CITY TESTING WATER IN BAY

Seek Reason for Bad Taste; Get Truck for Snow Work

Tests to determine what causes the disagreeable taste in the city's drinking water during the winter are being made by the city health department. It was reported at the regular meeting of the city council last night. The survey, which has been in progress several weeks, is also being made in an effort to locate some locality in the bay which is not contaminated.

K. C. Holds Open Meeting at St. Patrick's Hall

BLEASE ASSAILS 2 REPUBLICANS

Democrat Challenges Reed of Pennsylvania and Senator Wash

Washington, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Another Democratic gauge of battle was hurled into the senate today, this time by Cole Blease, of South Carolina. The senator, catching almost the entire membership on the floor just before the vote to bar Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, challenged Reed, of Pennsylvania, a Republican, and Walsh, of Montana, a Democrat, to combat, "anywhere, any time, any how," and in any style they preferred.

$450,000, were recited in the resolution which then declared that the acceptance and expenditure of such sums were "contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of free government."

"I am surprised," said Moses, "to confront the complete and abrupt surrender which the senator from Alabama has made since yesterday afternoon when he breathed out fire and slaughter here, defied the leader of his party, bared his breast to the barbs of an ecclesiastical combination which might be brought together, admitted his willingness to submit himself to the dagger or the poison cup and now this morning recants everything."

Threat of Equity Court Interference Has Been Removed

Miami, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The threat of equity court interference with organization of laboring men has been removed, in the opinion of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, by the recent decision of the New York court of appeals denying the Interborough Rapid Transit company an injunction to prevent Edward P. The complete absence of any demonstrative reaction to perhaps one of the most tragic revolutionary episodes was perhaps due to Trotsky's failure in recent years to hold vital contact with the masses or to Stalin's talent at disarming enemies subtly step by step, forever guarding against martyrdom, but the fact remains that the banishment of the leaders of the opposition was unaccompanied by a single overt act which might be construed as likely to challenge the existing powers in the remotest way.

REUNION PLANS ARE BEING MADE

To Hold Second Annual Homecoming at Ford River in July

Preliminary plans for the staging of the second annual reunion of old settlers at Ford River next summer are now being worked out. John J. Bartella, member of the general arrangements committee, announced yesterday.

Members of the committee will hold a series of meetings in the near future to outline a definite program. A campaign to give the event wide publicity through the press and by written invitations will be started soon in an effort to attract former residents of the once booming sawmill town to the homecoming celebration.

It is planned to hold the celebration early in July for two days, Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, have been selected as appropriate dates, but these are only tentative. Last year, the reunion was held only on one day, and although no unusual preparations were made for the event, it attracted a large crowd, surpassing the expectations of those behind the project. Since the holding of the first meeting, Mr. Bartella has received numerous letters from old-time Ford River residents, who expressed deep regret that they were not able to attend the affair, but they would make a special effort to be present at the next.

Arrangements will be made to have a high-class entertainment program during the two days, and it is hoped that there will be a large percentage of the old-timers, who are scattered in all parts of the United States, at next summer's gathering. Last summer, there was a representation of former residents from all parts of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and other middle-west states.

COOKS

A basket social and dance was given at the Cooks school Saturday night for the benefit of the Girls' basketball team. Music for the dancing was furnished by home talent. A fairly good sized crowd was present. Due to the inclement weather and the condition of the roads, many who would like to have been present were unable to get out. The girls are to be congratulated upon the successes of their undertaking. During intermission, baskets were auctioned off to the highest bidders. Charles Lakoskey acting as auctioneer. Due to the attractiveness of the baskets and also to the untiring efforts of the auctioneer, competition was keen, and a substantial sum was realized. The girls are planning on giving another benefit party in the near future when it is hoped that there will be a much larger attendance. Local school teachers were business callers in Manistique Saturday morning. A number of local fans accompanied their teams to Garden Friday night. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellan

Flaming Youth of Today Has Brand of Slang All His Own

The American's readiness to pick up and to make regular use of slang phrases or slang words has been the subject for much unfavorable criticism both in this county and in the land in which the mother tongue originated. There are others, not so much averse to the use of slang, who think that words or phrases thus concocted by the masses might be put into the language and that the tongue would suffer nothing thereby.

In this line, it has been suggested by some that there be undertaken the compilation of a slang dictionary. Considered in the abstract, this would seem a feasible undertaking, but those who recommend the publication of such a volume do not realize the enormity of the task. It is simple for one to sit down and think of a hundred or so phrases or words that are in more or less common usage. But the average person would think only of those slang words used in his own "circle," and would leave out hundreds more used elsewhere or by people in different walks of life.

There is more to this slang business than would appear, as the investigator who makes a study of it will soon discover. The class of slang used, the manner in which it is spoken, the gestures which accompany it almost invariably constitute an index to the character or the habits of the individual. The saying, "Show me your company and I'll tell you what you are," might be revised today and greatly simplified to read "Let me hear you talk and I'll show you what you are."

Slangy Age 16 to 30.

Slang in common use today is spoken most generally by persons between the ages of sixteen and thirty. Until the boy or girl arrives at his or her sixteenth birthday, contacts with those more learned in slang lore are not so numerous, and the same holds true of the person over thirty. While the older individual may use as much slang at thirty as he did at sixteen, soon after he passes the thirty mark his phrases will have become antiquated, and he will find himself unable to compete in rapid conversation with those of the younger school. This fact also presents a serious obstacle in the compilation of a comprehensive dictionary of slang, since the phrases come and go so quickly that the book would be out of date in a year or two.

If the reader does not believe in slang as an index to mode of living, let him cast about a bit and pick up an earful of the new English here and there. The "flaming youth" type, the high school pupil who dashes from dance to dance and is agog with excitement for the greater part of the time speaks a slang language distinctly different from that heard elsewhere. His dictionary of slang is not so large as is that of the

HERMANVILLE

G. H. Earle left for Minneapolis Wednesday evening to attend the Lumberman's Convention in that city.

Wm. Laitenen was called to Superior, Wisconsin to attend the funeral services of his father who passed away recently.

The C. H. Gribble family attended the funeral of Mrs. C. H. Gribble's sister who passed away at Calumet, Michigan.

Mrs. E. B. Sturm entertained a party of eight young ladies at her home, Wednesday evening, Jan. 18th. A very delightful dinner was served consisting of Italian style spaghetti and roast chicken. After the dinner the entire group spent the balance of the evening at the bowling alleys of the Community club enjoying several matched games of bowling.

A party of fifteen Hermanville bowlers as special guests of Attorney G. R. Empson of Gladstone, Mich., enjoyed an interesting match game of bowling at the blowin' this dump," while the flaming youth would have said "I pounded out." The relative degrees of toughness in these two statements would not be apparent to one familiar with the manner in which they are spoken, but there is a vast difference. The "thug" refers to members of the fairer sex as skirts, molls, wenchies; while the flaming youth uses bimbo, sketch, or number. By these signs ye shall know them; and beware of the "thugs," for while not always an open violator of the law, he is almost without an exception just within, and is not averse to stepping slightly outside.

The slang vocabulary of these two classes is distinctly different. The "thug's" is immeasurably larger, so much so that two of this species could engage in conversation while standers-by were left completely in the dark as to what they were talking about. The younger classes words are milder, and there are fewer of them. Between these two classes there are a variety of degrees. None of the words or phrases would look right in the dictionary, however, for their effectiveness is dependent almost entirely on their context.

Their Slang Different. Once in a while there is a youngster who speaks faultless English. But a majority of them feel they are hopelessly lost if they are not familiar with the slang language. The "thug" speaks rapidly—words stumble over one another in an effort to leave his mouth. Not essentially a criminal, he usually displays a disregard for legal authority, and this note is always predominant in his talk. He is as easy to "spot" as a blackbird flying before a white sheet.

The "thug," speaking of leaving his favorite "dive" says, "I'm

Northwestern Road Cars Will Receive New Coat of Green

Passenger cars of the Chicago & North-Western railway will be repainted dark green, in a shade similar to that on the Pullman cars, according to a notice received by officials here.

The change from the yellow color, which has been in vogue for many years, will be made gradually as the cars are sent to the Chicago car shops for overhauling, it was said. The change has already been made to some of the express and baggage cars, a few of which have been run over this division recently.

Passenger cars operating in the Chicago suburban territory will not be changed in color.

FAIR TICKET PRICES FIXED

The schedule of prices for general admission and for grandstand seats during the upper peninsula state fair in Escanaba, September 17 to 22, was announced by George E. Harvey, secretary-manager, yesterday.

The general admission fees for adults will be 50 cents during the day and 25 cents in the evening after 6 p. m. Children under 15 years of age, will be charged 25 cents days and 15 cents evenings, while on children's days a special price of 10 cents will be in effect. Grandstand admission prices will be alike for adults and children. In the new grandstand, which will seat about 2500, reserved seats will be 50 cents and box seats 75 cents. In the old grandstand, which has a seating capacity of about 800, the charge will be 25 cents. Day and evening prices will be the same.

The evening general admission price was reduced because the board of managers felt they wished to encourage attendance at night as well as in the daytime. The exhibition buildings will be open both day and evening, and the free attractions will follow a like program. The racing program, which will be offered in the afternoons, will be supplanted by a spectacular fireworks display in the evening.

A large parking space will be provided in the large tract of land, adjoining the fairgrounds on the north. A charge of 25 cents will already here. An airport is needed for future advancement. It is a project which deserves the consideration and support of everyone in the community.

FEROCIOUS WOLVES. When a wood-chopper near Washburn, Wis., saw a big, fierce wolf skulking in the shadows near him he became nervous for his own safety. The next day he took his gun with him. The wolf returned and the woodsman shot it.

That is typical of the "ferocious wolf" stories which from time to time bob out of the north woods. Men are chased up trees by packs of the animals. Wolves hide in the brush along side the road ready to attack school children.

The wolf, hungry though he may be, avoids man as much as possible. Confronted by a man he flees before a man has a chance to climb a tree.

But the wild stories persist in finding their way into the city newspapers now and then. There seems to be no way of convincing the public that the wolf really is not as wolfish as he has been portrayed.

A POSSIBLE REMEDY. Nowadays, almost every person who commits an atrocious or brutal crime and is caught redhanded and finds that an illi-will not stand up, makes an insanity plea as a matter of routine technique.

Such pleas are only additional evidences of the streak of yellow which exists in every criminal. He does not regret his deed. He merely regrets that he is going to be forced to take the consequences. So he tries to place responsibility for a portion of the consequences on the shoulders of someone else.

AIRPORT PLAN GAINS. It appears that the proposal to establish a creditable airport in Escanada is gaining ground daily. Plane owners, who already have made this city the principal flying center of the district, are greatly encouraged by the interest shown in their project, and it is not at all unlikely that the field, properly graded, and equipped with hangars, a machine shop, barracks and other facilities, will spring into being as quickly as the winter's snow is gone.

One man, well-informed concerning local aviation matters, said yesterday that at least six and perhaps eight new planes will be added to the local "squadron" early in the summer. More than a score of students have been enrolled for courses in flying. Many of them will buy planes of their own when they have learned to use them. Demands for planes for passenger and commercial trips have shown a very definite increase in recent months. Other channels of usefulness are being opened.

ESCANADA has shown more activity in aviation than any other point in the Upper Peninsula and Northern Wisconsin. There can be no doubt in the mind of anyone that aviation is rapidly becoming an important factor in transportation. This city's leadership should be maintained. The planes and the flyers are

THE "KANARY" MURDER CASE

THE TWO rooms had apparently been thoroughly ransacked. Clothes and various articles were strewn about the floor. The doors of both clothes-closets (there was one in each room) were open, and to judge from the chaos in the bedroom closet, it had been hurriedly searched; although the closet of the living-room, which was given over to the storage of infrequently used items, appeared to have been ignored.

The drawers of the dressing-table and chest had been partly emptied onto the floor, and the bedclothes had been snatched away and the mattress turned back. Two chairs and a small occasional table were upset; several vases were broken, as if they had been searched and then thrown down in the wrath of disappointment; and the Marie Antoinette mirror had been broken.

The escritoire was open, and its pigeonholes had been emptied in a jumbled pile upon the blotter. The doors of the Boule cabinet swung wide, and inside there was the same confusion of contents that marked the interior of the escritoire. The bronze-and-porcelain lamp on the end of the library table was lying on its side, its satin shade torn where it had struck the sharp corner of a silver bonbonniere.

Two objects in the general disarray particularly attracted my attention—a black metal document box of the kind purchasable at any stationery store, and a large jewel case of sheet steel with a circular inset lock. The latter of these objects was destined to play a curious and sinister part in the investigation to follow.

The document box, which was now empty, had been placed on the library table, next to the overturned lamp. Its lid was thrown back, and the key was still in the lock. In all the litter and disorganization of the room, this box seemed to be the outstanding indication of calm and orderly activity on the part of the wrecked.

The jewel-case, on the other hand, had been violently wrenched open. It sat on the dressing-table in the bedroom, dented and twisted out of shape by the terrific leverage that had been necessary to force it, and beside it lay a brass-handled, cast-iron poker which had evidently been brought from the living-room and used as a makeshift chisel with which to pry open the lock.

Vance had glanced but casually at the different objects in the rooms as we made our rounds, but when he came to the dressing-table he paused abruptly. Taking out his monocle he adjusted it carefully and leaned over the broken jewel case.

"Most extraordinary!" he murmured, tapping the edge of the lid with his gold pencil. "What do you make of that, Sergeant?"

Heath had been eyeing Vance with narrowed lids as the latter bent over the dressing-table. "What's in your mind, Mr. Vance?" he, in turn asked.

"Oh, more than you could ever guess," Vance answered lightly. "But just at the moment I was toying with the idea that this steel case was never torn open by that wholly inadequate iron poker, what?"

"HM-M. YES, THAT'S NOVELTY INSURANCE! REMINDS ME OF TWENTY YEARS AGO IN FRANCE, WHEN I WAS A WINE TASTER! THE COMPANY INSURED MY TONGUE FOR A HUNDRED THOUSAND FRAMES! THAT WAS AN ODD POLICY, WHAT?"

OUT OUR WAY

"Go over everything," he told them. "But take a special look at this jewel-case and the handle of this poker, and give that document-box in the other room a close-up-and-down."

"Right," assented Captain Dubois. "We'll begin in here while the doc's busy in the other room." And he and Bellamy set to work.

Our interest naturally centered on the captain's labors. For fully five minutes we watched him inspecting the twisted steel sides of the jewel-case and the smooth, polished handle of the poker. He held the objects gingerly by their edges, and, placing a jeweler's glass in his eye, flashed his pocket-light on every square inch of them. At length he put them down, scowling.

"No finger-prints here," he announced. "Wiped clean." "I mighta known it," grumbled Heath. "It was a professional job, all right." He turned to the other expert. "Found anything, Bellamy?"

"Nothing to help," was the grumpy reply. "A few old smears with dust over 'em." "Looks like a washout," Heath commented irritably, "though I'm hoping for something in the other room."

At this moment Doctor Doremus came into the bedroom and, taking a sheet from the bed, returned to the davenport and covered the body of the murdered girl. Then he snapped shut his case, and putting on his hat at a rakish angle, stepped forward with the air of a man in great haste to be on his way.

Griffin Assails Overcrowding in Federal Prisons

Washington, Jan. 18.—(P)—Overcrowding in federal prisons was assailed in the house today by Representative Griffin, Democrat, New York, with the charge that the condition is a "menace to the health and morals, not only of the inmates, but of every community in the land to which released criminals return upon the conclusion of their imprisonment."

He suggested segregation of different types of prisoners, separate prison for drug addicts, abolition of the "trust" system, with increased appropriations for prison employes, and a system to provide work for all prisoners.

Declaring that he spoke from personal knowledge Griffin charged that "drugs have gone and are going into prisons every day through the medium of 'trusties'."

Iron Trade Review

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—Support especially by the building, railroad and automotive industries, the iron and steel markets have moved to slightly higher ground in the past week according to Iron Trade Review, Cleveland, Ohio. Order books of practically all finished steelmakers have lengthened despite accelerated production. From the character of demand, consumption has expanded more rapidly than many buyers of iron and steel anticipated.

Attending this improvement, four more blast furnace stacks have been blown in, making twelve added this month. In less than three weeks all of the loss of furnace capacity since September has been recouped, and January will be the first month since April to show an increase in pig iron output. Blast furnace activity is proving an accurate measure of the markets. Steel corporation subsidiaries are operating at 78 per cent this week, a gain of one point.

While steel ingot production this month cannot exceed last January, the improvement over December promises to surpass that of a year ago. Present firm prices, particularly in pig iron and heavy finished steel, contrast with the crumbling price structure of last January. Some advances announced last quarter approach a test at the hands of carburizers, fabricators and other large consumers.

A few soft spots have developed, as the first flush of new year expansion fades, but they do not mar the picture. Pig iron sales, due largely to the carryover from the fourth quarter, do not measure up with finished steel. Some Mahoning valley sheet makers believe automotive specifications, while broadening, are inadequate if auto production is to attain first quarter estimates, and they foresee a jam in March. Chicago markets are forging ahead while Pittsburgh gathers momentum more slowly.

Pig iron enters the area where emphasis is upon shipment rather than selling, but in some districts, notably Pittsburgh, the market is disappointingly quiet. The lake furnaces are shipping heavily to automotive foundries. December sales of independent sheet mills—530,197 tons—were 200,000 tons over November, double last December and the largest for any month since such statistics have been compiled. Including 20,000 tons for the Union Terminal's project at Cleveland and 15,000 tons for a bridge at New York, active structural inquiry totals 60,000 to 75,000 tons.

Preliminary estimates of the 1928 Lake Superior iron ore movement indicate an increase of several million tons over the 52,357,000 tons of 1927.

Does Advertising Pay? Babson Furnishes Proof

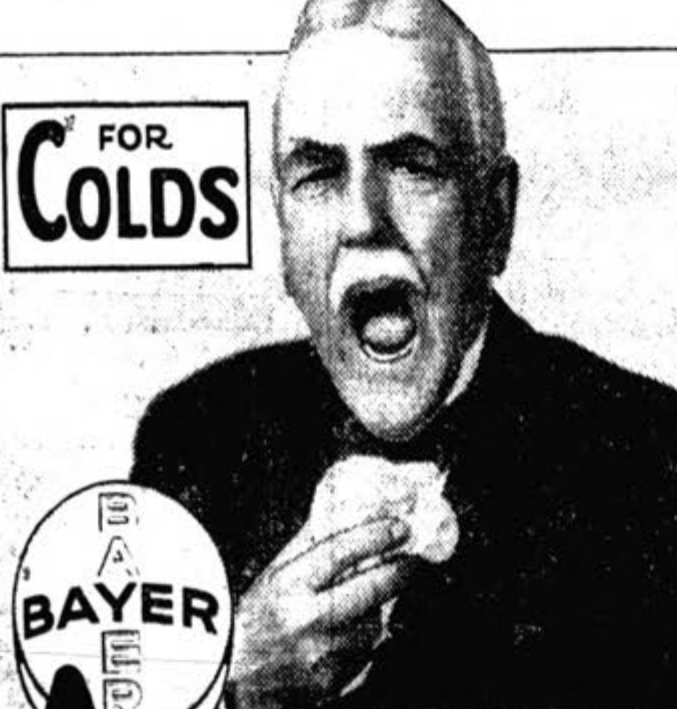

Babson Park, Florida, Jan. 20. —If a life long study of business and statistics has taught me anything it is that advertising is the greatest business force in the world. Had there been no advertising, America would be today economically where China is. Advertising is the dynamo of business and it is so because it appeals first to human feelings, instincts and emotions. I have said before and I repeat that the world is ruled by feelings and not by figures. Until the people's emotions are aroused they will not take any action, whether it is to buy goods, wage war, build factories, or do anything else, either constructive or destructive. Any good advertising man knows this, and thousands of our business men know it. Otherwise they would not be spending hundreds of millions of dollars annually on advertising.

"America has been built up largely through advertising. Our great inventions would never have been developed to the extent that they have if it had not been for advertising. True, industrial progress has been tremendously aided by mechanical and chemical discoveries. It is inconceivable to think, however, that mere inventions alone without promotion and publicity would ever have developed into the factors for human comfort, convenience and progress that they are. Do we ever stop to think when we go to the grocery store to buy breakfast food, or canned goods, or other package articles, that if it had not been for advertising we could not get them? Advertising has made possible the distribution of all the nationally known package articles. It has also made possible mass production at lower costs, thereby enabling the American public to buy more advantageously, and to know in advance exactly what they will have to pay for a given article. This is not true in most European countries.

Persistence Necessary in Advertising. From time to time some of my business friends have said to me: "I am not sure that my advertising pays. I think I will reduce it, or cut it out altogether." When a man says this, I know that one of four things is the trouble. (1) Either his advertising is not appealing to the fundamental emotions, and, therefore, not causing a desire for his products; (2) he is not adapting his advertising to the nature of his product; (3) he is not advertising in the channels best suited for his particular goods; or (4)—which is most probable—he has not been advertising long enough to get accumulative results, which mean great sales increases. Any one of these four things may be the trouble. Consultation with some good advertising agency or newspaper would be very helpful in such cases. Most often I have found the trouble to be that the business man has not kept at his advertising for a long enough period.

"Old Aesop tells a fable about a crow, half dead with thirst, who came upon a pitcher which had once been full of water. However, when the crow put its beak into the mouth of the pitcher he found that only very little water was left in it, and he could not reach far enough down to get at it. He tried and tried, but at last had to give up in despair. Then an idea came to him, and he took a pebble and dropped it into the pitcher. He kept dropping pebbles into the pitcher one after another. At last he saw the water mount up nearer, and after throwing in a few more pebbles he was able to quench his thirst and save his life. The trouble with many advertisers is that they give up dropping in pebbles just before the water reaches them. It often is a matter of persistence. Why We Know Advertising Pays. There are at least 3,500 national advertisers in the newspaper. They spend approximately $250,000,000 for newspaper space alone. Some of these advertisers have appropriations as high as $2,500,000 for newspaper ads. In a list of 227 of the largest national advertisers I find 63 with appropriations of $200,000 or more; 32 with appropriations of $500,000 or more; 17 with appropriations of $1,000,000 or over. This represents only the national advertisers. There are thousands of concerns besides these advertising locally in the daily and weekly papers. About 80,000 concerns are using advertising space in various trade and class publications. The best estimates that I can find indicate that the gross advertising appropriation of all advertisers have been in-reasing since 1921 at the rate of around 20% annually. I notice a growing tendency of industries which did not formerly advertise to take up advertising. I refer to public utilities and railroads. The great leaders in these industries are convinced that such general good-will advertising is very helpful. I find that the banks are spending in the neighborhood of $15,000,000, and about half of this is for newspaper space. Of course, this does not include advertising of bond issues, which during the past year easily exceeded $40,000,000. Although I do not find that the 1927 total figures have been classified showing the amount spent by each industry on advertising, a general idea is obtained from the preceding year's totals. An examination of national magazine advertising indicates that the industries line up about as follows in point of total value of appropriate: drug and toilet goods; automobiles, food and beverages; furniture and furnishings; building materials; clothing and dry goods; radios and musical instruments; travel and amusements; soap and housekeeper's supplies; stationery and books; jewelry and silverware; paint and hardware; schools, camps, and courses; cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco; shoes, trunks, and bags; office equipment.

Advertisers Prosper Only as They Serve. While the profits of capable advertisers are huge, their responsibility and obligations to the public are of more importance. It is true in advertising as in every other phase of life that we prosper only as we serve. Some people may have the idea that advertising is more or less a needless expense of distribution. But that is not true. Advertising performs a distinct economic service when properly handled. It can be made more of an influence toward smoothing out the periods of unhealthy business expansion on the one hand and panics and depressions on the other. National advertisers especially, can help to keep a balance between unhealthy booms and destructive depressions. They can also alleviate to some extent the seasonal movements in industry and help to secure year round productivity and employment. Some of the national advertisers are carrying on great service to the public in their research laboratories. They are promoting public health through judicious educational publicity. I have spoken of the tremendous power of advertising to arouse action through the appeal to human emotions. Such a power must be

The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions. Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart.

Miss Catherine Tiernt of Alton was a caller at the A. Barbeau home Tuesday. The banking ground at the railroad is slowly filling up with timber products; even though, the roads are in poor condition due to the want of snow. Snow is being hauled in trucks.

Joseph Martin and Pat Pierce of Martin Bay were business callers here Wednesday. Miss Thelma Roberts and Mrs. Stone Anderson called Tuesday evening to see how Lillian Gorham was improving.

welded wisely and for the benefit of mankind, rather than for his detriment. The obligation rests clearly upon the advertiser. Let me emphasize the fundamental fact that only the product of real merit can be profitably advertised. This is because the profit depends upon repeat sales and not a first sale. It is quite usual that figuring the advertising cost and the general selling costs of the initial order, it may cost more than it brings in. The profit comes with succeeding purchases. Unless the article advertised possesses real merit to satisfy human wants or desires, it cannot hope to succeed regardless of advertising.

We are in a period of keener competition than we have been in for many years. The margin of profit is small, and a satisfactory net return depends upon increased volume of distribution. Advertising helps to increase turnover and speed up distribution. It is my opinion that the business man or merchant who recognizes this change in conditions and shapes his course accordingly, cutting down the production costs to the lowest possible limit and advertising wisely will find it possible to make satisfactory profit. The Babson chart of business now stands at 2 per cent below normal."

Liquor Is Found at Morvich Place; Owner Is Arrested

John Morvich, owner of the West End pool room, 306 Stephenson avenue, found himself in trouble with the law again yesterday afternoon when police and sheriff's officers raided his place and found a quart of moonshine liquor. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ranguette on a charge of sale, possession and keeping a place, and demanded a hearing, which was set for today. He was released on $500 bail.

Officers discovered the liquor secreted underneath an organ in the rear of the pool hall, where Morvich makes his home. Morvich recently was arrested for operating a gambling place and paid a fine of $50 and costs. His place has been the scene of several visits by police in recent months, and he has been arrested on several occasions on charges of prohibition law violation.

Pilgrimages of Faithful Will Be Made in Planes

Washington (AP)—The Far East is looking for another magic carpet. It will be satisfied with the modern style, however, in the form of airplanes, which are wanted for transporting the faithful to Mecca. From far away India has come to the department of commerce the plea of the managing proprietor of a pilgrim transportation agency for planes he may charter during April, May and June of 1928. He says railroads are lacking, roads are poor and camel transportation is difficult. He believes the planes could carry the pilgrims to Mecca from Jeddah, from Mecca to Medina and from Medina to Jerusalem in comparatively easy hops.

GOOD PROSPECT FOR STOCKMEN

Value of Beef Animals Has Increased, Says Expert.

BY E. C. BROWN
(President, Chicago Livestock Exchange)

Chicago (AP)—The livestock industry enters the new year with excellent prospects.

The value of every beef animal, pure bred and grade, has substantially appreciated and the new basis appears to be legitimate. Sheep raisers have had a profitable year. Only in the case of swine is depression in evidence—and hog values change overnight.

Livestock growers control a domestic market with approximately 120,000,000 customers with high purchasing capacity, the best market this world has ever seen. The keynote of the situation is preservation of this market to domestic producers.

Our European outlet for hog products is rapidly contracting, a fact corn belt farmers might as well realize now as at any time.

Continuance of prosperity within the cattle industry will be contingent on exclusion of South American beef. Throwing down the bars to that product would precipitate another foot and mouth disease epidemic, equivalent to a national disaster. The United States government can do agriculture no better service than averting such a catastrophe.

Present livestock values have restored morale in producing circles, vastly increased agrarian buying capacity, rehabilitated credits and is exerting a favorable influence on land values. Livestock farmers are reasonably prosperous.

I venture the prediction that livestock growers will earn as many dollars in 1928 as last year. They cannot reasonably expect more.

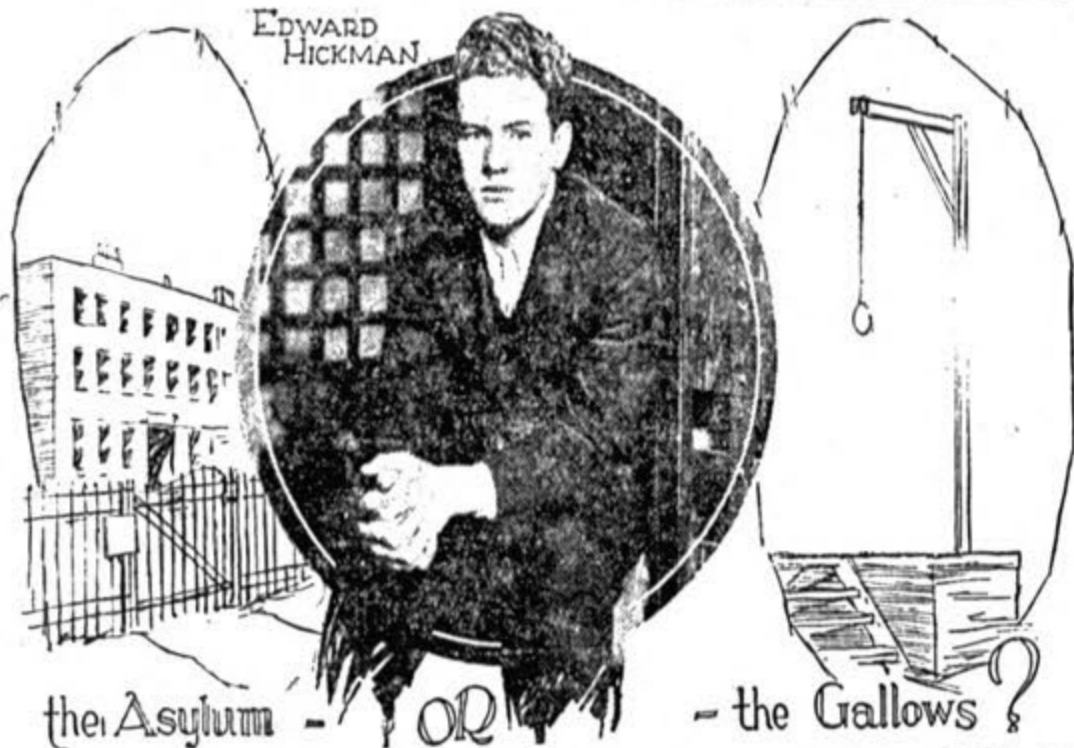

Refusals of Loans Angers Bankers at Federal Governor

Dallas, Texas (AP)—An "official manner in refusing loans" to banks which are members of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas is the charge preferred by 300 Texas bankers against Lynn P. Talley, governor of the Eleventh Federal Reserve district.

The board of directors of the Federal Reserve bank recently began an investigation of the charge. Bankers testified that Governor Talley was "abrupt, officious and completely out of harmony with the small town banker."

Frank LaValley Is 'Delivered' to Duluth Authorities

Frank LaValley, arrested here on a charge of issuing fraudulent checks, will be taken today to Duluth, where he is wanted on similar charges.

A member of the Duluth police force arrived last night to assume custody of LaValley, who it is alleged uttered worthless checks for large amounts in the Minnesota city. The activities of the former Marinette resident were stopped before he had succeeded in defrauding Escanaba and Gladstone merchants of much money. He deposited $25 in the Gladstone State Savings bank, but as far as could be learned he had overdrawn his account for about only $5 when he was arrested. As the Duluth authorities appear to have a better case against LaValley, it was decided to turn him over to them.

INDEPENDENCE BLUE.

A wool voile sports frock with flared skirt and nipped in at the waist bodice comes in the new Independence blue. The belt is of darker blue suede.

JABOT COAT.

A fine tweed coat in heather shades has jabots of shaded silk hanging from its rolling revers. This feminine touch is typical of spring styles.

TURQUOISE BLUE.

The vogue for blue extends into spring. A turquoise blue crepe blouse, with a stock collar, completes a black faille ensemble.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. RIESINGER, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose? Health? Happiness? Wealth? That's the best gift. Health is richest that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

Modern SAVING

Nowadays modern savings requires systematic effort. Hit and miss banking accomplishes nothing for the man who wants to get somewhere. We have a plan that will appeal to you if you want something to show for your efforts.
