

BIG BOOST FOR LOCAL B. M. A.

Fifty-two New Members Added to Roll of Escanaba Business Men's Association—Important Matters Acted Upon at Meeting of the Directors.

At a special meeting of the officers and directors of the Escanaba Business Men's association, held Tuesday evening in the office of President J. E. Burns, an addition of fifty-two names was made to the membership roll of the association. That many applications for membership were presented and favorably acted upon and Secretary Matthews was instructed to notify the applicants of their election to membership.

This big boost in the numerical strength of the association is the result of the active campaign for new members inaugurated less than two weeks ago by President J. E. Burns and other members, and it will give to the association a far greater strength and influence in the accomplishment of the things which it may undertake. Among the new members are many of the city's most influential and enterprising business and professional men who have not heretofore been affiliated with the association.

For Water Transportation Service.

There were a number of important matters discussed and acted upon at Tuesday night's meeting. One of these concerned the securing of water transportation service to this port. As heretofore announced, the Goodrich Transportation company has withdrawn its boats from this route for this season and the result has been a vigorous protest from the people of the cities most greatly affected. These are Escanaba, Green Bay, Marinette and Menominee. Already the Business Men's associations of the three other cities named have taken up the matter of securing water transportation service from the Goodrich line and the Escanaba association decided Tuesday night to give them all the aid and cooperation possible in the efforts that will be made to get the Goodrich people to reconsider their action and again give the cities named the service it formerly did.

Order Trees For Arbor Day.

The matter of assisting in making the observance of Arbor day something more than a mere formality was discussed and it was decided to purchase 125 elm trees from the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's nursery and to sell these trees at cost to citizens who will set them out on Arbor day. It is understood that Mayor Lindsay will proclaim Arbor day a public holiday and call upon all the citizens of the city to observe it as it should be observed by the planting of trees and shrubs, etc.

It was decided to run an excursion to Washington Island on July 8 under the auspices of the association and Messrs. C. M. Thatcher, M. J. Ryan and J. J. Cleary were appointed a committee to charter the steamer Maywood for the occasion. Additional details regarding this excursion will be found in another column.

Upon motion, a committee of three was appointed to investigate methods and cost of lighting Ludington street, the present method not being considered satisfactory. The members of this committee are Herman Salinsky, Leslie French and M. J. Ryan.

Other Matters Acted Upon.

It was decided to suggest to the mayor and common council the desirability of having the names of streets placed at each corner in the city. This probably will be done through a communication to the council.

Frank H. Atkins presented his resignation as a director of the association. It was accepted and H. W. Reade was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Atkins' resignation. A vote of thanks was adopted and will be extended the Escanaba lodge of Elks for giving the association the use of its hall for the annual meeting on April 11 free of charge.

Bills were allowed and it was reported that the sum of $147 had been received in dues since the last report.

TROUT SEASON OPENS MONDAY

Local Sportsmen are Talking Inventory in Preparation for the Season's Fishing—Streams May Be too High for Best Results—Dealers Display Fishing Tackle.

The trout season in Michigan will open next Monday, May 1, and all ardent fishermen are now taking an inventory of their fishing paraphernalia in order that nothing may be found wanting on the opening day, or as soon thereafter as it may be possible to take to the purling streams. There being a good deal of snow left in the woods, it is thought by many that the streams will be too high for the best fishing. Fishing tackle is now occupying a prominent place in many of the store windows and the public is buying to some extent, according to the merchants. It is thought that the telescope steel rods will be more popular than ever before this year, as the prices have been cut considerably and they are well liked by those who have tried them.

Another new thing in fishing tackle, in which a number of local fishermen have expressed considerable interest, is a barbless hook, samples of which were received some time ago. It is claimed for this hook that it will not tear a fish's mouth as does the ordinary hook, and that any undersized fish caught with this hook can be thrown back without fear of their dying because of having been hooked. These hooks have not yet found their way into local stores, though several of the merchants expect to put in a stock of them before the season is far advanced.

EXCURSION TO BE GIVEN BY B. M. A.

Proposition to Charter Steamer United States for Excursion June 15 is Rejected, But Steamer Maywood Will Be Engaged for Trip to Washington Island July 8.

After carefully considering the matter, the officers and directors of the Escanaba Business Men's association on Tuesday evening decided to reject the proposition submitted to it for chartering the Indiana Transportation company's big steamer, United States, for an excursion from Escanaba to Menominee and Marinette on June 15. Reasons advanced against the proposition were sufficient to influence the representatives of the Business Men's association into believing that it would not be best to accept it, particularly as it is generally understood that the United States will carry an excursion out of her own on that date in any event.

It was thought, however, that the excursion idea was worthy of adoption and it was finally decided to give an excursion to Washington Island on Saturday, July 8, on the steamer Maywood, if that craft can be chartered for the purpose on that day.

President J. E. Burns appointed a committee of three to charter the Maywood and to make all other necessary arrangements for the excursion, which undoubtedly will be patronized by as many persons as the Maywood can accommodate under her passenger license. Washington Island is a favorite outing resort with Escanaba people and many of them never lose an opportunity of going there.

More definite details regarding this proposed excursion will be given as they develop and take concrete form.

SPECIAL ELECTIONS IN TWO TOWNSHIPS

Garden township is to have a special election on May 15 to determine the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $10,000 for the purpose of erecting a new high school building in the village of Garden. The election is to be held in the village hall at Garden, and the polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. Ford River township is also to hold a special election. It will be held on May 13 and is for the purpose of deciding whether the township shall issue $3,000 bonds for the purpose of improving and macadamizing one mile of what is known as the Bay Shore road.

LONG ILLNESS IS ENDED BY DEATH

Following an illness of several months, Mrs. Frank Pariseau died at the Cottage hospital about 11:20 o'clock Tuesday night and the remains were removed later to the Pariseau family home at 417 Thomas street. Mrs. Pariseau was 59 years old and is survived by her husband and three daughters—Mrs. Joseph White and Mrs. Louise Bourgeon of this city and Mrs. Octave Perry of Manistique. The funeral will be held at nine o'clock Friday morning from St. Ann's church, Rev. Father Menard conducting the services, and interment will be made in St. Ann's cemetery.

Charles Smith was arrested at Wells this morning by Sheriff Curran on a warrant charging him with the larceny of a watch, razor and a number of other articles of value from Joseph Vanderville, his former room mate. Smith is now in the county jail waiting for his arraignment.

Frank Fabiano was arrested at North Escanaba this morning and brought into Justice Linden's court to answer to a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Adam Zebotzka, a night watchman. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5 and costs.

An artery was severed and Bovine was very faint from the loss of blood by the time that he was taken to the office of the company's surgeon. The artery was located by the surgeon and the cut dressed, after which the man was taken to his home.

ARRIVED IN THIS CITY 46 YEARS AGO

Henry McFall Celebrates the Forty-sixth Anniversary of His Arrival in Escanaba, Which Place Has Been His Home Ever Since—One of the City's Oldest Residents.

Henry McFall, one of the oldest and best known residents of Escanaba, is today celebrating the 46th anniversary of his arrival in this city, although at that time the place was better known as Sand Point.

On April 26, 1865, Mr. McFall landed on the dock here from the steamer Saginaw, coming from Green Bay, and here he has made his home ever since.

At that time Sand Point, now Escanaba, was but a hamlet whose population perhaps did not exceed 150 persons. All about the little place on the bay shore stretched the virgin forests or stumps. There was but one store at that time, but it was sufficient to supply the wants of the people. This store was conducted by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company, whose line south from Escanaba to Green Bay has not yet been built. The line between here and Neenah was in operation, however, and the depot here was located about where the Merchants' dock now is. Travel from Green Bay and points south or between that city and Escanaba was done by water, boats plying to this port at more or less regular intervals.

Mr. McFall has made his home here since he came 46 years ago and has seen the backwoods hamlet grow into the modern and progressive city Escanaba is today—the metropolis of the upper peninsula. Today Mr. McFall took pleasure in recalling many of the scenes and incidents of those early days. Time has dealt kindly with him and for a man of his advanced age he is still vigorous and filled with the spirit of his younger manhood.

W. VERNON BOOTH GETS $2,000 FINE

Upon his plea of nolle contendere, W. Vernon Booth, formerly president of A. Booth & Co., the "fish trust," on Tuesday was fined $2,000 by Judge Kavanaugh in Chicago. Booth, who is quite well known in Escanaba, was charged with conspiracy to defraud the Continental National bank of Chicago of $300,000. A similar charge against Frederick R. Robbins, formerly secretary and treasurer of the same company, was nolle prossed. The charge against Booth and Robbins grew out of the bankruptcy proceedings against A. Booth & Co. It was charged that Booth had borrowed $400,000, representing that his firm had certain assets which later, it was charged, were not assets.

SOON TO OPEN BIDS FOR BUILDING DAM

Late this afternoon or tomorrow bids will be opened for the construction of the dam which the Escanaba Traction company is planning to have built across the Escanaba river about half a mile above Groos. Several bids have been received, among them being some from outside contractors, and it is probable that the figures submitted will be close. The Traction company has reserved the right to reject any and all bids if it finds it in its discretion so to do.

FIGHTING HARD IN DAVIS CASE

Action Now on Trial in Circuit Court is Developing Into a Battle Royal Between the Attorneys—Every Point is Closely Contested—Taking Testimony.

Slow progress is being made in the trial of the case of F. D. Davis vs. the Public Schools of the City of Escanaba, as it is entitled. In reality the case is against the Escanaba board of education, which Mr. Davis, former superintendent of schools, is suing for the payment of several months' salary, which he claims to be due him under an alleged three years' contract and which contract was annulled by the board, which at the same time dispensed with Mr. Davis' services and later engaged his successor.

As noted yesterday, a jury to try the case was secured only after considerable difficulty, a new panel of jurors being found necessary. The jurors finally accepted and who are now trying the case are: George Pease, James McDonald, S. G. Nelson, Charles Hicks, Charles Arnold, Robert Craig, Charles Corcoran, Robert Cavill, Stephen Garnowski, William Rogers, Daniel Call and Albert Gaufrin. All but two of them are from Gladstone. Mr. Nelson is an Escanaba man and Mr. Arnold is from Fayette.

The Opening Statements.

Tuesday afternoon Attorney M. J. Doyle of Menominee, who with Attorney John Cumiskey is representing Mr. Davis, made the plaintiff's opening statement in the case and Attorney N. C. Spencer presented the opening statement for the defendant. Attorney John Power is also representing the defendant. The attorneys gave at some length a review of the circumstances leading up to the litigation from their respective standpoints and outlined what they expected to show on the trial of the case.

Following the opening statements Mr. Davis was called as a witness for the plaintiff. After a brief examination by Mr. Doyle he was turned over to the defense for cross-examination. Mr. Power conducted this, but had not proceeded far before objections were made by the plaintiff's attorneys and these were argued at length, the jurors being excluded from the court room in the meantime. Judge Flannigan finally ruled in favor of the defendant and the evidence it desired was admitted.

Hard Fighting All Along.

An adjournment of court was then taken until this morning. Today the trial of the case was marked all the way through by hard fighting for every point by the attorneys and comparatively little testimony was taken. This morning Mr. Davis was again on the stand and a member of the Ypsilanti Normal school faculty was also examined. The testimony of the latter tended to show that it was quite impossible for Mr. Davis to secure another position as a school superintendent after he had been deposed from his position here.

Dr. W. A. LeMire, secretary of the board of education, was on the stand this afternoon and closely questioned by the plaintiff's attorneys regarding the statements which Mr. Davis is claimed by the defendant to have made at the meeting at which the contract was rescinded and Mr. Davis dismissed. Dr. LeMire was also questioned at length about the entire proceedings of that meeting insofar as they related to the Davis matter.

CARUSO TO MAKE HIM OPERA STAR

Brother-in-law of Edgar G. Zane, Formerly of This City, is Made the Protege of Celebrated Tenor—He is Circus Clown, but May Develop into Operatic Star.

According to a New York dispatch, "on the eve of his departure for Europe, Enrique Caruso, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, has discovered a voice that he declares is remarkable and which he says he will take pains to hear on his return to the United States. The owner of the voice is Roy La Pearl, an acrobat with the Barnum & Bailey circus, who never had a singing lesson in his life. He is only 23 years old and began singing in the circus only three weeks ago. Caruso heard him and was struck by the simple beauty of the song and the clear voice of the singer."

Local interest in the foregoing lies in the fact that Roy La Pearl is the brother-in-law of Edgar Zane, formerly of this city, and, according to the Waukegan, (Ill.) Daily Sun, he is a son of Mrs. Nellie La Pearl, 3611 Sheffield avenue, Chicago, whose husband, James H. La Pearl, used to be famous both as an acrobat and circus proprietor. The Waukegan paper goes on to say:

"The mother and sister, Mrs. Ruby Zane, the latter at present singing in Chicago, but who two years ago was the singer at the Barrison theater when it was located on Sheridan road, expect word today from Roy, telling of his success with Caruso. Harry, another son, is head clown at the Barnum & Bailey circus.

"There is not a happier mother in Chicago than Mrs. La Pearl, according to her way of thinking. She has been manager and advisor to her son all his life and he is now 23 years old."

The following item from the "netto Eagle-Star" will be read with pleasure by the many Escanaba friends of the young woman mentioned: "Miss Bessie McNellis, who has been critically ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. McNellis, Elizabeth avenue, is steadily improving and is now able to sit up a portion of each day."

SCHOOL FRATERNITY BILL NOT YET VETOED

Lansing, Mich., April 26.—Governor Osborn has not vetoed the bill prohibiting high school fraternities and sororities and has not definitely decided what action he will take in the matter. He has been listening to arguments pro and con on the bill, but has not reached a decision. One of the strongest points raised against the bill, in his estimation, is that it will fail in its purpose and simply result in driving the fraternity from the control of the school authorities. On the other hand the arguments of those declaring that fraternities and sororities exercise an exceedingly bad influence in schools incline the governor to allow a trial of the law to ascertain what results can be obtained.

STR. EUGENE HART TO BE OVERHAULED

The steamer Eugene C. Hart, bought from the Green Bay Transportation company, by the Arnold Transit company of Mackinac last week, has been taken to Manistee, Mich., to be repaired and put in shape for the season. The work will be done by the Manistee Iron Works company.

It is the intention of the new owners to have about three weeks spent in fitting out the boat for the passenger business on Green Bay between Green Bay and Cheboygan, Mich. The Arnold company will secure another boat to take the place of the Eugene while she is being fitted out and that boat if gotten, will be placed on the run next week. In that event the company may decide to further improve the Eugene Hart, and she may not be put in service until after May 20.

FIFTEEN DAYS' FAST KILLS TORONTO MAN

NORSEMEN WILL CELEBRATE DAY

What the Fourth of July is to Americans will be celebrated May 17 by residents of this country who came here from Norway. It was on May 17, 1814, that the citizens of Norway met at Bidsvold and established a declaration of independence, declaring themselves free from the tyrannical rule waged over them by Denmark.

Denmark and Norway were united for a period of 400 years, but becoming dissatisfied with the manner in which they were ruled, Norway took the same action as did our American forefathers. The only difference was, the Americans established a government with a president at its head, while Norway has a king.

This date is observed by Norwegians all over the country, and has been held as a great day in Escanaba. It is understood that arrangements are already being made for a proper celebration of the day by the Norwegian residents of this city.

FALLS DEAD ON BRINK OF AN OPEN GRAVE

PASTOR WEDS COUPLE AND THEN COLLAPSES

Belleue, Mich., April 26.—Rather than force a postponement of a marriage, Rev. B. E. Reams, less than 24 hours after having suffered an attack of congestion of the brain, arose from bed and pronounced the words which united two anxious young people. Hardly had the service been completed when the clergyman collapsed and had to be carried to bed, where it is announced, he will be confined for some time.

AN ENRAGED BEAR INJURES HUNTERS

Knife River, Minn., April 26.—George Blackman, an employe of the lumber camps of the Alger-Smith Lumber company, is expected to die and a companion is in the hospital as a result of treading on the privacy of a bear in the deep woods of the northern Minnesota pineries. The bear met by the men in passing through the woods of the northern Minnesota pineries. The bear met by the men in passing through the woods showed fight, at which Blackman showed got out his knife and wounded the bear. Enraged the bear made after the men and succeeded in inflicting serious wounds. Blackman was hurt in such a serious manner than fears are entertained for his recovery.

DIRECTORY MAN FINDS WOMAN 106 YEARS OLD

Manitowoc, Wis., April 26.—Solicitor for a new city and county directory in this city has enlisted a woman 106 years old, probably the oldest woman in Wisconsin.

The woman is Mrs. Kate Hudzinska, an inmate of St. Mary's hospital for the aged, and despite her years she is said to be in perfect health, but for the feebleness which comes from age.

Mrs. Hudzinska is a native of Poland and resided in this country since a girl. A year ago this spring she assisted in making garden and in the work in the kitchen at her own request and today takes an interest in the news of the day.

She is the oldest known resident of the country. It is said Mrs. Hudzinska has never had her photograph taken.

"ARMY OF UNWASHED" TO HAVE NEWSPAPER

St. Louis, April 26.—James Eads How, millionaire hobo, has announced the name of the proposed weekly mouthpiece of the "great army of the unwashed." It is to be "The Hobo News." The first publication will be May 1.

Instead of asking at the back doors for a handout of edibles, the wayfarer will knock boldly at the front portal of each rustic manor and offer the last edition of the Hobo News.

Every member of the Welfare association is an authorized subscription agent. A nickel will be asked for it, and there will be strong literary features.

How has announced that his contributing staff will include Jack London, Ellis O. James, George Allen England, Pablo Iglesias and Eugene V. Debs. Editor J. H. Seymour; hobo poet, said:

"We will try to worry along for a time without a sport department, and the news of the stock and bond market will not require much space for the present.

"We shall attempt to run as complete a system of bulletins as possible, showing the location of railroad camps and the number of men needed on big construction jobs; also, the temper of the particular locality as regards the forage question."

THERE'S NO CURE FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Washington, April 26.—"The control of infantile paralysis today must be by prevention, since no specific remedy or cure for it is known," said Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research before the National Academy of Sciences. The determined effort by many states to deal with the epidemic through prevention by requiring notification and quarantine was commended by Dr. Flexner. Pointing out that 20,000 cases had occurred since its appearance in epidemic form in the United States, Dr. Flexner said from 10,000 to 15,000 cripples had been left by the disease. No more convincing or expensive example of the value of the employment of animals in the elucidation of a serious and baffling disease could be cited, he said than the experiments from which accurate knowledge of infantile paralysis has been obtained.

DEADLOCK HELPS "DRYS" AT DETOUR

The village of Detour, at the mouth of St. Mary's river, is again on the map. A year ago the village elected a dry council and no saloons were allowed. This spring the wets elected a majority of the board of trustees, that body standing three and three with a "wet" president. Now the "drys" refuse to attend council meetings, and lacking a quorum, no licenses can be granted. Both sides have retained counsel, and the matter is to be carried into courts.

NATIONAL LEAGUE. Chicago, 5; Cincinnati, 4. Cincinnati, April 26.—A triple and a single in the eighth, with a man on base, allowed Chicago to score barely enough runs to win from Cincinnati yesterday. Chicago knocked Fromme out of the box in the first. Keefe was taken out in the seventh, while Burns, who finished the game, was hit hard. Foxen pitched well until the eighth, while Brown, who finished up, was not very effective. Cincinnati 0000001111-4 9 1. Chicago 200010020-5 9 1. Brooklyn, 4; Philadelphia, 3. Brooklyn, April 26.—Brooklyn broke its losing streak yesterday and at the same time stopped the winning career of the Philadelphia by taking a hotly contested game. OSBORN SLASHING APPROPRIATIONS

Last Days of Session Witness Passage of Many Bills.

SENATE WILL NOT TRY RUSSELL

Total Number of Measures Introduced in Both Houses During the Term Was 1,055—Legislation Will Assemble May 2 For Final Adjournment—Special Session Unlikely.

(Special Correspondence). Lansing, April 26.—Although the smoke of battle has cleared away and members of the legislature returned home after the shortest session for the past thirty-four years, it is too early to pass judgment upon the merits of the action of the legislature, as during the closing hours hundreds of bills were passed by the senate and house with amendments a la h. t. e. meaning of which very few except the members interested can understand. Those legislators, however, who introduced bills with hidden "jokers" or for the special benefit of certain interests may be sorely disappointed, because Governor Osborn gives every bill his closest attention and in many instances obtains the advice of the attorney general upon subjects referred to in an act that looks doubtful to him, and it is a safe guess that a number of acts will be vetoed by the governor.

Slashing Appropriations. Out of the twenty appropriation bills passed, Governor Osborn has up to this time vetoed items aggregating about $300,000. Some of the appropriation acts are not even printed, but judging from the fact that the senate during the last day of the session in-crossed the appropriations approximately $500,000 over the figures set by the house, it looks certain that Governor Osborn will at least reduce these appropriations to the mark fixed by the house, and perhaps less. Judging from all indications, Governor Osborn will make a slash all the way between $750,000 to $1,000,000 of the appropriations as passed by the legislature.

He believes that the condition of the state treasury demands the strictest economy. In order to place the state treasury on a basis so that all legitimate demands can be complied with, the governor has insisted that sufficient appropriations were made to wipe out the existing deficit and leave a working fund of $100,000 in the state treasury.

Under these conditions the governor believes it would be an injustice to the taxpayers of the state to put upon them an additional burden of $1,000,000 for the purpose of making certain improvements at the several state institutions. Before he was elected governor, he pledged himself to a thorough house cleaning wherever needed and the strictest economy in all departments. He is convinced now more than ever that there is plenty of opportunity to redeem his pledge to the people, and for this reason bills carrying special appropriations for new buildings at institutions which can get along without these improvements for the next two years will be vetoed.

While the chopping off of some of the items concerning certain state institutions may cause some displeasure among persons interested, the state as a whole will be benefited by such action. The budget of 1911-12 is the first within the past eighteen years which will not show an increase over the previous budget.

Governor Osborn is not content to popular approval or political favor, and for this reason the many protests and objections raised by persons interested in the appropriation bills prove of no avail.

Many Bills Introduced. The total number of bills introduced in both houses during the session was 1,055. Of this total, 627 were introduced in the house and 428 in the senate. The total number of bills passed and sent to the governor for his signature was 357.

Among the bills passed were a number increasing salaries of circuit court stenographers in various judicial districts. Only one of these received the signature of the governor, a bill introduced by Senator Collins to increase salary of the stenographer of the Bay county circuit. The governor believes these bills are of a local character and that, according to the new constitution, the legislature has no right to pass such bills without attaching a referendum to the act.

Many Important Laws Enacted. A great number of measures favored by the governor fell by the wayside, yet it is only just to say that the legislature passed a number of acts that will prove of great benefit to the state. The Fowler bill repealing the mortgage tax law and substituting a registration fee of 50 cents for every $100 mentioned in the mortgage is of great importance. This fee is final and takes place of all taxes against mortgages. Persons who are familiar with the operation of this act believe that the yearly income of the state from this source will come pretty close to $800,000.

The bill introduced by Representative Fred Woodworth of Huron county is another bit of legislation which will have far-reaching results. This act repeals the special charter under which the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee railroad operates and which enabled this railroad to escape its share of taxation, paying into the state treasury the same amount as the road did fifty years ago, when first constructed.

The Lord bill providing for a commission of inquiry to investigate the efficiency of the present system of taxation will be of great importance and enable the tax commission to secure better equalization and the placing of more taxable property upon the tax roll.

The Miller bill, guaranteeing officers of trusts immunity for testimony given as state witnesses, will enable the attorney general to more successfully enforce the anti-trust law.

The Symonds bill compelling upper peninsula railroads to carry passengers at the same rate charged by the railroads in the lower peninsula will prove a great boon to the people of the northern part of the state and aid in the settlement of vast agricultural lands in the upper peninsula.

The city home rule bill authorizing the use of the initiative, referendum and recall and providing for a complete revision of its charters without a complete revision is of great interest to the larger cities in the state.

Responsibility for killing a large number of the measures suggested in Governor Osborn's message rests with the senate. On the whole, the house was more responsive and in closer touch with the governor than were the senators.

Although there is no organization of the administration forces in either house or senate, a number of strong men developed during the course of the session in both branches. These men, however, were not always on the administrative side.

Representative Lord of Wayne will probably have the distinction of being the member who succeeded in passing the largest number of bills.

Booms Sprouted. Friends of Gilbert A. Currie, second termor from Midland, have instituted a boom for him as a candidate for speaker of the next house. Currie has made a good record and is in good position to land the plum, as Speaker Baker has developed some aspirant towards becoming auditor general.

Many booms for state offices developed during the last week of the session.

Speaker Baker Dismisses Force. Contrary to time-honored tradition, Speaker Baker served formal notice of dismissal to all employees of the house, thus cutting off the pay roll of the legislature immediately after adjournment. It has been the custom of the legislature for years past to pay all employees from the time of temporary adjournment to the time of final adjournment.

Will Not Try Russell. Since the senate refused to entertain the impeachment charges brought by the house against Warden Russell of Marquette prison, there will be nothing to detain the senate after May 2. Senators still hold the opinion that Warden Russell is not a civil officer under the meaning of the constitution; that he is the chief guard or keeper of the prison and ranks in the same category as other employees of the prison under control and direction of the prison board. Failure of the house to include members of the prison board in the impeachment gave the senators opportunity to reject the impeachment charges. The senate is judge and jury in such cases and the Russell affair in all probability will end with this action of the senate.

May Not Call Extra Session. Unless some unforeseen situation arises, it is not probable that the legislature will be called in special session. Should congress pass the re-apportionment act, then the governor may call a session of the legislature next winter.

In Conclusion. The legislative work of the session is finished. When the house and senate reassemble May 2, the journals of the proceedings April 26 will be read for approval, the governor's vetoes not already transmitted will be received, the usual routine details at closing will be followed, and the session of 1911 thereupon will adjourn sine die.

During the interval between temporary and final adjournment the chief clerks of the house and senate, and their respective forces, will be as busy as bees to have everything ready for the last day. MAX SOCHA.

GOLD CERTIFICATES MAY CLOSE SOME MINTS

Washington, April 26.—Whether the government will close or abolish some of its mints is an acute problem before the treasury officials. Secretary MacVeagh is ready to instruct the assay offices and mints to begin issuing gold certificates against gold bullion and foreign gold coins. As soon as this begins the coining of gold will practically stop.

Nothing but smaller silver coins and pennies known in treasury parlance as minor and subsidiary coin will be coined hereafter unless there is unusual demand for gold coins, and it is estimated that the mints at San Francisco and Philadelphia running on small time will fill all the treasury's needs. A saving of several hundred thousand dollars will be effected by the change.

LOSES EVERYTHING IN ONE SHORT YEAR

Wife and Six Children of Chicago Man Die—Home and Property Also Gone—Now Homeless, Wifeless, Childless and Without Money or Friends—Sad Story.

Chicago, April 26.—One year ago George J. Winter was a well to do business man, with a home, a wife and a family of five children.

Today he is homeless, wifeless, childless, without money and without friends, wandering the streets of Chicago in search of work.

Since April 13, 1910, he has seen the six members of his household die, one by one—first four children, then the wife, then the other child. Now he stands ready to try another round with life—if someone will act as his second.

Thirteen years ago Winter left the German army and came with his wife, Elizabeth, to America. He stopped in New York and became a skilled mechanic, then a chauffeur, then lessee and driver of his own car. His wife worked at dressmaking and he saved his own money until they accumulated property worth $5,000.

Then began the chain of sorrows and deaths. Between April 13 and April 23, 1910, three of his children died of pneumonia.

A month later the apartment house in which he had invested his savings burned. He had allowed the insurance to lapse and saved nothing. But he still had his wife and two children. For their support he yet had his motor car and his trained hands.

Then his wife was taken sick. Two operations were performed without avail. He mortgaged his car. Discouraged, heart sick and hopeless, the young father spent his days between the hospital and the cemetery. He allowed the motor car to remain idle.

Walter, the eldest boy, was run over by a street car on February 13, 1911.

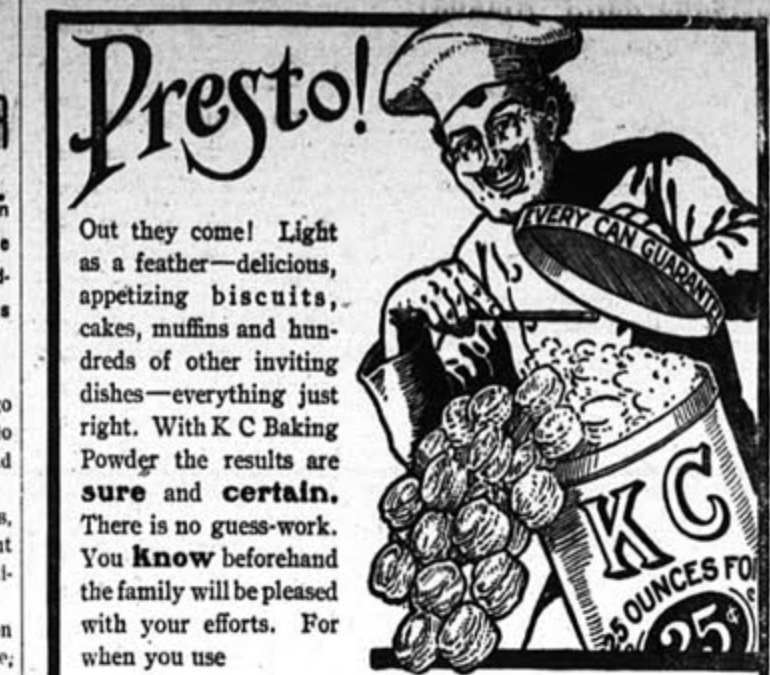

February 24th the mother died during another operation, and three days later came the death of the last of his children of tuberculosis.

PARIS STILL RANKS AS THE THIRD CITY

Paris, April 26.—Paris retains its position as the third largest city in the world, the census taken last month showing a population of 2,846,986.

The present census shows an increase of 124,255 over the figures of 1906.

The French census as a whole has shown a drift of population from the country to the cities.

BLAMES THE TICKET AGENT FOR HIS WOES

Des Moines, Iowa, April 26.—Blaming his indictment on a ticket agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway, at Sidney, Neb., W. W. Maloney, has filed notice of suit against the road in which he asks for damages of $1,500 for his alleged false arrest.

Maloney alleges in his petition that while he and his family were living at Sheridan, Wyo., he was unable to find work. He declares that he started to find a job and finally landed at Sidney, Neb. From that place he forwarded the transportation to his family, he declares, to be forwarded to his family at Sheridan. This the agent failed to do, he says.

In the meantime, Maloney's family had become destitute and a warrant was issued for his arrest on the charge of desertion. He asks damages for this, declaring that if the agent had sent the transportation his family would not have been in need.

IT WON'T HURT HIM.

According to the Washington correspondent of the Grand Rapids Herald, the American Protective league, the national body of the highly protected interests, which has been very active against reciprocity with Canada from the time the president first revealed the plan to the country, was through its agents, particularly pernicious on the eve of taking the vote in the house, and threatened Republicans who had announced an intention to vote for the bill with vengeance, if they persisted in that course, says the Marquette Mining Journal.

Among the members who are said to have received this attention from the American Protective league were Representatives Loud and Young, of the Michigan delegation. "Yes, I heard from them," Mr. Young is quoted as saying. "The word to me came by telegraph, and purported to come from Pontiac, Mich. It said there was a petition signed up home by 2,700 Republican voters protesting against my pro-reciprocity stand and declaring that I should be opposed by all the signers if I did not vote against the measure. The telegram stated that the time was too short for the petition to reach me before the vote was taken. What am I going to do about it. I am going to vote as I said I would, for reciprocity. If I were not already decided this attempt to intimidate would decide me."

There may or there may not be in existence a petition signed by 2,700 voters of Mr. Young's district protesting against his stand in regard to reciprocity with Canada, but whether there is or there isn't The Mining Journal feels certain that Mr. Young's vote for the president's program will do him no harm in the Twelfth district, where the reciprocity agreement appears to be distinctly popular. Nearly every newspaper that has declared itself on the subject has declared in favor of reciprocity, and such expressions as there have been against the agreement have come from the grangers, at the suggestion of the farming interests below the straits.

The prevailing upper peninsula sentiment, as far as The Mining Journal has been able to observe it, holds that in framing the agreement President Taft embarked on a broad and statesmanlike piece of work that is bound to operate both to the advantage of his country and his party, and that his hands should be upheld. Representative Young's vote on Canadian reciprocity will not embarrass him when he seeks renomination. It is doubtful whether any one of his opponents will hold it up against him before the vote.

ers. More likely they will sympathize with it. Their attack will be on other lines, no doubt.

A HINT TO THIS NATION. A bill has been introduced in the English parliament to require aliens to give bond for their good behavior for five years, at the end of which time they are to be released from their surety if they have not violated their agreement to preserve the peace. Aliens who are convicted in the interim of infractions of the law are to be deported, and on returning to the country within the five-year limit after being excluded are to be punished with imprisonment. The bill is the proposed legislative solution of the problem, becoming more and more vexing, of alien criminality.

If such a law is needed in England it is needed much more in this country, on account of the greater and more widely diversified immigration, says the Oshkosh Northwestern. The underlying principle is founded on the justice of self-preservation and is one which must in some form or other be applied to such problems wherever they exist. In this country only the most perfunctory restrictions are involved in the immigration laws and deportations are not frequent. The possession of a few dollars as hostages against papperism, immunity from the more virulent infectious diseases and cursory guarantees of good character, are such mild precautions that the conditions which exist at the present time, when most of the disturbances in the industrial fields are caused by aliens, when the "Black Hand" flourishes with a prosperity which rivals that of the Camorra on its native heath, and when the greater proportion of the money expended for police protection in the big cities is necessitated by the presence of huge unassimilated bodies of foreigners, are not only perfectly logical but may be expected to grow steadily worse.

DESTROYING ARBUTUS.

The prettiest, most fragrant, as well as the earliest of our wild flowers, are beginning to make their appearance, and in a short time large numbers of our people will be spending hours in the woods gathering trailing arbutus.

As is well known, no flower is more popular than is this sweet little early visitor, coming up to greet us and beautify the world, as soon as the snow leaves the ground, but we think a word of caution against carelessly destroying them, by pulling them up by the roots would not be amiss.

Most people instead of cutting the sprays, as should be done, will tag away at the little plants and pull them up root and all, and for the sake of securing a few blossoms, will needlessly destroy a whole plant.

This should not be, for if we think much of these earliest floral visitors, we should think enough of them to take care that they are not exterminated in this ruthless manner, as they are becoming more scarce every year.

Places in the vicinity of Escanaba where there were virtually acres of the plants a few years since, have not a plant left, and it is all owing to carelessness or greed in handling the tender little plants. Let's all agree to take better care of them this year so that we and others may long enjoy their fragrance and their beauty.

No man should have a statue until he has been dead 75 years, says ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts. It would save the sculptors embarrassment to have no one living that knew how their subject looked.

The steel trust officials are going to see if its employees are overworked, but no one takes any pity on the poor government clerks who sometimes miss afternoon tea.

A poker playing girl at Chicago fell dead on drawing a royal flush. This did not happen in the good old days when the young people played authors.

In view of the way the supreme court makes over our laws, is congress degenerating into a kind of a nominating committee?

It used to be mighty convenient for the Douglas, Ariz., people to step over the line when a policeman came along, but now they have to pay for it.

Now that the postoffices are being closed Sunday, some men will have to hunt around and find something other than business to worry about that day.

THE KNIGHT OF THE SILVER STAR

Copyright, 1907, by R. F. Fenno & Co.

CHAPTER III. WE had not gone fifty yards when a score of men, similarly accoutered to my companions, rushed upon us. The struggle was short and sharp. I was unable to make any kind of resistance and was dragged from my horse and my hands tied securely behind me. O'Ryan and his men fought desperately, and for a few minutes the clash of steel woke the echoes of the wood. But numbers told. O'Ryan was knocked out of his saddle and was bound as I was, and three of his men were also taken prisoners. Six men lay dead, two of ours and four of the enemy, bearing terrible witness to the fact that the fight had been no child's play. It was my first experience of medieval warfare, but it was not destined to be my last.

"With luck we may get to heaven," O'Ryan whispered to me, "but I don't think we'll ever get to Yadasara. Prisoners of war get badly handled. We'd be better off lying with those poor devils yonder." "Surrounded on every side by mountains, twilight is of short duration in Drussenland. It was dark long before we came to our journey's end, and in spite of O'Ryan's gloomy forebodings I was not sorry to reach the rebel headquarters. The rebel camp, which was set around a good sized town, called Meera, I learned later, lay between two spurs of the hills, and we came upon it suddenly. O'Ryan and I were taken into a barrack yard full of armed men and after our hands had been untied were locked in a dungeon. We were in absolute darkness and for some moments stood quite still and were silent. Then O'Ryan growled out a long string of oaths, which must have given him considerable trouble to collect, and ended by consigning himself to perdition for leaving his flask in his saddlebag.

A flood of daylight pouring into the darkness through the open doorway awoke me and almost blinded me too. I rose to my feet, but the two soldiers who entered had not come for me. They shook O'Ryan, who, after a few sleep grunts, stood up, very wide awake indeed. "Wanted so soon?" he said. "One of the soldiers answered in the affirmative. "Good! Far better than long waiting," he said, and he shook hands with me.

The next moment he was gone. The door closed and was locked again, and I was alone. Perhaps an hour elapsed before the door opened again. A soldier entered and placed on the floor some food and a flagon of wine. I thanked him, and he saluted me. He waited until I had eaten some of the food and drunk the wine, with what relish I leave to the imagination, and then requested me to follow him. Outside a small guard received me, and I was taken across the barrack yard, which was full of life and bustle, to a building on the opposite side. It must have been about noon when a body of warriors more imposing than any I had yet seen marched into the yard. The officer came to me. "The princess holds council, and I am commanded to bring you before her," he said. I inclined my head. My journey to the council hall was through the streets, and many people, chiefly women and old men, had gathered to see me pass. We turned into a courtyard surrounded on three sides by massive stone buildings and, marching straight across, halted for a moment before gates which opened into a great hall. At each end of the building was a huge round window, but the lighting was insufficient, and the place was gloomy. The floor was of stone flags, worn a good deal, and indeed the whole edifice looked old. I know little of architecture, but although the style was common in Drussenland I have seen nothing like it elsewhere. Seated in the center of the hall on a platform was a woman surrounded by knights who were clad in steel—a goodly sight to look upon, if strange to such eyes as mine. Just below the platform on either side stood a dozen men in loose garments reaching from shoulder to heel, tied at the waist with a white sash, the ends of which fell to the ground. Each wore a white skullcap. They were all elderly men, and their hair and beards had been allowed to grow at will. To say that the princess was the most beautiful woman my eyes had ever rested upon is hardly to describe her. The whole of Princess Darla's world allowed that she was the most beautiful of women, and the women of Drussenland are beautiful. Her warriors, from the highest knight to the humblest soldier, worshiped her and had sworn obedience to him who should win her for himself. My first impression was that she was fit to rule those who bowed before her. She looked queenly and their mistress. Seated in her chair of state, as I first saw her, she looked a princess; she looked what she was, the idol of her people, and she looked more, a woman a man could love. Every eye was turned toward me as I advanced up the hall. Certainly never before had I been such a center of attraction. I saw O'Ryan standing at the foot of the platform between two soldiers, but as I approached he eluded their vigilance and, rushing toward me, fell on his knee and kissed my hand, whispering as he did so: "Admit everything. It's our only chance." Evidently I had to play a part of some sort. There was silence for some moments as I stood at the foot of the platform. The princess leaned forward in her seat to study me closely, and I

"ADMIT EVERYTHING. IT'S OUR ONLY CHANCE."

The princess rose to her feet, and the steel rang mightily as every sword leaped from its scabbard. The priests bowed low, and shout after shout made the massive walls echo again. Only one man seemed unmoved at my statement—he who stood at the right hand of the princess. "Has the priest sure proof that the knight so long expected has come?" "The priests shall study before they speak certainly, Count Vasca." "Remember," said the count, irritated at the priest's quiet answer and pointing to O'Ryan, "on the word of a foreign dog we are trusting." "Nay, count, on the word of the knight himself." It was the princess who spoke. It was the first time I had heard her speak, and her voice thrilled me. "The princess has judged," answered the count. "What, then, shall be done to this foreign dog, who, knowing that this was the promised knight, sought to carry him to our enemies in Yadasara?" A growl of hatred followed these words, and I saw that it was likely to go hard with O'Ryan. "Stay!" I cried, raising my arm for silence. "Those who fight in a cause, faithful to that cause, are worthy of honor. These foreign dogs, valiant though they be, fight often in ignorance." "To that man owes many a knight his overthrow," said the count. "If he has been mighty in a wrong cause more mighty shall he be in a right one. He has told the truth of me and is therefore sacred to me and to my cause." "Then I have not understood our laws," said Count Vasca in a voice which rang clear and loud through the hall. "Since the days when the mountains shut in our land no foreign dog has come to us, who are true Drussenlanders. Our enemies have called them in to slay us, but we who are true people hate them even with a more deadly hatred than those who, born in the land, bear arms against us in the pay of him who calls himself the king. Have not the priests, speaking as with the mouth of Khrym himself, commanded us to crush them as we would reptiles under our feet? Have the priests given us false counsel, or does this knight overstep his mission? Would Khrym speak in one way to the priests and after another manner to his messenger? Is it not strange, princess, that two commands concerning our enemies are given us?" "Count Vasca speaks most truly," I said. "But man's judgment is bound by the things of today, and of the morrow he knows naught. Where man sees only an enemy today, Khrym may recognize one who shall tomorrow be his messenger. This foreign dog has been so marked out. Had it not been given to him to know me might he not have attacked me instead of welcoming me? If in his ignorance he wished to take me to those whom he served was he not faithfully fulfilling his duty as he understood it? The priests have well understood and have rightly spoken the law, but of this man they have not spoken." "He is a foreign dog; it is enough," said the count, but no sound of approbation followed. "I came from the mountains, and to the mountains I can return." "The priests have not yet consulted," he said. "Let them beware how they do so," I answered. "In their stry they lose the fate of Drussenland. This man is my armor bearer, my page and squire. Speak, princess. Judge betwixt Count Vasca and me. As your knight I claim this man, sacred to me and to my cause." "Princess—" "Pardon, count," she said, interrupting him. "Sir Knight, the man is yours." "Study tonight," said the princess, turning to the priests. "Tomorrow after sunset shall we hold audience, and you shall declare if this is to be so long as you expected. Count, see to this knight and his servant well attended. Then come to me. I have a word for you in private." For one moment the princess looked at me keenly and then turned. A door at the back of the platform was thrown open, and followed by a guard of soldiers, she disappeared. Count Vasca came to me. "I am commanded to see you fittingly entertained," he said, and he led the way through one of the side doors. O'Ryan and I following, a small guard behind us, whether to honor us or to see that we did not escape I do not know. We passed down several long corridors and then mounted a flight of stairs. "Rest here until tomorrow," said the count, ushering us into a spacious apartment. "I will see that you are served." In a short time food was brought us and wine in the form of a toast. (To be continued tomorrow.)

HIGH TRIBUNAL HAS PROBLEM TO SOLVE. Washington, April 26.—Members of the supreme court of the United States put their heads together to determine whether a pretty woman, particularly a pretty New York woman, may prevent the use of her photograph for advertising or trade purposes. Photographers, newspapers and moving picture men are said to be vitally concerned. The court has considered the case of Mrs. Alda T. Rhodes of Brooklyn, N. Y. One day, arrayed in her wedding gown, she had her photograph taken for a birthday present for her husband. Not long afterward her sister-in-law remarked: "I saw your picture today in the window of a trading stamp store." Mrs. Rhodes obtained from the company exhibiting her photograph a $1,000 judgment. Now the supreme court of the United States is asked to annul as unconstitutional the New York statute of 1903 making it a misdemeanor to use a name or photograph for advertising or trade purposes without the consent of the subject.

"NOBLE RED MAN" NOT TO BE REPRESENTED. Washington, April 26.—The American Indian will not be represented at the first universal race congress in London in July. Aborigines from all parts of the earth will be seen there, but the American red man will be absent because the comptroller of the treasury has decided that the Indian appropriation could not be used for the expenses of sending representative types of the first American.

CHEMISTS MAKE AMMONIA FROM AIR

What is said to be an economical method of making ammonia from the air is said to have been discovered by the chemists of the German-American Chemical company, a Milwaukee corporation, and patents are now pending on the process. For many years chemists have been working on the problem of making a cheap, economical ammonia from the free nitrogen of the air. The new process is said to be very economical, and it is prophesied that it will greatly lower the market price of ammonia and its allied products.

WOMEN'S FEET SAID TO BE GROWING LARGER

New York, April 26.—The foot of the American woman is growing larger every year, according to the testimony of members of a New York Shoe Dealers' association. Their explanation is that it is because women are doing more walking and going in for all sorts of outdoor exercises. The day of the 1A or 1AA shoe is gone, although many women could wear them a few years ago.

"You may remember," declared one of the speakers, "that there was a time when every woman's shoe was honestly marked with its size. That is not so long ago. Then woman's feet began to get larger. A woman who used to wear a No. 2 shoe wouldn't take a No. 3, no matter how comfortably it might fit. That drove us to marking the shoes with a secret code."

STURGEON BAY HAS PEA SOUP FACTORY

Sturgeon Bay, April 26.—An infant industry is being developed in this city by Phil Cunningham. It is a pea soup factory, and the building used for a laundry and located near the John Allan Seed company premises is being used for the purpose. Mr. Cunningham is getting the necessary machinery and utensils in readiness for the business, which though on a small scale to begin with he hopes to develop into one of the leading industries of the city. The canning of pea soup is no experiment, the product having been long on the market. There is a ready sale for the goods and there is no reason why a paying business should not be worked up.

WHY THEY FAIL.

Most Pile Remedies Miss the Cause of Piles.

Disagreeable treatment with ointments or suppositories usually fails to cure piles and cutting them off won't remove the cause. Such treatment only moderates the outside effects of the disease and fails to remedy the inside cause. The up-to-date doctors now use internal medicine, to free the circulation in the lower bowel, and so remove the disease.

Miss Ray is interviewed in regard to Her Strange Power—Says There is Nothing Supernatural About Her Work—Earnest and Believes in Herself.

EVA RAY.

A slender, graceful woman, with dark eyes which seem to hold many secrets in their depths, a voice, the low, vibrant qualities of which are expressive of an understanding, and sympathetic intelligence, and the most unaffected manner and most gracious personality; this is the way in which Miss Ray must, perforce, strike one, even in a most casual conversation.

She was seated in a low chair in her dressing room at the Grand theater, and had not finished robing as yet, for the afternoon performance. She had just pulled on her French shoes and was clad in a waist of white net with lavender trimmings and a petticoat of deep violet silk. Hanging on nearby hooks were many pretty feminine fripperies, among them the gown she was to wear at the afternoon performance and other bits of dainty womanly apparel.

The adjective womanly seems to link itself most naturally and inevitably with Miss Ray's personality. There is nothing of the pedant about her, and nothing of the charlatan. Whatever else she may be she is intensely, unaffectedly in earnest and in love with her work. Or, perhaps not so much in love with it as imbued with it. It is a part of herself, the keynote of an interesting ego, the touchstone of her life.

One feels her earnestness, her belief in herself and her work, in every inflection of her voice and in each softly, prettily accented word she utters. The accent is slight but charming and the dark eyes and pretty unusual manner contribute to the impression of French ancestry. Her courtesy and gentleness of manner are very winning and her interest and belief in her work very infectious.

"Is your work in any way a clairvoyant?" was asked.

"I do not claim to be clairvoyant nor to have any supernatural power at all," she said. "My work is telepathic. I read the mind, and it is through hard work that I have achieved this. I have given my life to the work; my every effort has been put into it; and I have studied in Europe—most especially in India. It was there, under the Priests, that I attained the higher knowledge in my work."

"All have to some extent, greater or less, this power. In me it has been developed, by earnest, unremitting study. I work through scientific methods—for telepathy is a science. I have been to India three different times and studied there under the High Priests and it is through them that I feel I have gained the greater knowledge, the deeper understanding."

"Will you give any private readings, Miss Ray?"

"I do not know. I have not, so far, decided. I have been asked my many to do so, and may, perhaps before I leave."

"The strain of the performances is so great that I may find it impossible I think I could hardly express to you just what effect this work has upon me. How sometimes it seems to become so much a part of me that I seem to feel the great, sad heart of the world beating in my breast."

"I have traveled a great deal, of course, having lived in England, France, Australia, India and other countries at different times in my life, and perhaps the greatest lesson my travels and my work have taught me is the lesson of leniency towards others."

She threw her hand out with a little sad gesture.

"Oh, there is so much sorrow in the world! Sometimes the grief in the hearts of people with whom I am thrown seems to crush me with its weight. That is the reason I do not like to give private mind-readings. So many come to me with their sorrows, and I feel it so here."

She put her hand on her heart, with a troubled expression clouding her expressive face.

"I do not know that I can make you understand but sometimes when answering the questions of a great audience I seem to hear even the tones of the voices. Sometimes it is a heart crying to me in grief, sometimes it is the eager, beating heart of love questioning. Sometimes I can hear the careless voice of youth, but oftentimes it is the cry of pain and sorrow and sometimes it seems to cut me, to hurt me so."

"My audience has so much to do with my work. I have gone to places where the minds of my audience were so antagonistic that it was almost impossible for me to give a demonstration. Almost invariably such audiences are composed of uncouth, unlettered people, who have no belief in them, no sympathy with them, and only come to jeer at what they cannot understand."

"This makes it very hard for me. I need the sympathy of my audience in my work, for each mind is unconsciously asking a question and often I seem to listen to the very tones of the voices, eager, believing, confident or incredulous, as the case may be."

"Telepathy is, as I have said, a science, and it has taken years of effort and study and research for me to attain the power I hope to demonstrate here. The Priests of India, of course, have come nearer to perfecting this work than have any other leaders of any cult. I have one gift I prize very dearly. It was given to me on my third visit to India by one of the High Priests and is, to me a great treasure."

She rose and going over to a small trunk dislodged a sleepy Boston bull-terrier from a lace petticoat on which he was curled, and going down on her knees she lifted the tray of the trunk and drew out a bundle, in many paper wrappings. With fingers that seemed almost reverent she uncovered and disclosed to view a deep crimson robe of velvet studded with jewels in symbolic designs. The robe was so heavily encrusted with stones that its weight was very appreciable and the heavy gold lace and fringe, and the lining of crimson satin made up a robe of much beauty and splendor, and it was small wonder that the gift was so highly prized.

During the interview there were several interruptions. Hurried messengers with wardrobe attendances knocked twice at the door for admittance and the hour was drawing near for the first performance. But there was no nervousness in the courteous manner and at the suggestion that perhaps the interview had taken too much time she answered in the negative. She spoke of her work throughout, with clearness and earnestness, leaving an impression of belief and sincerity that were very convincing, and arousing an interest in this science of which she is so ardent an exponent that one must believe in the woman even if one must pause on the threshold of the "open door" of this strange cult to question dumbly of that we cannot understand, "the finite questioning of the infinite."

Mr. Wilford Adams is his name, and he writes: "I was confined to my bed with chronic rheumatism and used two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy with good effect, and the third bottle put me on my feet." It clears the blood of uric acid. For sale by all druggists.

FOREMAN WANTED HIM TO EAT MORE BEANS

Duluth, April 26.—Charles Kilis has brought suit against James Chisholm and the Johnson-Wentworth company, a logging concern, for $500 for an alleged beating he took from Chisholm, a foreman, while in the employ of the company during the month of February of last year.

Kilis claims that one day while eating his luncheon, which was provided by the company, Chisholm rushed up to him and ordered him to eat more pork and beans and less bread and other things that were on the table.

Kilis claims that he did not understand him and that the next thing he knew he was being pounded about by Chisholm. He claims that he was hit and choked. He states that $500 is reasonable damages for the assault.

PRESIDENT DIAZ ONCE AN INSUBRECTO

Mincola, N. Y., April 26.—The death here of Samuel P. Phillips, a wealthy retired sea captain, recalls an interesting incident in the career of President Diaz of Mexico. For many years Captain Phillips was in command of a Mallory line ship in Mexican waters.

On one occasion a man disguised as a Quaker came aboard silently in the night time. He turned out to be Porfirio Diaz, and as an insubrecto was fleeing from the Mexican troops. Shortly after his appearance soldiers boarded the vessel and demanded that Phillips give up Diaz. This the American captain refused to do. Diaz went ashore as soon as landing proved safe and escaped.

VALUE OF PHYSICAL BEAUTY IN QUESTION

Kansas City, Mo., April 26.—Whether a woman's face is a physical asset, to be measured by dollars and cents, is to be decided by a jury. Mrs. Mabelle Byerly has brought suit against the Metropolitan Street Railway company for $15,000 damages because her beauty has been marred by a two-inch scar. She received the injury in a collision between a street car and her automobile.

WANDERER HAS FAT BANK ROLL OF $2,580

Mitchell, S. D., April 26.—An unusual circumstance was uncovered here when a man named Fred Dickson was arrested, and on being searched by Sheriff Berry he was found to have on his person the sum of $2,580. Dickson was picked up by the sheriff as a suspect. After holding Dickson a week, the sheriff permitted the man to leave the jail, but he got him to deposit his money in one of the banks for safekeeping.

Dickson said that he came by his money honestly, and that it was the accumulation of twenty-five years of hard work and saving. He said he did not have to pay any money out for board, and that whatever traveling he did, he either walked or beat his way on the railroads. He said that he never paid to exceed $50 for railroad fare. Distrusting all banks, he has always carried his money with him; traveled along with all kinds of humanity, yet never had been robbed.

He said he has relatives in Illinois, but he left them a quarter of a century ago, and has never corresponded with them. He said that he took the name of Dickson when he left home twenty eight years ago, but declined to give his real name. He is about 50 years old.

HANCOCK IS AFTER M. E. CONFERENCE

Copper Country Church Wants the 1912 Convention of the Detroit Episcopal Conference—Request Will Be Preferred if Other Churches Cooperate.

Hancock wants the Detroit Methodist Episcopal conference in 1912. A meeting of the Hancock M. E. church, a quarterly conference over which District Superintendent Pascoe presided, was held Monday night and at that meeting it was resolved to ask the conference at its session this year to select the copper country city as the place of holding the 1912 meeting.

The Detroit conference is the most important annual religious gathering in the state of Michigan. It includes the attendance of every M. E. clergyman in the eastern half of the lower peninsula and the entire upper peninsula. It was held in Calumet a few years ago, the first time in the upper peninsula.

The Hancock meeting decided not to proffer the request to the conference until the cooperation of every Methodist Episcopal congregation in the copper country is assured. The church also decided to forego this year the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, which was to have been held coincidentally with the Hancock home coming celebration in July. The congregation would not want to undertake the celebration unless the presence of a bishop of the church could be assured and for next July all of the bishops have engagements. Just when the celebration will be held was not determined.

THE PETERSON—"Madame Sherry" is the musical comedy rage of New York this season.

Stealing into the metropolis quietly late in August, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, the production scored sensation and is attracting overflow audiences to every performance.

The newspaper praise elicited by the piece is quite as sensational as the production's box-office success. All signs say the New York run will last at least a year.

"Madame Sherry" will be played by the New York New Amsterdam Theatre company at the Peterson this evening.

THE PETERSON—The special scenery for the M. C. M. play, "In Tobero," which required a special car for shipment, has arrived in Houghton and has been set up at the college gymnasium, where it is being used at the rehearsals.

It is most artistic and is complete in every detail. "In Tobero" will be presented at the Peterson opera house May 3.

The play opens with a prologue, the scene being that of a student's room with the walls decorated with college banners and pictures of art.

The scene quickly shifts to Motolino, the capital of Tobero, and a beautiful panorama is unfolded. The town plaza with the court yard of an old mission, and the artistic residence of the mayor of Motolino form the foreground and in the distance is to be seen the snowy capped volcano of Texinal towering in stately grandeur above the plain, occasionally pouring out its flood of fire and destruction.

In the second act the scene takes the audience into a tropical forest luxuriant with foliage, and here the revolution waxes warm and causes radical changes in the government. Last of all is seen a panorama of the College of Mines, which again brings the audience back to Houghton.

A. P. Connors, who was reported killed at Dubuque, Iowa, several days ago, was not a resident of this city, but had worked in the woods for the Ford River Lumber company last winter. He left this part of the country seven or eight weeks ago. His remains were identified by means of a small memorandum book which had been given him when he purchased a suit of clothes from Kratz Bros., and in which his name was written. It was this book that led the coroner at Dubuque to think Connor's home was in Escanaba. It is believed that his home was somewhere in Indiana.

The blaze was easily extinguished with chemicals, no water being used, and the damage done did not exceed $20 to $25. It is supposed that the fire was started by a spark from the smokestack of the Escanaba Manufacturing company's factory.

Several complaints have been made to the police officers of boys riding bicycles on the sidewalks in the residence districts, thus making it inconvenient and even dangerous for pedestrians.
