MRS. EMIL GLASER LOSES HER MOTHER

Mrs. Sarah J. Dix Passes Away at Her Home in Aberdeen S. D.—She Was 88 Years Old—Mrs. Glaser Arrives in Time to See Mother Before She Dies.

Justice Emil Glaser has received a telegram announcing the death at Aberdeen, S. D., of Mrs. Sarah J. Dix, mother of Mrs. Glaser, who left for Aberdeen last Monday night immediately upon receipt of intelligence that her mother was seriously ill.

Mrs. Dix died Wednesday several hours after Mrs. Glaser reached her bedside and the latter therefore had the mournful satisfaction of seeing her mother before she passed away. Mrs. Dix was 88 years old and was known and esteemed in Escanaba, where she had visited upon several occasions. She was born at Proctor, Vt., and was a near relative of former United States Senator Proctor, of Vermont.

RIOTING STARTS REVOLT

THERE IS STILL FIGHTING IN LISBON, BUT THE REPUBLICANS HAVE THE UPPER HAND.

KING MANUEL IS REPORTED SAFE

Street Fighting Starts Revolution Which Results in Portugal Being Proclaimed a Republic—Army Refuses to Take Action Against the Revolutionists—People are Frenzied With Enthusiasm and Parade Streets Singing Songs of Liberty.

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 6.—Reports from Lisbon indicate that there is still some fighting there today. It is admitted, however, that the Republicans have the upper hand. A moderate estimate of the losses on both sides shows some 200 killed and 450 wounded.

The city was but slightly damaged by the bombardment. The republicans were proclaimed amid most frantic enthusiasm and bands paraded the street followed by thousands of people singing songs of liberty.

Started With Street Rows. A report sent out by the British minister at Lisbon says that the revolution started with a series of street riots, which grew until the police were powerless to stop it. The army was called upon, but would not take any action and as soon as one of the officers insisted upon his men taking action he was immediately shot down. The admiral of the fleet anchored in the harbor was called upon and he immediately raised the flag of the republic to the top of his main mast.

The King is Safe. London, England, Oct. 6.—Advice from Lisbon from the British minister is to the effect that King Manuel, the deposed ruler of Portugal, is safe, but that he is not upon any of the war ships, as has been repeatedly claimed by others.

May Be On Royal Yacht. Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 6.—It is reported here today that the members of the royal family who fled from here are on board the imperial yacht Queer Amelia, bound for the English coast.

WANT STILES TO RUN FOR STATE OFFICE

Probate Judge John Stiles of Menominee, one of the leading Democrats in Menominee county and who is well known in Escanaba, has been asked to run for the office of state treasurer on the Democratic ticket, an office that he says he does not desire. He has received several letters in the last few days from the officers of the Democratic state central committee, asking him to make the race, and several Democrats high in state politics have also added their influence in an endeavor to get Mr. Stiles to announce himself as a candidate for that office.

Mr. Stiles states that this is an office for which he is not anxious and positively refuses to make the race. He says for one thing he would not care to leave Menominee, which would be necessary in case he was elected. It has been rumored that an attempt will be made to force the office on him at the convention to be held in Kalamazoo tomorrow.

Funeral services over the remains of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miner Letter of North Escanaba were held at the family residence this afternoon, Rev. Frederick Spence officiating. Interment was made in Lakeview cemetery.

COUNTY FAIR IS CONCEDED SUCCESS

It Will Come to a Close Tonight—Judges Now Making Pp List of Prize Awards—Farmers and the General Public are Delighted With the Fair in General.

The second day of the county fair at the Fair Savings Bank store has proved fully as interesting as the first day and hundreds of people were in and out of the building all day. The judges have been making the awards and a list of prize winners will be announced by Mr. Salinsky tonight or tomorrow. Fully 2,100 different exhibits have been entered and included in them almost everything that has ever been grown in the United States. The muskmelons held the interest of many and there were several varieties of this fruit displayed. Even tobacco that was grown right in this county has a place in the exhibit as well as home grown peaches and grapes.

The farmers are delighted with the interest manifested by the public in the display of products and many of them were loud in their promises of what they would bring in next year for the county fair.

To night will close the enterprise inaugurated by Mr. Salinsky and after prizes have been claimed by the winners all the different displays will be returned to the people who brought them in.

The women did not overlook a chance to earn a prize or two and one hole show case in the store was devoted to the display of pies and cakes and preserves. Several exhibits of utter were on display and a large lot of dill pickles tickled the nostrils of those who happened to come near them.

The miniature county fair has been most successful venture on the part of Mr. Salinsky and that it has been good thing for the farmers is conceded. Many of the farmers had been planning all summer to have an exhibit this fall and if they had not been allowed an opportunity of doing so they would have been greatly disappointed.

REV. FATHER PIETTE WINS IN HIGH COURT

The Wisconsin supreme court has handed down a decision in the Olson case at Florence. This is the case in which Rev. Father Piette was the complaining witness. Olson, a saloonkeeper in the town of Florence, same county, was convicted in the circuit court of selling liquor on Sunday and fined $10 and costs. The case was appealed principally on the ground of Judge Goodland's charge to the jury that it is the law in Wisconsin that a saloonkeeper is responsible for the acts of his bartender. The supreme court affirmed the judgment of the lower court. This case was fought out in justice court, in circuit court and finally went to the supreme court.

NORTHWESTERN TO PUT IN SPUR AT NEGAUNEE

Passenger Trains Will Enter and Leave That City Near the Diamond Crossing.

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 6.—The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company is making preparations for the construction of a spur from the diamond crossing, near the Marquette County Gas & Electric company's power plant, to the new union passenger station being erected on Gold street. The council will be asked tomorrow evening for permission to extend the tracks over a street crossing at the Jackson location. Inasmuch as the spur will improve the rain service considerably the request will doubtless be granted.

It is planned that all passenger trains to and from Ishpeming shall pass over the spur. This will mean that only trains from the south will have to climb the steep grade east of the depot. During the winter season heavy passenger trains lose much time climbing this grade, it being frequently necessary to make several runs at it before the station is reached. It is expected that the change will save from three to five minutes in the run between the two cities.

Work Progressing Slowly.
 The change in service will not be made until the new passenger station is completed. Work on the depot is progressing slowly. Only a few men are employed, and no effort is being made to push building operations. The roof boards are now being put on, but very little work is being done in the interior.

The Northwestern passenger trains have been operated in the present manner since early in the seventies, before the present depot was erected. The original station, located on the site of the present depot, was destroyed by fire in 1876, and the structure now in use was then erected. There will be a considerable improvement in the arrangement of the tracks near the new station. The South Shore tracks will pass along the north side of the station, and the Northwestern's main line will be on the south side. The Northwestern's new spur will run parallel with the South Shore's line from the western end of the depot to the diamond crossing. Several changes will be necessary in the arrangement of the present tracks west of the Collins property in order to make room for the Northwestern spur.

Our Daily Short Story

A Shrewd American Girl
 By HELOISE BRAYTON
 Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Miss Christine Atherton, an English girl whose birth had been of ordinary parents, was a guest at the seat of the Duke of Brentford. Miss Atherton was in love with the duke's oldest son and heir, the Marquis of Hildleton.

Among the guests at the duke's residence, Slapper Grange, was a Kansas girl, Miss Edith Brown, the daughter of one who he had been titled would have been called the prince of packers. Miss Brown was expected to inherit a large fortune, and this was the reason for her being at Slapper Grange, for the Brentfords were not overburdened with ready cash, and the marquis was on the lookout for a wealthy American wife.

Now, Miss Brown had no more reverence for a title than for a membership in a sewing society. She was one of the kind to see through a millstone, and it was plain to her that the marquis wanted her for her money, and Miss Atherton wanted the marquis for himself.

"So long as I don't want him myself," mused Miss Brown, "why shouldn't I help this young English girl to get him?"

Now, there was a skeleton in the Brentford closet. The duke, who was an old man, was a kleptomaniac. He was not allowed when in the city to go into the shops without a footman to follow him and pay for what he stole. When the old gentleman appropriated an article the footman would step up to the clerk behind the counter from which it was taken and say: "Is grace is shopping today. 'Ow much for the 'and mirror 'e took?" "I see," the clerk would reply. "That one is three and six."

This would be followed up by other purchases acquired in the same way and duly paid for by the footman. There was nothing upon which the marquis was so sensitive as this matter of his father. He had made every effort to avoid the disgrace, even to an attempt to shut his father up, but as kleptomaniacs is not a form of insanity that warrants confining a person in bedlam the duke maintained his liberty.

One morning Miss Brown remained in her room when the others were down to breakfast and, being alone on the floor, went into Miss Atherton's room, took all the jewelry the poor girl had, carried it to the duke's apartment and slipped it into the pocket of a coat she found hanging in a closet. Then she went downstairs to breakfast.

After the meal Miss Brown kept Miss Atherton under observation so that she might be the first to meet the English girl after the discovery of the loss. Just before luncheon Miss Atherton came out of her room with a terror-stricken look on her face. Miss Brown was in the hall.

"My jewels!" exclaimed Miss Atherton, putting a finger on her lip to enjoin caution.

"What of 'em?" asked Miss Brown.

"They're gone."

"Hill! The duke? You know his falling?"

"I've heard of it."

"Don't say a word about it. The marquis would never forgive you."

"Do you really think it best?"

"I do."

"And I must lose the gems?"

"Never mind that; they will come back to you."

That night at dinner Miss Atherton appeared without a particle of jewelry. The marquis noticed it, but made no comment. After dinner he joined Miss Atherton on the terrace. He never noticed the absence of anything belonging to any of his guests without dredging lest his father had purchased it.

"Christine," he said, "why did you leave off your jewels today at dinner?"

"Oh, they're so insignificant," she said, "compared with what the other ladies wear."

"Miss Brown, for instance."

The lady named had that day appeared bedizened with a small fortune in diamonds.

"Here are very handsome."

"Umph! These Americans don't know when or where to load up with stones."

When on future occasions the marquis noticed that Miss Atherton still refrained from wearing her jewels he wondered. Then one day Miss Brown spoke to him of the omission.

"She doesn't wear them," said the marquis, "because she's ashamed of them."

"Nonsense," replied Miss Brown. "That's not her reason. She has too much kindness in her to hurt your feelings by giving you the true one."

"Good gracious! You don't mean they have been stolen?"

"I do."

"And the thief?"

"Search your father's pockets."

The marquis made the search and returned the jewels. The incident decided him on marrying for love or money. He proposed to Miss Atherton, much touched that she had preferred to lose her finery to accusing his father.

"As for that American girl," he added, "she had the indelicacy common among her countrymen. She did not hesitate to remind me that my father is a thief."

Miss Brown left the grange covered with jewels, but when she got in a train she put them in her satchel.

AVOIDING DAMAGE TO TIRES.

Handler of Car Should Coast Over Newly Crushed Stone—Beware of Patchy Repairs—Slow Travel Is Best on New Road.

The car driver has been having a bad time recently, for no matter where he went he was tolerably certain to find road mending or road patching in progress. Stones, always an obstacle and a potential danger, present themselves in three special forms. There is first the patch of new crushed stone cast by a case-hardened and thoughtless surveyor completely across the road, from the brink of one ditch to the brink of the other.

The damage is best avoided under these circumstances by coasting over the patch under impetus, and this method should be adopted wherever the gradient of the road and the width of the patch permit. The car should be driven up to the patch with just sufficient impetus to negotiate the transit, the motor disengaged before the front wheels hit the first stones and the car rolled over at the minimum pace possible. Rolling strains are far less severe than driving strains.

The second type of stone danger is when half the road is covered at a time, leaving the other half more or less clear of stones for the passage of the car. Curiously enough it is that severe cuts are more often received under these circumstances than when the stone material stretches right across the road. Perhaps the car is driven faster or less seldom coasted; perhaps the isolated stone left beyond the fringe of the patch by careless road men is more calculated to cut than the continuous patch. At any rate, these stones are sure to be encountered on the clear half of the road and require quite as much caution as a deep strewn.

Thirdly, stones are often encountered in the form of rut or pothole filling. These conditions are at least as hard upon tires as the broad, continuous patch and should be crossed with extreme caution. Some drivers ignore these patchy repairs altogether and drive straight and recklessly at a high speed; others remain on top gear and wrench the car in and out between the basins of metal in a tortuous course. Slow travel, combined with as much coasting work as the road allows, should be the rule whenever there is new road dressing about.

WANT FEDERAL TROOPS IN NATIONAL FORESTS

It is Believed They Would be of Great Aid in Saving Timber From Fire Loss.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 5.—President Taft, as commander-in-chief of the army, and secretary of War Dickinson have been requested by the Western Pine Manufacturers' association, of which J. P. McGoldrick of Spokane is president, acting in behalf of timber owners, lumbermen and settlers in the Northwestern and Pacific states, to station government troops in the national forest reservations from May 1 to September 30 of each year, to the end that the timber resources of the United States may be saved from destruction.

Statistics compiled by A. W. Cooper, secretary of the Western Pine Manufacturers' association, show that fully 50 per cent of the standing timber in the United States is located in Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and California, where fire patrols are maintained by lumbermen's associations and the state departments. These, however, are inadequate to cope with the fire element.

Danger Always Exists. "There exists a grave menace to standing timber in the national forests on account of fires," Mr. Cornwall said in discussing the use of troops in fighting fire and prevention, "and this carries with it heavy loss of life and valuable property."

"There are stationed at various posts in the United States thousands of disciplined men, known as government troops, who could be instructed in the methods of fire fighting and patrol duty in the various forests not alone in the Northwestern and Pacific states, but throughout the country where forests exist."

"The plan, if carried out, would be to place the troops under the direction of the Department of the Interior or any other department of the government in the national forests, where they could be instructed in the methods of fighting forest fires, which are usually started as the result of carelessness on the part of hunters, campers, land clearing, lumbermen and railroads.

Fire Fighting a Science. "These forests require an adequate patrol, regularly established and maintained during the so-called dry season, from May to September. Forest fire fighting is a science and should be taught to the troops as part of the military tactics. Besides, no better employment could be found for the soldiers than to utilize them as protectors of life and property during the part of the year when men are most needed in the forests of the country."

"We are hopeful that the president of the United States and the secretary of war will look upon our request as a step in the direction of actual conservation of one of the country's chief resources, also that an order will be issued to send the nearest troops into the national forests, which, in several of the northwestern states, are not unlike furnaces at the present time."

THE TARIFF ON PRIDE PROBABLY NEEDS REVISION

WHILE the Tariff question engages the attention of the lawmakers, it is appropriate that you should consider one phase of it which comes home to you, personally:

It is the TARIFF ON PRIDE---and, it is likely, this particular tariff costs you more than all other tariff schedules combined.

If pride prevents you from going "bargain-hunting;" from seeking the best market in which to buy things; from watching the want ads. for opportunities to buy and sell things; from advertising for boarders or lodgers, even though you need the income they would bring; from advertising your services, or used articles which can be spared, or from taking advantage of chances to save or earn money---then you are, indeed, paying a high tariff on Pride.

The matter of how much tariff you pay on Pride is in your own hands---and if there is need for revision, YOU are the person to revise it!

The snake sank its fangs deep into the little girl's arm. When killed the rattler was found to have fifteen buttons.
