EX-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES LECTURES ON BIOLOGICAL ANALOGIES IN HISTORY

GUEST OF OXFORD UNIVERSITY

Touches on the Growth and Decay of Civilization—The Birth Rate Question—Calls England the Greatest Empire and Declares the Man Who Tries to One Worth While—Nations Are Born Again—Let All Strive for Success.

(By Associated Press.)

Oxford University, England, June 7.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt today delivered a notable lecture on "Biological Analogies in History" at Oxford University and received an honorary degree of doctor of civil law. The lecture was heard by a large number of Great Britain's most distinguished scholars and men high in the ranks of public life. Colonel Roosevelt said:

An American who, in response to such an invitation as I have received, speaks in this university of ancient renown cannot but feel with peculiar vividness the interest and charm of his surroundings, fraught as they are with a thousand associations. Your great universities and all the memories that make them great are living realities in the minds of scores of thousands of men who have never seen them and who dwell across the seas in other lands.

Moreover, these associations are no stronger in the men of English stock than in those who are not. My people have been for eight generations in America, but in one thing I am like the Americans of tomorrow rather than like many of the Americans of today, for I have in my veins the blood of men who came from many different European races. The ethnic makeup of our people is slowly changing, so that constantly the race tends to become more and more akin to that of those Americans who, like myself, are of the old stock, but not mainly of English stock.

Yet I think that as time goes by mutual respect, understanding and sympathy among the English speaking peoples grow greater and not less. Any of my ancestors, Hollander or Huguenot, Scotchman or Irishman, who had come to Oxford in "the spacious days of great Elizabeth" would have felt far more alien than I, their descendant, now feel.

Paleontology History.

When dealing with the changes, cataclysmic or otherwise, which divide one period of paleontological history from another we can sometimes assign causes and again we cannot even guess at them. In the case of single species or of fatus of very restricted localities the explanation is often self evident.

A comparatively slight change in the amount of moisture in the climate, with the attendant change in vegetation, might readily mean the destruction of a group of huge herbivores with a bodily size such that they needed a vast quantity of food and with teeth so weak or so peculiar that but one or two kinds of plants could furnish this food.

Again, we now know that the most deadly foes of the higher forms of life are various lower forms of life, such as insects or microscopic creatures conveyed into the blood by insects. There are many large animals, wild and domestic, cannot live because of the presence either of certain ticks or of certain harmful flies.

In Africa there is a terrible genus of poison fly, each species acting as the host of microscopic creatures which are deadly to certain of the higher vertebrates. One of these species, though harmless to man, is fatal to all domestic animals, and this although harmless to the closely related wild kinfolks of these animals.

Another is fatal to man himself, being the cause of the "sleeping sickness," which in many large districts has killed out the entire population. Of course the development or the extension of the range of any such insects and any one of many other causes which we see actually at work around us would readily account for the destruction of some given species or even for the destruction of several species in a limited area of country.

When whole faunal groups die out over large areas the question is different and may or may not be susceptible of explanation with the knowledge we actually possess.

In the old arctical continent, for instance, in what is now Europe, Asia and North America, the glacial period made a complete but, of course, explicable change in the faunal life of the region. At one time the continent held a rich and varied fauna. Then a period of great cold supervened, and a different fauna succeeded the first. The explanation of the change is obvious.

"Death" of Civilization.

When we speak of the "death" of a tribe, a nation or a civilization the term may be used for either one or two totally different processes, the analogy with what occurs in biological history being complete. Certain tribes of savages—the Tasmanians, for instance—and various little clans of American Indians have within the last century or two completely died out.

LITTLE GIRL HAS A FINGER BROKEN

Alma, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Judson of 1118 Hale street, met with a painful accident while playing around a wagon. The little girl got one of her fingers caught in some unaccountable manner and in trying to extricate it, the finger was broken. A physician was summoned immediately and the finger placed in a cast. While the break was clean cut, the doctor thinks that it will only be a matter of a few days until the finger will be as good as ever.

WOMAN BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT

Mrs. Anna Granberg, arrested yesterday morning on a charge of keeping a house of ill fame, had her preliminary examination in Justice Lindgren's court this morning and as a result was bound over for trial in the circuit court. Bail was fixed at $1,000 and unless that amount of security is forthcoming the woman will be obliged to remain in the county jail pending her trial.

DELTA COUNTY LEADS IN ROAD BUILDING

Not Another County in the Upper Peninsula is Its Equal in the Matter of Constructing Good Roads—County Road Institute Held in This City Today.

According to statements made today by State Highway Commissioner Townsend A. Ely and Deputy State Highway Commissioner Frank F. Rogers, Delta county leads all the counties of the upper peninsula in the matter of constructing good roads. Mr. Rogers stated that up to date Delta county has been paid approximately $19,000 in state awards for good road building and there are now applications from this county pending in the state highway commissioner's office for $29,000 more, which will be paid in time. This is a remarkable showing and should be a source of pride to every citizen of Delta county, in the opinion of Messrs. Ely and Rogers.

Commissioner Ely and Deputy Commissioner Rogers were here today to conduct the annual county road institute, which was held at the court house this forenoon. There was a good representation of township road commissioners at the institute, all but one of the townships on this side of the bay being represented. In addition, there were in attendance County Road Commissioners Gasman and Anderson and two township clerks.

The institute was devoted entirely to practical work. There were no speeches, but all questions asked by the township commissioners were answered by either Mr. Ely or Mr. Rogers and there was besides an informal but instructive discussion of road building.

The institute was concluded at noon, and this afternoon Messrs. Ely and Rogers, in company with County Road Commissioner Anderson, are inspecting the roads, particularly those recently built or improved, in Escanaba and Wells townships. Tomorrow they will inspect the route of a new road which it is proposed to build in Park River township and for which the township recently bonded. Tomorrow, Messrs. Ely and Rogers will conduct a road institute for Schoolcraft county at Manistique, and Friday and Saturday they will devote to Menominee county. They expressed themselves as well pleased with the turnout at the Delta county institute today and with the spirit of inquiry and progressiveness manifested by those in attendance.

FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE AND THE HOUSEFLY

The state of Illinois is making a great campaign against flies and tuberculosis and literature is being sent out broadcast all over the country.

A representative of the Illinois Tuberculosis institute passed through this city a few nights ago and left a considerable amount of literature at the passenger station, in addition to handing it around to the people who were at the train. The fight against the "white plague" and the common fly is on and it is now up to public to act with those who are devoting their time and money to the betterment of conditions.

GLADSTONE FIRM TO DISPLAY ITS PRODUCTS

While W. R. Callaway, was visiting in Escanaba and Gladstone last week he visited the plant of the Marble Axe company at the latter city and requested that the company arrange a display of its different specialties in such a manner that it could be placed in the office of Mr. Callaway at Minneapolis for the guidance and reference of the many tourists who visit his office inquiring about camp outfits for use along the Soo Line and the Canadian Pacific. Mr. Callaway, who is the general passenger agent for the "Soo Line," is the fountain head of all information concerning the proper places to camp, fish, hunt, build, farm, rest, mountain climb or study nature along his line, and he tries to have everything for the information of the patrons of the road that will tend towards their happiness and pleasure.

THIS MAY INTEREST SOME LOCAL WOMEN

Escanaba women who purchase switches of black hair will be interested to learn that a crusade has been begun by the Chinese government against Chinese who supply human hair for shipment to America. It seems that a charitable institution at Canton which buries large numbers of paupers found hair dealers exhuming the corpses to recover the hair. Instances are also reported of hair exporters cutting hair in crowds.

TEXAS CITY SUFFERS LOSS THROUGH DEATH

Sudden Demise of Frank Smith, Brother of M. N. Smith of This City is Deeply Felt at Beaumont, Texas—His Death Came Without Warning—Details.

M. N. Smith returned this morning from Beaumont, Texas, where he was called by the sudden death of his brother, Frank Smith, which occurred on June 1. Death was due to heart disease and at the time of the fatal attack, Mr. Smith, who was in the rice business, was talking with a friend and remarked that he did not feel very well. In a moment he was dead.

Mr. Smith had been closely identified with the business interests of Beaumont for a number of years and had a large circle of friends who regret his death deeply. The newspapers published at Beaumont devoted many columns to the passing away of Mr. Smith, and expressed the sorrow of the community for the loss of a man who had done so much for the city and surrounding territory.

ITALY SMITTEN BY A QUAKE

(By Associated Press.)
Naples, Italy, June 7.—A severe earthquake has again visited Italy, causing a number of deaths and much damage to property.

Early today the disturbances commenced and they seemed to be centered in the province of Avellino. Meager reports indicate that the greatest damage was done at Callitri in that province. Twenty people were killed and about half of the city destroyed.

The condition of Mrs. H. J. Robertson, who has been ill for the past few days, is somewhat improved today.

ESCANABA WINS BY SCORE OF 9 TO 7

Gladstone Team is Worsted in a Contest Played in the Mud and Replete With Errors—Both Teams Do Heavy Work With the Stick—Gladstone Uses Two Pitchers.

Upon a diamond slippery with mud the Escanaba team administered a defeat to the Gladstone team at South park Monday afternoon by a score of 9 to 7. The game was slow and replete with errors and ragged playing, but was followed with interest by the crowd of faithful fans in attendance. Many of the errors were excusable on account of the bad condition of the field and nobody felt like criticizing the players much. Escanaba was credited with six errors and Gladstone with eight.

Both teams had their batting clothes on and clouted the ball at a great rate. Gladstone getting thirteen hits and Escanaba nine. Gladstone was obliged to use two pitchers, Toman, its crack twirler being forced to give way in the third inning to Brazil. Four of Escanaba's hits were made off Toman, one of them being a two bagger. This good hit was made by Cully Lantz and its results virtually won the game for the home team. The bases were full at the time Lantz came to bat and his drive cleared the bases, bringing in three fat runs. Olmsted was the only other local player to get a two bagger. Danaher and Frendenberg of the Gladstone team also each got a two base hit.

Loell, the Gladstone captain, was the star with the stick, getting five hits, never failing to whack the ball safely when he came to bat. Nolden pitched for Escanaba and was easy picking for the visitors, but they did not always make their hits count, as is attested by the final result.

Escanaba got a long lead early in the game, getting seven runs in the first two innings, but there it stuck until the seventh inning, when two more runs, enough to win the game, were secured. Gladstone played an uphill game and never gave up until the last man was out in the ninth inning.

The remainder of the story of the game can be gleaned out from the following score and summary:

Gladstone 0 2 1 0 2 0 2 0—7 13 8
Escanaba 3 4 0 0 0 2 0 x—9 9 6
Earned runs—Gladstone, 1. First on balls—Off Toman, 2. Left on bases—Gladstone, 10; Escanaba, 4. Wild pitches—Nolden, 1. Two base hits—Danaher, Frendenberg, Lanz and Olmsted. Struck out—By Nolden, 4; by Brazil, 5. Double plays—Danaher to Loell; Flath to M. Walsh. Hit by pitcher—Connors and Frendenberg. Time of game—Two hours five minutes. Umpire—Olmsted of Garden.

TIMBER JOBBERS SHIPPING OUTPUT

The timber jobbers working in the district between Escanaba and Negaunee on the Chicago & Northwestern railway are now sending out logs that were cut during the fall and winter months. The operators have had greater difficulty getting cars this year than ever before, and although cars are still scarce they are a little more plentiful than they were during the winter. The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company was overcrowded with logging business the past winter and at times the jobbers ran weeks without a car.

ESCANABA AUTO IS JARRED BY ANOTHER

Monday morning an automobile occupied by a party of four Escanaba young men was struck by another auto on the state road near Menominee and both cars suffered some damage. None of the occupants of either car was hurt and the Escanaba party after taking their car to a garage for repairs came home later. The car that struck the Escanaba auto was driven by Joseph Quinlan of Marinette, who lost control of the machine through a defect in

WORK ON THE STATE ROAD PROGRESSES

The state road which has been undergoing improvements for the last two months will soon be ready for travel. Many loads of stone have been hauled from the stone quarry and spread along the road from John Frost's farm to Alderman A. J. Valentine's house. Only one and one-half blocks of the road remains to be improved.

On the other side of the Butcher Creek bridge the course of the road has been changed. Now it runs straight ahead until it makes a quick turn near the bordering fence of the nearest farm. The lighting plant has a line as far as the bridge and placed a light there, which is a great convenience to late travelers. Last year the road was improved from John Frost's farm to the dumping ground, which gives auto enthusiasts over four miles of good straight road.

SUPERVISORS MEET NEXT THURSDAY

The county board of supervisors will meet at the court house next Thursday for the purpose of organizing for business. A new chairman of the board is to be elected and standing committees appointed. Bills that are to be presented at his meeting of the board must be filed by tomorrow noon, County Clerk Semer states.

SURE, THEY ALL REMEMBER O'HARA

Last night B. F. O'Hara passed through Escanaba on his way from Iron River, Wis., to Green Bay to attend the state convention of Odd Fellows, which is in session in that city. Mr. O'Hara lived in Escanaba several years ago and made many friends in this city. He was in the dyeing and cleaning business and his establishment was always a sort of "hang-out" for the boys and young men of the city, who will remember how willingly O'Hara always sewed on buttons and pressed clothes for them whether the pay was in sight or not. During the year of 1893 business was none to good in any part of the country and there were many young men out of work in Escanaba who will easily remember B. F. O'Hara.

O. P. Chatfield left last night for Chicago and expects to return in two or three days with Mrs. Chatfield, who has been in a hospital in that city for five weeks.

ESCANABA GROCERS AND BUTCHERS' ASSOCIATION GIVES PLACE TO NEW COMPANY

Will Erect a Fine Building

New Corporation Will Be Known as the Escanaba Dealers' Credit and Delivering Company—Objects Indicated by Its Name—Has Already Incorporated and Elected Officers—Will Have a Building of Its Own—Details.

Monday evening the Escanaba Grocers and Butchers' association passed out of existence and in its place sprang into being the Escanaba Dealers' Credit and Delivering company.

The taking of this step is considered a forward move by the members of the first named organization who have become interested in the last named company. They have been working quietly for several months to bring about the change, but not until Monday evening was the enterprise fully committed to its new form and ready for launching upon the business waters of the city.

An Incorporated Concern.

The Escanaba Dealers' Credit and Delivering company has been incorporated under the laws of the state. Its capital stock is $5,000, divided into 800 shares of $10 each, and all of the shares are held by members of the company, whose primary purposes are indicated in some degree by its name. That is, one of the objects of the company is to conduct a credit department for the purpose of furnishing its members direct information in regard to the "paying up" ability and inclination of every citizen of Escanaba and the surrounding territory who does trading here. The same information concerning new residents will be furnished. In this department the company will merely carry out the plan, somewhat amplified, of the old Grocers and Butchers' association, which ceased to exist Monday evening.

General Delivery System.

Another object of the company is the establishment and operation of a general delivery system for the use of every member of the company. This is a plan that has been under consideration for some time by the old association and it will now be carried out by the new company along lines yet to be fully determined. The Escanaba Dealers' Credit and Delivering company has already elected its officers. They are: President, E. M. St. Jacques; vice president, Rudolph Schwartz; secretary, John A. Stromberg; treasurer, S. W. Brennan. These officers, together with William Breitenbach, constitute the board of directors.

Will Erect Fine Building.

The company will erect its own building in which to conduct its business. Lots have been purchased on North Norris near Sinclair street, and within a short time there will be commenced the construction of a handsome building, one that will be an ornament to that section of the city.

DIAMOND RINGS FROM $10 UP

Blomstrom & Petersen, The Wide Awake Jewelers

Are YOU Working for Nothing?

During the past month you have earned $50, $80, or perhaps $100. You have paid the bills of your butcher, grocer, landlord and coal man.

How much did you pay yourself?

Are you not entitled to some pay for management of your affairs!—Just as well as the manager of any factory, store or other business?

Usually the manager's pay depends upon his ability to manage. So does yours. Better management—bigger salary. Manage well and have surplus money for yourself.

LEARN TO SAVE

If you recklessly spend all your surplus money, you cheat yourself. Why not chop off unnecessary expenditures—the small extravagances.

Deposit this surplus systematically each week with this institution and watch it accumulate.

Three per cent interest will be added to your savings if you make time deposits.

Not tomorrow—TODAY! NOW is the time to start

Take one dollar if you cannot spare more, and open an account TODAY. Don't think that ONE DOLLAR is too little. It is plenty to start with. The determination to begin saving is the thing that counts.

When the start is made, it is easy to add a little more each week and the three per cent interest paid on time deposits helps to swell the amount.

Free Finland.

Finland recently rejected the measure by which Russia proposed to extend her authority over the Grand Duchy. More than once of late—that is, since troubles began to accumulate for the czar—the Finns have asserted their traditional independence, and on every occasion the czar ended by trying to coerce them. The new attempt to place the will of the Russian parliament above that of the Finnish diet in "matters of general and imperial interest" is but another and more subtle way of saying that the will of Finland must not clash with the will of the czar, who is the grand duke.

Finland is more progressive than Russia and more highly civilized. Its inhabitants are not Russians and are not of the same religious faith. Its aspiration for liberty is not a mere political sentiment, but is based on rights which every czar of the last hundred years has sworn to respect. Russia does not like Finland free, but cannot help herself when other troubles harass the throne.

The probability is that George will imitate Edward and content himself with the role of the constitutional king. Not otherwise can he hope to save the throne from the dangers which menaced it in the reign of the last George.

Some day it will come to be recognized that it is as great a disgrace to a community to acquiesce in the prevalence of consumption as it would be to accept the medieval plague as an unavoidable visitation of Providence.

In order to lessen the danger of rabies Chicago will place 1,000 drinking vessels for dogs in different parts of the city, a scheme worth imitating by every town, village and hamlet in the land.

In view of the awful fate of the miners at Potosi, the work of educating mine operatives in the handling of explosives should be rushed with all speed.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

CHINESE SMUGGLING CASE IS INTERESTING

It Will Be Tried in Federal Court at Marquette—System of Importing Chinese.

Marquette Mich., June 7.—What promises to be one of the most interesting cases to be tried at the coming term of the United States court, which opens June 14, will be that of the United States against "Felix" Wagner, charged with having been guilty of smuggling Chinese across the St. Mary river from Canada into this country. Immigration officials believe that in the arrest of Wagner they have uncovered a far reaching "underground railroad" system by which hundreds of Chinese have been imported into the United States by way of the St. Mary's river and the upper peninsula, during the last seven or eight years. Wagner is believed to have received large sums of money for the traffic. It is said that the Orientals have been brought across in a gasoline boat and landed at out of the way points on the American side, sometimes as much as sixty miles below the American coast.

Once in the upper peninsula, it is alleged that Wagner had an understanding with certain whites as well as Orientals in all parts of the region, whereby these smuggled Chinese were placed in cities throughout the north-west. It is even claimed that the traffic extended as far as Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Chicago. Wagner has steadfastly maintained his innocence and declares that he is being persecuted by personal enemies.

Under a Peonage System. The Chinese brought into this country are said to have been held in practical slavery under the peonage system. It is stated that among the American Chinese there exists a secret society or "tong" and that this society pays the expenses of bringing their fellow countrymen across the border, the cost of which runs from $150 to $300 per man. This amount is charged against the person brought into the country, and he must work out that amount for the man by whom he is employed. Manifestly, the system is susceptible of great abuses and the victims might be held in virtual slavery for an indefinite time. It is said however that it is impossible for one to escape payment of the importation debt, contracted with the "tong," and that those who have occasionally made such an attempt have mysteriously disappeared.

A Hazardous Calling. Smuggling Chinese across the Great Lakes and the rivers which separate Canada and the United States is as romantic and as hazardous a calling as was ever followed by men who make their living by breaking the law. It has in it a greater element of risk than sneaking in dutiable merchandise for a cargo of human beings is not easily concealed. But it has one advantage, and that is sufficient to interest men peculiarly fitted for the work by nature and by calling. If the cargo is captured there is no money loss, as the agent has not one cent invested. If he can escape himself he is nothing the loser not even his time as the expense of the undertaking is borne by the combine. The lump sum that he is to receive on the delivery of the goods, however, is not forthcoming if he fails, so it behooves him to carry out his contract.

Railroads are Chiefly Used. The railroads, the fastest and surest mode of travel, are chiefly used by the smugglers. The Chinamen are stowed away in box cars which are about to be hauled to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Milwaukee, or some other of the larger towns within a day's run of the frontier, and as soon as it starts on its way the agents of the combine at the point of destination are notified, the number of the car being given, as well as other information that may be necessary. In order to insure the delivery of the shipment, the combine must have an understanding with some of the men in the train service, and it is believed that many of the brakemen who run across the border turn an honest penny by assisting in the traffic.

As soon as the Chinamen reach the city for which they are intended the agent who engineered the enterprise receives his pay from the combine. The men behind the organization are punctual in this particular, as their success depends entirely upon the confidence reposed in them by those who they employ.

Mistakes Sometimes Fatal. In the shipment of the yellow men mistakes are sometimes made that have painful endings. Last year a Chinaman was shipped from a point near Windsor, Ont., in a refrigerator car. The man who selected it evidently did not take the trouble to inform himself as to the city for which it was bound, for instead of stopping at a point just across the line it was hauled to St. Louis, Mo. It was several days on the road and when it finally was opened the frozen body of the Chinaman was discovered. The authorities took the matter up and succeeded in arresting and convicting the man who placed the unfortunate in the car.

At Winnipeg and Vancouver there are frequently hundreds of Chinamen waiting for an opportunity to slip across the border. The men in charge of them carefully watch every point which offers facilities for ingress to this country, and as soon as they note any relaxation of the watchfulness on the part of the United States officials at any point a batch is run over. The whole frontier is constantly scrutinized by the agents of the combine.

Detroit a Favorite Point. Detroit is a favorite point, as the city is so large as to offer sure hiding for any number that can be brought in. As the two countries are divided by a narrow river at that point it is a simple matter to cross over and rush to cover.

The Mexican border offers even an easier entry, but it has the disadvantage of insufficient hiding places. Nevertheless it is largely used, and thousands of Orientals cross to the land of the Aztecs each year. The river is well guarded, but in spite of this it is impossible for the officials of the immigration department to watch every point.

Once the Chinamen gets into the United States it is almost impossible to run him to earth and secure his deportation. The import receives identification papers from the combine

All of the individuals have perished, leaving no descendants, and the blood has disappeared.

Certain other tribes of Indians have as tribes disappeared or are now disappearing, but their blood remains, being absorbed into the veins of the white intruders or of the black men introduced by these white intruders, so that in reality they are merely being transformed into something absolutely different from what they were. In the United States, in the new state of Oklahoma, the Creeks, Cherokees, Chickasaws, Delawares and other tribes are in process of absorption into the mass of the white population. When the state was admitted, a couple of years ago, one of the two senators and three of the five representatives in congress were partly of Indian blood.

In but a few years these Indian tribes will have disappeared as completely as those that have actually died out, but the disappearance will be by absorption and transformation into the mass of the American population.

Growth and Decay. Why do great artificial empires, whose citizens are knit by a bond of speech and culture much more than by a bond of blood, show periods of extraordinary growth and again of sudden or lingering decay? In some cases we can answer readily enough; in other cases we cannot as yet even guess what the proper answer should be. If in any such case the centrifugal forces overcome the centripetal, the nation will, of course, fly to pieces, and the reason for its failure to become a dominant force is patent to every one.

The minute that the spirit which finds its healthy development in local self government and is the antidote to the dangers of an extreme centralization develops into mere particularism, into inability to combine effectively for achievement of a common end, then it is hopeless to expect great results.

We Americans and you people of the British isles alike need ever to keep in mind that among the many qualities indispensable to the success of a great democracy and second only to a high and stern sense of duty, of moral obligation, are self knowledge and self-mastery.

You, my hosts, and I may not agree in all our views. Some of you would think me a very radical democrat, as for the matter of that, I am, and my theory of imperialism would probably suit the anti-imperialists as little as it would suit a certain type of forcible imperialist. But there are some points on which we must all agree if we think soundly. The precise form of government, democratic or otherwise, is the instrument, the tool, with which we work. It is important to have a good tool, but even if it is the best possible tool it is only a tool. No implement can ever take the place of the guiding intelligence that wields it.

A very bad tool will ruin the work of the best craftsman, but a good tool in bad hands is no better. In the last analysis the all important factor in national greatness is national character.

The Birth Rate Question. There are questions which we of the great civilized nations are ever tempted to ask of the future. Is our time of growth drawing to an end? Are we as nations soon to come under the rule of that great law of death which is itself but part of the great law of life? None can tell. Forces that we can see and other forces that are hidden are at work all around us both for good and for evil. The growth in luxury, in love of ease, in taste for vivid and frivolous excitement, is both evident and unhealthy.

The most ominous sign is the diminution in the birth rate, in the rate of natural increase, now to a larger or lesser degree shared by most of the civilized nations of central and western Europe, of America and Australia, a diminution so great that if it continues for the next century at the rate which has obtained for the last twenty-five years all the more highly civilized peoples will be stationary or else have begun to go backward in population, while many of them will have already gone very far backward.

There is much that should give us concern for the future, but there is much also that should give us hope. No man is more apt to be mistaken than the prophet of evil.

I believe with all my heart that a great future remains for us, but whether it does or does not our duty is not altered. However the battle may go the soldier worthy of the name will with utmost vigor do his allotted task and bear himself as valiantly in defeat as in victory.

Come what will, we belong to peoples who have not yielded to the craven fear of being great. In the ages that have gone by the great nations, the nations that have expanded and that have played a mighty part in the world, have in the end grown old and weakened and vanished, but so have the nations whose only thought was to avoid all danger, all effort, who would risk nothing and who therefore gained nothing. In the end the same fate may overwhelm all alike, but the memory of the one type perishes with it, while the other leaves its mark deep on the history of all the future of mankind.

Nations Born Again. A nation that seemingly dies may be born, again, and even though in the physical sense it die utterly it may yet hand down a history of heroic achievement and for all time to come may profoundly influence the nations that arise in its place by the impress of what it has done.

Best of all is it to do our part well and at the same time to see our blood live young and vital in men and women fit to take up the task as we lay it down, for so shall our seed inherit the earth. But if this which is best is denied us, then at least it is ours to remember that if we choose we can be torchbearers, as our fathers were before us.

The torch has been handed on from nation to nation, from civilization to civilization, throughout all recorded time from the dim years before history dawned down to the blazing splendor of this teeming century of ours.

While freely admitting all of our follies and weaknesses of today, it is yet mere perversity to refuse to realize the incredible advance that has been made in ethical standards. I do not believe that there is the slightest necessary connection between any weakening of virile force and this advance in the moral standard, this growth of the sense of obligation to one's neighbor and of reluctance to do that neighbor wrong.

We need have scant patience with that silly cynicism which insists that kindness of character only accompanies weakness of character. On the contrary, just as in private life many of the men of strongest character are the very men of loftiest and most exalted morality so I believe that in national life as the ages go by we shall find that the permanent national types will more and more tend toward those in which, while the intellect stands high, character stands higher, in which rugged strength and courage, rugged capacity to resist wrongful aggression by others, will go hand in hand with a lofty scorn of doing wrong to others.

The Greatest Empire. You belong to a nation which possesses the greatest empire upon which the sun has ever shone. I belong to a nation which is trying on a scale hitherto unexampled to work out the problems of government for, of and by the people, while at the same time doing the international duty of a great power.

But there are certain problems which both of us have to solve and as to which our standards should be the same. The Englishman, the man of the British isles, in his various homes across the seas and the American both at home and abroad are brought into contact with utterly alien peoples, some with a civilization more ancient than our own, others still in or having but recently arisen from the barbarism which our people left behind ages ago.

The problems that are of well nigh inconceivable difficulty. They cannot be solved by the foolish sentimentality of stay at home people with little patent recipes and those cut and dried theories of the political nursery which have such limited applicability amid the crash of elemental forces. Neither can they be solved by the raw brutality of the men who, whether at home or on the rough frontier of civilization, adopt might as the only standard of right in dealing with other men and treat alien races only as subjects for exploitation.

I hold that the laws of morality which should govern individuals in their dealings one with the other are just as binding concerning nations in their dealings one with the other. The application of the moral law must be different in the two cases, because in one case it has and in the other it has not the sanction of a civil law with force behind it. It would be foolish indeed to pay heed to the unwise persons who desire disarmament to be begun by the very peoples who of all others should not be left helpless before any possible foe. But we must reprobate quite as strongly both the leaders and the peoples who practice or encourage or condone aggression and iniquity by the strong at the expense of the weak.

We should tolerate lawlessness and wickedness neither by the weak nor by the strong, and both weak and strong we should in return treat with scrupulous fairness. The foreign policy of a great and self-respecting country should be conducted on exactly the same plane of honor, of insistence upon one's own rights and of respect for the rights of others, as when a brave and honorable man is dealing with his fellows.

Permit me to support this statement out of my own experience. For nearly eight years I was the head of a great nation and charged especially with the conduct of its foreign policy, and during those years I took no action with reference to any other people on the face of the earth that I would not have felt justified in taking as an individual in dealing with other individuals.

Try at Least.

I believe that we of the great civilized nations of today have a right to feel that long careers of achievement lie before our several countries. To each of us is vouchsafed the honorable privilege of doing his part, however small, in that work.

Let us strive hard for success, even if by so doing we risk failure, spurring the poorer souls of small endeavor who know neither failure nor success.

Let us hope that our own blood shall continue in the land that our children and children's children to endless generations shall arise to take our places and play a mighty and dominant part in the world. But whether this be denied or granted by the years we shall not see, let at least the satisfaction be ours that we have carried onward the torch in our own day and generation. If we do this, then, as our eyes close and we go out into the darkness and other hands grasp the torch, at least we can say that our part has been borne well and valiantly.

Cookery

Points

At a bag dinner given by a young woman for her husband and brother the decorations were so original as to be worth repeating here. In the center of the round table was placed a large cut glass tobacco jar filled with loose tobacco. On top of this was a little bisque doll dressed like a ballet dancer, with spreading skirts.

A circle of small playing cards was arranged to form a centerpiece, and from this radiated a row of cards to each plate, forming a wheel.

Cornucop pipes were stacked at each corner of the table, and at each cover were tiny beer steins and little sample bottles of wine as souvenirs. The menu was a substantial one, such as men like. It consisted of bouillon, thick sirloin steak with French fried potatoes, string beans, endive salad with Camembert cheese and wafers, a frozen pudding and black coffee.

This is an easy dinner to prepare and serve even without a maid.

RECIPES.
Nut Rice Pudding.—One pint boiled rice, one-half cupful of chopped walnuts, three tablespoonfuls of vegetable oil, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one egg (beaten) and zwieback crumbs. Mix the ingredients, using sufficient crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to form into patties. If the rice is very dry it may be necessary to add a little milk to make the mixture sufficiently soft. It is better to do this and use some crumbs than to omit the milk and the crumbs. Egg and crumb patties and bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Brown Gravy.—One-half cupful of flour, one-quarter cupful of vegetable oil, boiling water and salt. Cook the flour in the oil, stirring to prevent scorching till the flour is lightly browned, and sufficient boiling water, stirring vigorously with a butter whip to make of the proper consistency for gravy. Cook five minutes. Salt to taste.

Jellied Chicken.
 For jellied chicken have on hand three pounds of chicken that has been boiled and cut from the bone in strips. Mix a quart of rich chicken stock that has been boiled down and cleared with a teaspoonful each of lemon juice, chopped parsley, a dash of celery salt and a quarter teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. At the last stir in a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin that has been dissolved. When the jelly begins to thicken add the chicken and turn it into a mold. To have the chicken scattered evenly through the jelly stand the dish containing the jelly in a pan of ice and turn in the jelly layer by layer, covering each with chicken as soon as it begins to thicken.

Creamed Onions on Toast.
 Peel some Spanish onions all of a size. Put into a white lined pan covered with water or stock. Add a small blade of nutmeg and cook gently till tender. Drain and keep the onions hot; then add a gill of milk to the onion liquid. Measure this liquid all together and to every gill add a heaped teaspoonful of flour moistened with a little cold milk. Roll up. Add a nut of butter, salt and pepper. Make a square of buttered toast for each onion. Add the yolk of an egg to the sauce, lay an onion on each square of toast, pour some sauce over each, then a little chopped parsley and serve hot.

When Purchasing Veal.
 Veal should be fat, the kidney small and well covered with firm white fat, the lean finely grained and of a clear white color. Inferior veal is lean. The flesh is clammy and has a spotty appearance.

The color is either red or a dull sickly white. Fresh veal has a clean, healthy smell, and the vein in the shoulder is blue or red. Veal does not keep well in hot weather owing to its large proportion of gelatin.

Uses For Parsley.
 Often parsley is thrown away instead of being dried in the oven and rubbed to powder and put away in a bottle for seasoning soups, stews and gravies. Even the stems may be saved and used in this manner. Parsley will make the most delicious seasoning. Generally it is only known as a garnish.

Nut Hash.
 Chop fine cold boiled potatoes and any other vegetables desired that happen to be on hand. Put them into a buttered frying pan and heat quickly and thoroughly. Salt to taste. Then just before serving stir in lightly a large spoonful of nut meal for each person to be served.

TAKES OUT LIFE POLICY FOR MILLION

Chicago, June 7.—One of the largest life insurance lines ever placed in Chicago was taken recently by Arthur S. Ford, treasurer of a cement company, the insurance amounting to $1,000,000. The premiums are to be paid by the cement company, the idea of the insurance being to protect those financially interested in the corporation.

CENSUS BUREAU IS ALMOST SWAMPED

Anxious Citizens Who Can't Wait Write and Telegraph to Washington for Information Regarding the Population of Towns in All Portions of the Country.

Washington, June 7.—The census bureau is overwhelmed with inquiries about the population of towns, cities and states. From Portland, Me., and Syracuse, N. Y., even to Sacramento and San Francisco, Cal., letters and telegrams are pouring into Washington to know why the figures of their inhabitants are not given to the public as has been done in other cases.

As a matter of fact no figures or estimates, official or unofficial, have been given out at the census office, and there have been no "leaks." The census office is now receiving returns from the supervisors of divers districts, and about June 15, as Director E. Dana Durand puts it, the population of some of the larger cities will be announced. From the big cities like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and St. Louis, the counting machines at the census office will proceed to the smaller cities, and in two months from now will probably get down to some of the country districts.

The population of numerous counties will be known by the middle or last of July, but it will be well in August, and it may be near September, before the population of any state can be told officially. But as fast as the tabulations are completed the results will be announced.

Some enterprising "guessers" have essayed to announce the population of large cities and states, causing much trouble for the census office and bringing a flood of inquiries to Washington. Probably an accommodating census official could be persuaded to figure out a tolerably accurate guess on the population of any tolerably large town. That is how the stories of population have been written, but they are not of any importance when it comes to veracity.

ROOSEVELT AS U. OF M. HEAD?

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—Rumors of an effort to induce former President Roosevelt to accept the presidency of the University of Michigan were revived here today. The Detroit Journal says:

"Information comes from Ann Arbor that at the last meeting of the regents, George P. Codd of Detroit, of the board of regents, was delegated to meet Colonel Roosevelt in England, there having already been some communication between the board and the former president on the subject."

HOUGHTON LOSES AN OLD RESIDENT

Gottlieb Hartman, owner of the Hartman block in Houghton, died at his home on Dodge street at eleven o'clock Sunday morning, after a long illness. Mr. Hartman was seventy-six years of age, having been born in Prussia in 1833. He located at Sheboygan, Wis., in 1853, and at Houghton in 1858. He was married in 1862. Mrs. Hartman, five daughters and two sons survive him. The sons are G.

A. Hartman, assistant to the general superintendent of the Copper Range railroad, and Will Hartman, chief engineer of the Mohawk and Wolverine mines.

CARS KILL 110 IN ELEVEN MONTHS

Chicago, June 7.—One hundred and ten lives were snuffed out in Chicago by street cars in the eleven months from July 1, 1909, to May 31, 1910. Fourteen of the fatalities occurred during May, in which month there were also 322 persons injured, many of them seriously. Twenty of the injured were children under the age of ten years who were playing in the street when struck. Thirty-nine were hurt in getting on or off moving cars and eighty-four others were hurt in accidents in alighting from cars.

GOOD WAY TO CLEAR STABLE OF FLIES

To the Editor: To keep flies out of a stable, do not use wire screens, as that tends to keep them in.

Remove the window sash from each window, then nail lath or strips of the opening of the window frame on the outside. To the top of the inside of the frame tack a curtain of cheap black cambric cloth, the height and width of the frame. The strips of wood prevent the curtain from blowing outward, and as the curtain moves to and fro, and being blown inward, the flies fly toward the opening, and as the curtain drops back, driving or carrying the flies with it.

If you wish, you can remove the stable door and put in a skeleton door with the cross pieces.

In a short space of time after the horses have been taken into the barn, you will scarcely hear the stamp of a hoof or the swish of a tail.

POPE RECEIVES AMERICAN TARS

Rome, June 7.—The pope received in private audience on Saturday Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college in Rome, who presented to his holiness a group of American sailors from the United States cruiser New York, which is anchored in the Bay of Naples. The pontiff urged the men of the navy to observe discipline and serve their country loyally, being brave as well as religious.

St. Ignace, Mich., June 7.—Postmaster M. E. Collins, of Engadine, a western Mackinac county lumberman was found dead in the postoffice with a revolver in his hand. Whether he committed suicide or was shot by burglars is not known. His wife died last January.

LORD WILL SERVE REMAINDER OF YEAR

Lansing, Mich., June 7.—George Lord, secretary of the state tax commission, who it was reported would soon resign, states that he will remain in office until January 1, 1911, at least. However, Mr. Lord states that he will retire the first day of the year.

IRON MOUNTAIN IS GROWING SOME

Enumerator Cudlip has completed the work of taking the school census at Iron Mountain and is now engaged in tabulating the same. It is learned that his count shows a small increase in the school population, the total being about 3,300. There has been a small decrease in the fourth and fifth, but the increase in the first ward more than makes good this loss. The figures would indicate that Iron Mountain has a population of more than 12,000.

How Felicia Saw the Circus

"Nobody loves me," said Felicia to her little brown dog as they sat by the side of the country road, "nobody loves me, Toots, or they would take me to the circus."

It really did seem as if everybody was going for the road was full of carriages and wagons.

"We will just go a little twenty twenty way, Toots," said Felicia, "and maybe we can see the tents." So they went to the crossroads, and, sure enough, just ahead was the spreading tent, with flags flying.

"Oh, dear," sighed Felicia, "I wish I could go."

"Go where?" asked a voice.

"I don't want to frighten you," said the voice again, and over the fence leaped the funniest man that Felicia had ever seen. He was all in white. He wore baggy white trousers and a ruff around his neck and a tall white fool's cap, and his face was painted.

"Oh," said Felicia, "you're the clown."

"I am one of the clowns," said the queer young man. "There are eleven of us in the show, and I thought I would take a holiday."

"I shouldn't think you would ever want to leave the circus," Felicia said. "It must be perfectly lovely."

"It isn't lovely," said the clown, "and now what shall we do?"

"We?" Felicia asked in surprise. "Are you going to spend the day with me?"

"I shall be delighted to do so," said the clown. "If you will let me."

"Well, I am sure you won't have half as much fun as you would in the cir-

FELICIA AND THE FUNNY MAN.

"Felicia," said Felicia, "but I will go and ask my mother."

"Let me go, too," said the clown, so Felicia and Toots and the funny man went up the hill toward the little red house where Felicia lived.

Felicia's mother was baking, and the fragrance of spicy cakes filled the air.

"Oh, give me a cookie," said the clown, standing in the doorway. "I haven't had a homemade cookie for ages."

Felicia's mother stared at him. "Mercy me," she exclaimed, "who ever heard of a clown asking for a cookie?"

"But she gave him two crisp ones."

"If I could have a glass of milk with this," said the clown, "I could wish for nothing more."

And Felicia danced to the springhouse and brought him a pitcherful.

"My," said the clown when he had eaten eight cookies and drunk all the milk. "I haven't tasted anything so good since I joined the circus. And now let's go fishing."

They fished all the afternoon from an old boat set among the lily pads of the pond, and when they had caught a great many little silver fish the clown said, "I am having a fine time."

"It's very nice," Felicia agreed politely, and then she gave a little sigh. "But the circus must be beautiful."

"Haven't you ever been to the circus?" the clown asked.

"No."

"Oh, my, my," said the clown, "then you must go!" He put his hand deep down in his pocket. "Here are three tickets," and he handed them to her. "You can go tomorrow afternoon and take your father and mother."

Felicia clapped her hands for joy. "Oh, oh," she cried, "I am going to the circus, the circus, the circus!"

And she ran up the hill and danced into the doorway where her mother was taking preserves out of a big jar.

The clown followed her. "Oh, peach preserves!" he said. "Do you think I could have a piece of bread with some of the preserves?"

"Indeed, you can," said Felicia's mother. "It was very nice of you to ask Felicia to go to the circus. I wish you would stay to supper."

And he did, and after supper he went out into the yard and turned somersaults over the flower beds and swung himself up into an old oak tree.

But that was nothing to what he did the next day, when Felicia sat beside her mother in the reserved seats and clapped and clapped as the clown leaped over the elephants and rode a donkey and cracked so many jokes that the tears ran down her cheeks because she laughed so hard.

"He is the funniest friend," she said, with a happy sigh, as he rode away on the back of a lumbering bear.

AVIATOR WILL RACE AGAINST FAST TRAIN

New York, June 7.—A race of more than 100 miles between an aeroplane and an express train is being planned by Charles K. Hamilton, the aviator. Mr. Hamilton said today he intended to race a train over the Long Island railroad, from Jamaica to Montauk, a distance of about 105 miles and that he would fly over the tracks all the way. He is confident he can outstrip any train for that distance.

99% of the Real Bargains

Go to those who read Ads!

You can't afford to align yourself with the one-chance-in-a-hundred people--with those who "haven't time" to read ads., and who therefore, spend hours of useless "looking" for the bargain, to which the ad-reader has found a straight road.

The "100th person," who finds a genuine bargain that was not advertised, may succeed now and then. All of the "98" who read and answer ads., may find real bargains. Buying Opportunities.

So that bargain-hunting and bargain-offering adjust themselves to this law: 99 per cent of the bargain hunters being ad-readers, 99 per cent of the bargain-offers are advertisers! Lajoie Attributes His Success on Diamond to Baseball Instinct

By LARRY LAJOIE.

(Copyright, 1910, by Joseph B. Bowles.)
It is hard to tell how any man wins a ball game, because his winning depends so much upon the other members of his team. I think that the biggest factor in winning, in my case at least, is in having what I think is the baseball instinct. Whether that instinct is natural or acquired, or merely the result of quickness of eye, or what I do not pretend to know. But I believe that a great part of a ball player's success both in batting and in fielding is the result rather of instinct than of anything else. Many times players do things almost without thinking that are exactly right, and many times when they think out a thing carefully they do exactly the wrong thing.

As far as I am concerned, I win games by hitting. It seems to me I always could hit, and in spite of the fact that some pitchers think otherwise, I hit almost any kind of ball equally hard. I have often wondered why this was. Perhaps it was natural. I never want to know what a pitcher is going to pitch and would much rather figure out for myself what ball is coming than to have a coach or any one else tell me.

I think hitting is a natural gift rather than one that can be learned, although practice helps considerably. Position at the bat is a big thing in hitting. A batter should be firmly on his feet, with the balls of his feet holding the ground tightly, and he should not shift position while striking. Any one who is timid and who moves away and then strikes back at the ball or "pulls," as we say in baseball, loses driving power and does not hit the ball hard. I do not try to hit the ball as hard as possible, but rather to meet it squarely, and in this I think a quick and steady eye helps.

In batting I strive always to get the advantage of a pitcher by waiting before hitting, or, if I suspect he intends to put the first ball over, to hit that one. It is a guessing match between the pitcher and the batter at the best, and experience ought to show a batter just what a pitcher is likely to pitch to him on any given ball. When runners are on bases batting becomes more of an art, because the batsman must signal which ball he will hit. I think my position at the bat and long, steady, sweeping stroke helps me very much in the hit-and-run game, for I am able to hit balls that other batters would miss entirely. Even if I am certain of missing the ball I swing at it hard so as to cause the catcher to lose a step, or a foot or two of ground in making his throw, and in that way to help the base runner.

Individual batting wins some games, but team batting is the important thing, especially in recent years where one run is likely to win a ball game.

In fielding, I think instinct helps considerably. The fielder who instinctively starts in the direction the ball is hit has a big advantage. Keen eyesight, close observation and attention to every detail is necessary to win ball games. Any one who grows careless or indifferent ceases to be a winner.

Successful Without Strikeouts.

There are pitchers who seldom score a strikeout, and yet are successful pitchers. Karger belongs to this kind now. There was a time when the southpaw fanned as many as any pitcher in the country, but of late years he lacks the speed he once had at his command and he has to pitch a different sort of ball.

Bob Grooms' Little Joke.

Pitcher Bob Grooms is the wit of the Washington team. The Yankees were hitting Grooms hard and one of the players called to him: "Get that ball over the plate, Bob." "I can't," said Grooms, sadly. "When I get one started over, they stop it."

PIONEER TEACHER GIVES UP HIS WORK

Kirk Spoor, Who for Years Taught School in Escanaba and Gladstone, Is About to Retire After Long Service in Oshkosh—Something About His Career.

Escanaba and Gladstone friends of Kirk Spoor, who will be remembered as one of the most efficient instructors these cities ever had in their respective public schools, will be interested in the announcement that he is about to retire from active work in his profession. Mr. Spoor was for six years superintendent of schools in this city and taught for three years in Gladstone. For the last fourteen years he has been principal in one of the largest schools in Oshkosh, Wis., and it is from this position that he is about to retire.

In announcing that Mr. Spoor has decided to give up active school work, The Oshkosh Daily Northwestern has the following, which will be read with the greatest possible interest by Mr. Spoor's many friends and admirers in this section:

It is with the knowledge of a work well done, mingled with a sense of regret that he must leave his school-room associations, that Kirk Spoor, for fourteen years principal of the Dale school, concludes the thirty-eighth year of his pedagogical life and incidentally, at the age of sixty years, retires from active work of educating the "New America."

Mr. Spoor is a teacher of the "old school," and his efficient instruction is perhaps appreciated most keenly today by nearly 10,000 people, his former pupils, now scattered in all parts of the United States. During his services at the Dale school, Mr. Spoor says, he has wound the clock in his study room approximately 2,800 times. He retires from school work on account of failing health.

Mr. Spoor was born in Fulton, N. Y., January 6, 1850. He later accompanied his parents to Wisconsin, receiving his early education in a district school near his home at Berlin, Wis. He was graduated from the High school, then entering the Oshkosh Normal, which in turn graduated him with honors. His pedagogical labors were begun at Berlin, Wis., where he taught two terms, from whence he went to Ripon, and after spending a year in a ward school there he took a position at Brandon, Wis. From there he went to Escanaba, Mich., where he taught six years and thence to Gladstone, Mich. After teaching there three years, he came to Oshkosh assuming the duties of principal of Dale school. Here he has remained since.

The success of Mr. Spoor as an instructor may be partly attributed to the excellence of his physical powers, coupled with his sterling integrity and ability to impart clearly and impartially the lessons to be learned by his many pupils. His fondness for outdoor sports was for him the favor of his underlings and incidentally their respect. Keenly did Mr. Spoor realize that the pent up muscles of the youngsters must have a period in which to relax and he took an active part in the recess periods in inaugurating good, healthful, and clean games on the school yard. Just as keenly did his pupils admire the teacher who was not only an instructor in the school room, but equally as efficient in directing the sports on the playground.

"I have enjoyed my school work," says Mr. Spoor, "and it is natural that I should deeply regret leaving it and its associations." It has been a frequent occurrence for Mr. Spoor to find children in his classes whose parents he had instructed.

Mr. Spoor's nervous system is badly shattered and it is absolutely imperative that to regain his health he must retire from the confining pursuits of the teacher. He will spend one or two years in striving to recuperate.

Mr. Spoor lives with his wife in his home at 36 New York avenue and he retires from school work not only with regret, but with that of his pupils and their parents, who fully appreciate his work.

CRUSADE IS STARTED AGAINST BIG FIGHT

Columbus, Ohio, June 7.—An organization has been formed here which intends to have mailed to Governor Gillett of California one million post-cards bearing the slogan: "Stop that fight; this is the Twentieth century." The cards are being sent out in batches of one hundred to ten thousand by representative men throughout the country. These men will be asked to distribute the cards and have them mailed to Governor Gillett.

LONE RAT PERTURBS MICHIGAN VILLAGE

Ewen, Mich., June 7.—Not all towns in upper Michigan are possessed of rats—the four-legged kind, some inland localities have never seen a rodent. However rats are gradually spreading out from the lake ports or are arriving in freight cars and it is likely that very few towns will be able to boast of immunity from the pests a few years hence. The latest community to report their appearance is Trout Creek, in Ontonagon county. Until a few days ago a rat had never been seen there. Now one has been found to have taken up quarters in a wood pile at the rear of the Oakes mercantile establishment. It is believed to have arrived in a car of cattle feed. War has been declared on this lone rodent, but at latest advices it had not been rounded up.

ELKS WILL OBSERVE JUNE 14 AS FLAG DAY

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks throughout the world will celebrate Tuesday, June 14, as the "Flag day" of the organization. At a meeting of the grand lodge in Philadelphia in 1907, June 14 was designated as the day upon which all lodges of the organization should fly their flags and hold services. Escanaba lodge of Elks probably will take some steps toward carrying out a proper observance of the day, which is also national "Flag day."

GOVERNOR WARNER TO VISIT MARQUETTE

Governor Warner will visit Marquette the end of the present week, probably spending Saturday and Sunday in that city. He will meet the members of the Michigan prison labor commission, which includes E. C. Anthony of Negaunee, in Marquette, and they will study the labor situation at the Marquette prison. From Marquette the governor and other members of the commission will go to Stillwater, Minn., where they will inspect the Minnesota penitentiary. The commission is expected to prepare a report for the session of the legislature that will open the first of next year.

What is Education?

"Education," says Prof. Huxley, "is the instruction of the intellect in the laws of nature, under which name I include not merely things and their forces, but men and their ways; and the fashioning of the affections and of the will into an earnest and loving desire to move in harmony with those laws. For me, education means neither more or less than this. Anything which professes to call itself education must be tried by this standard; and if it fails to stand the test, I will not call it education, whatever may be the force of authority, or of numbers, upon the other side."

Palmistry.

Palmistry, in its modern acceptation, is divided into two branches, chiromancy and chiromancy. Chiromancy defines the outward shape of the hand, and of its members, the thumb and fingers. The name is derived from the Greek and means the laws of the hands. Chiromancy is also derived from the Greek and signifies divination by the hand—that is, by the lines, mounts and other marks on the palm of the hand.

Irish-Americans Are Planning to Return to Their Native Land This Summer.

The Irish of the state of Michigan who are making arrangements to visit their native land this summer in connection with the "home-coming" movement are going to have the time of their lives. It is announced that Ireland is arranging such a series of events for the entertainment of American visitors this summer as never before known.

The headquarters of the Irish Home-Coming association in Washington, D. C., has been furnished with a tentative program of festivals that will be put on this summer. There is hardly a city or town that has not scheduled some sort of a celebration some time during the season. Most of these have set the date already, and the Irishmen on this side are awaiting with much anxiety for a look at these dates in order that the most possible may be gotten out of the trip.

Movement is a Success.
Francis J. Kilkenny, secretary to the comptroller of currency, who originated the Irish home-coming movement and has urged it for a year and a half as a means of rejuvenating the old country through the introduction of American money, holds that already the movement has proven a success. The latest advices from Ireland are to the effect that already the steamship companies are unloading unprecedented numbers of people at Irish ports. As early as April 22, 1,250 Americans landed in a single day. May 2 was an excursion day, also, and it is calculated that there were many more arrivals than on the previous date. The numbers have steadily increased ever since. The steamship companies report that the bookings to Irish ports even at this early date are very heavy, far exceeding those of any season that has gone before.

They state that the double attraction of the home-coming pilgrimage and the Passion Play at Oberammergau promises an unusually active season. Great numbers of people are taking advantage of the opportunity to participate in both these festivals during the same season.

The great celebration of the Gaelic league, the Clreachtas, will be held in Dublin, Aug. 1 to 5. The horse show, which is no mean festival, will be held in the same city the third week in August. The date of the Puck fair at Killorglin has not yet been definitely set, but it will probably be held about August 10. Beginning September 6 will be America week in Caven. For September 15 a festival is scheduled for Ballinasloe. Other dates are being arranged and additional events scheduled. The island is wild with enthusiasm. Festivals for competition in literature, music and dancing, will be held in the island from June 1 up through July.

UNIVERSITY GETS TOO MANY BODIES

Lansing, Mich., June 7.—In the past the University of Michigan has complained that there have not been enough cadavers for the department of anatomy, but now a wail is being sent up that they have too many and are asking the state institutions to bury their dead.

The attorney general's department was asked for advice and a ruling made that the law passed at the last legislature is very specific and is mandatory upon the institutions to send their unclaimed dead to the state colleges. All the state institutions have been notified that they must ship the dead and not bury them.

NEGAUNEE SOON TO HAVE FREE DELIVERY

Negaunee, Mich., June 7.—Postmaster Thomas Connors has received word from the postal department at Washington that A. C. Briebach, an inspector, will be in Negaunee before the 15th to make special inquiry regarding the free delivery service in this city. Mr. Connors has been urging the postal department to hurry the work along as the businessmen and others here are anxious to have the free service started. It is not yet known how many carriers will be needed for the city, but Mr. Connors said that there will not be less than three, and more likely four, as he thinks it will require the latter number to thoroughly cover the districts that are to be laid out.

KEEPS HIS WIFE'S SKELETON BY HIM

Vienna, June 7.—An extraordinary instance of a husband's devotion to his wife's memory has just been revealed at Bucharest.

An inventory of property left by Miklos Denner, a merchant, was being made, when the skeleton of a woman was discovered locked up in a cupboard. It was at first thought that a murder had been committed, but inquiry showed that the skeleton was that of Denner's wife, who died a natural death ten years ago, and was buried in the ordinary way. The husband was inconceivable ill he secretly exhumed his wife's remains, and hid the skeleton in the cupboard, which always stood in his bedroom. The skeleton is to be re-interred in Denner's grave.

WOMAN DIES AT AGE OF 106 YEARS

New York, June 7.—Mrs. Bridget Woods died of old age in her one hundred and sixth year at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary McCormick, at 404 West Thirtieth street, among her living descendants. Mrs. Woods was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, Jan. 31, 1805. She was brought to this country when six years old. Her husband died sixty-six years ago. Up to the end her mind was clear. With the aid of glasses she read the newspapers. She served as a sort of oral historian for the people of the Eleventh ward.

SEVEN THOUSAND AT LODGE MEETING

Pythians Plan a Unique Feature for Their National Convention at Milwaukee in August—Monster Session for Conferring of Degrees to Be Held.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 7.—A lodge meeting attended by from 7,000 to 8,000 men will be one of the novel features of the Knights of Pythias to be held here in August. It is planned to open a lodge of knights at the Auditorium, and to confer degrees upon a class of candidates for the instruction of visiting members of the order.

The working team will be composed of the best workers Wisconsin can produce. There are no teams in the state that make a practice of touring the country for the purpose of exemplifying the work, but there are workers who have been in competition in big meets and it is expected that the ritualistic work will be of a character that will interest every Pythian.

Garfield lodge once took part in a great competition at Chicago. It has an outfit of accessories and paraphernalia which will be used, together with equipment of other lodges.

The average lodge meeting is attended by from 50 to 100, and the task of guarding the doors is a comparatively easy one. In the big meet planned for convention week the task of taking up the necessary pass words and attending to other formalities will be a gigantic undertaking. With thousands of strangers in the city it will be necessary to use extra precautions against the admission of persons not entitled to witness the work.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. George Talbot of Pine Grove, Chippewa county, celebrated their fiftieth marriage anniversary at the old family homestead on the town line road last Friday. The celebration was attended by many old settlers. Mr. and Mrs. Talbot are among the old and respected residents of the county, being among the first settlers to locate in Chippewa. Six children are living, and all but one, George, a resident of the west, were present at the golden wedding. There are also living twenty-two grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Talbot are natives of England, emigrating to this country and locating in Chippewa county in 1871.

BIG HATS ALLEGED BAR TO SALVATION

Elizabeth, N. J., June 7.—A crusade against the wearing of big hats at church services has been started simultaneously by the pastors of four leading churches. Statements by the pastors have just appeared urging the necessity of a reform. Rev. Dr. Samuel Guy Snowden of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church says: "I believe that big hats are a hindrance to the salvation of souls in our churches. I believe that it is wrong for women to wear such bonnets."

Our Daily Short Story

Lydia's Legacy

A Parrot That First Brought Trouble, Then a Husband

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Lydia Thorne read the letter three times before she fully understood its meaning. Couched in the heavy phraseology of a country lawyer, it announced that the widow of her uncle, Sidney Ransom, had died a short time ago, leaving to Lydia a legacy. The lawyer went on to state that, although Mrs. Ransom had never seen the niece of her husband, she had been greatly impressed by reports of her kind and amiable disposition, and so to her long care she left—her pet bird, a parrot.

To Lydia, who detested parrots as noisy, ungraceful creatures, this legacy fell as a calamity in her quiet, well-ordered existence. She scarcely read the badly written postscript, which stated that the remainder of Mrs. Ransom's estate had gone to a favorite nephew of her own.

The parrot arrived in a crate. There was a tall perching stand for Polly in the crate with the cage, and the parrot was soon at home on the perch, a chain secured around one leg and fastened to the stand.

Lydia found her new companion the source of much amusement for several days. He learned to call her by name, and at times it almost seemed as if she had a human companion in her lonely life.

Her house was situated at the end of the long village street, and few came to her save when there was dressmaking to be done, but Stillwater was near a large city and most of the women bought their clothes in the ready made shops, so Lydia did not have much to do.

It was the spring of the year, and Lydia worked much in her garden. Many times Polly sat near on her perch, shrilly defiant of the wild birds that hovered curiously about him.

Lydia was digging among her pansy plants one morning, transplanting the little green shoots from one bed to another.

"You're growing old, old, old!" shrieked Polly, with sudden vindictiveness and a dreary foreboding in his tone that startled his new mistress.

She turned wistful brown eyes in his direction. Lydia Thorne was no longer young, but she still retained a certain sweet youthfulness of expression, and her brown hair showed not one thread of gray. Perhaps it was because her heart would never grow old, for at thirty-eight Lydia was younger than many women at eighteen. She never thought of her age, but now, when Polly repeated himself in a sudden fury of words, she felt that they must be true.

"You're growing old, old, old as the everlasting hills. Never mind, Lydia shall marry Stephen, and then everything will be all right. Oh, gee!" Polly made a savage peck at a saucy blue jay who had ventured close to his perch and sent the bandit bird screaming to the top of a tall elm tree.

Polly scratched his ear reflectively. "Poor old Stephen!"

Lydia was interested. "Who is Stephen?" she asked.

"Stephen's a fool. He must marry Lydia. Then everything will be all right," cackled the bird.

"What nonsense!" cried Lydia indignantly. "What does the bird mean?" She wondered often after that, for Polly seemed to find great comfort in speaking of the unknown Stephen, and through Polly, Lydia learned that Stephen was a good boy and a credit to his family and if he would only go and see Lydia he would at once fall in love and marry her.

Then one day came a letter from a cousin in another village inviting Lydia to come and spend a week with her, and, having heard of Polly's arrival, she extended permission for Lydia to bring her legacy.

This Lydia was loath to do, for the parrot's cage was heavy and most unwieldy, and she did not really care enough for the bird to carry it about the country. Nevertheless none of her neighbors seemed willing to undertake its care, so one bright morning found Lydia and Polly speeding cityward in the railroad train.

The parrot proved a diverting companion, and it seemed as if they had scarcely started before the train drew into the noisy station where she had to change cars.

Lydia was walking through the long building, carrying the heavy cage in her already tired arms, when Polly set up a violent outcry.

"Stephen! Stephen! Oh, Stephen, wait for Lydia!" he shrieked frantically.

A man crossing diagonally in front of them paused and looked curiously at the parrot.

"That's a good boy, Stephen. Marry Lydia and everything will be all right. Such a handsome Polly!" The bird was chattering to and fro, and Lydia found difficulty in holding the cage upright.

The stranger approached and lifted his hat. "I am sure Polly is an old friend of mine," he said courteously.

"He recognizes me, and"—

Tired Lydia flashed indignance upon him. "Sir!" she said coldly. The man turned away with reddening cheeks.

He had a nice face, Lydia admitted to herself, but she had been brought up to beware of fascinating strangers, and this individual was the nearest approach to a fascinating stranger Lydia had ever chanced to meet. Polly added tumult to confusion.

"Stephen! Stephen! Be a good boy—marry Lydia and everything will be all right!" he screamed.

Lydia was almost hysterical as the stranger paused again and thrust a finger between the wires of the cage. Polly clung to the finger, crooning softly. With a sudden movement Lydia thrust the cage in the man's arms.

"Take him if you want him! I'm sure I don't!" And then, unheeding his sharp exclamation of surprise, she darted away in the hurrying crowd. She was quite breathless when she reached the home of the cousin that afternoon and found it difficult to explain the absence of Polly.

"I left him behind," she said evasively, and with this explanation Mrs. Brent had to be content.

During the next few days Lydia wondered what had become of her parrot. She was ashamed of her impatience toward the stranger and thought somewhat ruefully that Aunt Susan Ransom would have considered her a shrew rather than a kind and amiable person had the good lady seen her ill temper on the day of her journey.

The second evening after her arrival as they sat at tea Mrs. Brent broke the silence that had fallen between them:

"Queer, wasn't it, that Susan Ransom should have left everything to Stephen when he don't need the money and just left you that parrot to take care of? Never saw Susan in your life, did you?"

"No," said Lydia, "but I used to write to Uncle Ransom, and then after he died I kept up a correspondence with Aunt Susan. I quite liked her too. She used to write about the parrot, but I never dreamed she would leave it to me. I never liked parrots much."

"I guess you could have used some money," remarked Mrs. Brent, stirring her tea thoughtfully. "Stephen don't need any more'n he's got."

"Is Stephen the nephew?" faltered Lydia, with very pink cheeks. She was thinking of Polly's allusions to "Stephen."

"Of course—Stephen Wood. Queer you never knew his name. Susan thought a sight of him and nagged him day and night because he never got married. He's doing real well in the city—he's in the coal business and is making money hand over fist."

"Have you ever seen him?" asked Lydia in a queer voice.

"Land, yes! Good looking too. Tall and lean, with clean shaved face and bright blue eyes—colors up like a girl when he's embarrassed. He always seemed to think a lot of that parrot. I visited there once, you know. I should think he'd have wanted it. I'm disappointed you didn't bring it. Lydia. They say it's a very clever bird. I shall be in Stillwater before long, and I'll see him then."

Lydia was doubtful whether Mrs. Brent would ever see the parrot again, although Mr. Wood might return the bird to her if he knew where she might be found, for now she knew it was Stephen Wood who had stopped and spoken to her that day in the railway station.

After all, the visit did not turn out to be as enjoyable as Lydia had anticipated.

The little house seemed very lonely when Lydia returned to Stillwater. May had come, and with it the smell of apple blossoms and young clover. Lydia leaned over the gate and watched the golden cloud of dust that preceded the rumbling stage. The evening train was in, and presently, after the stage had carried the mail to the postoffice, she would throw a shawl about her shoulders and go down after her newspaper and letters.

The stage rolled past. The driver waved his whip at her, and her gaze followed the vehicle down the long street into the village. She did not hear footsteps approaching from the opposite direction, and as she turned her head Polly's familiar voice broke harshly on the still air:

"Here we are, sir! Well, well! Be a good boy, Stephen, and marry Lydia!" Polly's voice died away in an indignant squawk as a strong hand reached in the cage and chastised him.

It was Stephen Wood bringing Polly home.

"Mrs. Brent told me you had returned home, and so I have brought the bird back to you, Miss Thorne. I am sure you must have thought me impertinent that day in the station. Of course you did not know me, but I recognized Polly's voice and should have made myself known to you at once."

"I was very rude to you," said Lydia gratefully as she opened the gate to admit him, "but I was very tired, and it was a little tired of Polly just then, and it all happened so suddenly. You understand?"

"Of course I understand. Polly is tiresome most of the time, but he has many good qualities. If he had not recognized me that day I would not have the pleasure of returning him to you," said Mr. Wood.

They sat down on the steps, and the man looked admiringly at Lydia, pink and glowing and sweet as one of the apple blossoms overhead.

"Be a good boy, Stephen, and marry Lydia, and everything will be all right," shrieked Polly suddenly, and there was such a note of prophecy in his raucous voice that Lydia's brown eyes fell before Stephen's steady blue ones, and this time Polly went unheeded.

OUTPUT OF SARDINES SAID TO BE SHORT

Portland, Me., June 7.—Owing to the almost complete failure of the spring herring catch, the output of domestic sardines this year will be the smallest in years and there will be a consequent raise in prices. From Portland to Eastport, the center of the American "sardine" industry, but few herring of the proper size for canning have been found, although the larger fish are abundant in some places. It is hoped that later in the season the baby herring will become as plentiful as in past years, but this is uncertain, as the herring is a freaky fish and goes and comes as it pleases.

Cool Kitchen—Perfect Cooking

The housewife with years of experience—the woman who knows how to cook—finds, after practical tests and hard trials, the New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is her idea of what a good cook-stove really ought to be. She finds it requires less attention, costs less to operate, and cooks all food better than any other stove she has ever tried. She finds the New Perfection oven bakes and roasts perfectly. The has a Cabinet Top with a shelf for keeping plates and food hot. There are drop shelves for coffee pot or saucepan, and nicked towel racks. It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

CAUTIONARY NOTE: Be sure you get this stove—the name-plate reads "NEW PERFECTION." Every dealer everywhere; if not at yours, write for Descriptive Circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

A CLEAN, SANITARY HOME.

CREBOL, THYNOL, and EUCALYPTOL.

REXINE is made from pure vegetable oils incorporated with the above named Disinfectants, Deodorants and Germicides. REXINE removes dirt without injuring the lustre, making wood-work, marble, linoleum, etc., look like new.

REXINE does not injure the hands; but cleans and softens the skin, while other cleaning compounds crack and chafe the same.

REXINE can be used in cold water as well as hot water. It cleanses disinfects and deodorizes, thus proving a material aid to the sanitary condition of the home.

It is a recognized fact that germs and molds find a congenial home in rugs and carpets. REXINE acts as a germicide as well as a cleaner, thereby demonstrating its value over all other similar preparations for carpets and rugs. Wherever tried it is given the preference over all other cleaners. Not alone for carpets and rugs, but an ideal preparation for cleaning leather couches, upholstered furniture, oil paintings, picture frames, fur coats, robes, etc.

RAILROAD INJUNCTION SUIT IS CALLED OFF

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., June 7.—President Taft was fairly deluged with telegrams of congratulation today on the agreement reached with the railroads last night. Messages came from all sections of the country, from individuals and labor unions and from business organizations.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 7.—A complete agreement between the government and the recently enjoined railroads of the Western Trunk Lines association was reached at the White house in a conference late yesterday afternoon.

The railroads represented agreed to the withdrawal of all rate increases filed to be effective on or after June 1 and agreed to file no more increases until the bill in congress which gives the commerce commission power to investigate and suspend increases that are not justified becomes a law and goes into effect.

President Taft thereupon stated that the administration's purpose in discontinuing the injunction will not be entered until after the new railroad bill is issued.

JOHN COTE DIES ON HIS HOMESTEAD

Sexes Divided in Church.

The separation of the sexes seems to have been formerly by no means an uncommon practice in the Church of England. In fact, Edward VI.'s prayer book specially mentions that at the communion service "the men shall tarry on one side and the women on the other." The papers of a church in Westmoreland include elaborate directions for the division of the sexes at its services.

A Charming Girl.

The greatest charm in a young girl is her simplicity, and by simplicity one does not mean stupidity. The charm of bold simplicity is an entire absence of worldly wisdom, so often met with in the modern girl. Absolute candor and sincerity are the attributes of true simplicity, and they are characteristics which invariably attract men when choosing their future wives.—Home Notes.

TAKE THE QUIZ FOR BARBER'S LICENSE

Two members of the state board of barbers' examiners are in the city today conducting an examination of applicants for barber's licenses. These members are Secretary Charles L. Blake of Jackson and Treasurer Joseph H. Hooper of Ishpeming. President H. J. Wiggle of Detroit was unable to attend the meeting of the board in this city. The board is holding its sessions at the New Ludington hotel. At this morning's session there were six applicants to take the examination and this afternoon four more presented themselves as candidates for license. Mr. Hooper stated that the number of applicants at the examination here is about the average for cities of this size.

FLAX SETTLES CASE BY REPAYING MONEY

Louis Flax of Chicago, who was arrested at Iron River and held at the request of Sheriff Aronson to answer to a charge of obtaining $6.55 from Christian Flagstad of this city under false pretenses, escaped prosecution by effecting a settlement of the case by repaying the money he secured from Mr. Flagstad and paying all the costs. Sheriff Aronson went to Ironwood Monday to get Flax and bring him back here for trial, but Flax avoided further trouble by making a settlement as stated.

DEATH COMES TO MRS. MARTHA ALBRIGHT

Mrs. Martha Albright, wife of Frederick Albright of Wells, died at the Delta County hospital Monday night after a critical illness of several days. She was about forty-seven years old and is survived by her husband, who is a locomotive engineer on the Escanaba & Lake Superior railway, and two daughters. She also leaves a sister living at Pascoe, Wash., who has been notified of her death and is expected to be here to attend the funeral, which probably will not be held before Friday.

BOY KNOCKED DOWN AND SEVERELY HURT

Frank Jarvis, the eleven years old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jarvis, 623 South Jennie street, was painfully injured late yesterday afternoon by being run down by a delivery outfit owned by the Delta Liquor store. The boy was riding his bicycle on South Sarah street when the accident occurred and there is a question as to who is to blame for it. The boy was thrown from his wheel and run over by both wheels on one side of the wagon, with the result that his body was badly bruised and one side of his face was severely cut. Following the accident a physician was summoned and attended to the injured boy, who is reported today to be getting along favorably.

BROWNE FINDS IT HARD TO GET FREE

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, Ill., June 7.—Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, the Democratic leader, who is accused of bribing the legislature in the election of Senator William Lorimer, was today refused freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Scanlon denied the plea on the grounds that only a federal tribunal has the power to try such a case.

Browne was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and his attorneys immediately filed a motion for an appeal and arguments proceeded. Meanwhile Judge McSurely, before whom Browne was to have been tried yesterday, issued a capias for Browne and ordered his bond forfeited. About noon Browne appeared in McSurely's court and was released on his own recognizance, the case being postponed until late this afternoon.
