SHEELY HAD TOUGH BREAK

Bad Bone - setting Job Slowed Infelder and Led to Release

BY BILLY EVANS
Earl Sheely, for seven years first baseman for the Chicago White Sox, has been sent to the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League. For so doing, Chicago, it is understood, gets the option on that club as to selection of players at the close of the season.

The brief paragraph, as carried by the wires the other day, tersely told the tale of the passing of a former big league star to the minors.

Fate was unkind to Earl Sheely or he would be starting in the big leagues for at least five years more. Fate came into the picture back in 1912, his first year in professional baseball. An unkind act of fate that year has been a terrific handicap ever since, yet Sheely carried on to great success.

While with Vancouver during the season of 1912, Sheely suffered a broken ankle. Whoever had charge of the injury certainly bungled the job, for Sheely's leg at the ankle assumed an almost grotesque line.

Naturally such a bad job of bone-setting prevented free action at the ankle and slowed Sheely up badly. This was far more noticeable on the bases than in the field, where his great height—six feet four inches—helped cover up the defect as to covering ground.

Sheely first came into national prominence at Salt Lake in the Coast League back in 1915. Despite four good seasons, he always battled over .300, but the leg injury caused the scouts to pass him up because of lack of speed. However, a fat mark of .371 amassed in 1919 caused the Chicago White Sox to take a chance. He has been with that club ever since. Last season, a youngster, "Bud" Clancy, was given the preference at first base, which marked the beginning of the end for Sheely as a big leaguer.

Over 22 years I have been watching the star first sackers of the majors. I have seen some wonders in Hal Chase, George Sisler, "Stuffy" McInnis, Frank Chance and others of that caliber, yet in two respects Sheely was without an equal.

During all that time, I never saw a first baseman who could compare with Sheely in making plays with the gloved hand. He was simply uncanny.

Stabbing the ball with the gloved hand, as the runner comes crashing into the first baseman, is a play at which Sheely had no equal. It is one of baseball's most difficult plays.

His other strong point was taking high or low throws. There never was a better target for the other infielders. Of course, his great height was a big asset on the wildly thrown balls, but on low balls, digging 'em out of the dirt on the short hop, he was equally proficient.

Always a .300 batsman, Sheely was a wonder on the hit-and-run play. With his wide range, due to an extra long pair of arms, it was exceedingly difficult to pitch out on him in an attempt to out-guess the hit-and-run play. In some way, he would manage to hit the ball and very often safely.

The majors will miss the passing of a player of Earl Sheely's caliber, because his standards off the field were as high as his play on the diamond. Earl Sheely was a real ball player and a gentleman.

Fate was mighty unkind to him. Only for that broken ankle which slowed him up terribly on the bases, he would still be a big league star.

STREET TO BE BALL ROOM.

Entertaining guests together and using the street as the ball room is the plan being worked out by residents of one side of North street, London. Under the shadow of Westminster, the neighbors of the small and ancient street have become well acquainted, and as their homes are too small for entertaining on a large scale, they propose to cover the pavement with an awning and throw open their respective houses, which will be used as places for sitting out. Dinner will be served in each house so that guests will have the choice of at least a dozen meals.

HIGHWAY LAW IS EXPLAINED

$2,000 Per Mile to Be Paid City for State Road Upkeep

The city of Escanaba will receive payment from the state upon the basis of approximately three miles for maintenance of state trunk line highways within the city limits under Act No. 150 of the Public Acts of 1927, which provides for the payment of a sum equal to $2000 per mile annually.

Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, makes a lengthy explanation of the law in a letter received by City Manager T. F. Kessler. Mr. Rogers pointed out that this act applies to routes within incorporated municipalities, which carry state trunk line traffic and which are marked by trunk line routing signs, but which are maintained by the municipality and not included in the trunk line system.

The city at the present time is maintaining M-35 from Butcher's Creek, through Tenth street, Ludington street, and Stephenson avenue to the north city limits, a distance of about three miles.

Payment for the first year will be a fractional one covering the period between September 5, 1927, when the law went into effect, and July 1, 1928, the beginning of the state's fiscal year.

Mr. Rogers announced that the highway department would soon make a survey of the state to determine the mileage entitled to maintenance money.

Section 19 of Act No. 150 reads as follows:

"A sum equal to two thousand dollars per mile of state trunk line highways, contained within the limits of a city or village, shall be paid to each such city or village annually, on or before August 1 of each year; provided, that said high-

Iron Trade Review

January with a pig iron total of 2,840,716 tons or an increase of 142,508 tons over December has arrested the eight month decline in production and afforded further proof of the expanding demand for iron and steel, according to Iron Trade Review of Cleveland. The month's net gain of 15 active blast furnace stacks, more than recouping the loss of capacity in the entire fourth quarter, was largely made possible by an increased activity at steelworks, although heavy shipments from merchant stockpiles indicate a much higher melt of iron by foundries.

In both pig iron and finished steel the trend of consumption continues up January steel ingot output will show further improvement and the unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corp. for Jan. 31 is expected to reveal a moderate increase despite the fact that contracting has been subordinated to specifying and the wave of 1928 rail buying is subsiding.

Starting the year at a considerably lower level than in 1927, production has overcome this handicap and almost registered the gain looked for at this season. Steel corporation subsidiaries are operating this week at about 85 per cent, contrasted with 83 per cent last week and 86 per cent a year ago. The industry as a whole, at just over 80 per cent, is only a few points below last year's rate. The Chicago district, again the pace-maker, is 5 per cent better than a year ago.

Several soft spots have developed, notably dragging specifications for sheets and tin plate in the Mahoning valley, but the strengthening price tendency is regarded as a corrective. All wire products save fencing have been marked up $2 per ton. Most makers of automobile sheets now ask 4.15¢. Pittsburgh, an advance of $3 per ton, and are standing more firmly on black sheets at 2.90¢. Pittsburgh, blue annealed at 2.10¢ and galvanized at 3.75¢. With makers of airships firm, up to 2.20¢. Plates, shapes and bars, recently advanced $1 per ton to 1.85¢. Pittsburgh, are scheduled for a further rise late in February.

Demand for automotive foundries in the Detroit and Cleveland districts have brought January shipments of pig iron well over December, and February promises further expansion. Fifty cents more, or $18, furnace, is now asked for iron at Detroit. Heavy sales in the Milwaukee district marked the week at Chicago inquiry is moderately heavier in the New York district. Pittsburgh presents a dull market, with prices unchanged. Sales in eastern Pennsylvania mounted to 40,000 tons.

January pig iron output of 2,840,716 tons compares with 2,698,208 tons in December. It is the best monthly total since last August but falls about 8 per cent short of the 3,101,346 tons of January, 1927. The January daily rate of 91,656 is the highest since September, comparing with 87,639 tons in December and 100, 043 tons last January. At the close of January 184 stacks, or 15 more than at the end of December, were in blast. Not since the last of August, when 189 stacks were active, have so many been producing.

The Iron Trade Review composite of 14 leading iron and steel products is unchanged this week at $35.45.

ENGLISH WOMEN DEFENDED.

English women are greatly agitated over the charge made by a prominent Frenchman that women are being deformed by English sports and games. The critic had been studying the fashionable French dressmakers' catalogs with their drawings of peculiar creatures with hollow chests, curved figures, sharp shoulders, curved blades and crooked legs. They shocked him, he said, and he added that as these drawings were used by English dressmakers as a general fashion guide, the English girls must like them.

THE CANARY MURDER CASE

CHAPTER XVII. "I can eliminate myself easily enough," Cleaver proclaimed, with easy confidence. "There's a speeding summons from Bonton, New Jersey. Note the date and the time: September the 10th—last night—at half past eleven. Was driving to Hopacone, and was ticketed by a motorcycle cop just as I passed Bonton and was heading for Mountain Lakes. Got to appear in court these tomorrow morning. Damn nuisance, these country constables."

He gave Markham a long, calculating look. "You couldn't square it for me, could you? It's a rotten ride to Jersey, and I've got a lot to do to-morrow."

He made a self-condemnatory grimace. "Then she began to get cool and distant; broke several appointments with me. I raised the devil with her, but the only answer I got was a demand for money."

"When was this?" There was a momentary hesitation. "Last June," Cleaver replied. Then he hurried on: "Mr. Markham—his voice was bitter—"I don't want to throw mud on a dead person; but that woman on the shrewdest, coldest-blooded black-mailer I've ever been in my life."

"No. I couldn't," Cleaver spoke regretfully. "I've seen the Canary here and there with different men; and there's one in particular I've noticed lately. But they were all strangers to me."

"No. I couldn't," Cleaver spoke regretfully. "I've seen the Canary here and there with different men; and there's one in particular I've noticed lately. But they were all strangers to me."

"You think, then, her death may have been due to vengeance on the part of some disillusioned admirer?" Cleaver carefully considered his answer.

"There was a short silence; then Markham asked: 'Do you happen to know of a young man she was interested in—a good-looking, small, blond mustache, light blue eyes—named Skeel?'"

"You think, then, her death may have been due to vengeance on the part of some disillusioned admirer?" Cleaver carefully considered his answer. "Seems reasonable," he said finally. "She was riding for a fall."

August Olson, 325 South Eighteenth street, an employe of the C. & N. W. Ry. Co. for the past 35 years and eleven months, was pensioned in January under the provision known as disability pension. Mr. Olson was forced to resign owing to asthma which has afflicted him for number of years. He is about every day and is feeling fine at the present time.

Mr. Olson was born in Vermland, Sweden, March 17, 1860, and came to this city in 1888. He worked about the city for three years and in March, 1889, entered the employ of the C. & N. W. Ry. Co. in the bridge and building department.

After a number of years in this line of work he was transferred to the roundhouse where he did various kinds of work and was efficient in all work connected with that department. Later, he was promoted to the position of locomotive car-penter in the car department and was in this department when his health failed.

Mr. Olson received word of his pension recently and also received a letter from F. W. Sargent, president of the C. & N. W., who wished him complete recovery from his illness and also congratulated him on his many years of service.

Mr. Olson has resided at 325 South Eighteenth street for the past 35 years, having built the home when the west side of this city was not yet platted in streets, and a trail led to the home which is now in one of the choicest residential districts.

JACK FROST TO BE A TEACHER

Engineers Call on Enemy to Help Solve Riddle.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Science Editor)
Cambridge, Mass.—Civil engineers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology are gunning for Jack Frost, that elusive imp who plays such havoc with highways in northern climates.

They have prepared several ambushes for him in New England and hope this winter to wrest from him the secret of how he spoils improved roads.

This destructive prank, known to the profession as heaving, is not fully understood by engineers, but it causes large annual repair bills in the colder states. In order to get a clear conception of the inside process of heaving, the federal bureau of public roads, in cooperation with Technology experts, has selected several New England sites at which careful observations of the upward and downward movement of the soil are being made this winter.

Soil Samples.
Samples of soil taken at various stages of the experiments will be sent to laboratories at the institute and at the University of South Carolina where research workers will study the distribution of the ice layers and crystals and will endeavor to duplicate in the laboratory the freezing conditions that exist in nature.

Dr. Charles Terzaghi, an associate professor in the department of civil engineering at Technology, says that little or nothing is known either about the freezing of soil or the cause of excessive heaving of roads on clay beds.

"We only know," he explains, "that during the frost season fairly large pockets and thick layers of ice form in soil. But we don't know from where the water comes or whether the seat of heaving is near the surface or at a greater depth."

"It has been generally believed that the heaving due to frost was exclusively caused by the expansion of the water associated with freezing. If all the water contained in the voids of the soil down to a depth of four or five feet should freeze the heaving due to expansion could not possibly exceed about one and a half inches. As a matter of fact, the heaving of roads resting on fine sands does not exceed this amount.

"However, for roads on clay soils conditions are altogether different. According to the results of investigations at the Michigan state college of agriculture, only about half of the water contained in the voids of a dense clay can freeze. Nevertheless, the heaving of roads resting on soils of that type sometimes even exceeds five inches and in addition is occasionally very unequal, the heaving being concentrated at different localities.

"Hence there is no doubt that the freezing of clay soils must be associated with the continuous feeding of water towards the freezing zones. But very little is known concerning the source of this water supply."

"The first reasonable theories on the process of freezing in clays were advanced by Professor Stephen Taber of the University of South Carolina. Therefore that institution was chosen by the Bureau of Public Roads as a center for the investigation."

The tests to be made this winter are part of a program of scientific soil studies undertaken some time ago by the Bureau in cooperation with Technology. These experiments, made with hundreds of soil samples obtained in many countries, are designed to develop standard methods of testing soils so that road surfaces may be scientifically adapted to their bases. The samples are examined to determine their compressibility, elastic properties, permeability and other characteristics.

BLOW AT PAN UNION TO BE TURNED ASIDE

MORROW RETURNS TO OFFICE IN MEXICO

BY DAVID LAWRENCE. (Copyright 1928, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, Jan. 31.—With Ambassador Morrow back in Mexico City some important developments in the relations of Mexico and the United States are expected.

Incidentally the first since the early return of Ambassador Morrow to Mexico City the Pan American conference in Havana has cleared away, now it is apparent that Mr. Morrow's return to Mexico City is more in Mexico City than in Havana to keep the Mexican government from disturbing the continuity of the conference.

Considered on Monday. The proposals of the delegates at Havana as considered on their meeting the United States delegation not lining themselves up in opposition to the suggestion made, preferring to leave it to other countries to decide whether for instance, a rotating system of chairmen and a rotating appointment of a director-general would promote efficiency or interfere with the continuity of the Pan American Union's operation.

Opposition. There is enough opposition to kill the proposal of the character of the Pan American Union, opposition comes from other countries of the United States. If the delegates should propose this and this is not approved of the assurances given President Calles, it is felt that Mr. Morrow in Mexico could receive suggestions from Washington which would help him to discuss them directly with the Mexican government temporarily with the conference.

Buck, who signed the statement as "Manager of the Lowden Campaign," said that nomination papers now were being circulated in Illinois and that Lowden thus will become the first candidate to file in any primary. Declaring that prospects for Lowden's nomination at the forthcoming Republican convention in Kansas City, "never were so good," Buck predicted that the former Illinois governor will have considerable eastern support.

Auto Collides With Truck, Man Killed. Detroit, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Fataally injured early today when a car in which he was riding collided with a truck near New Hudson, Mich., Jennings Crum, 35, died in a hospital four hours later. Russell Machette, driver of the car, was seriously injured.

Green Considering Detroit's Request for Extra Session. Detroit, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Gov. Fred W. Green is giving every consideration to the request of the Detroit city council that he call a special session of the state legislature, the governor said in a letter received here today. He did not indicate when he would reach a definite decision. The council is seeking a special session to obtain enactment of a bill which would help the city to overcome a financial shortage for street-widening projects.

Hospitals Are Overcrowded. Lansing, Jan. 31.—(AP)—State hospitals so overcrowded that insane patients must virtually be left on the door steps, was the picture drawn in a letter received today by W. W. Potter, attorney general, from Dr. Herman Ostrander, superintendent of the Kalamazoo hospital. Dr. Ostrander requested an opinion as to whether the county would force him to take inmates when he has no room for them. The attorney general replied he would accept them. If patients are dangerously insane they should be confined in jails or elsewhere, but there is nothing in the law compelling state institutions to accept them when the hospitals already are jammed to capacity, the attorney general held. Dr. Ostrander declared that Kalamazoo county has indicated insistence upon delivering patients even though informed there was no place for them in the hospital.

C. S. CURTIS TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Veteran Associated Press Man in Methodist Pulpit

Special services will be held both morning and evening in the First Methodist church. A feature of the morning service will be the first appearance of a vested choir. The choir contains some of the best voices in the city and special music will be presented both morning and evening. The vesting for the choir was made by the Ladies' Aid society.

The attraction in the evening will be a lecture, "Structures Above Ground," by C. S. Curtis, of the Associated Press. Mr. Curtis, who at present is telegraph operator in the Daily Press office, has been in Escanaba only a short time but he has had a remarkably interesting career, covering thirty years in almost as many states. He first entered the service of the Associated Press in 1891 in New York City and has since had some of the outstanding statesmen and public men of the last quarter-century. He was a newspaper witness to the execution of Leon Czolgosz, murderer of President McKinley, and he has interviewed scores of world famous persons.

Mr. Curtis is widely known as a lecturer and speaker on business, journalistic and religious topics.

Rev. R. C. G. Williams, pastor of the church, said last night: "I have no hesitancy in predicting that Mr. Curtis with his general knowledge of things, his fine personality and Christian spirit, will bring to us a message that not only will thrill us but satisfy both mind and soul."

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.
Another youthful screen team has stepped to the fore to take its place in the film firmament! They are Frank Marion and Virginia Bradford, whose performances in "The Country Doctor," led to their selection for the leading role in "The Wreck of the Hesperus," now at the Delft. Elmer Clifton who made the sea classic "Down to the Sea in Ships," directed.

"The Wreck of the Hesperus" was prepared for the screen by Harry Carr and John Farrow from Longfellow's famous ballad. Others prominent in the cast are Alan Hale, Sam DeGrasse, Francis Ford, Ethel Wales and Josephine Norman.

AT THE STRAND.
Foregoing much of the melodrama which distinguished his "Long Pants," and other productions, Harry Langdon specialized in laughs in his new photoplay, "Three's a Crowd" now at the Strand.

The work of Gladys McConnell, "Baby Star," who is Langdon's romantic vis-a-vis in the new picture, adds much to the entertainment value of the film.

The story of "Three's a Crowd" has been in Langdon's possession for several years.

New chapters of "The Mashed Menace" also are being shown.

Employment Conditions Below Normal—Babson

Babson Park, Florida, Feb. 3—"My study of the employment situation today convinces me that we need some great new industry of group of industries to absorb the workers who are being displaced by labor saving machinery. I heartily agree with Secretary of Labor Davis in his statement that we must before long have such industries to take care of at least 5,000,000 workers. Some of the new machinery that is being put into factories today is revolutionary in its effect on labor conditions. Furthermore, there will be many more labor saving inventions and processes to come. For instance, the time is not far distant when certain skilled shoe makers, garment makers, and certain other skilled labor will be largely replaced by automatic machinery. In practically every manufacturing industry which one can name there have been introduced labor saving devices and processes in the past five years which have displaced thousands of employes.

"I do not depreciate these labor saving devices. They mean lower cost of production, increased output, and more goods for all people at lower prices. Economically they are sound. They, however, are resulting temporarily in a great dislocation of labor. The automobile business saved the situation a few years ago, but now the same thing applies to the automobile industry as to others, namely, labor saving machinery is constantly being improved. Radio has given employment to a large number of people. Growth of the electrical industry in general has been a great help to employment. These, however, are not sufficient to take care of the surplus at the present time. Perhaps airplanes will help fill the gap.

Employment Statistics.
"Back in 1921 when Mr. Hoover called his famous conference on unemployment the first question he asked was, 'How many people are out of work?' The variety of answers which the experts gave him proved conclusively that no one knows how many there are unemployed at any given time. The best estimate that I can make, however, at the present time is about two million. This compares with one million who are normally without employment. Thus the situation today shows more than the normal number of men out of work. Employment in manufacturing industries, according to the latest figures published by the department of labor is today six per cent lower in numbers than a year ago and about seven per cent lower in the total amount of payroll. Declines in the number of men employed occurred in nearly every major group of industries with the exception of baking, cotton textiles, sugar refining, carpets and rugs, women's clothing, newspaper printing, automobiles, agricultural implements and rubber boots and shoes. Since these figures were published there has been considerable revival in the steel trade and automobiles, and the outlook is brighter in these lines for the next few months. On the other hand, building continues slack. December permits in 500 cities showed a decline of 19 per cent. Of course, this is the normal slack season in building, but it is more pronounced this year than for several years past. Thousands of building tradesmen are out of work.

"Much of this recent decrease in manufacturing employment is due to slackening in activity in these lines—but labor saving devices are, in my opinion, responsible for a considerable part of it. Insofar as labor saving machinery is the cause it means these men must find work in other lines. Therein lies a very difficult problem. I know of nothing harder than trying, for example, to persuade a brick layer that he can work in an automobile factory, or a shoe worker that he can work in a radio factory. Necessity of course, forces readjustments sooner or later, but in the meantime a great deal of suffering and loss of purchasing power results from unwillingness of men skilled in one line to take up another. The department of labor, state employment agencies, vocational schools, and social workers are trying to affect such readjustments. However, they meet with only partial success. When we consider that approximately one million new workers enter the industrial field each year and much less than one million leave it, and that machinery is fast displacing workers, it is easy to see that some new outlets for man power must be found.

Some Bright Spots on the Employment Map.
"The situation today is not by any means as severe as it was in the years of 1921 and 1922. Some sections of the country report good employment conditions and a number of sections have found way to more optimistic outlook. It is interesting to note that Vermont, which was so disastrously damaged by flood in November now shows a greater percentage of people employed than some of the large industrial centers. This has been true following many calamities. Thousands of men are employed in rehabilitating railways, and work on highways and bridges, as well as in industrial plants, has kept men fully employed. Construction of new buildings and repairs on others afford work to building artisans. In general I find the western and southern sections are more fully employed than the east. In North and South Carolina practically every locality reports increased industrial employment with a large volume of building anticipated. The south Atlantic states as a whole show good employment. This is true also of the Pacific coast and mountain states. Revival of the iron and steel trade should be of definite help to Ohio, Pennsylvania, Alabama and Missouri. Increased automobile output is helping conditions in Detroit. I have spoken of the need of new industries, and in this connection mentioned the airplane business as a prospective employer of labor. It is interesting to note that a new plant has been started near Wheeling, West Virginia, which when completed will employ approximately 1200 people.

"One good index of employment conditions is the number of applications for positions with the employment agencies and the number of help wanted by such agencies together with the help wanted ads in the newspapers. The latest figures available show nearly twice as much help wanted as applications received in California and

West Virginia. Colorado also shows a shortage of men for jobs rather than jobs for men. Another bright spot on the employment map is Canada. Of course the present is the seasonal low point when building operations are practically suspended, but compared with last year the industrial centers of Canada show an increase in employment. This does not seem to be confined to any one industry or group of industries, but is a reflection of generally prosperous business.

Advice to School and College Seniors.
"Next June hundreds of thousands of young men and young women will graduate from schools and colleges of the country and go out seeking employment. Although it is still only time for mid-year exams, I think it is very wise that these young people should be seriously thinking of what line of work they mean to follow. Too often they put off consideration of their life work until after graduating—and indeed, until the following fall. My advice is to plan now what you are going to do and if you have not already specialized in some one line, prepare to do so. Statistics show that today unless a young man specialized in some one thing he is apt to have hard sledding in getting properly located. The man who concentrates and determines to do one thing better than any one else in his vicinity easily finds a job. General business conditions have been more favorable. The Babson chart now standing at one per cent below normal, and opportunities for young men are greater than ever before provided they have not the 'white collar complex' and desire above all else to sit at a desk and not get their hands dirty. Be willing to start at the bottom in a good company, controlled by men of character and learn the business thoroughly."

The ANCHOR of CIVILIZATION THE CHURCH

Give this thought serious consideration. For over Nineteen Centuries the one thing that has endured is the Church.

Dynastys, nations, governments, have come and gone, but the Church has endured. The thinking men and women, the keenest minds of every age, have acknowledged the Church.

The weight of evidence supports the Church.

Won't you lend your support too?
