honolulu flight, and of a hazardous trans-oceanic flight by Commander Byrd and from far-off Switzerland came the most recent news of what is going on at the Geneva air arms conference.

As the word reached him through both press dispatches and from the war department in Washington that Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger had arrived in Honolulu, Mr. Coolidge sent a cablegram of congratulations pointing out that they had added further to the already brilliant record of American aviation.

"Your success," he cabled, "furnishes evidence of the efficiency of our air forces."

The president also heard with hope and interest of the beginning of Commander Byrd's flight to Paris and while these two great peace-time events were being relayed to him he wanted the

DROP CAPITAL SHIP QUESTION

Great Britain Not Asking for Supremacy of Strength.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 29—(AP)—With the British now seemingly convinced that it is impossible to reopen the Washington treaty at this time without the consent of the United States, the delegates to the tripartite naval conference are focusing their attention on the problem of cruisers. This may take on a new angle owing to British emphasis on the wisdom of agreeing to reduction in the calibre of the guns.

Experts are examining the feasibility not only of dividing cruisers into two classes, but also the creation of two categories of 10,000-ton cruisers, one of which would be armed with eight-inch guns as provided by the Washington agreement and the other with six-inch guns.

Apparently the Americans are not pressing too hard the agreement that six-inch guns could easily be installed on swift merchantmen, thus according Great Britain an immense superiority in the conversion of liners into auxiliary cruisers in war time because such an agreement might in the long run react against American national interests if the United States should itself decide to develop a merchant marine.

There is seemingly no intention on the part of the American delegation to accept the British proposal whereby future cruisers would be limited to 7,500 tons with six-inch guns. This limitation would be contingent, under the British plan, upon agreement concerning the number of 10,000-ton cruisers to be allocated to Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

As the large size cruisers authorized by the Washington treaty would automatically disappear by the adoption of the British proposal and the Americans, who have always insisted upon the necessity of the larger cruisers as best suited to American naval requirements, will not tie their hands by any commitment, even if it would only materialize two decades hence.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, today repudiated a statement published by a Geneva newspaper that in his recent conversation with Viscount Ishii of Japan, he wielded "the big stick" after the manner of Roosevelt and that the interview was a violent one.

"My conversations with Viscount Ishii," said Mr. Gibson, "were marked by complete friendliness. Nothing occurred which could be construed as a threat or a manifestation of bad temper."

Viscount Ishii's attitude was marked by his habitual distinguished courtesy and hope you will give me credit for not resorting to such bungling methods as alleged.

The interview in question was that in which the head of the Japanese delegation referred to the possibility of Japan siding with the British discussing the question of capital ships.

Geneva, June 29—(AP)—Great Britain has had no intention of contesting the principle of parity between the naval strength of the United States and Great Britain, W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, said tonight in an exclusive statement to the Associated Press.

The first lord added that he was surprised to see that an impression seemed to prevail in some quarters that Great Britain was asking for supremacy.

Judge Carr Refuses To Grant Petition

Lansing, June 29—(AP)—Judge Leland W. Carr in Ingham circuit court today refused to grant the petition of the Safety Motor Coach company of Grand Rapids for a temporary injunction against the Michigan public utilities commission restraining that body from issuing a permit to the defunct Grand Rapids, Grand Haven and Muskegon Railway company to operate busses between Grand Rapids, Grand Haven and Muskegon.

Grace Delays Hop-off; Winds Against Him

Mana, Island of Kaul, Hawaii, June 29—(AP)—Head winds tonight were delaying the proposed hop-off of Richard Grace, Hollywood aviator, for the mainland. Grace slept most of this afternoon.

One of his associates announced that if the present unfavorable conditions continued, it was Grace's intention to return his plane to Pearl Harbor on the island of Oahu, and await favorable winds.

TALK INDUSTRY AT INT'L MEET

Chamber of Commerce Continues Discussions at Stockholm.

Stockholm, Sweden, June 29—(AP)—The delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce conference continued their discussions today on industrial matters, both national and international. The committees on international settlement adopted a resolution that it would be desirable for the chamber to place the flow of big capital from nation to nation.

Dr. Alberto Pierelli of Italy, the president, emphasized that control built up on statistics would give a picture of the international financial situation which would be most useful when the next big loans were negotiated.

The International Chamber of Commerce, he said, should study carefully the effects of war debts and reparations paid.

The American delegates, Willis H. Booth and Fred I. Kent and the English delegate, Sir Arthur Balfour, concurred in Dr. Pierelli's views.

The draft committee on trade barriers submitted the draft of a resolution to be placed before the plenary session of Friday, affirming the conviction that the restoration of world prosperity would be most effectively promoted by progressive reduction of barriers now preventing full expansion of international trade.

The draft resolution unexpectedly met with strong opposition from the French delegation which disagreed with its free trade tendency and declared that France in the near future intended to increase her tariffs.

This declaration caused some confusion, and the president of the committee set tomorrow for another meeting to seek a formula which could be unanimously acceptable.

The draft resolution gives unanimous confirmation of the report of the trade barriers committee, which was accepted as one of the five official documents at the international economic conference at Geneva last month and directs the committee to pursue its examination of the problems detailed therein. It declares that the work of the economic conference depends for the success of its efforts on the execution of the principles laid down by the delegates of 50 nations and hopes that the League of Nations council will take the earliest definite steps with that in mind.

CAPITAL SHIP RATIO, 5-5-3, WILL BE KEPT

AMERICAN FIRMNESS TO GUIDE GENEVA VERDICT.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1927, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, June 28.—The United States government will stand pat on its decision to allow the Washington treaties of 1921-22 to run their full ten-year period before agreeing to a revision of ratios or any other alteration in the capital ship program.

The willingness of Japan to side with Great Britain in reopening the capital ship controversy is regarded here as merely a gesture of good will on the part of Tokyo in showing the lengths to which she is ready to go to reduce armament expenditure. So the United States delegation is not going to be permitted to switch from the program already agreed upon, and it is expected that when the firmness of the American view is fully understood by the other delegates at Geneva, the conference will proceed on the line originally laid down, namely, to limit the light cruisers, submarines and their auxiliary craft.

Opposes Discussion. The American government is against discussion of capital ships because it means asking France and Italy into the conference and both Rome and Paris have indicated their refusal to do anything until the big powers have agreed. To avoid a deadlock and indeed a prolonged debate on a subject on which there can be little chance of agreement, the United States wants to take up the armament problem where it was abandoned in 1922 and not try to re-open all the technical questions that made agreement at that time a matter of several months discussion.

Both Britain and Japan are pressed, however, to cut down all kinds of armament expenditure and it is not surprising that they both are willing to go even further than the United States at this time. The one thing, however, that made the Washington conference a success was the recognition from the start of the 5-5-3 ratio. If that is to be upset with respect to auxiliary craft, the conference will have much difficulty in accomplishing anything. The ratio of anything less or more than 5-5-3, anything which tends to weaken the relative position of the United States with respect to other powers simply means failure for the treaty when it reaches the senate as by that time enough public sentiment can be worked up along nationalistic lines to prevent adoption.

The assessments referred to by Hell and Potter were made in 1925 long before a fourth-term campaign by former Governor Grosbeck, whom Lord supported, was even thought of. Lord stated, "I have always wanted to fly to Hawaii."

There was no time for a detailed information then for the governor of Hawaii and the commanders of the army and the navy in the islands, the mayor of Honolulu and scores of men and women prominent in civil affairs were impatient to tender greetings for which they had waited through the night of rain.

But a couple of hours later, refreshed by bathing and the brief rest, the two young lieutenants smilingly faced newspapermen in a hotel suite.

Maitland and Hegenberger then narrated incidents of their dramatic adventure calmly, as though merely discussing some routine, every day mission. They admitted frankly that they were pleased with having been given the trans-Pacific flight assignment, but pointed out modestly that there were other pilots and navigators in the army air corps who undoubtedly would have performed the task successfully.

The first question was in regard to food aboard the Fokker plane, and drew a laugh from both Maitland and Hegenberger. "We had water," explained Maitland. "You see we had ordered some sandwiches and had expected to have some coffee and hot soup in thermos bottles. But when we looked for them, we could not find them. If they were in the plane, we failed to locate them."

MAITLAND AND HEGENBERGER REPORT IDEAL FLYING CONDITIONS; KEEP CLOSE TO COURSE ENTIRE DISTANCE.

Honolulu, June 29—(AP)—Arriving from the American mainland in the brilliant sunshine of the new day, Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger of the U. S. Army, completed this morning the first flight over the Pacific ocean from the American mainland to Hawaii.

They came unescorted, for the army's welcoming planes lost them in the murky darkness and rain of early morning. No money prize was theirs. But they received the acclaim of the highest officers of the army and navy, the congratulations of the governor of Hawaii, and the spontaneous, wholehearted applause of the thousands who had waited hours in the rain to greet them.

Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger rested tonight, happy in the accomplishment of another aviation triumph in the progress of the world and proud in the possession of a personal telegram from the president of the United States praising the skill of Maitland as a pilot and of Hegenberger as a navigator.

Prizes might have been theirs, for as civilians they would have their chance to win the James D. Dole prize of $35,000 for a trans-Pacific flight after August 12; as army men whose duty had been fulfilled, they declined $10,000 offered them by a newspaper for an exclusive story. What they did and their narration of it, instead, was contributed freely to history.

MEMBER OF TAX BOARD RESIGNS

George Lord, Chairman of Commission, Hands in Resignation.

Lansing, June 29—(AP)—George Lord sent his resignation as chairman of the state tax commission, effective August 15, to Governor Green today. His action followed closely the charge by John Hell, Ironwood supervisor, and W. W. Potter, attorney general, that Groble county properties were favored by Lord for political reasons when an assessment was made in 1925.

In his letter of resignation Lord told the governor he desired to give up his post before the annual meeting of the state board of equalization which is to be held the week of August 15. Lord stated he does not wish to sit in the meeting because the administration then could blame him for whatever mistakes it may make in apportioning the state tax levy among the counties. He wrote he wishes to step out of office to permit the appointment of a chairman who can carry out the governor's wishes on the equalization board.

Lord charged the allegations made by Hell were unsupported by facts and asserted it was "pure politics." He charged the administration with attempting to justify an act passed by the legislature ousting him and other members of the present tax commission from office. The law becomes effective September 5 upon which date Lord would automatically go out of office had he not resigned.

The assessments referred to by Hell and Potter were made in 1925 long before a fourth-term campaign by former Governor Grosbeck, whom Lord supported, was even thought of. Lord stated, "I have always wanted to fly to Hawaii."

STORMS HINDER FORD AIR TOUR

Rain and Fog Scatter Planes in Mountainous Region.

Boston, June 29—(AP)—Mother nature took a hand in the national air tour today, flogging a storm at the fourteen stops as they soared over the rough and tangled wilderness of the Berkshire hills on their 168-mile hop from Schenectady, N. Y., to the Boston airport. Rain, fog and a head wind, striking the fottilla as it reached the summit of the western Massachusetts mountains, forced four of the officially entered planes to land at scattered points some seventy miles west of this city. Another craft, accompanying the tour but not competing for the honors, also landed. The remaining ships chugged their way to the landing field in East Boston, one of this number coming in three hours after its scheduled appearance. No one was hurt as the five planes found their emergency landing fields, and none of the ships was damaged, so far as could be learned at the airport this evening. Passengers on the stranded craft made their way to Boston by train, but the pilots remained with their charges, planning to fly on in the morning in time for the scheduled start for New York City at 11 o'clock, daylight time. The huge tri-motored Ford transport, carrying eight persons, cracked a cylinder in her motor on the trip across the state, but it was said that the unit would be replaced tonight, permitting the ship to resume the flight on schedule. One of the Ford's passengers is Edward P. Warner, assistant secretary of the navy, who is making the tour as an official observer. Reports of storms over Massachusetts held the fleet on the Schenectady air field four hours beyond the time set for the take-off. At 3:15 o'clock the armada took the air, picking a course across northern Massachusetts. As they neared the crest of the hills, the planes ran into fog and a driving rain. Separating as much as possible to avoid collision the ships forged ahead, but found it rather hard to hold the route over the forests and mountains. The storm continued for fifty miles, but before it was spent, the five planes had taken refuge on land. The Ryan monoplane, sister ship of Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," came down in the outskirts of Worcester, far from the plotted course. A Waco plane and a Buhl all-metal ship reported that they had landed near Gardner, while an Eagle Rock entry was believed to have found safety on a meadow near Holden. The fifth ship, a Pitcairn not entered in the tour but carrying the manager, Ray Cooper, was reported to have landed near Ludlow, but its exact location had not been determined this evening.

Detroit, June 29—(AP)—Questioning of Carl J. Ruks, automobile license dealer, who with Fred Jackson, clerk in the local office of the secretary of state, is held here in connection with the alleged license frauds, revealed Rude cheated his accomplice, according to Prosecutor Robert Tom. The specific case with which the men are charged, netted them a profit of $29, according to Sidney A. Schulte, deputy secretary of state. Rude accepted an application from the owner of a three-ton truck, charging him $61. Jackson then approved the application, changing the weight of the machine to 1 1/4 tons, forwarding $32 to the state offices at Lansing, the men admitted today. Rude, however, confessed that he paid only $4.50 to Jackson, telling him that the deal had netted them a profit of only $9, and pocketed the other $20.

Friends and relatives of the flyers were notified. Spend Sleepless Night. By 2 o'clock the hangar was swarming with activity. And then the men who asked no better fate than to risk their lives in an effort to make the lives of future flyers less hazardous, went out to the plane whose motors were roaring as though impatient to be off. The barograph was sealed. T. Harold Kinkade, Wright motor expert, sat at the controls and smiled as the engines warmed up. Perhaps a part of the smile was for a plan he had, which he had earlier confided to reporters, to stow himself away in the plane. At Kinkade's nod that all was well the flyers climbed to their places, Acosta at the controls, Kinkade looked at the spot he had selected in the fuselage to hide himself when Commander Byrd caught the wistfulness of that look. "You want to go, Doc?" he asked. "Here, let's throw some of this stuff overboard. Maybe we can make room."

The barograph was sealed. T. Harold Kinkade, Wright motor expert, sat at the controls and smiled as the engines warmed up. Perhaps a part of the smile was for a plan he had, which he had earlier confided to reporters, to stow himself away in the plane. At Kinkade's nod that all was well the flyers climbed to their places, Acosta at the controls, Kinkade looked at the spot he had selected in the fuselage to hide himself when Commander Byrd caught the wistfulness of that look. "You want to go, Doc?" he asked. "Here, let's throw some of this stuff overboard. Maybe we can make room."

Uses Bourgeois Money for Red Propaganda

Paris—Red revolution is being financed unwittingly by the Parisian luxury trade. The milliners, dressmakers, perfumers, jewelers, and other shops-de-luxe of the district upper crust, who visualize capitalism and ease to most of the people, have awarded a prize of 15,000 francs and a nice little automobile to Gabriel Reuillard, whose object in life is to destroy the whole system of "bourgeois money power." Reuillard won the prizes offered by the de luxe industries for the best novel. Whether the owners of these industries knew it or not, Reuillard is far to the "left" in politics. He announced the money would keep him while he goes on with his war of words on "civilized" society.

Say Dog Vaccination Helps Reduce Rabies

Paris—Vaccination of dogs has done much to stamp out rabies, it was agreed by scientists attending a recent rabies congress at the Pasteur Institute. Japan, Italy and the United States, it was said, had vaccinated several hundred thousand dogs. The results have shown that dogs so treated developed rabies in only a small percentage of the cases. This vaccination, however, is said to give only temporary protection; it must be repeated every year to be effective.

Japan Ditch Deeper Than Everest Is High

Washington—The deepest spot in the Pacific ocean, as measured by the German cruiser Emden, is the Japan Ditch, between the Philippines and Japan. The depth there reaches 34,210 feet, so if Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, the highest peak in the world, should be toppled over into the Ditch it would be hidden from the surface by 2,000 meters of water.

Judge Rules Miss King May Accept Or Refuse Damages

Battle Creek, June 29—(AP)—The decision of acceptance of denial of Judge Walter H. North's ruling in the damage suit brought by Louise King, Battle Creek college student, against Arthur G. Rich, son of a wealthy Battle Creek manufacturer, lies with Miss King, John W. Bailey, attorney for the plaintiff, said today. Miss King had sued and obtained judgment of $50,000 damages against Rich following the conviction of the youth of criminal assault at Mason. Judge North recently denied a motion for retrial presented by Rich's attorneys but reduced the award in the damage suit from $50,000 to $25,000. Attorney Bailey, now mayor of Battle Creek, said he would recommend the cut which would automatically deny a motion for retrial of the damage suit as ordered by Judge North. Rich is now serving a life sentence in the state prison at Jackson.

Candles Still Light George Tavern Rooms

London—The old George Tavern is about the only hotel left in London where a guest is shown to his bedroom by the light of a candle. The ancient tavern contains many relics of Charles Dickens, and pictures and photographs of London as it appeared in his day. It is situated in a courtyard which is reached by turning up a narrow lane out of Borough High Street, near London Bridge. All bedrooms are furnished with huge old fashioned four-poster bedsteads. It is the only remaining hostelry in England's capital with an open wooden balcony running along outside the bedroom windows. Shelves behind its tiny bar are laden with old pewter quart pots, relics of the old coaching days when thirsts were big and capacities unlimited. Hung upon the walls are cumbersome pistols, which were carried by the old night watchmen.

Lingerie of Voile Leads for Summer

Paris—Lingerie of voile in colors to match sport costumes are Paris' favorite. Lingerie makers, who often specialize in silk sport dresses and blouses also, are doing a rushing business with the sports sets, which include voile underthings, a silk costume slip and a two piece silk sport dress. The whole set is usually made by hand and every piece matches in color.

Twelve Passengers Injured In Wreck

Chicago, June 29—(AP)—One woman was injured seriously and several other passengers shaken when four cars of Nickel Plate passenger train No. 3 from New York were derailed tonight in South Chicago. The engine and two baggage cars had passed over a switch which was split by the third car. Two coaches, a sleeper and dining car left the track. Several passengers were taken to the LaSalle street station in one of the baggage cars but were able to proceed to their homes upon arrival there. Mrs. Dorothy McClure, 52 Barrington, Ill., the woman most seriously hurt, was taken to a hospital suffering from injuries to her back. Chicago, June 29—(AP)—A dozen passenger were reported injured tonight when a club car and two Pullman cars of a Nickel Plate railroad passenger train pulling into Chicago from New York turned over at Eighty-fifth street and Woodlawn avenue in South Chicago. The engine and one car passed over a switch, which the club car apparently split. The club car and the Pullmans bounced along the ties and overturned. The injured, including one woman, whose condition appeared to be critical, were placed in the baggage car and transferred from the station to a hospital.

Shanghai, June 29—(AP)—The Nanking, or moderate nationalist regime in China is willing to accept responsibility and make reparations for the damages suffered by Americans during the Nanking disorders of March 24. C. C. Wu, minister of foreign affairs for the Nanking government, today told Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana who is studying conditions in China. Wu also told Senator Wheeler that the Nanking regime would like to have the United States consul return to Nanking and to have the missionaries return to the interior, whence most of them fled during the anti-foreign campaign of the past few months. He said that the Nanking government was making provisions in the war-swept regions for the resumption of missionary activity. In connection with the Nanking disorders, which resulted in shooting to death of the Reverend John E. rupted to say that he had found the food in the plane untouched. Under the plotting board, covered by a tarpaulin, were the sandwiches, coffee and hot soup.

When asked for their general impressions of the long flight, Maitland replied, Hegenberger nodding in concurrence: "My first and outstanding impression is that it is the starting point toward more general distribution and strengthening of military aviation, and an important step in reorganization of our coast defenses."

"I might add right there," said Hegenberger, "that this flight positively was not in the nature of a stunt. The most complete arrangements possible were made to govern it."

Asked regarding the extent of deviation from their plotted course, Hegenberger, the navigator, answered: "We knew where we were at all times, or very closely so. While we were not exactly on the course every minute of the time, we were not very far away from it."

"Our first check as to position was made with a steamer bound for San Francisco when we were about 75 miles out. I remember that I wrote a note to Maitland telling him that we ought to sight the ship in about 25 minutes. And when we looked out after a while we saw it."

Made Celestial Observations. "We ran into a very heavy cross-wind during the first 500 miles out," said Maitland, explaining weather conditions, "but after that the winds were generally favorable."

"Later on the wind was right on our tail and I can tell you that was much more than we had expected," Hegenberger added. "While it was daylight," Maitland continued the explanation, "we saw about 300 feet above the sea, but when it was dark we saw at a height of 10,000 feet, in order that Hegenberger might make celestial observations to determine our position."

"We had to fly high to get above the clouds," said Hegenberger. When inquiry was made concerning the performance of the three motors that drove the plane Maitland said: "Right at the beginning each motor in turn caused some anxiety but they all straightened up finally. About 2 o'clock this morning, one of the motors became slightly cooled."

Will Not Fly Back. Other inquiries brought out that there was no moon to aid them, and that they did not know that Ernest Smith, who was to have raced them across the Pacific, had not been able to take off from the Oakland field where both planes had been stationed for the hopoff.

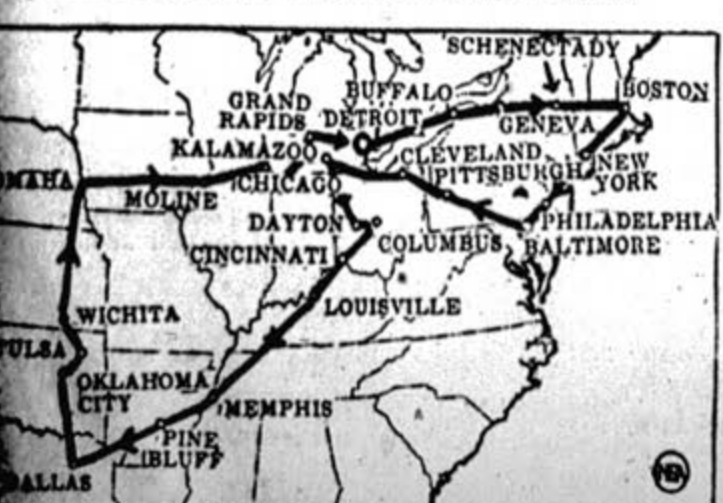

Maitland said he was not very tired but certainly would like some sleep. He had nothing to say about possibility of a return flight, a matter that was settled later when a Washington dispatch stated that the aviators were not to fly back, and that their great monoplane was to be left in Hawaii, for inter-island flying.

Radio Beam Successful. Regarding the radio beacon signals sent out to aid them by stations in San Francisco and Hawaii, Hegenberger, a technician of distinction, said: "The radio beam is a success, but we were unable to make much use for it for the reason that our radio receiver went out of commission several times. However, when we were able to use the receiver, the radio beam signals came in very well."

"One of our motors," remarked Maitland, "gave us some trouble. It sputtered and cut out and for a while we thought we were going to lose it. It caused us to settle from 10,000 feet to about 4,000 and through three or four cloud layers before it finally picked up."

The explanation was made casually and with no indication that possible disaster impended. Maitland expressed the opinion that the radio signal source was much narrower than expected. Average Speed 115 M. P. H. "It appeared to me so," agreed Hegenberger. "However, the radio beam gives promise of becoming tremendously valuable. We were able to get signals when eight or nine hours on our course."

Munich Refuses To Fly Colors Of Republic

Berlin—The city fathers of Munich won't have anything to do with the federal republican flag. Only the state emblem of Bavaria and the city flag of Munich may be flown from its masts on festive occasions.

This unusual ban on the country's color came as the climax to a row between monarchists and socialists in the board of aldermen. A motion was up for discussion by which the city hall was to be adorned by four flags—the old monarchist, the new republican, the state, and the city.

The socialists voted to strike out the monarchist colors. The majority supported them. In a huff, the monarchists then proposed to bar the republican colors also. There were enough staunch "state's rights" aldermen even among the republican middle to carry this motion also.

Newspapers in Northern Germany now ask ironically whether Bavaria is still to be considered a part of Germany.

Indian Boys and Girls Enroll In Farm Clubs

Washington—More than 5,500 Indian boys and girls have been enrolled during the past year in juvenile agricultural clubs, statistics at the Interior Department show.

Last year Indian club members raised products valued at $43,752, including corn, potatoes, other vegetables, poultry and farm animals. Canning clubs and sewing circles are credited with splendid work.

Among those winning high honors in the corn club was Hannah High Hawk, a 12-year-old full blood Sioux girl of the Cheyenne River reservation in South Dakota. She was awarded a free trip to the National Corn Congress.

Paris—Suzanne Lenglen, once the undefeated woman tennis champion of the world, now at Nice, has turned to collecting stamps.

In company with her American manager, Suzanne is now a daily visitor to the principal stamp marts of the Riviera. She collects stamps as she plays tennis—not concentrating on any one spot but generally keeping her opponent guessing. She is just as likely to buy a Monaco stamp because she likes the colours as she is to buy an old Russian stamp because it is rare.

Jungle Breath CHAPTER XXIX

Vilak turned his blackened face from his rifle an instant, shot a glance at the chemist, squeezed his shoulder affectionately. "Hard luck, Nanny," he said cheerily. "Work for you, Elise."

London arose yesterday to look at a total eclipse of the sun but the sky was gray and unbroken and rain was falling. Never mind, London, Escanaba knows just how you feel.

THE BEESGERS' firing became desultory. Vilak took advantage of the interval of inaction to stretch his cramped muscles and light a cigarette. The match sputtered into the water at his feet.

HE FICKLED the ash from his cigarette. "If any of you have any ideas, they'll be welcome." Elise and the old man looked at him and shook their heads.

Elise glanced at Vilak questioning. "A battering ram, probably," he said. "About time they thought of it. They'll try to break down the gate. And at the loss of a few men they'll undoubtedly do it, for most of them can keep in the shelter of the wall."

A few moments later they heard the dull, muffled booming of wood against iron as a log struck the gate. They fired. The muffled thunder continued, in short, regular intervals like the reports of some distant artillery regiment practicing on the range.

The old man, despite his wounded arm, had resumed firing. His rifle jammed. Vilak cleared it. "Gate can't last much longer," he muttered.

Dark Blue Shoes Gain Popularity

Paris—Parisian women have always liked colored shoes better than their American sisters and the blue kid shoes for wear with the tailored costumes are very popular here. Nevertheless many smartly dressed American women in Paris are adopting the dark blue shoe style. The prettiest shade for street wear is a midnight blue so deep it appears black at a casual glance.

Society Takes Up Snake Jewelry Fad

Paris—Snake chains are the latest fad in Paris. The long sinuous necklaces, some of them two yards in length, are wrapped several times around the neck, many times around the arm or occasionally around the ankle. Snake jewelry is being displayed in the most expensive shops of the Rue de la Paix. Emeralds and diamonds are most often employed for the expensive brooches and bracelets in the snake design.

Bracelets of Straw Sponsored by Paris

Paris (F)—Wide bracelets of vividly colored straw are being worn in Paris, where they were introduced by the house of Jenny. The newest ornaments look like grandmother's old coral wristlets and are nearly always worn in pairs, one on either arm. The straw is wound flat around a form, or woven in simple designs.

Alfred W. (Bill) Lapine, of Gladstone is back from Annapolis, Md., where he reported this week to the United States Naval Academy as the appointee of Congressman Frank P. Bohn. In the physical examination it was revealed, however, that a slight heart murmur would make it impossible for him to enter the school. Physical perfection is one of the requirements. Naturally, Mr. Lapine was severely disappointed, and his feelings are shared by his many friends in this locality.

chewed and moistened with saliva; indigestible parts of the food such as skins and seeds should be avoided, and also any considerable amount of fat.

Atropine, as has been said, may be administered, but it does not always serve to check an attack of seasickness, particularly in the presence of the causative factors that have been mentioned. It sometimes serves also to destroy the appetite of persons who have not particularly good appetites, especially older persons.

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

New Treatment is Outlined to Prevent Seasickness.

Basing his opinions on experimental investigations of the conditions of the stomach and intestines during seasickness, the Russian physiologist, W. W. Boldyreff, has outlined a system for the prevention and treatment of seasickness which seems well worth an extensive trial.

He has found that the absence of digestion and of the acid gastric juices in the stomach will inhibit the periodic activity of that organ and of the intestines. Such inhibition is also brought about by the mental state of fear or fright. On the sea when the boat is rocked, fear or fright may temporarily stop the periodic activity, but this comes back with greater force when the inhibition is discontinued.

The greater force of the attack produces hiccups, nausea and vomiting, which are the chief symptoms of seasickness. From his observations on the sea for a period of over twenty-five years and from his special experiments, he is convinced also that persons with diseased conditions of the digestive apparatus, especially of the small intestine, are likely to become seasick on the ocean.

He therefore presents the following outline for the prevention of seasickness: The digestive apparatus should be kept in perfect order; abundant and heavy food should be avoided. Everything capable of producing fright or worry should be avoided. If necessary, the person may go to bed and be kept warm, taking sour drinks such as lemon or orange juice in small amounts.

Certain drugs such as atropine weaken the periodic activity of the stomach and intestines, but nicotine apparently increases the activity and thus encourages the appearance of seasickness. He therefore suggests the giving by a physician of small doses of atropine and the avoidance of tobacco smoke by the non-smoker. The smoker should reduce his usual amount of tobacco.

Since the mental influences associated with the production of seasickness are important, he suggests advice by a specialist who is capable of inspiring the person with confidence, and the training of the personnel of the boat so that they will influence the passengers favorably by their behavior and conversation. At present the tactless comments of persons who make remarks suggesting seasickness sometimes bring on the attack.

The hiccups may be prevented by the swallowing of much saliva or by the use in the stomach of small doses of 0.1 per cent of hydrochloric acid. A physician can administer this easily.

Foods which are taken should be in small portions, thoroughly

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

Snappy farce comedy, said to be one of the best motion pictures of the season, is being shown again today at the Delft Theatre. It is "The Demi-Bride," and Norma Shearer's latest starring vehicle. "The Demi-Bride" is the lovely Norma's first fling at farce. That she does it superbly is evidenced by the enthusiastic approval which is meeting the film throughout the country. The story concerns a young girl from a convent school who falls in love with the most dashing boulevardier of Paris. How she, with her naive, unsophisticated ways, wins him away from her charming and worldly stepmother, and from the star of the Folies Bergere, not to mention other seductive ladies, affords one mirth-provoking surprise after another. Low Cody plays opposite Miss Shearer. The story was especially written for these two players and it affords them ample opportunity to display their talents. Both appear at their best. Carmel Myers in the role of the stepmother contributes a striking performance.

Miss Mathis again had charge of the adaptation from the stage play by Charles Merz.

The story is about a beautiful woman who becomes involved in a bacchanalian party through her effort to win financial support for

You Can't Make a Good Ginger Ale Overnight

CLICQUOT CLUB is a veritable vintage that stimulates the senses and satisfies the natural craving for a pure, delicious drink.

The connoisseur who tests a rare old beverage bases his verdict on four cardinal considerations—Color, Bouquet, Flavor and Body.

Lifting to the light a glass of Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, first of all he sees a sparkling glow; next he whiffs a subtle fragrance born of the perfect blending of the fruit flavors—orange, lemon, lime, and the choicest ginger root from Jamaica—a bouquet of alluring aroma.

The first taste tells a story of flavor, which represents the devoted cooperation of skilled craftsmen with the mellowing powers of Time.

And, like fine wine, Clicquot Club has body, which comes into being through the intermingling of the right proportions of sweetening and flavor, plus aging, which supplies that indefinable quality so highly appreciated.

Based on the virgin water of a natural spring, and containing ingredients whose quality is higher than the highest government standards, Clicquot Club is unique in its purity.

Your choice—the rich Golden, or the delicate Pale Dry—and you have the ultimate in a pure, exhilarating drink.

COW TESTING PROVES WORTH

Bark River Dairyman Shows Fine Gains Through 4 Years.

"Continuous testing of dairy herds in cow testing associations is the greatest means of advancement," said Russell E. Horwood, dairy extension specialist for the upper peninsula.

A good example of this is shown by the DeLoughary brothers of Bark River. They have completed three years of testing and are well into the fourth year at the present time. The record for the three years are as follows:

	Av. lb.	Av. lb.	No.
	Milk	Fat	Cows
1st year...	4,906.5	209.0	33.3
2nd year...	6,924.6	265.0	30.8
3rd year...	8,924.6	338.0	16.3
4th year...			13.0

Eight months of testing have gone by in the fourth year and already six cows have over 200 pounds of fat to their credit. We see also that there has been a reduction again in the number of cows.

"We thought we knew everything about our cows at the end of the first year," Mr. DeLoughary said. "County Agent Turner of Delta county advised us to continue. We can see now the value of continuous testing and can not afford to stop."

"Our herd produces the same amount of milk," Mr. DeLoughary continued, "with less cows and thus considerable less feed and less cost. The calves we are getting are stronger and more sturdy than those before we started testing."

Poor Cows Eliminated.
"Before entering C. T. A. work we fed no grain at all," stated Mr. DeLoughary, "now we feed grain winter and summer and find through the teaching of testing work that for every dollar expended for grain we receive considerable more than a dollar in return."

"The advancement made by the DeLoughary brothers can be contributed," said Mr. Horwood, "to the culling out of poor cows in this herd and the practicing of better methods of feeding which are taught through testing work. This is only one of many herds that have and still are profiting by continuous testing in cow testing associations."

Thousand Poisons Tested for Fight On Boll Weevil

By NEA Service.
New York—In an effort to make the boll weevil like its poison, and so fall a greater victim to its own taste, chemists of the chemical warfare service have experimented with more than 1000 poisons and poison mixtures against 150,000 of the cotton insects.

Report of the progress of the chemists, H. W. Walker and J. E. Mills, has just been issued by the American Chemical Society.

Of the 1000 poisons tried, 82 compounds were found that equaled or surpassed calcium arsenate, which is now the standard in this drive against the weevil. But only 22 of these caused little or no plant injury. And out of these 22, only five are commercial possibilities.

Hard to Affect It.
Not one substance, however, has been found that would attract or repel the boll weevil, or even irritate it enough to make it fly.

"It was thought," the report says, "that if calcium arsenate could be made more pleasing to the weevil's taste the weevil might ingest more of the poison, thus increasing the effectiveness of the calcium arsenate."

Although some indication was noted of such a tendency, no conclusive results were obtained.

Gas Found Useless.
Poison gases, it was found, have little effect on the pests. The weevils could live many hours without breathing fresh air. The best effects were obtained when calcium arsenate in a thin spray was used, the percentage of the mixture being low enough not to injure the plants.

The tests described in the report began in 1924 and were carried out in Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and Alabama. Weevils were put in cold storage to be taken out when needed.

Austrians Serenade Reichstag President

Berlin—A serenade by singers from another country in celebration of his recovery from a serious illness is a distinction which Paul Loeb, president of the reichstag, probably enjoys alone of presiding officers of the world's parliamentary bodies.

Loeb several months ago had an acute attack of appendicitis. After a prolonged cure at Bad Mergentheim he was at last able to resume his duties. He had just finished presiding over his first meeting amid a sea of flowers sent by colleagues and friends, when the halls of the reichstag building resounded with male chorus songs. The singers were railway employees from Vienna, on a visit to the German capital.

Loeb is very popular in Austria as he heads an organization working for the political union of Germany and Austria.

Loeb's medals are to be shown on exhibit in St. Louis. He didn't know they had that big town there.

The bride wore a dress of orchid color taffeta made of bouffant style and carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's dress was of white and she carried a bouquet of Pernet roses and sweet peas.

FOURTH TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Music, Athletics, Dancing on Street Included in Program.

Entertainment for the people of Escanaba on July 4 will be provided by the city administration. It was announced at the city hall yesterday. At first no sort of municipal observance of the holiday was contemplated. There has been, however, an insistent demand on the part of a very large number of local citizens for some sort of Independence Day celebration. As a result it was decided by the council yesterday, to arrange a program for the occasion.

Mike Walsh and Dr. Edward Hira will have charge of a set of races and contests for school children in Ludington park between 1 and 2:30 Monday afternoon. Prizes will be given to the winners. All of the contests will be for boys and girls.

At 2:30 o'clock there will be a band concert. At night an open air dance on the Third street pavement in front of the Delta county courthouse will be arranged. This will be followed by a band concert in Ludington park.

Concerning the band, it was explained that Director Joseph Greenfield, as a result of the juvenile band project, has more than fifty musicians available for service. Two bands will be formed, one to play at the Rapid River celebration and the other to give the concerts here, so that there will be no conflict on that point.

"The celebration will be safe and sane in every respect," Mayor George G. Geniesse said last night. "It will provide recreation and entertainment for those who remain at home July 4."

 A cordial welcome for all in the little churches with the big welcome.

The fruit picking season has begun here. A number of wild strawberries have been found. Saturday, Hazen Bros. of Sylvania Dell picked their first crate of cultivated strawberries. They were of the finest quality. Fruit prospects on the peninsula are good.

A pedestrian passing the Catholic cemetery south of town at a late hour Sunday night saw his own shadow as an automobile advanced from the rear. That fact was not funny but the man who saw the shadow saw visions of ghosts and goblins coming from the burial ground nearby and made a quick dash for somewhere. In interviewing him, we omitted to inquire whether he jumped in the direction of the shadow, or away from it.

A cat on the Soby LaFevre farm has given birth to four kittens, one of which has only three legs. There is just a tuft of fur in the place where the other leg should have been. Visitors who desired to examine the cute little freak found to their sorrow that though deprived

800 Delta County Residents Paid Income Taxes in 1926

BY C. C. SCHILLING

Washington, June 29 (Special)—There were 800 persons in Delta county in 1926 who made enough money to pay income taxes.

Of the total 800 who filed returns 525 reside in the city of Escanaba, 150 in Gladstone and the remaining 125 are scattered throughout the county, according to the annual report for the fiscal year made public today by the commissioner of internal revenue.

There was a substantial decrease generally in the number of returns made in 1926 over the year previous, due largely to the revision of the income tax laws. The numbers of returns in cities and towns neighboring to Escanaba include:

Munising, 150; Sault Ste. Marie, 450; Iron Mountain, 1425; Ironwood, 457; Calumet, 225; Hancock, 250; Houghton, 225; Iron River, 225; Newberry, 75; St. Ignace, 50; Manistique, 175; Menominee, 375; Ishpeming, 325; Marquette, 475; Negaunee, 180.

The total number of returns filed by Michigan persons was 188,669.

Leo Raymond returned Saturday to his home at Burnt Bluff after spending a week in Iron Mountain. George Prutell of Manistique was a business caller in town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Joque and family of Fayette spent a part of Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Joque.

Ed Tebo of Chicago is spending a few days at the home of his brother Frank here.

Stanley Joque, Leroy Winter, Virgil Winter, Don Farley, Andrew Tatrow, Clifford Gauthier and Roland Boudreau expect to leave here Friday for Green Bay where they will spend the summer vacation in the employ of the pea canning factory. Frank Tebo will accompany them there.

Last Friday, Orvid Cota and son Orvis noticed a commotion in the barnyard among the cattle and went out to investigate and found that a coyote was the cause of the disturbance. They both rushed for their guns and the younger man was successful in killing the intruder with the first shot. It was in the orchard near the house when shot. Last week, Mrs. Bert Healy of Kate's Bay also shot a coyote, which with a companion had been preying upon a flock of turkeys. It is believed that the animal shot by Mr. Cota was the mate of the one shot by Mrs. Healy and that the pair were the ones which, a short time ago, had escaped from the pen in which they were housed by Peter Foy of Isabella. The bounty on these animals is $10 per head. Mr. Cota went to Escanaba Monday to claim the reward. The hide is of very little value at this time of the year.

The Misses Ruth Stefklin and Martha Gray, owners of Camp Motor Board, well-known Fayette summer resort, arrived here Sunday to make preparations for the opening of their camp, which will be in a few days.

Jacob Roberts of Kate's Bay went down to Fayette Monday and will commence work immediately crushing stone to be used in making the tennis courts at the Camp Mortar Board resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker and children of Green Bay arrived in Garden Saturday night and visited at the home of his mother here. They left again early Sunday morning for Green Bay. They were accompanied to Garden and back by Lawrence Baker who is spending the summer months in Green Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hennessey motored to Schafer Friday.

The Misses Ruth and Marian Laux, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Laux of Manistique are spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed A. Laux of Fayette, while their own parents are enjoying a vacation at various points in lower Michigan.

Carlisle Hennessey and Fred Winter motored to Isabella and Cooks Sunday.

They were accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Ward Johnson and children and Mrs. D. Brown and children of Arcadia who are remaining for a few days to visit at the home of Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jacobson and son Milton of Fairport were business callers in town Monday.

Alex Mellon is putting a new shingle roof on his large dairy barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pizzala and Robert Watchorn of Fayette motored to Cooks Sunday.

A little excitement was experienced in Fairport Sunday morning when it was noted around that Fred Terrain and Christopher Kelly had not returned home. They had left about 7 a. m. Saturday with the Red Wing, a gasoline boat owned by the Shawl Fishing company, in search of a smaller craft which had drifted away during the windstorm of the day previous. Relatives became anxious on account of the continued absence of the men and Sunday morning another party started out in search of the missing men. Very soon they were successful in finding them. They arrived in Fairport late about noon Sunday much to the relief of relatives and friends.

Kenneth Headfield and sister Noreen left here Monday night via ferry from Manistique to Frankfort, on their way to Olivet college where they will attend the Young People's Conference for the states of Michigan and Indiana. They expect to be away for two or three weeks.

MISS MACKAYE FOUND GUILTY

Jury Deliberates Four Hours Before Returning Verdict.

Los Angeles, June 29—(AP)—Dorothy Mackaye, stage actress, late today was found guilty by a jury of eight women and four men of covering up facts surrounding the death of her actor-husband, Ray Raymond, as a result of which Paul Kelly, screen player, was convicted of manslaughter.

The jury deliberated less than three hours.

The dramatic stage star steered herself for the verdict and her face moved in convulsive emotions, as she tried to keep herself from collapsing.

Miss Mackaye was at once taken to the county jail where she will be a prisoner until Saturday when Superior Judge Burnell will sentence her.

Verdict a Surprise.

The actress may be sentenced to serve from one to three years in San Quentin penitentiary where Paul Kelly also will be sentenced.

serving a term for killing her husband.

The verdict came as a surprise to followers of the trial, especially since the two alternate jurors, Frank A. Zilligitt and H. H. Gehegan announced before the jury reported that had they been called upon to deliver a verdict they would have acquitted the actress.

A short time before the verdict was returned, Foreman H. E. Binkley told the judge that he wanted some advice regarding circumstantial evidence.

Judge Burnell explained what evidence was considered of a circumstantial nature, but told the jurors they themselves would have to determine what particular issues were to be regarded as purely circumstantial.

Question of Evidence.

A woman juror then arose and asked:

"Supposing any one is opposed to circumstantial evidence and would not believe in it?"

Judge Burnell's voice rang sharply:

"If any juror does not believe in circumstantial evidence they have committed perjury and have no business on this or any other jury. Any juror who will not accept circumstantial evidence has violated his or her oath."

Judge Burnell then asked how the vote stood and the foreman replied that it was 11 to 1.

Return in 20 Minutes.

Since this indicated the jury favored conviction there was a stir in the courtroom and some demonstration. Miss Mackaye stared straight ahead and gripped the arms of her chair.

In 20 minutes, however, the buzzer again rang and the jury filed in with the verdict of guilty.

Proceed With Doctor's Trial.

Forewarned of the verdict, Miss Mackaye braced herself in her chair. Once she heard the verdict the actress trembled and her throat convulsed. She appeared scarcely able to sit upright.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Forrest Murray and George Kemp, who prosecuted the case, declared they would proceed with the trial of Dr. Walter J. Sullivan, jointly indicted with Miss Mackaye, on July 25.

Evidence was brought out in the trial of the actress that Dr. Sullivan, who is alleged to have reported to the coroner inquest that Raymond died of natural causes was paid a fee of $500. The money came from Kelly.

Prosecution attorneys charging that Miss Mackaye and Dr. Sullivan entered into conspiracy to conceal the fact that Raymond died from the beating administered by Kelly characterized the actress as a "rampant woman," who had wrecked the lives of her husband, Kelly and Dr. Sullivan.

HIGH LIVING.

"Have you heard about Gladys?"

"Yes, she drinks cocktails and has a millionaire chaser."
