

SPECTACULAR YEAR CLOSES IN MICHIGAN

Additional penalties for carrying the weapons. A criminal code, designed to cut out red tape and to deter crimes by severe sentences, was placed on the statute books. It compels sentencing judges to order life imprisonment for a fourth felony. Its first use caused a nation-wide stir. Fred Palm, of Lansing, was sentenced to life imprisonment upon his conviction of possessing a pint of gin. It was his fifth or sixth felony and the others were more serious, but various organizations threatened to rush to his rescue by appealing the case. The legislature lifted the automobile speed limit by adopting a new traffic code. It makes recklessness rather than speed, the gauge of liability. Passing other cars on curves or hills, driving out of control, operating a car without the proper equipment of lights and other discrepancies and omissions are specified as recklessness, with severe penalties. Passed 408 New Laws. The legislature placed 408 new laws upon the books. Its deliberations lasted more than four months. At the outset of the session, a controversy arose when a group of senators attempted to wrest from Lieutenant Governor Luren Dickinson his right of naming committees. They wanted a "committee on committees." Thomas Reed, former lieutenant governor, was credited with being one of the sponsors of the movement. It failed. The lieutenant governor, an ardent temperance worker, retaliated in kind, perhaps, by banning smoking during session and cautioning the members against looking upon the wine when it is red or associating with lobbyists. Governor Green launched an attack upon lobbyists. He censured in particular, John Lovette, manager of the Michigan Manufacturer's association. The legislature adopted a resolution, similar to one already in the rules, that lobbyists must remain off the floor during sessions. Thereafter they took to the hard benches of the gallery. The legislature turned down a drastic anti-lobbying bill, however, which was sponsored by the governor. And the lobbyists sent cigars down to the members for their charitable action.

Telephone Rates. Prompted by the charges of the state public utilities commission and the attorney general that the Michigan Bell Telephone company would not submit to state jurisdiction a measure was introduced designed to force the A. T. & T. to reveal its books or get out of Michigan. Two other bills were indirectly linked with the effort. Another would advance the tax upon commercial vehicles. There was high discussion, many conferences, much shifting of alignments and getting together, and finally the A. T. & T. bill and vehicle bills died and the bank bill was enacted. The session had a constant tangle of wet and dry debate, with R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, and Rep. Robert Wardell, representative of a moderation organization, as the principals. The arguments developed the proposals that conditions in Detroit and Flint be investigated. Charges that officers of the Michigan Soldiers' Home in Grand Rapids were inefficient and indulged in intoxicating liquors were investigated by a legislative commission with the result that there was a shakeup in the personnel of the institution. Charges of drinking by members of the state board of pharmacy were investigated with complete exoneration as a result.

Michigan farmers, according to state reports, had 10 percent less income in 1927 than in 1926. The producers of potatoes, fruits and sugar beets were the most oppressed. Small grain growers had a fairly profitable year. The federal government and the legislature combined to make a million-dollar war upon the corn crop was "off." The year saw the partial abandonment of a former governor's plan for a model prison to house the rapidly growing penal population. The administration decreed that only five of the contemplated thirteen cell blocks of the new Jackson institution shall be completed. Reports were submitted charging the work started by the preceding administration was extravagant. Politics flashed across the horizon in the 1927 spring convention when Kennedy L. Potter, chairman of the Republican state central committee when the Groesbeck group was in power, was replaced by Gerritt J. Dickema. Dennis E. Alward, secretary of the committee for many years, who also went down in the crash that put Potter at the head of the organization and gave Milton T. Carmichael, of Detroit, the post of secretary, was replaced.

Spring Convention. The spring convention was dominated by the Green forces. Webster H. Pearce, comparatively unknown in state politics, was nominated for superintendent of public instruction. He defeated Wilford Coffey, a Groesbeck appointee. The nomination required in his election. Frank D. McKay, state treasurer and stalwart Green worker was credited with having organized the delegates for Pearce. In the midst of his first year in office, Governor Green was forced to reorganize the conservation department to make it shape up to his own ideas. He dismissed Leigh J. Young, of the University of Michigan, whom he originally appointed director. William H. Loutit, a Democrat, was made executive chairman of the commission. George Hogarth, of Ionia, secretary to Young, was elevated to acting director. There were shakeups in the field forces. To aid the conservation department in its work the supreme court upheld the discretionary power act, which gives the commission authority to open and close seasons to meet emergencies.

Conservation Fracas. Prior to the Young-Loutit-Hogarth charge there were other flurries. John Baird, former director, resigned. Edward Cochran, Baird's secretary, however, refused to quit. Finally Governor Green bodily fired Cochran. The famous fifth normal act, which was approved during the Groesbeck regime, died a natural death last July. The appropriation for the establishment of the school expired and nothing was done to revive it. Its passing marked the demise of a project that stirred up political enmity and incited whispered allegations. Because of the alleged deficiency left by the preceding administration and the claims of the new government that more funds must be raised, state taxes swooped upward. The state property levy advanced more than one third—from $17,800,000 to $24,500,000. Utility taxes, for the primary fund, likewise increased. These facts, coupled with the addition of one third to the cost of the gasoline tax, instigated a movement by the organized farmers late in the year for a downward revision. They plan to go before the next legislature with a demand that automobile weight taxes be cut and that the state burden upon farm property be relieved. The state launched a serious drive designed to abate stream pollution. More than fifty cities and villages were served with notice that they must establish disposal plans. Amendments to the statutes were enacted to strengthen the state's case, some litigation was instituted and the towns have been warned a second time that they must act. The state supreme court upheld former governor Groesbeck in his removal from office of Thomas E. Johnson, former superintendent of public instruction.

Appeal Primary Law. The 1925 primary school fund apportionment, whereby five percent of the fund was set aside for the so-called poorer counties, was held unconstitutional by Judge Leland Carr in the Ingham circuit court. The state rushed to the supreme court with an appeal, which is pending. Michigan's long fight against the alleged excessive diversion of Great Lakes water through the Chicago drainage canal received a temporary setback when Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court, ruled the Chicago sanitary district may take the amount of water authorized by the war department. Almost immediately W. W. Potter, attorney general, set in motion further action designed to limit the district to that amount and force it to cease extracting alleged larger quantities. The Chelsea cement plant, pet of the Groesbeck regime, was battered by the reports of engineers and accountants. It was claimed the plant was obsolete, prisoner employees were mistreated and it was losing money. Governor Green announced that the state would continue "to operate it until it can be advantageously disposed of." There was no open partridge season for the first time in years, but as a partial compensation the state lifted a ban on spearing in inland lakes. After years of inactivity the state board of athletic control was revived. Thomas Bigger was reinstated as boxing commissioner.

Two New Justices. Two new members took their place upon the supreme court bench. Justice Joseph H. Steers resigned and his place was filled by Judge Richard C. Flannigan. The sudden death of Justice Ernest A. Snow created a vacancy which the governor filled by appointing Judge Walter H. North. Friction developed in the state welfare department, with members of the welfare commission charging Marl T. Murray, director, with insubordination. The close of the year saw the interest of state officials and party leaders swinging to the campaigns of 1928. Governor Green announced he will be a candidate for a second term. With President Coolidge's famous "choose" announcement the governor took a stand on the presidency by pledging his support to Herbert Hoover for the Republican nomination. Speculation as to the Republican and Democratic candidates for United States senator to succeed Woodbridge N. Ferris was plentiful. Three Republicans were believed on the verge of entering the melee—under certain conditions, which might include the proposition that the two others do not run. They were Arthur Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, former Governor Albert Sleeper, of Bad Axe, and former Governor Chas S. Osborn, of Sault Ste. Marie. Green May Run. Green May Run? Those inclined to conjecture wondered whether Governor Green might not finally decide who would run under the banner of his forces by becoming a candidate himself. The defeat of Mayor John W. Smith, of Detroit, for re-election somewhat. Mayor Smith was a strong adherent of the Green cause in the last gubernatorial campaign. When the next campaign rolls around he will be out of office and the strength he displayed in 1926 may be missing. The huge Detroit vote is a mighty item to be reckoned with in the quest for political preferment. Where will it go in 1928?—that is one of the questions which is making political leaders wonder what the harvest will be in the New Year.

Abner Bangs Sees Wider Usefulness for Insanity

Misery Bay, Dec. 31 (To the Editor): The old year will soon be as deceased as a dead door nail. It brought amidst us many newly notable ideas, than which none was more so than temporary insanity.

I have given this temporary insanity a good deal of the careful forethought and meditation for which I am famously noted, and I have arrived at the resultive conclusion that there is no good and sufficient reason why it should be confined to the court rooms of this great land of gin, jazz and opportunity. It would be an appropos appropriate alibi for a good many embarrassing circumstances.

I now will go ahead to proceed to outline a few:

Jones—which is a purely imaginary name—comes home at an early hour in the morning. He takes off his shoes and sneaks up the stairs. "What time is it?" asks his wife. "It pretty near midnight," says Jones. The cuckoo clock then cuckoos three times. "Remember," says Jones quickly, "that is a cuckoo clock. Poor thing, it has went temporarily insane."

Jones—this being another hypothetical Jones—is getting his coat pressed by his wife. She looks into the pockets and finds that letter she give him to mail two weeks before last Candle-mass. "What is this my love?" she asks sweetly. Jones rubs his corrugated forehead. "My plea is temporary insanity," he says quickly.

Jones—still another nonexistent Jones—is driving his automobile down Ludington street. A woman driver ahead of him puts out her hand for a left so Jones quite naturally supposed she was going to turn right. Instead of that she crossed him up and swung around cross-ways in the street and Jones' car hit her amidsthips. The cop came rushing over. Jones gallantly explains: "Officer, do your duty. My car has been acting strangely queer of late. I am afraid it has been taken ill with dementia praecox, amnesia and the heebie-jeebies. It must have the temporary insanity."

Jones—still yet another psychological Jones—loses $14.35 to a gang of friendly cut-throats in a sociable poker game. Suddenly he arises to his feet and his frame shakes quiveringly. "Gentlemen," says he, "I have just had an attack of temporary insanity, or else I wouldst not have stayed with a pair of sevens after it had been opened. I demand my money back." So they gave him his money back and set him free.

These are some of the more apparently visible uses of temporary insanity as I see it. Others may occur to my reads throughout this Happy New Year.

Sincerely & Truly,
ABNER BANGS, esq.

S. BEAUCHAMP IS ARRESTED

Soft Drink Parlor Operator Taken in Pre-Holiday Drive

Deputy U. S. Marshals Paul Nelson and Matt Mitchell, aided by police and sheriff's officers, continued the mopping of Escanaba's wet spots yesterday morning, arresting Sam Beauchamp, proprietor of a soft drink parlor at 819 Ludington street.

Beauchamp was charged with sale of liquor, the purchase having been made by a U. S. secret service agent while Beauchamp was conducting a place at 700 Ludington street. He moved to the new location early in December.

Owners Face Trouble. Owners of the buildings occupied by the five men, arrested in the pre-holiday drive, face a possibility of being arrested on charges of contempt of court, which upon conviction will mean either stiff fines or jail sentences. Following the gigantic raid conducted here last fall under the direction of Arthur Scully, acting deputy federal prohibition administrator of Grand Rapids, padlock proceedings were started against more than a dozen buildings. Temporary injunctions were granted until final decision as to whether the places should be padlocked for one year was given in the next term of federal court. Authorities at that time warned the owners if these places were used in the meantime for the conduct of an illegal liquor business, that the owners would be subject to arrest.

The owners of the five places involved are as follows:

James Nolan, Crystal Falls, owner of premises occupied by Sam Beauchamp, 700 Ludington street. Joseph LaFleur, owner of building occupied by John J. McNellis, 1213 Ludington street. (LaFleur is now serving a term in the Alger county jail upon conviction following his arrest by Scully and his forces last fall.)

Owen Gallagher, owner of Windsor hotel, occupied by Philip Boyle. Mrs. Patrick Gannon, owner of Colonial hotel, occupied by Barney McGovern.

Mrs. Charles Graham, owner of Michigan hotel, occupied by Charles Johnson.

Four Arraigned. Four of the five arrested men were taken to Marquette yesterday for arraignment before U. S. Court Commissioner Button. Charles Johnson was granted permission to appear later because of the death of his father.

The government investigator who made the "buys" at the five soft drink parlors here is one of the crack operatives of the justice department, having worked in all parts of the United States. He is one of the men who collected evidence in the case of George Remus, Cincinnati "bootlegger king," who was convicted for violation of the prohibition laws and sent to Atlanta penitentiary. This agent also has been actively engaged in recent months in the rounding up of bootleggers and rum runners in the Detroit district.

Added Achievements in World Wide Program of Saving Motorists Money and Serving Them Better

Year by year—since the beginning of the automotive industry—Firestone has been laying the foundation in resources, facilities, methods and man-power which today is saving motorists millions of dollars annually.

The far-reaching program of Firestone tire production demands vast quantities of the highest grade materials. To safeguard the supply and conserve it for the use of American motorists, are resources almost beyond imagination.

In the Far East, where Firestone maintains ten buying offices for securing crude rubber from the native planter on the most economical basis, facilities have been greatly increased. The development of the vast million acre Firestone plantations in Liberia, Africa, is being greatly speeded up toward the goal of complete independence from foreign rubber monopoly.

Firestone has recently added to its great manufacturing plants the largest cord fabric plant in the world where cotton—also purchased in the primary markets—is made into the highest quality cords for tires.

Extra middlemen's profits are eliminated and uniform quality is assured under Firestone methods of operation. And you are sure of the better service to go with these better tires, because Firestone does not sell to catalog houses or special distributors. Firestone standards of quality and volume production, with distribution direct through 149 factory branches and warehouses, place Firestone Service Dealers in a position to give car owners fresh, clean tires at prices to meet every purse and requirement.

The Firestone Dealer's expert advice, together with the special conservation and repairing methods he has learned in Firestone Training Schools and Educational Meetings, are great aids to longer wear from your tires and lower upkeep for your car. You get personal service from a reliable merchant who has a reputation to sustain and on whom you can absolutely depend. His promise to you is backed by all the resources of the world's greatest organization devoted exclusively to tires.

New Years Greetings and an Expression of Appreciation

HARDLY six months ago the Palace Market launched a new career under new management. At the very start the management, although strangers in this community, were the recipients of friendly interest and cooperation from neighboring merchants and business interests. Patronage, too, was liberal at the start considering the obstacles which the new Palace had to overcome. And day by day we have seen this business grow until at the close of our first half year we believe our monthly volume will rank with the community leaders in similar business activities.

It is therefore our desire to express sincere thanks to those merchants who so kindly assisted us in the infancy of our career, and to the ever increasing list of customers who have made the successful continuance of The Palace Market possible.

1928 will find The Palace Market endeavoring in every way to merit the continued patronage of Escanaba folks, their good-will and the good-will and friendship of our neighbor-merchants. That 1928 may be more than kind to you is our sincere wish.

BOHN CLINGS TO COOLIDGE

Congressman Reluctant to Admit Cal Is Out of Race

BY CLERQUE C. SCHILLING
Washington, Dec. 31 (Special)—Dr. Frank P. Bohn of Newberry, one of the two new Michigan members of congress, is a Coolidge man, no matter what the rest of the Michigan delegation thinks or does or no matter what the governor of the state believes. The northern Michigan congressman let it be known soon after his arrival in Washington when he stepped into the major league of politics for the first time.

Dr. Bohn is proving popular among his colleagues, though he has done little more than attend sessions of the house during the first few weeks. His political background goes only to the state senate where he served two terms. He was only in Washington a few days when one of the Hoover henchmen approached him and asked of him to jump on the secretary of commerce's band wagon and line up with the Michigan crowd, many of whom are already said to be on the wagon as a result of Governor Fred Green's announcement that he would deliver the Michigan delegation to Hoover. Bohn demonstrated that he had a political mind of his own and positively refused to endorse Hoover's candidacy, saying that he is for Coolidge until he is eliminated beyond all doubt and after that he would listen with an open mind to the merits of the other possible candidates. He did not say, like many others from Michigan have said: "If Coolidge doesn't run, I'm for Hoover."

Coolidge is safe. "President Coolidge is the only safe man for the Republican party to nominate next summer. He has the confidence of the country and until he is out of the race I am for him absolutely," Bohn said, adding, "and when he is out then I will think it over."

Bohn is the first Michigan congressman to declare himself on this issue. The other members have had no occasion to declare themselves and none of them seemed to want "to choose to make a statement." A number, however, are known to be lined up with the Green organization and may follow the governor for Hoover, but the Michigan group in the house are by no means sold for Hoover as yet. Already, a number of Michigan political leaders have disagreed with "Green on his 'Hoover boom statement' and some even say the governor erred in making the announcement before the 1928 convention city was selected because such an announcement encouraged the Hoover crowd to the extent that it would be useless to send the convention to Detroit when the state was already lined up.

In addition to Green, the national committeeman and woman have issued statements supporting Hoover. As a matter of fact Hoover supporters have already placed Michigan in their column and are counting on that state to deliver a solid vote at the convention to the secretary of commerce.

Hoover's Foes Busy.
Meanwhile political opponents of Hoover have undertaken a campaign—a whispering campaign so far—designed to prevent his nomination. This campaign has taken several directions and has reached the personal side. Hoover is charged with being pro-British and with having lived abroad too long. Demand for the renomination of Coolidge by Committee Hilles of New York is the forerunner of another Coolidge-for-president movement, notwithstanding the president's reiterated assertion that he does not choose to run.

The result of the presidential nominations will have a pronounced bearing on Michigan politics, in the coming summer and fall elections. It may mean opposition for Governor Fred Green and it will go a long way solving the senatorial problem. As soon as the Republican National convention is over an announcement will be forthcoming from former Governor Chase S. Osborn which will tell whether or not he is going to be a candidate, indicating that the presidential nominee will be the controlling candidate on a winning ticket in Michigan.

The Misses Katherine Byrne, Clarise Gleich, Marguerite Leduc and Marie Scerif, students at St. Mary's college at Prairie du Chien, Wis., will leave Tuesday evening to resume their studies after spending the holidays in this city.

Mr. Hoffman was born in Luxembourg, Europe, and came to America in 1872. He remained in Chicago for a short time and came to this city about fifty years ago. For many years he was employed by the Chicago and North-Western Railway company in the machine shop and was known to be one of the most competent men in the employ of the Peninsula division. He was to have been pensioned during the World war, but owing to the shortage of skilled workmen he was requested to remain in the shops here. Shortly after the signing of the armistice he was pensioned and the family moved to the outskirts of the city to make their home on a farm.

Besides his wife and daughter, Mrs. E. Drumheller of Chicago, and son, John Hoffman of this city, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Catherine Walch of this city.

Burial will be in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery.

GUSTAVE JOHNSON.
Funeral services for Gustave Johnson, 227 North Twelfth street, were held at the Allo Funeral Home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. C. A. Lund officiating. Rev. Lund used as his text, Job, 16th chapter, 22nd verse, "When a few years are come then

I shall go the way when I shall not return."

The many beautiful flowers which surrounded the casket were silent testimonials of the esteem in which the deceased was held by a wide circle of friends.

The close friends who carried the casket to and from the funeral car were Fred Starnie, Fred Swanson, Gust Anderson, John Grant, Verner Olson and Fridolf Carlson.

Interment was in the family lot in Lakeview cemetery where his wife was buried several years ago.

See the New Chevrolet now on display!

Today, Chevrolet presents the crowning triumph of 16 years' continuous progress——a great new automobile so impressive in appearance, performance and staunchness that it marks the opening of a new era of luxurious transportation at low cost!

Built on a 107" wheelbase—4" longer than before—the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is impressively large, low and racy. Fashionable new colors in genuine Duco, rich new upholstery and handsome appointments lend an air of notable distinction; while a type of big car performance once thought impossible in a low-priced car has been achieved by numerous engineering advancements.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet is powered by an improved valve-in-head engine with such impressive features as alloy "invar strut" pistons, hydro-laminated camshaft gears, mushroom type valve tappets, AC oil filter and AC air cleaner.

The chassis has been redesigned. And as a result, the new Chevrolet provides delightful smoothness—click-of-the-heel acceleration—the ability to maintain 50, 55 and 60 miles an hour—the safety of four-wheel brakes—the steering ease that can only result from a ball bearing worm and gear steering mechanism—and comfort over all roads at all speeds, due to semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—84% of the wheelbase.

We urge you to come in—see this beautiful new car—and learn how Chevrolet has again electrified America by creating a Bigger and Better motor car and offering it at prices so low as to be actually amazing.

The Nine Commandments

Laid down for the Conduct of its Personnel During 1928

By The

Escanaba Motor Co.

1. Serve the public faithfully and diligently at all times in the full measure of your talents and resources.
2. Endeavor to give more than the patron expects, and thereby maintain the reputation of this establishment for value.
3. Honor and serve the customer who expends one dollar as you would those who expend one thousand dollars.
4. Do not kill-time. He who dallies or delays, deserves defeat.
5. Do nothing which shall destroy the fame of your city, nor your own self-respect.
6. Be honest and kindly and courageous in all things. The confidence folks repose, in you is your most sacred asset.
7. Do not give ear to falsehoods concerning your neighbor's business.
8. Do not covet your neighbor's hard-won laurels; if you would enjoy the community's tribute, make yourself worthy of it.
9. Dedicate yourself to greater accomplishments in 1928 than in any previous year; to the end that permanent, pleasant and profitable relations may endure between you and those who depend upon you for service.

Michigan Industrial Plants Showed Big Gains This Year

Detroit, Dec. 31—(Special)—The Michigan Manufacturers and Financial Record, in its annual forecast of the business of the ensuing year, published today, estimates the total production of Michigan industrial plants for 1928 at 5,500 million dollars, being somewhat more than that of 1927 and about 500 millions more than that of 1926.

The industrial employment of the state, including transportation and mining, is estimated to reach, by the second quarter of the year, 750,000 for full-time employment. The annual payroll for these is forecast at 1,500 millions.

Federal Projects.

Seven million dollars of expenditure on federal government projects, largely river and harbor work, is listed. The various drainage projects to be carried out by counties and drainage districts during 1928 aggregate 14 millions. Approximately 25 millions will be spent on highways by the state and the counties. Including left-over work from the past year. Large railroad betterment and extension programs include four millions by the Pere Marquette, 12 millions by the Grand Trunk and a considerable amount, not yet fully budgeted, by the Michigan Central. Construction investment by the Michigan Telephone company for the year already approved amounts to $27,000,000. The various power companies have incompleted budgets aggregating 39 millions with more to be decided upon. Gas company additions to plant and distribution systems will aggregate about 12 millions of dollars for 1928. Building construction in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac are forecast by architects, building commissioners and others to absorb about 180 millions, as a minimum, to take up slack in those cities, with approximately 36 million more from the other industrial cities as their aggregate contribution. Mortgage money is plentiful, owing to connections made with Detroit and Michigan institutions by large buyers of first mortgage securities and unexpected anticipations of payments of serial bond issues already out. These construction figures compare with 138 millions in Detroit in 1927 and 182 millions in 1926.

Bank Deposits.

Additions to savings deposits in state banks, based upon increased payrolls and steadier employment, are indicated to equal those of 1925, when they amounted to 67 millions. The total of savings in all banks in Michigan reached a record maximum of more than 1,000 millions on June 30, 1927, of which 744 millions were in state banks, 148 millions in national banks and the suggestion that the 1925 record of savings will be duplicated is based on the addition of 32 millions to state savings bank deposits during the first half of 1927, with the last half of the year not reported, and the added persistence of the banking organizations in seeking additional savings deposits.

The milk products industry reports increasing demands. Sugar beet production has not been specially profitable.

An important factor is the question of ocean freight rates, which depends upon the policy of the government toward the merchant marine.

Tariffs and War Debts. Very little talk has been heard in the last six months in government circles about revision of the war debt agreements.

The agitation for a revision of the tariff, however, will continue during 1928, and, while it is conceded, even in protectionist quarters, that many parts of the tariff law are inequitable, there is a fear that if the subject were opened up at all it would mean too much disturbance.

Foreign Trade Problems. These tendencies are significant of the transition stage—the transfer from a period of big production to an era of distribution.

For this reason an amendment has been suggested to the Webb-Pomerene Law, and the probability is that Congress will pass it this winter.

Business men have been asking, through the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, for a $400,000,000 tax reduction, but the administration has felt this was too high.

There is no doubt that Governor Smith is the best vote-getter the Democrats have had in the Eastern States, where big electoral votes are counted.

Smith is no doubt that Governor Smith is the best vote-getter the Democrats have had in the Eastern States, where big electoral votes are counted.

Many business men have given up hope that Mr. Coolidge could be persuaded to accept the nomination but others still cling to it.

By chance the Republican National Convention should decide to ask Mr. Coolidge the definite question of whether he would accept the nomination when tendered to him, and if Mr. Coolidge should accept, there is no doubt that the business world would be very happy indeed.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans realize that the success of American business depends upon being given an opportunity to develop naturally and without excessive government restraint.

Broadly speaking, there is little fear as to the action of the present Congress so far as business prosperity is concerned. The problems of business are still in the hands of business.

The big question ahead is to apply the lessons of efficiency that have been learned in production and to apply them intensively in the coming decade of distribution.

BLOWS FAIL TO SHAKE "YANKS"

Art Hall's Pirates started off the holiday week by winning two out of three games from Mead's Lions. The genial captain of the Pirates was mainly responsible for their victory.

The Bear Cats and Paper Makers mixed up in one of the most interesting series of the season.

The Giants handed the same dose to the Tigers, and the fast-going Yanks tripped the Cubs for three straight games. This places the Yanks very favorably in first position.

The coming week will complete the first swing around the circuit. Monday night the Pirates will take on the Bear Cats.

Tuesday night the Paper Makers will make an earnest endeavor to halt the leading Yanks.

The Cubs and Giants are billed for Wednesday night, and the Tigers and Lions on Friday night.

RADIO PROVES LIFE SAVER

Takes Medical Aid Injured Far Out at Sea on Ships

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE (A. P. Feature Writer).

Washington—Linking radio with advanced medical knowledge, the U. S. public health service goes to the aid of mariners, injured or ill, hundreds of miles at sea.

Before radio, many gallant sailors went to Davy Jones' locker because of the lack of expert medical care.

Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the service, declares the treatment by radio of the men of the merchant marine is one of the most valuable and interesting phases of the organization's work.

Medical advice and prescriptions are sent by radiogram from 11 medical relief stations operated by the public health service, nine of which are hospitals.

The master of a ship sends a description of the patient's symptoms and a physician at the relief station prepares a prescription and sends it out.

Officers of ships now are required to have a knowledge of first aid treatment and the public health service has formulated a standard ship's medical chest for use on all boats without doctors.

A few weeks ago a number of a ship's crew bound for Vancouver from San Francisco became seriously ill.

The ship was off the coast of Oregon and was not due in San Francisco for two days. The master radioed the public health service hospital there, giving the symptoms of the sailor's illness. The hospital answered immediately, diagnosing the case as appendicitis, and advising the master to put into shore at Eureka, Cal., to take the patient to a hospital.

A typical appeal, received recently, read: "Please advise how to check blood poisoning caused by finger being pierced by wire or steel. Unable to remove same."

Five minutes later, the reply was on the air, giving explicit instructions for the care of the patient.

The public health service treatment by radio is available for ships of other countries as well as the United States.

In this connection the secretary of the Bootle's club said proudly that "no women have ever entered Bootle's, and there are no indications, at present, that they ever will."
Asked if a proposal to even allow women to have a meal with a member might be considered the secretary retorted emphatically: "No—Never!"
The Daily Mirror, however, is not so sure of the "never, never" of the "severe secretaries."
"If at first they don't get into the club as members, they get in as waitresses—and in one of the most sternly—and jealously masculine institutions—then, as guests; then as 'associates!' Time will show. But we doubt the loud 'never, never' of the secretaries."

First Time Hardest Say Berlin Boosters

Berlin (P)—Berlin believes in saying it with music.
"Everybody once in Berlin," is the slogan with which the Berlin boosters' committee is trying to get Germans and foreigners to visit Berlin.
To popularize this slogan, Hugo Hirsch, composer of the music in "Lola in Love," wrote a marching song. Each verse ends with the refrain, "Once you've been in Berlin, you'll always come again."
Some 5,000 bands throughout Germany have promised to fiddle, blare or drum the tune home, and every German phonograph company has turned out vocal and instrumental versions of "Everybody once in Berlin."
The march has also been sent to 10,000 music teachers, to all out-of-town owners of pianos whose names could be ascertained, to every hotel and "pension" in the Reich, and to the club and practice rooms of musical organizations.
No Soft Ones for Army.
In picking a football schedule for 1928, the Army did not seek soft spots. On the schedule arranged for the Cadets are Southern Methodist, Yale, Harvard, Notre Dame and the Navy.
Both Tricky Players.
Dick Hyland of Stanford and Glick Welch of Pittsburgh were considered two of the trickiest open-field runners in football this past season.

Hayden Work Found In Public Museum

Berlin (P)—The copy of a posthumous Requiem in C minor of Franz Joseph Hayden was discovered by the music student, Ernst Franz Schmidt, in the course of his studies in the musical museum of the Bavarian town of Burghausen, a. d. Salzburg.
After lengthy negotiations with the lucky finder, Generalmusikdirektor Weisbach of Duesseldorf succeeded in securing the rights for the first performance of this interesting novelty in Duesseldorf on February 2, 1928.

IN NEW YORK

New York—New Yorkers are constantly being rebuked for their bad manners, if any. Visitors invariably comment on the rough treatment received at the hands of burles during subway and elevated rush hours. The law of "women and children first" has no standing in the struggle to become a human sardine during the dinner-hour crush.

True it is that the most primal laws are invoked by men and women who ordinarily would be even and I. The average New Yorker who has commuted either by train or by subway suspends all ethical principles where catching trains is concerned. He reverts to the jungle principle of survival by law of tooth and claw. He takes it for granted that, male or female, those who crash the subway gates at rush hour are playing the same game. All the protests in the world, smothered oaths and pleas for gentleness will not stop him.

And, more than once, I have seen this same savage arrive at his suburban home, turn on the radio and with his baby in his lap become the apotheosis of simple domesticity.

If you were to accuse him of sporadic savagery, he would look at you nonplussed. He would tell you that if he didn't battle for his particular strap someone else would and he would be left facing a closed gate.

It has been said that the Times Square shuttle, between the hours of 6 and 1 in the evening, presents the greatest scenes of confusion to be found anywhere in which we are pleased to call a civilized world.

This is a central transfer point, where the hordes of homo-goers change from East Side to West Side trains. The mobs mill back and forth in the tunnels and byways, guided by the inevitable green and black lines and arrows. Now and then you will come upon some poor, unfortunate stranger, with his eyes glued to the painted lines, being buffeted about like a cork on the water.

And while this particular phase of the New Yorker presents a glaring and unforgettable memory to the stranger, there is a tendency to overlook those gestures of civility which transport even the subway burly into the prototype of a "southern gentleman."

The same fellow who jams and crushes you at the subway door will miss a train to help a blind man across a street or direct an old lady to a street car.

Speaking of Manhattan's infrequent chivalrous gestures, I have beheld with my own eyes, within the week . . . a bachelor who takes his neighbor's baby for a ride each afternoon when he returns from his office; a hard-boiled manager who paid a pretty chorine's rent for three weeks, while she was looking for a job, and didn't so much as ask for a dinner date; an up-town "rich-man's son," with a reputation for profligacy, who had his butler look up a dozen poor families and see that they had a merry Christmas; a commuter who leaves flowers every morning at a stand that furnishes blossoms to the friendless in hospitals; and an actor who has appeared to date this season at 76 benefit performances.

A mandarin and sentimental strain runs below the surface of this strange suburb of the rest of America!

Thermometer Test Given Swimmers

Paris (AP)—A thermometer is being used as the test of the truthfulness of those who say they swam the English channel.

Swimming experts in France generally agree that some of the France-to-England navigators could not possibly have stayed in cold water as long as they did.

Both men and women swimmers in France have set the proper channel temperature at 70 degrees Fahrenheit or even a little higher. When swimmers testify to having stayed many hours in water very much colder, these experts say, then there is something wrong.

The French long have regarded channel swim claims with considerable suspicion. They have become outspoken of late and mention names. They offer no proof that the various swimmers rode part way across on boats but they say quite emphatically that no person can stay in 50 degree water for half a day, whether they are greased or not.

Motor Sled Climbs Hills
The trouble of walking back after a good ride down a hill has been obliterated by a motor sled that has just appeared in Germany. It is propelled by a cog-wheel driven by a one and one-half horsepower gasoline motor. On the slide the drive-wheel is disconnected and the sled coasts. Then the engine is operated for the return trip. The sled has made nearly 20 miles an hour on level surfaces, and the footrests are heated by exhaust gas from the engine.

War Profiteers Still Under Fire

Paris—The war is only just beginning for French profiteers. Ten billion francs have been recovered from those who supplied the war materials, much of it in the form of a tax on profits that ran as high as 80 percent but much also under actions for fraud and overcharge.

There were a million and a half war supply contracts and every one of these for a half million francs or more is to be investigated to see if it was regularly and honestly executed.

Probably it will be several years before this is finished and those who sold goods to the government can finally feel that they are out from under fire.

Japan's Stark Favors Girls

The population of Japan increased 383,688 from January 1 to April 1, this year, according to a report made by the statistical bureau of the cabinet, which has decided to issue a population report every three months owing to popular interest in the subject. In the three months births totaled 798,936 and deaths 325,248. The number of girls born was 356,214 and boys 325,718. This makes 99 boy babies to every 100 girl babies. The death rate increased by 25,249 in comparison with the corresponding period of last year.

THEATRES

COMING TO THE RIALTO

Everyone who has taken an interest in attempting to solve mysteries is promised the thrill of a lifetime when "The Cat and the Canary" opens at the feature attraction at the Rialto Theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

"The Cat and the Canary," a Universal production with an all-star cast headed by Laura La Plante, is said by those who have seen its previews to be far the most mysterious mystery ever filmed.

Six people, three women and three men, go with an attorney to a supposed haunted house to hear the reading of a will. The attorney is murdered—each of the six persons might have done the killing.

Which one of them was it—if any—is undiscoverable until the final scene.

"The Cat and the Canary" is a screen adaptation of the greatest stage success of the same name by John Willard. It was directed by Paul Leni, perhaps the most famous of a score of foreign directors who have come to this country in the past two years.

In addition to Miss La Plante, the cast embraces some of the best-known names of filmdom, including among many others, Arthur Edmund Carew, Forrest Stanley, Creighton Hale, Gertrude Astor, George Siegmann, Flora Finch, Martha Mattox and Tully Marshall.

LINED DRAPES.

If your window drapes are of some medium weight material, lining them with sateen in matching shade or the shade of your walls gives them luxurious weight.

Rialto Today

A Mardi Gras and Venetian celebration combined can't be more picturesque and colorful than the circus background that figures in "The Life of Riley," the riotous film comedy co-starring George Sidney and Charlie Murray, coming to the Rialto Theatre today.

Elephants and camels, wild men and bearded women, clowns and hula girls in this sequence vie with a carload of fireworks, exploding among the principal players, a riot and a village fire, and many other comedy elements, in providing laughs and thrills.

Rural comedy has in the past been considered natural mirth material, but in combination with such "exotic" thrills it is doubly effective in "The Life of Riley."

The famous comics of stage and screen, Sidney and Murray, are characterized as rural town fire Chief and Police Chief, respectively, and Sam Hardy, Myrtle Steadman, June Marlowe, Stephen Carr, Edward Davis and Bert Woodruff have interesting supporting roles. E. M. Asher produced the comedy for First National Pictures and it was directed by William Beaudine.

AT THE LYRIC.

Few comedies have come to the screen during the past 12 months that can compare in plot interest or swiftness with "A Kiss in a Taxi," Bebe Daniels' new Paramount starring picture, now showing at the Lyric theatre.

In it, the vivacious comedienne plays Glette, bewitching waitress of the Parisian Montmartre. All patrons seek to kiss her but she is unobtainable, answering each advance with a fresh shower of glassware. Chester Conklin, Maraval, treasurer of the artists' society, has one of the best opportunities of his long mustached career. Douglas Gilmore, Paramount's latest leading man, gives a splendid performance as Lucien. Bebe's sweetheart.

"A Kiss in a Taxi" bears the stamp of sterling comedy not only because of its cast but also due to the capable direction it received from Director Clarence Badger who seems quite satisfied to create one continual line of Successful farces for Famous Players-Lasky.

COMING MONDAY.

Buffalo Bill, Jr., has been one of the luckiest motion picture stars in Filmland, for he has never had a poor story. Obtaining the good ones is the greatest trouble confronting any film star, but Bill has been exceptionally successful, due, no doubt, to his ability as a cowboy star and his natural, born understanding as a showman.

All of the pictures in which Buffalo Bill, Jr., has appeared have been fast action, full of comedy pictures. And it is a coincidence that every one of his big hits has included a record-breaking fight. His newest picture, "The Obligin Buckaroo," at the Lyric theater Monday and Tuesday, is no exception; in fact he has never had a tougher fight in any picture wherein he has starred.

Flapper Is Patron Saint of Chemists

London (AP)—The flapper is the patron saint of chemistry, says Dr. E. E. Armstrong, a leading scientist.

"The flapper has rings on her fingers and synthetic stones wrought by chemists," Dr. Armstrong declared at a dinner of the British Association of Chemists.

"She has bells on her toes—that is to say, footwear—made of artificial skins—also an accomplishment of the chemists."

Then the doctor spoke in hushed voice. "She has mysterious 'undies,' too," he went on, "the material of which were one of the greatest achievements of the chemists."

"And if we survey the flapper more in detail, as it is permissible to survey flappers, the very sheen of her hair is perhaps synthetic—and on her face are the lingerings of the products of, perhaps, the British Dyestuffs Corporation."

Almost everything which the flapper wears today for the admiring view of the public, added the scientist, even to bracelets and bangles, is the work of the chemists' shop.

ed of hers. It was queer how swiftly time passed. There was George, striding down the path with a suitcase bumping against his knees, and a woman's blue, fur-trimmed coat over his arm. Dear George! He had probably brought her enough clothes to last for weeks, and she needed only a hat and coat to make her escape in. She still had no idea where she was going— "Here you are!" George boomed cheerfully when he had unlocked the door of the coupe. "I hope none of the neighbors are watching. They'll think we are eloping. But I thought if you were really determined to go away by yourself for a while you'd need a suitcase. Hotels are so finicky about baggage, you know. Can you get into this coat without stepping out of the car? There's one of those soft felt hats in the pocket. It's an old coat of Velma's. She'll never miss it."

A STORE FOR EVERYBODY

since 1888

The NEW MARK of an OLD STORE

A TRADE MARK or an insignia taken by itself is hardly more than a mark of identification. It is like a man's initials. An intimate knowledge of the man they represent is necessary before they mean anything.

So it is with a store. A trade mark tells people that the goods or the advertisement bearing that mark is from that store. In the people's minds lies the interpretation of what it represents.

The Fair Store takes pleasure in presenting its new mark. Not merely as an easy means of identification, but also as a mark of quality. Back of this insignia, are years of honest dealings—of earnest effort to serve its customers well. Since 1888 it has been "a store for everybody" furnishing quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices.

With its meaning already fixed in the minds of the people, the new trade mark at once becomes an old land mark of Fair Store quality.

A Happy New Year!

A NOTHER year has slipped into the past: to some a year of happiness and gain; to others, alas, of grief and loss; to some a year of great accomplishment; to others, of striving nobly but in vain.

IN GREETING YOU AS IS OUR LONG TIME CUSTOM, WE WOULD SHARE WITH YOU THIS GOLDEN THOUGHT—FOR WHEN THE ONE GREAT SCORER COMES TO WRITE AGAINST YOUR NAME HE WRITES—NOT THAT YOU WON OR LOST—BUT HOW YOU PLAYED THE GAME.

We wish all good things to be yours—aye, better still, that when the Game is played out, the One Great Scorer may write across your name the blessed words—
