HARRY HILL IN WITNESS CHAIR

Youth Tells How He Was Abused by Seattle Officers

Ottawa, Ill., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Harry Hill, smiling and confident, electrified the crowded, drab little court room here today by climbing unexpectantly into the witness chair to tell Judge Joseph Davis, in the absence of the jury, what Seattle police did to him when he was arrested there last fall.

The spectacular move of the defense was to counteract the effect of a story which Detective Captain William Kent from the western city, planned to tell, and also to attempt to show Harry made statements under duress without the advice of friends or attorneys.

To settle the point, Judge Davis excused the jury and the state put the captain of detectives upon the stand. Kent testified he had not abused Harry and so far as he knew the youth had not been mistreated at the hands of others.

Hill then hustled to the seat beside the judge and told his story.

Abused By Officers

"I was arrested about 9 in the evening and given nothing to eat until 4:30 the next afternoon," said the Streator youth accused of shooting his elderly mother and burying her body in the basement of her home.

"They swore at me; called me vile names, kicked me, struck me, and pushed me up and down until I was worn out."

"I was by attorneys, Hill repeated the profanity he remembered being directed at him.

"One man gave me a cigarette and another knocked it out of my mouth and burned me. I asked to see the chief of detectives but they ignored me. I had nothing to confess and so I said nothing. It was cold and they took my coat away because they said it had a blood stain on it. They kept asking me about what I had been doing in August and all the time were pointing to a September calendar. I got so confused I couldn't answer correctly."

Jury May Hear Story

He said he admitted his identity because he knew the detectives had found Illinois license plates in his hotel room at Seattle.

When taken before Captain Kent, Harry said, he did not tell him of the abuse at the hands of subordinate detectives, "because I had already told a Captain Little about it."

Harry admitted Kent treated him kindly.

Judge Davis reserved decision until tomorrow as to whether he would permit Kent to tell his story of Hill's arrest to the jury.

ment loan in the Free State and in America was issued at ninety-seven, two points higher than the first loan. Some months ago we feared that it might have to be offered at some points less than the first loan but the state has weathered recent storms with remarkable pluck and coolness. The successful flotation in America will obviously increase the value of the home part of the loan. The first loan went up to one hundred and two, five points higher than the price of the present issue, and with the rather normal state of affairs at present and the obvious rise of an optimistic spirit throughout all classes in the community, the prospects of the present loan are decidedly rosy."

Political Stability.

So new states thus find it important that the world should learn of its political stability and be impressed by it, that credit may remain unimpaired. These are crucial days for the Free State because the whole world is looking on as the government leaders in Dublin wrestle with problems not far different than those that have confronted struggling republics in their infancy. The American government has extended the hand of friendship as well as moral support through its recognition of the head of the Irish Free State—a fact that is of psychological importance because the United States is leading the world in capital funds advanced to foreign countries.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Definite action in the search for Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith college student, was promised by Gen. Alfred F. Foot, state commander of public safety, when he arrived here today and took command of the investigation. Mrs. St. John Smith, mother of the girl, in her first public statement, made today to newspaper men, said she was positive her daughter was alive.

"I am sure Frances is alive," she said. "She was a delicate, sensitive soul. I believe she ran away because she felt certain she would fail in her mid-year examinations. I am sure she is hiding somewhere and that we will hear from her. I must keep up my courage."

Weather conditions again held up search of the Connecticut river by the state police.

UNIVERSITY HONORS PRESIDENT COSGRAVE

Washington, Jan. 26.—(AP)—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State Executive council today entered the select circle upon which Catholic university has conferred honorary degrees.

Beneath the blended colors of Ireland and the United States, the executive received the honorary degree of doctor of laws after listening to laudations which linked his name with the tireless band which fought for Irish freedom.

The degree, the third of its kind to be bestowed the first going to Cardinal Mercier and the second to King Albert of Belgium, was conferred by Archbishop Curley, chancellor of the University, who declared that "seven centuries of suffering have at last found surcease."

The archbishop declared that the soul of Ireland, never for moment enslaved, has carried the proud little nation through its trials. Ireland has taken its place among the nations of the world, he said; received the cordial felicitations of world "as it stepped out of the dark."

President Cosgrave responded briefly said that the bestowal of the degree "increases the debt of gratitude my nation owes this country of free men."

Any misgiving upon receiving the honor, Mr. Cosgrave added, were "because some of my countrymen much more worthy than I have not been spared to receive such a token of esteem."

ATTACK, DEFEND NAVAL OFFICER

House Debates Over Admiral Plunkett's Recent Statements

Washington, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Plunkett, commander of the Brooklyn navy yard, whose recent remarks regarding the possibility of war inferentially were applied at the White House was attacked and defended today on the floor of the house.

Leading the attack was Representative McClintic, Democrat, Oklahoma, a member of the naval committee, who said it "was a pitiful situation when the president of the United States feels that it is necessary to deny sentiments expressed by a man of such high rank as Admiral Plunkett that the country should prepare for war."

Representative Black, a New York Democrat, defended Plunkett and assailed what he termed was "the unfair view expressed at the White House."

McClintic charged that high navy officers play an important role in guiding the American foreign policy and said such officers should be removed. His statements were supported by Representative LaGuardia, Republican, New York.

Outburst Caused Stir.

Black proceeded to charge that foreign policy was often directed by Secretary Hoover and denied that Plunkett's purpose either was in the interest of foreign policy or increased appropriations for naval construction.

Citing also Admiral Hughes' statement regarding a $3,000,000,000 construction program, McClintic said naval officers were "trying to show to congress that our commerce is so important that it must be protected at all costs."

"In marked contrast to this policy," he added, "the nation is confronted with an outburst from a naval officer which, according to the press has created one of the greatest stirs ever witnessed in European countries."

Black Lauds Admiral.

"Such idiotic, assinine outbursts puts this nation in bad repute with other nations of the world, and instead of increasing our commerce with friendly nations, this admiral's prophecy has the effect of curtailing and destroying satisfactory trade relations."

Black, who represents a Brooklyn district in the house, reviewed the admiral's service in the navy and lauded his judgment and ability. He said he was a personal friend of the officer who was soon to retire from the navy, and therefore had no direct interest in the building program.

GOOD IS GIVEN STIFF SENTENCE

Good's only statement when asked by the court if he had anything to say. He then was returned to the county jail where he had been confined since his conviction.

Good was convicted of plotting the burglary of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Small, his former friends, here, May 31, 1926. Mrs. Small was robbed in her home of jewelry valued at $1,500 by Albert Dabus, now a prison convict, who later turned state's evidence and named Good as the instigator of the crime. He testified he turned the loot over to Good and that Good pawned the jewelry in New York.

Motion is Overruled

In his denunciation of the representative, Judge Hunt likened Good to Judas Iscariot and Benedict Arnold. He told Good he not only betrayed the voters who elected him to office but also betrayed Mrs. Small, who had reposed confidence in him.

Before passing sentence, Judge Hunt overruled a motion by Lester S. Moll, attorney for Good, asking that sentence be deferred thirty days from the date of conviction to allow time for filing with the state supreme court an application for a writ of error. Moll did not announce whether the case would be appealed.

Good will remain a member of the legislature until the next general election unless there should be a special session and his office would be declared vacant by the house of representatives, according to Attorney General W. W. Potter.

"Under the constitution each house of the legislature is the judge of the qualification of its members to hold office," Potter said. "Naturally a member cannot serve in the legislature and serve a prison term at the same time. In case of a special session, Representative Good's office could be declared vacant by the house."

LINDY RESUMES GOODWILL TOUR

American Aviator Reaches Colombia City After Leaving Panama

Cartagena, Colombia, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, fresh from his ten-day vacation in Panama, today was off again on his good-will tour that will carry him to the Pan-American conference at Havana. The American air hero left Colon at 9:16 this morning and 4 hours and 30 minutes later came to earth at the Boca Grande flying field outside of Cartagena. He estimated the hop at 400 miles.

It was the first time the people of South America had an opportunity to greet the flyer whose exploits in North America, Central America and Europe had thrilled them so often. Nor were the South Americans behind their brothers of the other continents in their enthusiasm for the American aviator. Guns boomed, bands played and the spectators shouted in greeting.

As the famous Spirit of St. Louis came into sight over the city at 1:45 p. m., the spectators broke into enthusiastic cheers. Factory whistles and train whistles shrieked and the sirens of the ships in the bay added to the clamor which continued until he landed.

Smilingly Lindbergh climbed from the cockpit of his plane and was welcomed by the official delegation which had been selected yesterday, when it became known that he would stop here en route to Bogota, the capital of Colombia.

Walking through the great crowds of spectators, Colonel Lindbergh entered an automobile with the governor of the state of Bolivar and several high public officers. Later he went to the suburb of Isla de Manana, where he was the guest of H. O. Ware, an American business man.

Later he became the chief of police of a small town near Estel, during that time a crime was committed. The conservatives blamed Aquiles and denied justice, he fled in fear of assassination."

Marines Advancing

"My son was well known by the American marines, receiving their approbation when he was chief of police. He wrote me last week that he is still in hiding and is willing to surrender to the marines. I cautioned him after the Tiptapa facts, (arranged by Henry L. Stimson, personal representative of President Coolidge) to discontinue fighting, which he did. Knowing Sandino's feelings toward me, it is quite improbable that he would have my son under him."

Last reports from Nueve Segovia say that the American marines are advancing slowly up the slopes of El Chipote, the former stronghold of Sandino.

STRONGHOLD WIPED OUT

Managua, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Gen. Augustino Sandino's last known stronghold on El Chipote mountain, has been wiped out by U. S. marines.

Airplanes returning from a flight over El Chipote today reported that a column of 400 men under Major Archibald Young had reached the crest of the mountain, destroying the rebel general's fortifications on the way.

Sandino fled to El Chipote after the marines took Quilali, his former headquarters, from him in a battle December 30. All Chipote was heavily bombarded about two weeks ago and Sandino's forces are believed to have scattered in small bands afterward. At the same time Sandino was reported to have been killed, but marine headquarters believes he was only wounded.

No Marine Losses.

Marines have been advancing cautiously up the slopes of El Chipote since then, and there has been sporadic resistance by Sandinistas, but opposition has

TWO MARINES WOUNDED

AUTOMOBILE HAS MORE COMFORTS

Luxuries Are Features of All New Models at Detroit Show

Detroit, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Exhibitors at the 27th annual auto show are virtually unanimous in ascribing the enthusiasm over the driving comfort which they say is a common feature of the new models.

One feature attracting interest in the appearance of the shoe-length foot throttle designed to make for driving comfort and a steadier gas feed.

Where the rumble seat has reappeared it has been improved both in riding quality and in leg room. It is regarded as a regular feature of the standard coupe. In addition to its place on the sport roadster. A new feature in the roadsters is a divergence from the plain tops to a type which comes to pieces in sections and is placed in a compartment in the back of the front seat.

Expect Biggest Year

Huge crowds continued to throng convention hall to view the exposition today and the 100,000 attendance mark was passed. Women, exhibitors said, continue to predominate in the crowds.

Predictions by business experts that 1928 will be the biggest year in the history of the automobile industry are supported by prospect lists being obtained by the exhibitors, they said.

Conferences of dealers and engineers of the city automotive engineers and the Michigan Automotive Trades association have featured in connection with the show.

The Michigan association announced election of officers for the year as follows:

Joseph Thompson, Ypsilanti, re-elected president; Albert P. Parfet, Port Huron, president; John W. Neuman, Detroit, secretary. New directors are Fred Kramer, Grand Rapids; Harry H. Parker, Kalamazoo; Robert H. Alber, Ann Arbor; Guy S. Gardner, Saginaw, and R. B. Dadds, Detroit.

PREHISTORIC CANAL

Alamogordo, N. M.—A crude irrigation canal, apparently the work of aboriginal hands, has been found in the Lincoln national forest.

It is believed to have been once a channel in the earth which carried water to a prehistoric town. It is three-quarters of a mile long and leads from a small spring. Sedimentary deposits made by flowing water were in evidence, although there apparently had been no water in the ditch for many years.

Foresters who found it could not estimate how old it might be.

U. S. LEADING WOOD GROWER

New Government Bulletin Reviews Forest Resources

"A proposal that the United States abandon one-sixth of her territory to foreign powers would be met with instant and general disapproval. The American people would not hesitate to sacrifice millions of lives and countless treasure, if necessary, to prevent such a surrender. Yet practically as great a loss in national wealth and income would be suffered if all the privately owned forest land of the country were allowed gradually to lapse into an idle, unproductive condition—the actual condition of many thousand square miles today—and if the forests of other countries were called upon to furnish the wood that American forests have hitherto produced."

So say Raphael Zon, director of the Lake States Forest Experiment Station, and William N. Sparhawk, forest economist in the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. These two foresters are co-authors of "America and the World's Woodpile," just off the Government presses.

The new circular presents a brief and popular review of the forest resources and requirements of the United States and the other countries. Although the whole of North America contains only about 19 per cent of the world's forest lands, the foresters point out, the United States is, and probably will continue to be, the world's champion wood user. This country now consumes as much saw timber as all the rest of the world combined, and of the world's total wood requirements, including saw timber together with firewood and similar small material, the United States takes two-fifths.

The United States must declare forest independence, the circular declares. The world's appetite for timber is growing, and competition, particularly for softwoods, will naturally become more intense as the needs of the consuming countries grow and as the reserves diminish. Of 580,000 square miles of privately owned forest land in the United States, some 125,000 square miles already have ceased to be productive and a much larger area is producing only partial wood crops. The unproductive land is being abandoned, not because of any serious difficulty in keeping it productive, nor because the way to keep it productive is not known, but primarily because its owners doubt whether timber growing will pay. The authors of "America and the World's Woodpile" believe that timber growing under proper forestry methods certainly can be made profitable.

Independent of World
"It is clear," they declare, "that the United States can be entirely independent of other regions for her ordinary timber needs. She has vast forest-producing areas that are not required for agriculture. She has climate, soil, and a great variety of fast-growing and valuable timber trees, probably unequaled by any other country in either Temperate Zone. She has the largest market for forest products right at home. It would be folly to throw away these wonderful natural opportunities and economic advantages. It would be worse than folly to rely upon distant and possibly illusory timber supplies, and to make future generations of Americans depend upon foreign countries for essential materials than can be produced to advantage at home."

Copies of this pamphlet published as Department of Agriculture Circular No. 21-C, may be obtained free of charge, by writing to the department at Washington, D. C.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

From hundreds of different coffees... a few were chosen and mingled

A SPECIAL shade of mellow richness which no single coffee grown could yield! This was what Joel Cheek set out to create years ago in the old South. What uncounted natural flavors he had to choose from! Syrupy, rich coffee from the East Indies, winy "acid" coffee from Arabia—hundreds of different kinds and grades of coffee from the tropical fields of four continents. Down in that land of good living—in old Tennessee, Joel Cheek worked long months combining and recombining, testing and rejecting. In the full-bodied goodness of the blend which he created is the very genius of the man himself. Today that touch of extra richness in his blend has won it such fame as never before came to a coffee. The news of that mellow shade of difference in Maxwell House Coffee has travelled swiftly from the South through the entire United States. It is now by far the largest selling coffee in the country. An adventure awaits you in your first taste of the smooth, rich liquor of this blend. Maxwell House will give you a new idea of how good a cup of coffee can really be.

Automatic Register of Tide Levels New Invention Abroad

London—An automatic tide level indicator, considered a great improvement over any existing type, has been produced and is being exhibited in London.

The device consists of an illuminated indicator, constructed to show the height of the tide at any time during the day or night. On the model the figures when magnified for night reading are 22 inches long and can be deciphered from a ship or a land station at long distances.

The recording figures and marks for night use are projected on a glass screen high above water level, or, when fixed ashore, on to the window of any existing look out or signal station. The dimensions of the figures may be enlarged as required. The indicator works automatically and continuously and can be installed on any site where access to the rising and falling of the water is available for the necessary float.

Unique Races in Aquatic Sports

Berlin—Sausages and burning candles have been pressed into the service of juvenile aquatic sports in Berlin.

At swimming meets conducted in the big natatorium of Luna Park, Berlin's Coney Island, one of the events for youngsters prescribes that the boys and girls shall carry a burning candle from one end of the swimming tank to the other. Arrived at the further end, they must eat a sausage dangling from a fishing rod, then return with the burning candle to the starting point. The prize is awarded to the lad or lass who succeeds in reaching the tape first with the light still burning and with the sausage successfully masticated.

Both the audience and the contestants get a great kick out of this novel form of contest. Even the slowest of contestants is sure of the consolation prize of a "hot dog."

Abundance of Mortgage Money for 1928-Babson

Babson Park, Florida, Jan. 27.—Statistics clearly indicate a strong likelihood of an abundant supply of mortgage money during 1928. It is quite natural that this should be the case considering the general plethora of capital now seeking investment. For the first time in our financial history the banks, building and loan associations, and other institutions engaged in loaning money on real estate are hard put to find enough mortgages to absorb funds which they have on hand for that purpose. Recently in talking with the manager of a building and loan association doing business in an Eastern city, I was surprised to learn that of all the cooperative banks and savings associations in that city he was the only one that had succeeded in placing all the money it desired to in mortgages.

"Pressure of capital for real estate investment continues in spite of the staggering sums already tied up in mortgages. Figures show over $6,525,000,000 by building and loan associations alone. Most of this money, represents mortgages on homes and such mortgages are being paid off in regular installments. About $3,500,000,000 has been placed in real estate mortgage bonds for building construction in the past 9 years. Entirely apart from this the insurance companies and banks hold realty loans estimated to exceed $10,000,000,000. No estimate can be made of the amount of mortgages held by private individuals on local property, but it is a tremendous sum. The national banks are restricted by law in the amount of money they can lend on real estate, but since the passage of the McFadden Act they have greater freedom in this respect. It is interesting to note the remarkable increase in real estate bonds held by the national banks. In 1918 they held $185,000,000 and in 1927, $725,000,000 an increase of over 390 per cent. All the member banks of the Federal Reserve System show increased real estate bond holdings from $460,000,000 in 1918 to $2,930,000,000 this year. Being so heavily involved in real estate the banks naturally are watching conditions carefully and are anxious to prevent overbuilding.

Money for Home Building Most Easily Obtained.

"In analyzing reports which I have received from the Chambers of Commerce in the leading cities of the country, I find that money for home building is the class most easily obtained. Fully one-half of these cities state that money to be used in building houses is more freely offered than for other purposes. Personally, I do not know where you will find a better security for your money than that offered by a young man of good character borrowing to build his own home. Investors in real estate should remember that it is not the number of people in a city that makes values, but the character of the people. A citizen of questionable character moving into a community actually lowers the value of the adjacent real estate. Conversely a man of good character entering a neighborhood tends to increase the value. The value of any mortgage depends not only on the real property behind it, but to a large extent on the character of the borrower. An investor in local real estate mortgages, therefore, has a distinct advantage in being able to know not only the value of the property, but the kind of man to whom he is loaning his money.

"Mortgage money for the construction of apartment houses, offices, stores, etc., comes next in abundance. 66 per cent of all the cities show more mortgage money available at the present time than a year ago. 33 per cent show the situation unchanged from last year; and only 1 out of the entire number of cities shows less money available. Other reports which I have received indicate that in the larger cities there is more capital seeking loans than in the smaller cities and towns. In fact, all in sections with over 500,000 population the reports uniformly show a surplus of real estate money available. In cities of from 100,000 to 200,000, 77 per cent show capital in excess of loans; 19 per cent show a condition of equilibrium and only 4 per cent show a condition of loans seeking capital. In the smaller cities of 25,000 and less the surplus of mortgage money is not so great. 47 per cent of such cities and towns show more money than demand; 27 per cent show equilibrium; and 26 per cent show greater demand than supply.

Rates Vary in Different Localities

"In considering these reports I find wide variation in the rates paid in different sections of the country; also there is a differential between rates of large loans for big projects and ordinary loans for house building or small apartments, stores, etc.. 58 of the cities reporting show rates of 6 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent for ordinary loans. This is the average. On the other hand, I notice 24 cities with rates from 5 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent and 3 cities with rates of 4 1/2 per cent. However, these latter loans are for larger projects. Although the average is 6 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent there are 22 cities reporting

7 per cent. It is also a rather surprising fact that 16 cities report 8 per cent and 1, 12 1/2 per cent.

"In certain sections of the South and West absolutely good mortgages are available to yield from 7 per cent to 8 per cent. In loaning money on mortgages how present. My information is being pretty well liquidated. At the present time business as indicated by the Babsonchart is running 2 per cent. below normal."

Boys' Club Leader Visits Here Today

M. L. Wright, boys' club leader, will be in the county today to hold meetings with the Handicraft clubs at Garden, Nahma and Perkins. County Agent Joseph E. Turner will accompany Mr. Wright on his tour about the county.

The tour of the rural boys' and girls' club train, sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Development bureau, will be carried out March 25 to April 21, inclusive, it was announced. The train will be assembled at Marquette, and a program of addresses, demonstrations, motion pictures and exhibits will be arranged for the benefit of the residents of the various communities where the special will stop.

"The bureau, extension forces of the state college and railroads have two objects in view in running this train," said George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Development bureau. "We want a largely increased membership in upper peninsula boys and girls rural clubs and we desire to stimulate and to increase local leadership in these clubs. They are doing great work for the future of agriculture in this district and they are worthy of the best help we can give them."

where he is acquainted with the property, knows the character of the man to whom he is loaning, and is in a position to keep in touch with the local real estate market. There may be also some bargains in farm mortgages at present. My information is being pretty well liquidated. At the present time business as indicated by the Babsonchart is running 2 per cent. below normal."

"I believe that as long as money continues plentiful for real estate financing, building operations will be carried on in large volume. By this I do not mean that building will necessarily be as large as it was in 1926 or in 1927. There is evidence that the keen edge of the demand has been dulled and some tendency toward decline is noted. Nevertheless, 1928 will not be a poor building year by any means and the principal factor for sustaining it will be plentiful money at easy rates. I do not believe, however, that this plentiful money supply is an unmitigated blessing. It is quite evident that the competition for mortgages by surplus capital has in a number of instances over-ridden certain normal safeguards in real estate financing. Loans have been based on a too liberal appraisal in a number of cases. Other abuses have crept in. Overbuilding has been stimulated in certain sections. In buying real estate bonds in particular one should scrutinize the properties with great care and be sure that the issuing house is reliable and prepared to back up its obligations. Personally, when one is going to invest in mortgages, I recommend that he consider individual loans on private homes

CONCERT TRIO AT AUDITORIUM

Heralded as artists of unusual ability, the Garay Sisters concert trio will appear at the Manistique high school auditorium tonight as one of the regular numbers of the local inco-cum series. The company includes Elizabeth Garay, violinist, Yolanda Garay, violinist, and an able accompanist at the piano.

Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, has been secured as the next number of the course, and will appear here Monday, speaking on the topic "Twenty Million Hero Worshipers."

Branch Rickey is not only one of the big men in the management of the Cardinals, but he is also one of the big men in organized baseball today.

Branch Rickey has won a reputation not only as a man of ability in baseball circles, but also as one of the straightest and squarest men in diamond affairs.

His talk here will deal notably with his conception of ideals in sport. He shows that the fair sport also win the prizes in some things that win a contest in the game of life. In Mr. Rickey's phenomenal rise in the baseball world he has stood for the highest of ideals. It is interesting to know that from the time he first entered baseball as a player he made it a point never to play in a Sunday game.

MUD RUSH AT GERO.
The mud rush is the newest motion picture thrill producer in "Framed." Milton Sills feature showing at the Gero theater tonight.

A mud rush in a tropical diamond mine bears no relation to cold rushes or land rushes! It is a mine disaster, always feared in the regions where it occurs, because it is so swift and deadly in its action.

In certain tropical regions, there is a layer of soil kept fairly solid by occasional sun-bakings, and under it is semi-liquid mud in a thick layer. This mud exerts a pressure like that of water on deep mine tunnels.

When it breaks through, it fills up those tunnels, and then traps the men working in them.

Sills and his leading lady, Natalie Kingston, are caught in a "blind" tunnel by a mud rush, realistically reproduced for "Framed." They make their escape after the deadly ooze has engulfed them shoulder-high.

No Ice Needed at Manistique During Prohibition Times

Although Manistique has a winter climate suited to the natural production of ice, this city has not yet been assured of an adequate ice supply for the coming summer, and a number of refrigerator owners are expressing their anxious worries on the subject. Ice houses supplying local business concerns and their employees are to be filled as usual, but there has been as yet no announcement of parties planning to provide for the general public trade.

Assurance is given, however, that there will be plenty of ice for local needs, and it is understood that certain individuals are now arranging for storage of several thousand cakes.

GENE INSISTS ON TWO FIGHTS DURING SUMMER BY NEA Service

Tunney also realizes that two fights a year instead of one will mean also about twice as much revenue.

Books

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY
We have approached gingerly the task of talking about Isadore Duncan's autobiography, "My Life" (Boni, Liveright). To us it is one of the most moving human records we ever have encountered. But we don't expect to be agreed with unanimously.

When Isadore Duncan met her queer death in Paris several months ago, she had long since cut herself loose from what the world thought or felt about her or anything else. One never could accuse her of caution, or even of being right in the conventional sense of the word. Invariably she did the wrong thing, from the standpoint of conformity.

The faith she followed was of her own making. She was even reckless—and as fated a person as has lived in our time. She was even a foolish woman; she also, was generous, sincere, intense, glamorous, pagan.

Even in this epitaph, or obituary, or whatever you care to call her book, she is characteristically inartistic. She doesn't care what she tells about herself. You'll never read a franker, more revealing document. But if you can catch her nature on the wing—and thus you must catch it—you will not be shocked. You may be, even as we were, made to see a woman who suffered a bit more than most, who was most rebellious when most torn and bewildered.

This is one of those strange books of which it can be said that you will carry away just about what you take to it. We have no doubt that some will call it "sensational reading." Certainly there is nothing stereotyped or common in what Isadore has to say. Sensational or not—she was never cheap. Her confused and torn soul was behind whatever she did. And that's why we think this an amazing record.

The O. Henry Memorial award committee, having gathered again over the banquet boards has announced its annual prize short story selections as follows:

Roark Bradford's "Child of God" for the $500 first prize and Ernest Hemingway's "The Killers" for the second $250 prize. For the best "short story," the award goes to Louis Bromfield's "The Scarlet Woman."

These tales, and more than a dozen others, now are comfortably tucked between the covers of "Prize Stories of 1927" (Doubleday-Doran). And that seems to be that.

When, several months ago, the annual O'Brien story anthology appeared, "Child of God" leaped out of its pages and fairly snote us in the nose. It is a story, in a quaint and whimsical and strange tale of a negro youth who stands on the scaffold about to be hanged.

The nose is dropping about his neck. In a second he will be yanked into eternity. And in this second—and in the few seconds after the trap has been sprung—we are taken along with Willie on his junket into the hereafter. We are shown Willie's meeting with his God, which is a thing lifted bodily out of primitive negro psychology. Of course we don't know how much of his experiences belong to the earth and how much to the heaven has conjured up in his life time. We're glad it got a prize.

Search Vainly for Village of Dwarfs

Berlin (AP)—In Berlin movie circles there is much hilarity over a cameraman who hoped to score a heat by "shooting" a village of dwarfs for his news strip.

This enterprising movie photographer had seen a reference in an obscure corner of a Berlin daily to the dimingitive town of Lagow, near the Polish border. The reporter who wrote the item referred to Lagow as a "Lilliputian town."

This seemed like a good tip to the cameraman. A town made up of Lilliputians, of real dwarfs? Nothing could be better.

Accordingly, he turned up at Lagow, requested an audience with the Herr Burgermeister, and asked His Honor's permission to photograph the native Lilliputians. The Mayor at first thought the man a bit abnormal, but when his visitor produced the newspaper clipping roared with laughter. An hour later the joke was all over Lagow.

There will be no clinic at the Child's Welfare station, City Hall building, this afternoon. It was announced yesterday. Further announcement of resumption of the clinics will be made later.

Talks on Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

BEST WAY TO FIGHT GAS IN GARAGE IS: OPEN WINDOWS!

Some years ago various firms throughout the United States endeavored to exploit devices for the manufacture of ozone.

It was claimed that these devices could be placed in theaters, halls, or in other places where the ventilation was likely to be poor and by the supply of ozone a sufficient amount of oxygen could be produced in the air. It is now known that the difficulty under such circumstances is not with the oxygen but in most instances with the movement of the air, the humidity, and similar physical factors.

One of the most serious of modern ventilation problems is the control of poisonous carbon monoxide gas in garages. Again the ozone salesman has come to the front and many commercial garages and service stations have put in the ozone machines in the belief that the oxygen given off will convert the deadly carbon monoxide gas into the comparatively safe carbon dioxide.

Mr. C. W. Salls, technical engineer of the New York State Department of Industrial Hygiene, has just made available the results of an investigation of the practicability of such devices for the purposes for which they are sold.

He finds that the ozone generators do not convert the carbon monoxide into carbon dioxide at a rate that is fast enough or in a proportion that is complete enough to be of any practical use.

It is far better and more effective simply to open a few windows and to permit the removal of carbon monoxide by the process of natural diffusion. It may be necessary to install mechanical ventilation.

Miss Tashman, the "vamp" of the picture, wears gorgeous wedding garments in the novel series of events which makes up the climax of the unusual story.

Miss Dove, however, playing the role of a Hungarian countess, boasts a wardrobe for the picture which would stir the envy of any real title-holder.

"The Stolen Bride" was directed by Alexander Korda and produced by Carey Wilson from his own original screen story.

Lloyd Hughes plays the lead opposite Miss Dove, with Armand Kaliz, Cleve Moore, Frank Bell and others in the full supporting cast.

SENTIMENT MAY SEND TY COBB TO ST. LOUIS

By NEA Service
St. Louis, Mo.—Sentiment, said to be a missing quantity in professional sports, may play an important part in leading Ty Cobb for the St. Louis Browns this year.

Cobb has not signed with the Athletics to date, although he has been offered a contract at a salary much smaller than the one he was paid last season.

Dan Howley, manager of the Browns, and Cobb are warm friends. Howley worked as a catcher and coach under Cobb at Detroit. And, when his services as coach were not required Howley was aided in getting work at Hartford and Toronto by Cobb.

Knowing this, one can feel certain that if Cobb does play with the Browns next year sentiment will have played some part in his being there.

GLADSTONE LEADING CLASS C

The following item contained in an upper peninsula basketball summary in the Milwaukee Journal of January 24, gives the position of the Gladstone team in the rating of sports writers.

"In the C division, Gladstone takes top rank. The Bay towners gave two of the best performances in their class in Kircher, forward, and Liberty, center. The Kellmen have not been defeated this year. They humbled Escanaba on its own floor, outclassed Menominee at home and added Norway, a strong class C outfit, to its list last week, taking a 20-12 decision."

Coach Kell's Gladstone quintet has another tough game to dispose of tonight when it meets the husky Ishpeming team here on the floor of the Gladstone high school gym.

Ishpeming has one of the strongest teams on the range. It defeated Gladstone last year and there will be plenty of the old rivalry between the two schools in evidence to add to the interest of tonight's game.

Coach Kell will start his regular lineup. This includes Cleve Moore, forward, who has been a regular for the past two years, and a sub for the two years previous, and who is playing his last game for Gladstone high school. Age regulations make him ineligible after tonight.

SUZANNE TO QUIT TENNIS

Still Greatest Woman Player According to Her Father.

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer.
Nice, France—Suzanne Lenglen remains the world's greatest woman tennis player and could easily defeat Helen Wills or any other woman champion—

But Suzanne will never play tennis in public again.
These are the emphatic statements of "Papa" Lenglen at this time when the Riviera is getting interested in the series of popular tennis tournaments which are held here each year, and which reached their height with the great battle between Suzanne and Helen in 1925. But there will never be such a battle again because there is only one Suzanne and she has renounced the game.

This correspondent went to the Villa Ariem, perched on a little avenue in the hills above Nice, to ask Suzanne why she had passed out of a sport in which she was such a flaming success.

She is now living quietly with her father and mother in their charming little home which overlooks the tennis courts where her father first taught her how to wield a racket seventeen years ago. But even in this atmosphere she doesn't want to talk tennis or even meet newspapermen.

Once the most photographed woman player, she now refuses to face a camera at all. Some of her friends fear that her spirit is broken by her unhappy adventure into professionalism, but others insist that she is simply tired.

Suzanne at first refused to be seen, but finally relented long enough to say that she couldn't say anything. When she was asked if she would ever play tennis in public again, she said:
"No—Papa will tell you why. Go and see Papa."

And Papa did tell why, as follows:
"I think you may say that Suzanne will never be seen in public match play again. She has been at the game for seventeen years and all she wants now is peace and tranquillity."

"In the last few months I have had wonderful offers of professional contracts—from America, England and Germany. A big Riviera club a week ago offered her a retaining fee of $4000 until next May, with fees in addition if she would act as professional coach. Suzanne turned down all these offers. She is finished with tennis and with the crowd. She plays a little in private with friends but the gallery will never see her again."

Asked if he thought Suzanne regretted having turned professional, Papa said:
"Not at all. She came out into the open and threw off her amateur status for the sake of peace and quietness and to be able to show that the greatest woman player was not afraid to give the lead to many other so-called amateurs in openly declaring herself willing to make money out of her tennis playing."

"Until Suzanne decided to sign Pyle's contract she was never given a moment's peace. She was asked to play as an amateur here, there and everywhere, so that promoters might fill their pockets. In one week in Paris Suzanne brought in $6000 to the French Lawn Tennis Federation. How much the British public paid to see her I cannot hazard a guess, but it must have been an enormous sum."

"My daughter saw no reason why she should not pocket the dollars herself. She said so, did so, is now well off and that's all there is to it. She has given up public engagements for good and intends to spend the coming months in travel and resting up."

This would seem to settle Suzanne's tennis future. Papa Lenglen was, in addition to her trainer, her manager, and often her inspiration. In most of her big matches in Europe he was near her and she always seemed most brilliant with him looking on.

She still can beat any woman player of today, Papa says.
"Easily. Nobody could touch her. I speak as an authority on tennis of thirty years' standing. You can put parental pride aside. Suzanne Lenglen played with her brain. She could easily dispose of Helen Wills today or any other woman champion. She possesses perfect technique and a remarkable tennis brain. Had she been a man, she would have been greater than the Wildings or the Dohertys or the Tildens."

TOMBSTONES FREE TO ALL U. S. A. VETS

Washington.—"Hey, buddy! Want a tombstone?"
If you're a United States veteran—doughboy, gop or leather-neck—you have a tombstone coming from your Uncle Sam. Unlike adjusted compensation, you do not have to wait; just die and arrange for your heirs to make proper application to official channels and presto a tombstone will be shipped absolutely free of charge.

They are nice tombstones, too. The quartermaster general, to whom applications should be made, says they are cut from marble and engraved with the full name of the veteran, rank, regiment, division, state, and date of death.
Ain't that nice!

OUR FRIEND BOBBY

Here's the latest picture of Bobby Jones, world's greatest golfer and the young man who recently declined the gift of a $50,000 home in Atlanta to avoid any doubt about his amateur status. He has just embarked on a legal career, has been appointed a member of the legal staff of the Southern Railroad and has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Atlanta Trust Company.

Pan-American Meet Fails to Agree on 2 Major Questions

Havana, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Efforts of the sixth Pan-American conference to reach an accord relating to problems of frontier police and the pursuit of criminals across international boundaries definitely failed late today when the special commission on public international law turned down proposals introduced by the Argentine leader, Honorio Pueyrredon, authorizing penetration by police of one state into the territory of another whenever such action appeared to be necessary to the apprehension of fleeing criminals.

Despite warnings from Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, president of the Salvadorean legation, its chairman of the committee that should Pueyrredon's suggestion be rejected the entire matter of frontier police would be moved from the jurisdiction of the conference, the meeting voted, 12 to 9, to an amendment leaving all questions of pursuit of fugitives entirely in the hands of officials of adjoining states who must agree between themselves as to the most effective methods to be followed. The entire matter was disposed of three minutes after the opening of a special commission session, called to order late today.

CAN'T SIT DOWN?

"Perhaps she's sore about something."—Judge.

AVIATOR GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Acosta Was Flying Too Low Over City; Sought on Another Charge

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 26.—(AP)—A charge of larceny of an airplane in New Jersey has been brought against Bert Acosta, trans-Atlantic flyer, who started a five-day jail sentence here today for skimming the house tops of Naugatuck, in violation of the state aviation laws. However, Acosta is sure the larceny charge will not be pressed. He was visited at the jail by Guyas Cerrigones, head of the syndicate whose plane he is said to have stolen.

Acosta explained that the plane had been presented to him with the stipulation that it was to be used in an endurance flight which he and Clarence Chamberlain were planning. Acosta was taken ill just before the time set for the flight and Chamberlain took another partner and another plane. Acosta, tonight said he understood the agreement still stood and consequently retained possession of the plane when the owners sought to regain it.

The warrant for Acosta had not arrived here tonight, but a wire from the sheriff of Bergen county, New Jersey, asked that Acosta be held.

Was Flying Too Low.
A New Haven attorney who visited Acosta at the jail said that an effort would be made to have his five-day jail sentence shortened. Acosta was arrested by the Naugatuck police and a state aviation inspector when he landed at Bethany field there last night.

Witnesses said he had been flying very low and this Acosta explained by saying he felt "exuberant" at returning home to Naugatuck and took that way of showing it. He also told the court he would apologize and he knew that apology was not sufficient. In this the court agreed and sentenced him to jail. Court costs of $19.51 were also imposed.

Hagman-Anderson.

A pretty wedding ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hunter, 200 Bryn St., Houston, Texas, January 18th when Miss Agnes Hagman, formerly of this city and Theodore E. Anderson of Newberry were united in marriage by Rev. Johnson of Houston, Tex. Twenty-five guests attended the ceremony and dinner.

The bride was attired in powder blue georgette crepe made in basque effect and full skirt, bertha collar trimmed in point lace. The matron of honor wore a gown of flesh color and black georgette crepe trimmed in cream lace. The home was decorated in pink and white, the same color scheme being carried out in the menu served.

During the dinner, a Mexican orchestra serenaded the bridal party and they furnished music for the reception which followed.

The bride attended Cloverland College in this city and was employed by the Michigan State Highway department before going to Texas. The bride was the honor guest at several pre-nuptial functions given by friends at Houston.

Mr. Anderson is employed as mining engineer for the Providencia mines at Avalos Bacatecas, Mexico and is a graduate of Michigan Tech College at Houghton.

A series of 72-mile walking contests are being held in Calcutta and vicinity.

Men Are Inferior to Modern Women

London, England—"Men are poor creatures compared with women," said Sir William Arbuthnot-Lane, noted physician, speaking at a demonstration of the rhythmic health movement.

"It is upon the woman that the future of this country depends and we must do everything in our power to keep her physically fit," he said.

Sir William declared it is so simple to keep fit. Good, clean healthy food, fresh air and simple exercises would keep the body fit without any of the artificial means so often indulged in.
