ORE SHIPMENTS FROM THIS PORT UP TO DATE FAR EXCEED THOSE OF LAST YEAR.

ALMOST THREE TIMES AS MUCH

Last Year This Time the Shipments from Local Docks Amounted to But 384,418 Tons, While This Year the Total of Shipments to Date is 972,117 Tons—The Shipping Season This Year Opened Six Weeks Earlier, However.

Contrary to the general impression prevailing in Escanaba and elsewhere, the ore shipments from the docks at this port thus far this season have been exceedingly heavy. In fact, they are almost three times as great as they were at this time last year.

Up to date there have been shipped from the local docks a total of 972,117 tons of ore. Of this amount 675,435 tons have been shipped from the Chicago & Northwestern docks and 296,682 tons from the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul dock.

Season Opened Earlier. Last year at this time the total shipments of ore from all the docks at this port was but 384,418 tons, or 587,261 tons less than the amount shipped up to date this year. Of the 384,418 tons the Chicago & Northwestern shipped 284,418 and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul 100,438.

One reason for the increase in shipments, however, may be found in the fact that the shipping season opened six weeks earlier this year than it did last, but even at that the shipments now being made show a substantial increase over last year and it would not surprise the knowing ones if the end of the shipping season shows all ore shipping records broken at this port.

Head All Around. In this connection it is interesting to note that ore shipments for May from all ports were 6,981,378 tons, making the total movement for the season, up to June 1, 7,691,665 tons. Shipments for May were the largest on record for that month. In 1909 the mines sent forward 3,253,275 tons in May and the shipments up to June 1 that year were 3,399,063 tons. The movement up to June 1 was 4,292,597 tons ahead of 1909.

In spite of the fact that a record for shipments was made in May and that all the vessels were not in commission, there was plenty of tonnage on the market and at times wild carriers had trouble getting cargoes. The movement of coal, however, was not as heavy as it usually is and many boats were forced to go up light. The coal trade will take care of more tonnage this month.

Secretary Charles Blake of Jackson and Treasurer Joseph H. Hooper of the state board of barbers' examiners who conducted an examination here yesterday of applicants for barber's license, left last night for Menominee, where they are today conducting a similar examination.

GO TO ST. LOUIS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Mrs. Hattie Hewlett and Mrs. W. W. Long left last night for St. Louis Mo., where they will attend a convention of the American Woman's League, of which they are members. The Woman's League is the result of a great deal of work that has been done by E. G. Lewis, who is possessed of considerable fame as a newspaper publisher. In connection with the league, a university has been established that is operated on the correspondence plan.

VISITS ESCANABA AFTER WORLD TOUR

Mrs. C. C. Graham left last night for Mt. Vernon, Ohio, where she will visit relatives for a few days before returning to her home in New York City.

Mrs. Graham, who was formerly Miss Elizabeth Stephenson of this city, but recently returned from an extended trip around the world and came here to visit her mother and brothers, just after the trip was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham left New York city eight months ago and going to London spent some time visiting England. Other points in Europe were visited and then Africa, Asia, Japan, Australia and New Zealand were in turn the destinations of Mr. and Mrs. Graham. Of all the countries that were visited, Mrs. Graham says that New Zealand was the most pleasing to her.

ARTICLE IS WELL WORTH A READING

The attention of every reader of The Mirror is respectfully directed to an article published on page two of this issue under the heading of "The Production of Milk From the Standpoint of a Veterinarian." The article was written by Dr. William J. Firkus, city veterinarian, and contains a large amount of information that will be of interest and value to every person of intelligence. It is well worth careful reading and The Mirror is more than glad to give it space in its columns for the benefit of the public at large.

CITY CHEMIST NOW A REGULAR OFFICER

After a Tangled Time and Warm Disputation, the Council Adopts Ordinance Creating the Office—Dr. A. J. Carlson is Appointed by the Mayor—Warm Time.

Escanaba is to retain the services of a chemist who shall be a regular officer of the city. And for the ensuing year Dr. Arthur J. Carlson will fill that office, succeeding Dr. O. C. Breitenbach, who has left the city.

Dr. Carlson was appointed by Mayor Greenhoot and the appointment was confirmed by the council Tuesday evening, following the adoption of an ordinance creating the office as a permanent one and investing the mayor with power of appointing its incumbent, subject to the approval of the council, the same as in other appointive offices. His salary was fixed at $50 a month.

All this was accomplished after considerable of a tangle and a warm moment or two. The ordinance creating the office when placed on its passage was strongly opposed by Aldermen Valentine and Fitzpatrick and just as strongly supported by Aldermen Garity, St. Jacques, McCall, Schmidt and Wickert. Alderman Fitzpatrick could see no necessity for having such an office at all, holding that the city health officer could do the work required of a city chemist.

Alderman Valentine opposed the ordinance because he did not believe the office should be made a permanent one. He thought the chemist should be hired from time to time instead. In short, the matter was threshed over pretty much as it was several weeks ago, when the ordinance first came up and failed of passage.

Finally a vote was taken and the ordinance failed of passage because it

COMMON COUNCIL HAS BUSY SESSION

For Two and One-Half Hours the City Fathers Wrestle With Business Pertaining to the Municipality—Action Taken on Many Matters—The Proceedings.

Tuesday evening the common council held a long and exceedingly busy session. For two and one-half hours the city fathers wrestled with business pertaining to the municipality and got away with a great deal of it. Several of the more important matters disposed of are noted in other columns of this issue.

Following is a summary of the proceedings not otherwise mentioned in this paper: Petition for an electric light at the corner of Wells avenue and Michigan avenue presented and referred to the street committee.

Petition for a sanitary sewer through block 96 of Proprietors' First Addition referred to the sewer committee. Balance of $84.24 due on judgment secured long ago by May Hunt against the city ordered paid.

Plot of the Moore and Matthews addition to the city accepted and approved. Report of the city treasurer for month of May received and ordered placed on file. The report shows that on June 1 there was a cash balance of but $9,288.93 in the city treasury.

Report of City Veterinarian W. J. Firkus accepted and ordered filed. The report showed that Dr. Firkus conducted eight sanitary inspections and made fifty-five tuberculin tests of cows during May. All of the cows passed the test.

Reports of Justice of the Peace Linden and Chief of Police Iversen for May were accepted and ordered filed. There were eighteen arrests for viola-

MEMOINNEE TEAM TO PLAY BALL HERE

Arrangements have been made by the managements of the Escanaba and Menominee baseball teams for the playing of two games by those teams in this city at an early date. The first game is to be played next Saturday afternoon and the next on the Sunday afternoon following. Both contests will be pulled off on the South Park diamond and promise to be red hot affairs. Escanaba has some team now and the Menominee aggregation is touted as a strong one.

CHARLES WHYBREW PASSES AWAY

After an illness of many months, Charles Whybrew, a well known resident of this city, died at his home, 1106 Second street, about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Whybrew was about forty-five years old and is survived by a widow and three daughters and other relatives. He was formerly employed as a foreman by the Stegath Lumber company. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

FOURTH COMMITTEE TO GET TOGETHER

Chairman William Northup of the general committee having charge of the arrangements and program of the Fourth of July celebration has called a meeting of the committee to be held in the Elks' club rooms at 4:30 o'clock sharp tomorrow afternoon. It is particularly desired that every member of the committee shall be present at this meeting, for the time in which to arrange the plans and do the work in connection for a proper celebration is growing short. At this meeting it is expected that definite plans will be adopted and the work of carrying them out be appointed. Members of the committee are requested to come to the meeting with their hustling tops on and prepared to buckle right down to business.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the Escanaba High school, held in the Franklin school building Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Sarah Thatcher; vice president, Mrs. H. H. Allyn; secretary, Miss Charlotte Robertson; treasurer, Torval E. Strom. Aside from the election of officers there was very little business transacted, although there was a large and enthusiastic attendance at the meeting. It is probable that the Alumni Association will make arrangements to tender a reception to this year's High school graduating class, but definite arrangements for the function have not been made as yet.

M. J. Ryan has left the city on a business trip to Chicago and Detroit.

AMBER FLUID

SALE OF BEER IN UNITED STATES LAST YEAR SHOWS INCREASE OF 90,000,000 GALLONS

ALSO MORE WHISKY DRINKING

Such is Report Made at Convention of the United States Brewers' Association—Prohibition Agitation Apparently is Futile—Dry Men Up Against Hopeless Fight on Natural Law of Fermentation, It is Asserted—The Details.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., June 8.—While the prohibition movement has ridden at high tide, the sale of beer has increased 90,000,000 gallons and the sale of spirits has bounded upward 11,000,000 gallons. In these ninety million gallons of beer were nearly 4,000,000 gallons of pure alcohol.

Such was the report of the board of trustees to the United States Brewers' Association in convention here today. The volume of business of the year just ended, the trustees believe, will exceed 1908, which was the banner year for the brewing industry in this country.

The poor prohibitionist is up against a hopeless fight on the natural law of fermentation, the board of trustees believes. To quote the report.

All Against Prohibition. "The whole vegetable world is in a conspiracy against the prohibitionist. The bees become intoxicated with the distillation of the honey suckle; the wasps grow dizzy in the drowsy clover patch and even the ants wobble in their walk after they have feasted upon the over ripe fruit fallen from the tree, which has started a natural fermentation."

And all the increases in the volume of beer and whisky consumption made in the face of the fact that 42,000,000 inhabitants of the United States are said to live in "dry" territory. In these gains the brewers see signs of hope that the prohibition movement has touched its highest spot and is now on the wane.

Puzzled by Paradoxes. "One cannot study the drink question without being puzzled by its paradoxes," says the report. "It is an unquestioned fact that the people of the United States are steadily becoming more temperate and yet the consumption of alcohol increases just as steadily as the growth of temperance. Not only is the volume of the sale of alcoholic beverages becoming larger but the per capita consumption is increasing. "What does this mean? Does it not indicate that while such beverages are coming into more common use the people are learning to use them more intelligently? The old idea that total abstinence is the only road to safety, is being replaced by the new idea of moderation both in eating and in drinking, by that of self control."

Alderman Matt Priester of the Second ward was able to get out in the sunshine yesterday for the first time after a severe illness of two months' duration.

Twelve years ago today the present publishers of THE DAILY MIRROR formed a partnership to build up the paper and give Escanaba a daily publication that would be a credit to the city. Several others had tried to make a success of the paper, but had fallen down miserably. THE MIRROR had about 200 subscribers—200 patriotic citizens that were willing to hand out their 12 cents each week for a paper that wasn't worth anything. There was absolutely no chance for the paper of any other publisher than the present one.

This did not stop the present firm, however, and a struggle against the adverse circumstances that was at many times discouraging was commenced. The first year was not a profitable one and in order to make expenses it was necessary for the publishers themselves to do a large part of the work, oft times remaining in the office until long after midnight.

Take it right through, the first five years after the present firm took THE MIRROR, the path was not a bed of roses and many times there were serious thoughts of giving up the fight.

Then things began to look better and conditions in every direction commenced to improve. During the five first years all bills were promptly met and the help always received their money every Saturday night. When bills were paid with a check, the money to honor the check was in the bank and the merchants began to have confidence in the paper and the publishers. No bills were collected in advance and money was well earned before it was collected.

Several times THE MIRROR was awarded the city or the county printing, but at figures that were lower than the other papers bidding for the same work.

No one has ever GIVEN one cent towards the support of this publication.

The publishers have been careful not to tie up with any faction and when any particular "gang" or "party" got too strong, they were told to start a paper for themselves—some did.

THE MIRROR is not the "official organ" of any "clan" "gang" or party dictators. No money that this paper has ever earned has found its way into the pockets of any stockholders that were connected with the administration of the city or county's affairs. No one is interested in this paper financially but the publishers and no one but the publishers get the profits—when there are any.

Now THE MIRROR has the finest mechanical equipment in the city and about as good as you will find in any town the size of Escanaba. Twice the number of type setting machines, twice the number of presses and twice the pay roll of any paper in Escanaba.

THE MIRROR has three type setting machines, while no other office in Escanaba has more than one. If you will glance over THE MIRROR in the evening you will notice that there is a large amount of solid reading and not very many large heads. The editor of THE MIRROR does not like glaring headlines or a lot of them and even if he did there would not be room to use them.

The daily telegraph service furnished THE MIRROR by the Associated Press has no equal in the world and is the same service that is used by the best papers throughout the United States.

NO OTHER PAPER IN ESCANABA HAS A TELEGRAPH SERVICE. Just a word about circulation. It has long been the belief among advertisers that the publisher of a paper would be about the number of subscribers that is on the list.

Every advertiser in Escanaba is invited to look over the list of subscribers that THE MIRROR has. If you think that the list is padded, you can go with the newsboys. The evening paper is the only paper to use as an advertising medium—this is not from us, but from such eminent authority as the New York publication, "Printers Ink."

While some local advertisers may be skeptical as to the merits of THE MIRROR as an advertising medium, the advertising that is being done each day by outside advertisers shows that they have confidence in this publication and they are paying good rates for the service.

Everyone is invited to inspect the equipment that THE MIRROR has installed during the last twelve years. It includes some things that are not usually found in a town the size of Escanaba. Come in any time. The big presses and the type setting machines are always running. You will be surprised to see the amount of work and the expensive machinery that it takes to get out THE MIRROR.

The pay roll of THE MIRROR amounts to a quite large sum each week compared with the expenses of conducting other papers that are published in Escanaba, and pay day is every Saturday night. In addition to paying a good salary to all employees THE MIRROR pays all doctor bills when any of the employees are ill and Dr. H. W. Long has been the firm's physician for years.

Twelve years has passed rather quickly—it doesn't seem that long. THE MIRROR has grown wonderfully in that time and has placed itself on a foundation that will not fall—not even tremble. All the other publishers that were in business here twelve years ago are gone—while young, we are the oldest publishers in Escanaba.

THE MIRROR is here to stay and will probably always be Escanaba's best newspaper. The present publishers have been offered more money for the plant and good will of the business than has been put into it and may some day decide to quit the field.

Read THE MIRROR every night. If you are not a regular reader, send in your subscription today. THE MIRROR is a paper that is right.

did not receive a two-thirds vote of all the aldermen-elect. There were but twelve aldermen present at the meeting and three of these—Valentine, Fitzpatrick and Nelson—voted against it. Those voting for it were Alderman Shipman, Wickert, McColl Jaeger, Schmidt, St. Jacques, Folio, Garrity and Johnson. The votes were necessary and the motion to adopt was therefore lost.

Then Alderman Valentine called up the resolution which had been introduced at a previous meeting providing for the appointment of Dr. A. J. Carlson as city chemist at a salary of $500 a year and moved its adoption. Before a vote was taken Alderman Garrity moved that the council reconsider its action on the ordinance. His motion was ruled out of order and the vote on the resolution was taken, with the result that it was lost, by a vote of 10 to 2. Then Alderman Garrity's motion to reconsider was quickly adopted by the same vote. Alderman St. Jacques thereupon moved the adoption of the ordinance and the motion prevailed by a vote of 10 to 2. Alderman Nelson this time voting for the ordinance, which was thus adopted.

A resolution fixing the office of the chemist at $50 a month was adopted and Mayor Greenhoo then announced his appointment of Dr. Carlson to the office, the appointment being confirmed.

Immediately after the ordinance had been declared lost on the first vote a lively tilt occurred between Mayor Greenhoo and Alderman Valentine. The latter was crossing the council chamber when Alderman Wickert made a motion that Dr. Carlson be appointed chemist. Alderman Valentine exclaimed: "motion out of order." Mayor Green at once rapped on the desk with his gavel and said: "Alderman Valentine, you are not running this council. I am the mayor and I do not require such suggestions from you."

Alderman Valentine heatedly retorted: "I have a perfect right to express my opinion." Mayor Greenhoo was further aroused and raising his voice he shouted: "Alderman Valentine, take your seat. I am the mayor here, and when you are mayor you can run things. I appreciate suggestions from council members when I am in the wrong, but I want it understood that I am the mayor now and go no one else." Alderman Valentine took his seat, made no reply and the incident was closed.

THE PRODUCTION OF MILK FROM STANDPOINT OF A VETERINARIAN

By William Firkus, M. D. V.

Milk and its relation to the public health is today one of the most important topics. Its value as a food we need not discuss. Its disease-producing qualities, either in a direct or an indirect way, but, as one of the great missions on earth of the veterinary profession today is prophylaxis or preventive treatment, it becomes our part of the business of preserving the public health, to search into the remote causes of its death-dealing conditions, and, if within our power to remove them. The medical profession is lauded to the skies for some of its work in determining the cause and removing, practically reducing to a minimum, the outbreaks of many of our virulent diseases that have heretofore affected the human race, but when it comes to the tracing of the many diseases of the human race, due probably to the consumption of animal food, then they are at sea without the aid of the veterinary profession.

The rapidity with which the death rate from the white plague is increasing in the human family has brought about a united effort to search for and remove any or all of the possible or probable causes of it. Among the possible or probable causes, we find the contagion to be derived from infected animal food. As to the physical relationship between the bacillus of human and of bovine tuberculosis, the consensus of opinion is that there is a direct relationship and that they are transferable from animal to man, and vice versa to a greater or less extent. This being true, then we find one of our probable sources of infection in the human family, and especially in the infantile part of it, to be milk from tuberculous cows.

The fact that a milk producing animal is affected with tuberculosis is not the only condition that makes her milk a source of infection or an impure article of food. The cow may be perfectly healthy, in better fats maybe, prove to be a source of infection. We will take for instance a perfectly healthy animal. She is housed with a number of others in a so-called stable. Above her chickens roosting, behind her an enormous manure pile separated only from her by a board wall; in ventilation except what comes in through the cracks; a floor behind her upon which one has to walk in rubber boots to keep his feet dry from the slime; dung three inches thick on the sides of her and on the udder; the wet room which she drinks is close to the barn, acting as a good cesspool for the barn drainage; the cans that carry the milk are washed out with the water from this same well; the cans while standing on the barn floor waiting for the milk to be strained into them, are guarded religiously by a number of cats waiting to get a drink with their paws covered with slime on the edge of the pail—and yet we expect that healthy cow to produce good milk and also wonder why it is that there is so much typhoid fever in certain districts in towns and cities where the drinking water supply is good.

Records show that our largest epidemics of scarlet fever have been traced to one dairy. The housewife wonders why her milk sours so quickly, even when kept in an ice box from the time she receives it from the milkman. If she could see the millions of fermentative and putrefactive bacteria the milk contains she would not wonder.

All these are conditions for which the cow herself is not to blame, but are the fault of the dairyman himself; he and not his cow is the one to be treated for the existing conditions. You try and reason with the producer and show him how, by a certain amount of effort and some expense, these conditions can to a great extent be remedied, and he will tell you that it does not pay, that at the present price he cannot afford it, others will tell you they have milked cows all their lives, their fathers and grandfathers before them, and that they never heard of such tommyrot until lately and that it is all humbug.

They will probably point you out a large family, raised on a farm, and by their products, and ask you to show them a healthier lot of individuals. They do not seem to understand the difference in environment and that their surroundings of unlimited fresh air and sunshine are antagonistic to disease, while those in the crowded tenements are conducive to it. What then, is the remedy for all this? We are told that the great majority of the people of today are to a certain extent educated. This being true, then a campaign of education is the natural remedy, and to a great extent should be made compulsory.

The tuberculin test is an example of what must be made compulsory. How many dairymen during the past year or two would have had the test applied to their herds, had it not been made necessary for them to do so in order to find a market for their milk? The public are being educated on health matters. It behooves professional men, physicians, veterinarians and sanitarians not to let laymen outstrip their work in fighting this disease. They are learning even now the difference between fighting with tuberculosin and against tuberculosin. To illustrate there is a movement all over the country in the establishment of dispensaries and hospitals and sanitariums, various forms of colonies, for the purpose of taking care of and treating tuberculous patients. In a great measure they are working with the disease. It is taking care of those who have it, and failing to take care of those who will have it in some way. They are gradually going to learn, however, that there are certain things that must be done to fight against tuberculosin. One of the first things is that it has been demonstrated that tuberculosin is communicated to the human by tuberculous milk. They learn these things by reading. They do not know as much about the microscope as do the professional men, but they read about these things that have been demonstrated and proven.

The infectious nature of tuberculosin was demonstrated over sixty years ago. The fact that tuberculosin could be communicated through milk was demonstrated forty years ago, before the tubercle bacillus was ever discovered. These people are going to get up and demand things. They are even beginning to demand them now. People are going to take the things they see and cannot see. Most impressive are experiments that are being carried on by health officers in this country when they are demonstrating to the people lesions which they can see, getting down to educate the public, the laymen. Take for example, the results of some experiments which Dr. Goler of Rochester, N. Y., has been carrying on with guinea pigs. He said he was tired of talking about microscopic lesions, that a cow had tuberculosin, and possibly if killed "after reacting" you could not find anything. He arouses a doubt, in the mind of the man who owned the cow. He is simply taking the raw milk from supposedly tuberculous herds, centrifuging it and injecting it later into a guinea pig. He will not accept any lesions but what can be seen with the naked eye. He takes the lesion and mounts it under a covered glass and when he gets that he goes to the farmer and says: "See, that is what you're milk is doing to guinea pigs, what do you suppose it is doing to babies?"

With demonstrations of this kind it is not too far to suppose that the public are going to grasp these things. The question of communicability of tuberculosin to the human through bovine is believed now. Another fact that the lay public know is that tuberculin is the best known method of testing cattle to detect the disease, the early detection of the disease. They are going to demand that the public itself be protected from its milk that is liable to infect themselves and their children, and they are going to demand that it is the better thing for the farmer that he rid his herd of tuberculous cows. Protecting himself at the same time, he protects the public. These are the things that appeal to men in connection with health work.

WILL HAVE DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS SURE

The Common Council Appropriates $300 Toward Fund Being Raised to Secure a Magnificent $450 Exhibition of Pain's Celebrated Pyrotechnics on Fourth.

Whatever else the celebration of the Fourth of July in Escanaba may amount to, the display of fireworks in the evening is sure to be a high class feature.

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the sum of $300 was appropriated out of the city treasury as a donation toward the fund that is now being raised to procure a fireworks display that will be the best ever seen in this city.

The action of the council followed the reading of a communication signed by a committee of the Escanaba Business Men's association and which communication requested the council to make an appropriation. There was some discussion of the matter, but when a vote was taken the resolution to appropriate the money was carried almost unanimously.

The members of the Business Men's association committee—W. R. Smith, J. E. Byrns, Herman Salinsky and T. J. Martin—were present at the meeting prepared to do some talking if necessary in support of the request, but no arguments were required. Mr. Smith, however, with the permission of the council made a short address in which he sincerely thanked the city fathers for granting the request and stated that he believed it would meet with the approval of the citizens generally.

He said it was proposed to provide a display of fireworks, the equal of which has never before been seen in Escanaba. The committee had planned to procure one of Pain's celebrated programs of pyrotechnics at a cost of $450, which price includes the services of an expert to set off the pieces. Mr. Smith stated that he had personally investigated the merits of this display and believed it would give the greatest possible satisfaction and pleasure.

The committee will secure the balance of $150 which the display will cost. The program will include many elaborate set pieces of a novel and particularly appropriate character for a Fourth of July celebration.

WANT SOUTH GEORGIA STREET PAVED SOON

Residents of South Georgia street want that thoroughfare paved with asphalt or cement this summer, according to the provisions made a year or two ago. Tuesday evening a communication, signed by Judge Judd Yeland as representative of some of the property owners interested, was presented to the common council and after some discussion was referred. The communication explicitly stated that it is the desire to have the entire street paved this summer, not only a portion of it as has been talked of.

SMALL STEAMERS HAVE TIGHT LITTLE RACE

According to a dispatch from Sheboygan, in a race from that city to Manitowoc, the steamer J. S. Crosse, owned by Peter Reiss, defeated the Susie Chipman, owned by Julius Kroos, the J. S. Crosse arriving at Manitowoc two and a half miles ahead of the Susie Chipman. The race was for a bet of $100 between Peter Reiss, president of the C. Riess Coal company and Julius Kroos, president of the Bank of Sheboygan. Besides the bet of $100 a champagne supper is to be given the winner, which will be given some time this week.

THEY WANT BETTER FIRE PROTECTION

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the residents of the Seventh ward again made known their belief that they are without sufficient fire protection. Some time ago a petition was presented asking that a fire station be established somewhere in the vicinity of the Chaffield plant, and Tuesday evening another petition was presented requesting the council to have such a station established at some central place in the Seventh ward, where the fire protection is claimed to be entirely inadequate for that growing and enterprising section of the city. The petition was referred to the fire committee.

ESCANABA WOMAN SPEAKS AT BANQUET

At the banquet of the Milwaukee Catholic Order of Foresters, which was held at the St. Charles hotel, Milwaukee, last Saturday evening, Mrs. Nicholas Welch Sr., of this city was a guest of honor and also one of the speakers. The banquet was an elaborate affair and attended by more than 200 women. Mrs. Elizabeth Mehan, who was in charge of the arrangements, said that more than 200 requests for seats had to be refused for lack of room. As it was, the dining room of the hotel could not hold the large gathering and tables had to be prepared in the halls. The banquet followed the annual initiation of Friday night, when 310 members were received. Mrs. Welch was also a guest of honor at this notable initiation, which was attended by all of the high court officers of the W. C. O. F.

TAKES HIS BRIDE ON A 16,000 MILE WALK

George E. Kufer Reaches Baltimore and Already Has Covered 13,800 Miles—Won His Wife on a Wager—Will Win Much Money if He Successfully Completes Task.

Baltimore, June 8.—Having walked some 13,800 miles, George E. Kufer and his wife, Gertrude Edith Helen Margaret McCloskey Kufer, are resting in Baltimore before finishing the 16,000 miles they set out to tramp in order to win a wager involving $4,000. Kufer is a son of George Kufer, of No. 1623 North Bradford street.

Kufer has been walking since April 23, 1909, when he left Chicago to walk 10,000 miles in 16 months for a purse of $2,000 offered by the Chicago, Illinois and Empire Athletic clubs of that city. In addition he has a side bet of $1,500 with a member of the Empire club that he can complete the trip.

The other $500 already has been won. Kufer got it by meeting, courting and marrying his wife all in one hour. Somebody bet him he couldn't do it; but when he met Miss McCloskey in Woodville, Ohio, he won.

The terms of the trip make it a little arduous. Kufer left Chicago without a cent, and is not allowed to ask assistance. The only source of income of the pair is the money they derive from the sale of post cards. So far they have managed to make expenses.

WHAT WOULD A SANE FOURTH OF JULY BE?

There is a Persistent Demand for a Sane and Safe Observance of the Great National Holiday—Advancement is Being Made in That Direction, No Doubt.

There is persistent demand for a saner Fourth of July, an observance of our greatest national holiday in a manner that shall minimize noise, almost innumerable remedies are offered upon the present method of celebrating the anniversary. It would not be true to say that no advancement has been made in the direction of improvement. In some communities there is a great deal less senseless noise on the day than there used to be. The tendency, generally speaking, is away from the explosive method of doing honor to the Declaration of Independence. But, in the improvement, those who are striving to abolish the old way should have a care lest they impair the significance of the day itself.

The 4th of July, 1776, was a great day, not only for the American colonies but for all the nations of the earth. The influence of the act to which its greatness is due will be felt by all peoples through all the ages. A celebration of each recurring anniversary of that great day is most fitting, and this celebration should be in all particulars commensurate with its greatness. No cheap or trivial or perfunctory celebration of the Fourth of July can properly be called sane, for there could hardly be a more striking proof of our want of intellectual balance as a people than that we should forget the cost or meaning of our national independence.

Thousands of immigrants are coming to these shores weekly. Every year aliens by the tens of thousands are admitted to our citizenship. A sane celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the length and breadth of this republic and in all its possessions would be calculated to enhance and not belittle the value of the privileges which we enjoy and are able to confer upon others; something more of thoughtfulness, and less of noise, should be hinted at in the form of the day's observance. The working out of the details is a task for the nation's best thinkers, in all seriousness.

TO HAVE CHAIN OF DEPARTMENT STORES

Dispatches from New York today say that the $20,000,000 May Dry Goods company, incorporated in Albany Saturday, will operate a chain of department stores in the West and Middle West in opposition to the United Dry Goods company. The company already has a working understanding with the Powers dry goods store of Minneapolis. It also has stores in Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City. New directors will be chosen at a meeting in St. Louis this week. Capital for the concern has been supplied almost entirely by Westerners.

WIRELESS OPERATORS ORGANIZE A UNION

New York, June 8.—The formation of a union of wireless telegraphers is announced here by officers of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. The new union has been named the wireless division of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. A president will be elected in Chicago next week. There are 900 wireless operators employed by the commercial companies throughout the country.

Our Daily Short Story

A Surgeon's Story

He Saw the First Part of a Drama and Was an Actor in the Second Part.
 By BEVERLY WORTHINGTON.
 Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I am a surgeon, and my home is in Florence, Italy. When a young man I studied at a college of physicians and surgeons in my native country, America, but, possessing a taste for art, concluded to change my profession. Coming here to Florence, I studied art for a while, but soon saw that I did not possess the talent necessary to make an artist. Having fallen in love with this delightful city, I remained, hanging out my shingle as a surgeon. One night I attended a ball at the Pitti palace. It was my first appearance among the aristocracy of Florence, and I was much interested in watching the people there, few of whom I had ever seen. A young girl with a gentleman attendant on each side of her walked by me. The appearance of the three told a story. The man on her left was young, handsome, in every way attractive. He on her right was past middle age and disagreeable looking as the other was engaging. As they passed he gave the younger man a malignant look. The girl appeared to be much troubled. It was plain that her heart was with the man on her left, that she was constrained to choose the man on her right and that the two men hated each other on her account.

"Everywhere," I remarked to myself, "the stream of life is troubled. To be rich, to be prominent, does not render one immune from that which is disagreeable. Happy love has evidently come to this young girl, to be interfered with by one who, judging from her expression, has some claim upon her. How I should like to know the story!"

As I thought the last words I little dreamed that within a few hours a climax would come in the drama being enacted by these three persons and that I would come upon the stage for a minor part. When I left the palace I went directly to my rooms and to bed. An hour later I was awakened from a sound sleep by a violent knocking. I arose, slipped on a gown and opened the door. Two gentlemen in evening dress stepped into the room.

"You are the American surgeon, I believe?" said one.
 "At your service," I replied.
 "You are wanted to attend a man dangerously wounded," said the other. "You are chosen partly on account of your standing in your profession, but principally because you are not one of our circle. We do not like our affairs to be known. I must ask you to permit me to blindfold you."

I objected to this, but one of the men put his hand to his hip pocket and drew forth a small pistol with mother-of-pearl mountings, while the other produced a stiletto. I picked up my bag of instruments and suffered them to tie a handkerchief about my eyes. They led me out to the sidewalk, told me to raise my foot, and I stepped into a carriage.

"Drive a roundabout way," I heard one of the gentlemen say.
 "No," interposed the other. "He may bleed to death. We must go as quickly as possible."

There was no need to make turns, for I had no idea where they were taking me. In what I supposed to be ten minutes the carriage stopped. I was helped out and soon by the increased warmth of the air felt myself to be in a building. Then I mounted steps, and at last the bandage was taken off my eyes. I was standing beside a bed on which lay—mirabile dictu—the young man I had seen walking on the left of the girl at the Pitti!

I knew too well the danger of showing any sign of recognition.
 "Senore Dottori," he said with a feeble voice, "I have been stabbed on the left side—here," uncovering. "It is near the heart."

It was near the heart, but had fortunately just escaped that organ. After an examination I assured the patient that if he kept perfectly quiet till the wound should heal he would recover. But I thought that, considering its close proximity to a vital organ, a surgeon should remain with him until a healing should be established.

"Then," said one of the men who had brought me, "you must remain. We do not care that two surgeons should be introduced here just now."
 "But my practice—my patients?"
 "All damages to your practice shall be liberally paid for."

I made a virtue of necessity and assented. Meanwhile I had bandaged the cut and when I had finished turned and looked about me. I was in one of those old palaces, as they are called in Florence, belonging to some influential family. The furniture, at least some of it, must have been several hundred years old. The bed on which the wounded man lay was canopied. On the walls were paintings, some of which I recognized as masterpieces of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. There was no one in the room except the two men who brought me and the patient. I directed that a large lounge of antique pattern should be made comfortable for me to sleep on, as it would be best for me to be very near the patient. Then the men who had brought me left, one of them first saying to me:

 "Senore Dottori, we are very glad to hear you say that the patient has so good a chance for his life. When you leave here be discreet and all will be well with you, but if you talk—well, all I have to say is you will not talk very long."

I remained a week at the palace, the name of which I did not know. Indeed, I was not permitted to leave the room of the patient, my meals all being served there. My mail was brought me, and it was amusing for the first day or two to read the messages of my patients with reference to my sudden disappearance. Then I asked those who had kidnapped me to leave word at my apartments that I had been called to Sienna on a very important case. This had the effect to quiet those who sought me.

My patient turned out to be as engaging a man as I had deemed him to be when he passed me in the Pitti palace.
 "Your effort," I said to him one day, "to keep your drama—it came very near being a tragedy—from me would possibly have been successful had it not been that I was at the ball at the Pitti palace the night you were stabbed. I saw you pass me with the man who stabbed you and the lady for whom you were stabbed. So you see it would be safer for you to tell me the whole story, since I have a part of it. I pledging myself to secrecy, rather than to permit me to go away with what I already have unpledged."

He was not only very much astonished, but saw the reasonableness of what I said.
 "I did not notice you," he replied, "at the ball and supposed that you had no position in court society. An Italian surgeon would have been unavailable for us. We are all so interlarded socially, those below constantly watching those above and all watching one another, that we dare not trust any one of our own number. You, as an American, are not mixed in our jealousies, our disputes, our—"
 "Assassinations."

"You are wrong there. There are no assassinations in modern Italy. I fought with the Duke— But I will tell you the story and have every confidence that you will not reveal it."
 "I am Count Baradini, and my ancestors have lived in this palace since the twelfth century. The man you saw on the other side of the senorina at the ball was the Duke of Abolino, a relative of the king. The senorina herself is the daughter of the Countess Francuccio, an old family that sprang up under the influence of Lorenzo de' Medici, commonly called Lorenzo the Magnificent. Senorina Bianca Francuccio and myself have been lovers ever since I was sixteen and she fourteen years old. Upon her entrance into society lately on her eighteenth birthday the duke saw her and became desirous of possessing her. He is a widower, very rich and has great influence with the king. Soon after seeing Senorina Bianca he made a formal application for her hand. Her mother—her father is dead—urged her to accept what is to be considered in a worldly point of view a better position than I could give her. To be a duchess and rich is higher in the worldly scale than to be a countess and with no possessions except this old palace. As for Bianca, her heart is all mine, as mine is hers, and if left to her own will she would refuse the duke to marry me. Indeed, rather than wed with him she declares she will go into a convent."

"The duke was expecting to have his own way in the matter when at the recent ball at the Pitti he discovered that I was his rival. I was with Senorina Bianca a few minutes before we passed you, when the duke joined her and by a look bade me give way to him. I asked the lady to go with me into another apartment. She assented, whereupon the duke went with us. On reaching the other room Bianca showed the duke so plainly that his presence was not desirable that he left us, giving me a malignant look as he did so that plainly meant 'I am a man of too much importance to be interfered with by such as you.'

"On leaving the palace the duke, who took occasion to go out at the same time as I, justified me. Seeing that I must have it out with him, I sent him a challenge.
 "Just at present the king would be furious if he knew that members of the nobility to whom he looks for support, especially his relative, had fought a duel. If I were known to have sent a challenge to the Duke of Abolino I should in some way be made to suffer. I met him within an hour after we left the Pitti; but, realizing my position, I did not dare even pink him. He came very near killing me, as you see, and I doubt not will be disappointed if I recover."

"The duke and my second joined in conference as to how to keep the matter a secret and decided to call upon you to attend me.
 "There you have the story so far as it has been enacted."
 The balance of the tale I learned from Count Baradini after he had recovered. Senorina Bianca was commanded by her mother to marry the duke, and the king sent a message to say that he would be pleased at a match between her and his well beloved cousin. Despite these commands and requests the girl flatly refused to marry any one but the man she loved, and when those who were conspiring against her found it impossible to move her they desisted, and finally her mother gave a reluctant consent that she should marry the count.

When the wedding came off I was present and had a pleasant chat with the bride about her husband's wounding, of which she had been kept in ignorance till the affair had blown over.

NESTER COMES OUT WINNER IN CASE

F. M. Moore, clerk of United States court at Marquette, has received notice from the circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati that the decision of the federal court in Marquette had been upheld in the case of the Lumber Tint-Stain company against George Nester and others and the South American company. The suit involved the right of the defendants to use a preparation for preventing wood discoloration, on which the Anti-Stain company claimed to hold a patent. The court of appeals held the patent invalid. The case has been in the courts nearly six years.
