SPARTAN FIVE BEATS DETROIT

State Basketeers Loop 4 Points During Overtime Period

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 13.—(P)—Michigan State college Spartans sloshed four points through the hoop tonight in the five-minute extra period to down the Detroit university Titans, 27 to 23, in the best basketball game seen here this year.

Detroit's impregnable defense broke up the Spartan short pass of four early in the second half and from then until the end of the overtime period it was a battle with man against man. Detroit was weak with its shots while the Spartans made wild passes at times similar to good school ball. With the score 10 to 3 against them at the half, the Titans came back strong at the end of the game. Ability of the visitors to make free throws accounted for eight points in the second half. Butcher starred with four while he, Dowd and Brazil each made two field baskets in this period.

As overtime play began, Dickeson made his only shot of the game to break the count. Two free throws by Colvin and Felt added to the Spartan advantage.

"UPHEAVAL" IN YEAR, BELIEF

Investigation of College Athletics Now Under Way.

New York—College athletics must wait about a year for the "upheaval" in their midst predicted recently by George Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois.

The study of college athletics in the United States and Canada which is being carried on by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and which Mr. Huff said would produce this somewhat startling result, will not be available for about a year. Begun in January, 1926, the enquiry is making good progress, says Dr. Howard J. ### LOUGHRAN IS REAL THREAT

Jack Britton Wouldn't Bet on Gene Against Tommy

BY HENRY L. FARRELL, NEA Service Sports Writer. You may get ready to laugh this off. In fact, before it is sprung, chuckles, jeers and assorted brands of raspberries can be distinguished in the making in the vicinity of the Tunney estate.

Such a discussion was held recently. Present were a national, two or three ranking managers and some well-known fighters. If there was anything decided in the discussion it was that Tunney would have to age down to his challenger as Dempsey did and that the process in a clean living man and hard worker like Tunney might take considerable time.

"What do you think of it, Jack?" was asked of one of the listeners who, as is characteristic with him, hadn't said a word. "Tunney's better than any of those fellows they're talking about now," Britton answered. "There's only one fighter I wouldn't bet against to beat Tunney—Tommy Loughran."

"Loughran was almost crying," Britton told me. "He said Tunney was the luckiest guy in the world in getting the first shot at Dempsey. He said, and he is no boaster, that he had beaten Dempsey with the little gloves and could have stopped him in the training camp, that he knew it and that the camp knew it. Loughran said he felt he was the unluckiest fellow in the world to know absolutely that he could beat Dempsey and that he couldn't get the chance to do it for all that big money."

"That experience," Britton said, "no doubt will make Loughran, if he has what I think he has. It gave him the confidence to go out and take every fighter offered to him, and it gave him the conviction that if Tunney couldn't stop Dempsey a year later when he was much worse, that Tunney was not such a wow. 'I may be wrong. I am not picking Loughran as the next champion, but I will not bet that he won't beat Tunney.'"

"You will find in looking them over that Loughran is following the same path that Tunney had to follow. A hard road to get recognition. Tunney had to build himself up physically and fight to get a reputation, and Loughran is having to do the same thing. 'They've both got all the confidence in the world, they're both clean living, but Tunney will be forced by circumstances to lay up and Loughran can keep going and getting better and better. 'You may think that Loughran is a second-rater, but I'll tell you that a second-rater who has been fighting right along is a dangerous man for any champion who has been out a long time and has to step in and fight one great fight. 'I thought, and still think, that Dempsey was the greatest of the heavyweight champions I have seen, and I have seen a lot of them in my time. I thought that Tunney was only an ordinary good fighter. But I bet on Tunney to beat Dempsey at Philadelphia and I was ashamed to bet on Tunney in Philadelphia just because Dempsey had been out of the ring too long. I backed my judgment against the knowledge that Dempsey could knock out anyone with one or two punches, and against my knowledge that Tunney has one bad fault—he doesn't duck, and anyone that holds his head up for Dempsey is taking a terrible chance. 'Before the fight in Philadelphia I saw Bert Levinsky. He used to be in Morgan's string with me and we are old friends. He's also a smart better. He asked me who I liked and I told him Tunney and he told me he was taking all the long price money he could get the same way. I told him I wasn't betting as much as he was and cautioned him about the way Tunney stood up and the way Dempsey could hit, even if his legs were gone. 'But then told me that he had been talking to Tommy Loughran. Loughran had been working with Dempsey and, you remember, the papers told how he had made a monkey of Dempsey in the sparring ring and that they had had some private workouts. 'Loughran was almost crying,' Britton told me. 'He said Tunney was the luckiest guy in the world in getting the first shot at Dempsey. He said, and he is no boaster, that he had beaten Dempsey with the little gloves and could have stopped him in the training camp, that he knew it and that the camp knew it. Loughran said he felt he was the unluckiest fellow in the world to know absolutely that he could beat Dempsey and that he couldn't get the chance to do it for all that big money.'" working up to big bouts, but those big fellows have to be just right for that one fight. "They say that Loughran can't hint, but didn't they say the same about Tunney? ### Swedish King Has Reigned 20 Years

Stockholm—King Gustaf of Sweden will celebrate 20 years on the throne on next June 16—his seventieth birthday and the completion of 20 years on the throne.

King Alfonso and Queen Isabella of Spain are expected to accept an invitation to visit him on that occasion, returning an official visit made by King Gustaf in Madrid last Spring. Members of the Danish, Norwegian, and Belgian royal families probably will be present also to extend their greetings to the aging monarch.

The twentieth anniversary of the king's ascension to the throne actually fell on last December 8, but since King Gustaf preferred to combine the celebration with that planned for his birthday, the day passed without any official observance.

IN NEW YORK

New York—Wall Street, even as Broadway, has its "interesting types" and personalities whose names, faces and eccentricities are known wherever money talks.

Because Wall Street operates without the blaring of publicity bands, few of these are ever heard of outside the walls of the business world. Yet here are men who weekly deal in fortunes that would stagger even the exaggerated salaries of the movie celebrities.

Glancing down on the turbulent floor of the Exchange, almost any day, you can see for instance, James Lowell, whose grandfather James Russell Lowell, sat quietly in New England dreaming immortal verses.

You can see the youngish Vernon Foster, with his endless array of fancy cravats; the same Vernon Foster who was shot down from the clouds, flying over the German lines. Unmoved in the bedlam of shouting, you will see the tall figure of Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., of the historic Stuyvesant Fish's. You will see Winthrop Burr, "watchdog of the Exchange, but never appears in them himself.

You'll see, within half an hour, enough characters for all the novels and plays you ever wish to write. And scarce one of them will conform to the popular movie idea.

If you venture across the street to the office of one of the conservative big concerns, a slightly bald, graying man, will sit you down solemnly and just as solemnly tell you that the average American has the wrong idea of Wall Street. He will tell you that all the wild tales of gambling that go about; all the melodramatic and blood-curdling tales are unfair. Wall Street, he will go on, should be looked upon as the money center.

"Here," he will tell you, "the crops of the nation are marketed. The great deals are financed. The great industries are operated and get their money. Here the soundest investments in the world are to be found. That is the real Wall Street."

***
And, if you are like me, you will leave in a hazy whirl, trying to believe this mad dream is real. And, picking up an evening newspaper on the subway, I find that "trading was quiet this afternoon on the Exchange!"

MISS ELSIE KUUYA.
Miss Elsie Kuuya, 20, passed away at a local hospital Friday morning at 11 o'clock, following a serious attack of ruptured appendix. Miss Kuuya was admitted at the local institution in a critical condition a few days ago and little hope was held for her recovery when she came to this city.

Her mother was at the bedside when the end came.

Miss Kuuya is survived by her mother, Mrs. H. Kuuya of Rock, two sisters and three brothers.

Having been instructed to bring home cheese, eggs, lettuce, and Pillsbury's Pancake Flour, Ernest McGroucher remembers the pancake flour.

You can depend on it—he'll never miss a chance for Pillsbury's pancakes. There's no breakfast a man likes as well. They're even better than the old-fashioned kind—light, tender, delicious, easy to digest. And they're far easier to make—simply add water or milk to Pillsbury's Pancake Flour and bake—in no time you'll have the finest pancakes you've ever tasted!

O. R. Palm of this city officiating.

Burial will be in the Rapid River cemetery.

Hansen and Jensen Co. Office Robbed
Forty dollars in currency was taken from a cash drawer in the office of the Hansen and Jensen company's fish market, 116 North Third street, sometime during the noon hour yesterday.

Entrance into the building was made during the time the members of the office force were absent for lunch. Apparently, the thief gained his way into the office by inserting a thin rod through a crack in the door to release a bar, which held the door fast. Police are investigating the case.

him a minnow, and a "pot-bellied minnow, at that." A suggestion from Gloucester: Lower the eye about half an inch; shorten the tail a bit and make it somewhat narrower; extend the lower lip a bit farther forward and the belly a bit farther aft; add a few fins to the body, and then, Mr. Goodwin, the alleged replica of a codfish which the 1928 auto number plates carry will really look something like a cod.

SALESMAN $AM

The Piffle Hook

DON'T FORGET TO SEND CASH WITH COUPON. They had tried for hours to converse with the man who sat, restlessly on the edge of his chair. Interpreters by the dozen had failed. And, since the visitor had come all the way to Escanaba from Afghanistan for the purpose of placing an order for two tons of frog's eggs to be used as a substitute for tapioca, it was absolutely essential that somebody inform him of the location of the dotted line.

The Blazing Horizon

Those gray slits of eyes were Tom Benton's; there was no mistaking them. Tony Harrison had seen them, nine years before, glaring at the lifeless form of a man in a little saloon in Caldwell, and he had not forgotten them. And now he could hear Benton's voice come faintly through the glass, high-pitched, threatening, as he glared at Morrison in the chair: "All right; I'll give you one more chance to open it. I'll count ten. Then—" and he deliberately broke off and waved the revolver in his hand in a significant gesture.

OUT OUR WAY

DEMOCRATS GO SOUTH.

The Democratic National Committee, at the instigation of the backers of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, voted to hold the party's 1928 nominating convention in Houston, Tex. This, it is believed by many political observers, will insure Smith the votes in the convention of several southern state delegations which, up to this time, had been doubtful. It appears to be a clever political move and it may have an important bearing on the outcome.

Under the two-thirds rule governing Democratic nominating conventions, the successful candidate must have the votes of two-thirds of the state delegations. One-third of the states, with a little help, can block a nomination. Granting that Al Smith is the favorite candidate of a large number of Democratic strongholds, it was regarded, a few months ago, as extremely doubtful whether he could muster the necessary two-thirds. Apparently, however, his strength is being felt now in districts where, until recently, he was regarded as having little chance.

THE DEVELOPMENT BUREAU.

The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau is starting another season of activities that will do much to attract tourists to the Upper Peninsula during the vacation months that will be at hand before long. It is indicated by the work accomplished at the meeting of directors in Marquette recently. There is no denying that the Bureau is accomplishing much in the way of promoting the Peninsula and consequently its work should be encouraged.

SYMPATHY MISDIRECTED.

Considerable sympathy was poured out, yesterday, on Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder as the nation read the details of their execution in New York as payment for the brutal murder of Albert Snyder. Very little sympathy, however, has expressed for the murdered husband who was choked with picture wire and beaten with an cast iron sash weight while he was asleep. The motive, too, it should not be forgotten, was upwards of $20,000 in life insurance.

NEW NATIONAL PARK.

Hayden, Colo.—A national park embracing canyons on the Green River and its tributary, the Fear, and surrounding territory in northwestern Colorado and eastern Utah is under consideration by the federal bureau of national parks. The park would include an area of approximately 800 square miles, in which lie petrified forest and scenic mountain trails.

SPRING ENSEMBLES.

Amber and tortoise shell hat buckles, belt buckles and pump buckles form a new quartet in spring ensembles.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Macfleck Copyright 1927 by Douglas Macfleck JUST AS OF OLD. The snow lies deep On hills and streams, And sound asleep The whole world seems, And yet I know, In spite of cold, The buds will blow Just as of old. I had a friend, He went away, A summer's day, Yet why despair? The tale's not told, And friends will care Just as of old. Some day the rest Won't seem worth while, The idle jest, The fickle smile, A friend will long, A hand to hold, Faithful and strong, Just as of old. And when you do Come back, my dear, When winter's through, And spring is here, Yes, when again Our arms unfold, You'll find me then Just as of old.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT. Reginald Denny will be seen at the Delft again today in his latest farce, "Out All Night," which Delft patrons yesterday voted one of the funniest pictures the tireless comedian has ever made. Star though he is, Mr. Denny has to troupe to dominate the picture, for the supporting cast contains such capable players as Marian Nixon, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Dorothy Earle, Dan Mason, and Wheeler Oakman. The work of these adds much to the merriment of the whole show. Denny, as the man about town who marries a cute little ballet dancer, is delightful always, and the story injects him into all manner of strange and embarrassing situations. The complications that involve Denny provide more side-splitting mirth than has been screened for some time. Masquerading as a ship's physician, he embarks with his newlywed wife who is a show trouper, and their trip to London is a series of embarrassing maneuvers so that he may see her. The wedding must be kept a secret because of a clause in Molly O'Day's contract which calls for a forfeit of $100,000 if she should marry. It all ends in a mad farce in mid-ocean, chuck full of laughs and entertainment.

AT THE STRAND. A cast of unusual merit appears on the screen of the Strand theatre where "Poker Faces" is the feature. Laura La Plante and Edward Everett Horton, both comedy stars in their own names; George Slegmann, one of the most famous types in the industry; Tom A. Ricketts, an old timer of great ability; Tom O'Brien, famous for his work in "The Big Parade," and Dorothy Revier, one of the really beautiful actresses of the screen, make up this unusual cast. Harry Pollard, noted comedy director, produced the picture.

Work On Hockey Pen Completed Installation of the hockey pen at St. Patrick's church rink has been completed. City Manager T. F. Kessler announced yesterday, and upon the first approach of colder weather the rink will be flooded and put in shape for the playing of hockey. The continued thaw has softened all the rinks of the city, making skating conditions poor.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Fox, Coyote, Owl, Hawk and Mink Prey on Fleet Footed Hare.

BY BEN EAST (In Lansing Journal) Fear—fear—fear! Flee—flee—flee! These are the keynotes in the life of Wabasso, the snowshoe rabbit, most numerous of all the dwellers of the north woods of Michigan. No animal of the wilderness is more haunted by terror, none has a greater host of foes.

Menos for Family

BY SISTER MARY. Breakfast—Stewed dried apricots, whole wheat cereal, cream, codfish puffs, corn bread, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of onion soup, spinach and egg salad, chocolate bread pudding, milk, tea. Dinner—Pot roast of veal, baked squash, tomato jelly salad, date and nut pudding, milk, coffee.

Chocolate Bread Pudding. 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 2 cups scalded milk, 1 square bitter chocolate, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 tbsip butter, 1-2 tsp vanilla, few grains salt.

Pack crumbs firmly in cup to measure. Soak bread in milk for 30 minutes. Melt chocolate over hot water, all half the sugar and enough milk taken from the bread and milk to make thin enough to pour. Beat egg yolk until thick and lemon colored. Stir into bread and milk and add chocolate mixture, remaining sugar, melted butter, salt and vanilla. Mix thoroughly and fold in white of egg beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake 50 minutes in a slow oven. Serve warm with whipped cream flavored very slightly with peppermint. One drop of oil of peppermint will be sufficient to flavor 1 cup of whipped cream. Use 2 tbsips powdered sugar to sweeten lightly.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, eggs poached in milk on graham toast, milk, coffee. Luncheon—Creamed celery and oysters on toast, baked potatoes, canned pears, sugar cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Lamb stew, baked squash, grape fruit and cabbage salad, everyday steamed pudding, milk, coffee.

Hot puddings are justly popular during the cold weather and when we find one as economical and delicious as the everyday pudding served in the dinner suggested it's well worth keeping as a "stock" dessert.

Everyday Steamed Pudding. Four tablespoons lard, 1-2 cup

By day the goshawk is to Wabasso what Hush-wings, the owl, is after night has fallen, although supply for the hares the big gray-breasted hawk holds a fondness for grouse and other winged prey and so does not depend entirely on a rabbit diet.

Coyote Dressed, Too. Coyotes are almost as deadly enemies of the snowshoe rabbit as the fox in regions where they have become abundant although they are seldom as numerous as their smaller red cousins.

The weasel and mink and in the far north their larger kinsmen the marten and fisher are enemies of Wabasso that would be thought powerless to overtake and kill so fast a quarry. If it was a matter of speed the big rabbit would easily outdistance any of them for the members of the weasel tribe are not feet of foot. However, they make up in persistence what they lack in speed and once one of them takes the trail of a luckless rabbit he is likely to follow it to a bloody ending. Especially is this true in deep snow for the rabbit exhausts himself by running while his pursuer, guided along the track by his unfailing nose, plods steadily on until the rabbit can run no farther.

Fortunately the deep snow is not the hindrance to Wabasso that might be expected. If it were his tribe would soon be exterminated by the host of enemies that follow him through the winter thickets.

Skips Over Drifts. Nature, however, has provided that the rabbit can shall not be wiped away entirely and so she has given to this hare an excellent pair of snowshoes with which to run on the deep drifts of the northern winter. The soft, thick pad of fur on the bottom of Wabasso's hind feet spreads out beneath his weight and serves as well as a pair of moosehide webs to hold him up on the lightest, dryest snow. In this way he is able to skip lightly over the drifts and leave behind many a pursuer at whose mercy he would be otherwise.

In addition to all these enemies that attack him from without, Wabasso has others, from which there is no escape, that strike from within his own body. He is the victim of more forms of parasites than any other wild animal. Tapeworms and stomach worms prey upon him while from without he is harassed by hordes of blue ticks, the larva of the warble fly and other pests.

Many scientists believe that these parasites are in large measure responsible for the plague that sweeps the ranks of the northern hares every few years, all but exterminating them over wide areas. In spite of all foes to which men and the hounds have of recent years been added, Wabasso manages to thrive and populate the thickets more densely than any other wilderness dweller.

STANDARDIZE CHEESE. Milwaukee — Standardization has struck the American cheese industry and efforts are being made to reduce to a minimum the varying sizes, not only of cheeses, but cheese boxes, hoops, bandages and other supplies. It is believed that if the 400,000,000 pounds of cheese produced yearly can be prepared for the trade in less than the 10 or more present sizes the industry will save time and money.

PASTEL COSTUMES. Worth is making his winter sports costumes in delicate shades of angora and other soft woolsens. Fox is dyed to match the pale blues, greens, pinks and yellows.

Plenty of appetizing butter and bread gives energy, as well as sturdiness and is heating to the whole system. Winter Takes Toll of Lakes Shipping

Duluth, Minn.—Many a tale of horror, sealed by unwritten law in the minds of tight-lipped sailors, has gone into the ghost record of Great Lakes shipping during last few winters because icy gales, treading quickly on the heels of autumn, have caught skippers and owners unawares.

Last year ship owners lost hundreds of thousands of dollars when winter locked twenty-odd freighters in the ice in lower Lake Superior.

This year boisterous winds roaring down from the north have caused virtually as great havoc and added many stories of heroism to the saga of men who sail the freighters of the inland seas.

Lake Superior this year bore the brunt of the devastation that saw 600-foot steamers tossed about by huge waves.

Courageous men are those who sail the lakes after Dec. 1, for after that date insurance companies consider the risk so great that rates are doubled, making only emergency cargoes profitable. This year, the gales were so severe that after December 13 insurance agents refused to gamble at all, cancelling all forms of protection.

Give a seasoned sailor his choice of bucking storms on the Great Lakes or on the high seas and we will choose the seas. A storm may be run out on the almost boundless ocean, but on the comparatively smaller Great Lakes only luck and expert seamanship counts.

Early this winter 19 men of the Steamer Lambton, their vessel beached amidships, reached shore after chopping through two feet of ice encasing the vessel. Then they had to walk waist-deep through snow several miles to a logging camp.

Coast guardsmen, after a gripping 48-hour fight with a near-hurricane, rescued 25 men from the Canadian Steamer Altodoc, which had pounded apart in the middle. The crew of a tug, after equally heroic efforts saved the crew of 20 stranded on the wrecked steamer Agawa.

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY

Somewhere, in one of the half dozen states that are allowed to produce presidents of these United States, there is a growing youth who one day will walk into the White House.

What is his background? What is he doing at this moment? What is his family life? What are the circumstances that formulate his future conduct?

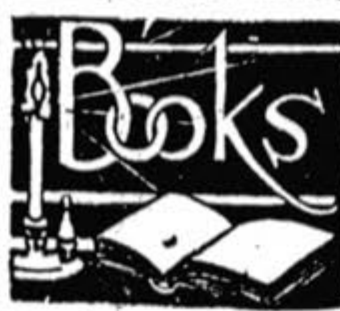

Intriguing questions these; and an intriguing idea. It's what Fannie Hurst has dared to tackle in her latest novel, "A President Is Born" (Harpers). "There," says Fannie—pointing out into the great middle West—"but for the grace of politics, goes the greatest president since Lincoln."

Miss Hurst has picked for her president little David Schuyler. She brings him into the world during a family dinner in the first chapter and at page 484, sends him from the home town in Centralia, Ohio, to start his career at Springfield. He is then about 18. His background has been built.

Being a seventh son, and thus mystically endowed by the author, he is seen in the family circle as no ordinary, every-day Schuyler, but one who has something big in store.

He does not become president during Miss Hurst's story. But she has a novel device for projecting him into the presidency. This is done by a series of foot-notes, presumed to have been taken from a family diary.

When, in Miss Hurst's main theme, she is telling how he visited the Chinese laundries, played Indian, and defended a negro servant when a lad, there appears a foot-note telling you that when he became a great president these adventures affected his humanitarian viewpoints on least.

the Asiatic, negro and Indian questions.

Had we ever caught Miss Hurst being satirical, sardonic, or even playfully bitter, we might have suspected her at these moments. If the judgment of presidents is to be swayed by childhood games when world problems are at stake—but well, maybe they are; and maybe it needs prejudices thus gathered, and maybe the future Lincolns will thus be created. We have a feeling that, as the world grows more involved, something far more grown up and mature will be required.

However, thanks to the fine library of David's brother, Henry, we learn that the youth had read Doughty's "Arabia Deserta," and had pored over the actions of bees and ants and such. If he took to heart the life of bees, as he did his Indian games, then we at this moment are headed either for Communism or Fascism—as any good bee student will tell you.

As for David's family it was, to say the least, an involved and mixed tribe. The mother possessed a great basic strength. The father was sturdy, prideful, built of the honest faith and old conventions. So were all the elders.

Of the juniors there was the altruistic and philosophical Henry, whose influence certainly should have been helpful, since it was so mixed with tolerance and civilized viewpoint.

There was Steve, who went in for gin at a period when gin-drinking was not a social asset. He even dared get his little blonde cousin drunk and fall in love with her, precipitating a family crisis.

The other family crisis came when the senior Schuyler's fortunes were swept away through loans made an old friend. The family fortunes toppled and Dave was unable to get necessary schooling. But he goes right along and everyone in the family is sure he will carry the colors to eventual victory.

Altogether, we were not greatly convinced by the book. More than one reader is apt to be bored. Yet, we feel, the book will be greatly discussed. The topic demands debate. We feel, even, that it may sell like hot-cakes, since there is so much in it that makes for popularity; puppy-love; boy hero, kiddo attachment, and all that. And Miss Hurst can write forcefully, even when we like her least.

We have a feeling that, as the world grows more involved, something far more grown up and mature will be required.

However, thanks to the fine library of David's brother, Henry, we learn that the youth had read Doughty's "Arabia Deserta," and had pored over the actions of bees and ants and such. If he took to heart the life of bees, as he did his Indian games, then we at this moment are headed either for Communism or Fascism—as any good bee student will tell you.

As for David's family it was, to say the least, an involved and mixed tribe. The mother possessed a great basic strength. The father was sturdy, prideful, built of the honest faith and old conventions. So were all the elders.

Of the juniors there was the altruistic and philosophical Henry, whose influence certainly should have been helpful, since it was so mixed with tolerance and civilized viewpoint.

There was Steve, who went in for gin at a period when gin-drinking was not a social asset. He even dared get his little blonde cousin drunk and fall in love with her, precipitating a family crisis.

The other family crisis came when the senior Schuyler's fortunes were swept away through loans made an old friend. The family fortunes toppled and Dave was unable to get necessary schooling. But he goes right along and everyone in the family is sure he will carry the colors to eventual victory.

Altogether, we were not greatly convinced by the book. More than one reader is apt to be bored. Yet, we feel, the book will be greatly discussed. The topic demands debate. We feel, even, that it may sell like hot-cakes, since there is so much in it that makes for popularity; puppy-love; boy hero, kiddo attachment, and all that. And Miss Hurst can write forcefully, even when we like her least.

the Asiatic, negro and Indian questions.

Had we ever caught Miss Hurst being satirical, sardonic, or even playfully bitter, we might have suspected her at these moments. If the judgment of presidents is to be swayed by childhood games when world problems are at stake—but well, maybe they are; and maybe it needs prejudices thus gathered, and maybe the future Lincolns will thus be created. Willard Hutchinson Scores 67; Card Is Four Below Par

Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A sensational 67, four under par, placed Willard Hutchinson, Pasadena golfer, at the forefront of the field today in the 18-hole opening round of the $2,500 Long Beach open golf tournament.

George von Elm, Los Angeles, trailed two strokes behind with a 69, and five others bettered par with 70's. They were Bill Mehlhorn, John Black of Oakland, Cal., Leonard Schmutte of Lima, O., Ernest Martin of Los Angeles, and Alec Wilmont, unattached.

Several nationally famous golfers were noted out of par figures by six golfers who turned in the January score. The latter were Dick Laneros of Long Beach, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, Tony Manner of New York City, Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., Victor Owens of Palos Verdes, Cal., and Hutt Martin of Reno, Nev.

The group scoring 72 included Ken Martin of Detroit, Grant Halstead, unattached, Willie Hunter of Los Angeles, Jule Blanton of Toledo, Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., Ed Dudley of Hollywood, MacDonald Smith and Charles Seaver, 16 year old tournament "baby" of Los Angeles.

Al Watrous of Grand Rapids let his strokes pile up to 74, while a 75 accumulated for Bobby Cruikshank of New York.

Big Variation in Prices of Gas in Michigan Cities

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14. (Special)—Gasoline prices in the state of Michigan range all the way from 16 cents a gallon to 24.7 cents for straight run and high test gas. Muskegon and Grand Rapids have been selling gasoline for as low as 16 cents a gallon for straight run and Adrian has the high mark of 24.7 for high test gas.

This variation in price throughout Michigan was revealed in a check-up by the American Automobile Association through its representatives in each Michigan city.

Every city in Michigan was asked to report, among them were Adrian, Alpena, Escanaba, Petoskey, Rogers City, Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie. Of these only Sault Ste. Marie and Adrian reported.

The price for straight run gas in Adrian was 19.7 cents per gallon while high test reached 24.7. At Sault Ste. Marie the straight run gas sold for 20.1 while high test was exactly two cents per gallon more expensive or 23.1.

The lowest price in the country on the date of this check-up was ten cents per gallon for straight run and 13 cents for high test at Peoria, Ill. and the highest was 27 cents for straight run and 29 cents for high test at Phoenix, Ariz.

Real Estate Conditions Normal In U. S.—Babson

Babson Discusses the Purchasing and Renting of Houses
Babson Park, Mass., Jan. 13.—Roger W. Babson was today interviewed on the real estate situation, apart from the question of new building. He feels much better as to the land situation than he does as to certain forms of building. His complete statement is as follows:

Land Supply Limited
"It is a common saying that there is still a lot of land out doors. This is true, there is a lot of land outdoors and it is very evident when one travels about this great continent. In the United States, in Canada, and in Mexico there is a tremendous amount of land available. On the other hand, there is only so much land and there never will be any more. Furthermore, good land which does not need drainage or irrigation, and which is handy to communication, is especially limited. It will always be possible to erect more buildings. The supply of buildings will never give out, but the available supply of land is constantly growing less."

"However, purchases of real estate should not be based on the above idea, but one should seek out states, cities, and streets which are temporarily depressed, but which are in line for future development. For instance, were I to purchase farm land today I would go to Iowa, Nebraska and those portions of the central west which have specifically suffered during the past five years. Were I to purchase city property, I should go to Seattle or some other northwestern city which has not yet fully recovered from the boom it had a decade ago. If I were to purchase land in some city, it would probably be in the poorest section of that city, the so-called slum district, a section where an automobile artery is to be put through sooner or later. There are always bargains in real estate somewhere. There is a wave movement for farm lands, also for city lands, while there is a similar movement for speculative lands. The law of action and reaction is always operative. The important thing is to get in at the bottom and get out at the top, although unfortunately, most people do the reverse of this."

Where Real Estate is Active
"If I were to describe the present real estate situation in one word, the word would be 'stability.' This viewpoint is substantiated by reports which I have received from the Chambers of Commerce in ninety-five representative cities throughout the United States. In answer to the question of how realty conditions are today, thirty-eight of these cities reported it as fair, twenty-nine of them reported good, and twenty-eight as slow. In other words, in far the greater number of cities, realty conditions do not show much change and are designated as fair. Reduced to a percentage basis, this means that out of a total of ninety-five cities, 40 per cent of them are fair, 30 1/2 per cent are good and 29 1/2 per cent are poor. One must take into account, in judging realty conditions now that it is the middle of winter and only those places that are noted as winter resorts would normally expect to have very active real estate conditions. This seasonal influence is perhaps as pronounced in real estate as in any other line of business. Spring and Fall are normally the active seasons in the real estate market."

"I am particularly impressed with the continuation of active realty conditions in Texas, in the face of a generally lethargic condition for many sections of the country. Among the more active cities in Texas, from a real estate point of view, are Houston, Galveston, and Beaumont. In Oklahoma, Oklahoma City and Tulsa report active conditions. In fact, the Southwest as a whole is showing up relatively well, both with respect to general business and real estate. Real estate is reported as either good or excellent in other cities as follows: Lansing (Michigan), Milwaukee (Wisconsin), Toledo and Cincinnati (Ohio), Peoria (Illinois), Hartford (Connecticut), Pittsburgh and Chester (Pennsylvania), Wilmington (Delaware), Chattanooga (Tennessee), Winston-Salem and Charlotte (North Carolina), Montgomery and Mobile (Alabama), and Hutchinson (Kansas).

Rents and Real Estate
"In connection with this study of the real estate situation, it is interesting to note the conditions existing at present with regard to the renting of houses. From ninety-five reports from these Chambers of Commerce, I find that forty-one report a decrease in the number of houses for rent, while thirty-two report an increase and twenty-two indicate that there has been no changes recently. This analysis would seem to indicate that the supply of houses has on the whole pretty well caught up with the demand. I am also of the opinion that builders are beginning to realize that the best policy is to secure occupants before building new houses. An interesting point which I found true in my study of these reports is that the houses available for rent are, in most cases, old houses and that new houses are pretty well filled at present. "If I were to purchase real estate today I would not only look for a section which is now depressed, but I would look in the suburbs of a city where land can be purchased by the acre rather than by the foot. Of course, everyone who intends to purchase real estate is interested in two things, namely, location and price. As it is impossible to discuss here in a general way the first of these two, I shall only give the results of my study of land costs as I found them to exist in different sections. A majority of reports show, for land by the acre nearest to the cities, a price of around $500. In most cities, good land can be obtained at a cost of from $500 to $1000, although often times one must expect to pay considerably more for particularly well located property. I am informed that in parts of the South and Southwest good land near to cities can be purchased at around $75 or $100 an acre and I presume that such land at similar prices is available in certain other sections of the country."

Real Estate and Airplanes
"People have not yet realized the tremendous effect on real estate values which the airplane some day is to have. Airplanes are getting much newspaper space today, but as yet have not become an economic factor. When, however, the helicopter is perfected, which will enable an airplane to rise vertically from the roof of any building and safely fall vertically at any point, then and then only will we enter an airplane era. The time is coming when airplanes will run in strings, like cars in a train, so that the engines or wings on one break down, the others would pull it along. The effect of such development will be as great on land values as was the building of highways and railroads one hundred years ago."

"Of course, real estate values are inevitably linked with general business. Hence, as general business today is slightly below normal, as shown by the Babson chart to be 2 per cent below normal, so real estate activity is about the same. There are no booms anywhere. On the other hand, all sections of the United States are doing a normal real estate business. Real estate in Canada seems to be picking up. I believe that land within fifteen miles of Canadian cities like Calgary is a good purchase at the present time. There probably also are some great bargains in Mexico, although those of course, are necessarily speculative. Statistics indicate that certain lines of building are now overdone and we must wait a while for the demand to catch up with the supply. Land values, however, in most sections of the country, are in fairly stable condition.

STOCK PRICES MOVE HIGHER

STOCK SALES AVERAGES. Twenty Twenty Date Industrials Railroads Friday -- 186.19 144.26 Thursday -- 184.93 145.01 Week ago -- 187.56 147.41 Year ago -- 143.53 128.68 High 1925 -- 188.36 147.41 Low 1928 -- 184.79 144.76 Total stock sales 2,159,300 shares. X-Ex-dividend 1,375. X-Ex-dividend 075.

New York, Jan. 13--(AP)--The stock market resumed its march to higher ground today with speculative interests shifting from the industrials to the rails and back to the industrials again. Friday the 13th kept many speculations traders out of the market, the day's sales running around 2,150,000 shares, but it had no jinx for at least a dozen pools, which marked up their favorites, 2 to 9 points. Week-end profit-taking accounted for most of the soft losses.

Credit conditions were again unchanged. Banks called a few million in loans, but call money was plentiful at 4 per cent. The increase of $9,500,000 in federal reserve broker loans to a new high record, apparently had little market influence, although it brought forth a repetition of advice from some of the conservative commission houses.

Rails assumed the leadership of the market in the early afternoon, but the buying flurry in several of the high-grade issues failed to follow through. U. S. Steel common and General Motors each closed fractionally higher after a day of backing up 1 1/2 points, but the other commodities moved within narrow limits. Commodity markets were again mixed.

Except for a drop of about 7 points in Spanish pesetas to around 17.03 cents, the leading foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.87 16-16.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR CHURCH UNDER WAY

Announcement of a number of improvements now in progress at Alice Memorial M. E. church, and at the parsonage, was made yesterday. A large hotel range, a hot water tank and a kitchen sink are being installed in the basement of the church, which will increase the serving facilities in connection with social activities at the church and which will give the church basement a modern kitchen which compares well with that of any large city church. Installation of a modern kitchen sink at the parsonage is also under way. A donation to the church, made by an anonymous giver, of a large victrola and a variety of records, is another gift which is much appreciated.

Saint and Sinner

Because she did not want to live, Faith, during her intervals of consciousness that first morning in the hospital, stubbornly clamped her jaws and lips against the medicines which the nurse tried to give her. But she could not prevent the injection of medicine by hypodermic, nor the gradual reducing of her fever by ice cold sponge baths and ice caps. "Your husband's coming, Mrs. Hathaway," Dr. Kink bent over her to say. "Your husband, Bob, Miss Sutton says you were calling for 'Bob' this morning, Bob's coming. Do you understand?" She blared her eyes wide, staring at the ruddy face of the old doctor with unblinking blankness. Her lips stirred to whisper: "Stella Pringle. Stella Pringle is my name." "No, no, Mrs. Hathaway," the old man insisted. "I wouldn't advise trying to force her memory," another doctor interrupted in a quiet, deep voice. "Perhaps the sight of her husband will do the trick." They left her alone at last, alone with the starchy rustle which marked Miss Sutton's efficient, otherwise noiseless activities. Bob was coming. Bob! The lips that had kissed Cherry yesterday would flinch now as they touched her fever-scorched flesh! At last there came a knock on the door. The nurse rustled sturdily to open it. Faith, lying very still with her eyes closed, caught the freshness of the air which Bob brought in with him. "How is my wife?" she heard Bob's hoarse voice cracking with anxiety.

THEATRES

AT THE LYRIC. Eddie Cantor, in "Special Delivery," his second comedy under the Paramount Banner, which opened yesterday at the screen, has brought to the screen a wholly new style of comedy that, while packed to the brim with ex-cruciatingly funny situations, has, at the same time a most pleasing sincerity. As a rookie postman in "Special Delivery" Cantor is at times an utterly pathetic figure and at others so unapropriately funny one's utmost capacity for laughter is taxed to the ultimate limit. You just can't help laughing at the utterly ludicrous situations into which Cantor's postman gets himself. And yet through it all he is so human. There is one thing about Cantor's work that it is always apparent. He never burlesques the character he is portraying. Instead he approaches it with a sympathetic understanding and then proceeds to make you laugh with him at the hilariously funny situations into which he blunders. This was strongly evident in "Kid Boots" the screen version of Cantor's famous Broadway success. It is still more evident in "Special Delivery."

AT THE RIALTO.

"The most daring of all western screen stars" is the proud title which Ken Maynard, whose latest picture, "Gun Gospel," is now being shown at the Rialto theater, has won during the short time that he has been a star. And that title has been won only through the hardest and most dangerous kind of work. Although Maynard spends many long hours every day in practicing roping, riding and intricate stunts until he feels confident that they are ready to display in front of the camera, there is, nevertheless, that element of danger that something may go wrong at any time. Swinging from the saddle or riding underneath a running horse, skinning over a field by hanging onto a horse's tail or deliberately trapping a horse as it slides down a steep embankment are only a few of the things Maynard does in his current picture.

Sharkey, Heeney Fight Slashing 12 Round Draw

BOUT FAILS TO PICK CONTENDER

Boston Sailor Lacked Usual Form; Tommy Carried Battle

BY ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
Madison Square Garden, N. Y., Jan. 13—(AP)—Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney, rival heavyweight title aspirants, fought to a slashing draw tonight in a 12-round match that upset the "dope" and left experts as well as spectators sharply divided in opinion.

Apparently believing that Heeney's bulldog aggressiveness had given him the edge, the crowd of 17,000 on-lookers set up a chorus of boos and jeers after the decision, but the critics' gallery at the ringside gave a majority opinion in favor of the Boston ex-sailor.

It was a close fight from start to finish, but a shock to the critics who had installed Sharkey as a heavy favorite, as well as a disappointment to those expecting the bout to develop an outstanding contender for Gene Tunney's crown.

Heeney Forces Fight.
Sharkey gained the draw by a fighting comeback in the last few rounds after Heeney had piled up a substantial early margin on points, but the now "silent sailor" was far from the cool, careful, ruthless fighting machine of a year ago. Whether the knock-out he received at the hands of Jack Dempsey has left its mark in weakened stamina and confidence or whether his six months off was responsible for poor timing and slowness of foot, Sharkey was considerably below his expected form.

Heeney, battling with bulldog grit and ferocity, forced the going from start to finish, working inside Sharkey's defense to punish the sailor about the mid-area that without, such a pummeling from Dempsey last July. Short arm left hooks and right uppercuts were the best weapons of the chunky New Zealander as he tore in with a two-fisted attack.

From the third through the seventh round, Heeney kept plugging away with telling effect. He cuffed, wrestled and harried his taller, slightly heavier and more experienced opponent. In close, Heeney was at his best, while on one occasion, in the fifth round, he landed a vicious right-hander that sent Sharkey flying back to the ropes. This was one of the sharpest blows of the entire fight and the only one that came close to accounting for a knockdown. Sharkey went to his knees in the tenth round, but it was from the force of a partly missed right hander to Heeney's head.

Nip-and-Tuck Battle.
Heeney, unable to keep up his grueling pace, was forced back and made a target for sharp right crosses and stiff lefts to the body in the closing five rounds. Sharkey still found difficulty locating his mark at times and he was slow of foot, but he outboxed the Anzac and landed the sharper blows.

Heeney, always willing to mix and seeking close quarters constantly, found Sharkey's chin more difficult to reach as the fight wore on.

Likewise, he was more often tied up in a few bow knots by the sailor as they clinched. But few times was either boxer able to sustain much of an advantage. It was nip-and-tuck in most of the rounds.

Sharkey, in his comeback, regained little if any of the prestige he lost when knocked out by Dempsey last year.

In the face of so indecisive and unsatisfactory a bout between two of the top ranking contenders, it appears probable that a fight between the two will be in order before another opponent is selected.

Fight By Rounds

ROUND ONE.
Heeney met Sharkey coming from his corner with a solid right to the chin. They dropped into a clinch and flailed both hands to the body. Sharkey smashed two terrific rights to Heeney's head and nearly bent the Anzac double with a ramming left hook to the stomach. Heeney fell into a clinch and Sharkey rammed again to his body. Breaking clear, Tom was wild with two rights to the head but rapped Sharkey lightly on the chin with a right at the bell.

ROUND TWO.
Cool and careful, Sharkey hammered a right to Heeney's body, but took a short left hook on the chin. Sharkey traded two more lefts for a right hook to the head. Jack winked wisely to the spectators and pounded Heeney with a right to the chin as they came out of a clinch, but Tom surprised by clouting Sharkey solidly on the left ear as they drew apart. Heeney bored doggedly into an overhand right to the head. Apparently unperturbed, Tom slammed a left uppercut to Sharkey's chin and buried a right in the Boston boy's body. They were resting in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND THREE.
Dropping into a clinch the big boys were content to pummel each other's ribs with short chops, Sharkey lashed two vicious rights into Tom's head on the break but Heeney shook them off and marched straight into Sharkey with a half dozen piston-like shots to the body. Sharkey ripped a right flush to Heeney's chin. It was the kind of a punch that flattened Jim Maloney but Heeney just shook his head, and dug both hands deep into the Boston tar's body. Tom was still smashing Sharkey about the ribs, almost unmolested, as the crowd roared approval at the gong.

ROUND FOUR.
Heeney, almost stubby-looking with his short arms and powerful shoulders, shot a right to Sharkey's chin as they met. Sharkey ripped back but his right was wild and Tom cracked uppercuts on the sailor's chin with both hands. A right and left dug into Sharkey's body and his half-hearted returns were losing steam. Toe to toe, they swapped raps in the center of the ring. Falling into a clinch, Sharkey dug two left hooks into the body at the bell.

ROUND FIVE.

ROUND SIX.
Heeney appeared almost impervious to punishment as Sharkey hammered savagely at his head and body in an effort to gain the upper hand. Tom crowded right into the blows, hooking short left and rights to the body. Tom laced a left hook deep into Sharkey's body and Jack's knees doubled under him. He sagged into the ropes, held a moment and then tore out savagely with three left hooks that bent Tom's head back. They were dancing and resting at the bell.

ROUND SEVEN.
There was a smear of blood on Sharkey's lips. Half-heartedly Jack jabbed an opening with his left and then missed a terrific right cross. This time it was Heeney's turn to smile and he shot Jack's head back with three right uppercuts. Jack pounded viciously on Heeney's body with little material result and missed two heavy shots to the head. They fell into almost constant clinches, each holding with one hand and plying busily to the body with the other. Heeney staggered Sharkey with a right uppercut to the chin almost as the gong sounded.

ROUND EIGHT.
Unworried, Sharkey jabbed with a left and fell into a clinch where they mauled ferociously but with little effect to the body. As Sharkey missed a right to the body he fell into a heavy right uppercut. Dancing away, Jack peppered Heeney's face with a straight left. Sharkey threw everything behind a right and left hook to the body, but Heeney came on, and chased him from the ropes to the center of the ring with short chops to the head. Both missed terrific rights, turned half circles away from each other, just before the gong sounded.

ROUND NINE.
Sharkey piled a busy left into Heeney's head, jabbing and hooking the Anzac with ease. Tom put down his head and pounded in with a right to the heart. Jack slashed hot hands to the body and Heeney began to hold, appearing to weaken on a little. Sharkey stabbed his left into Heeney's face and hooked solidly to his ribs. Tom missed a right uppercut and they were locked tight as the round ended.

ROUND TEN.

ROUND ELEVEN.
They fell into the inevitable clinch, bruising short pokes to the head and body. Sharkey cracked a left on Heeney's chin but ducked to cover under Tom's punishing short arm attack to the body. It was close, uninteresting fighting with both missing frequently. Heeney met Jack coming in with a short uppercut, held him away and they stood in the center of the ring, ripping hooks to the head. The swap was fairly fiery until Tom bounced the Boston boy in the ropes with an overhand right to the ear.

ROUND TWELVE.
One arm locked, they still clinched and ripped with free hands to the body as the referee appeared quite tired from pulling them apart. Out in the open Sharkey missed a wild right and Tom a looping left before they clinched again. Then Heeney bounced up and shot three driving uppercuts to Sharkey's head. Jack fell back, then dove forward with both hands, lashing to the body. Heeney met him with a blistering volley of stubby chops to the chin and Sharkey wavered while the crowd roared the Anzac on. Heeney was driving Sharkey about the ring under a fierce volley at the close.

SAINTS DEFEAT 'STIQUE, 14-10

St. Joseph Comes From Behind to Win Conference Game

In a hard-fought battle, the St. Joseph high school cagers wrestled a 14 to 10 victory from Manistique at the Escanaba high school gymnasium last night. The victory boosts up the standing of Coach Hirm's quintet in the Cleric conference race.

Coming from behind in the second half, the Parochial basketballers staged a savage offensive to pass the Schoolcrafters and maintained the lead throughout except for a brief stage of the contest when the count was 10-11 in the final stanza.

Kohlman, speedy forward, was the chief point-gainer for the Saints, making three field goals and a free shot, while Risley played brilliantly for Manistique, scoring three baskets.

Kohlman started the scoring in the opening of the affray in a sensational fashion by sinking the ball into the net from mid-court. The Saints' advantage was not held for long, however, as Weber shortly afterward shot a field goal to tie the score. Risley added 2 more with a neat shot for a basket, and just before the quarter ended Jack Fitzharris added another point with a free throw on Risley's foul.

Neither team scored in the second quarter, the score still remaining 4 to 3 in Manistique's favor at the close of the half. The play was slow and uninteresting in the second period. Both teams resorted to long shots at the basket, missing them all.

As the second half opened, it was evident both squads were determined to speed up their play and a fierce battle ensued. Kohlman was the first to score a field goal, and Jack Fitzharris duplicated the stunt shortly afterward. At this stage of the game, Martin went in for Bergman, Manistique center. Risley made another field goal, to narrow down the St. Joseph lead to one point, the score being 7 to 6. Fitzharris made a free shot on Weber's foul, and before the quarter ended, Weber added another point on a free shot, making the count 8 to 7, in favor of the locals.

Moran shot a field goal at the opening of the last period, but Martin and Risley garnered three points to tie the count, 10 to 10. Kohlman and Skopp, however, sewed up the game eventually with a basket apiece.

MINERS DEFEAT ESKY, 32 TO 25

Hilltop Basketeers Outplayed Negaunee in Final Quarter

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 13—(Special)—Maintaining the lead throughout the contest, Negaunee high school triumphed over the highly touted Escanaba quintet by a 32 to 25 score in a thrilling battle here tonight.

The Miners put up a fine brand of teamwork, and were also aided by the accurate basket shooting of Maki, Hauserman and Pelow. Demars, speedy Hilltop guard, electrified the spectators with a brilliant exhibition of dribbling and ball throwing. Demars ran up a total of 11 points for Escanaba with five field goals and a free throw.

The Miners got the jump on the visitors early in the game. They made 10 points in the first quarter, holding down the Roelmen to only three. In the second quarter, the Escanaba cagers got their bearings and maintained an almost even pace with the locals. The half closed with the Miners leading by a 17 to 9 score.

Negaunee had a hard time keeping the Hilltoppers down in the third quarter, the visitors netting eight points to the locals' nine. In the final period, Escanaba outplayed its opponent, but the advantage held over Negaunee was too much to overcome. The Roelmen scored eight points as compared to the locals' six in the last stanza.

Here's the life history of the world's best pipe tobacco

WE took the finest Burley that ever came out of old Kentucky. We aged it, then mellowed it by an old-time slow-but-sure secret process—the Wellman Method.

We cut it, not in fine, quick-burning chips, but in coarse, shaggy flakes that smoke as cool as a brisk sea breeze.

Then we packed it in sensible, comfortable foil (instead of costly tin) and called it Granger Rough Cut.

To half a million smokers it's "the finest pipe tobacco I ever laid a match to."

SIAMESE BOYS AT WEST POINT

Foreigners Keep Pace With American Cadets.

West Point, N. Y.—East is meeting West at the United States Military Academy, where two young sons of the Kingdom of Siam are receiving the regular course of instruction by courtesy of Uncle Sam.

The two representatives of the oriental kingdom, Swast Pradish and Camron Sudana, are now the only foreign students enrolled at West Point. And having done very well during their first year at the academy, they are to be joined by two more Siamese lads who are permitted to enter by act of congress—the only way a foreign student may be admitted.

Pradish not only survived the rigors of his first school year, but acquitted himself so well as to win special commendation from academy authorities. Pradish stood eleventh in his class and he was one of 13 members to receive gold stars as a mark of exceptional distinction on the general merit roll.

How well he fared in his studies is revealed by his ranking in a class of 336 cadets, given out by the authorities: Mathematics, No. 24; French, No. 9; English, No. 22; surveying, No. 80; military tactics, No. 47; conduct, No. 38. Good work with the rifle won him a place on the academy rifle squad. He also played on the soccer team.

Cadet Sudana, who is 19 years old—two years younger than Pradish—managed to be a student of merit, too, although he did not equal the record of the elder student. He stood No. 150 in his class at the end of the first year.

Besides "making the grade" in the class room, the Siamese have been popular among the student body of 1,200 representative young Americans.

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

'DON'T' IS DANGEROUS WHEN ITS USE IS TOO COMMON

The human being is something more than an ordinary mechanism, writes a well known eastern physician, and it might be well to stop and consider the importance of the recognition and prevention of madness.

Preventive medicine is the watchword of the hour, he reminds us, and innumerable schemes are being developed for putting into effect the knowledge of disease and control that is now available and prolonging human life. But—

"We are obsessed," he asserts, with an insane desire to prohibit, to forbid the ownership of private property, the teaching of evolution, the right to be sane and temperate, or be considerate of the opinions of the actions of other people. This obsession is distorting our mental life as individuals and as a nation."

The suggestion that our hygiene in the past has been a moral rather than a scientific hygiene is not new. A survey of the books used in the schools for the last 15 or 20 years reveals them as a constant series of don'ts in relation to the taking of tea, coffee, alcohol, tobacco—in fact almost anything that might afford a modicum of stimulation or pleasure.

The warnings have been given, moreover, with little reference to the scientific evidence available or to the pharmacology of the substances concerned or to their actual effects in producing pathological changes in the human body.

The doctor believes that the only way out of our present trend toward madness is a systematic study of the human personality and of its disorders, involving the special biologic difficulties in adjusting life that are formally designated as nervous and mental disorders.

"The time has come," he says, "for physicians to lay before the public a constructive program for living that will appeal to the imagination and the higher emotions of struggling humanity more than do statistical reminders of success in preventing disease and prolonging life."

"Physicians should let it be known that they wish to assist in finding out what the conditions are that are necessary to produce great men and great societies, and then see what can be accomplished to make real progress in the direction of race improvement."

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Larson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of Astoria, at the home of the bride's parents, 433 James street, Friday, December 13.

A beautiful setting of flowers and ferns in front of the fireplace formed a background for the bridal party and flowers were used in profusion for the home decorations.

The bride who was given away by her father was attired in a gown of black velvet and carried a large bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Alva Slattee, sister of the bride, and Charles Selke of Portland, Ore., were the attendants.

Young Man Admits Theft; Is Paroled

Oliver Brazeau, 23 years old, 812 Sheridan road, was paroled to Chief of Police John J. Tolan for one year by Justice of the Peace James E. Doherty yesterday after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of petty larceny.

Palmer Benard, 1317 Sheridan road, reported to police Thursday evening that a sum of $40, had been stolen from his home while he and his wife were away from the house. Mr. and Mrs. Iver Carlson, who live in the same building occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Benard, reported that a man had entered the Benard home Thursday morning and they furnished police with a description of him, resulting in the arrest of Brazeau.

This was Brazeau's first offense on record, and after he had agreed to make restitution for the amount taken and to pay the court costs, Justice Doherty released him on probation.

Playing Pilots Rare Next Year

Cleveland, Ohio—Playing pilots for the most part will be conspicuous by their absence on major league fields next season.

Outside of Stanley Harris of Washington, there'll not be a regular cavorting manager in the group. Pocktoppaugh, newly appointed leader of the Indians, and Schalk of the White Sox may get in the pastime at various intervals, but neither can be classed as a real playing pilot.

The scene shifts quickly in the diamond sport. Two seasons back you could count seven regular performing managers around the big circuits. The American had Cobb, Collins, Speaker, Sisler and Harris; the National boasted Hornsby and Bancroft.

Five of the seven were baseball's outstanding stars—Cobb, Collins, Speaker, Sisler and Hornsby. Then came the winter of the big upheaval and the five twinklers dropped back into the rank and file.

There followed the selection of Bob O'Farrell to manage the Cards and Ray Schalk the White Sox. Both were catchers of long experience. O'Farrell held the post but one year, being replaced by Bill McKechnie, former Pittsburgh chief, for next season. Bancroft, who led the 'Braves to little, if any, success over a four-year span, is another more recent "let out" as pilot.

The 1928 campaign will, in a way, parallel that of nine or ten years ago when Tris Speaker, then leader of the Cleveland club, had the major league playing manager job all to himself. It was figured at the time that the player-pilot type had just about passed from the big time landscape. But the next few seasons saw the coming of Cobb, Collins, Sisler, et al. in the dual role.

The 1928 chase will find three former White Sox players, and one who still wears the Comiskey uniform, as major league managers. They are Moriarty of Detroit; Peckinpaugh, Cleveland; Jack Slattery, Boston Braves, and Schalk. Moriarty and Peck were infielders and Slattery and Schalk, catchers.

Police Break Up Gambling Game at Pool Room Here

Police broke up a gambling game at the West End pool room yesterday afternoon, and took into custody the three participants, who were John Morvich, owner of the place, Tony Solinski and Walter Rech, both woodsmen.

Receiving a telephone call that there was a disturbance at the pool room, the police rushed to the place, only to find a card game in progress in the rear of the establishment. Several bills of money were on the table, and the men made an unsuccessful attempt to hide the money when the officers arrived.

Morvich demanded a hearing when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ranguette on a charge of keeping a disorderly place and a gaming room, the hearing being set for today. Morvich claims that they were playing only for "soft drinks." Solinski and Rech were sentenced to pay fines of $25 and costs each or spend ten days in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct. They had not arranged to pay the fine up to late yesterday.

New York—For the first time since Caruso sang the title role in 1920, Meyerbeer's opera "Le Prophete" will be sung here December 31 by the Metropolitan Opera company.
