

GIRL'S ABDUCTOR CAPTURED IN OREGON

UTILITIES REPORT BY JANUARY 20

WATSON SAYS COMMITTEE WILL BE READY

BY DAVID LAWRENCE. (Copyright 1927, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, Dec. 21—Senator James Watson of Indiana, chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, said today that he expected to have his committee report to the senate about January 20 or thereabouts, the resolution introduced by Senator Walsh of Montana to investigate the financing of public utility companies.

"Any suggestion," said the senator, "that we intend to kill the resolution in committee is regrettable. During the debate on Monday, I pointed out that our committee had several important matters pending like railway consolidation but that committee action on these questions would not be long delayed. It so happened that on Tuesday morning we had a committee meeting to pass on the nomination of Commissioner Eech, of the interstate commerce commission, and we then and there decided to consider on January 16 the Walsh resolution. Mr. Walsh will be given an opportunity to appear before our committee as will also opponents of the measure. We went to hear both sides."

Scope Undetermined. It was then that the senator in response to a question declared he expected a report of some kind either favorable or unfavorable by about January 21. The Indiana senator said that the principal question at issue was the scope of the inquiry. He added that there was a sentiment in favor of limiting the inquiry to those companies doing an interstate business and that many persons could see no reason why the federal government should take up the financing or business affairs of local companies which did business wholly within a state.

Senator Walsh is insisting, on the other hand, that holding companies are doing an interstate business especially in the sale of securities and that there are other reasons which make the whole matter interstate.

On this point, there will be vigorous dissent by the public utility interests, as they do not want to admit even in a senate investigation that the federal government has the right to inquire into questions now being handled by the state utility commissions. The utility interests do not want federal regulation of any kind though it is recognized that about five per cent of the power sold flows over state lines and recent supreme court decisions indicate that legislation by congress is warranted so as to regulate the transmission of power from one state to another.

Financing Enters In. If the industry were limited to the companies doing an interstate business.

Six Men in S-4 Are Dead, Belief of Naval Officers

Four Killed in Mine Near Houghton When Skip Drops

YOUNG MANIAC KILLS WOMAN

Officers Wound Youth Before He Is Captured

Brunswick, Me., Dec. 22—(P)—The wild flight of a young maniac from anticipated restraint in an asylum ended today with an aged woman dead and four persons injured. The fugitive was captured only after he had been wounded by shots poured through a barricaded door. His parents were his first two victims and his mother tonight was in a critical condition. A deputy sheriff suffered a fractured skull as he was about to close with his quarry and another man suffered a severe leg sprain in the chase. Raymond Pettit, 23, the insane youth who eluded officers for nearly 24 hours despite his artificial feet which left a marked trail, was not seriously wounded by the shots of the officers.

The search which began after Pettit shot his father and mother in their home yesterday, ended today in a lonely farm house in Topham where he had beaten to death with a rolling pin, Mrs. M. A. White, 78 years old.

Takes to Woods. Barricaded in an upstairs room in the house, he surrendered to a detail of national guardsmen, citizens' posse and police deputies only after a broadside of bullets had been poured through the door, one of which found its mark, striking him in the breast bone and glancing off.

After the shooting of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pettit, which came an instant after the father had dashed into the house to save Mrs. Pettit from death from a big stone hammer in the hands of her son, the cripple made for the woods, with his shotgun and a supply of ammunition. The peculiar tracks made by his artificial feet, aided the large posse in tracking him through the night. Pettit's feet were cut off several years ago by a freight train.

Around mid-day, Deputy G. W. Crow of Yarmouth and Alfred J. Le Tarte, driver of the Brunswick fire department, met Pettit in a field and ordered him to halt. The command, being unheeded, Le Tarte fired, the bullet missing its mark. Pettit ran in the house of Albion Tedford where he seized a rolling pin and killed with it, Tedford's aged sister, Mrs. White.

Deputy Seriously Hurt. Garow was found by the guardmen and others following closely at the bottom of the stairs, suffering from a fracture of the skull. Whether he fell or was struck on the head with a window weight had not been definitely determined. The boy's father, who suffered two shots in the face, and Fireman Le Tarte, who received a bad leg sprain in the chase, were the two less seriously injured.

Two Officers Are Indicted for Death of Young Woman

Columbiana, Ala., Dec. 22—(P)—Indictments charging first degree murder were returned here today against Police Chief H. F. Blake and W. B. Farmer, of Calera, Ala., by the Shelby grand jury which investigated the death of Miss Louise Montebaro. The officers declared the woman killed herself when she was arrested on a charge of speeding, November 14. Both men were immediately taken into custody. Attorney General McCall refused to make public any of the facts which would discredit the officers' story of suicide. Miss Montebaro was mysteriously slain shortly after she had been arrested by Blake for speeding. Blake took the girl's body to a Birmingham hospital with the story that she had committed suicide after he had taken her into custody. Relatives and friends of the 24-year-old girl refused to accept this explanation and after Blake admitted he "fired one shot into the air" to frighten the girl, a Shelby grand jury was convened to investigate the affair.

WERE WORKING ON BOTTOM OF SHAFT

Houghton, Dec. 22—(P)—Four miners were killed, three slightly injured and three escaped death at the bottom of No. 6 shaft of the Mohawk Copper mine at Mohawk, Mich., shortly before noon today when a loaded skip plunged from the fifteenth level, dropping 1,100 feet. All the men were engaged in shaft sinking.

The dead: Walno Kilpeka, 19, Mohawk. John Aho, 21, Mohawk. Alegra Arozla, 42, Ahmeek. Leo Manisto, 50, Allouez.

The skip, loaded with copper rock, had just passed the fifteenth level when a bale is believed to have broken, causing the heavy car to drop down the shaft at terrific speed. Over the ten at work in the bottom of the shaft was a strong canopy of timber built to protect them from missiles that might fall down through the shaftway. The great weight and speed of the descending skip, however, caused the car to smash through the protecting barrier, and caught the men beneath. The timber reduced the force of the impact somewhat and to this those who escaped death owe their lives.

The plunging of the skip put the double compartment shaft out of temporary commission and it was not until 3 o'clock in the afternoon that skips in both compartments were again in operation. The survivors then were taken to surface and the work of recovering the bodies was started. All had been brought to the top of the shaft at an early hour this evening.

Captain John Warne, one of the injured men, was partially buried in rock but he was extricated by his companions and was able, when brought to the surface, to walk to his home. Kilpeka and Aho were single, and were employed as bucket boys and Arozla and Manisto as muckers. Arozla leaves a widow and four children. Manisto was a widower and is survived by four children. The accident was the worst in the history of the Mohawk mine.

Woman Arrested for Passing Worthless Checks in Detroit

Detroit, Dec. 22—(P)—Mrs. Lovlie Kosnik, mother of five children, was arrested by police today on a charge of passing a worthless check in exchange for goods purchased in a drygoods store. She declared her son, Chester, 19, recently paroled from the industrial school for boys, at Lansing, had misrepresented the source of the check which she cashed. The boy was being sought by the police. Mrs. Kosnik said her son had asked her to go to the store with him and cash a check for a neighbor. She believed the check was good, she said. She had been supporting herself, children and her husband who left home several weeks ago. Charles Goldberg, operator of the store, said he would not prosecute the charge if the money was returned.

Another Hearing on Jitney Injunction Granted by Judge

Detroit, Dec. 22—(P)—Another chapter in the city's long fight to oust jitneys from downtown streets was reeled off today when Circuit Judge Clyde I. Webster rearranged for hearing January 5 in his court a petition for an injunction restraining the city from interfering with operation of jitneys. The action followed a motion by Clarence E. Page, assistant corporation counsel, asking for dismissal of the jitney bill of complaint, filed July 1926, and another motion for reassignment of the case because of the illness of Judge Harry J. Dingeman who had granted a temporary injunction against the city. Judge Webster held that because of Judge Dingeman's illness and the delay already necessitated, a reassignment should be made. Edward N. Barnard, attorney for the jitneys, contended that a reassignment was illegal and filed notice with the court that he would appeal to the state supreme court for a writ of mandamus.

STATE TO DROP TELEPHONE SUIT

May Reach Agreement in Settlement of Michigan Bell Company

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22—(P)—The possibility of an agreement in the state's litigation with the Michigan Bell Telephone company relative to its four per cent contract with the American Telephone and Telegraph company, appeared today.

It was reported the state and the company have agreed to ask the supreme court to postpone hearings in the state's quo warranto case. This action, it was said, was based upon the reported decision of the board of directors of the A. T. & T. to cut the four per cent contract to possibly two per cent. It is believed that if this has been done the state may be satisfied to allow the Michigan Bell to pay two per cent to the parent company without protest, as it has been indicated the amount would be considered exorbitant for the service rendered by the A. T. & T. and dismiss its ouster suit against the Michigan company.

Agitation for a discontinuance of the state's quo warranto suit has been apparent for some time. President Foraker, of the Michigan Bell, is understood to have informed the public utilities commission and the attorney general that he favors ending the litigation. The quo warranto action was started by the state when it was alleged the Michigan Bell and the A. T. & T. refused to submit to the details of the four per cent payments. W. W. Potter, attorney general, charged the company was "syphoning money from the pockets of Michigan subscribers into the treasury of the A. T. & T."

Extradition of Ohio Man Ordered by Governor Green

Lansing, Dec. 22—(P)—Extradition to Ohio of Eugene Watson, alias Martin, to face a murder charge was ordered late Thursday by Governor Green. Watson was arrested by Detroit police Wednesday. It is alleged he and his confederates were implicated in crimes in many cities, including safe blowing activities for which federal officers were searching for them.

The Ohio charge is that they murdered Peter Grant, a Findlay, O., department store watchman, last January, when he interrupted them in the act of blowing open a safe.

No Pardons This Christmas—Green

Lansing, Dec. 22—(P)—No Christmas pardons will be granted this year, Gov. Fred W. Green indicated today. About 75 inmates of state penal institutions, however, will be given paroles. They have served long enough to be eligible. The regular form of parole, keeping them under surveillance, but removing them from actual confinement, will be issued. Arthur D. Woods, pardon and parole commissioner, stated most of them are short term men—men whose minimum sentences have expired.

NO SIGN OF LIFE WITHIN SUBMARINE

MAY NOT BE ABLE TO RAISE CRAFT BEFORE SPRING

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 22—(P)—The sunken submarine S-4 which lies in 75 fathoms of water off this harbor, in all probability will not be raised until next spring. Officers of the fleet of naval vessels assembled here to salvage the vessel let this fact be known tonight.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing salvage operations, said the work would go on while weather conditions remained favorable but said that as soon as normal winter weather settles in it would be suspended. "We are going ahead with this work as fast as we can, until the weather halts it or the navy department calls operations off," he said. "Then we will cease until spring and the work that is being done now will not have to be repeated."

The S-4 had been at the bottom of the sea off Provincetown harbor for just 113 hours when it was finally decided that the six men who had fought a gallant battle for life in her torpedo compartment no longer survived. It was not until air lines, attached to the listening device of the torpedo room by a method never before used, had been pumping fresh air into the compartment for 13 hours, that hope was at last given up. Signals sent by the oscillator of the Falcon remained unanswered, and all was still in the battered hull of the submarine. The rescuers regretfully admitted it was the end.

May Take Only Week.

Throughout the day, however, diver after diver went down to the S-4 to survey the hull and ascertain whether it was too deeply imbedded in mud to permit raising. The reports, briefly, indicated that the bow of the wreck was fairly free of the mud for a distance of 18 feet; that amidships the ooze reached halfway up the hull and the stern was partially submerged.

It was pointed out by several officers after a conference attended by Admiral Brumby, Commander Elsborg and Captain Ernest F. King, associated in the salvage work, that if the extraordinary weather of the past two days continued the submarine could be salvaged probably within a week.

The navy department ordered that the salvaging should be done "as soon as possible." It was said, this being interpreted as meaning as soon as the work could be done without endangering the lives of the divers.

Inasmuch as the officers and men on the S-4 are dead, those in charge of salvage work said it would be foolhardy to risk the lives of divers to recover their bodies. The salvage work might be completed before spring, they said, if those directing it were willing to sacrifice the lives of several divers in the effort.

The bodies on the S-4 will not be removed, one officer said. "To remove them it would be necessary to cut a hole in the hull of one room to recover even the six, and endanger the lives of the divers. If we recovered the bodies of six men this month what would the families of the other 39 victims do?"

Work Moves Forward.

Discussing the work of the salvage fleet, Admiral Brumby said: "When we arrived on Sunday and heard that six men were alive in the torpedo room, I was quite optimistic that we could reach them with air and food until we could raise the bow and take them out alive. But the weather beat us." The work of preparing to raise the S-4 continued all day and into the night, the first effort being to blow a hole under the S-4 about 28 feet from the bow, so that a chain might be passed under the pontoon raising operations. It was when Commander Elsborg went down to make a personal survey of the situation and check up on his divers' reports that he sank over his head in soft mud at the bottom. A diver was started down to aid him, but the officer was able to free himself without assistance. From tonight on, so long as weather permits diving, the divers will work in pairs, the squad of 20 now on the mine sweeper Falcon, flagship of the salvage fleet, having been divided into two watches.

HICKMAN CAPTURED

William E. Hickman, sought as kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker, 12-year-old daughter of a Los Angeles bank official, was captured at Echo, Ore., yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Lindbergh Arrives in Mexico City to Spend Holidays With Her Son

Mexico City, Dec. 22—(P)—The first woman to fly from the United States to Mexico, mother of the first man to fly from New York to Paris and from Washington to Mexico City, had only one moment of fear on a 2,000-mile trip from Detroit.

The moment was when Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh and her famulus landed at Valbuena field in different planes. The fear was not for herself or for her son, but for the eager spectators who rushed toward the downcoming plane to welcome the flyer and his mother. Without the police control deemed necessary when Col. Lindbergh himself arrived last week, 2,000 or more persons gathered to witness the arrival of Mrs. Lindbergh, twice forced her son back into the air after landing in order to avoid damage to the crowd or to his plane.

Mrs. Lindbergh landed at 3:44 p. m. from Tampico, her last stop. Col. Lindbergh had gone out in the Spirit of St. Louis to meet her and escort her three-motored Ford cabin plane to the field.

The young man left the field about fifty minutes before his mother's arrival, but missed her and returned about five minutes after she had landed. Only a few police were present and there were no lines of soldiers holding back the crowd as they did a week ago when he first arrived. His admirers forced him to circle about the field for nearly an hour before he could get the Spirit of St. Louis safely into a hangar. Meantime, his mother was taken to the American embassy in the city in an automobile with Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow.

When Lindy first landed the crowd rushed toward him and he promptly took to the air. He circled about for some time and finally landed in a nearby field. Again the crowd streamed toward him, and again he took to the air. Valbuena field had been vacated and he seized the opportunity to land near a hangar and rushed the Spirit of St. Louis into safety before the crowd could reach it. He then followed his mother to the embassy in another automobile. Mrs. Lindbergh stepped from the plane that brought her from Detroit, dressed in a maroon-colored traveling dress, a black coat with a fur collar, black hat, shoes and handbag. She wore an aviation emblem in the buttonhole of her coat lapel and carried Mexican and American flags in her hand. The eddy crowd cheered loudly and yelled, "Bravo, Senora Lindbergh!"

President Calles was not among the welcome, nor were any cabal. He insisted, however, others had been written by O'Leary, who put his own words into them. Parts of them were true, he said. Although admitting he had signed and affirmed one document, he said he did so after telling O'Leary the last paragraph was untrue and believing he was acting only on the part he knew was correct. An affidavit by Kidwell's mother that her son during the Fall-Sinclair oil trial had told her he was being followed and believed some one was trying to learn if he was "the kind of man" who would accept a bribe, was declared to be false by Kidwell.

He testified O'Leary had worded this document and that neither his mother nor he had made such statements. Kidwell's direct examination is expected to be concluded tomorrow after which he will be cross-examined.

THRILLING RACE ENDS MAN HUNT

IMPLICATES ANOTHER AS MURDERER OF MARIAN PARKER

(BULLETIN) Los Angeles, Dec. 22—(P)—William E. Hickman, held at Pendleton, Ore., tonight was indicted by the county grand jury as the kidnaper and murderer of Marian Parker. The indictment was returned before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy, who immediately issued a bench warrant on the charges. The court ordered the accused youth held without bail.

Pendleton, Ore., Dec. 22—(P)—One of the greatest man hunts in the west ended here today when William Edward Hickman, alleged kidnaper and slayer of 12-year-old Marian Parker of Los Angeles, was captured and placed in jail.

No four-footed roundup in this cowboy center ever held the interest that the roundup of Hickman on whose head there was a $100,000 reward, did tonight. Tom Guardane, 60-year-old Amalillo county peace officer, and Cecil L. (Buck) Lousalon, 29, a traffic sergeant at Pendleton, stopped to light their pipes on a highway near Echo, 20 miles from here, when they saw an automobile that fit the description of that stolen by the kidnaper.

They halted the driver and then gave chase. Overtaking the suspect, the officers drove alongside and Hickman was arrested. Deep snow banks in the Cascades apparently had frustrated the much-hunted youth's break for Canada. After reaching Seattle last night, he turned southward again today on account of snows in Snoqualmie pass, officers said, and doubled back along the Columbia river highway.

Hickman did not resist arrest. A sawed-off shotgun was found in his car. Officers had been kept apprised all day of the suspected movements of the youth and patrolled all highways in the northwest.

Woman Implicated. Just a week to the day since the little daughter of Perry M. Parker, assistant bank cashier, was lured from school to a horrible death, the alleged perpetrator of the act confessed to a share in the crime.

In a detailed confession, made to the Associated Press and the Pendleton East Oregonian, Hickman admitted kidnaping the Parker girl but denied he killed her. He said this was done by a partner, Andrew Cramer, of Los Angeles, and asserted that June Dunning, a girl he says he picked up in an automobile with Cramer, also was an accomplice. Hickman told how police questioned him several times since the slaying, never suspecting him as the quarry of the greatest man hunts in history.

Although police had many clues and charged Hickman with the crime before they knew where he had fled, the things that specifically proved his final undoing was the very thing that caused him to commit the crime—money. When Parker met Hickman last Saturday night to receive back his daughter, he handed Hickman a stack of $20 bills, $1,500 in all. This was the price paid to the man who styled himself "the fox" in his ransom notes. These bills were all gold notes.

Couldn't Find Cramer. Last night in Seattle, Hickman bought some clothing and paid for it with one of the bills. The bill and Hickman were recognized, whereupon the haberdasher notified the police. The hunt then concentrated in the northwest. When captured today, the fugitive had on him $1,400 of the ransom money.

Was Followed. He insisted, however, others had been written by O'Leary, who put his own words into them. Parts of them were true, he said. Although admitting he had signed and affirmed one document, he said he did so after telling O'Leary the last paragraph was untrue and believing he was acting only on the part he knew was correct.

An affidavit by Kidwell's mother that her son during the Fall-Sinclair oil trial had told her he was being followed and believed some one was trying to learn if he was "the kind of man" who would accept a bribe, was declared to be false by Kidwell.

Identified by its serial numbers. Hickman declared he was to have met his supposed pal, Cramer, in San Francisco, at the Herald hotel. Hickman said he went to the hotel last Monday but Cramer was not there and being afraid and knowing the police were after him, Hickman decided to continue north. The two, he said, were to have escaped together and divide the money.

Los Angeles police were skeptical of his story about Cramer, saying that Hickman not only is a brilliant student, but "an accomplished liar." No chances were being taken however, and search was being made for a man to fit the description of Cramer.

Pendleton, Ore., Dec. 22—(P)—William E. Hickman, 19, tonight told a broken story of the kidnaping of Marian Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles girl, and at the same time endeavored desperately to shift the blame for the mutilation of the girl upon the shoulders of his "partner"—a man he named as "Andrew Cramer."

Hickman's story, told soon after his capture today to Parker Brannin, correspondent of the Associated Press, was broken and at times incoherent. He told how he had planned the kidnaping of the girl in order to raise enough money to attend college. The youth said he had not been cruel to her, and that she was murdered and dismembered by Andrew Cramer, an alleged accomplice. He related how he had treated the child gently and had become friendly with her and how he had taken her to a motion picture show the night before she was slain.

He quoted the banker's daughter as saying after the movie: "I wonder what the school kids will say when I go back. They will want to know what I did and everything." Then he wept.

Intended No Harm. Hickman told vaguely how he had robbed drug stores in Los Angeles and southern California towns with the assistance of his alleged partner and made reference to a woman companion in these robberies.

Aside from a hysterical outburst of laughter when he was arrested, Hickman remained calm, although he told a rambling story.

Shifting all responsibility for the murder on the little girl and for her mutilation upon his alleged "partner" in the crime, Hickman declared:

"I really did not intend to do her any harm—and here is where this other man's part of it came in." Hickman said his companion was about 23 years old, but that he looks older; is about five feet eight inches tall, and had black hair.

"As far as I remember, I think he had been leading an impure life, he has a sore spot on his chin—but that might have been from the way he had been eating," Hickman commented.

Hickman said his companion wore a grey overcoat and had but one suit, tan or brown. The prisoner said he did not know where the man was staying.

Did Not Kill Girl. "The other man" was to provide the hiding place for the girl, the prisoner declared, while Hickman was to obtain the stipulated $1,500 from Perry M. Parker, Los Angeles banker, the girl's father.

Thursday night, after the kidnaping, Hickman and the little girl went to a show, he said.

"After the show," Hickman said, "I met the man and he took the girl in charge."

Hickman declared emphatically that it was not he who killed the girl, and that it was not he who disposed of the parts of her body. These deeds he attributed to "the other man."

Hickman declared emphatically that it was not he who killed the girl, and that it was not he who disposed of the parts of her body. These deeds he attributed to "the other man."

Hickman admitted it was he who penned the ransom letters to Parker, making it seem like she was being treated bad.

The gruesome details of the murder were not elaborated upon in Hickman's confession. When he (his partner) came to the apartment for this suitcase and when he opened it up and showed me how it was "I was sure surprised."

Hickman left to the imagination of his hearers the details of the murder, by his reference: "He (his companion) said she was crying and he tried to stop her, or something like that, and he figured that the safest way would be to go ahead and fix it that way."

The statement was made to police and reporters in the presence of a court stenographer, who recorded every word. Hickman hurried through the recital, breaking off many times in the middle of a sentence and hurrying on to a next bearing no relation to the subject matter.

Reports that 100 special officers had been sworn in to preserve order in the crowds milling around the city jail were denied by Mayor Lee J. McAtee tonight, who said the crowd was orderly and merely anxious to catch a glimpse of Hickman and his captors. The immediate vicinity of the police station was roped off and a few special officers were on duty to keep the crowds from getting on the premises.

KNOWN TO POLICE. Los Angeles, Dec. 22—(P)—The sheriff's office revealed tonight that its records listed an Oliver Andrew Cramer as a criminal arrested here several times on various charges of grand larceny and possessing narcotics, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. His criminal record dated back as far as 1920 and he was last arrested April 27, 1927, for burglary.

William E. Hickman, arrested kidnaper of Marian Parker, named Andrew Cramer as the child's murderer.

The records showed that Cramer was released on bond last April, following his arrest on the burglary charge and he had fled the bond. He was described as being five feet three and three-quarters inches tall, age 23, weight 105, hair brown, and as a drug addict. The man's height and age did not tally with that given of Cramer by Hickman, but the sheriff's office said that further checkup on the man was being made.

THRILLING RACE. Pendleton, Ore., Dec. 22—(P)—Climaxing the most spectacular man hunt the west has known in years, William Edward Hickman, youthful fugitive, wanted as kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles girl, was captured at Echo, Ore., near here, this afternoon.

Hickman, trailed closely by reports of his progress from Seattle where last night he had spent one of the $20 bills he took from the girl's father in Los Angeles, was found by two Pendleton officers on the old Oregon trail, as he sped in a large car which had been stolen at Los Angeles.

He was taken without resistance. A sawed-off shotgun was found in the car beside him.

Hickman laughed hysterically when he was told at the Pendleton city jail that he was the murderer of Marian Parker. He at first refused to admit his own name but later broke down and confessed his identity. He said the girl was killed last Friday, but in his first statement declined to take responsibility for the slaying. He said it was the work of a "fend." The girl, he said, was strangled with a wire and accused a companion he said was named Andrew Cramer as the perpetrator.

Officers Recognize Car. Later, he confessed that he wanted the money obtained in the kidnaping to go to college.

A great crowd gathered about the city jail when news of Hickman's capture spread through the city. There was no indication of vengeance, however.

Reports telling of Hickman's flight east on the Columbia river highway from Portland, where Hickman was seen early today, apprised officers here of his approach to this section.

Chief Tom Guarden of Pendleton police, and state Officer Buck Lleaullen saw a big green car approaching as they stopped at a curve in the highway to light their pipes. They observed that the license plates of the car were switched, and that the car corresponded to that of the ones used by the fugitives, so described.

Denies Killing Girl. They hailed the driver, but the car did not stop, and the officers gave chase, drawing up alongside, covering the driver and ordering him to stop. Hickman was immediately brought to Pendleton where a search revealed bills of the denomination he received from Perry Parker, father of the girl, last Saturday, just before the dismembered body of the child was placed on the curb.

Officers roped off an area around the city jail. The crowd, though milling about to get a glimpse of the prisoner, was orderly and restrained.

Subjected to a grilling at police headquarters, Hickman broke down and sobbed out the name of Andrew Cramer of Los Angeles, as an accomplice in the crime. Hickman said he himself had no part in the killing, and did not know the girl had been slain until her body was delivered to him in his Bellevue apartment last Saturday night.

Injection of Cramer's name added new mystery to the case and police in Los Angeles apprised of Hickman's statement, launched a new search.

Was Friend of Girl. Little Marian was kidnaped last Thursday and Hickman related that he took her to a show Thursday night. After that, he said, he turned her over to Cramer and did not know where she had been kept until the body was returned to his apartment Saturday night.

In giving his version of the crime, young Hickman remained calm until he mentioned the name of the slain girl. "Marian and I were good friends," he sobbed, "and we had a good time when we were together, and I really liked her. I am sorry that she was killed."

"This is going to be interesting before it is all over," Hickman remarked to Buck Lleaullen, one of his captors, as he sat down to relate the details of the crime.

"Do they only kill by hanging in California?" he next asked.

"Oh, this is not California, is it?" he asked before his question could be answered.

Asked to pose for a photograph.

he said: "What should I look like, a crook?"

FIND NO TRACE. San Francisco, Dec. 22—(P)—Investigation at the Hotel Harrison in San Francisco revealed no trace of Andrew Cramer, named by William E. Hickman as an accomplice in the 12-year-old Marian Parker murder in Los Angeles. Hickman told police in Pendleton he was to meet Cramer at the "Hotel Harris" here, but there is no Hotel Harris either here or in Oakland. Records show no signature by Cramer in the Hotel Harrison's register.

MAN UNKNOWN. Los Angeles, Dec. 22—(P)—Perry M. Parker, father of the murdered girl, tonight declared that he had never heard of Andrew Cramer or June Dunning, the man and woman implicated by William E. Hickman in his statement made at Pendleton, Ore., today in the killing of Marian Parker.

EXTRADITION PAPERS READY. Sacramento, Cal., Dec. 22—(P)—Extradition papers, whereby Governor Young will seek the return of William Edward Hickman, Los Angeles slayer, from Oregon, were being rushed here this afternoon by airplane, by Los Angeles police officers.

Governor Young's office was informed that the men had started shortly after 2 o'clock today. A request was also telephoned to the office of Clarence S. Morrill, superintendent of the bureau of criminal identification and investigation, asking him to remain in his office until the plane arrived to verify certain fingerprints and records in connection with the case.

MOTHER COLLAPSES. Kansas City, Dec. 22—(P)—Mrs. Eva Hickman collapsed here this afternoon when newspaper men told her that her son, William Edward Hickman, alleged slayer of Marian Parker in Los Angeles, had been captured near Echo, Ore.

"It can't be true," she sobbed. "If they've caught the slayer of the little girl it can't be my son Edward."

SENDS MONEY TO SON. El Paso, Tex., Dec. 22—(P)—Hope that his son would be punished with death if he is guilty of the slaying of Marian Parker, was expressed by Thomas Hickman, father of William Edward Hickman.

In a message to his son through the El Paso Herald today the elder Hickman said: "My son, if you are guilty of the crime of which you are charged, may God forgive your soul, and may you be punished according to the law of mankind."

"This terrible crime, which it is hard for me to believe that you have committed, is without doubt the most heinous and most brutal murder that I have ever heard of. It is hard to believe that my son could be guilty of such a thing."

"If you are guilty, I hope that you will be punished with death. If you are innocent, I will sacrifice all I have to help you out."

IS RELIEVED. Los Angeles, Dec. 22—(P)—An atmosphere of profound relief tonight seemed to have settled over the household here of Perry M. Parker, father of the slain Marian. There was no evidence of any wish for revenge against William E. Hickman, accused killer of the kidnaped school girl, as Parker granted a representative of the Associated Press the first interview accorded by any member of his family since a few hours after the girl was stolen from school a week ago today.

"I feel a sense of deep and sincere thankfulness," he said, "that this man has been captured and that mothers no longer need fear that he may carry off their children. But I am not wishing that he be put to death, nor anything like that. Of course, he should be punished—yes, he should be punished."

Lined up at First and Hill streets near the police station, at the time the news was flashed first from the Associated Press, were scores of motorcycle officers, come from all over southern California, to assist in the great man hunt, all set to dash to any point from which rumor might come. They welcomed news of the capture with ecstasy.

Cline and Harold Davis, chief district attorney, made preparations to leave immediately by airplane for Oregon while newspaper representatives rushed to other fields to obtain planes for a hop to the northwest.

SLEEPS PEACEFULLY. Pendleton, Ore., Dec. 22—(P)—William Edward Hickman went to sleep in the city jail at 8 o'clock and as he slept he was the object of much interest from his fellow prisoners who surrounded portions of his cell and gazed upon his sleeping form.

His sleep was untroubled and he was apparently fully relaxed and getting the full benefits of a sound rest.

With the outer office teeming with reporters and photographers, his captors refused to let Hickman pose for any more pictures tonight or to answer any questions regarding further details of his crime.

Affidavits by state attorneys said they feared disintegration of the colony and loss of assets.

E. Hickman, accused kidnaper of the school girl, had been caught at Echo, Ore., and admitted his identity. "Well, well—" was all he could say.

Men, women—even children—accosted any and everyone unceremoniously on the streets. "They've got him! They've got him—" was the cry everywhere.

As soon as Mrs. Lindbergh landed, General Alvarez stepped into the cabin and presented her with a great bouquet of poinsettias. Then he extended on behalf of the president, a message of warm welcome from the chief executive of the Mexican government.

Greeting Undemonstrative. Mrs. Lindbergh told him that "the entire United States has been thrilled by evidences of Mexican friendship for our country since my son had been here."

Looking as fresh as if she had merely been on a trolley car ride, she said the trip had been most pleasant and enjoyable and that her only moment of apprehension was when the plane landed and she feared that some one in the crowd surging around it might be hurt.

Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow went into the plane's cabin right behind General Alvarez, and warmly welcomed Mrs. Lindbergh.

The meeting between mother and son at the embassy was affectionate, but entirely undemonstrative. What words were exchanged were inaudible to other persons in the drawing room, because Mrs. Lindbergh got up when the flyer entered the door and they met at the far end of the room. Lindbergh placed his hand on his mother's arm, gave her a sort of half-embrace, and then the two walked arm-in-arm across the room to where Mrs. Morrow and a small group of American women were at the tea table.

State Asks House of David to Post Large Surety Bond

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22—(P)—A guarantee against the removal or dissipation of the rumored hidden wealth of Benjamin Purnell was asked by the state today.

A petition was filed in the supreme court asking for an order for an immediate inventory of the colony's assets as well as the personal holdings of Purnell, the posting of a bond large enough to cover the total, and an injunction against removing or disposing of property pending the outcome of the colony's appeal.

In staying a receivership decree against the colony recently, the supreme court ordered a $25,000 bond and enjoined the cult from disposing of the estate. The state wishes to broaden this prohibition to cover all property including the gold it is whispered Benjamin secreted.

Affidavits by state attorneys said they feared disintegration of the colony and loss of assets.

Although the United States Census unfeelingly lists housewives as women of "no occupation," every homemaker knows that she practices a hundred professions every day. Being a successful wife is one of the hardest jobs in the world, and the business of home-making ranks as one of the largest in the country.

The J. C. Penney Company likes to feel that our store is the business partner of every housewife in this town, constantly active and eager to assist her in finding more economical ways of apportioning the family budget.

Especially at Christmastime do we feel this responsibility toward the Family Dollar, and months ago we started to prepare for the time when your thoughts turn giftward.

If every Christmas dollar must do double duty this year, why not talk the matter over with us. Often we can suggest inexpensive yet pleasing gifts that may not have occurred to you. Think of us as your partner in the great business of home-making. We shall always strive to be worthy of your trust.

The percentage of marks made by Escanaba high school graduates in advanced institutions last semester and comparison of those with their marks the first semester 1927 are:

1st sem. percent	9	30	36	19	6
2nd sem. percent	12	31	44	11	2

This record shows that the percentage of good marks made by Escanaba high school graduates is increasing and that the percentage of failures is decreasing. It is interesting to note that 7 out of 12 of the Escanaba graduates doing honor work in advanced institutions are boys.

Forty-Four Fur Farms in U. P. Now

Fur farms under state license in the upper peninsula have shown remarkable growth during the past year. A recent report of the state department of conservation shows that forty-four fur farms are now operating in this territory. Several more are in prospect. Nearly all growers are raising foxes, beavers or muskrats. Upper peninsula fur raising has been stimulated by the repeated visits to this region of Vernon Bailey, of the United States biological survey. Several farms have been the direct outgrowth of his address at the annual June meeting of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau in Iron Mountain this year.

HONEY FLAVOR.

For variety in dressing, add a tablespoon of honey to French dressing and use paprika instead of other pepper.

NEGLIGEE SMARTNESS.

The new negligees have new necklines. A peach velvet one combines the Vionnet neckline and flowing sleeves to advantage.

Children Taught Traffic Mysteries

Berlin (AP)—Berlin schoolchildren are being trained in the art of dodging street traffic which is daily becoming more dangerous in this city of 4,000,000 inhabitants.

The mysteries of gyratory traffic, one-way streets, the necessity to avoid say-walking and the meaning of various traffic signals are all on the curriculum for which the street car, motor bus and subway authorities have supplied ample material.

There will be no more tragedies of "lost children" in Berlin, since young citizens at an early age are being familiarized with all aspects of modern city traffic. Huge traffic maps of the metropolis, illuminated with tiny electric bulbs, serve to illustrate the dangers of the streets. How to use the automatic telephone and to assist the old and feeble across the street is part of the training.

Progress Shown in Snow Removal

Working in two shifts, the city snow removal crews have made good progress in Ludington avenue this week, and it was expected yesterday that the north side of the street in the business district would be cleared today. Removal of snow on the south side of Ludington avenue will be started in earnest today and it was expected that it would be cleaned quickly since the accumulation of snow is not so heavy on that side.

A night shift was added early this week, the men working from midnight until 6 o'clock in the morning. Because of traffic conditions, it is impossible to remove snow efficiently during the hours between 6 p. m. and midnight.

Sand was sprinkled yesterday on the sidewalks in Ludington avenue to prevent injuries to pedestrians. This was the third time this week that the walks have been covered with sand.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY.

Of the new novelists America has produced in the last few seasons we believe the most important to be Julia Peterkin, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Glenway Wescott, Thornton Wilder, Ernest Hemingway, and Marie de la Roche.

Wescott's "The Grandmothers" and Miss Roberts' "My Heart and Flesh" compete strongly for first place among the novels of 1927. Certainly young Wescott wrote a mighty fine story and so did Miss Roberts, though we cling to her first work, "The Time of Man," as being one of the contemporary classics.

The general selection seems to favor one or the other of these two books. But, with no intent to start any arguments, our own taste leans toward Mrs. Peterkin's "Black April."

This Southern woman started with those fine darkey stories, "Green Thursdays." Her "Black April" is a particularly excellent novel of negro life. She can write and, one of these days, everyone will find it out.

Hemingway, perhaps, should not be listed with newcomers. He had already been known for his short stories before "Men Without Women" appeared.

Two 1927 volumes which gave us more real enjoyment than anything from the fiction mills were "Trader Horn" and Colonel Lawrence's amazing record, "Revolt in the Desert."

Carl Sandburg was responsible for a collection, "The American Songbag," which has in it everything we like to sing. And then "George Bellows: His Lithographs" is our idea of something meriting the over-used word "magnificent."

Out of the welter of "quick information" biography, and such, which has come in quantities hitherto unheard of, we select "Our Times" by Mark Sullivan; "Pages From My Life," by Challinor; "Henry Ward Beecher," by Paxton Hibben; "America," by Hendrik Willem Van Loon; "New York Nights," by Stephen Graham; "That Man Heine," by Lewis Browne; "Gentleman Johnny Burgoyne," by F. J. Madestone; "George Sand: The Search for Love," by Marie Howe; and Judge Lindsey's much discussed "Companionate Marriage."

Edward J. O'Brien saves us each year the trouble of picking out the best short stories. He reads all the magazines and tells what was what in his annual "Best Short Stories of 19--."

Of interest in connection with his selections for 1927 is the inclusion of a tale, "Minstrels of the Mist," by Ben Lucien Burman.

Burman is the author of some popular newspaper serials, including "Jungle Breath" and "The Parrot Lady." His particular story meter is the re-

SERVICE MEN LOSING BONUS

Must Make Application for Compensation This Month.

Fully 150,000 former service men and women in Michigan face the loss of their rights to adjusted compensation or government "bonuses" unless they make the necessary application before January 1.

More than 500,000 veterans in the United States have failed to apply for adjusted compensation, according to Ellis.

One Dollar a Day. Veterans entitled to adjusted compensation will get $1 a day for each day they were in service, if the service was in the United States, and if the service was performed overseas they will get 25 cents a day additional.

American Legion posts in any part of Michigan are authorized to distribute application forms and information, as are camps of Veterans of Foreign Wars or the Red Cross chapters.

"It will be a grave injustice to themselves, if service men fail to apply for compensation," Mr. Ellis said. "The law provides for this opportunity, and now the final chance to get it is nearing its zero hour."

Gerald J. Cleary, service officer of Cloverland Post, will be glad at any time between now and January 1, to assist veterans in making out applications for any men in Delta county who have not yet taken steps to collect.

lating of atmospheric tales of the Mississippi river folk.

Burman tried for two years before he could crash the magazines with writings of which he felt personally proud.

It was almost that long after he had written it that he saw in print—in the Pictorial Review—the story O'Brien selected as one of 1927's most alluring.

JUSTICE COURT CASE APPEALED

An appeal to circuit court will be filed in the case of Earl Smith and Jack Smith, Germfask residents, who were found guilty in justice court Wednesday on a charge of hunting deer without a license. Recognition of $200 each was required for their appearance at the term which opens January 9.

Complaint in the case was made by Bert Furst, conservation officer, and when arraigned before Justice W. A. McKinney the pair pleaded not guilty. After several postponements, the trial took place Wednesday afternoon, with the following men on the jury: A. W. Schofield, Palmer Bowman, Fridolf Danielson, Clarence McNamara, Edwin Blackwell, D. E. Sellar.

State Trapper Furst and Russell Thomson gave testimony for the prosecution and the two Smiths and Harry Nicholson were defense witnesses. The defendants were represented by Attorney O'Connor of Newberry.

On receiving the verdict of guilty, which carried a fine of $50 each and costs, Attorney O'Connor announced that the matter would be carried to circuit court. The Smiths maintained in their testimony that they had been hunting ducks, and not deer, when the arrest was made.

Suggest Mattresses Instead Lifeboats

Paris — Floating mattresses, that can be strapped together to form great rafts, are proposed as better than life-boats and life-preservers on ships.

Mattresses stuffed with "kapok" are said to be quite buoyant. Kapok is a silky down, somewhat like cotton, obtained from South American, African and East Indian trees. It is used widely in France for both mattresses and pillows.

A system of kapok mattresses that could be grouped into rafts was proposed some years ago by Captain Warneck of the French navy. His observation of ship disasters was that panic-stricken passengers generally adjusted life-preservers badly and that boats frequently were swamped. Mattresses, he thought, could be thrown overboard easily and a number of them bound together would form seaworthy rafts.

DISCIPLINE SHOULD HELP CHILD FORM GOOD HABITS

Punishment sometimes is necessary to break up unwise habits, but the most important function of discipline is to help the child to form correct habits.

For every action there is a cause and it is unwise for parents to punish misbehavior until they have determined the cause. The child becomes angry and has a tantrum because its action or wishes have been blocked in some manner.

In one case a three-year-old child was playing with dishes in the china-closet. The mother asked him twice not to do this, but he continued. Therefore, she whipped him and following the whipping he had a temper tantrum.

Natural Desire.

It was perfectly natural for the child to want to handle the pretty dishes which were easily available. If the mother did not wish him to do this, she should either have

Shark Meat Offered As Paris Delicacy

Paris—Shark meat will take its place as a regular item in France's far-flung culinary list if a group of shark connoisseurs succeeded in a campaign of popularization. An effort is being made to enlist the aid of Jean Grival, chief of the colonial fishery department, in organizing systematic fishing for the savage shark.

Shark meat, it is pointed out, is eaten not only in China and elsewhere in the Orient but also in England and America. In many parts of the United States, according to Jean Lecoq, Parisian shark fancier, shark meat is sold canned under the label "sea venison."

Italy Acts to Keep Italians in Native Land

Rome—Italians leaving their native land to search for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow in foreign lands will receive no financial encouragement hereafter from the government. It has abolished the reduction of 50 per cent in fare on state railways from the home of such a worker to the frontier or to the port of embarkation. On the other hand, Italians returning home have received an additional concession. The former 50 per cent reduction from the frontier or port to their homes in the interior has been raised to 75 per cent with the idea of attracting more Italians home from abroad.

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Heavy profit-taking and occasional bear selling failed to check the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market.

Marking up of the call money renewal rate to 4 1/2 per cent was generally expected in view of the heavy seasonal demands for currency.

Secretary Jardine's optimistic statement on the agricultural outlook found reflection in the brisk demand for the mail order and other shares which are likely to benefit through the farmer's prosperity.

Copper shares were again a pillar of strength on buying inspired by the cheerful trade outlook. New peak prices for the year or longer were again established by American Metals.

Outside of the break in Italian lire, there were no changes of importance in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables ruled around $4.88 11-32.

IN NEW YORK

New York—Christmas comes marching into New York speaking many languages, wearing many garbs and observing many customs.

For some four centuries the world has been sending its sons and daughters through the melting pot that is Manhattan.

On Thanksgiving day, for instance, New York staged the Razzamuffin Parade, a pageant I have never seen in any other part of America.

In the Christmas season the peoples of the Holy Land come together at Manhattan's oldest spot. The children of Syria and Palestine—Christians, Jews, Mohammedans—clutter that little section up from the Battery where the Dutch settled that first village of New Amsterdam.

I have often felt that the Christ story is just a little bit closer to the struggling thousands of the tenements than to anyone else.

It's a far cry from the simple gatherings under the olive trees upon the hillsides of Lebanon to the cobblestones and wharves that circle the foot of Washington street.

Across the city a tremendous Christmas tree flaunts its sparkles in Times Square and the tattered bootblacks and newsboys from the tenement belts gather at its base with mouths agape.

Under her threadbare shawl an old woman sits and begs at a subway station. Her face marks her a child of the Holy Land.

And I wonder what she thinks of as she sits and contemplates the mad rush of this new world beneath the abubled Broadway tree.

Saint and Sinner

By ANNE AUSTIN

Before she left for the office with Bob that Friday morning, Cherry made no verbal apology to Faith for her atrocious behavior of the night before.

Cherry had not slept particularly well upon her sins. Faith wondered, tenderly and pityingly, what strange battle between good and evil in her unaccountable little sister's nature had been waged in the long hours after Cherry had fled from the living room the night before.

All that was good and unselfish—however small that might be—had been instantly called to the surface of Cherry's volatile nature by that naive confession of Rhoda's. For today, at least, Cherry would remain true to the vow she had visibly registered not to try to fan into a new flame the attraction which Nils had felt for her upon sight.

A few minutes later, after Hope had been given her nine o'clock bottle and was drowsing off to sleep, Faith went to her own room.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT. Members of the basketball teams of Hollywood High School who participated in the exciting fray in Fox Films "High School Hero" consider themselves among the luckiest boys in America.

These boys were not only chosen for their ability at the game and given a chance to work in the picture, but had as their coach the famous sprinter and athlete, Charles Paddock.

Paddock, who plays the part of the coach in "High School Hero," gave the eager youths lots of pointers on training and athletic form outside the actual working on the picture.

Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart have the featured roles and others in the cast are John Darrow, David Rollins, Brandon Hurst, Wade Boteler and William N. Bailey. David Butler directed.

The picture is to be shown at the Delft Friday and Saturday.

AT THE STRAND. A new western star, only thirteen years old, makes his initial bow to motion picture audiences of this city in "The Boy Rider," an FBO production starring Buzz Barton, which will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Strand.

Introducing a new idea into motion picture production, FBO has made a full fledged star of little Buzz Barton, who has appeared in numerous productions with some of the best known western stars of today.

Buzz was chosen by FBO for the signal honor of being the youngest western star on the screen mainly because he is a thorough westerner from the top of his freckled head to the soles of his shiny new boots.

Buzz has been raised on ranches and has lived a greater part of his life in the cow country.

SAINTS DEFEAT ALUMNI, 24-22

Kohlmann and Roth Star in Thrilling Overtime Game

Rubens' long shot for a basket shortly before the final whistle blew gave the St. Joseph Parochial quintet a well-earned 24 to 22 victory over the Alumni in an overtime game at the Escanaba high school gymnasium last night. The score was tied 22 to 22 at the end of the fourth quarter, necessitating the playing of three minutes overtime.

The offensive and defensive work of Kohlmann, St. Joseph's speedy forward, was one of the big features of the contest, the lad scoring six field goals. Skopp also did good all around playing, and accounted for six points.

Roth, with five field goals and two successful free shots to his credit, was the chief point scorer for the Alumni squad. "Ben" Larson and C. Moreau garnered two baskets apiece.

The Alumni basketballers got away with a flying start in the first quarter, making six baskets before the high school lads realized what it was all about. The quarter ended with the score 10 to 0 in favor of the Alumni. During the first two minutes of play, Roth scored two field goals and Moreau one. Roth added two more and Frasher one field goal before the first period ended.

Led by Kohlmann in the second quarter, the St. Joseph cagers opened a sensational attack and piled up 12 points to the Alumni's two, the half ending with Coach E. M. Hira's squad trailing, 14 to 12. Kohlmann made five field goals during this stanza, Skopp furnishing the other basket. Just before the half ended, Wurley made a brilliant shot from mid-court to give the Alumni their two-point margin.

Both teams had difficulty in obtaining good views of the basket in the third period and the game advanced to a 20 to 16 stage, with the Alumni still in the lead.

Opening the final quarter, Jack Fitzharris looped one in a neat fashion from mid-floor, and "Ben" Larson duplicated the feat to help the Alumni. Skopp added two more field goals, however, to tie the count.

In the overtime period, the Alumni basketballers made a desperate attempt to break the tie, and resorted to long shots as rubens' substitute, made a thrilling long shot in scoring the winning field goal.

HOCKEY CLUB OWNER SUED

Chicago, Dec. 22—(P)—Major Frederick McLaughlin, wealthy sportsman, and two minor officials of the Chicago "Blackhawks," professional National Hockey league team, of which McLaughlin is president, today were sued for $700,000 by Edward J. Livingston, Toronto, Canada, a pioneer hockey promoter, who charged conspiracy to eliminate him as a hockey club owner.

Because he is alien Livingstone brought suit in federal district court.

The petition details steps of the alleged conspiracy to render a hockey league franchise worthless, obtain illegally players Livingston claims he had under contract and finally to oust him from organized professional hockey.

William J. Foster and John S. Keogh were the others named. Livingstone contends the defendants, Alvin H. Warren, Jr., president of the American Hockey association; Paul W. Loudon, a director; Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league, and William F. Grant, secretary-treasurer, conspired to destroy his franchise and the property rights of players on contract.

Livingstone claims Marvin P. Wentworth, Edward D. Graham, Robert Burns and Ralph F. Taylor, hockey stars, were paid $500 to $1,000 by McLaughlin to break contracts with him.

As a result of the contended conspiracy the Toronto man charges that he lost his franchise in the American Hockey association and had to abandon a lease on the Chicago Coliseum where his team, the Cardinals, played.

Nahma basketball fans were jubilant tonight over the victory. The Ramblers came here with a much-strengthened team determined to avenge for last season's defeat, only to be administered an equally stinging spanking.

HOCKEY TEAMS TO START SOON

Father Bergeron Again to Teach Game to Young Escanabans.

Escanaba youngsters who last winter learned a lot about the fundamentals of hockey from Rev. Raymond Bergeron of St. Patrick's parish, will be given the opportunity again this year of continuing their course of study in that thrilling winter pastime.

Municipal crews, yesterday, began the work of clearing the vacant lot at the rear of St. Patrick's church for one of the neighborhood rinks to be maintained by the city. This year the rink will be equipped with a hockey pen. The lumber necessary for the pen has been purchased by the Rotary club and it is hoped to have the pen completed for use during the Christmas vacation next week.

Last year, a supply of hockey sticks; pucks and other equipment was donated for the youngsters' use under the supervision of Father Bergeron. Some replacements in this material probably will be necessary, but the cost of this will be comparatively small. Goals and other paraphernalia necessary for the playing of hockey also have been held over from last year and are in good shape.

Father Bergeron expects to organize another juvenile hockey league. He has a theory that hockey is a game which must be learned while the player is young, if it is ever to be played skillfully. "The place to begin is with the small boys," he declares. During the skating season last year, most of his spare time was devoted to teaching the "kids" the game.

This year, with a new "pen" and a crew of lads who are familiar with most of the fundamentals, a great season is in prospect.

How soon the league teams may be organized, a schedule drafted and competition begun depends upon the time of completion of the rink and this, of course, hinges in part on weather conditions.

RAMBLERS LOSE TO NAHMA FIVE

Nahma, Dec. 22 (Special)—The Nahma Legion quintet romped over the E. F. U. Ramblers, 29 to 15, here tonight in a rough game. What is considered as a freak play in basketball circles appeared in the game when Arnold "Tarzan" Johnson, Ramblers' center, scored a field goal on the tip-off.

At the half, the Ramblers led by a score of 11 to 8, but in the final half, the Nahma basketballers uncoiled an offensive that carried them well in front.

Nahma basketball fans were jubilant tonight over the victory. The Ramblers came here with a much-strengthened team determined to avenge for last season's defeat, only to be administered an equally stinging spanking.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

To Herb Penneck, of the New York Yankees, goes all the credit for pitching the most courageous game I have ever seen a big leaguer register.

This same Penneck, frail of stature, but with a heart of oak, has pitched many remarkable games during his career in the majors. Lacking the burning speed of southpaws like Waddell and Grove, Penneck, with far less stuff, ranks among the five greatest southpaws of the last 25 years.

In the last world series between New York and Pittsburgh, he gave one of his sterling performances when he set down 22 of the Pirates in order. It seemed for a time as if he might pitch a perfect game.

However, just prior to the start of the eighth session, the Yanks had enjoyed a batting rally that took 10 minutes and Penneck, sitting on the bench, so cooled off that he wasn't at his best when he returned to the rubber.

When one speaks of a courageous exhibition of pitching, the inference is that the game must have been a low score affair, featuring air tight hurling.

Quite to the contrary, in the game where Penneck showed me there never was a more lion-hearted pitcher, he was batted hard throughout. And, after all, that is when it takes real courage to carry on.

HYLAND WAS UNSUNG HERO

Star of Last Olympics to Play in Tournament of Roses Game.

Los Angeles, Calif.—One of the unsung heroes of the 1924 Olympic battlefield in Paris was a football player, a member of Uncle Sam's rugby team that was organized in a hurry, transported from California to France in haste and hustled back home with the championship.

The American swimmers, the oarsmen, the track and field stars and the tennis players who mopped up in Paris were acclaimed gloriously, but the rugby football players, who scored what was perhaps the most astonishing performance, were barely recognized when they came home.

Among the fifteen young Californians who left their classrooms and offices to take the rugby banner to France was Dick Hyland, the same smiling Dick Hyland who is one of the big stars in the Stanford team that will meet Pittsburgh in the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena.

Hyland was the big star of the American team that astounded the French by winning the championship from a French team that was rated in its class almost as powerful as the New York Yankees.

Little was heard of the playing of the Americans in that memorable final match. More mention was made on the first pages of the daily print about the anti-American demonstrations in the stands, the riots and the disorders that sent several Americans to the hospital with cane gashes on their heads.

After the first wild outburst of disappointment and chagrin, the French people settled down and began to realize that it was indeed a great team the Americans had and they recognized Hyland as a Babe Ruth of the game.

Offers and offers of money, were made to Hyland to remain in France, play with the national team and coach young players. Hyland was favorably inclined toward the offers until he received a cable from his father—"You come home and get back to college."

Hyland returned to Stanford, forgot about rugby, turned back to the collegiate football game and has starred since then on three great Stanford teams. It was his adeptness at the college style of game that made him a sixth and crucial one of the 1923 world series. Penneck had won one game and saved another by his relief work. Selected to pitch the sixth game, with the count standing three games to two in favor of the Yankees, it was apparent the New York Americans had a great chance to triumph over the Giants, unless Penneck had been overworked.

I had my doubts when Penneck stepped to the mound, for I feared three games in five days, two of which he started, would prove too great a task. After I saw him pitch for an inning, I was positive he was far from the top of his game.

It was evident from the way the Giants slammed away at his offerings that he didn't have his usual stuff. However, he did have his customary poise and unvarying control.

Babe Ruth staked Penneck to a one-run lead with a home run drive in the first inning, but three slashing hits by the Giants quickly evened the count in their half.

In the fourth inning, two hits gave the Giants the run that sent McGraw's team into the lead. A home run by Catcher Frank Snyder in the sixth stretched the margin to two runs.

In every inning the Giants pecked away at Penneck's delivery. It seemed they would score in every session, but all ways some brilliant fielding feat or super pinch pitching by the slim southpaw would temporarily avert what seemed to be impending disaster.

Ten hits were made off Penneck's delivery but they failed to tell the story of just how hard he was batted. Yet, through it all, he never once wavered. Realizing he didn't have his stuff, he matched his wits with every batter and as a result was often in trouble trying to make the opposition bite at bad balls.

Penneck kept plugging away when most pitchers would have said "what's the use," and gotten careless. The break came in the eighth inning. With the score standing 4-1 against the Yanks, his teammates made five runs through a combination of hits and bases on balls, mostly the latter.

New York Americans won the game and the series, 6-4, simply because Penneck never once lost heart, even though he was batted hard in every inning. I have never seen a more courageous exhibition of pitching under such discouraging circumstances.

WILL COACH COLLEGIANS. Boston college recently lost a star baseball player when Jack Slattery became manager of the Boston Braves but they filled the vacancy with Hurlie Duffy, former major league star and for three years the manager of the Boston Red Sox.

POINT-MAKER

There's a fond hope nesting with Wilbur Cummins, Purdue basketball star, that he will lead the Big Ten point-makers again this year. He did so last year while playing center for the Boilermakers, and he hopes to do so again this year. This is a possibility that he will be used at a forward position this year.

ROUGHROUSERS BEAT S. M. E.

The North Escanaba Rough House gang had an easy time defeating the Swedish Methodist Psalmings by a score of 32 to 13 at the Webster school gym last night. The first quarter ended with the Singers leading by a score of 5 to 4, but the tables were turned at the half when the Roughrousers held the long end of a 10 to 5 score. A basket-shooting rampage by the Rough House gang in the last half piled up scores. Ten field goals and two free throws were credited to the winners in these two periods. M. Redy of the Rough House gang was the leading point gainer with 10 to his credit. G. Erdman, his teammate, was a close second with 8 points.

Last Minute Gift Suggestions From Goodfellows

Ryan to Help Vets Get Settlements

Edward K. Ryan, private secretary to Congressman Frank P. Bohn, arrived in this city this morning from Washington to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt J. Ryan.

During the holidays, Mr. Ryan will be more than willing to cooperate with all ex-service men on any and all claims they may have with the Veterans' bureau. Congressman Bohn's office in Washington is noted for its service to ex-service men, and through the excellent cooperation of Secretary E. K. Ryan, Cleveland Post, No. 82, has had action expedited on many pending claims. Mr. Ryan has familiarized himself with the unwinding of the usual government "red tape," and the eleventh congressional district is very fortunate that its congressman has chosen so competent a secretary.

Mr. Ryan informed the officers of Cleveland Post today that Congressman Bohn is going to appear personally before the board of appeal of the Veterans' bureau, and demand that action be hastened on every claim that is pending at the present time.

state business in the sale of transmission of their power, it would be a relatively insignificant affair because the interstate business is something on which the utility industry itself has not yet reached a crystallized opinion though there have been some suggestions that regional handling by the states with the concurrence of the federal government might be worked out.

As for Senator Walsh and his associates they are not alone concerned with the sale of power in interstate business but the financing of holding companies whereby corporations formed in one state buy and sell securities for properties located in another state. It is the financial operations of the holding companies that the Walsh group in the senate are interested in investigating and they are talking of the whole matter in terms of statutes which relate to the buying and selling of securities and the use of the mails for that purpose. There is also the question of possible violation of anti-trust laws in merger operations, a phase mentioned by Senator King of Utah in Monday's debate as warranting the consideration of the question by the judiciary committee of the senate.
