BALLOT FIGHT RAGING TODAY

Citizens of Various States are Registering Their Will on Issues and Candidates—Townsend and Osborn Appear Sure Winners in Michigan—Other States.

(By Associated Press.) Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—Election day weather here is clear and cold. Contrary to expectations, a good early vote was polled, and the indications are promising for a reasonably heavy vote. The polls in Detroit are open until eight o'clock, while elsewhere in the state they close at five o'clock. The only apparent certainty about today's election in Michigan is that the next legislature will be Republican, which will insure the election of Chas. E. Townsend to succeed Senator Barrows, whom he defeated in the September primaries. Democratic State Chairman Shields predicts that his party will have at least thirty seats out of 132. Republican State Chairman Knox concedes the Democrats one senator and four members of the house.

the governorship is attracting considerable attention. The weather early in the day was favorable. Report From Wisconsin. Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—A heavy vote is reported in the larger cities of Wisconsin. The leaders of both great parties still maintain confidence in the results of the election, but the Republicans apparently have far and away the best grounds for this confidence.

SURPRISED ON HER BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Octave Henry was the surprised hostess at a party at her home in North Escanaba Monday night, when a large number of her friends decided to help her celebrate her twenty-first birthday anniversary and descended on her home in a body bearing gifts and edibles. The event was arranged by Miss Blanche Cabillot, a sister of Mrs. Henry, and proved a delightful affair. The principal amusement of the evening was the playing of various games, after which luncheon was served.

SEASON FOR DEER OPENS THURSDAY

The deer hunting season will open Thursday. The day will find many Escanaba hunters all ready for their trips to the woods. Up to four o'clock this afternoon County Clerk J. A. Semer had issued about 400 deer hunting licenses, 75 of which were applied for today. It has been said that the deer season will be a good one. The hunters certainly appear to think so and many of them will go into the woods tomorrow, so as to be ready to go hunting Thursday.

E. C. SNYDER TAKES BRAINERD'S PLACE

Emory C. Snyder, who has been conducting the I. Stephenson company's wood yard in this city, has been appointed manager of the Escanaba lumber yard of the same company, succeeding H. D. Brainerd, who resigned recently after having held the position for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Brainerd are planning to leave next Thursday evening for St. Cloud, Fla., where they may decide to make their future home. It is understood that for the present Mr. Snyder will attend to the management of both the wood and lumber yards of the I. Stephenson company in this city.

WILL BE WEDDED AT SIX O'CLOCK

Miss Lillian Stephenson and Charles W. Haase To Be United Very Soon in Marriage—Wedding Will Be Quiet Home Affair—Bridal Couple To Leave on Trip.

A nuptial event that will prove of interest to the many friends of the contracting parties will take place at six o'clock this evening, when Miss Lillian Stephenson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casper C. Stephenson, will become the bride of Charles W. Haase, at the home of her parents, 309 South Tilden avenue.

The wedding will be an extremely quiet one, only the members of the bride's family and close relatives of the bridegroom being present. There will be no attendants. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. E. E. Williams, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of which Miss Stephenson has been an active member.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner will be served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Haase will leave for a wedding trip to Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee. They will be absent about a week and on their return will begin housekeeping at 417 Wells avenue, where they will be "at home" to their friends after December 1.

Miss Stephenson is well known to the people of Escanaba, having been born and educated in this city, where she has been popular with a large circle of friends. Mr. Haase, though comparatively a newcomer, has made a number of close friends during his residence here who will congratulate him at this time. He is the representative in this district of the Cudahy Bros.' company of Milwaukee.

Among the relatives from outside who have arrived to be present at the wedding are Miss Eva Valentine, of Boone, Ia., a cousin of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. August Friday of Iron River, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Haase.

DETROIT MEN TO GO DEER HUNTING

C. A. Grinnell, A. A. Grinnell and George H. Lewis of Detroit arrived in Escanaba this morning and will leave in a few days for the woods, where it is planned to fill the blanks in a few deer licenses. The gentlemen will be accompanied by F. E. Levine, H. O. Brotherton and Peter Semer. C. A. Grinnell is a member of the firm of Grinnell Bros., which has a branch store in this city, and Mr. Lewis is the founder of the Lewis institute in Detroit. The hunting party will camp out on the Witfish river.

MINISTERS' MEET IS POSTONED

There was such a limited attendance at the monthly meeting of the Twin City Ministerial association at Gladstone on Monday that it was decided to call the meeting off and hold it at a later date. It found convenient it was felt, however, that because of the extra pressure of work falling to the lot of pastors during the holiday season that it would be advisable not to hold the next regular meeting until the first Monday in February.

TRAINS DELAYED BY A FREIGHT WRECK

The Chicago & Northwestern train due here from the north at 9 p. m. was four hours late in arriving last night. The delay was caused by a freight wreck on L'Anse hill near Taylor on the South Shore road. The wreck resulted from a broken car wheel. Six freight cars were derailed and Fred Dorrie, a brakeman, was painfully injured. The wreck delayed all trains for several hours, including the train due here at nine o'clock. The broken wheel was on a Chicago & Northwestern car loaded with vegetables. The other cars wrecked also contained vegetables meat and other high class freight and the loss to the railway company is considerable.

ALLEGED THIEF IN CUSTODY

YOUNG WOMAN CHARGED WITH DEFRAUDING MERCHANTS IS APPREHENDED AT NORWAY.

POLICE CHIEF GOES AFTER HER.

She is Said To Have Several Names, Being Known as Emma Mascotte, Alias Bellen, Alais Rivers—Alleged To Have Obtained Sets of Furs, a Suit Case and a Cloak From Different Firms and Never Paid for Them—One Specific Complaint.

Chief of Police Iverson was notified this morning by the police authorities of Norway that Emma Mascotte, alias Emma Bellen, alias Emma Rivers, erstwhile a resident of this city, was under arrest at Norway, her apprehension and detention having been made at the request of the Escanaba authorities. Chief Iverson left for Norway this forenoon and is expected to return tonight with the prisoner.

Three Firms Victimized. The young woman of many names is charged with having fraudulently obtained articles of wearing apparel and other goods from several local merchants, among them being the Ed. Erickson company, Stein Bros. and the Escanaba Harness company. From Stein Bros. she is alleged to have obtained two sets of furs and from the Escanaba Harness company a valuable suit case, while from the Ed. Erickson company she is charged with having secured by fraud and misrepresentation a light blue cloak valued at $15.

Allegations in Complaint. The warrant for her arrest is based upon a complaint of Ed Erickson, who declares that she obtained the cloak on October 24 through pretending that she lived at 614 Hale street and that she wanted to take the same home for her mother's inspection with a view to its purchase. It is alleged that the cloak was never returned or paid for and that the representations by Emma Mascotte, alias Bellen, alias Rivers, were made with intent to cheat and defraud. The woman probably will be arraigned before a justice of the peace tomorrow morning.

HELD FOR TRIAL IN CIRCUIT COURT

William Koloski, who was arrested some days ago upon a charge of having raised a time check of the I. Stephenson company and attempted to have the same cashed, was arraigned before Justice Linden this morning for his preliminary examination. He decided to waive hearing, however, and was accordingly held for trial in the circuit court. His bail was fixed at $200. Being unable to furnish this security he was remanded to the county jail. It is alleged in the complaint against Koloski that he altered and raised a time check given him by a camp foreman for 21 1/2 days' labor at the rate of $39 a month so that it called for 39 1/2 days' labor at the same amount a month. This raised check he is alleged to have tried to get cashed by the I. Stephenson company's cashier at Wells.

PROF. MONAGHAN IS MUCH BETTER

According to advices received here today, the condition of Prof. James C. Monaghan, a noted publicist and lecturer who has a number of warm personal friends in this city, is considerably improved. His articulation is distinct and his general condition is better. Hopes for his recovery are now entertained. Mrs. Monaghan is now with her husband, having started from New York immediately upon receiving the news that he had been stricken with apoplexy while delivering a lecture in Portage, Wis., last Friday evening.

ELECTION DAY IS QUIET IN ESCANABA

General Apathy, So Much in Evidence During the Campaign, is Still in Control of Affairs—Comparatively Light Vote Being Cast, Although Weather is Fine.

General Apathy, so much in evidence during the recent political campaign, appears to be still in control of affairs, so far as Escanaba is concerned. One would scarcely know that today is election day, so quiet and devoid of excitement is it.

Notwithstanding all the efforts that have been made to induce citizens to get to the polls and exercise the privilege of suffrage, a comparatively light vote is being cast in the city and presumably throughout the county. Up to noon today the vote in almost every ward was less than that of two years ago.

This afternoon the voting is somewhat brisker and it may be that by the time the polls close at five o'clock the total vote may be somewhat near normal.

The lack of opposition to the county Republican ticket may account for the apparent lack of interest in the balloting and there seems to be but slightly more interest in the results of the voting on the propositions to issue bonds for the construction of a new municipal gas plant, a new fire station and a new bridge across the Escanaba river at Wells. However, it was noted by the election officials in the several wards that nearly every voter made use of his ballots on the bonding propositions, so it is inferred that a fair expression of public sentiment upon these questions at least will be obtained.

It is believed that Osborn for governor will have a long lead over Heumann in both the city and county and that the entire Republican state, congressional and county tickets will be given large majorities.

It is also generally believed that Joseph J. Mallmann, Republican candidate for county treasurer and the only nominee who has Democratic opposition, will come out winner against Otto L. Mertz. "But you never can tell" what is going to happen on election day. The count of the ballots is the only safe bet.

Election returns will be received at the city hall and as the polls in the city and country precincts close at five o'clock the results in the city and county at least should be known at a comparatively early hour.

TAFT, SHERMAN AND ROOSEVELT VOTE

(By Associated Press.) Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 8.—President Taft arrived here at 10:30 o'clock this morning to exercise his voting privilege as a citizen of the United States. He went from the railway station to the home of his brother, Charles P. Taft and later went to a polling place, which was in an empty store, and voted. He spent four minutes marking his ballot. His stay here was limited to five hours.

Sherman and Sons Vote. New York, Nov. 8.—Vice President Sherman and his three sons cast their votes in Utica at 9:30 o'clock this forenoon. Ex-President Roosevelt remained at Sagamore Hill early in the day, intending to cast his vote at Oyster Bay about noon.

Roosevelt Shows Son How. Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 8.—In the old family carry-all Colonel Roosevelt drove from Sagamore Hill at noon to a polling place in the fire company's house at Oyster Bay and cast his vote. Kermit Roosevelt at the same time cast his first ballot. Kermit never having cast a vote before, did not know how to do it and his father showed him how.

BANK BURGLARS MAKE RICH HAUL

Penfield, Ill., Nov. 8.—Burglars blew open the safe in the local bank early today and it is reported that a large amount of cash was taken together with $910 worth of postage stamps. There was $20,000 in cash in the vaults when the bank closed yesterday and it is supposed that much of it was taken by the robbers, who escaped in a buggy.

SISTERS WED AT SAME TIME

Misses Fuchia and Alice Ryall, Former Well Known Here, are Brides at Double Wedding in South Haven--A. H. Ryall of This City Among the Guests--Story.

Escanaba friends of Miss Fuchia Ryall, sister of Attorney A. H. Ryall, who made her home here for two years, will undoubtedly be greatly interested in the announcement that on Saturday last she was one of the brides at a double wedding, which was solemnized at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ryall, at South Haven, Mich. The other bride was Miss Fuchia's sister, Miss Alice Ryall, who has visited here.

Among the guests present at the double wedding were Attorney Arthur H. Ryall of this city and Mrs. W. R. Wood of Bark River, brother and sister, respectively, of the brides. They are expected to return home tomorrow. From the Saturday issue of the Daily Tribune of South Haven is taken the following account of the rather unusual matrimonial event:

Simple But Beautiful. Simplicity marked the details of the rather unusual event which transpired today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ryall, corner of Erie and Center streets, when their two younger daughters, Fuchia and Alice, were given in marriage to Howard C. Taft of East Lansing and Clell Krugler of this city.

Rev. A. F. Nagler, pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony for both couples, the contracting parties grouping themselves in the archway separating the front parlor from the dining room. The rooms had been handsomely decorated with a profusion of pink and white chrysanthemums, green plants and smilax, and with the window shades lowered and the lights turned on, the scene presented was in decided contrast to the dismal weather outside.

As the hour of 3 p. m. approached, Mrs. L. R. Ryall at the piano played "The Venetian Love Song" and at precisely three o'clock Miss Fuchia Ryall and Howard C. Taft, who had until this time mingled with the guests, accompanied by the bride's sister, Miss Alice Ryall, and Mr. Clell Krugler, as bridesmaid and best man, took their position before Rev. Nagler in the flower decked archway and the words were spoken which named the first couple as man and wife, the double ring service having been used.

Second Couple United. At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Taft stepped to one side, the second couple joined hands and were united by Rev. Nagler in the holy bonds of matrimony, using the ring service of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Taft wore a light tan French batiste with a shadow check and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Krugler's gown was a striped French serge in old rose with which was carried a handsome bouquet of chrysanthemums of the same shade.

After the second ceremony had been concluded, the young couples were offered the best wishes and congratulations of the guests, who comprised members of the three families interested. Light refreshments were then served and a little later the "newly-weds" left the house to take the 5 o'clock Michigan Central train for a joint wedding trip through southern Michigan, proposing to visit several points including Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Jackson and Detroit. Mrs. Taft's going away gown was of blue mirlage silk with which was worn a blue coat and a modish hat of blue persian silk and velvet. Mrs. Krugler wore a stunning black tailored suit of English cloth, and a large black hat trimmed with old rose wings. With the suit was worn a fancy waist with old rose trimmings.

Out of Town Guests. Mr. and Mrs. Taft, at the conclusion of their trip will be at home to their friends in St. James Place, Chicago, where he holds a position with the South Park commission. Mr. and Mrs. Krugler will return to South Haven and for the winter will occupy apartments with Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Dyckman, 92 Michigan avenue. Mr. Krugler will continue in his position as bookkeeper in the Citizens' State bank, a position he has held for the past three years.

Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Taft and daughters Ethel, Grace and Lillian Taft of East Lansing, parents and sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Margaret Barrows and Robert Holdsworth, friends, also of East Lansing; Mrs. W. R. Wood of Bark River, Arthur Ryall of Escanaba, sister and brother of the brides, and Leo F. Ryall, another brother, of Sturgis. The other guests present, were members of the families residing in South Haven.

HONDURAS IN FOR GENERAL REVOLT?

(By Associated Press.) New Orleans, La., Nov. 8.—A general uprising in Honduras, with all the enemies of President Davilla participating in the movement for his overthrow, is near at hand, according to advices received here today. The revolutionary spirit is spreading throughout the country and while people generally do not sympathize with the actions of General Valladares, they are willing to rally to Manuel Bonilla, who is believed to be making preparations to revive his revolution against Davilla.

EIGHT OKLAHOMA ELECTION OFFICIALS ARRESTED TODAY

(By Associated Press.) Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 8.—Warrants were issued by the federal authorities this afternoon for the arrest of eight election officials in Muskogee and Wagner counties on the charge of a violation of the federal code denying the negroes a right to vote.

NOW IS THE TIME.

With Christmas only seven weeks ahead it is high time to repeat the old admonition about doing your holiday shopping early. In fact the prudent person will no longer delay the commencement of Christmas shopping, for everything is more favorable for making gift purchases now than it will be a few weeks later, when the real rush in this direction begins, says the Oshkosh Daily Northwestern. The merchants' stocks are generally complete, the prices are as low as they will be at any time, the chance for selection will not again be duplicated, and clerks are fresh and waiting to give their best attention to customers. Now is the time, in fact, to get busy with holiday purchases, and there is no necessity of adding a single word to the wise to get them to understand the situation and the reasons why they should make their purchases now instead of waiting.

The tendency to do early shopping in preparation for the holidays has grown apace during recent years, and thousands of persons who formerly ignored such reminders now follow the plan of early shopping with evident satisfaction and advantage to themselves, and with equal satisfaction to merchants and others who figure in the great annual rush that invariably occurs just previous to the holiday season. Some careless ones will always be caught in this final rush, but they pay for their procrastination by extra worry and inconvenience, while they also force inconvenience on others. The foresighted person who has followed the admonition of "do it early" has the advantage of peace of mind and a serene contemplation of the worries of others who cannot see the point. And these wise ones will commence their Christmas shopping at once, for a glance at the calendar will tell them the time is none too long, at best.

If the express companies expect public sympathy in the present strike, they should not be after charging more to transport a bundle as baggage than it costs a person to travel in the passenger car.

The Republican party is having a peck of trouble changing its managers. As the Democrats never had any managers, they are not subject to this embarrassment.

With the intense desire manifested by the voters to hit somebody, it is not likely that they will be satisfied by merely scratching their ballots.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

(From noon today to noon tomorrow.)
 Sun sets 4:45, rises 6:30; moon sets 9:37 p. m.

TO CUT RUNNING TIME THREE HOURS

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 8.—The New York Central lines have begun work on a new line which will give it the shortest railroad route between New York and Chicago, clipping off between 150 and 175 miles from the present running distance, and cutting down to more than three hours the running time.

This means that the actual running time between the two points will be less than twenty hours and that fast trains will be shot through Youngstown instead of Cleveland, as at present.

In accomplishing this feat a new road is being built and a portion of the Baltimore & Ohio will be used. With the exception of the stretch from Niles to Ravenna, the route will be controlled entirely by the New York Central lines.

Work on the Franklin-Struthers line is now under way, and within six or eight months through trains will be running over the new route.

HERO DODGES MEDAL FOR YEARS IN VAIN
Pursued Almost Around World By Carnegie Commission, Who Would Honor Him.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 8.—The unique distinction of being chased almost around the world by a Carnegie medal, and being finally captured after six years, overpowered and branded as a hero, belongs to Henry P. McCoy, Tucson's newest and most modest citizen.

McCoy didn't want to be a hero and he put up a heroic fight against it, but his former deeds have found him out and he must sit down calmly and accept the medal and a matter of $1,000 that goes along with it.

Started Six Years Ago.

It all happened down in Mandon, Adams county, Illinois, six years ago. Frank L. Sherrer, 21 years old, had been overcome by a powerful gas and lay unconscious at the bottom of a deep well. Farmers were searching for divers' suits and experts to make a descent, when McCoy settled the question by clambering down into the gas filled well.

After remaining as long as he dared in an effort to save his companion, he started to ascend. He had all but reached the top of the ladder when he was overcome and would have fallen back into the well but for the assistance of men at the top.

But when the young man came to his senses in a hospital the next day he was disgusted to discover that everybody was planning to make a hero of him.

THIS WILL WON'T BE CONTESTED

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 8.—The will of John B. Luther of this city, which has been probated in San Francisco, where he resided most of his life and had his legal domicile contains bequests to relatives in the vicinity of Fall River aggregating $109,800. The most singular part of the will reads: "I do hereby declare that I am not married and that I have no children. I have noticed, however, the facilit, with which sworn testimony may be procured and produced in support of the claims of alleged widows and adopted children and the frequent recurrence of such claims in recent years.

"I therefore make express provision in this, my last will, as follows: I give and bequeath to such person as shall be found, proved and established to be my surviving wife or widow, whether the marriage be found to have taken place before or after the execution of this will, the sum of $5, and to each and every person who shall be found, proved and established to be my child, by birth, adoption, acknowledgement or otherwise, and whether before or after the execution of this will, the sum of $5, and I declare that I do intentionally omit to make for any of the persons in this paragraph referred to any other or further provision."

"Not for mine," he said, and straightway slipped out of town. He went to Chicago and obtained work. Then the Carnegie medal committee got traces of him. McCoy immediately departed for the east.

Realizing that the hero makers were on his trail he continued until he got to Honolulu. He spent two years there in peace and quiet until he learned of another move of the Carnegie people. So he moved again. He kept moving until, a few weeks ago, he arrived at Tucson and got a job. He was taking life easy when the modest man was discovered, and here he is, a hero!

"Not for mine."

The Irishman's Resource.

In his volume of essays, "Dreams Dead Earnest and Half Jest," Mr. Coulson Keranlan compares his compatriots, the natives of the Green Isle, with the English:

"That your Englishman never knows when he is beaten is the veriest platitude. In all the world there is no nationality which can play a losing game with such desperate doggedness. I venture to think, however, that the Irishman—and therein is perhaps a reason why he excels in the art of war—is more resourceful, is quicker to think and quicker to act.

"An Englishman, finding himself in a corner so tight that any one else would decide at once that there was nothing for it but surrender or retreat, says, 'Here I am, and here I'll stick to be shot at till I'm killed or till relief comes.' An Irishman in the same place would say: 'It's the mischief's own hole I'm in! But wait now! What way 'll I be getting out? And get out the Irishman generally does, for he is so resourceful that his resourcefulness might sometimes be better described as slipperiness."

NOISE OF THUNDER.

Due to Heating of Gases Along the Line of Electric Discharge.

To Professor Trowbridge we owe an experiment to explain the noise of thunder. It has usually been thought that the noise is caused by the closing up of the vacuum created by the passage of lightning, the air rushing in from all sides with a clap, but the intensity of the noise is rather disproportionate, and it is now supposed that the thunder is due to the intense heating of the gases, especially the gas of water vapor along the line of the electric discharge, and the consequent conversion of suspended moisture into steam at enormous pressure.

In this way the crackle with which a peal of thunder sometimes begins might be regarded as the sound of steam explosions on a small scale, caused by inductive discharges before the main flash. The rumble would be the overlapping steam explosions, and the final clap, which sounds loudest, would be the steam explosion nearest to the auditor. In the case of rumbling thunder the lightning is passing from cloud to cloud. When the flash passes from the earth to the clouds the clap is loudest at the beginning.

Professor Trowbridge gave substance to these suppositions by causing electric flashes to pass from point to point through terminals clothed in soaked cotton wool, and he succeeded in magnifying the crack of the electric spark to a terrifying extent.—London Graphic.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

SYNOPSIS.

Lord Loveland, handsome and haughty, decides to visit America and capture a heiress to retrieve his fortunes.

"I'll have to throw a few sops to Cerberus if I want new clothes to impress the American girls," laughed Val. "That brute Deedes won't give me so much as a waistcoat unless he gets something on account."

"Pay him something," said Lady Loveland. "Pay what you must. Keep what you can for yourself. As for me, I want nothing."

"Except a rich daughter-in-law," flattered her son, his spirits rising, though the snow still fell. After all, it was only October, and there was sunshine elsewhere. In America perhaps it was now shining on his bride to be. "I'll write to Betty about the letters," he said, "after you've given me some tea."

CHAPTER II.

THE INIMITABLE FOXHAM.

ONE of Loveland's most easily detected virtues was his careless habit of telling the truth. He had never lied or even fibbed whitely as a small boy. But Lady Betty Bulkeley had always maintained that this bold truthfulness of her cousin's was the result of inconsiderateness rather than nobility of soul.

She said (and she ought to have known, as she had been acquainted with him since she was two and he eight years old) that he did not bother to think of polite fibs simply because the feelings of others were not for him of enough importance to seem worth saving at the cost of mental effort.

Now, in his letter to Betty asking for introductions he made no attempt to cover his real intentions with the roses of pretty fiction.

He let it appear plainly that he thought his cousin, having visited America and snatched a millionaire from the matrimonial grab bag, ought gladly to help him succeed in the same game.

"The wretch!" said Betty in the midst of reading Loveland's brutally frank letter to Jim, her American trophy. "I believe he has the impudence to think I married you for money! I'd like to shake him and box his silly, conceited ears!"

"They may be silly and conceited, but they're exactly the shape of yours, darling. So I couldn't find it in my heart to box them, no matter how much good it might do their owner," said Jim Harborough, who had been Betty's husband for nearly a year and was joyously watching her triumph as a young married woman.

Naturally Betty kissed him for this speech, as they were at breakfast alone together, the servants banished.

"Well, anyway we won't give him the letters," she said when she had gone back to her own place, not far away.

"Won't we?" asked Jim, with a thoughtful air.

"No, certainly not," returned Betty. "I like your countrywomen and won't deliberately let Loveland loose to prey upon them."

"I guess they can take care of themselves," said Jim, putting on his Yankee accent.

"I don't know. Some of them might fall in love with him," suggested Betty doubtfully. "He's awfully good looking, with a kind of winning, boyish way and a voice that's far too nice to express him, really. One often feels too lenient with Val, as if he were one of one's own pet weaknesses come alive and walking about."

"As for his looks, he's more like you than your own brother is," said Jim—"eyes, dimples, curly hair and all. So you wouldn't want me to hate him, would you? And, as for his voice, it's occurred to me that maybe it expresses something in his real self—the hidden self that he and nobody else knows anything about—the self he's never had a chance to develop or find out because his mother and other people have spoiled him from his babyhood."

"That's very subtle of you, Jim, as well as very kind and like you," said Betty. "I wish I could think it's true, as he's my cousin. But, thank goodness, I for one never spoiled him. I cratched his face once when I was a small girl, and I'm glad. I wish it had left a mark."

"It would have been even a more honorable scar than the one South Africa gave him. But I admit he is rather an unlucked cub at present. I pity the girl who falls in love with him as he now is."

"Always was and probably ever will be, Loveland without end," finished Betty slyly. "The cheek of him—expecting me to ask you for letters so that he can go over to your country and do his best to make some nice American girl miserable for life and spend all her money. I shall punish him, since I can't do anything worse, by telling him exactly what I think of him."

"There are other ways of punishing him more fitting to the crime perhaps," remarked Jim thoughtfully.

"What ways?"

"Giving him the letters."

"Jim?"

"And then—and then—well, a lot depends upon whether he's a born capitalist or merely a made one. I haven't quite worked out the idea yet. It's simmering. It'll soon begin to boil."

Whether Jim Harborough's idea had already boiled or not, at all events that same afternoon a fat envelope went out by post, registered and addressed to the Marquis of Loveland, Cragdale Lodge, Dorloch, N. B. In it there were at least ten letters of introduction, all to names the bare mention of which had powers to raise the circulation of society papers in America or create a flutter in Wall street.

Times were bad, said Battenborough, the polite and popular pawnbroker; therefore Lady Loveland got only 5000 on the pink pearls. Two hundred were sprinkled about among Val's creditors like pepper out of a pot where such seasoning was necessary. A hundred more were spent outright, with heart-burnings, upon obstinate tailors, hat-makers and hosiers, who would not tail, hat or hose, except upon instalments of ready money. Fifty pounds were apologetically retained by Lady Loveland, who grudged every penny to herself and especially to her servants.

Another fifty a little more than paid for a cabin almost worthy of his lordship on the big ship Baltic. Fifty and some vague dust of gold and silver went into Val's pocket for current expenses and the remaining hundred and fifty condensed into the form of a letter of credit.

your money for 'the Baltic,' said Jim. 'but that needn't stand in your way. You won't have to pay for your cabin on the Mauretania. It's going begging. A friend of mine who can't sail has given his ticket to me to do with as I like, but as he's a man whose movements make things in Wall street jump up and down like a seesaw he doesn't want it known that he's got to stay behind because he's seedy; that's all. If you want to go in his place, go and say nothing till you get on the other side. By that time he'll be on his way on a following ship. At least that's what he hopes.'

"Do you mean that if I want to cross in the Mauretania I must pass under your friend's name?" asked Loveland.

"Oh, no, nothing of the sort," answered Jim Harborough, smiling his pleasant smile. "What I meant was don't go advertising the fact that you've got Henry Vanderpot's cabin because he's not well enough to sail. All you'll have to do is to swagger about as if you'd meant to be a passenger on the Mauretania from the beginning of time."

Loveland was prepared to do any amount of swaggering, though he did not say so to Jim or indeed acknowledge it to himself. He replied that if this were the only condition he would accept the ticket and instruct Foxham (as he would not have time himself) to try to sell the passage which he had paid for on the Baltic.

"Fox'll have several days to do it in, and I'll tell him if he brings it off there's 10 per cent for himself," said Val. "Meanwhile I'll be enjoying myself on the Mauretania."

"Meanwhile you'll be enjoying yourself on the Mauretania," echoed Jim. "I suppose there are sure to be a lot of millionaires on board?" suggested Val.

"Sure to be, even at this time of year."

"With pretty daughters?" Loveland's tone and air in making this addition were so concerted that Jim would have wanted to kick him if he had not looked so ridiculously like Jim's own adored and beautiful Betty. Besides, the scar showed white on the brown. This had been a brave boy. Jim was inclined to believe that he was worth reforming.

"With pretty daughters," Harborough repeated, his tone quiet, though his eyes showed a danger signal.

"However, be prudent. Don't make up your mind too soon. The best fish aren't always caught in the deep sea. One wants to have a look round the markets."

Loveland grinned. "Thank you for the tip. I won't forget."

"You'll hardly have time to let people know your change of plan," said Jim. "But of course if you don't mind a little expense you can Marconi to Lady Loveland from the ship."

"Of course," assented Lady Loveland's son, who would not have thought of the attention had it not been suggested to him. "But it will hardly be necessary."

"Perhaps not," said Jim.

Loveland's only experience of sea life, except for a little yachting, had been in going out to and returning from South Africa, but he had learned to take care of himself on shipboard, and, though his name was not on the passenger list of the Mauretania, his deck chair was soon placed by an attentive steward in a sheltered corner nearly amidships. This advantage was secured by a tempting tip, a tip out of all proportion to the giver's resources; but, then, there were many people on the Mauretania who came on board more like clients returning to a hotel where they had been known by the management for years than passengers traveling on a new ship, and Loveland did not intend to be defeated in an unequal competition.

When the deck steward politely asked if he wished to use a visiting card as a chair marker Val told him to write the name of Loveland on a slip of paper or a luggage label; anything would do. So the steward did as he was bidden, ignorant that he served a lord.

Loveland did not feel that he needed cheap advertisement. It would soon leak out that he was a personage, and, sure enough, it did. When he had discreetly explained to the purser his possession of Mr. Vanderpot's cabin the news of the change went round from steward to steward and was promptly "spotted" as a titbit by the greatest gossip on the ship, who happened to inhabit the stateroom opposite.

Major Cadwallader Hunter (a retired major, of course; he would not have had time to develop his qualities while on the active list) was told that he had Loveland for a neighbor and looked at the cabin door with kindling interest. Hunter was an American of a type laughed at by the best of his own countrymen. He knew his Burke and Debbert better than many an Englishman even of that middle class which can afford to be ignorant of no detail concerning the aristocracy. He was aware that there existed a Marquis of Loveland who was young and unmarried; he knew all about his family connections, and he wondered how such an important gentleman had strayed on board the Mauretania unobserved. "I suppose this fellow must be the Loveland, of course," he said to himself. "But why not be published frankly on the passenger list? Can there be a secret?"

At this moment Loveland walked out from his stateroom, having come below for pipe and tobacco pouch. He caught Major Cadwallader Hunter staring at his door and gave him a brief yet supercilious glance. To some men it would have seemed an offensive glance, but Major Cadwallader Hunter was not to be easily offended by a man he wished to know. He disappeared into his own cabin by way of proving that he was a neighbor, not a Paul Pry, but a few minutes later he was on deck, ambling amiably from one group of acquaintances to another, and dexterously avoiding detriments.

ENGINE MAY RUN 100 MILES AN HOUR

Motive power men are awaiting with keen interest the result of the "trying out" by the operating department of the New York Central of a new passenger engine, which is said to be one of the greatest and most powerful ever built for such service. If it fulfills the expectations of its builders, it will haul a train of 12 cars at the rate of 100 miles an hour. In trips it has been making it has consumed six tons of coal on the run between Albany and Syracuse.

The engine in question has a total carrying capacity of eight tons and the tender holds 8,000 gallons of water. Its total weight is 457,000 pounds, 27,000 more than the locomotives hauling the Twentieth-Century limited and Empire State express. It is the expectation of the railroad officials, should the new type of engine be adopted for use, to haul the Twentieth-Century limited in one section.

LARGE INCREASE IN POSTAL INCOME

Washington, Nov. 8.—Postal receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $224,128,657.62, an increase of 10 per cent over last year. The New York postoffice collected ten per cent of all receipts and Chicago came next with eight per cent.

Expenses for the year showed an increase of 4 per cent.

Money orders to the amount of $647,000,000 were issued during the year. More than fifty per cent of them were paid in Chicago and nine per cent in New York. More than $59,000,000 went abroad in the form of money orders last year, while less than $10,000,000 came in. Italy got the bulk of the money thus sent abroad, or more than $22,000,000.

HUNTING OF DEER ON GRAND ISLAND

The peers and other proprietors of European and Canadian game preserves "have nothing on" the officers of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company and their friends who by special invitation will again this season enjoy the privilege of hunting on Grand Island.

No spot in America has a better claim to the title "sportsman's paradise" than Grand Island. Here the native deer, under absolute protection from illegal hunting and from all attacks of wild beasts except those of an occasional stray wolf which gets on the island and is speedily hunted down and dispatched, thrive as in few places in this country.

While no one knows how many native deer, besides moose, elk and caribou there are on Grand Island, the number is astonishingly large. But the range of the animals is so extensive hunting and killing them is attended with many of the difficulties and zest the hunter experiences anywhere.

Many notables hunted on Grand Island last season and many more are sure to take advantage this year of such an exceptional opportunity to bag game under the most favorable conditions.

TURKEYS ARE TO BE CHEAPER, YES

According to market reports from the turkey raising districts, a larger number of turkeys have been raised for the city markets than for some years past, and the prices that will prevail for the Thanksgiving gobbler will be less than in 1909. Due to the high rates that prevailed last Thanksgiving, it is stated that a large number of dressed turkeys were left on the markets, and these have been preserved in cold storage, several thousand now being ready for shipment in Chicago and New York.

Another thing to cause a drop in prices this year is the large number of chickens that have been raised. The price of chickens last year was nearly as high as turkeys, and the result was that 5,000,000 pounds were carried over and will be taken from the cold storage plants and thrown on the market, according to a St. Louis commission man. The same dealer states that prices for turkeys should be 25 per cent less than last November.

Absolutely smokeless and odorless you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

SPOKANE IS HOT AFTER NATIONAL GRANGE MEET

Invitation Will Be Presented at Convention Opening at Atlantic City this Week.

(Special to The Mirror.)
Spokane, Wash., Nov. 8.—Western delegates to the National Grange convention at Atlantic City, N. J., November 9 to 19, will make a determined effort to bring the 1911 meeting to the Pacific Northwest, recommending Spokane as the logical city. The formal invitation will be presented by C. B. Kegley, master of the Washington state grange, composed of 22,000 active members.

"Mr. Kegley has been instrumental in instituting and organizing 106 granges during the year ended September 30," said R. J. MacLean, secretary of the Spokane chamber of commerce, which is co-operating with the western delegates. "This is 40 more than were organized in the state of Michigan, the next highest on the list. It illustrates the interest that is being shown among farmers in getting together and carrying out the idea of closer community interests in the rural districts of the state.

Spokane Can Hold It.

"That Spokane is able to take care of national conventions is evidenced by the success of the National Irrigation Congress and the second National Apple Show in 1909 and the International Dry Farming Congress the early part of last month. These gatherings were attended by delegates and exhibitors from 29 states and five provinces in Canada and there were representatives from foreign countries, including England, France, Germany, Russia, Mexico, China, Japan and Australia, who also brought exhibits.

"The third National Apple Show, during the week of November 14, will bring together representatives of practically every state and province on this continent and exhibits of apples from many commercial orchard districts in America.

"Spokane is in the heart of the highest developed agricultural and horticultural district in the country, and we have excellent railroad facilities and hotel accommodations to handle the convention."

Protest on Census Decision
Protests against the decision of the census department withholding the Spokane figures until the Tacoma case has been settled are being sent to Washington, D. C., by business and professional interests in this city. The Spokane chamber of commerce also has taken up the matter, the officers regarding the decision an unjust one in view of the fact that W. A. McKenzie, inspector of census, gave out the information that no fraud had been attempted in Spokane. Charles M. Fassett, president of the organization, announced today that a formal protest will be filed by the chamber of commerce, adding: "Following the statement by Mr. McKenzie that our figures are substantially correct I can see no reason why we should be held up. We believe we have a right to know and we shall insist that Spokane be informed of its census returns without being held up until the Tacoma difficulty has been settled. We have a right to know and to protect our interests the same as any city in the country, and, satisfied that our figures are correct, we shall insist upon that right."

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 8.—A student in the University of Michigan who has a mania for finding out about everything on earth has just made the rounds of the different places where cigars, tobacco and cigarettes are sold and has found that students at the university smoked last year 132,210 cigars, 33,180 boxes of cigarettes, 52,000 packages of smoking tobacco, including 30,000 packages of cigarette paper and 6,850 cubes of chewing tobacco. There was also sold 77,440 packages of gum and 100,000 bars of nut chocolate.

NEW SCHEDULE OF EXPRESS RATES?

(Special U. T. Service.)
Lansing, Mich., Nov. 8.—After a conference in the offices of the state railroad commission, on the request of the various express companies operating in Michigan, it was decided that the commission draft a new schedule of rates which it will present for the approval of the express companies. This request was made by representatives of the various companies who came here from New York and other points.

Chairman Glasgow of the commission states that the work of the new schedule of rates will be commenced at once and he is of the impression that a settlement of the differences between the shippers of the state and the express companies will be effected. The express companies seem to be anxious for a settlement.

AVIATION MEET IS POSTPONED

(Special U. T. Service.)
San Francisco, Nov. 8.—The international aviation meet, scheduled at San Francisco from Nov. 24 to Dec. 3, has been indefinitely postponed. This action was taken at a meeting of the local committee called to discuss the demand of $15,000 for extra prize money, made by the Wrights. Seventy thousand dollars had been previously subscribed for the meet, and it was decided to make no effort to raise the additional funds at this time.

THEY SAY NOBODY REACHED THE POLE

(Special U. T. Service.)
Copenhagen, Nov. 8.—"Neither Cook nor Peary has a shadow of truth in his claims. No living explorer nor Eskimo has been within 100 miles of the north pole." According to missionaries returning from Greenland, the foregoing is the conclusion reached by Knud Rasmussen. These missionaries say that Rasmussen cross-examined the two Eskimos, Ahwelah and Eturishuk, on whose testimony Cook relied for corroboration of his claim that he reached the pole, and got from them nothing to substantiate Cook's claim.

Metamora, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Cracksmen blew the safe of the Home Savings Bank this morning and escaped with two thousand dollars.

PRESIDENT TAFT SPEAKES FOR BABES

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—In a letter to the president of the American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, in which he expressed regret that he can not be present at the opening session of the annual meeting on Nov. 9, owing to his departure for Panama, President Taft says:

"It is not possible to overstate the far-reaching importance of the question of the reduction of infant mortality. Every man and woman of every civilized country should feel a deep and personal interest in it. It affects not only the happiness of the home, but the welfare of the nation and the future of the race. The men and women who will attend these meetings are fitted to take up this vital question by years of study and experience in medicine and surgery and nursing, in hygiene and sanitation.

"I commend them for their unselfish spirit in bringing the results of their years of effort to the study of this question, and I hope they may receive the universal sympathy and encouragement to which they are entitled."

GETTING SOO FISH HATCHERY READY

Superintendent Harry Marks is getting the old state fish hatchery at the rapids at the Soo ready for operation and it is expected that the fry will begin to arrive about the middle of January. This will be the last season the hatchery will be operated at its present location. It is expected that there will be no opposition in the legislature for an appropriation for the removal of the building to the site secured from the government at the northeast corner of Brady park, facing on St. Mary's river.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

(Special U. T. Service.)
Washington, Nov. 8.—The vigorous growth and progress of the country, as reflected by the records of the population and the harvests, and the general conditions of international peace are the things for which thanksgiving is especially due for the year 1910, according to the annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation issued by President Taft, Thursday, Nov. 24, is fixed as the date.

Can You Afford A Weak Link In the Life Chain?
If you are forced to admit that the Health Link is growing weaker, suppose you look carefully after the cause.
Your own well-being and comfort may suggest determined effort to correct.
Perhaps you will permit a suggestion basen upon some wide experience.
There is one particular thing, which directly attacks the health of one in every three of the users.
Its work is plain enough. Nerves, heart, stomach and other organs becoming more and more unbalanced, but the real cause is frequently unsuspected.
If you discover a stronger, better acting heart, steadier nerves and sounder sleep, it will be reasonably clear that your body is offering thanks for relief from the daily drug, caffeine—the base of coffee.
When this destructive drug is discontinued, Nature starts to repair the damage.

THE GILA MONSTER

By DAVID WALTER CHURCH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Little Inez Basqueto, a Mexican girl I saw while engineering in the southwest, was a merry child (if she had been born in the north she would have been a child; but, being a Mexican, she was a woman). She might have been anywhere from fourteen to sixteen. She played the guitar and sang with a little birdlike voice, jabbered Spanish musically, danced, and her face wore a perpetual smile, which was for every one. But if any person attempted to gey her she would knit her brows and shrink away as though terrified. And once her confidence was lost by a bit of banter her good will could never be regained.

There was a young engineer engaged on the same work as myself out there, at the time fresh from one of the "Tekk" schools of the northern states. He was twenty years old, handsome as a picture and as bright as a new brass button. What must be do but make love to Inez with all the recklessness of youth regardless of the consequences both to himself and her! I, who was older, saw his danger and warned him. I knew what was up, for in the evening when the day's work was over I would hear on the Basqueto veranda the twang of Inez's guitar, her little flute voice, her merry laughter mingled with sounds which I recognized as coming from Ben Eggleston, the young man who was sowing the wind to reap the whirlwind.

"You little fool," I would say to him, "don't you know that the girl is a mingling of child and woman—child in experience, woman in development; that she will fall in love with you and then—"

"I'll break it off at once," would be the young fellow's invariable reply. The boy fully intended to keep his resolution when it was made, but gave up trying to do so when it got cold. The next night I would hear the same pleasant sounds on the veranda and knew that they were breeding the same storm.

This went on till the work on that division was finished and we were about to move. Eggleston assured me there wouldn't be any trouble. The girl was such a child that he couldn't believe she had been attracted to him as she might have been if more of a woman. He was going away and would simply bid her goodby as he would any other girl of immature years whose companion he had been.

"My advice to you," I said, "is to do no such thing. Go without saying anything about your going."

He didn't take my advice. The day before leaving he told her in a careless way that the engineering party to which he belonged was going to move its headquarters.

"And I will not see you again?" said the girl, her smile vanishing.

"Perhaps not," replied Ben, not thinking it wise to leave her to look forward to meeting him again. "You'll grow up soon and get married. Then you won't want any young men friends like me."

In order the better to kill in her all expectation of getting any nearer to him he told her he had a girl in the north.

That evening I met Inez carrying a cudgel in one hand and a canvas bag in the other. She wore the same innocent look she had always worn, but I noticed a peculiar glitter in her eye. There was something incongruous in a little girl's carrying a bludgeon, and, naturally fearful for Ben Eggleston, I could not help vaguely connecting the act with the jilting he was giving her. She passed me without looking back, and, taking position behind a tree, I watched her.

She went along, looking about her on the ground as if searching for something. She spent half an hour in this way, I following her, taking a new position now and then where I would not be observed by her. Presently I saw her hit something with her weapon. Then she picked up what looked to me from a short distance like a baby alligator. She held it by the tail, dropped it into the bag, closed the mouth and went away.

I didn't know what it all meant; but, still timorous about Ben, I told him he had better not wait for the moving of the party, but get out at once. He laughed at me and said there was nothing to fear and if there were he wouldn't run from a little Mexican girl who had so freely given up her doll.

We engineers slept in a long temporary building one story high. That night I was startled by an unearthly yell. Springing out of bed, I ran along to a room where Eggleston and a roddman slept. The window was open, and Eggleston had just struck a light. His roommate was holding one leg and writhing with pain.

"Kill it!" he yelled.

Then I saw a little alligator looking thing on the floor.

"Kill it! It's the Gila monster and has bitten me. I'm gone up."

Inez's actions were explained. She had dropped the reptile in through the window on Ben, she supposed, but really on his roommate. For a week the poor devil howled in agony, then died.

That was years ago. Ben Eggleston has never married. The bare mention of a woman produces on him a temporary insanity.

NEW YORK EXPRESS STRIKE FELT HERE

The express drivers' strike in New York city is being felt locally, as most of the shipments to Escanaba are being held up in that city. The American Express company is receiving a few shipments from New York daily, but nothing like the usual amount of business. Many local merchants have been notified by New York shippers that goods cannot be forwarded for an indefinite period.

RUMMAGE SALE IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

The rummage sale which was conducted for five days last week and which was announced to close Saturday night, in reality did not close until Monday. When the October section of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church went down to the store at 602 Ludington street Monday morning to pack the stock preparatory to delivering the same, they found many customers about the store so that the sales for Monday paid the expenses of the entire enterprise. The remainder of the stock was given to the Salvation Army and will be distributed to the deserving poor of the city by Capt. F. E. Plumb.

The rummage sale was by far the most successful sale of its kind ever held in this city and especial credit is due for the success to Mrs. J. E. Byrns, chairman of the committee, who was the chief moving spirit of the entire undertaking and whose aggressiveness and enthusiasm was responsible for the phenomenal success of this sale. The society's treasury was reimbursed by a large sum by the work of the October section, to whom the president of the society has expressed her gratitude and appreciation.

HOMESTEADER DIES ALONE IN HIS CABIN

T. Duford, a single man about 45 years old, who lived alone on a homestead near Schaffer, was found dead in his cabin Sunday afternoon by relatives who went there to see how he was getting along. He had complained Thursday of feeling unwell, but declined to go home with his brother, Theodore Duford of Schaffer, and returned to his cabin alone. Friday evening he was visited by his nephews, but as nobody saw him about Saturday or Sunday some of his relatives went to the cabin and found him lying dead on the floor. He had probably died Friday night or Saturday. Coroner Dube of this city was notified and conducted an investigation, with the result that he came to the conclusion that Mr. Duford died from natural causes. The remains were buried this morning, the funeral being held from the Catholic church at Schaffer.

UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB MAY COME

The King's Sons' Society is Planning to Bring Crack University Musical Organization Here for Concert in Christmas Week—Interesting Meeting Held.

The King's Sons' society of the First Presbyterian church held a very interesting and enthusiastic meeting Monday night at the home of Willis J. Anthony, Jr., 414 South Wolcott street. Many items of business were discussed and plans were laid to bring one of the big university glee clubs here for Christmas week. Communication has not been received from the universities as yet, but the young men feel sure that they will be able to secure a Michigan, Wisconsin or Lawrence university glee club for that occasion.

It is reported that the Michigan Glee Club is to sing at Menominee during the holiday season. The alumnae of this city will be asked by the young men to use their influence in bringing the State University glee club to this city. If the young men succeed in their purpose, this will be the first time in the history of Escanaba that a university glee club has appeared here.

The party that is given by this society annually to the elderly ladies of the city will be given this year and the date will be about December 10. Full particulars will be given concerning this event in a subsequent issue of The Daily Mirror.

Two new members were elected last night to full membership in the society and the spirit of enthusiasm shown speaks well for future work of the organization. Scores of letters are received at each meeting by the young men conveying the appreciation and gratitude of those to whom they have given in times of need, sickness and bereavement. And the young men intend to make this year their best year so far, in the good work they have been carrying on.

A reunion of all the membership is contemplated for the vacation season and the honorary, associate and present active members of the society will be present at this meeting. The young men are looking forward to this occasion, too, with much interest. The meeting Monday night was the most productive of good of any held by that society this year. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. W. J. Anthony, and the enjoyable and profitable evening was brought to an end.

THE BIG DIPPER.

It is the Hour Hand of the Woodman's Celestial Clock.

The pole star is really the most important of the stars in our sky. It marks the north at all times. It alone is fixed in the heavens. All the other stars seem to swing around it once in twenty-four hours.

But the pole star of Polaris is not a very bright one, and it would be hard to identify but for the help of the so called pointers in the "Big Dipper," or "Great Bear." The outer rim of the dipper points nearly to Polaris at a distance equal to three times the space that separates the two stars of the dipper's outer side. Various Indians called the pole star the "Home Star" and the "Star That Never Moves," and the dipper they call the "Broken Back." The "Great Bear" is also to be remembered as the pointers for another reason. It is the hour hand of the woodman's clock. It goes once around the north star in about twenty-four hours, the reverse way of the hands of a watch—that is, it goes the same way as the sun—and for the same reason—that it is the earth that is going and leaving them behind.—Country Life in America.

A Blow Arrested. An organist who on the eve of a festival was taken suddenly ill secured a deputy to take his place. The deputy, on the authority of St. James' Budget, was a gentleman who played a very full organ, playing full chords where his principal played only single notes, and consequently using a much larger quantity of wind.

When about three parts through with the "Hallelujah Chorus" the wind suddenly gave out. Going round to the back of the organ to ascertain the reason, the deputy found the blower in the act of putting on his coat preparatory to going home.

"What do you mean by such behavior?" the deputy angrily expostulated. "Look here, sir," the blower returned with warmth. "If you think I don't know 'low many punfs it takes to blow the 'Hallelujah Chorus' you make a big mistake!"

Cookery Points

After using a gas stove for baking leave the oven open for a little while to allow the gas to escape. This will prevent sweating and rusting. If chops and small steaks are placed in tin plate plates and set on top of the broiling grate they can be well cooked, and the tin plates will be much easier cleaned than the broiler grate would be. Keep the range black by wringing out a sponge kept for the purpose in warm water and rubbing well with soap. Wash the stove while it is not warm. It can thus be kept black and free from grease spots.

Use the oven lighter for articles needing long, slow cooking—as, for example, tapioca and Indian puddings, bread, pies, etc. It will give a slow, even heat when used alone and burn much less gas.

Gas may be saved by remembering that matches are cheap and turning off the gas the moment you no longer need it—by turning off the gas a little before the cooking is done and finishing by the heat already generated.

When anything you have been cooking has been heated to the boiling point turn the blaze low enough to keep the heat just at that point.

Cream Dainty. One cupful of milk, two heaping tablespoonsful of sugar, a heaping tablespoonful of powered gelatin, a quarter pint of water, a teaspoonful lemon juice, a cupful whipping cream, three yolks of eggs, three ounces of preserved ginger, two tablespoonsful of ginger syrup. Put the gelatin into a saucepan with the water. Set in a warm place until dissolved. Beat up the yolks, add to them the sugar and milk, boiling; pour this back into a pitcher, stand the pitcher in boiling water and stir the custard until it coats the spoon; add to it the gelatin, lemon juice and ginger syrup. Whip up the cream until stiff, then add to it the custard. Allow this to stand until it is almost set. Then stir in the ginger cut in small pieces. Pour into a wet mold and put in a cool place until firm. Turn out and decorate with cut pieces of ginger.

Marshmallow Cream. One-fourth box gelatin, one-half cup cold water, one-half cup boiling water, whites of four eggs, one cup granulated sugar, one teaspoonful vanilla, one teaspoonful lemon extract. Soak gelatin in the cold water five minutes, add the boiling water and place over a teakettle until thoroughly dissolved. Cool, but do not chill. Stir the sugar in the dissolved gelatin, beat the white of the eggs very light and to the eggs add the gelatin and sugar, a few spoonfuls at a time, beating constantly. Divide in two parts and to one part add pink coloring and flavor with vanilla. To the white part add the lemon extract. Mold in layers, adding pecan nuts to the pink part and marshmallow cherries to the white part. May be served with or without whipped cream.

Coffee Blancmange. One cupful of milk, one cupful of strong, clear coffee, two ounces of cornstarch, two heaping tablespoonsful of sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, one heaping tablespoonful of butter. Put the coffee and half of the milk in a saucepan to heat. Mix the cornstarch smoothly with the remainder of the milk and add to it the hot liquid in the saucepan. Stir over the fire till boiling and boil slowly for eight minutes, stirring all the time. Add the sugar, butter, vanilla and mix well. Pour into a wet mold and turn out when cold.

Particularly Good French Dressing. Mix a half teaspoonful salt and the same amount of sugar in a bowl; add gradually, stirring all the time, one cupful olive oil. When salt and sugar are dissolved beat in half a gill of vinegar. Add four red chillies, eight green chillies and half an onion, all chopped very fine. Beat all together and add a tablespoonful minced parsley. Beat again and pour into a can. Let stand an hour before serving. When ready to serve shake in the jar or whip with an egg beater.

When Frying Bacon. In so many households bacon and eggs is the most popular breakfast dish that more than one housewife may be glad of a tip concerning the bacon's preparation. If the bacon is too salt (and it is, indeed, sometimes) place a little water in the pan in which you intend frying it. Let the water come to a boil, then pour the water off and cook the bacon in the usual manner. Not only does this method do away with the saltiness, but it renders the bacon more tender as well.

Deodorized Cabbage. A piece of stale bread, a small lump of soda or a piece of charcoal placed in the pot will lessen the disagreeable odor that arises when cooking cauliflower or cabbage.

An appetizing lettuce salad is made by arranging the leaves in a salad bowl, sprinkling with stuffed olives cut in slices and just before serving adding a mayonnaise dressing.

WILL DEDICATE CHURCH TONIGHT

Members of the Green Bay district of the Superior conference of the Swedish Lutheran church are holding the first sessions of a meeting at Perkins this afternoon and the meeting will be continued at Gladstone tomorrow. This meeting is similar to the one held in Escanaba several weeks ago and is being presided over by Rev. C. A. Lund of this city, president of the Superior conference. There will be one notable feature in addition, however. This is the dedication of the new Swedish Lutheran Bethany church at Perkins, which will be held this evening. Rev. C. J. Silvester of Gladstone will have charge of this church in addition to his pastorate at Gladstone. About half a dozen Swedish Lutheran ministers are in attendance at the meeting, which opened at Perkins this afternoon.

BUCKEYES AND CHESTNUTS.

The buckeye tree belongs to the horse chestnut family, although it is different from the stately horse chestnut that is planted along avenues and on lawns because of its beauty and abundant shade. Again, the leaves as well as the ripe nuts of the true buckeye are poisonous.

Then, again, the real buckeye is not found growing abundantly or in perfect fection outside of the valley of the Ohio river. In Ohio, particularly in the southern part, it is so common and grows so tall that the natives of the state are called "Buckeyes," and they are often very proud of themselves. Aesculus is the botanical name of the tree family to which the buckeye and horse chestnut belong. The different members of this family bear nuts similar to the buckeye. All are not poisonous, however. The nuts of the ornamental horse chestnut are ground and fed to horses and other farm animals in Europe and in the orient. This fine tree came from the orient—in the first place, from Persia and the countries adjacent. When horse chestnuts are ground into a powder this is found to contain a soapy substance strong enough to make a lather. It is therefore used in some countries to take the place of soap. In France starch is also made from the powdered horse chestnut. Now we come to the true chestnut. Its botanical name is Castanea vesca, and it grows as a forest tree in Europe, America, Asia and north Africa. The Japanese cultivate it as a food producing tree, and their chestnuts are far larger and better than ours, although the tree on which the nuts grow is not so large as the American tree. But the Japs, who have brought lower, fruit and nut culture much nearer perfection than western nations have done, sacrifice the tree to the nut.

Judge and Jury. The company should be seated in two lines facing each other, and one of the party should be elected to act as judge. Each person has to remember who is sitting exactly opposite, because when the judge asks a question of any one it is not the person directly asked who has to reply, but the person opposite to him. For instance, if the judge, speaking to one of the company, asks, "Do you like apples?" the person spoken to must remain silent, while the person who is opposite to him must reply before the judge can count ten or must, if he fails, pay a forfeit. A rule with regard to the answers is that the reply must not contain the words "yes," "no," "black," "white" or "gray." For the breaking of this rule a forfeit may also be claimed.

Big Girls and Dolls. Some girls that were coming to be big girls gave a farewell party for their dolls, and all agreed that the guests should be henceforth laid away in bureau drawers until the appearance of the next generation. All the girls agreed and wept into the ice cream and then went home and laid away their dolls to await the next generation. And next day each one of the girls was playing with her doll again. They could not wait for the next generation.—Chicago News.

Night Thoughts. Why does the wind its down at night When all the sky is red? Why does the moon begin to shine When I am put to bed, And all the little stars come out And twinkle overhead? I see the sun shine all the day, I gather daisies in my play, But, oh, I truly wish that I Could see the stars bloom in the sky! I'd love to see the moon shine down And silver all the roofs in town, But always off to sleep I go Just as the sun is getting low. I wish the moon would come and shine before I go to bed. I want to feel the wind awake When all the sky is red, And, oh, I want to see the stars Just blossom overhead. —Youth's Companion.

BATTLE FOLLOWS A BANK ROBBERY

(By Associated Press.)

Beattie, Kansas, Nov. 8.—Five masked men, who came to this place in an automobile, dynamited the safe of the State Bank this morning and got away with $3,500. There was a running fight between the robbers and the citizens and over a hundred shots were exchanged. Two of the robbers were wounded. A posse is still in pursuit.
