Radicals' Last-Minute Appeal Rejected

LEADERS BUSY WITH POLITICS THIS SUMMER

PUBLICITY BUREAUS IN CAPITAL WORKING HARD.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington, Aug. 20.—For midsummer the national capital is really the center of more political activity than it has been in any season except a campaign year.

The republican national publicity machine is endeavoring of course to point to the achievements of President Coolidge because it is realized that basically the next appeal to the country must be made on the basis of keeping the republican party in power and on the theory that republican rule has been a good thing.

Hoover's Friends Hesitate. But if the national headquarters of the republican party has its embarrasments, they are nothing compared to those of the federal office holders.

Meanwhile, however, the political leaders—former government officials, national chairmen and state chairmen—whose main concern is the success of the party nationally and its corresponding effect on local situations, are gathering here frequently and saying that something must be done to clear up the situation lest all sorts of discord be provoked which will hurt in the national campaign itself.

Congress Holds Key. The determining factor, of course, will be influential members of congress. Those who are up for re-election in 1928 are particularly interested in getting the strongest possible presidential ticket.

When the members of congress who are up for re-election make up their minds what is the strength of each of these candidates they will get back of the ones they think most likely. In recent national conventions the power of senators and representatives has been conspicuous.

Have But 48 Hours to Live

Boston, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, tonight turned toward Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States supreme court at the associate justice's summer home at Chatham, Mass., in another last minute desperate move to save his clients from execution on expiration of their latest respite at midnight next Monday.

Denied a writ of habeas corpus or stay of execution by Judge James M. Morton, Jr. of the United States district court, early today, and denied a stay by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court, early this evening, Attorney Hill announced he would take advantage of Justice Holmes' action in leaving the way open for a similar application to another justice of the highest court of the land and go to Justice Brandeis with his petition.

Same Grounds. He announced from his office here tonight that he would leave for Chatham "just as soon as I can get home and pack a bag." His plea for a stay of execution to Justice Brandeis will be on the same grounds as that made to Justice Holmes—namely, that petitions to bring the case before the full bench of the supreme court on a writ of certiorari are to be filed in Washington as soon as the full records of the case can be forwarded to the capital.

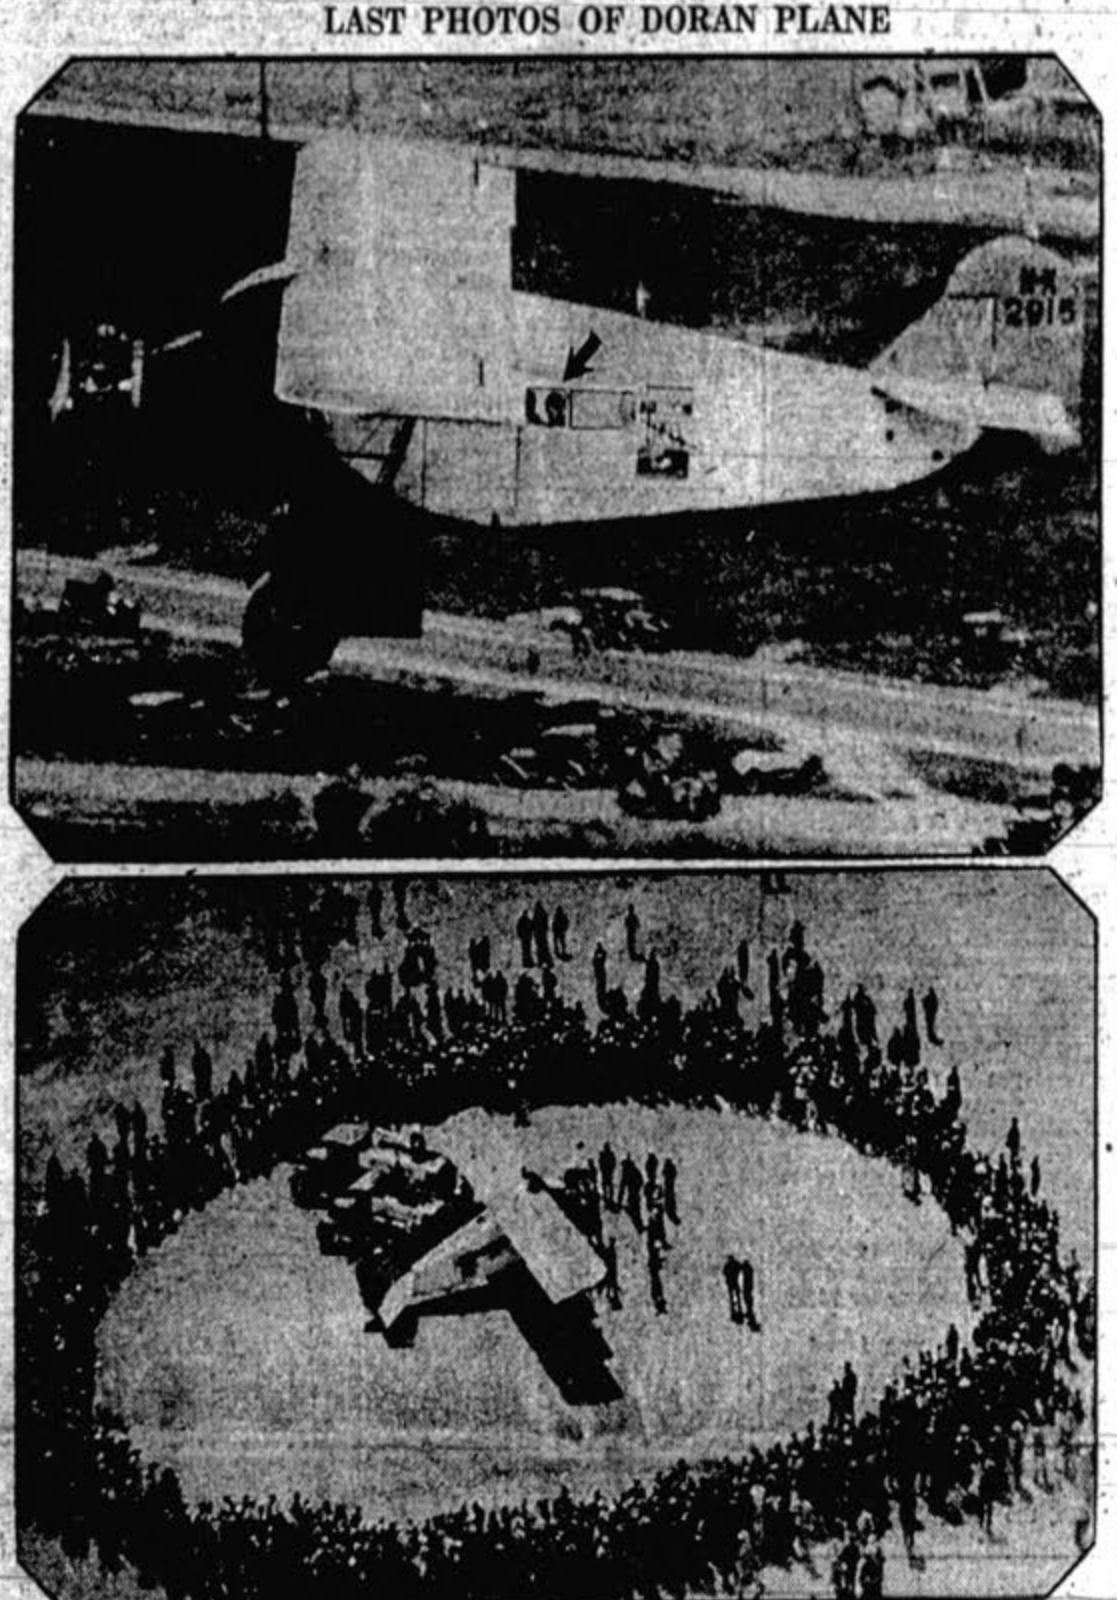

LEGAL EFFORTS FAIL. Boston, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Last minute legal efforts today to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from execution at the expiration of their respite at midnight next Monday were unsuccessful.

Justice James M. Morton, Jr. of the U. S. district court, refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus or a stay of execution, and Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U. S. supreme court refused to grant a stay of execution.

Before going to Beverly farms to make their application to Justice Holmes at his home there, defense counsel sent a letter to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller asking that he grant another respite. The governor was at his summer home in Rye Beach, N. H., and it was said at his office that he probably would not consider the letter until his return here Monday.

The application to Justice Morton was made by Elias Field, defense counsel. He saw the justice at his summer home in Westport last night and again this morning at the Bristol county courthouse in Fall River.

Long Conference. Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel, and Richard C. Everts, one of his associates, made the trip to Beverly Farms by automobile to see Justice Holmes. They were in conference with him from shortly after 2 o'clock until nearly 4:30, when announcement that Justice Holmes had refused their petition was made.

Special Train to Take Presidential Party to Park.

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Everything was ready tonight for President Coolidge's pleasure trip to the Yellowstone National park, one of the few journeys distinctly for rest and recreation he has taken since entering the White House.

His special train was set up at Custer for departure tomorrow evening after dinner and his plans called for six days or so within the boundaries of nature's most famous wonderland.

New Duluth Road to Tap Timber Region

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Construction of 36 miles of railroad to connect the Duluth and Northeastern railroad, the Duluth and Iron Range, and the old Alver-Smith logging line, with the Canadian border, was announced here today by Campbell and Shields of Clouquet, holders of the construction contract.

MAIL PILOTS TO HOP FOR ROME

Old Glory Will Follow Modified Great Circle Course.

Curtis Field, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Old Glory, the Fokker monoplane in which two American air mail pilots will attempt to fly to Rome, was groomed today for a probable take-off at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, eastern standard time.

The Roosevelt Field runway dried out today from rains which have prevented a take-off during the past two days.

Lloyd Beraud and James D. Hill, who will pilot Old Glory, are planning to follow a modified great circle course, jogging repeatedly southward as they proceed and reaching Europe at Bordeaux, France, instead of at Ireland. This will necessitate a 2500 mile water jump instead of one of 1,900 miles, but on the other hand, it will insure better weather, as the map shows more favorable conditions below the great circle than above it.

Party Enters Cave to Find Geologist

Shell Mound, Tenn., Aug. 20.—(AP)—A searching party led by O. P. Pile, state mine inspector, tonight was forcing its way through the Nick-A-Jack Cave, in a renewed effort to locate Lawrence S. Ashley, geologist, who went into the cave Monday on an exploring trip.

FLINT OFFERS PRAYERS FOR MISSING CREW

MISS DORAN'S RELATIVES VALIANTLY KEEP HOPE.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 20.—(AP)—While the remainder of the city prepared to offer up public prayers tomorrow for Miss Mildred Doran and the missing Pacific flyers, relatives of the "flying school-grad" today clung valiantly to crumbling shreds of hope in a sturdy fight against despair.

Reports that a flare had been seen along the San Francisco-Honolulu route especially heartened William Doran, Jr., elder brother of the pretty school teacher who staked her life as forfeit in an attempt to gain the honor of being the first woman to span the Pacific.

Refreshed by a night's rest at a lake cottage near here, young Doran spent part of the day in a local newspaper office after telling a newspaper man who accompanied him to the cottage that he "had a hunch" his sister would be found tonight.

Father Harvests Crop. The latter eventually was clung to by Miss Doran's father, who remained at his farm near Oklawaha, studiously avoiding other than his task of harvesting the crops.

Confidence in Backer. Confidence in William Malloka, wealthy oil man and backer of the "Miss Doran," was expressed by some of the school teacher's relatives today, while one, an uncle, said he did not believe Malloka would have permitted the plane to take off on the second flight last Tuesday after being forced back because of engine trouble.

Letters from persons claiming to have heard of the whereabouts of the "Miss Doran" passengers through supernatural visitations, reached William Doran, Jr., today. One, written by a man in Indianapolis, declared the writer had learned through a vision that the plane was 1,000 miles from San Francisco, and gave latitude and longitude readings.

RAFT TESTED. San Diego, Cal., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Only slight hope for the survival of Miss Mildred Doran and the six men missing on the Pacific between San Francisco and Honolulu was expressed today by naval aviators following a test of a rubber life raft similar to those taken on the airplanes on the Dole flight and by William P. Erwin, and A. H. Eichwald on the Dallas Spirit.

The test was conducted 30 miles off Point Loma. Three blue jackets from the aircraft tender Gannet, Seaman W. E. Owens, R. A. Larson and C. H. Schnager, were set adrift in a six-foot rubber raft, similar to the rafts with which the missing airplanes were equipped.

The primary object of the novel test was to determine the drift of the raft for one hour in a 15-mile wind. It determined more, although smooth seas prevailed off the coast.

HOPE TO CIRCLE GLOBE IN PLANE. Detroit Men Intend to Cover Distance in 15 Days.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20.—(AP)—A hope of circling the globe in the record smashing time of 15 days will guide Edward F. Schlee, president of the Wayco Oil Corporation, and William Brock, his pilot, when they hop Monday morning for Curtis Field, L. I., en route to Harbor Grace, N. F., the official starting point.

Leave Field Tuesday. The flyers plan to leave Curtis Field for Harbor Grace Tuesday. From that point, the route lies to London, Stuttgart, Belgrade, Constantinople and Bagdad. Then through Persia, the route swings southward in a loop to Calcutta, Rangoon and on to Hong Kong, Tokio, the Midway Islands, Honolulu, San Francisco, and thence eastward through Cheyenne, Chicago and Detroit would return the plane to its starting point.

Three ocean hops, each spanning more than 2,000 miles, face the flyers. The first is from Harbor Grace to London, the second from Tokio to the Midway Islands, and the last from Honolulu to San Francisco.

Preparations for the flight have centered largely around providing for all contingencies on these hops. Equipment similar to that carried by some of the Dole hop flyers will be placed in the "Pride of Detroit." The complete emergency equipment, weighing 140 pounds, contains a life raft and oars, two bottles of air for inflating the boat, a 15 day supply of emergency rations, one gallon of water, condensation water cups, disinfectants and a dozen flares for drift correction.

Plane Can Ride Sea. The gas tanks when empty should support the plane in the event of a landing at sea.

Schlee, who is 39 years old, is married and has two children, Brock, 31, also is married.

FLIMSY CLUES BOLSTER FAST WANING HOPES

DESTROYER RETURNS AFTER SEARCHING FOR ERWIN.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 20.—(AP)—The navy destroyer Hazelwood after a futile search of the sea at the supposed position where the last message was sent from the Dallas Spirit, manned by Capt. William Erwin and Alvin Eichwald, saying the plane was in a tail spin, turned late today toward San Francisco to refuel. Headquarters of the 12th naval district announced no news whatsoever had been received by the navy about the Dallas Spirit.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 20.—(AP)—With new hopes, inspired by fragmentary clues, official and private agencies of rescue along the west coast, in Hawaii and on the sea, bent themselves tonight to the common purpose of retrieving from the ever gaping maw of the Pacific, seven lives wagered against fame in a romantic adventure of aviation.

The fate of the missing flyers was as much in doubt tonight as when they were last heard from. Not one word so far as could be learned here, has been heard from either the Miss Doran or the Golden Eagle with five persons aboard since last Tuesday when they hopped off from the Oakland airport in the Dole races for prizes totalling $35,000.

No Trace of Plane. The last word from the monoplane Dallas Spirit which took off yesterday for Honolulu to search for the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle came shortly after 9 o'clock last night when it broadcast an SOS message, sharply terminated.

Previous to this sudden lapse into silence the Dallas Spirit had sent numerous messages, most of them in a jostling vein, including SOS messages which told of going into a tail-spin twice.

Since then the only report offering any possible clue or encouragement, regarding any of the three planes was the report of the shipping board vessel West Squana that a flare had been seen in its vicinity last night, some 250 miles west of San Francisco.

It was estimated the Dallas Spirit was about 612 miles from San Francisco when the "tail spin" message was broadcast.

Not in years have the people of the Pacific coast and especially in this vicinity felt a tragedy so keenly as they have the disappearance of these flyers to whom they wished such a hearty bon voyage a few days ago.

As evidence of this sentiment, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, today issued a proclamation calling on the residents of the city to pray for the safety of the adventurers, who number among them Miss Mildred Doran, attractive young school teacher of Flint, Mich., after whom the plane in which she rode was named.

All commercial and naval vessels in the Pacific between the Pacific coast and the Hawaiian Islands continued to search the ocean for a possible trace of the missing flyers. The army air service here reported the airplanes it has had searching the waters along the coast and 200 miles from shore have reported negatively.

"MISTAKE"—SMITH. San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 20.—(AP)—The whole Dole air race from the American mainland to Hawaii was "a big mistake," Ernest L. Smith, first civilian flyer to hop to the islands, declared today in commenting upon the prevailing fear that Capt. W. P. Erwin and A. H. Eichwald may have fallen into the sea last night.

RESORT OWNERS WILL ORGANIZE

Idea Outlined at Meeting Called by Harold Earle of Hermansville.

That upper peninsula resort owners, who are beginning to capitalize in no small measure on the summer tourist business, should put competition aside, organize an association and plan a co-operative campaign of advertising was the decision reached at a recent conference of resort men, held in the Colbeth Tavern at Blaney.

The conference was called by G. Harold Earle, of Hermansville, who is directing the summer Blaney resort development for the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company, and it was attended by a large group of resort managers.

Discuss Common Problems.

They discussed many problems common to all persons engaged in the resort business, including the handling and renting of cottages to tourists and vacationists by the day or week; promotion and regulation and fishing in inland lakes; boating and swimming; advertising and the utilization of cutover lands which have outstanding resort possibilities.

Mr. Earle explained the plans which the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company is developing for turning a vast acreage of idle land into money by exploiting it for summer resort and tourist camp purposes. He said that the company will erect a huge bulletin board at the junction of US 2 and M-77, near Blaney and that the board will contain information about all summer resorts within a radius of 100 miles of that point.

"We are going to put competition into the background and stress the importance of co-operation by resort-owners," declared Mr. Earle. "There are many problems common to all of us and we can solve them to our mutual advantage by getting together."

"Fish Hog" Scored.

The resort men discussed the problem of handling the summer vacationist known as the "fish hog"—the man who wants to catch unlimited numbers of pike and suckers in inland lakes every day and who has no use for them. It was decided that an effort would be made to have the state place a limit on the number of such fish that may be taken from inland lakes.

It was decided that all resort managers must stand together on the enforcement of game laws and in the discussion of this subject, it was admitted that game laws, especially those regulating the slaughter of deer, are being violated in the upper peninsula every month of the year.

Organization Planned.

A resolution to form a permanent organization of upper peninsula resort owners and to call another conference soon for that purpose was passed unanimously. One of the purposes of the proposed organization will be to carry on a co-operative campaign of

IN NEW YORK

New York.—The sweetest thing in life is memory . . . An old man was speaking. For a moment he had dropped his cap and bells. The stern glare of the footlights had easily penetrated his slight bit of make-up and revealed tall-tale signs of age. He had abandoned his grease paint box. After all, what was the use? There was plenty of youth and beauty and illusion on the program.

This was no effort at illusion building! This was a memory trying to recreate itself! . . . Old Eddie Foy, at 71, coming back just once . . . And somehow they didn't laugh when he talked . . . Ridiculous, isn't it, that Eddie Foy should live to bring tears? "The sweetest thing in life is memory . . ."

There was a funny looking kid running around Ninth Avenue 60 years ago, or something like that. And one day he started following a fiddler. The fiddler was making the rounds of the bars. The fiddler let the kid come along and the kid, seeing his chance, began doing buck and wing dances for the beer guzzlers standing along the brass rails. When the pennies and nickels clinked on the floor the kid would pick them up and, at the day's end, he doled out his share. He would run home with them to help a struggling family along.

The family moved to Chicago.

summer resort advertising. Before the conference at Blaney, George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau, reviewed statistics to show how the automobile tourist traffic has increased during the last few years. E. G. Amos, of Marquette, discussed the last annual outdoor life show in Chicago, pointing out that large numbers of Chicago people who visited the show were eager to get information on summer resorts, fishing and golfing in the upper peninsula.

The father died and everyone went to work. They lived in a funny, tumbledown house on stilts. The kid, when he wasn't working, practiced tumbling in the back yard. When he was 18 he had found another acrobatically inclined youngster. In Dodge City, Kas., one day appeared the team of Foy and Thompson. "The sweetest thing in life is memory . . ."

Two kids with dancing shoes as their only properties. But the dance halls of the west didn't care. Mining camps busting . . . the Pacific coast enjoying Bonanza days . . . Chicago again . . . the musical stage and then years of trouping . . . success . . . marriage . . . family . . . and time ticking away!

Year upon year of building up one of the greatest followings, a comedian ever had. And then the "Seven Little Foyes." Pa and all the family tripping the boards. Age creeping on. And the family breaking up.

And finally an old man in a little cottage outside of New Rochelle. The kids all gone, not a great deal of money left, sitting down to write his memoirs . . . Not much left but memories . . . Then a brief come-back. The spotlight again . . . And Wilton Lackaye, that grand-old-man of the stage, stepping up to present a watch . . . What an apt gift . . . A watch! . . . Ticking away the few remaining years.

He makes a comic crack . . . But few laugh . . . All around are misty eyes. . . . The orchestra has stopped . . . An old fellow on his 71st birthday . . . "The sweetest thing in life is memory . . ."

Broadway needs to be told that every now and then. It has such a handy way of forgetting.

"You admit then that you are a fortune-hunter, that you had intended to take Nan Fosdick's million until I came along with 40 millions, as you thought?" Her voice was a whirl of scorn.

"You'll have to admit, Mr. Shuler B. Smith, that I told you of my own free will and accord that I was not Vivian Crandall, that I insisted upon convincing you."

"I should have known that no other girl in the world would be as beautiful as you are," he said with dejected humbleness. "I was lying when I said I would have married Nan—"

"I doubt if you know when you are telling the truth, you lie so naturally," she said with quiet scorn. "Now, I have one request to make of you. Take me to the nearest town and let me out of the car. I will get in touch with my people in New York, arrange for them to come for me. I refuse to go back to the Minnetonka with you and submit to the impertinent questioning of those detectives."

I will get in touch with my people in New York, arrange for them to come for me. I refuse to go back to the Minnetonka with you and submit to the impertinent questioning of those detectives."

little Nan put them on my trail. It is unbelievable that she would go to such pains to land you!" "Vivian!" His voice was charged with wistful protest.

"I've heard quite enough of those five long years," she interrupted briskly. "Drive on, please. And when you return to the Minnetonka I advise you to say nothing of this interesting little excursion of ours."

"I can't leave you at the mercy of strangers, without baggage and dressed like that," he pleaded miserably, casting a long glance of humble appeal at her.

"I'm going to take you back to the Minnetonka and turn you over to the detectives who are waiting for me," he told her roughly. "Fine!" she applauded sarcastically.

"You admit then that you are a fortune-hunter, that you had intended to take Nan Fosdick's million until I came along with 40 millions, as you thought?" Her voice was a whirl of scorn.

Highways to be Made Beautiful in 1928

Lansing—(AP)—Beautification of state highways is to be undertaken on a larger scale than ever before in 1928, according to B. C. Tinney, maintenance supervisor of the state highway department.

Phelps Vogelsgang, an expert forester, has been employed to devote his entire time to the work. The remainder of this year probably will be spent in trimming and caring for trees and shrubs already planted and making plans for additional beautification.

Lack of funds has hampered the department in its efforts to make highway rights-of-way attractive. Next year, however, a larger budget is to be requested and he hopes a more elaborate program can be carried out.

Mr. Vogelsgang, a graduate forester, has been provided with a truck and tree surgery equipment. He plans to travel throughout many parts of the state. Demonstrations for the benefit of local maintenance managers will be given during the tour.

A statewide system which will provide constant care of the roadside trees and shrubs is expected to develop.

WORK BEGUN ON SEWAGE PLANT

Officials Confident Repairs and Changes Will Solve Problem.

Work on a rebuilding and remodeling program which engineers believe will bring the Escanaba sewage disposal plant to a more efficient plane, eliminating odors and other undesirable features, has been started under the direction of T. F. Kestler, city manager.

A complete set of new filtration plates has been installed. The pumping system has been changed to reduce the amount of power required to force air through the filters and, thereby, increasing the efficiency of the air pump system. The tanks have been given a thorough cleaning and by employing an air-lift system, remodeled so that they can be cleaned more frequently in the future.

Instead of discharging the effluent from the plant into the small creek from which the odors arise, a 24-inch pipe is to be laid from the plant to the bay, a distance of about 1500 feet. The quantity of water in the creek has not, for several years, been sufficient to dilute the effluent and carry it away. This can be remedied in a closed pipe, and the water in the bay will be sufficient to dilute the effluent and remove all objectional odors, engineers believe.

Creek Almost Dry.
The creek is almost dry above the plant, only a tiny stream flowing down to the plant. Eighty per cent, at least, of the water in the stream between the plant and the bay is from the plant.

The creek flows through sandy soil over a very winding course, and has not had sufficient current to do its work well.

City officials have promised that the work will be completed quickly and are confident the alterations and improvements will provide the remedy they have been seeking for some time.

Abner Bangs Supports Speed Limit Removal

Misery Bay, August 20 (Special)—The removal of the automotive vehicle speed limitations from the Michigan roads has been the subjective topic of many discursive arguments in Misery Bay and environs recently of late date. The native sons and daughters have asked me many times repeatedly to give them the beneficial help of my opinion, but I have restrained myself from so doing, desiring to give my myriads of readers in your paper the first interdevelopment of my ideas.

As I lookfully view the law, it has made no alternative change in anything. Most of the motorists that drive their costly vehicular equippages through our peaceful little village do so at the utmost maximum of their cars' speedful capacity anyway. The drives that has always drove through Misery Bay at sixty (60) miles an hour will find himself unable to go any faster unless he acquiesces a new car, and the removal of the speeding limit will not affect him. The driver that only went thirty-five (35) miles an hour will continue to limp along at that snail's crawl because everything else on the road has past him and there is nothing left for him to go by except scenery.

Depends On Drivers.
The law will now assume that the safety of the roads will depend entirely altogether upon the good judgment of the drivers. I ask you what else it ever depended upon? The worst wreck I ever saw was caused by a tourist driving at the rate of two-miles an hour trying to run over a goose. The goose flew over an embankment and the chasing driver was not going to let his prey get away from him as easy as that. If he had been driving seventy (70) miles an hour, he would never have seen the goose and five lives would have been spared.

I recall recollectfully the time I tuned up the family bus and started out to see how fast it would go. I had heard there was a campaign being resplited against speeders and I wanted to exercise cautionary care. So I told my wife to watch behind us and see if anybody was coming which she said she would do—and in fact did. I was going down the turnpike with the fleet momentum of a fast arrow.

"Is anybody coming?" I asked her.

"No, darling," she said sweetly, "Nobody is coming except that man on a motorcycle that has been following us for two miles and what do we care for an old motorcycle?"

Off With Costs.
The judge let me off with the costs, being married himself, and told me to have a rear vision mirror installed so I could keep out of court.

Removal of the speed laws would of saved me money, that time, and may so save me money again as I have now lost the mirror.

Sincerely & Truly,
ABNER BANGS, esq.

PS: The school teacher that boards at my place says she is scared that some motorists will take an undue advantage of the law and dire disaster will result. On the other hand, I claim that the faster they run, the sooner they will get where they're going to, leaving the roads open for the sane and safe traffic.

Von Hindenburg to Get Huge Estate

Berlin (P)—Though President von Hindenburg has repeatedly expressed the wish that no gifts be showered upon him on his eightieth birthday, October 2, there is one gift which, it is believed, he will be pleased to accept.

The veterans' societies of Rosenberg county, in western Prussia, will present the soldier-president with the estate of his forefathers at Neudeck. The estate was given to Col. Otto Frederick von Hindenburg, an ancestor of the president, by Frederick the Great, at the conclusion of the second Silesian war (1744-1745). Hindenburg's grandfather, Otto Ludwig von Hindenburg, received the estate from his father in 1801.

At Neudeck, the president's father, Heber, was born in 1816. He was the fourth son, however, and did not inherit the estate.

The wisdom of the older generation was in doing what the younger generation is doing before it did them.

PARENTS MAKE CHILD CONFESS

Two Boys Sentenced on Testimony Unearthed by Parents.

Two boys, aged 15 and 13, were sentenced to the state industrial school yesterday after weighty evidence in connection with a number of daylight robberies in which the boys were implicated had been introduced against them in juvenile court.

The robberies which the boys vigorously denied when questioned by police officers were cleared up when the parents of one youth dealt with him in a manner which resulted in his complete confession of the matters. In the statement one of the boys admitted breaking into a Wells home a few days ago and taking a gold watch and a diamond ring; also of having broken into a home on Ludington street in Escanaba, and taking $22 cash which he turned over to his parents' sister and brother-in-law.

The whole affair came to light after the one youth had been given an old-fashioned hair brush and razor strap treatment at home. He confessed. The sister and brother-in-law of the other boy had taken the money, knowing it had been stolen, and had used it to make a payment on their automobile.

The man and wife each paid fines of $10 and costs amounting to $16.50 when arraigned in justice court yesterday. The boys had been in several "scrapes" before.

Expect Big Crowd at Dedication of Perronville Shrine

It is expected that with favorable weather conditions a large number of persons will motor to Perronville to attend the celebration which will be held there today, beginning with a field mass at 9 o'clock with Rev. Fr. Thomas Dregacz as celebrant.

After mass the solemn dedication of an out-door shrine will take place and benediction will be given. A special musical program has been prepared by the choir for this occasion. Following the religious ceremonies a joint picnic under the auspices of St. Michael's parish and Cloverland Post, American Legion, of which Father Dregacz is chaplain, will be held.

An out-door program with various stunts, games and races will be featured and a dinner served by the ladies of the parish. The menu prepared is a tempting one and the ladies are prepared to serve a large crowd of patrons. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to spend a day in the country and enjoy a home-cooked chicken dinner.

Pretty soon the only place to see an Indian chief will be some city hall or federal building.

Racine Minister Will Fill Pulpit

The pulpit of the first presbyterian church will be occupied this morning by the Rev. Dr. Clarie R. Shaver of Racine, Wis., who is here to take the place of the pastor, the Rev. John B. Hubbard for the next two Sundays. Dr. Shaver's theme for the service today will be: "God's Care; It's Center and Circumference." The hour is 10 o'clock. Other appointments of the church will be carried out as usual.

THE TINYMITES

Story by Hal Cochran - Pictures by Knick

Wee Scouty took the axe in hand and said, "I'll saw to beat the hand. Right soon I'll have this bean-cut up in pieces nice and small. Will someone run as fast as they can and try and find a dandy pan. We'll fill it high with pieces so there'll be enough for all."
Off-ran a Goofy Goo, real fast. And he returned to camp at last. He'd found the pan they needed, and they filled it up with beans. Amid loud shouts and hip, hurrahs, they fastened it above a blaze. Said Coppy, "Our next meal will be quite fit for kings and queens."
"I'll help to make it that way, too," exclaimed one little Goofy Goo. And then he said to Scouty and to Carpy, "Follow me. I know where we can find some milk. It comes from flowers, as blue as silk. And, if you don't believe it, you will very shortly see."
So, off they went, with merry cry, and in a wondrous field, near-by the Goofy Goo stopped short and said, "Ah, here's a milk weed now. For milk just make a happy wish. The plant will drip milk in your dish. You only need to squeeze it. Just look here! I'll show you how."
And, sure enough, the milk dripped out, which made wee Carpy gaily shout, "I think that this is wonderful. I'm going to have a taste." To his surprise, it tasted good. He gathered all the milk he could. His pan was fill-ed up to the brim. No portion went to waste.
A buttercup was shortly found. The Goofy reached it with a bound. "Hurray," said he. "This will be fine. We'll spread it or our corn. He then found butter-milk in the flower and gathered it for 'bout an hour. And, when they all returned to camp, they really felt forlora.

BABY FALLS 100 FEET BUT ESCAPES DEATH

POLES DON'T KNOW IF THEY ARE MARRIED

Diverse Laws Often Cause Misunderstandings. Warsaw, Poland (AP)—Some men here are asking themselves "Am I married or am I not?" And others are asking themselves "Am I guilty of bigamy or haven't I a wife at all?" The difficulty arises over the marriage laws of Poland, which apply to districts without having force throughout all Poland. If a resident of Warsaw, where no civil marriage exists, goes to Posen and marries a Posen girl by civil marriage, the wedding is invalid only in that province. If he returns to Warsaw and asks for a divorce, the judge tells him that he has no wife, since Warsaw recognizes only marriages celebrated by the church. If the man marries again, this time in Warsaw, his first wife goes to court and charges her husband with bigamy. There are a number of such cases now in the Polish courts. Because of the slowness of appeal, the supreme court of Poland has not considered the matter. A move toward unification of the law was made by equalizing the rights of daughters and sons to their father's inheritance. Formerly, in provinces observing the Russian law, the sons were privileged.

Wells Denounces Book Borrowers

London—H. G. Wells today stamp "the old English idea that it is extravagant and wrong to own books." And he would not tolerate stale books either. In an interview the famed writer said: "Our problem is to devise some means of destroying the pernicious habit of book borrowing. There is a deep-rooted idea in the ordinary English mind that it is extravagant and wrong to own books. Formerly books were published for the prosperous classes at high prices. In less prosperous homes there is probably a copy of the Bible bought from the colporteur, but little else. A book was supposed to last forever and be read and read again. As the taste for reading developed there began that borrowing habit which has persisted far too long. There is no longer any need for it. "Now that every man has his new automobile and new furniture, he ought to have his own new fresh books. If they get soiled, they should be replaced by new copies. A library needs renewal as often as wallpaper. No one likes stale beer; why should we tolerate stale books?" The judges of Scotland gave no death sentences to convicted criminals last year. This is carrying frugality to extremes.

"DOUGHVILLE," NOT DEAUVILLE

August Is the Time for Emphasis on "Dough" at the Resort. DEAUVILLE, France.—It is spelled DOUGHVILLE. It is pronounced DOUGHVILLE, with the accent on the first syllable. And that first syllable is the most descriptive and picturesque aspect of this famous Normandy coast resort. It is dough, dough, dough, with no ray, mee, or any other higher note about it. Too Fast for Long. Fortunately, the season doesn't last long. It couldn't at such a pace. Deauville is in its glory for only 15 days during the middle of August. Everybody who wants to be anybody must be seen here during that "season." It is nearly compulsory. Very few sincerely claim to like it. It is artificial, ugly and dusty. The beach is an absurdly long distance from the main promenade, and at low tide the water is nearly a mile away. Many visitors never get near the water, and as a consequence, fashionable dressmakers have designed special Deauville bathing costumes, intended for display on the sands, but not for the surf. It's the Whirl! The fascination of the place is the whirl of life. People go there to be seen and to see who's there. They must do everything that is done. The Deauville day starts at noon with a cocktail at the Pottiniere. Then luncheon, which must be done in style, at the Normandy, or the Royal or Ciro's. In the afternoon, there are races to be attended, a certain number of times and polo matches where one must be seen. It is fashionable to turn up at the golf course to take motor trips to various recommended places to show off your latest car, and sportsmen must have a shoot at the pigeons. There is dancing in the afternoon and night, which cannot too frequently be missed. The evening cocktail hour is a rite. This is followed by dinner—always dinner parties—at the usual formidable show places. Then theaters, late supper parties, more dancing and, of course, a sing at the tables. The Casino is obligatory. Gambling is in the hands of a Greek syndicate, and the play is usually very heavy. About the only thing one doesn't have to do, if doing Deauville, is to go in bathing. And after doing Deauville, most visitors have to rush off to the country or the mountains for a vacation. Deauville is three hours from Paris by train. Drivers of cars often try to beat that time over the specially built, wonderfully smooth road known as the Autodrome. So many accidents have occurred on this highway that hospital dressing stations have been established along the roadside. Some History! Deauville has a remarkable history. Twenty years ago Trouville, adjoining it, was the fashionable center, and Deauville was only a place for exclusive villas. But shortly before the war, Eugene Couruchet started out to make Deauville—and a fortune. He built a Casino and the Normandy hotel and by clever publicity let it be known that Deauville was the place to go. He put it over so well that Trouville,

A Million A Year Seek His Healing

Montreal, Quebec.—The "miraculous shrine" atop Mt. Royal ministers now to more than a million ailing pilgrims a year. Drawn from every quarter of the globe by tales of miraculous cures, this vast army of the maimed, the halt and the blind has grown so rapidly that the rude little wooden hall in which they have been received for years is giving way to a magnificent basilica, reared largely by thanks offerings. Medieval Mosaic. Like some mosaic of medieval life is this peasant that moves steadily up the great stone stairway seeking the spiritual aid of Frere Andre, who awaits all supplicants at the oratory of St. Joseph. Only at the ancient grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes, France, can one find such another spectacle. But here, on the outskirts of this colorful Canadian town, there is less of the dramatically emotional. Frere Andre, the "Little Brother," quietly speaks his benediction first to one and then another. He stands behind a little rounter in a shabby room as the pilgrims pass before him—some on crutches; some cadaverous of face; some limping; some, led with sightless eyes; some, and then a short-skirted flapper; now and then an over-dressed woman; a cross-current of all life. They All Smile. The "Little Brother" is himself frail. His priestly robe is faded. There is no effort at ostentation. He reflects a spirit of humility. It is the power and brightness of his brown eyes that attract one. He has a smile for all. They pass by him—more than a million a year. That means nearly 400 a day or one a minute if he were to be constantly on hand for eight hours. The "Little Brother" has a way of bringing a laugh from even the sorriest sufferer. For a moment there is a serious conversation, then the "Little Brother's" eyes twinkle and the solemn supplicant smiles. It happens time after time. Not all the suffering he has seen can dim the ever-present twinkle. And yet, as the day draws on, Frere Andre leans a bit wearily upon a chair or on his little counter. In a small ante-room, just outside, impatient sufferers wait their turn. To each he repeats this admonition: "Rub yourself with the oil and with a medal of St. Joseph. Make a Novena to St. Joseph, and persevere in praying to him." Then he makes some personal and cheerful commentary and the suffering one gives place to another. Sometimes a cure seems about to be made almost immediately and the "Little Brother's" voice rises commandingly: "Carry your crutches to St. Joseph." He refers to a great pile of crutches all about a shrine where, just beyond in the basilica, other fathers hear, confessionals throughout the day. The tales of cures are endless, covering every conceivable ailment. Thousands of the supplicants follow a long established custom of ascending the interminable stairway on their knees and repeating a prayer on each step. Frere Andre himself was born Albert Bessette. Frail of constitution and forced to make his own bread as a boy, he worked in American factories and on the farm. At the age of 23 a priest heard him speak of spiritual leanings and, in 1870, he began the life of Frere Andre. His duties in the College of Our Lady, of the Sacred Heart were menial. He scrubbed floors, patched clothes and barbered the students. He earned $200 and, with this, established the initial fund for St. Joseph's Oratory. Then strangers began to appear, asking for an interview. They had heard that he had been secretly working among the ailing and remarkable cures had been attributed to him. Thus began the pilgrim pageant which has grown to more than a million, and increases yearly.

St. Joseph's Oratory on Mt. Royal and Frere Andre.

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

BY WADE WERNER (Motion Picture Feature Editor). Hollywood, Cal.—Street cars running through Hollywood carry few film stars. Even Jackie Coogan, who is adventurous in other ways, admits he hasn't ridden in one here for five years. He tried one in San Diego some months ago, but was not enthusiastic about it. "They give me a headache," he said. PAINFUL POPULARITY. Esther Ralston tried a trolley in order to refresh her memory on matters most commencing stenographers wish they could forget. She was to play the part of a working girl and thought it would be a good idea to go to the studio by street car, so as to feel like one. But the men in the car either recognized her or were strongly smitten by her appearance, for there was a stampede to offer her a seat, and in the excitement one of the gallant passengers stepped heavily on her foot. HECTIC HATS. Apropos of actresses' heads and what they put on them, the hats of Hollywood these days are alive with more animals than toured the consolidated seas with Noah. Felts fashioned in imitation of lion, lizard, zebra, snake, leopard and other animal skins are running untamed in the places film players go to show off their millinery. Mary Astor appeared the other day with a snug-fitting sports hat made of something she called "olephant's breath and balm." USES FORMER FACE. Film fans who recall Henry D. Walthall as the Little Colonel in "The Birth of a Nation" ten years ago will have an opportunity to see him in very much the same makeup when he appears in "The Hypnotist." Walthall in the new picture is a British nobleman involved in a weird, haunted, house conspiracy. His makeup is almost identical with the one he used in the old film. WOMEN AND WAR. Even make-believe war works hardship on women. The central casting bureau reports the past year was a discouraging one for women extras, due to the large number of war pictures and the resultant use of many men, but few women, in most films on which big money was spent. Hollywood, Cal.—Peace after a great war does more than beat swords into plowshares. In Hollywood it is beating archdukes into extras. The Archduke Leopold of Austria, grand-nephew of the late Emperor Franz-Joseph, wore a German captain's uniform as part of the military atmosphere of "Grand almost over night, fopped completely. Of Smarites! Ever since then Deauville has been the place to go in France in August. This year is no exception. The stage, as usual, was set in July, but no really smart people go until the "season" opens. Those who cannot get away from town come down two or three times during the season at midnight, arrive in time to be seen at the Casino, show themselves on the promenade the next day, have a bet or two on an early race, and rush back to Paris in time to keep their engagements. It is very trying, but it simply must be done!

MAN, 80, WAS POWDER BOY

Heard Farragut Cuss in Battle of Mobile Bay. BY NEA Service. New York—Admiral Farragut's powder boy at the Battle of Mobile Bay has seen styles in adventure change many times. But, says he, the opportunities for romantic exploit that face the youth of 1921 are the most glamorous. Nearly 80. Oakley Selleck is his name and, with his 80th birthday nearing, he has won the sobriquet of "the man who never grows old." Having tasted the flavor of hazard in his own boyhood, he has kept himself in close touch with youth ever since. "And that's the real way to stay young," says Selleck, who still pitches a mean curve on the old sand-lot, runs races and participates in any number of games referred to as "youthful." He could have retired to the Naval Home in Philadelphia and spent a peaceful, untroubled old age—but such is not for him. "You're likely to grow old under such circumstances," he comments. "And that's what I'm never going to do." His particular "big moment" was when he stood beside the famous Farragut and heard the Admiral's immortal, outburst, "Damn the torpedoes!" "But," he admits, "I would rather have the modern boy's chance at conquering the air. There is one of the most glamorous opportunities the youngsters ever had! You see, it combines adventure, hazard and real achievement." Mere Story. After all, it was something to be Farragut's powder boy. But, in the final analysis, it was an entirely individual experience and gave posterity nothing but a good story. Not that he isn't proud to have done it but, he points out, when running away to sea went out of style. Each new generation breeds its opportunities. How does he manage to stay physically young? Ah! Moderation! "Moderation in everything," is his answer. "Your mind is young, and use it to the best advantage. I look upon the body as a machine and treat it accordingly. Excessive eating and drinking, excessive exercise, in fact excessive anything, must be avoided. "The ball park is one of the best spots for keeping young ideas. Particularly, watching the youngsters play! What a kick! If you can't enjoy a ball game—well, you're old!"

They Invented Ice Cream Soda Without A Cent Of Reward

New York—John Robertson and Francis Tietz were born 50 years too early. They invented a popular temperance drink in a day when the world generally did not appreciate a temperance drink. They are the fathers of ice cream soda. Had their creative genius flowered later, ice cream soda might have made them millions. As it was, it didn't even bring them free drinks—or fame. Back in 1872, Robertson and Tietz were pals. "One rainy day," Robertson recalled, "we went into Kline's confectionery store in New York. We had at least 50 cents with us, enough to buy out the store, and we ordered everything the place offered, all at one time. "We found that if you dumped the ice cream into a glass of soda, and added a few strawberries or some pineapple, you had something that was infinitely superior to any ingredient taken separately. "After that we always ordered fruits, ice cream, soda water, or ginger ale, then mixed 'our own at the table. What we considered the triumph of our combined intelligences was made by putting a chunk of ice cream in a half cup of strong, cold coffee, adding chopped cherries, pineapple and dry ginger ale to fill up the cup. with a dash of cinnamon on top. "I can still taste that one, though I haven't tasted an ice cream soda for years." Obviously the boys did not hide time their customers were ordering their light under a bushel. In no "what those boys were drinking," and the manager came over to find out what it was. Too Much Pride. Flushed with pride, the two youngsters handed over their formula. "Kline got the best trade in New York through his ice cream sodas. Eventually he was rich enough to retire," Robertson went on. "The aristocrats from Washington Square and Lower Fifth avenue would send their footmen over for sodas, and the most imposing horses and carriages of the city would be hitched outside Kline's door." Tietz went into business and Robertson in time became manager of Dorlon's famous old restaurant where Theodore Roosevelt, Benjamin Harrison, the late J. P. Morgan, and the best-dressed man of his day, E. Barry Wall, with others whose names are now illustrious, used to congregate. "I think my part in the ice cream soda was my only contribution to the field of invention," Tietz smiled. "I forgot all about it in later years."

BORAH FISHES AND SAYS NOTHING

While presidential bees are starting to buzz in the bonnets of a number of prominent statesmen, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, himself often mentioned as a possible candidate, fishes for brook trout in the mountain streams of his home state and says nothing. He's shown here tending a beauty—although it is not known whether he used worms or flies.

Cleveland Metal Expert to Speak at Detroit Convention

Voices

THE day is full of voices—meaningless, insistent. They drone upon the street, chatter at parties, hurl snatches of themselves at you from passing automobiles, rise up and down dramatically from open-air platforms, end with question marks at the office, trail after you on street cars. . . . Your ears, forever open, almost have to hear.

Yet in this same room with you are voices of utmost silence, whose every word concerns you. You control them more surely than you control telephone or radio. Open a page—they talk to you quietly. Close a page—they are through. They are the voices of the advertisements. They talk direct to you. Tell of better roofing for your home, more protective paint for its walls. Shoes your youngsters can't scuffle out easily. Salads, delicious drinks, to gratify you. Reinforced hosiery, cooler underwear, purer soaps. You believe in these voices, for they have to be sincere. Else they would not be in these pages—could not have the nation's belief. You buy the goods they proffer, for you know already what those goods will do. And wide belief has lowered their prices. They are economical—sure!

Loose products everywhere in stores are crying out, "Buy me!" But behind the voice of the advertised product is the voice of authority. The voice that tells the why, what, when, where and how of the goods you buy.

Heed these courteous voices often. Read the advertisements every day

Saint and Sinner

During the days that followed the completion of the portrait Faith Hathaway had the portrait artist to be grateful to George Pruitt.

When she opened to her worth and beauty by the concrete evidence of what another man saw in his wife, became almost as lovable as he had been during the first ecstatic days of their marriage.

The happiness in Bob's love and pride in her which had buoyed her up all evening, making her a marked woman among the feverishly gay or bored women at the dance, dropped from Faith abruptly.

When she opened the front door with her latchkey her face was so white that Cherry uttered a little shriek of dismay.

FORMER SCHOOL HEAD PASSES

O. R. Hardy Recalled by Many Residents of This City.

O. R. Hardy, superintendent of the Escanaba schools during the years 1891-1893, inclusive, died in New York on August 14, according to word received by old friends of the deceased here yesterday.

The funeral and burial took place in Chattanooga, Tenn., Thursday. At the time of his death, Mr. Hardy was chairman of the board of directors of the Dixie Cement corporation, a $43,000,000 concern. He relinquished his duties as mayor of the city of Chattanooga last January 1.

Mr. Hardy is remembered by many Escanaba men and women as a man of unusual personality and force. "All those who came under his influence were richer for having known him," said one of his former pupils yesterday. "I often went to him for advice and counsel in connection with my youthful problems. He had that understanding and sympathy which stamped him as a real moulder of character, and I have always remembered, with gratitude, the help he gave me. I am sure scores of others in this community who knew him as a teacher and friend will reiterate this sentiment."

Miss Florence Sharkey was returned from an extended visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Poupore at Iron Mountain.

"There isn't enough in this ice box to feed a canary."
"That's all right, dear, we'll run down to The Delta Hotel."
