DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION MAKE PRESENTS TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

OCCASION IS AN INSPIRING ONE

One of Them Is a Sepia Reproduction of St. Gauden's Statue of Abraham Lincoln and the Other is a Hand Illuminated Motto Bearing Immortal Words Uttered by Lincoln—Library Trustees Accept the Gifts.

At eleven o'clock this morning the Lewis Cass Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution formally presented to the Carnegie Public Library a sepia reproduction of St.
 Gauden's statue of the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln.

Before the members of the library board, the library staff, and a few citizens, the presentation was made.
 Miss Kathleen Turner, unveiled the picture after the brief but appropriate words of the vice regent of the D. A.
 R., Mrs. A. H. Rolph.

Really a Lincoln Memorial.
 The occasion was in perfect keeping with the spirit of the national holiday.
 The program was in reality a "Lincoln Memorial," in which high tribute was paid to the character and service of him, whose likeness will have a permanent place in the future, in the Public library of this city.

Miss Helen Millar read, at the beginning of the brief program, the beautiful and inspiring words of Emerson, "The Review of Lincoln's Career." Miss Lovia Bryant, the treasurer of the local chapter, read the "Commemoration Ode," of James Russell Lowell. Then followed the words of presentation by Mrs. Rolph when hour of the nation's deapest pe-proved the great keystone, with whom the arch of the republic wo have fallen.

The Picture Presented.
 In a few well chosen words the v-regent presented the picture, in name of the Lewis Cass Chapter the D. A. R., to the library board the Carnegie Public library. As last words were spoken, Kathl-Turner drew aside the American flag, which concealed the gift, and disclosed to those who were privileged to attend, the beautiful picture of the martyred president.

Dr. W. A. Cotton, in behalf of the official board of the library, accepted the gift and bespoke the hearty appreciation of the members of that body.

The Second Gift
 With the picture, there was presented a hand illuminated motto, the well known words of Lincoln:

"With malice toward none,
 "With charity to all,
 "With firmness in the right
 "As God gives us to see the right,
 "Let us strive on."

This motto, was the gift of Mrs.
 Charles Coffin, of the Fort Dearborn
 Chapter of the D. A. R., of Evanston,

The Blue and the Gray

KNEE deep in the scarlet poppies,
 Waist high in the waving corn,
 At the edge of a silver streamlet
 They met by chance one morn.
 He was a Union soldier
 In blue and buttons gay,
 And she was a southern maiden
 In a shabby gown of gray.

SHE looked at his stalwart shoulders
 And face with its healthy tan;
 He looked at her cheeks of roses,
 And so the tale began.

The poppies yet were sleeping,
 And who was to hinder, pray,
 If the blue clad soldier captured
 A kiss from the girl in gray?

AFTER the war was over
 And the battle-flags were furled

And the peaceful snow of the orchards
 Folded the weary world
 He came again to the village
 In the heart of the fragrant May---
 The bells rang out for a bridal,
 And the blue was wed to the gray.
 ---Minna Irving in Leslie's Weekly.

EVERY night off duty
 He stole from the lines of blue

To meet her under the live oaks
 In the moonlight and the dew.
 And, lo, when the bugle sounded
 And the regiment marched away
 He left a ring and a promise
 With the sweet little maid in gray.

ill, and will hang beneath the picture in the local library.

Thanks Are Expressed.

The library board, after the presentation expressed their appreciation attitude to the members of the local chapter of the society for the very acceptable and appropriate gift.
 The program, although very simple,
 and taking in all less than a half hour, was impressive and worthy of that society, which has done so much throughout the whole nation to teach patriotism and inspire a true spirit of brotherhood among all mankind.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE; OCCUPANTS UNHURT

While Turning Out of the Road to Give Way to Farmer's Frightened Horse, John Duncan and Friends in Auto Are Upset and the Car is Damaged—The Story.

While returning from Rapid River
 Saturday night, a Ford automobile owned by John Duncan of this city causing considerable damage to different parts of the car, but without injuring either Mr. Duncan or the two friends that were with him.

The automobile was coming toward Escanaba, when a farmer was met who was driving a horse that appeared to be frightened of the approaching automobile. In order to give the rig plenty of room, Mr. Duncan turned sharply off the road and caused his car to skid until a tuft of grass was struck, when the car turned turtle in a fraction of a second.

After Mr. Duncan had crawled out from under the car he found that the engine was still running. With the help of his friends the car was righted and the trip made to Esc-anaba without any more trouble.

... consisted of a broken ...
 lamps, bent fenders and some broken ribs in the top. It was most fortunate that none of the occupants of the car were hurt, when it tipped over, but the ground was not hard and the rate of speed was probably less than eight miles an hour when it turned over.

TODAY'S BALL GAMES

On account of the cold weather prevailing and indications of still worse conditions, all of the baseball games that were scheduled to be played this afternoon were called off. Games were to have been played by the Escanaba and Gladstone teams at Gladstone; Continentals versus South Sides and the Tip Tops versus the Richters at South park.

MEMORIAL DAY IS GENERALLY OBSERVED

(By Associated Press.)
 Chicago, Ill., May 30.—More careful preparations were made for the observance of Memorial day in Chicago this year than for years past. Ceremonies at the cemeteries were the features of the morning, while a long parade occupied the afternoon. Many veterans were taken over the route in automobiles and several hundred regulars from Fort Sheridan took part in the procession.
 Reports coming into this city from all over the country show that the day has been universally observed.
 In New York city, the parade was reviewed by President Taft.

 Dampen Enthusiasm—Good Scores

The second annual shoot of the Nook de Noc Gun club is being held scores were made this morning and the visitors expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable time.

The grounds where the shooting is taking place are provided with plenty of tents for the accommodation of the visitors and everything is being done by the local club to entertain served by the gun club at the Mash-ek Chemical & Iron company's boarding house and after the hard work of the morning the shooting party were ready to partake of the spread that had been prepared for them.

 The luncheon was an elaborate one and ended with strawberry shortcake and whipped cream, a fact that seemed to make a hit with the boys.

The list of entries for the several more will be purchased at the box office tonight. As announced in The Mirror the other day, the band will furnish two kinds of music for the dance program. For the two steps the full band will play, while for the waltzes music will be rendered by a large orchestra composed of band members.

DAY IS QUIET

ALTHOUGH THE WEATHER IS NOT FAVORABLE, MEMORI-AL DAY IS WELL OB-SERVED

PROGRAM IS FULLY CARRIED OUT

Graves of Soldiers Buried in All the Cemeteries Are Decorated With Flags and Flowers—Simple but Impressive Exercises Held in Lakeview Cemetery Under Auspices of Members of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Although the weather today has been cold and disagreeable and anything but favorable for outdoor doings, the observance of Memorial day in Escanaba was very general and the exercises were carried out according to the program arranged by the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Woman's Relief Corps.

All of the graves of the soldier dead buried in Lakeview, St. Joseph's and St. Anne's cemeteries were decorated with flags and flowers and suitable ceremonies in connection were carried out. The graves of soldiers in the two Catholic cemeteries were decorated this morning by members of the G. A. R. post, who were driven out there in carriages. Those in Lakeview cemetery were decorated this afternoon in connection with the exercises held at the soldiers' burial lot.

Big Crowd at Cemetery.
 Notwithstanding the cold weather the exercises at Lakeview cemetery were attended by a large throng of people, many of whom had graves of departed loved ones they wished to decorate. The cemetery presented a most beautiful appearance, especially after all the graves and burial plots were strewn with flowers and greens.

The old soldiers and members of the W. R. C. were driven to the cemetery in carriages. At the head of the procession marched the Escanaba City band. The United Spanish War Veterans and Naval Reserves formed an escort of honor. Many citizens in carriages and on foot were also in the procession.

Program at the Cemetery.
 Arriving at the cemetery the program was carried out as heretofore published. The band played an appropriate selection and City Attorney Ira C. Jennings read Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" in an impressive manner. The G. A. R. ritual service for the dead was carried out by C. F. Smith post G. A. R. and Mr.
 Jennings called the roll of soldiers, dead and living. Following this the Spanish American War Veterans fired a salute and the graves of soldiers were decorated by members of the G. A. R. post. The procession was then reformed and returned to the Armory on South Georgia street, where it disbanded.

The day was very generally but quietly observed in its true spirit as a day set apart to remember the dead.
 Practically all of the stores and other places were closed at noon in order to observe the day.

The Gunpowder Fourth.

The misanthrope Fourth is a modern development. Young folks formerly burned all the powder they could pay for and shouted to their hearts' content without jarring anybody's nerves. There was room for all sorts of noisy doings all around the village and even on the town common. It broke up the dull monotony of life to awaken the echoes once a year. As towns grew dense, house crowding on house, there developed danger from fire and reverberations that are a nuisance.

People are driven from the towns and cities on the Fourth in search of quiet. They find it in the woods and along the shore or the streams. Those who want noise could as well make it out in the open expanse, where it would disturb nobody and do no damage. Then lovers of a quiet day would find it at home, to many the most fitting place. With the noise and danger removed from crowded precincts the Fourth can be made safe and sane, according to everybody's notion, without denaturing it completely.

The deaths are recorded of a ship master aged eighty-four, a retired river stevedore and board of trade operator of the same age and a former locomotive engineer who was eighty-nine. The relation of occupation to longevity is one of the things science is slow in finding out.

Norway women twenty-five years of age can now vote, but it's a safe bet that the "sweet sixteen" age will lose no popularity among Norway swains and maidens for all that.

The personal element in the Ballinger controversy is obscuring the real issue, and in the meantime somebody may steal Alaska while the public isn't looking.

If some wandering comet will make an advance date for striking the earth society will guarantee to have an army of "undestrables" on hand to receive it.

A good many Americans who left for Canada found one winter a cure and are feeling well enough now to return home.

The man who saw the flag on the summit of Mount McKinley is also challenged to show proofs.

Most of Latin America's wars are mere feuds, but earthquakes down there are the real things.

Too many men in Butte, too many girls in Boston. Some folks should emigrate.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

GETTYSBURG

YOU wore the blue and I the gray On this historic field, And all throughout the dreadful fray We felt our muscles steeled For deeds which men may never know Nor page of history ever show.

My father, sir, with soul to dare, Throughout the day and night Stood on old Little Round Top there And watched the changeful fight And, with a hoarse, inspiring cry, Held up the stars and bars on high.

At last the flag went down, and then— Ah, you can guess the rest— I never saw his face again. My father's loyal breast Is strewn with the sweet flow'rs, I wot, That seem to love this sacred spot.

The smoke of battle's cleared away And all its hatreds, too, And as I clasp your hand today, O man who wore the blue, On yonder hill I seem to see My father smiling down to me. —Eugene Field.

The Pennypacker Army. It is said that the Pennypacker family of Pennsylvania sent more soldiers to the civil war than any other American family. Of the descendants of Henry Pennepacker, a Dutch surveyor, who came to Pennsylvania before the year 1700, 144 were in the Union or Confederate armies, and twenty-seven of the 144 were commissioned officers.

COUPLE MARRIED SIXTY YEARS

Manitowoc, Wis., May 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Koerner, who have been resident at Whitelaw, this county, for half a century, will celebrate their sixtieth marriage anniversary Wednesday, and their children have planned one of the most elaborate social events that section has known in years. The couple was married in Germany came here shortly after and has resided on the same farm since. There are four children, all of whom will be home for the marriage.

IMPROVED FREIGHT SERVICE PROMISED

Forty-Eight Hours From Detroit to Iron Country Will Give Good Dispatch to Shipments.

Marquette, Mich., May 30.—One of the important features of the Detroit Wholesalers & Manufacturers' association, when it comes to the purposes of the present trip, the gaining of a larger share of the upper peninsula business, is Sidney Renshaw, the association's transportation manager, for great fault has been found in the past with transportation facilities between Detroit and the upper peninsula towns. Mr. Renshaw has been applying himself to this subject, and as the result of his interviews with railroad men, says that from now on Detroit will have excellent freight service with the upper peninsula towns, or the association will know the reason why.

"We ought to and will make as good time into your territory as any other wholesaling and manufacturing center," said Mr. Renshaw yesterday. "We are going to get the freight into Marquette, Negaunee and Ishpeming in forty-eight hours. That ought to be fast enough.

Faster Time Possible.

The Michigan Central has in the service a through freight to the straits that leaves Detroit at 1 a. m. This train reaches Mackinaw City at 8:30 p. m. the same day and the cars with shipments for upper peninsula towns are transferred at once to St. Ignace, where they are worked. With proper dispatch out of St. Ignace and along the line there should be no trouble in getting a two-day service on through cars to Marquette county towns, and a three-day service to the copper country points. That ought to be a satisfactory service for any of these towns. The blame for the poor service that has been complained of in the past has lain with the railroads, but we have satisfactory assurances that this will be remedied in the future, and propose to keep closely after them to see that this is done.

"We propose to have Detroit put on a footing with all its competitors in this regard, and once your people have it demonstrated that they can get as good freight service from Detroit as from any other point much will have been done to open up this field to its fullest possible exploitation by the Detroit houses.

Have Excellent Business.

"It is possible in talking of this Detroit campaign for upper peninsula business to convey a wrong impression," said A. H. Buhl, of the Buhl Sons Co., the largest hardware supply house in the state. "The idea is gained by many people that Detroit is pretty much shut out of this upper peninsula market, whereas this is by no means the case. Our house has a large and satisfactory business in the upper peninsula towns, and the same is true of many other Detroit houses, in the aggregate get a large and important business from the upper peninsula towns. We are not, naturally, averse to increasing it, and there is no doubt that we have as yet failed to get all of the business that we might have had if we had cultivated it more closely, but it is by no means true that we are practically shut out of this territory."

ESCANABA MAN SUES FOR AN ACCOUNTING

A. C. Barras Begins Suit in Iron County Against George W. Youngs for an Accounting Under a Trust Deed Given Him Covering Valuable Property—The Details.

According to The Iron County Reporter, A. C. Barras of Escanaba, through his attorney, I. Y. Byers, has commenced suit in the circuit court of Iron County for an accounting under a trust deed given him covering a valuable piece of property known as the Welmer field. It is not probable, however, that the suit will be heard at the June term of court, The Reporter states, and it goes on to say:

"Mr. Barras has also given notice of the termination of Mr. Youngs' authority under the trust deed. This deed was given by Mr. Barras to Mr. Youngs for the purpose of selling lots for repayment of money advanced in redeeming a mortgage foreclosed on the Welmer field. Mr. Barras claims that a sufficient number of lots have been sold and money realized to pay all this money back, and that Mr. Youngs has refused to give an accounting of the proceeds of the sale of lots.

"It is unfortunate that this entanglement has arisen, for it means the tying up of any further sale of lots in that part of the village until such time as the suit is disposed of. During the past year a large number of lots have been sold and quite a number of comfortable homes built there."

YOUNG TRAVELERS REACH WASHINGTON

Washington, May 30.—After riding on horseback most of the way across the continent to meet Col. Roosevelt for his arrival in New York, Louis and Temple Abernathy, aged 9 and 6, respectively, sons of "Jack" Abernathy, of Oklahoma, the wolf-catcher and friend of the former president, arrived in the national capital Friday night. They rode in from Frederick, Maryland, today, a distance of 57 miles. Temple dropped off to sleep the minute his head touched the pillow, while the little fellow was curled up restfully under the white covers, Louis talked of their trip.

"Temple and I," he said, "want to see some of the wild animals Mr. Roosevelt sent from Africa and tomorrow we will go over to the Smithsonian Institution to see if we can have a look at some of them."

When asked what he intended to say to Mr. Roosevelt when he met him in New York Louis replied that "it would depend on what Mr. Roosevelt said to them, and that he could not cross that fence until he came to it." President Taft will receive the two little travelers.

JOHNSON-KETCHEL FIGHT PICTURES

Arrangements have been made for an exhibit at Ben's Theater next Wednesday afternoon and evening of the original moving pictures of the Johnson-Ketchel fight which were taken at the ringside during the progress of the contest, which took place at Colma, Cal., on October 16, 1909. It is claimed that these pictures, never seen here before, are a wonderful reproduction of every incident and blow in what was one of the most exciting pugilistic combats of modern times. They are said to be life-size and clear, showing every face in the tremendous throng in the immense open-air arena. They also show when Johnson was knocked down by Ketchel and the dramatic and sensational climax, the knockout of Ketchel.

CARLOAD OF LUMBER DOES TUMBLING ACT

A carload of lumber attached to a Chicago & Northwestern freight train tipped over Friday morning near the Lyon Brothers' feed store in Marinette and for a time threatened to tie up traffic to a considerable extent. The car dragged along for a long distance, uprooting the track and scattering the lumber all over. A section crew, which was hurriedly called out, was put to work and within a short time had the car righted and the lumber reloaded. The track was then relaid and by noon the entire damage had been repaired.

DISBARMENT ACTION RESUMES TOMORROW

Trial of the Schwittay disbarment action will be resumed at Marinette Tuesday morning. The attorneys will arrive this evening, and the remainder of the trial is expected to consume about four days. Franke, the missing witness, may turn up for the trial next Tuesday, though nothing is known of his present whereabouts.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL MEETING YET HELD

The fourth annual Bible School, Conference and Epworth league convention, and the third annual convention of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Straits District, held in Sault Ste. Marie last week was one of the most successful meetings yet held by the above mentioned organizations. Nearly all of the expected delegates were in attendance and they were well entertained during their stay at the Soo. The public program was interesting and instructive and much credit is due to all who took part in the work. The week closed with a lecture by Dr. A. E. Ackerman, theologian of Murphy college, Tennessee, on "The Southern Highlanders," Thursday evening, which was greatly enjoyed by all who heard him.

BIG GUN SHOOTING GIVEN NEW RECORD

Norfolk, Va., May 30.—A new world record for big gun shooting has just been made by the new battleship South Carolina. With her forward turret twelve inch guns she made sixteen "bullseye" target hits out of sixteen shots in four minutes and fifty-one seconds. This record is the work of Coxswain J. R. Edwards. Edwards is on his first enlistment and is under twenty-one years of age; his home is at Roodhouse, Ill. The South Carolina commanded by Captain Augustus F. C. Steyer, has been in commission only three months.

The conditions were severe, for the target was much smaller than formerly used, it was a mile away, the sea was rough and the ship was traveling at a ten knot rate. The report shows that the hits per gun per minute were 1.01, making the final merit 50.5. The extraordinary feature was that fifty-five of the sixty projectiles hit the bullseye. Three of the four turrets made 100 per cent of hits.

FOUND LIFE PARTNERS FOR JUST $2 EACH

Spokane, Wash., May 30.—Nels Olson, twenty-seven years of age, until several months ago a resident of St. Paul, who sought to commercialize the art made famous by Dan Cupid, under the name of the National Correspondence Club of Spokane, ran up against the police at his headquarters in a second class hotel here and was arrested on the charge of vagrancy. His partner, whose name the police will not give out made his escape. The police found a bushel of letters.

Olson's plan was to supply lonely bachelors in the Northwest with wives for $2, which charge was also made to find husbands for lovelorn maids, spinsters and widows in the east and south. He declined to register minors without the consent of their parents. He started the matrimonial bureau less than two weeks ago, when he advertised in the personal columns of eastern, southern and western newspapers, using a blind address. Decoy letters were sent by the police and in replying Olson invited the writers to call at a small hotel. His partner handled the correspondence.

BIGGEST AFFAIR IN GLADSTONE'S HISTORY

That is What the Brotherhood of American Yeomen Picnic on the Fourth of July Will Be If Projected Plans are Successfully Carried Out—The Details.

According to the expectations of Gladstone people, as expressed by The Gladstone Delta, the picnic of the American Brotherhood of Yeomen to be held in that town on the Fourth of July, will be the biggest affair in the history of Gladstone. Special trains will be run here in the morning and back in the evening, from Marquette, Iron River and the Soo. A special boat will bring the Menominee Yeomen, with the Third Regiment band. An attendance of from 1,500 to 2,500 is predicted. The Yeomen will provide their own program of entertainment music, and speaker among whom will be our congressman H. O. Young. The president of the association is F. W. Farmer, of Menominee, district organizer for the order.

CLEANS UP THE SNUG PROFIT OF $42,000

Fred Cooper, a former resident of Schoolcraft county, but at present located at Portland Ore., writes that he recently disposed of timber holdings in that state at a profit of $42,000. W. W. Parker formerly of Manistique, owned a tract which was included in the deal on which he realized a profit of about $4000. The timber was sold to an Eau Claire (Wis.) firm. It is Mr. Cooper's intention to visit Manistique some time during the coming summer, but it is not thought likely that the trip will be made before the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight.

C. FLAGSTADT.

PROVED HIS BRAVERY. ENGINEERS MADE OF HEROIC MATERIAL

How a New Hampshire Lad Resented Epithet of "Coward." A Washington newspaper man, one of the few survivors of the Fifty-ninth Massachusetts regiment, recently told this story:

"A young New Hampshire lad of sixteen, Sumner Elliott, was a member of Company I, my company. In some way a companion had been moved to call him a coward at Spottsylvania. The epithet was undeserved, for Elliott was a brave boy. He thrashed the man who called him a coward, but the insult rankled. On the march to North Anna river he brooded over it. We led the corps across the river and advanced on the enemy. A rattling musketry fire was dotting the ground with our dead and wounded.

"Presently young Elliott sprang ahead of the advancing line, and as he waved his musket over his head he shouted out in broad New England accent:

"Sergeant Mertin, am I a coward? The enemy opened a masked battery full on our front and under a thousand yards from the line. The guns were loaded to the muzzles with grape and caustic, and as the sword we were tripping over was perfectly level great gaps were made in our ranks. Nevertheless we rushed on, cheering, Sumner well in the lead. Presently he went down, full length, and as we swept over him the gallant lad was still faintly shouting:

"Sergeant Mertin, am I a c-o-w-a-r-d?"

"His kneecap had been broken with a grapeshot, and when subsequently removed to the field hospital our first sergeant, John H. Mertin, managed to visit him. As the poor boy, laid out on the rude operating table, grasped the sergeant's hand he faintly muttered, 'S-e-r-g-e-a-n-t M-e-r-t-i-n, am I a c-o-w-a-r-d?'"

"The sergeant pressed his hand and replied with tears in his eyes, 'No, Sumner, my lad; New Hampshire never raised a coward.'"

Unsentimental. A veteran of the civil war was asked if he felt that interest in Memorial day was dying. He answered the question with a question:

"You will die, won't you? Nothing lasts forever. It's natural that this change should come."

"Then you aren't indignant that a feeling of indifference should be manifested by a younger generation?"

The old soldier said: "No. Why should I be? I don't care a fig. Talking about the war won't make heroes. I dare say if there was an occasion for it the young men of today would make as good a record as they made forty years ago. But you can't expect young people today to feel about the war the way we older fellows do. They aren't close enough to it."

"I know that's so, because when I was a boy I was just about as far away from the war of 1812 as you are from the civil war, and I know people didn't take any account of it. It's just as well, it seems to me. War is a bad remedy—necessary sometimes, but bad, all the same."

"Naturally I don't like to see the observance of Memorial day becoming more slack. It is an indication of the advance of time—nothing more. You can't say it shows deficient patriotism, for it's simply human nature, and I can't see that we're any different from what we've ever been."

"People aren't any more selfish than they ever were. It seems to me that they are just the same. The old soldiers have had a good deal done for them."—New York Evening Post.

A DARING RIDE.

Feat of a Union Officer That Won Confederate Cheers.

One morning in February, said General Wesley Merritt, my division of cavalry started with instructions to discover the extent of Lee's forces on the Rapidan without bringing on a general engagement. In due time we found ourselves face to face with the enemy and the river between. A lively skirmish with small arms began, but the result was insignificant. The enemy declined to show force beyond what was necessary to engage our skirmish line. The breastworks were long and formidable, but whether they were occupied by few or many soldiers our ingenious plans failed to discover.

It was finally decided that the only way to make the enemy show force was to try to cross the ford in our front. If this succeeded, the enemy was to be driven out of his works if possible; if not, he would drive us back across the ford, probably with severe loss to our troops. Reluctantly, under these conditions, the division was organized for the work.

Leading the advance guard, which consisted of a squadron of cavalry, was Captain Ash. His instructions contemplated that only his advance guard should cross. It was hoped that this maneuver would draw the enemy from behind the breastworks and cause him to display his force. Ash advanced with his squadron amid the stillness of death. The skirmish firing was hushed, and the silence which prevailed showed that the enemy was intent on keeping us in ignorance of its numbers and determined to make us pay heavily for information.

The anxiety was intense. We knew that when the enemy opened fire at short-range our loss would be great and that the advance guard must be the first and greatest sufferers. Ash, with his small command, moved on. The works in front, gloomy, silent, denuded, seemed deserted. The men started to cross the ford, and Ash pushed on ahead. He gained a point of vantage where, because of a turn in the river, he could see the interior of the breastworks.

Just then the Confederates opened fire with a withering volley. Suddenly Ash commanded his squadron to retreat, while he, bending forward on his horse's neck, rode at a rapid gallop along the river bank parallel to the breastworks, followed, as he came opposite each new part of the works, with volley after volley.

There seemed no hope for him, and we waited in intense anxiety. On he kept in spite of the storm of lead. Then, as he reached a point where his view of the Confederate lines was still more extended, he raised his hat and waved it over his head. It was a signal of triumph.

To our amazement the Confederates, moved by admiration, ceased firing. Instead, they mounted on their breastworks as thick as they could stand, and throwing their hats into the air, cheered him again and again.

Ash reined up his horse and, turning toward the Confederates, raised his hat in a graceful salute. Then he rode leisurely into our own lines, amid the cheers of both sides. He had accomplished the work without the loss of a man and had for himself seen and displayed to every one else a full force of infantry occupying the Confederate works.

Captain Ash said afterward that he had not thought of the scheme of drawing out the enemy's force until he had reached the brink of the river and seen the great number who occupied the works. To go on meant certain death to many of his command; to retreat in the direct line of fire was equally disastrous, and the inspiration to act suddenly seized him.

DAN PATCH TO MAKE NO MORE RECORDS

Greatest Old Race Horse of Them All Has Been Permanently Retired from the Racing and Speed Exhibition Stage—Has Done His Share of Work—Records.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 30.—Dan Patch has been permanently retired from the racing and speed exhibition stage.

M. W. Savage, his owner, is authority for the statement that Dan Patch will never again be asked to start in attempts to lower world's records. He says that this greatest of all great horses has done his share of work and that his life from this time on will be spent in enjoying a well earned rest, in watching other harness horses struggle to lower his records and in perpetuating his greatness through his get.

While the champion will not be called upon to make any of the mighty efforts that have made him famous he will still do some traveling and during the coming summer and fall will be an attraction at a large number of fairs all over the United States. He will be exhibited in special stalls where people can see him for close inspection. He will still be under the care of Charlie Plummer, who has hardly left the horse night or day for the past seven years and his care and equipment will be such as befits the monarch of the harness horse world.

During the coming season Dan will still be the topline of the Savage combination of pacers and wherever Minor Heir, George Gano, Hedge-wood Boy and Lady Maud C. race and attempt to get new records Dan will be on hand to introduce them and pass judgment on their performances. As the champion of the world and as the acknowledged greatest of all great horses he will still be an attraction to fair goers. Both in his magnificently fitted up stalls and when jogged in front of the grandstands he will get his full share of approval and honor.

Patch has repeatedly performed what experts have pronounced impossible feats. He has paced seventy-three miles under two minutes. He has lowered the world's record fourteen times and he now holds seven world's records. Dan's last fast miles were at Phoenix, Ariz., last fall, where he paced two miles in 2:03 1/2 and 2:02 1/2 without any fast preparation.

FOOD COMMISSIONER A. C. BIRD IS DEAD

Lansing, Mich., May 30.—Arthur C. Bird, state dairy and food commissioner, who has been very low from an affection of the heart, following an attack of pneumonia, for more than a week, died at his home here at 4:45 Friday morning.

Mr. Bird suffered several relapses, but his physician reported yesterday afternoon a perceptible improvement in his condition. During the night he began to fail and this morning, in the presence of immediate friends and relatives who had been summoned, he gave up the fight.

The funeral took place from the family residence at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Governor Warner, Lieutenant Governor Kelly and a number of state officials attended.

GUESSING NOW WHEN CONGRESS WILL CLOSE

Washington, May 30.—Several legislators who called at the White House Saturday gave their views on the date of the adjournment of congress.

"I think it will be about July 15," said Champ Clark, leader of the minority in the House.

"Put me down for July 1," said Representative Nicholas Longworth's guess.

"I'll take some of that July 1," said Senator Smoot of Utah.

"It'll hardly be as late as July 15," remarked Senator Crane of Massachusetts.

"About the middle of July," predicted Senator Dick of Ohio.

"We ought to get away before July 1," said the optimistic Mr. Crumpacker of Indiana.

"TEX" RICKARD TO REFEREE BIG FIGHT

"TEX" RICKARD.

IT WILL only be a few days more now until we will know who is the greatest fighter in the world. Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson will step into the arena on July 4—providing, of course, the churches do not manage to prevent it—and there will be a battle for which thousands are going to travel many miles to see.

They have selected "Tex" Rickard as referee. One thing that may be said in "Tex's" favor is that he has the requisite nerve to be the third man in the ring with the great white and black gladiators. That referee job is going to be some work. Tex is going to have his hands full from the tap of the first bell. Lots of people thought when he was first selected that it was only a temporary arrangement and the fighters would get together and pick an experienced man. But "Tex" declared he intended to serve and both scrappers said he would suit them.

Rickard first came into prominence in the pug world when he pulled off the first Gans-Nelson battle. He has been lots of big fights and knows the game fairly well. Of course he is not a Siler, a Charlie White or an Eddie Smith, but he always has his wits about him and he should be able to make the big fellows behave. It is a fact that the big men are usually easier to control in the ring than the little fellows, so, after all, "Tex" may not have such a time of it as some expect.

When the baseball fans get together and talk about old times it is seldom that somebody does not bring in the name of Amos Rusie, once the star of the New York Giants like Christy Mathewson is now. Ward Jackson, one of Cleveland's veteran "bugs," told this one:

"Rusie, like many another star, didn't twinkle any too brightly when he first appeared in the baseball sky. He had been loaned or 'farmed' out to the Burlington (Ia.) team for the final series of games in the old Interstate league between the Burlington and Davenport nines. The Davenport team's star battery of that year was Rhines and Harrington, afterward with Cincinnati.

"Well, anyway, Rusie did his best to earn his money. Manager Chamberlain of Burlington had paid for his services, and after losing one game 2 to 1 and winning another 1 to 0 came back to Indianapolis on this day I am talking about.

"Well, when it came time for practice—we were playing Louisville that day—there was nobody to warm up Rusie. Dick Buckley was engaged with the other pitchers. Big Amos wandered about the park disconsolately, occasionally hurling the ball against the fence or grand stand and retrieving it himself.

"Finally Rusie walked over to the stand and, looking up to the first row of seats, shouted: 'Come down here, Pop, I want to warm up.'

"A big, red-whiskered man got up from his seat, took off his coat, hung it on the back of his chair and, jumping over the rail into the diamond, said: 'All right, Amos, my boy. Let 'em come in fast.'

"Then Amos's father, his whiskers streaming in the wind, pulled on a felder's glove and, snoring mask and pad, stood back there by the stand and 'warmed up' his son; warmed up the mighty Rusie who, within a year or two, was destined to become one of the most remarkable pitchers in all the history of the game.

"Amos didn't spare his father. He fed him outcures and inshoots, high balls and low balls, fast ones and teasers, not even forgetting the 'jump ball' that was destined to make him famous.

"And you should have seen the old man. He never side-stepped a thing. 'Shoot 'em in, me boy,' he would say. 'Put something on 'em, Amos. You're working fine today.' That's the way; straight across and fast."

"Well, sir, it was a wonderful sight, that middle-aged man in street clothes and with his flowing whiskers of fiery red, standing out there on that blistered field, ignoring the taunts and jeers of the crowd, warming up his beloved boy, Amos, who, even then, was a giant and a hurricane pitcher.

"When the time for the game began Rusie's father climbed back over the rail. Amos went into the box, with Buckley behind the bat and Louisville was beaten 3 to 0. When the last one of the visitors had been retired Rusie's father jumped back into the field, took Amos by the arm and walked with him to the dressing room. It was a sentimental spectacle, the solicitude of the great pitcher's father for his boy and his pride in the young Hercules' work.

"Poor Amos! Had he only stuck by his good old father and ignored the alleged friends who got him to traveling in the broad road that leads to early retirement, not to say disgrace, he might be in the major league today as famous and as popular as is old Cy Young; earning $8,000 or $10,000 a year instead of digging ditches, as he is, for $1.75 a day."

For the first time since the days in Cincinnati when Tony Mullans used to switch arms and rest one by twirling with 'o'er, there's an ambidextrous twirler in major league company. His name is Charles Friene and he is a member of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

Friene first attracted attention as a ball player while pitching for Santa Clara college, the institution which produced Hal Chase, the wonderful first sacker of the New York Highlanders. Then he broke into the Pacific Coast league, and a year ago pitched a game for San Jose against the Chicago White Sox, in which said Sox looked like a deck of deuce spots. They secured six scattered hits off the youth who switches arms while pitching.

Whenever the opposing team threatens with a batting rally, Friene just uses the other arm, and it is said that this plan works as effectively as putting a new pitcher in the box, with the additional advantage that the old one can be reinstated, as there is no rule in baseball that a pitcher can't change back to the arm he had been using.

That Friene appears to have a good brand of goods is evidenced by the fact that Manager Connie Mack looked him over for several weeks on the spring training trip and then branded him with a "you'll do." Friene is still with the Athletics. He is the only ambidextrous finger in the major leagues, and possibly in all leagues.

Lajoie is hitting the ball harder this spring than he has in several years, and the prediction is made that the big Frenchman will lead the league this year. Lajoie is said to be much lighter than he has been in recent years, and with the worry of handling the team shifted to Jim McGuire's shoulders, he is playing much better ball. What is more, McGuire is not allowing Lajoie to play the hit-and-run game as persistently as he used to, thus handicapping his hitting, for on most occasions he had to hit at a bad ball. Now Lajoie just waits for what he wants and wallops, and he is getting hits in bunches.

Yes; the Merchant Who Advertises Can AFFORD to Sell It For LESS.

No matter what the article is, unless it should be something whose selling price is as fixed as that of a postage stamp, the merchant who is an enterprise advertiser is sure to sell it for less than the merchant who does not advertise.

For, in spite of his advantages in buying—buying in large quantities, for cash or short credit, taking instant advantage of buying OPPORTUNITIES—his selling advantage is the decisive factor. For he is enabled to count his profits on a large aggregate of sales—not compelled to secure them from a FEW SALES, for he would then be taxing a small number of customers with the entire support of his business.

A store that makes a net profit of $100 in a day from sales to three hundred customers, is sure to sell to each of those customers on a closer margin of profit than is the non-advertising store that is COMPELLED to make enough to cover a daily expense of $50 out of sales made to fifty customers.

If you are one of the 300 daily customers of the merchant who advertises, you are paying but one three hundredth part of his store-profits on the days you buy. If you are one of the fifty daily customers of the non-advertising merchant, you are paying one-fifth of his profits.

If you are fairly "good at figures" you will quickly convince yourself that you ought to buy advertised things!

WHO DRANK THE TODDY?

The Major Who Mixed It Really Could Not Tell.

IN August, 1862, the armies of General Lee and General Pope confronted each other on the Rappahannock river, in Virginia. General Lee had determined to attack Pope and conceived a plan as brilliant as it was daring. He purposed to leave one half of his army under Longstreet in front of Pope and throw the other half, under Jackson, by a circuitous march to a point twenty-one miles exactly between him and Washington.

In pursuance of his plan and to facilitate its execution a day or two before Jackson started Lee determined to throw his cavalry, under Stuart, twelve miles in Pope's rear at Cattlet's Station, a point on the railroad connecting Pope with his capital.

At that place were encamped the reserves, baggage and ammunition trains of Pope's army. There, too, were his headquarters tents, with his personal effects. Stuart captured a number of officers and men, a large sum of money in a safe in one of the tents and dispatches and other papers, but the rain fell in such torrents and the night was so dark that it was not possible for Stuart to damage the railroad to any extent or to burn the railroad bridges or the acres of wagons before him, all of which, with the telegraph wires, would have seriously crippled Pope.

My command was in advance on that terribly rainy night. I was riding with the lieutenant commanding the platoon which formed the advance guard when I suddenly saw between the flashes of lightning a man run across the road.

Under the influence of the spur my horse in a single bound reached the man, and under the influence of a pistol held to his head he told me that he was a servant of General Pope and was there with his headquarters tents, which, he said, were pitched in a clump of pines close by.

I made him get up in front of one of the troopers and guide a squad, which I detached from the leading regiment, to the tents in the pines. On reaching the spot I quickly surrounded the Federal headquarters, and, seeing a light in one of the tents, I dismounted and with one of my men entered it.

It was vacant, but filled with a large number of papers showing where some one had been recently writing. There were also two glasses of toddy on the table.

A few days thereafter I captured a squadron of the Federal dragoons, under Major Thomas Hilt of the regular army, whom I had formerly known when a cadet at West Point.

One of the officers, who had just arrived from Washington, told me that he was at Willard's hotel, in that city, and, seeing a crowd around Major Clary, Pope's chief quartermaster, joined the group and found Clary telling of his escapes from the rebels at Cattlet's Station a few nights before.

The major said that he and Lewis Marshall, the latter being an aide-de-camp of Pope and a nephew of General Lee, were in one of the tents that night and that he had been working all day over his quartermaster papers, and in view of the fact, as well as the tempestuous character of the night, he proposed to Marshall that they should take a drink.

"The whisky was brought out," continued the major, "and sugar was put in glasses with the proper amount of water, to which a liberal allowance of whisky was added. I was just pouring the toddy from one glass to the other, thinking how soon the situation would be improved by swallowing it, when I heard the noise of horses' hoofs and the report of one or two pistol shots. I quickly put the glasses down, saying, 'I believe that is some of that d—d rebel cavalry.'"

At this point of the narrative the major paused, and after looking around added: "Gentlemen, if you believe me, I do not know whether I drank that toddy or not. The rebels were on us so quick that Marshall and I lifted the side of the tent and rolled down into a friendly ravine and remained there shivering in the drenching rain until the rebels rode off."

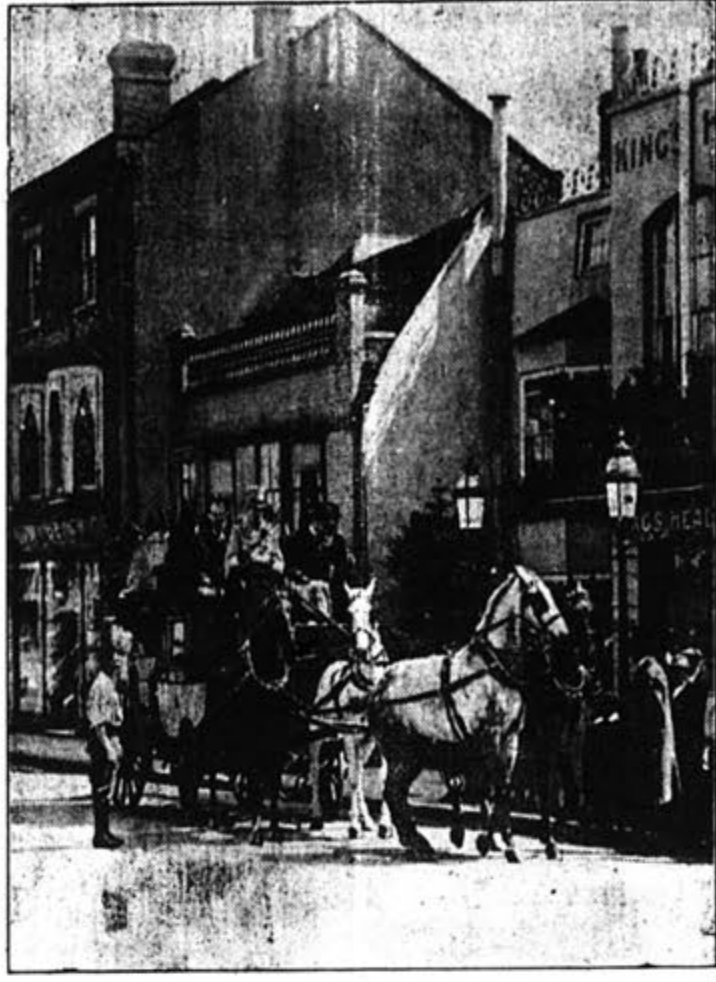

It only remains to say that Clary and Marshall did not drink the toddy they mixed, but that they rapidly disappeared down the throats of the two wet rebels who found them.—Fitzhugh Lee.

Busy Spending His American Money on English Coaching

Alfred Vanderbilt has a good many millions of dollars that his father left him. He manages to spend some $10,000 of his yearly income in taking horses to London for use in his famous coach. Then he sells the horses for any price, just so he won't have the bother of bringing them back to this country. The $40,000 is not the only expense in the coaching party, for young Vanderbilt has to entertain, and it is estimated that his "sport" of the coaching season costs him some $100,000.

MARINE SEASON TO END NOVEMBER 30

According to the Declaration of Insurance Men, the Sailing Season on the Great Lakes Will Close This Year Five Days Earlier Than Last Year.

In accordance with the declaration of insurance men, the marine season on the Great Lakes will end this year on November 30.

This is five days earlier than usual and twelve days ahead of the date on one or two years in the past.

A great deal of opposition has been aroused among vessel owners and shippers because of this action.

In consequence of the many losses which occurred late in the season of last year the underwriters decided on November 30 as the closing date this year. It appears, however, as if they overlooked the conditions surrounding the grain trade and while considering the subject looked at it mainly from the ore shipper's point of view, as the ore contracts expire on November 25. Other trades vary in custom on this point, corn, flour and flaxseed, especially the last named, being the latest of all the grain shipments.

Insurance protection is absolutely essential to the flaxseed shipping trade, and if the policies expire before December 5 shippers say there will be a serious reduction in the amount of grain carried across the lakes, which would very seriously disturb the grain situation both here and abroad.

As the lake-and-rail rates are regulated by the lake rates, the western shippers in their desire to obtain the best tonnage rates endeavor to forward by water route all they possibly can before the close of navigation.

It is possible that some modification of the decision may be arrived at as it is thought that if the date of closing navigation were made December 2, this would be a fair thing for shippers across the lakes.

STATE GEOLOGIST IS MAKING GOOD START

Lansing Journal:—State Geologist Allen has returned from the Iron River district of the upper peninsula, where he spent the last week directing the opening of the year's field work. His men have made a successful start and will remain in the district all summer. Mr. Allen will visit the work from time to time.

"The ore market is experiencing somewhat of a slump at the present time and as a result only a small amount of drilling is now going on," said the geologist. "Many mines have large amounts of pig iron on hand awaiting shipment and as a result are only working one shift at present. The business is expected to pick up during the summer."

Mr. Allen leaves for Washington to attend the National convention of State Geologists, where he will make a report on his findings in the upper peninsula.

BLIND MANY YEARS; SIGHT IS RESTORED

One of the strangest cases which has been treated at the Menominee River hospital, Minominee, is that of Mrs. Frank Bailey of Rock, Mich.,

who has been totally blind for fourteen years, and who will, in all probability, regain the sight of both eyes.

A few days ago a cataract was removed by operation from one eye and the other will be removed in a day or two. The first operation was a successful one and it is believed both will be. It is unusual for cataracts to form until persons are advanced in age, but Mrs. Bailey was but thirty-two years old when she was first afflicted. One formed eight years ago and the other fourteen years ago. The lady will be able to read and have every use of her eyes after being denied sight for fourteen years.

PLEADS FOR BETTER CARE OF LIVE STOCK

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—The principal speaker at the meeting of the Michigan State Humane society, at its annual meeting here, was George H. Scott, of Chicago, president of the Illinois State Humane society. Mr. Scott pleaded for legislation which would do away with overcrowding livestock in cars and declared that a deplorable condition exists in this respect in many parts of the country.

Officers were elected by the society as follows: President, C. C. Kliensteck of Kalamazoo; secretary, Jefferson Butler of Detroit; treasurer, B. A. Finney of Ann Arbor.

The new executive board consists of the following: W. E. Tallmadge, Grand Rapids; F. D. Taylor, Detroit; Mrs. J. L. Eastwood, Bay City; B. A. Finney, Ann Arbor; Angeline Fowler, Branch, Manistee; C. C. Kliensteck, Kalamazoo; E. S. Udell, Grand Rapids; Leonard Laurence and J. F. Hill, Detroit.

FINE BAND MUSIC FOR THE STATE FAIR

Band music is always one of the chief outdoor attractions of any state fair, but there are bands and bands. The managers of the Michigan fair this year realize that quality counts, so in seeking to make contracts for music they considered only the best.

The Ninety-first Highlanders, the Scottish organization of world-wide reputation have been secured. This company of musicians, including forty five players and several soloists, will appear their in full scottish regalia kilts and all, and their past reputation is enough to insure a pleasing program as their part of the state fair entertainment.

Signor Liberati's band, a concert organization with several years of success and volumes of favorable press notices, is the second organization secured for fair week. The soloists of this organization are especially brilliant, and the programs used by the band are much above the average.

The prices paid for these two attractions would stagger anyone not familiar with the market, but it is believed to be a good investment by the fair managers, who are determined to offer the public nothing but the best during the fair, which is to be held at Detroit, September 19 to 24.

Marjorie's New Doll House

When Marjorie was visiting her grandmother in the country she found that her family of dolls was sure to be in some one's way. She had brought only her four tiny dolls, but if she put them to sleep on the broad, old fashioned sofa some one was sure to go there to lie down. If she built them a bed on the stairs some one would complain of "nearly falling." It was no use to try the top of the wood box in the kitchen nor the window seat in the hall.

Marjorie told grandpa about it, and he said he would try to find a vacant apartment for them where the rent was not too high and the surroundings agreeable. As he had wonderful ideas, Marjorie was not surprised when he said one day, "Can you pack up and be ready to go into the new house this afternoon?"

Marjorie said she could, and without asking any questions she flew up to her room to pack the dolls' trunks and box up the set of furniture and dishes. After luncheon grandpa helped her bring the things downstairs. He led the way to the deep window seat in the sitting room, and there, suspended

"BUT WHAT IS THE BASKET FOR?" In the window was a huge birdcage that had once been the home of a tame crow. He had polished it brightly and hung a shelf across by means of wires to make a bedroom. He had carried gray cambric round the cage, in which square openings were cut for the windows. Over the top he had ingeniously hung green paper, marked off with black, to give the effect of shingles.

"This is just a little suit—living room, bedroom and bath," he explained. "Of course your family will go out for their meals."

Marjorie clapped her hands with delight. "But what is the basket for?" she cried as she saw a square basket attached to the cage with a pulley and cords.

"Why, that is the elevator. No good city apartment is without an elevator." As he said this he placed two of the little dolls in the basket, pulled the cords, and the car rose swiftly to the door of the cage.

Marjorie thought this was the best part of the arrangement, and she lowered the car again, placed the furniture in it and carried it up to the rooms.

On the lower floor she set the parlor furniture, the little sofa and chairs. On the next floor she placed the two beds and the little gold chairs and the dressing case. The "bath" was the bird's dish attached to the side, and over this she hung the mirror.

It was the daintiest home dolls ever had, and Marjorie was so delighted with the elevator that the poor tenants spent most of their time riding up and down.

"What shall we call this house?" she asked as she stood admiring it. "Nearly all apartment houses have names."

"I think the Tiptop House would be a good name," said grandpa, and Marjorie agreed that it named and described it.—Youth's Companion.

The Queen and Her Attendants. The players in this game are numbered and sit in two rows, facing each other. The queen, at the head, calls any number. "It is time for No. 1 to start," at which that person starts. "Bring him to me." The next one then starts and tries to catch the first. They must run down between the two rows, then round the whole party and back up the center to the queen. If the first is caught he must stand behind the queen's chair; if not, then No. 2 must take that place. When all are caught they follow the queen round the chairs, and when she claps her hands all rush for a seat. The one left out becomes queen.

The Happy Place.

A great elm towers above the bank, And the water is pooled below, And tall marsh grass grows coarse and rank Where fatter laddies go On a summer day when the sky is glazed And meadows wave with heat, And burning dust in the road is raised By the pad of youngsters' feet. And dust and heat are charmed away By the water's magic cry. And the elm's gray shadow drips with spray That the swimmers dash on high.

FLORENCE HAS RUN OF SMALLPOX CASES

An epidemic of a very mild form of smallpox prevails in Florence, but the board of health and physicians have the disease well in hand and there is little doubt but that it will be stamped out within a comparative short time.

There are fifteen quarantine cases in the city, but only in one or two instances have those afflicted with the disease suffered from fever or sickness aside from the usual pustular eruption on the skin, and in most cases only one or two members of a household have been infected.

In all cases strict quarantine regulations are and have been maintained by Health Officer Wismer, and everything possible is being done to prevent the spread of the contagion, even though it is nearly as mild as chicken pox. Those who have already recovered from the attack are almost entirely free from the scars or "pits" generally seen on the faces of the victims of malignant or virulent small pox.

Every school child has been vaccinated by order of the board of health, and hundreds of others have been inoculated with the vaccine.

'PREACHING PRINTER' GOES TO LAST REST

New York, May 30.—Rev. Alexander Frazer Munro, known in this country and in Europe as "The Preacher Printer," whose work in the interest of workingmen, temperance and sabbath observance, was praised by Queen Victoria as dead at his home in Brooklyn.

Born in Scotland ninety-four years ago, he learned the printers trade, and became active in the formation of printers' unions. In 1839 he presided at the meeting which established the first national typographical union in the British Isles.

A few years later he came to this country. Shortly after his arrival, having studied for the ministry, he was licensed to preach by the Methodist church. He had practical ideas about religion, one of which found expression in the establishment of the Sunday Breakfast association, where homeless men received a good breakfast and later were asked to attend services.

WILL DIVORCE HER JAPANESE HUSBAND
Carson, Nev., May 30.—Mrs. Gunjiro Aoki, formerly Gladys Emery, daughter of Archdeacon Emery of San Francisco, is here with her child and her mother, Mrs. Emery, to establish a six months' residence prior to obtaining a divorce. Mrs. Aoki gained notoriety by her marriage to Aoki, who was the Japanese servant of the family. The marriage took place in Seattle, where the child was born to the couple. Many reports have come recently that Mrs. Aoki had tired of her husband's ill treatment and thriftlessness and that she would sue for divorce.
THE ISLE ROYALE STATION IS OPEN
The Isle Royale station of the United Wireless Telegraph company, has been equipped and is now open for business. How one man fooled his wife
She had been using her "favorite" baking powder. Wouldn't think of trying anything else, because "mother always used it," or some similar excuse. Hubby said she was prejudiced. He figured if Calumet, the new baking powder, selling at a moderate price, could be so successful, there must be some good in it. So he took a hand, and bought a can of Calumet, emptied the can containing her "favorite" baking powder and filled it with Calumet.
That evening, unsuspecting the trick, Wife prepared and served some of her famous biscuit— piping hot, temptingly browned and puffed up to airy lightness, they were even more delicious than usual. Hubby, after considerable difficulty, succeeded in convincing her that the basis of the improvement was Calumet Baking Powder. And so an everlasting friend for Calumet was made.
This trifling little incident simply proves that the housewife is oftentimes prejudiced against all baking powders except the one she has been using for years. She imagines that no other kind can possibly be as good. This is a mistaken impression. A trial of Calumet will prove that it is purer, more reliable, it has a greater leavening power than any other baking powder made. And it is moderate in price.

OSBORN STANDS FOR THE AD VALOREM TAX

In a Letter He Tells State Grange He Doesn't Favor Specific Tax on Ores.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—Chas. S. Osborn has sent to the secretary of the state grange a letter answering the same questions that Lieut. Governor Kelley answered in a communication published Wednesday. His letter reads:

"I wish to thank you for your communication defining the attitude of the state grange to candidates for office, and expressing most commendable interest in public affairs. I am only pleased to advise you as to my position on the questions referred to in your communication.

"To question No. 1: I am opposed to the specific tax on iron and copper production. I will be glad to give my reasons in detail for my position. Briefly, the state of Michigan is in competition with not only the states of Arizona and Montana in copper production, but with Mexico, Japan and South American countries. In iron production the state is in competition with Minnesota particularly in this country, and with the cheaply mined ores in Cuba and Spain. I do not wish, and am sure you do not wish to impose conditions that will make it impossible for our state to produce in successful competition with others. At the same time I am in favor of the iron and copper interests paying their just share of taxation, and it is absolutely important and desirable that they should do so. I consider that under the present ad valorem system sufficient taxes can be collected from these interests as from other interests to bring about an equitable result. If they are not paying enough taxes under the present conditions, it is easy enough to increase their taxation without adopting the specific system, which the state has after many years' agitation and expensive investigation repudiated.

Expenses Are High Here.
"It costs more to mine iron ore and copper, on the average, in Michigan than in almost any other mining region, and the only reason that Michigan can produce at all seems to be the peculiar geographical position on the lakes which enables it to get to market through the medium of cheap transportation. There are many mines in Michigan that are mere prospects, and at which the cost of production is several times as great as other properties. Specific tax would make all properties pay the same tax per ton without reference to cost of production, and this would seem to be manifestly unfair, and specific taxation also would not collect taxes from properties which do not produce, and frequently mines are shut down for a considerable time.

There are other reasons why I am opposed to the specific tax on iron and copper productions. It might be well for me to state in this connection that I am not interested in any mines or mining lands or mining properties or mining stocks in the state of Michigan.

"To your second question, I am pleased to state that I am more than usually interested in the conservation of natural resources, with special reference to water power.

"To your third question, I am and have been in favor of making telephone companies common carriers.

"To your fourth question, I am in favor of a more equitable distribution of the primary school fund.

"Fifth—I am in favor of progressive good roads legislation.

Favors Torrens System.
"Sixth—I am in favor of the establishment of the Torrens system of land transfers.

"In conclusion, permit me to say that I am interested in everything that will benefit the agricultural conditions of Michigan and those who follow that pursuit. I was born upon a farm, educated in an agricultural university, have farming lands today and conduct active farming operations.

erations. The county I live in is a farming county, is 150 miles from the nearest mine and mining influences have no more effect in Chippewa county than in your section of the state. In fact, the first farms in the state of Michigan were in Chippewa county, and it may be interesting to you to know that farming was carried on in the county in which I live nearly 100 years before there was a single farm in the lower peninsula. I simply state this that you may know that my sympathies are naturally with the farmer, and may state in addition that the man who does not understand the importance of the interests of agriculture and who does not seem to be inclined to do everything that is fair to ameliorate and improve the conditions of those who follow those interests does not have a deep conception of the real interests of our state and nation. No nation in the history of the world has ever failed that has given first and fair attention to its agriculturalists, and no nation or state in the history of the world has ever lived that has not done so. I fully believe that the fall of Greece, Phoenicia, Carthage and Rome may be laid to the flocking to towns by the people and the discontent of the farming classes and the abuse of the natural resources of those lands.

DIXON'S BETTER THAN MANN'S AMENDMENT

Spokane Wash., May 30.—J. H. Kane manager of the traffic bureau maintained by the Spokane Merchants' association, said on returning from Washington, D. C., that the Dixon amendment, which passed the United States senate recently will be of greater benefit to Spokane and other interior points in the matter of equitable rates than the Mann amendment, adopted by the house. He added that it is likely that a bill including the Dixon amendment will be passed by both houses.

He said also the Franklin K. Lane, a member of the interstate commerce commission, announced that in all probability the commission will give its decision in the Spokane rate case and suits instituted by interior cities before the summer vacation the end of June. Mr. Kane does not believe that Spokane will get straight terminal rates; "but," he said, "we will get some material relief; the commission will certainly reduce the west bound rates to Spokane, also to other interior points. I believe, too, that the fight in congress will have a beneficial effect upon the interstate commerce commission."

ISHPEMING HAS COSTLY FIRE ON SATURDAY

Shortly before noon Saturday fire was discovered which at one time threatened the destruction of the entire city of Ishpeming but fortunately was brought under control by hard and persistent work of the fire department and the losses were confined chiefly, to the following firms:

Thomas Mudge, furniture, loss on stock $25,000, on building $7,500; Peter Kosky Co., merchandise, loss on stock $20,000, building 2,500; Gus Saril, furniture, loss on goods $15,000, building, $1,500.

The conflagration was caused by boys playing with a bon fire in the alley directly back of these stores and the high wind at the hour of the fire carried the embers to the buildings.

RAILROADS TO USE THE HOOK FREELY

The Western Lines are Crusading Earnestly Against Dishonest Employees—Spotters Placed on Trains—Spotters Sometimes Proceed in Indefensible Manner—Story.

Western railroads, led by the Rock Island, have determined to rid their systems of every dishonest railroad man employed in train or yard service, and wholesale discharges of trainmen are expected within the next few weeks. In fact, the decapitation of the men who "knock down" on the companies has already begun.

The discharge of these "old timers" of the rail all of them passenger conductors with families and preferred runs on the leading railroad of the west and one that seldom has any trouble with its men, shows that the ways of the railroad "spotter" are varied and devious and the cleverest knight of the rail does not know when he is being shadowed.

The method of procuring evidence by the Rock Island "spotters" best illustrates the statement. One of them invaded the sacred precincts of the home of an old conductor, pretended to be infatuated with the sister of the conductor's wife, made ardent love to her, rode with the conductor and the young woman on his train and induced the ticket puncher to be a "good fellow" and accept at least half fare in cash and keep it.

The conductor did so, and before he had reached the end of his run had received a telegram ordering him to report at the headquarters of the Rock Island in Kansas City and get his time. Other cases of like nature have been reported all along the line of the Rock Island in the last few weeks and there is fear and trembling in the households of many of the passenger conductors.

Not only have the Rock Island conductors been deposed, but the company has inaugurated the collector or train auditing service again. These auditors are not being worked on the Rock Island as they have been in the east and on some of the western roads. The conductors never know what train they are going to get on nor where, and in the last few weeks they have climbed on the trains at out-of-the-way stations and water tanks at unexpected times and have sought to find passengers who have paid cash fares and have no evidence of their right to travel.

The collector's service is a protection to the public, as it allows the train conductor to devote all of his time to the operation of his train and he does not have to bother with tickets or cash fare slips, but the system is only temporarily adopted, as it has been found to be expensive and useless in the long run except to "throw a scare" into the conductors that they usually do not forget for some time to come.

The auditors are usually paid $100 a month and passengers complained bitterly because of their lack of train etiquette.

Railroad officials say that every road running west of Chicago is in the combination to "give the hook" to the dishonest railroad men and that the work will be kept up until every railroader is out of the service who can not show a clean bill of health as to his honesty and character.

THE YOUNGEST SOLDIER.

He Was a Genuine Child of the Regiment.

IN the early morning of December 21, 1903, there arrived in camp just before reveille a youngster who was promptly christened Edward McClellan Roberts, the Edward being for one Captain Edward Blackburn of the Twenty-first Missouri and the McClellan for General George B. McClellan. Thus it was that the "Little Mac Junior" became a genuine child of the regiment.

Quick to recognize a true soldier in the newcomer, a committee of comrades called at his tent and demanded that he surrender to their wishes. They rolled him up in a blanket and took him to headquarters. There he was regularly enrolled. A soldier at ten days—Comrade Edward McClellan Roberts! Three years later, as sergeant of his regiment, he was honorably discharged at Fort Morgan, Alabama.

The regimental captain was one Comrade Jenkins. Chaplain Jenkins was a fighter, but not profane. Despite all this, "Little Mac Junior" was an adept pupil of his elder comrades, and he learned the art of swearing to a degree equalled by few of his elders. Even his instructors took off their hats when their pupil got busy. While at mess he'd fire a wad of oaths at some delinquent servant and would be abruptly commanded to stop it by his astonished mother. When asked who had taught him to say such bad words he would blandly reply, "Oh, Chap'n Jenkins did." If the tiny soldier was disloyal to his captain he was not so to the rank and file. He feels sure that the good chaplain would today forgive his early accusations.

For several months prior to the close of the war the Twenty-first Missouri regiment was quartered at Fort Morgan, Alabama, on Mobile bay. It was at this post that the three-year-old sergeant received his discharge. By the time the regiment had moved to Fort Morgan the lad had become of interest, indeed, to his older comrades, he then being between two and three and rather precocious, perhaps, because of his association with his elders. He here found a warm, close chum in Gunner Ephraim Jones.

On one occasion the gunner thought to have a bit of fun at the expense of the juvenile comrade, hoping to give him more "big noise" than he would relish in close proximity with the coast gun. Accordingly Jones asked the young patriot if he would like to fire the sunset gun for him.

"Sure," replied the lad in gleeful anticipation. "When may I fire it now?"

"No, not now; it isn't sunset yet. This big gun, you know, is the one that makes the sun go down. Come around in an hour and we'll give the old sun a glorious send-off."

"All right," Ed replied; "you can count on me."

In an hour "Little Mac Junior" appeared.

Gunner Jones placed the lanyard in the small hands of the lad, beld him aloft of the coast defender and commanded, "Fire!"

"Bang!" went the big gun, which had a little extra "food" for the event. The baby gunner dropped the lanyard to applaud the music made by the war dog.

"Didn't it scare you?" asked the regular.

"No; it's better'n a drum. If you are 'fraid of 'er, just send for me any time. I'll do it for you."

Ed took occasion to be "fraid" quite often thereafter, and "Little Mac Junior" enjoyed the privilege of "helping him out."

For several years Sergeant Edward McClellan Roberts has been a resident of New York city, devoting his time to writing and literature. On a recent evening he was invited by L. T. Fetzer to visit the Fourteenth regiment camp, United Spanish War Veterans, at its armory in Brooklyn. A spread followed an installation of officers, and after responding to urgent calls for a speech Sergeant Roberts was voted an honorary member of the camp, then in command of William J. Prendergast, and was decorated with a button of the order.

A WAR REMINISCENCE.

How Longstreet Bluffed Custer at Appomattox.

From the sound of firing in front it was evident that Gordon and Fitz Lee were attacking Sheridan's cavalry, who outnumbered them four to one, and had also the comforting assurance that the Army of the James was not far off to support them if needed.

When my march brought me to the hill I espied General Longstreet and Alexander, chief of artillery, sitting on a log. Alexander got up and came toward me. I said to him: "General Lee instructed me to stop here for orders. What do you want me to do?" He replied, "Turn into that field on the right and park your guns." Then he added in a low tone, "We are going to surrender today." We had been thinking that it might have to come to that sooner or later, but when the shock came it was awful. Alexander cautioned me to keep the news quiet, and I moved into the field designated with a heavy heart and parked my batteries. Colonel Haskell's battalion was already in park near me in the same field. The firing continued in front for some time, and Gordon drove the "invincible troopers" more than a mile and sent back a large number of prisoners and two pieces of artillery which he had captured. The latter were placed in Haskell's park. Had it been only Sheridan that barred the way the surrender would not have occurred at Appomattox, but Gordon drove back the cavalry only to find himself confronted by the Army of the James, and its bayonets could now be seen advancing through the trees, and the road was blocked with ten times his numbers. It was then that a flag of truce was raised by agreement with Sheridan and Gordon.

Presently a Federal cavalry officer was observed coming down the road toward our forces. He wore his hair very long, and it was of a light or reddish color. In his hand he carried a white handkerchief, which he constantly waved up and down. He inquired for General Lee and was directed to General Longstreet upon the hill. Upon approaching the general he dismounted and said: "General Longstreet, in the name of General Sheridan I demand the surrender of this army. I am General Custer." General Longstreet replied: "I am not in command of this army. General Lee is, and he has gone back to me General Grant in regard to surrender." "Well," said Custer, "no matter about General Grant. We demand the surrender be made to us. If you do not do so we will renew hostilities, and any bloodshed will be upon your head." "Oh, well," said Longstreet, "if you do that I will do my best to meet you." Then, turning to his staff, he said: "Colonel Manning, please order General Johnston to move his division to the front and right of General Gordon. General Latrobe, please order General Pickett forward to General Gordon's left. Do it at once." Custer listened with surprise depleted upon his countenance. He had not thought so many of our troops were at hand with Longstreet. He, cooling off immediately, said: "General, probably we had better wait until we hear from Grant and Lee. I will speak to General Sheridan about it. Don't move your troops yet." And he mounted and withdrew in a much more quiet style than in his approach. As he passed out of hearing Longstreet said quietly, with that peculiar chuckle of his, "Ha, ha, that young man has never learned to play the game of 'brag.'"

The divisions of Johnston and Pickett were only a myth and had no existence whatever after the fight at Five Forks.—From "In Camp and Field."

A Bed of Bayonets.
A certain devotee in India shows his religious zeal by lying on a row of bayonets. As long as he keeps rigid he is not hurt, but when he happens to move one of his legs the point of a bayonet immediately pierces his skin. As the man was trained to perform this feat from childhood, no doubt his skin is somewhat thicker than that of an ordinary man.—Strand.

Services at the Churches.

Memorial services of a religious character were conducted Sunday morning at St. Stephen's church and were attended by a large congregation, among whom were members of the G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps and United Spanish War Veterans, for whose benefit the services were especially held. Rev. E. E. Williams preached an appropriate sermon. His subject was "Peace" and in his discourse he laid special emphasis on two central ideas—universal peace and true peace. Upon the former idea he spoke of the desirability of a world-wide disarmament and on the latter he urged more efforts to prevent the desecration of Memorial day, a desecration which has become all too common of late years. Mr. Williams' sermon was one of power and was listened to with marked interest, attention and approval.

At the First M. E. church Sunday evening Rev. E. W. Prazee preached an unusually strong sermon appropriate to Memorial day, his subject being "Our Country's Annual Remembrance of Her Loved and Honored Dead." There was a large congregation to hear this sermon, which made a profound impression.

At the evening service first communion was administered and a reception given to twelve new communicant members. The church was crowded to its capacity at both services and not a few of those who came to attend were unable to gain admittance.

GLADSTONE WINS FROM ESCANABA

Escanaba, 2; Gladstone, 5.

On a diamond ankle deep in mud and with rain falling most of the time, the Escanaba and Gladstone teams of the Delta County league played their first game of the season together at Gladstone Sunday afternoon and when the fray was ended the Gladstone fellows had the big end of it by the score noted.

Gladstone played a slightly better game, but the victory was practically lost by Escanaba through a costly error in the third inning, an error which was indirectly responsible for three of the five runs chalked up by Gladstone.

Another thing which served to defeat Escanaba was the twirling of Miller, Gladstone's Indian pitcher, and Nolden's ineffectiveness. Escanaba secured but four hits off Miller, while Nolden was touched up for nine safeties. Nolden struck out five men and Miller six, while each issued two passes to first.

Escanaba started the game like a winner, making two scores in the first inning, but after that there was "nothing doing" for them. Those two scores looked large enough to win the game until the third inning, when Gladstone through an error by Captain Olmsted of the Escanaba team and some good stick work by its own players piled up four runs, giving them the lead, which they never lost. In the sixth inning Gladstone got its fifth and last run.

Considering the conditions under which the game was played it was a good one and fairly fast. According to the official scorer, Isaac Schram, Escanaba perpetrated two errors and Gladstone one, which is doing pretty well even on a fast diamond and with good baseball weather.

The game was witnessed by a large crowd of fans, estimated at close to a thousand and of the number about 400 were from Escanaba. It was a sad blow to them to witness the defeat of their team, but they are in hopes that the result next time will be different.

The teams were to have played this afternoon, but on account of the unfavorable weather conditions, the managers decided to call the game off. The postponed game will be played at some future time.

Following is the score by innings and summary of Sunday's game:

Escanaba 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 4 2
Gladstone 0 0 4 0 0 1 0 0 x—5 9 1
Earned runs—Gladstone, 1. First on balls—Off Nolden, 2; off Miller, 2. Left on base—Escanaba, 3; Gladstone, 7. First base on errors—Escanaba, 1, Gladstone, 2. Struck out—By Nolden, 5; by Miller, 6. Two base hits—Danaher and Enders. Double play—Danaher to Boyer. Time of game—One hour 50 minutes. Umpire—Mathias.

FUTILE EFFORTS TO BURN GIRL'S BODY

(By Associated Press.) Louisville, Ky., May 30.—The badly decomposed body of a little girl, supposed to be that of Alma Kellner, eight years old, who disappeared last December and for whom a country wide search was made, were found in a sub-basement in St. John's catholic school this morning.

The girl's skull was crushed and practically every bone in her body was broken and charred. It is evident that the body was broken and dismembered and then packed into a stove or grate. The attempt to burn the body probably checked decomposition.

WIRELESS STATION IS ALMOST READY

So nearly complete is the wireless plant which the Great Lakes Radio Telephone company is establishing in this city that the first messages may be sent some time tonight or tomorrow. Manager J. H. Moore of Chicago and his men have been working desperately to complete the installation of the apparatus and they have now reached a point where the end of their labors in that direction can be sighted. Manager Moore has already several messages on file which are to be sent as soon as the plant is capable of transmitting them. Answers to these messages will be received by wireless also, it is expected.

COMBINE PLEASURE WITH BUSINESS

Officers of the State Catholic Order of Foresters Transact Business at Annual Meeting and Then Enjoy Themselves—Think Well of Escanaba.

Escanaba made a decidedly favorable impression as a city upon the officers of the state court of the Catholic Order of Foresters who were here Sunday to hold their annual meeting. After transacting the business that brought them here the officers as guests of local members of the order were taken all over the city and its environs in automobiles and shown the sights of interest.

They were greatly pleased and not a little surprised at what they saw. They were particularly impressed with the excellence of Escanaba streets, the roads leading into the city, the many cement sidewalks and the general appearance of municipal progressiveness, and individual thrift on every hand. They are highly pleased that the next convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters is to be held here, beginning on the second Tuesday of June, 1911.

The officers held their business meeting at the new Ludington hotel, the first session being in the forenoon and the second in the afternoon. In the evening a reception was held at the hotel, this being attended by many members of St. Joseph's and St. Patrick's courts of the Catholic Order of Foresters. While the reception was an informal affair, a number of short addresses were made by the visiting state officers. In the addresses the speakers expressed the pleasure they felt in coming to Escanaba and handed out compliments to the city. They also voiced their gratification over meeting so many of the Escanaba members of the order.

All of the officers of the state court were present at the meeting and the reception in the evening.

INTERURBAN LINE IN OPERATION

Without any formalities the Escanaba Traction company on Saturday evening inaugurated its interurban service between Escanaba and Gladstone and today the cars are running on a regular schedule of a car each hour.

The first car left the east end of Ludington street at seven o'clock Saturday evening and thereafter a car left each hour until eleven o'clock. Sunday and today beginning at five o'clock, the same schedule was followed, except that on Sunday several special cars were run in the afternoon for the accommodation of Escanaba people who wanted to see the Escanaba-Gladstone baseball game at Gladstone.

Thus far the new line has been well patronized and it bids fair to become a paying proposition. As to its being a public convenience for the people of the two cities and intermediate points there is no question whatever.

B. J. Parker representing the Wright company of Berlin, Wis., manufacturer of shoes, is in the city calling upon his trade. Mr. Parker is a former resident of Escanaba, having at one time held the position of manager of the shoe department at the Fair Savings Bank department store. He now makes his home at Berlin.

AMATEURS PUT UP FAST GAME OF BALL

At South park Sunday afternoon the Continentals and the Richters of the City league played one of the fastest and best games of ball ever played on a diamond by amateurs. Ten innings were required to settle the contest, which went to the Continentals by a score of 2 to 1. It was anybody's game until the very finish and gave the spectators much joy. The batteries were: For the Continentals, Deloughary and Deloughary; for the Richters, Aronson, Rexton and Murray. The Continentals made five hits and one error, while the Richters secured but three hits and made two misplays.

The Tip Tops played the strong Hermansville team at Hermansville Sunday afternoon and were defeated by a score of 10 to 4. McPherson, Smith and Corcoran were the battery for the Tip Tops, McPherson pitching the first six innings. The Hermansville team is made up of older players than the Tip Tops and it is considered that, although the latter were defeated, they made a good showing.

Escanaba friends of Rev. E. J. Warren of Gladstone will be interested in the announcement that the members of his congregation have presented him with a sum of money sufficient to defray the entire expenses of his vacation trip to the Pacific coast. Mr. Warren will leave Gladstone for the coast next Wednesday and be absent an entire month.
