OKLAHOMA SENATOR STRONGLY URGES THE ELECTION OF SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE

DEMAND FOR IT IS INSISTENT

Argues in Favor of a Resolution Introduced by Him Providing for Submission of a Constitutional Amendment Which Would Bring This About--Many States and All But One of the Great Parties Are in Favor of Plan.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., May 31.--"It will be better for this country," said Senator Owen of Oklahoma today, "when senators and members of congress and state legislators and municipal legislators are chosen by the direct vote of the people and when the people have the right to recall by the nomination of a successor to their public servants. The people never abuse their power."

The senator was speaking in the senate in favor of a resolution introduced by him in accordance with the wishes of the legislators of the state of Oklahoma, providing for the submission of a constitutional amendment for the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Such an amendment, he said, would prevent the corruption of legislatures, would prevent the improper use of money in campaigns by men ambitious to obtain a seat in the senate and would compel candidates for the senate to be subjected to the severe scrutiny of a campaign before the people and compel the selection of the best-fitted men. Further, he said, it would popularize the government and tend to increase the confidence of the people in the senate, "which has been to some extent impaired in recent years." It would also prevent deadlock, he continued, due to political contests in which various states from time to time had been left unrepresented.

Many States in Favor. "I cannot believe," said Senator Owen, "that the senate is conscious of the widespread public demand for the election of senators by direct vote of the people. I therefore submit evidence of action taken by the various states, showing that thirty-six of them have expressed themselves, in one form or another, favorably to the election of senators by direct vote of the people."

"I believe," he declared, "that the will of the people is far more nearly right in the main than the will of any individual statesman who is apt to be honored by them with a seat in the senate; that the whole people are more apt to be safe and sane, more apt to be sound and honest than a single individual. At all events I feel not only willing but I really desire to make effective the will of the people of my state."

Machine Politics Against. "Democratic and Republican states alike west of the Hudson river have acted favorably in this matter almost

EX-TREASURER OF NATION PASSES AWAY

(By Associated Press.) New York, May 31.--Charles Henry Treat, until recently the treasurer of the United States, to which position he was appointed by former President Roosevelt, died, this morning an hour after he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. He was sixty-eight years of age.

TODAY'S TEMPERATURE AND THAT OF YEAR AGO

Just as an illustration of how backward is the spring season and how cold and unseasonable is the present weather, the following comparison of temperature today is made with that of the same date last year, the difference ranging from nineteen to thirty degrees. At eight o'clock this morning the temperature as registered at the local weather station day it was thirty-nine degrees as compared with sixty-three degrees at the same hour last year, and at noon today it was still thirty-nine degrees, while a year ago at noon it was sixty-nine, or thirty degrees warmer than it is today. "Wouldn't that frost you." Well, if it doesn't, you may be frosted tonight, for today's weather forecast says there will be a frost tonight. Think of that on the 31st of May!

ESCANABAN INVENTS RACK FOR TROUSERS

Thomas A. Cleary of this city has been granted a patent on a trousers rack. The number of the patent is 959,112. The rack is an ingenious contrivance described as "an article of furniture," and is designed to meet the wants of clothing dealers and individuals who desire to keep their trousers in such a manner that they will retain shape and good condition. The technical description of the rack, as published in a publication devoted to patents, would require more than a half column of space in The Mirror. Mr. Cleary, the inventor of the rack, is a member of the Continental Clothing company of this city and a very well known young man.

EARTHQUAKE, BUT IT IS 3,000 MILES AWAY

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., May 31.--The weather bureau today announces that a distant earthquake of unusual intensity has been recorded by the instruments at the observatory in this city and that the duration of the record exceeded an hour. The probable distance from Washington to the place where the disturbance is taking place is 3,000 miles.

Mrs. George Lemire returned this morning from Green Bay, where she recently underwent a successful operation at St. Vincent's hospital. Mrs. Lemire's friends will be pleased to learn that she returns home greatly improved in health.

BANQUET OF UPPER PENINSULA CLUB

An Event of Note is Held at the Ferris Institute in Which Upper Peninsula Educators and Students are the Principal Participants--The Details.

At the Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, last Saturday evening there was held a notable event, which took the form of a banquet given by the Upper Peninsula Club of Ferris Institute. Now this club is composed largely, if not entirely, of educators and students at the institute whose homes are or have been in the upper peninsula.

Among the members are students from Escanaba, Wells and Rapid River, a fact indicated by the personnel of the committee which had charge of decorating the hall for the banquet. This committee consisted of W. Fitzsimmons and Miss Gertrude McCauley, Escanaba; Clarence Lambert and Richard Green, Wells; Miss Nina Carmody, Rapid River; Oswald Raffin, Iron Mountain; Miss Loleta Sanford, Stephenson; Miss Sophia Weber, Houghton. Clarence Lambert of Wells, by the way, is secretary and treasurer of the club.

There were seventy-five present at the banquet, which is described by The Mirror's correspondent as having been a great success and most enjoyable. All of the speakers on the program, with the exception of Professor Clark, were former residents or teachers in the upper peninsula. Professor St. Peter, the toastmaster, is formerly of Norway, and Professor Kniesley formerly taught school in Marquette and the copper country.

Some idea of the character and excellence of the program can be gathered by its reproduction. It was as follows:

Introduction of Toastmaster (Professor St. Peter)--Richard D. Green. Vocal Solo--Miss Phelps. What the School Year Has Meant to Us--Chester W. Brown. Piano Duet--Mrs. Williams and Miss Walton.

Upper Peninsula's Regard for Ferris Institute--Miss Elliot. Violin Solo--Professor Gernin. The Enthusiasm of Friendship--James E. Jennings. Piano Duet--Misses Walton and Shields.

Memories of the Upper Peninsula--Professor Kniesley. Greatness of the Upper Peninsula--Professor Clark. Miss Miller, Accompanist.

The gastronomic feast which preceded the one of "reason and flow of soul" was equally good. Judging from the menu. Here it is: Strawberries Pickles Cream Bread Escalloped Potatoes Cold Meat Salad Sandwiches Ice Cream Radishes Assorted Cake Coffee

MISS ALICE EGAN TO BECOME BRIDE

Escanaba friends of Miss Alice Egan of Marquette will be interested in the announcement that that popular young woman is to become the bride tomorrow of W. H. DeBerg of Detroit. The wedding is to take place at noon and will be attended by a number of relatives and friends from outside Marquette, including Mrs. B. D. Winegar and Mrs. F. L. Winegar and daughter, Miss Helen Winegar, of this city. Mrs. B. D. Winegar is an aunt of the prospective bride and Mrs. F. L. Winegar and Miss Helen Winegar are first and second cousins, respectively.

Miss Alice Egan, the bride-to-be, is well known and popular here. In fact she was born in Escanaba and spent some of the years of her childhood here when her father, M. H. Egan, was in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern railway as a conductor. Mr. Egan now occupies a similar position with the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway and with his family has made his home in Marquette for many years. All of the members of the Egan family have frequently visited here since their removal to Marquette.

The Misses Jewel and Nellie Albright, formerly of this city but now of Chicago, are guests at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Casper Bartley, 620 South Georgia street.

RAPID RIVER WOMAN ENJOINS HER HUSBAND

Joseph Savoie is Restrained by a Legal Writ From Disposing of his Property or in Any Manner Molesting or Interfering With his Wife--The Details.

Joseph Savoie, a saloonkeeper at Rapid River, had been served with an injunction, issued upon application of his wife, Mrs. Jennie Savoie, which forbids him from attempting to draw his money from the bank where he has it on deposit or in any way attempting to dispose of his property until action upon the injunction is taken by the court. He is also restrained from molesting his wife or in any way interfering with her movements.

Mrs. Savoie in her complaint against her husband alleges that he has at various times threatened to do her great bodily harm and even threatened to take her life. She has begun an action for divorce based on these allegations.

Savoie is expected to arrive in the city this afternoon to answer in Justice Linden's court why the injunction should not be made permanent and to show why he should not be placed under a peace bond.

ESCANABA CITY BAND DANCE O. K.

With the exception of the attendance, which was not as large as had been expected, the dance at Peterson's hall Monday night for the benefit of the Escanaba City band was a complete success in every respect. As regards the attendance it was fairly good, but not as large as the members of the band or those who were there had a right to expect. This does not mean that the dance was a financial failure, however, for quite a number of tickets were sold that were not presented at the door for admission, and the band will not be a loser. For the rest the dance was "all to the good." The people there were congenial and entered into the enjoyment of the evening with the right spirit. The floor was about as good as it ever is for dancing and the music furnished for the dance program was really excellent. The plan of playing band selections for the two steps and orchestra music for the waltzes won popular favor and was an appreciated feature of the affair.

CHURCH SERVICE IS MOST ATTRACTIVE

Congregation of First Presbyterian Church are So Pleased with Sunday Evening's Program that There is a Demand for its Repetition--Will Be Repeated.

One of the most attractive services that has ever been given at the First Presbyterian church was that which the people of that church enjoyed Sunday morning. The whole service was very impressive and many of those in attendance expressed themselves as being greatly helped and inspired by the spirit of the hour.

The service was opened by Mrs. Morrell and Walter E. Martin, in an organ and violin duet, Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." The selection was so beautifully and feelingly rendered that the entire audience was immediately awed into the attitude of reverence and worship.

The special musical feature of the morning's service was the solo sung by Oliver V. Thatcher, "The Glorious City," arranged by Gordon Temple. Mr. Martin gave the violin obligato and Mrs. Morrell presided at the organ.

Mr. Thatcher sang with feeling and power this, which is one of the most beautiful sacred selections that ever has been given in this city. The members of the congregation are almost unanimous in asking for the repetition of the whole program two weeks from last Sunday. So at the request of many, the program will be repeated on Sunday, June 12.

The sermon given by the pastor, Rev. P. B. Ferris, on the "Power of Unconscious Influence" was one of the strongest sermons ever delivered from that pulpit. The entire service was helpful, and the spirit of appreciation shown by the congregation makes it as a service worthy of that progressive church.

KEEPS OUT OF JAIL BY SIGNING PLEDGE

By taking a pledge to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors for one year and to faithfully provide for his family, August Bridenbaugh of Nahma township saved himself from serving a term of six months in the county jail. Bridenbaugh was arrested at Kipling Saturday and taken to Nahma Monday to answer to a charge of having deserted his wife and children and leaving them in destitute circumstances. He was arraigned before Justice P. Summerbell and admitted the truth of the charge. Thereupon the justice sentenced him to a six months' term in the county jail, but kindly agreed to suspend sentence and give Bridenbaugh another chance to do better on condition that he pledge himself to quit drinking for a year and care for his family. Bridenbaugh was only too glad to accept the conditions and immediately signed the required pledge.

STARTS SLANDER SUIT AGAINST SUPERVISOR

John LaMarbe Alleges That Supervisor Charles Arnold of Fairbanks Township Falsely Accused Him of Theft of Horseshoes--Wants Damages of $5,000.

Through the service of summons, Supervisor Charles Arnold of Fairbanks township is made the defendant in a suit for $5,000 damages for alleged slander. The plaintiff in the case is John LaMarbe, also of Fairbanks township, who alleges that Mr. Arnold slandered him by falsely calling him a thief and accusing him of having stolen some horseshoes from one of Arnold's logging camps.

The declaration in the case has not yet been filed, only the preliminary step of serving summons upon Mr. Arnold having been taken. Mr. LaMarbe has retained Attorney H. J. Rushton to represent his side of the case, while Mr. Arnold has engaged Prosecuting Attorney H. R. Dotach to defend the action. The case will be tried in circuit court, probably at the October term.

NEW YOUNG MEN'S CLUB IS ORGANIZED

At a gathering of young men last evening the "S. S. Club" was organized and the following officers elected to serve for one term: President, A. J. Kirshjme; vice president, M. J. Jacobs; recording and financial secretary, H. J. Hanson. The membership of the club was set at a certain number which is now filled so it will be impossible to receive any new members until there is a vacancy. The object of the organization is to promote good fellowship and entertainment for the members and their friends. Dancing parties, banquets, etc., are being planned on and it certainly looks as though there will be great times in store for the "S. S. Club." The club will probably meet once a week at the club rooms, "The Den," and cards will furnish the chief amusement for the next meeting, which will be on Friday night.

COMMISSION TO MEET TONIGHT

In accordance with the legal requirement, the members of the city charter revision commission, chosen at the special election on May 23, will meet this evening for the purpose of organizing and otherwise preparing themselves for the arduous work before them. Up to three o'clock this afternoon six of the commissioners-elect had qualified by taking the oath of office. These are: Frank J. Hamacher, John Richardson, John Moe, Charles Ford, Charles White and James Powers. It is expected that the remaining four commissioners will qualify before the meeting. It will be held at the city hall, beginning at eight o'clock.

CHANNING LUGS OFF STEPHENSON TROPHY

Team Representing the Channing Gun Club Shoots a Little Better Than Any Other Team and Carries Away Coveted Prize--Rain Today Prevents Regular Events.

In the shooting contest for the Stephenson trophy, which took place at the grounds of the Nook de Noc Gun club yesterday afternoon, the team from Channing, representing the Channing Gun club, made the best score and will carry home with them the beautiful trophy that has been displayed in the windows of the store of the Mead Drug company for several days.

The weather today forbade the following out of the program that had been arranged and while the members of the local club and their guests practiced a little, no events were pulled off and the greater part of the morning was spent in talking over the great scores that have been made in the past and what will probably be done in the future.

Again today an elaborate luncheon was served at the shooting party and unless the later part of the afternoon shows some improvement the events that were scheduled to take place today will all be called off.

PLAIN WORDS

ROOSEVELT CREATES STIR IN LONDON BY EXHIBIT OF FRANKNESS IN SPEAKING.

OFFERS ENGLAND ADVICE

Given Freedom of London, He Accepts Honor in a Talk That Makes Everybody Gasp--Tells Great Britain if She Has no Right in Egypt, She Should Get Out--Asserts Errors Have Been Made--Gets News of Home From Senator Root.

(By Associated Press.) London, England, May 31.--Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, was today presented with the freedom of the city of London and he accepted that honor with a literalism that led him into a frankness of speech that created a mild sensation in the old guild hall.

As the former head of a country that once paid tribute to Great Britain, the American statesman gave the motherland some bold advice in regard to her troublesome dependency in Africa.

Either Right or Wrong. "It is either right or not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt and establish order there. If it is not right she should get out. Great Britain has given Egypt the best government that it has had in 2,000 years, but in certain vital points errors have been made."

Most Forceful Expression. In addition to the foregoing remarks and continuing, Colonel Roosevelt said: "Some nation must govern Egypt and I hope that England will decide that the duty is theirs." The speech was considered the most forcible expression on foreign topics that has been made by Roosevelt during his European trip.

Meets Senator Root.

Colonel Roosevelt had the opportunity yesterday to hear something of affairs in the United States. By appointment, he met Senator Elihu Root, who is passing through London on his way to The Hague. Mr. Roosevelt and his former secretary of state had a long talk at Ambassador Reid's residence, Dorchester house. Asked later what subject had kept them together so long, Mr. Roosevelt laughing replied: "This is one of the cases in which I must observe my usual reticence."

Dines With Peers. Mr. Roosevelt early last evening made a call on Mrs. Humphrey Ward, with whom he took tea. He dined with Lord Charles Beresford, whose guests included many prominent members of the Unionist party.

Mrs. William Ramspeck went to Gladstone this afternoon, and this evening will sing a solo. "To the End of the World With You," between the acts of "A Trump's Revenge," which is to be presented at the Gladstone opera house by St. Joseph's Dramatic club of this city. Mrs. Ramspeck's singing will be greatly appreciated as an added attraction.

Will the Maine Be Raised?

Information from Washington in connection with the long delayed appropriation for "raising the Maine" gives reason for the belief that the wreck may never be raised intact as it is today. Recovery of the bodies of the heroes entombed in the mud embanked hold seems to be the only thing positively provided for. The elimination of an obstruction to navigation and the probing of the mystery of the explosion in 1898 are incidental in the plans discussed.

The appropriation of $100,000 seems small for a thorough job. Recovery and fitting burial of the bodies might be accomplished at that cost. This feature has always been a popular demand. But for that the impediment to navigation would probably have been disposed of long ago by dynamiting. Dynamite will bury the wreck and its mystery at one blow. If the bodies are first recovered the public probably will cease to take interest in the sinking of the Maine.

Trade between the United States and the republic of Panama will exceed $22,000,000 for the fiscal year ending in June and for the seven years since the republic of Panama came into existence will approximate $100,000,000. About nine-tenths of this total, speaking in very round terms, is merchandise exported from the United States to Panama and about one-tenth merchandise imported into this country from that republic.

In celerity and dignity the management of the Lutzig wife murder case resembles the trial of Walter. These examples show how murder trials should be and can be conducted in New York.

OSBORN'S GOOD ROADS STAND MAKES FRIENDS

The steady progress that is being made by Chase S. Osborn in his campaign for the nomination for governor is an unmistakable sign that he is being more and more recognized as the peoples candidate. His latest declaration in which he says that he is for good roads will make him many friends. Mr. Osborn is for the utilization of convict labor in building roads. He might go his opponents one better by declaring for the reconstruction of our criminal law so that it would provide for the paying of the convicts a decent wage for their labor, the money to go to the poor, neglected families of the unfortunate men who are under the care of the state. As it is a great many families of men who have gone wrong, and are behind prison bars, are thrown on their respective communities for support, while the unfortunate husband is virtually sold in slavery to some prison contractor who but needs to open the coffers and let the gold roll in while convicts are giving him their labor for a paltry few cents a day. Some day this will be changed and the poor, suffering wives and children will be taken into account and it will remain for some future governor to stand for this much needed reform.—Sewebing Blade.

CAPT. HARRY TRUSCOTT DIES IN ENGLAND

News has been received of the death of Capt. Harry Truscott, a former wellknown resident of Dickinson county, at St. Denis, Cornwall, England. His demise was caused by paralysis. Captain Truscott was a resident of Dickinson county for many years and was closely identified with business and political affairs. He was superintendent of the Loretto mine and that property was developed under his direction. For many years he was a member of the county board, representing the township of Waucedah. Some six or eight years ago he resigned his position with the Loretto Iron company, because of ill health, and returned to his former home in England.

SCHUMAN-HEINK SINGS TO CONVICTS

Mme. Schuman-Heink sang to the prisoners of Marquette penitentiary Sunday, giving seven of her favorite numbers and afterwards talking through the prison and walking to the convicts in a friendly way. In Raymond Holzhey she discovered a German who had come from her old home in Saxony and she conversed with him at length. The convicts had already become familiar with the great singer's popular numbers by means of the phonograph and she found the men so appreciative that she has decided to sing to convicts every time the opportunity is presented.

CURTIS PREFORMS THE MOST WONDERFUL FLIGHT

Covers 153 Miles in 152 Minutes and Wins Prize $10,000--Details of Flight.

New York, May 31.—Glenn H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane Sunday, winning the $10,000 prize of the New York World. He covered the distance of 153 miles in two hours and thirty-two minutes. His average speed surpassed all records for long distance flights. The start from Albany was made at 7:03 o'clock in the morning. One hour and twenty-three minutes later Curtiss made a stop near Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming at 9:26 o'clock, he landed within the boundary of Manhattan island at 10:35. Only 100 yards north of the point on which the craft settled stretched Spuyten Duyl creek, separating Manhattan island from the mainland. Had he failed to cross this, the flight would have been in vain. Thence to Governor's island, his task was easy, concluding the final lap of a race already won.

Greater Than Paulhan's. Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester, 186 miles, exceeded Curtiss' feat by distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average was 44.3 miles, and below him lay a meadowland. Curtiss followed the winding course of the Hudson, with the jutting wooded headlands and the treacherous Pallsades. He swung high over the great bridge at Poughkeepsie and dipped at times within fifty feet of the river's surface. While near West Point, up 1,000 feet, a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like

FIFTY THOUSAND FEWER VETERANS

Washington, D. C., May 31.—When the thin blue line of men who fought in the civil war stepped off to the music of old fighting airs on Monday it numbered nearly 50,000 less than a year ago.

Four thousand soldiers of that war have died during the last month. This is a startling increase, for the records of the bureau of pensions show that the averagedecrease in the pension roll of the civil war is from 2,500 to 3,000 monthly.

There are now about 900,000 pensioners. At the last compilation made by the commissioner of pensions the number was 951,687, but this has been much reduced.

WHY DO WOMEN WEAR HATS INSIDE CHURCH

People who go to church like to see the preacher. Sermons depend upon the gesture and facial expression of the preacher for their full effect. For thorough understanding, the person in the pew needs the eye as well as ear. If a man insisted on putting up a screen back of his head to keep draughts from hitting his bald spot, he would be roundly scored for his unchristian action in preventing those back of him from seeing the pulpit. If a woman wears to church a hat as high and as wide as a barn door, she prevents others from seeing the preacher unless they have necks like giraffes. Yet we don't hear loud complaints, because—well, just because. Aren't the big hats in church a rather serious infraction of the golden rule—Iron River Reporter.

CHURCH RULES ON ACQUIRING OF RICHES

Atlantic City, N. J., May 31.—In its report on social problems, a committee of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church declared that "the getting of wealth must be in accordance with Christian ideals and all wealth, from whatever source acquired, must be held and administered as a trust from God."

The committee also came out as opposed to child labor, which, it said, is dwarfing, degrading and morally unwholesome, and the release of every worker from Sunday labor, protection from dangerous machinery, and, indirectly, for employers' liability.

That New Suit is a Part of Your Business Expense

To neglect it is to neglect your business. To make the old one "do" is not the way you do business OTHERWISE.

YOU and your business interests are not often SEPARATED. And the impression your clothes give is the impression YOU give. Don't allow that impression to "hurt business"—for it might just as well HELP business.

AUTO MISHAPS ARE MANY IN CHICAGO

Forty-three automobile accidents were reported to the police of Chicago in the last two weeks, according to figures gathered by Chief of Police Steward. The mishaps resulted in thirty-eight persons being injured. Thirty of the accidents were collisions between automobiles. This, Chief Steward asserts, shows the carelessness of chauffeurs and the need of better legislation to regulate them. "The automobile problem is a serious one," said Chief Steward. "Most of the accidents either are caused by negligence or careless driving. There is need of better legislation to regulate the automobile and the chauffeur."

JACK FLYNN MAKES GOOD IN PITTSBURG

JACK FLYNN.

AGAIN Fred Clarke's judgment of baseball players has been sustained. He needed a first baseman to take the place of Abstein, whose usefulness he said had vanished. He looked around, drafted two or three men and tried them out in the spring training. It wasn't long until he selected Jack Flynn, obtained from St. Paul, to hold down the first sack. Flynn has been doing it to the queen's taste. The former captain of the St. Paul bunch not only covers first and the territory that goes with the initial corner, but he is "some punkins" with the stick.

Flynn did most everything but pitch on the St. Paul team. He may have done that, but there's no record of it in the dope books. First base, however, was his proper spot, but he was shifted from that position to others to fool the scouts for the big league teams. Clarke heard about him and suspected that St. Paul was covering Flynn up, so he just grabbed him without sending a man out to see him play.

Flynn has strengthened the team, of this there's no doubt. Abstein, whom Clarke released, has not done well with the St. Louis Browns, which shows that Clarke knew what he was doing when he got the German off the Pittsburgh payroll.

When Hughie Jennings took his cage of tigers into Philadelphia and turned them loose at Shibe park they spoiled the Athletics' chances of equaling the world's record for number of games won successively. Connie Mack's bunch had annexed 18 straight when the Detroit team reached the Quaker city. They were playing like a house afire and wanted to win seven more to tie the record. Of course they would like to have had eight and beat the mark.

But the wily Jennings had a different idea and when his Tigers were through with the first game the Mack-men had suffered the worst defeat of the year for them. Detroit only made 19 hits "Nuff ced."

When Providence was in the National league in 1884 the team won 20 straight games, which still stands as the record for big leagues. They won the league championship. Lancaster, in the Atlantic league in 1897, won 21 consecutive games, which is the minor league record as well as the record for all organized ball.

While Philadelphia was piling up victories the St. Louis Browns were doing about as well with defeats. Out of 25 games played the St. Louis bunch, under the leadership of Jack O'Connor, lost 20, won four and tied one. The losses weren't in consecutive order, however, so the Browns had a little consolation.

Back in 1899 in the American association race the Louisville club lost 26 straight games before they won. You might not believe it in these days of Wagner, Chance, Leach, Adams and Gibson, but in 1899 the Pittsburgh team went without a victory for 23 games. In 1906 the Boston American league team lost 20 straight.

The first year Detroit won the American league championship, the team started off with more than a dozen losses. So it might be well to suspend judgment for a while to see just how this thing is coming out. One thing is certain, there's going to be an awful hot race in both big leagues, and it will be "dog eat dog" right up to the finish. While we're talking about it, we might point to that battle for first honors between St. Paul and Minneapolis in the American association. They say the Twin City bugs are actually maniacs. Can you blame them?

substitute on the Sox aggregation. The 1907-08 Tiger infield was composed of Rossman, Schaefer, O'Leary and Coughlin. All have gone. Tom Jones has Rossman's place, Jim Dehanty has replaced Schaefer, Coughlin has given way to Moriarty and Owen Bush ousted O'Leary out of the shortstop position.

The open season for newspaper men is here. Two leagues have named the limits to which the pencil-pusher may go without risking his neck, for the Three "I" league has barred staff photographers from the diamond and the Northern association has taken out a copyright on its schedule. If Al Tearney, budding minor league president, can't wear bells, he'll stay at home. Al got all riled up when Tom Lynch beat him to the idea of keeping staff photographers from interfering with the progress of the national pastime, but he didn't let Lynch's scoop deter him from his noble purpose. Al issued a pronouncement to his faithful staff of scribes and among the first instructions is a short but forcible sentence barring picture makers from the immediate scene of conflict. President Burton of the Northern association sprung something new on his circuit when he took Uncle Sam into his confidence in schedule-making. As the games are copyrighted with "all rights reserved," what will happen to the harassed correspondent when he gives out the score without permission?

The death of Patrick Gillespie at his home in Carbondale, Pa., recalls the days when this once famous outfielder of the New York Giants was idolized by the baseball enthusiasts of Gotham. Columns have been written in the New York newspapers, telling of the exploits of this celebrated star player of the Giants who in the 80's was the hero of the Polo grounds, and whose wonderful batting won the pennant for New York in 1888. On that occasion Mr. Gillespie was borne triumphantly from the field on the shoulders of his enthusiastic admirers. The fame of his work on the diamond was nationwide in those days, and no player in greater demand while he was in the zenith of his powers. After he declined as a star player, he was from the game altogether, and many tempting offers from leagues, and could have had a good salary with them, but he never condescended to play.

Having achieved glory as a scorner to become a satellite, he tired to his home in Carbondale where he went to work in the mill. He will be remembered as one of the great baseball players of the country.

Tyrus Cobb doesn't hit in the way as he does in the west. The "big" and "only" struck out twice at New York in one game and did not hit the ball outside the diamond on three other attempts.

Pitcher William Leivalt, who was bought by Detroit from Mobile last season, has been sent by Manager Jennings to Minneapolis to get the rough edges worn off.

READY FOR YOUR OUTING? BEWARE

The Chicago Weekly Health Bulletin Warns of Dangers and Gives Advice—Words of Praise of the Michigan State Board of Health—Render Valuable Service.

Planning a vacation trip? Well just read what the weekly bulletin of the Chicago board of health has to say: "It is now about June 1. Our people are beginning to plan their summer vacations. Some will be benefited by the outing, some will be harmed.

"A good many people who lead careful lives at home get reckless when they go away. They will drink any kind of water, will stand for dirt milk, will tolerate flies. It is vacation and 'anything goes.' A fair percentage of our typhoid is brought on in this way."

But the bulletin's warning contains a saving clause. The board of health has made some inquiries and on application will advise as to safe outing places, at least in Michigan and hopes to be able to do the same relative to Wisconsin within a few days. The bulletin says:

"The Michigan state board of health has furnished us with a sanitary report on thirty-four resort towns. If you will write to the health department we will endeavor to advise with you as to the sanitary status of the outing places in Michigan. We hope that we will be able to obtain similar information for resort towns in Wisconsin."

"The state board of health in Michigan is rendering a service not only to our people but to the people of its own state. Resorts which will properly protect their patrons should be encouraged. They also have the right to protection from the harm done to Michigan as a summer resort state by those who, being slovenly, trade on the name and harm cause."

GLADSTONE WON'T REGRET THE LINE

In reference to the completion and opening of the Escanaba Traction company's interurban line between Escanaba and Gladstone, the Gladstone Delta in its current issue has the following:

"After a year of construction work, the cities of Escanaba and Gladstone are linked into one by trolley line. The track extends from the foot of Ludington street to Eleventh on Delta avenue, and during the coming month the line will be extended the length of Delta avenue to the Soo docks. Service, however, may be had at any time after tonight. For several days a car has been running here for the use of the company's crew. The schedule will be hourly, cars leaving Escanaba and Gladstone on the hour.

"It will now be possible for anyone to go and return from one town to the other at any hour of the day with the greatest convenience. All special occasions will doubtless be able to arrange for extra service; and the baseball season coming will mean enormous number of fares.

"More pleasant social relations between the two cities may be expected, as they come to know each other better."

Yes; the Merchant Who Advertises Can AFFORD to Sell It For LESS.

No matter what the article is, unless it should be something whose selling price is as fixed as that of a postage stamp, the merchant who is an enterprise advertiser is sure to sell it for less than the merchant who does not advertise.

For, in spite of his advantages in buying—buying in large quantities, for cash or short credit, taking instant advantage of buying OPPORTUNITIES—his selling-advantage is the decisive factor. For he is enabled to count his profits on a large aggregate of sales—not compelled to secure them from a FEW SALES, for he would then be taxing a small number of customers with the entire support of his business.

A store that makes a net profit of $100 in a day from sales to three hundred customers, is sure to sell to each of those customers on a closer margin of profit than is the non-advertising store that is COMPELLED to make enough to cover a daily expense of $50 out of sales made to fifty customers.

If you are one of the 300 daily customers of the merchant who advertises, you are paying but one three hundredth part of his store-profits on the days you buy. If you are one of the fifty daily customers of the non-advertising merchant, you are paying one fiftieth of his profits.

If you are fairly "good at figures" you will quickly convince yourself that you ought to buy advertised things!

PRINCETON'S COMET JUBILEE

Wild Night Waiting For Swish of Halley's Visitor's Tail.

GREAT PARADE OF STUDENTS.

How They Stormed the Observatory and Carried Off Comet Chaser Zaccheus Daniel—Catching Marching Song—Very Little Sleep For the Town.

Eight hundred comet crazed students stormed the observatory in Princeton, N. J., at midnight on May 18, kidnaped Zaccheus Daniel, the astronomer, and compelled him to make two speeches. The comet hunter was carried in triumph through the campus to the lawn in front of President Woodrow Wilson's house.

It was a great night for Princeton. The demonstration started right after the senior stinging and plunged the timorous among the townsfolk into terror. Well it might, for the uproar sounded like the breaking up of a boiler factory or a million cook stoves falling from the Milky way.

It began on the campus with the firing of every shotgun and revolver that could be scared up within the college precincts, then to the music of four drums, a bugle and two fifes the "peera-de," as they call it at Princeton, started. It was the biggest "peera-de" ever got together in the university's history. In it were youths in bathrobes, pajamas and anything else that seemed appropriate costume for comet gazing.

Hunted Comet Hunter.

To the tune of "Whoop 'er up for Halley's comet—siss—boom—ah!" the parade marched round and round the campus for awhile, and then somebody started a yell for Zach Daniel. Immediately the celebration swung off toward Prospect avenue, firing roman candles, revolvers and guns. The comet hunter and reporter were on their way to the campus to see what the rumpus was about when they encountered the parade.

"Say, I'm going to get out of here," said the astronomer nervously and slipped behind a bush and so escaped for the time being.

The parade deployed on the lawn in front of the observatory, yelling "Zach, Zach! We want Zach!" and then, seeing no lights about the place, it was decided to take it by storm. Three students formed a human ladder against the wall, and several light-weights shinned up them to the platform leading to the dome.

"Find Zach and bring him out," were the orders; but, no Zach being found, they amused themselves by squinting through the telescope and working the dome machinery. Suddenly Zach, who had ventured out of hiding to make sure no damage was done to his beloved instruments, was spied. Instantly the mob fell on him and hoisted him shoulder high.

Carried Him Away.

"Speech, speech, speech!" they yelled, while roman candles flared and "the band" played furiously.

"Boys, I can't speak," pleaded the comet hunter from his perch.

"You must! Speech, speech! Whoop 'er up for Zach!"

"Well, we are now in the tail of the comet."

"Oh, get out!"

"Quit your kidding!"

"It's lost its tail!"

"Oh, you Zach!"

"Oh, you comet!"

Despite his pleadings the astronomer was borne off amid a meteor shower of remarks like the foregoing. Straight across the campus they took him to President Wilson's house. This time the marching song was—

Comet, comet, you've got no tail!
What the Halley do we care?
What the Halley do we care?

In front of President Wilson's house, that dignitary not appearing in response to insistent demands, the students again forced Zach to make a speech.

"Why aren't we dead?" yelled one.

"Because we are alive," replied the astronomer, and with that they let him escape. The "peera-de" kept on till nearly midnight, when it broke up from sheer exhaustion.

Town Was Comet Crazy.

Princeton went comet crazy at night, and there was no sleep for the just, even had the latter felt inclined for it, which incidentally they did not. From 8 in the evening, when the senior class—a senior stinger, to be Princetonian—gathered on benches in front of Nassau hall and made the campus ring with college songs, till long after midnight Princeton celebrated the comet. Nassau street held its throngs of bareheaded "sops," "juniors" and pretty girls.

If you have never been at a senior stinging you don't know what you're missed. The juniors and townies stand or lie on the grass of the campus while the moon—when there is one, as there was the other night—plays peek-a-boo with the old green elms and makes a black and white shadow crazy quilt on the "camp." The senior class, massed on benches, sit in the dark shadow of Nassau hall, the group illuminated only from time to time when somebody lights a pipe or a cigarette. There must be no applause except for solos or angry senior whistles confound the offender.

One of the hard points about being a king is having your picture taken. The public demands the king be photographed ever so often. It wants to see if he is changing. If he looks worried or happier. MOVEMENT TO STOP BUTCHERY OF BIRDS

The International Ornithological Congress is now holding Convention in Berlin, Germany, to devise plans along that line—America is represented—Details.

Berlin, Germany, May 30.—To devise plans for uniting the world powers in a movement for stopping the commercial butchery which now threatens to depopulate the earth of its most valuable and beautiful birds the fifth quinquennial convention of the International Ornithological Congress is now being held in Berlin. America is represented in the bird conservation project by delegates from the National Association of Audubon Societies and other organizations.

It is declared the "this campaign of protest against the rapid destruction of the feathered resources of every land will be carried to all civilized nations. Testimony from the foremost showing the great part played by the insect eaters in checking crop pests and by the sea birds in averting pestilence has been prepared as proof of the immediate need of their international protection. Until the authorities of every nation join to check the illegal raids of the scouts for the millinery markets, who are scouring the ends of the earth more widely each year, the ornithologists declare, no hope can be held out against quick and final extinction of the most useful bird species that inhabit every land.

"As long as billions of the most economically valuable birds of the earth may be destroyed in some countries and shipped to the millinery centers in others, it will be impossible to prevent their ultimate extinction.

"For instance, the bird of paradise, one of the most striking and beautiful of nature's creations, is now on the verge of extinction. The sale of its plumage cannot be checked until the nations co-operate to this end. This trade in feathers is the chief cause of the world's alarming loss of its bird resources which are essential to the health and prosperity of the human race everywhere. Migratory birds know no geographical lines and we do not believe their existence should be menaced any longer by the lack of the uniform protective laws we propose to advocate to the world powers."

SALE OF RARE COINS BEGINS IN LONDON

London, May 31.—Numismatists all over the world are interested in the sale of rare coins, part of the Stroehlin collection, which was commenced in London today and will continue to June 8. In the collection are many valuable pattern coins, some of which were never adopted. These coins were made for all the Continental, Asiatic, African and South American countries, and present a bewildering variety of designs, in all kinds of metals—gold, silver, tin, nickel, copper, etc.

There are many examples of the minor coinage struck in the precious metals such as a German four-pennig piece of 1748 and a Hamburg shilling of 1798, both of gold.

The collection offers a particularly comprehensive series of French pattern coins, dating from the double tournois of 1615 up to the Third Republic of 1871, and even including a pattern franc, fifty, twenty and ten centime pieces of the Prince Imperial, which never got beyond the experimental stage.

The collection also includes medieval gold coins, chiefly gold florins, many of which are very rare. This sale is probably the most important of its kind ever held, and presents a fine opportunity to the student of the coinages of the world.

NEWSPAPERS BEST FOR ADVERTISING

Chicago, Ill., May 31.—That there is no advertising so effective as newspaper advertising is the opinion expressed here by A. W. Green, president of the National Biscuit company.

"Newspaper advertising, we have found, is the best, taken all around. Billboard advertising is good, but it requires too much time and attention and the advertisements have constantly to be renewed. With the newspapers it is different. The paper shows the ad just as it is, and if it isn't as we have ordered it, of course the newspaper has to make the stipulated changes. We have very little trouble with the newspapers. Magazine advertising is good, but it is slow."

SCAPULAR REPORT STRONGLY DENIED

Milwaukee, Wis., May 31.—Prompt denial comes from the archbishop's residence of the statement contained in a dispatch from Rome that, at request of Archbishop Messmer, the holy father had granted permission to American women to "remove" scapular from around their necks whenever the exigencies of the street demanded.

Archbishop Messmer is out of the city, but Rev. Father Pierron, his long private secretary, denied emphatically that the archbishop had ever made such request. He further stated that thus far no official notification of the concession had been received by Archbishop Messmer.

The first publication of the matter was made in the United States "America," the leading Catholic publication in this country, issued in New York by the Jesuit fathers. In the number of February 26, 1910, in the editorial department, appears the statement:

"In his Supplementa et Monumenta Periodica, Father Vermeersch, S. J., publishes a receipt signed by Mgr. John Brassan, private secretary to the Pope, in which it is declared that his holiness will view with pleasure the wearing of a medal as a substitute for any and all scapulars."

The receipt, as quoted, goes on to say that "Cleanliness or convenience is a sufficient reason for wearing the medal instead of the scapular, and that it suffices to carry the medal about one; and is not required to carry it suspended from the neck or concealed by the clothing."

Pooria, Ill., May 31.—A legal aspect has been placed on the disappearance of Benjamin Cartwright, former secretary of the park board, Mayor of Averyville, and prominent in Masonic and social circles, in that the park board has offered a reward of $500 for his apprehension. Auditors have been investigating the books of the former secretary and the reward has been offered as a result.

For Our Boys and Girls

Sunbonnets For Horses.

There are many ways in which young people as well as grownups can make the hot weather more endurable to the horse, man's most useful servant.

PONY'S HEADRESS.

In the large cities drinking troughs are provided where the horse may quench his thirst.

Domesticated animals suffer from many of the ailments that attack their human owners. Valuable working or "draft" horses, as they are called sometimes, are prostrated with real sunstroke. To prevent this thoughtful drivers have invented various devices to cool a horse's head. Where this is done the animal is much less apt to be overcome by heat. In towns and cities it is common to keep a large wet sponge upon a horse's head just between the ears. This is an excellent plan.

There, too, is the equine sun hat, a funny looking arrangement. At first the kind drivers of heavy teams just took any kind of a cheap straw hat, cut holes in it for the animal's ears and tied it about his head. Occasionally even a little girl's sunbonnet served the purpose. One of the accompanying illustrations shows how a Little New York girl fixed up one of her own bonnets for her pony. In England the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals buys thousands of cheap straw sun hats and gives them to the drivers of work horses, who are generally glad to put them upon the horses' heads.

Another style of head protection is a sort of tiny umbrella fixed upon a frame securely to the creature's head. This style of horse sun umbrella seems to be quite fashionable. Some drivers decorate their horses' sun hats with bright colored ribbons and rosettes, quite in the style of ladies' up to date hats.

How Trees Cool the Air.

Not one person in ten perhaps looks upon a tree as a cooling agent beyond the effect produced by its shade. And yet it acts on the hot air around it just as a lump of ice acts on the water in a pitcher. Here is the explanation: The human body, as you know, maintains, when in a sound condition, a temperature of about 98 degrees, called blood heat. Well, a tree as a body has a temperature of about 45 degrees, which is not affected by outside influences. You see, therefore, how a clump of trees, irrespective of the shade they make, can lower the temperature of the air around them, and when you consider the combined effect of this and the shade they make you readily understand why the woods are so cool and why it is wise to have little parks all over a city and plenty of trees along the streets.

Game of Whistle Puff.

A small fluffy feather is selected for this game. All of the players sit in a circle. Some one starts the game by throwing the feather as high as possible into the air. The feather must not be allowed to fall to the floor nor to alight on any player. To prevent this any player may blow the feather to keep it from alighting, but he must whistle before every puff which he gives. If the feather should touch any player or any player should not whistle before blowing the game must stop long enough for the person upon whom the feather alighted or the player who did not whistle before the puff to whistle any song selected by the starter of the game.

Little Marie.

Such a queer little girl is Marie and sweet. She is different from us, for she hasn't feet. "Les pieds," she says when of them she would speak. And "La joue" she says, with her hand to her cheek. Where we have hands "les mains" she will shake. And for her hat "le chapeau" she will take. She has "les dents" where teeth we would say. But teeth and "les dents" ache in just the same way. "Les yeux bleus" Marie has are blue eyes, just the same. As sweet little Marie's, though a different name. And Marie herself is as loving and true. Though she doesn't say things just the way that we do. —Youth's Companion.

"TOMBSTONES" ARE SET IN A BLAZE

New York, May 31.—"Please, mister," said an excited boy to a Brooklyn policeman, "please come quick. The graveyard is on fire."

"Lead me to it," said the policeman; "I never saw a fire like that."

Sure enough, flames were leaping from broken columns and gates ajar to plain tombstones. Investigation showed that the stones were in reality pine made treated with a preparation which made them look like marble. The cemetery is largely owned by families too poor to afford even true granite. Some vandal, it is supposed, set the fire.

Our Daily Short Story

The King's Surgeon

Story of an Escape From the Guillotine During the French Revolution.

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL.

One evening—it was the latter part of the eighteenth century—a carriage stopped at the door of an inn midway between Versailles and Paris. A gentleman whose dress and manner denoted that he was of some importance alighted, entered the inn, where the landlord stood obsequiously rubbing his hands, and ordered a supper.

While it was being prepared the landlord was hopping about, now running into the kitchen to hurry up the cook and now returning to the gentleman to assure him that he would not have long to wait.

Meanwhile the gentleman went out on to the piazza for the purpose of stretching his legs during his wait. He found there something that interested him—a boy about sixteen years old, pale and emaciated, sitting in an invalid chair. The gentleman approached him and began to question him.

"You do not seem well. What is your trouble?"

"My right leg is drawn up, and I cannot straighten it. My back, too, is getting crooked."

"How long since this trouble came upon you?"

"Since a year ago when the young Marquis of Treville kicked me."

The gentleman's brow lowered. At that moment supper was announced, and he went into the dining room.

"Who is the boy outside with hip disease and spine curvature?" he asked of the landlord, who waited on him.

"He is my son, seigneur."

"He has a fine head and an intellectual face. It is a pity that he should suffer thus. He would if relieved make a good man."

"It was that little villain Treville."

"If you will send him to me at Paris I will see if I cannot straighten his leg and prevent the further curvature of his spine. I am the king's surgeon."

"If you will do that, M. le Docteur, we will all bless you, but I fear I have not so much money as you will expect."

"There will be no money to pay. I am going direct to Paris, and if you like I will take your boy with me in my carriage. He will travel more comfortably and be less liable to injury than if he is carried in one of our country wagons."

When the doctor was driving away, beside him, made comfortable with pillows and rugs, sat Jean Demaurier. That night he was placed in a hospital, and the next morning Dr. Du Faur began a course of treatment.

During the next dozen or fifteen years the American colonists had thrown off the kingly yoke and become an independent people with a government of their own. The French, who for centuries had been bled by their kings and their nobles, ground down to the very earth, encouraged by the Americans' example, had begun to turn upon their oppressors. One day a mob marched by the inn where Dr. Du Faur had stopped for supper, going to Versailles to bring the king to Paris.

Jean Demaurier had forgiven the young noble who had kicked him, but he had not forgotten that so great was the power of the aristocrats that he had not dared resent his treatment. He had thrown himself into the cause of the revolution, and when the people marched by his farm he joined them. Then when they came back with the king in his carriage Jean continued on with them to Paris, where he became one of the minor leaders.

Then began that reign of terror based on a determination on the part of a people who had suffered oppression for centuries to wipe their oppressors from the face of the earth. In the Place de la Revolution they sat up a machine for carrying out their work. The prisons were filled with aristocrats, consisting of nobles and their sympathizers, and whenever the doors opened out poured a crowd who were to be eliminated by the guillotine from the problem of French politics.

Dr. Du Faur was not noble, but his wife was or had been, for he was a widower, and his daughter had married the young Count Destellies at the breaking out of the revolution. The doctor, having been the royal surgeon, was deemed of more importance than the other two and was arrested among the first. The arrest of his daughter and his son-in-law soon followed.

One morning the doctor was brought up before the citizen judge of his arrondissement for what was called a trial. The doctor saw a man apparently not yet thirty sitting behind a pine table who was to be his judge. The man looked at the doctor, and it was evident that some commotion was going on within the former's brain.

And well there might. The judge whose duty it was to find the prisoner guilty and send him to the guillotine was none other than Jean Demaurier, whom the doctor had found a cripple and made a strong man. Demaurier was a trifle bent and walked with a slight limp, but he was a very different man from what he would have been had it not been for the efforts of the surgeon. The judge gave one look at the man who had been sent to him that he might sign his death warrant, then, lowering his eyes to a sheet of paper before him, began to question him and take down his answers. For his own life he dare not favor his benefactor.

"Your name?" he asked.

"Alphonse Du Faur."

"Occupation?"

"Surgeon."

"I believe it is you who have kept the tyrant Louis Capet and his family from the grave where they should have laid long ago."

"I was the king's physician."

Those standing about scowled and expected that the next words would be "Take him to the guillotine!"

"And do you think," continued the judge, "that you who have kept alive this oppressor of the people should die the same death as other aristocrats?"

The doctor did not answer the question.

"Take him to the temporary prison in the Rue Vieux Grand. I wish to consult the committee to learn if it is their pleasure that this man, who has been clearer than any other in the confidence of the tyrant, shall die an ordinary death. He should be burned."

These words were spoken with all the bitterness the citizen judge could throw into them. Not one present suspected that his intention was to save Dr. Du Faur from the guillotine that morning and to place him where he might get access to him with a view to saving him altogether. The doctor was taken to the building mentioned, and another prisoner was brought up for condemnation.

The next morning Citizen Demaurier drove up in a cart to the prison where the doctor was confined and presented an order for him signed by the committee. The doctor was placed in the cart, and Demaurier, telling the officials that he needed no guard for the prisoner, being himself well armed, drove away. Following his way down the street, he soon reached the river bank and the outskirts of Paris. Then he stopped and said to his prisoner:

"You do not know me, M. le Docteur?"

"You are the citizen judge."

"More than that. I am Jean Demaurier."

"And who is Jean Demaurier?"

"Have you done so many kindnesses as to forget those you have benefited? Do you not remember stopping for supper on your way from Versailles at an inn one evening fifteen years ago? There you found a boy who had been crippled by a noble. You took him to Paris and made quite a respectable figure of him. See, I scarcely limp."

He got down from the cart and walked back and forth.

"And you are that boy?" exclaimed the doctor.

"I am."

"What are you going to do with me?"

"Take you in my carriage—this cart—to the inn from which you took me to Paris in your carriage and not only save your back and your leg, but especially your neck. I shall hide you there as long as necessary and then run you over the border."

"You are very kind, but I do not care to leave my daughter and my son-in-law here to die."

"Where are they?"

"In the conciergerie, I believe."

"Very well; I shall see what I can do for them. I am thoroughly trusted, being known as the man who was crippled by a noble. I will take you to my home, return and possibly may bring those you love with me."

"But will I not be missed and you charged with setting me free?"

"I think not. They have so many heads to chop off that the moment a prisoner disappears he is saved. If I am asked about you I will tell them you have been tortured and executed in private. Now lie down in the cart, and I will drive on."

Jean, before reaching his home, where his load was likely to be seen by his neighbors, stopped beside a field where there was grain in sheaf and put enough over his burden to conceal him, then drove on and turned in at his farm by a lane leading to the barn.

The doctor remained concealed in the loft of Demaurier's barn for a week. Meanwhile Demaurier was in Paris, endeavoring to find the Count and Countess Destellies. They had become separated, and Demaurier spent considerable time discovering where they were. Then after much difficulty he succeeded in getting possession of them. This he accomplished by bribing their jailer, and on pretense of removing them to another prison he took them to his inn, but this time the journey was accomplished at the dead of night. The meeting between the doctor and his daughter and her husband at midnight in the loft of a barn, though they could only distinguish one another by their voices, was indescribably happy.

The next morning Jean Demaurier put the three refugees in a deep farm wagon, in the bottom of which he had bored breathing holes, and covered them to the depth of several feet with grain. Then, opening his barn, he drove out and into the road, soon after turning into another leading northward. On that road he jogged with his load till evening, when he relieved the refugees from their uncomfortable position, and they slept in a wood. They dare not take any other conveyance, fearing to be recognized, so the next day they kept to their cart, traveling as grain, and at last crossed the border. There they knelt and, led in one another's arms, gave thanks to heaven.

Jean returned to Paris. He was eventually guillotined, but, strangely enough, not for assisting in the escape of the doctor and his family. His fall was on account of one of those changes wherein one faction came up to dominate another.

RETAIL BUSINESS IN ONE OF DIFFICULTIES

Some of Its Problems are Detailed in an Address Delivered Before Business Men.

Following is a copy of an address delivered recently before the Portage Lake Merchants' association. It contains so much matter of real interest and value to the merchants and the public generally that it is reproduced for the benefit of the Mirror readers. Mr. Baer said:

The retail store must be an economical machine, it must be able, once the goods are bought, to handle them economically and sell them at a profit. There is however a big discrepancy between the price for which an item is sold and the price at which it is bought that is not profit.

Only after incidental and overhead charges have been deducted and all other items of expense accounted for, can what remains be called "profit." This statement is not as obvious as it appears on the face of it. Many a retailer allows some obscure items of cost to get away. He is not charging enough against the cost of handling.

There is the invoice cost, freight, drayage, marking and placing, depreciation, shrinkage, insurance, taxes, contributions, or "hold ups," heat, light power, rent, postage, stationery, books and sales cost, such as clerk hire, advertising, supervision of help, deliveries, collections and losses through poor credit.

Some Special Problems. There is no necessity of my going into each one of these items in detail, suffice to say, we know that they exist. Do we always figure on adding to the cost of each article we buy its proportion of each one of the various items? I am free to say many of us do not.

There are a number of special problems particular to retailing with which the progressive store man must deal—the hardest problem which troubles every retailer is the problem of cash or credit. A cash basis has certain advantages and disadvantages. Similarly a credit basis of handling trade has its factors for and against it. Cash trade is liable to be more or less transient. Credit tends to bind a customer somewhat closely to one store.

When a dealer has extended credit favors to a customer year after year there is a bond of sentiment tending to hold that customer to his old store. This tendency is entirely lacking in cash trade. In this community custom upholds the credit basis and it will in all probability be good commercial custom to extend credit to those who have a right to ask for it.

But the big disadvantage of the credit system is that it always has with it a proportionate loss from bad debts—this condition we as members of the Portage Lake Business Men's association hope to minimize and in time to entirely eliminate.

Varieties of Competition. Now in the matter of competition, I will have a few words to say: Three kinds of competition are peculiar to the retail trade. 1. Where fellow merchants are destructive campaigners. 2. Where patrons are in the habit of doing city buying. 3. The catalog house competition.

There is no use disguising the fact that catalog house competition is a very formidable competition to meet, we can form but a meager idea of the volume of business done by the citizens of every community with these houses. What must be done to remedy it, is what is of interest to our members.

There is but one class of business men to look to for a correction of this condition—this is the dealer himself. The customer will never correct it; the jobber will never correct it; the manufacturer will never correct it. It is something that is unconditionally up to the retailer himself. In spite of the fact that the catalog house competition is a menace to the country dealer he often does nothing to offset it.

A campaign of talk will not wipe out the catalog houses. There is a reason why the customer buys from the catalog house—no one has to look for the reason. It is because the catalog houses have made a study of the best method of marketing a product and they adhere religiously to it.

Ridicule Will Not Do. If the retailer believes that the catalog houses secure trade by unfair means; if they think that they give better value than he is able to do, it is a poor plan to advertise the fact. If he must advertise it however, it should be by some one who will not be thought of in connection with the retail dealer. Attempts to laugh the catalog house out of business will meet with failure; it is too strong an institution, and must be met by good selling methods, not by ridicule. The same energy which might be used in abusing, mail order houses can be turned to better advantage in making sales.

GIRL DIES ON THE DAY SHE DESIRED

East Orange, N. J., May 31.—Elizabeth Green of 59 Cambridge street was buried in St. John's Cemetery, clad in a shroud of her own making. The coffin which her body rested was of her own choosing, and the stone which will mark her grave was selected by her and will be engraved as she ordered.

Miss Green was twenty-six years old, and found herself in an advanced stage of tuberculosis last December. She decided at once that she had no chance for recovery, and began at preparations for the funeral. The last time she left the home of her sister, Mrs. James Egan, with whom she lived, she drove to the store to purchase a bolt of white satin from which to fashion her grave clothes.

She worked on her shroud for nearly two months. When it was done she called in a marble cutter and from his designs she picked the kind of tombstone that she wanted. She decided that it should bear only her name, and it is ready to be erected now. T hen Miss Green sent for Michael Berry of Valley street, chose her coffin and told the undertaker what kind of a funeral she wanted. Everything was done at her interment as she had asked.

Miss Green's preparations were completed some weeks ago. The last matter to which she gave her attention was the care of the grave, and when she asked that roses be planted on it she was ready for the end. She said to her sister last Tuesday:

"This is so beautiful a day that I'd like to die before the sun sets. I want to die before the end of May, anyhow."

That afternoon she died.

DR. FREDERICK COOK HAS BEEN LOCATED

New York, May 31.—The mystery of the whereabouts of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, has been solved, according to the American. He is in Scotland, preparing for a trip to Etah, whence he plans to bring back the records of his alleged discovery of the pole and the instruments cached there. He also intends to bring back the two Eskimos who accompanied him on his dash to the pole. He will then go, says the newspaper, to Copenhagen to present the completed proofs to the university.

MAN IS KILLED BY CAT AND FLY

New York, May 31.—According to the coroner's announcement a cat and a fly were responsible for the death of Edward H. Pratt, a manufacturer of Jersey City. While petting a kitten a week ago he was scratched on the hand and a few hours later crushed a fly in that hand. Septic poisoning which even amputation of the hand could not check caused death.

He was graduated from Williams college in the class of 1831. Rankin was for many years a lawyer in Cincinnati, Ohio, and for thirty years was treasurer of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions.

June 1 is the day when the straw hat season opens, and while today does not speak of straw hats and Jim rickies, tomorrow may tell a different story. Escanaba has a fickle climate and sunstrokes and frozen noses and feet are very close neighbors in this locality. June 1 is the official day for the "coming out" of straw headgear, just the same as May 1 is the day to get the fire go out in the furnace. How many furnace fires are out in Escanaba today? No' very many it may be safe to say. Tomorrow is straw hat day and it would not be wise to place any bets on the kind of weather we are going to have. We may need straw hats—and again we may need ear muffs and fur lined overcoats. Let's not plan on futures.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS IN DELTA COUNTY

According to the Michigan Monthly Bulletin of Vital Statistics, there were sixty-nine births and thirty-three deaths in Delta county during the month of April. The number of births occurring in Escanaba city during the same month was thirty-nine and the deaths numbered twenty-three. This would make the birth rate for the city on the same basis 34.8 and the death rate 20.5. (Continued from page one.)
without exception. Only eight or nine states have failed to act, and I do not doubt that if the voice of the people of these states of New England, of New York, Maryland and Delaware could find convenient expression, free from machine politics, every one of them would favor the election of senators by direct vote and would favor the right of the people to instruct their representatives in congress and the senate.

Where the Evil Lies.
Senator Owen maintained that "the great evil from which the American people have suffered in recent years has been the secret but well-known alliance between commercial interests and machine politics, by which commercial interests have endeavored and often succeeded in obtaining legislation giving them special advantages in nation, states and municipalities, and obtained administrative and judicial immunity so that the laws have not been properly enforced against them."
