

WEDDING DAY CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sivertsen are Given a Happy Surprise by Large Company of Friends on Their Silver Wedding Anniversary—Features of Event.

Twenty-five years ago Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sivertsen were united in marriage and they have for the greater part of the quarter century made their home in Escanaba, where they are well known and have as many friends as they number acquaintances.

Wednesday evening a large company of these friends, many of them fellow members of Mr. and Mrs. Sivertsen in the congregation of the Norwegian Lutheran church, helped the worthy couple to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary in a most delightful and memorable manner. They did this by giving Mr. and Mrs. Sivertsen a surprise.

Following a prearranged plan, the members of the surprise party assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Ronneberg, 1115 Wells avenue, and from there marched in a body to the Sivertsen home at 210 South Norris street.

Surprise is Complete. Mr. and Mrs. Sivertsen were taken completely by surprise, but gladly welcomed their unexpected guests, who were not slow in explaining the purpose of their visit or in extending congratulations to the couple who had just completed 25 years of happy married life. So large was the company that the Sivertsen home was scarcely large enough to accommodate them, all and so an adjournment was taken to the Norwegian Lutheran church, near by, where the evening was spent most enjoyably.

The program included an address appropriate to the occasion by Rev. E. Bernsten, several song selections by the church choir and other diversions.

Gift of Silver Money. One of the notable features was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Sivertsen of a goodly sum of money, all in silver, as a silver wedding gift from their friends.

Following the social proceedings in the church, the Mr. and Mrs. Sivertsen and their guests returned to the Sivertsen home, where suitable refreshments were served.

Mr. Sivertsen is employed as a machinist in the local shops of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company and both he and his wife are held in high esteem by their friends, all of whom wish that they will live to celebrate their golden anniversary as happily as they did the silver event.

RETURN FROM TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Peterson in Escanaba Again After an Absence of Two Months—Visit in California, Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Utah and Other States.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Peterson returned this morning to their home in Escanaba after an absence of two months, a good share of which time was spent in visiting their four daughters at Oakland, Cal., and in viewing points of interest in the Pacific coast and other states of the far west. They left here March 6 and, according to Mr. Peterson's statement, enjoyed every minute of the time during their absence. On the way to the coast they stopped and made short visits in Milwaukee, Chicago, Colorado Springs, Denver and Salt Lake City.

From Salt Lake City they traveled to Los Angeles and after visiting in that city and in San Francisco proceeded to Oakland, where they enjoyed a visit with their daughters until April 17, when they started on the return trip to Escanaba in a round-about way.

Their journey up the coast, making stops at Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane and other cities before starting on the long direct trip backward. At Minneapolis they made a break in their journey and visited two days in that city. From Minneapolis they came directly to Escanaba, arriving here this morning somewhat fatigued but greatly pleased with their trip.

While visiting in the various cities Mr. and Mrs. Peterson had the pleasure of meeting a number of former Escanaba residents, all of whom appeared to be doing well. Among these were Mr. Rich, who formerly conducted a tailoring establishment in the Finnegan building, which was lately damaged by fire; Samuel Little, formerly in the employ of the Mead Drug company; John Johnson, who formerly conducted the Blue Ribbon saloon here, and Miss Dora McEwen, daughter of Attorney C. D. McEwen. Mr. Rich is now conducting a tailoring establishment and clothing store in Salt Lake City, Mr. Little is located in Portland, Ore. Mr. Johnson is in business at Tacoma and Miss McEwen is teaching in the public schools at Los Angeles.

PLANNING TRIP OF INQUIRY

GOVERNOR OSBORN EXPECTS TO PAY A VISIT OF INSPECTION TO ALL THE STATE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

WILL SEE WHEELS GO AROUND.

He Passes Up a Pleasure Trip For State Business—Desires of Seeking Effect of His Vetoes and to Get Into Close Touch With the Various Managements—Interesting Story Traveling Around in This Connection.

According to advices received here from Lansing, Governor Osborn is planning a trip of investigation to the institutions of the state just as soon as he has cleared his desk of legislative matters.

He proposes to get into touch with the management of each one and the methods prevailing in handling the affairs pertaining to the purpose for which it was established, as well as its finances. He says that he expects the trip will prove very interesting and instructive.

In order to carry out his plan the governor has declined an invitation to go with a party of friends up into Quebec salmon fishing for a week or so in May or June.

Will Get in Touch. Before the summer is over the executive expects to get into touch with all branches of the state government and the modes of operation in vogue. There will be conferences relative to improved service in various lines of state activity, and the governor wants to know "how the wheels go around."

Undoubtedly this bit of news will be received with great joy at all institutions, many of which saw appropriations which the legislature had granted them vetoed by the governor off hand.

An Interesting Story.

In this connection there is a story traveling around that to the head of one state institution of learning, who called on the governor to urge his approval of an appropriation of a new building, the executive suggested that so long as he did not deem it wise for the state to expend money in that way the superintendent move out of the fine suite of offices he is occupying and the governor would, out of his personal funds, furnish the equipment for establishing the department there. The offer was not accepted, however.

Governor Osborn does not say just what he expects to accomplish in this trip of inspection, but it is known that many suggestions have been made to him relative to various phases of state governmental machinery.

ROOSEVELT ON MURDER IS MURDER

Former President Writes an Article Dealing With the Dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times and the Recent Arrests Made by Detective Burns in Connection Therewith.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, May 4.—Ex-president Roosevelt will have a signed article entitled "Murder is Murder" in the Outlook magazine this week, dealing with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times and the arrests recently made by Detective Burns. Colonel Roosevelt says in part:

"The question of organized labor or organized capital or of the relations of either with the community at large has nothing to do with this issue whatever. All we are concerned with is the grave and vital question of fact as to whether or not the men accused have been guilty of murder and of murder under circumstances of peculiar foulness and atrocity."

STUDENTS SUCCEED IN MUSICAL SHOW

"In Tobero" is Given an Artistic, Finished and Thoroughly Satisfying Presentation in Escanaba by Students of the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton.

From an artistic standpoint, the Micolmi club, composed of students of the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton, presented "In Tobero" at the Peterson last night with unqualified success. Financially the production fell short, for although the audience was a fair size it was not sufficiently large to make the receipts overbalance or even offset the heavy expenditures connected with the production.

The audience was one of the most enthusiastic of the season, however, and the show was a success intrinsically, without considering the fact that it was put on by amateurs. All of the members of the large cast did exceedingly well, but distinct personal successes were won by C. F. Schaber and H. B. Kroeger, who played the principal feminine parts.

"In Tobero" tells a story of a student at the Michigan College of Mines, Harold Kellar, by name, who gave up his struggle for an education and went, to Tobero, a Central American state, where he became involved in a revolution. Kellar's father, a Boston school teacher, the alcalde of Montolio, capital of Tobero, and his family, and various other interesting characters are introduced. The story of the play is well known to readers of The Mirror through anticipatory mention.

The opening scene showed a room in a College avenue rooming house for students. Through an open window Hubbell hall is seen. Four students enter, singing with three voices an old glee. They have been returning from a promenade dance and are weary but happy. Here Kellar discloses his intention to leave college, being afraid to face "Murphy" in the morning. The other students go to their rooms laughing at Kellar and he falls asleep while worrying over his troubles. The remaining incidents of the show are the fabric of his dreams.

The subsequent scenes of the comedy show a street in Montolio and the festival scene of the ancient Aztecs. In the latter is a reproduction of an

(By Associated Press.)

Viterbo, Italy, May 4.—At the trial of the Camorristas today Abbateaglio, informer, confronted Salvi and Cerrato, both of whom he denounced as having taken part in the murder of Cuccolo. He repeated his original accusations against Salvi and later defied both of them. Then the two men exchanged a war of words which ended in Abbateaglio saying to Salvi: "You are an assassin," to which Salvi replied, "You are like a cow which is called an ass with horns. You have a muddy conscience, which you have sold to Carablicers."

(By Associated Press.)

SOO IS SATISFIED WITH NEW SYSTEM

Sault Ste. Marie Evening News: Escanaba, which is entitled to 80 saloons under the law, has 81 applications for licenses. Escanaba is a city about the size of the Soo, the number of saloons of which is limited by ordinance to 25. Saloon keepers as well as the citizens in general have found this number satisfactory and would not go back to the old system of granting licenses to an unlimited number even if there was no ordinance to prevent.

The light wagon to which the animal was attached was not damaged, but portions of the harness were broken.

NEW STYLE OF SHOES IS BAD FOR WOMEN

They are Too Short and the High Heel Throws the Body Out of its Natural Poise, Making a Readjustment of the Heart, Lungs and Other Vital Organs Necessary.

"The present style of women's shoes are responsible for more nervous breakdowns and for more poor health in general among women than is whiskey among men, in my opinion," said a well-known Milwaukee maker of shoes.

"In the first place the shoe that fashion dictates this spring, and that is seen in nearly all of the suede and velvet patterns that are so popular, is made too short for the foot. This, together with the high heels, throws the body out of its natural poise and makes a readjustment of heart, lungs and other vital organs necessary.

"Through this readjustment comes pressure upon nerves in places that are unprepared to resist it. Displacement of many of the organs is likely to ensue. Because of the various maladjustments which take place, there is undue pressure upon the spinal column at certain points, and many ills follow in the wake of this.

"Headaches, extreme irritability and trouble with the eyes are frequently caused wholly by an improper shoe. But women fight any suggestion to ward something more sensible, and always will until a sensible shoe becomes the style.

"My shoes do not cause my headaches," a woman said to me the other day and to prove it she said she had had those headaches for several years and had worn the new style of shoes but a year. She did admit the headaches had grown steadily worse in the last year and she was not prepared to say that she had not worn too high heels previous to that time.

"Beside this direct result from the ill-shaped shoe, there are others. Women whose feet are uncomfortable will not walk as much as they should.

They may go about the house in bedroom slippers, but doing housework or any other kind of indoor exercise does not benefit the woman as a brisk walk in the open air will, and lack of open air exercise has a train of ills.

"These uncomfortable shoes are the direct cause of many cases of obesity, for nothing will bring down the flesh like plenty of walking. Poor complexions are another thing to be charged to the tight shoe on the ground that it prevents necessary exercise. Tight or uncomfortable shoes are also a prolific cause of ill-temper and depressed spirits."

MANY HORSES FOUND UNFIT FOR ARMY USE

Seattle, Wash., May 4.—A large number of horses shipped from Idaho and Oregon for the use of the army in the Philippines have been condemned and sold at auction here, because of unfitness. Some of the horses were wholly unrideable by the most skillful broncho busters at Fort Lawton. Other animals suffered from heaves, spavin and ringbone. A war department inquiry is expected as the result of the scandal.

RARE TREASURES OF THE INDIANS

They Are Generally Buried With Their "Keepers"—Tattooing Apparatus and Materials Used—Also Circlet of Human Scapula Among the Contents of Bundles.

Officials of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution at Washington are highly pleased over an addition which they have just made to their collection and which they regard as one of their choicest treasures. This acquisition comprises four sacred bundles or packs of the Osage Indians, very few of which have ever been obtained by scientists, as they are generally buried with their "keepers."

These sacred bundles are just as precious from a religious standpoint to the Indian as they are from a scientific standpoint to the ethnologist and are extremely hard to obtain. They represent the holiest fetish of a tribe, and so zealously are they guarded from any profanation that they are put in the charge of a special priest or medicine man, who keeps them carefully hidden. At certain periods they are opened and the contents worshipped amid the most elaborate ceremonies, but even at these times only the chosen men of the tribe are allowed to see the strangely assorted articles that are kept in the bundles.

How They Were Secured. The bundles were secured for the National museum by Francis La Fleshe, an educated Omaha Indian, who is in the employ of the bureau of American ethnology. While at work in Oklahoma he learned of the existence of such bundles and immediately opened negotiations with the Indian to whose care they had been entrusted. After exercising considerable diplomacy he succeeded in persuading the Indian to part with them and took them to Washington and turned them over to the bureau of ethnology.

One of these was opened with much care by Dr. Walter Hough, one of the curators of the National museum. Dr. Hough found the outside wrapping or sack to be made of a rare Indian fabric woven of the silky brow hair of the buffalo. This was bound with a buckskin band decorated with human scalp and the leg of an eagle. Inside this was a buckskin bag, and inside that a haversack made of a material resembling Chinese matting.

Most Sacred Object. In this haversack were a pipe decorated with scapula, a tobacco bag, a braided cord made of woolen fabric and a bundle of buffalo bladders and a bundle of buffalo hair of the buffalo. This was bound with a buckskin band decorated with human scalp, and one other bundle, which was the most important of all, for it represented the "holy of holies." This bundle was a buckskin case, to which was bound a buckskin object resembling a head band. Inside this bundle was found the most sacred object of the pack—the body of a hawk, which had been mummified and then painted a brilliant vermilion and green. Attached to the tail was a circlet of human scapula. The body was suspended by a braided band made of woolen fabrics which evidently had been obtained by the tribe through trade with other Indians.

One of the three other bundles was found to contain the tattooing apparatus and materials used by the Osage Indians, all of which are regarded as sacred, as the tattooing is a religious ceremony. The other two packs were similar to the one described, but the articles each contained were different.

BUREAU IS NOW MAKING ENCOURAGING PROGRESS

U. P. Development Leaders Meeting With Success in Raising Funds—Work Begun.

Dr. R. C. Allen, state geologist, and members of his staff have just completed a very exhaustive soil survey of the upper peninsula and have graphically portrayed the results of their years of labor on a big soil survey map of the district. In the preparation of this soil survey, members of the state geologist's staff have tramped every square mile of the upper peninsula's area.

As a result of this exhaustive and scientific exploration, the state geologist makes the startling declaration that, in proportion to its size, the upper peninsula has more tillable agricultural land than the lower peninsula. This startling declaration, the state geologist is prepared to prove by indisputable data.

Very Gratifying.
This scientific verification of the claims being made by the leading men of the peninsula in its agricultural possibilities is very gratifying and will be most useful in the campaign being conducted by the Upper Peninsula Development bureau. The latter has already undertaken negotiations through the state geologist for the publication of a soil survey map, which will show the fertility of the various areas in the upper peninsula, and the character of the soil. This map will be one of the most valuable features of the publicity material used to promote the district north of the straits.

Considerable attention was given at the recent meeting of the development bureau in Marquette to the details of organization and as a result of the plans adopted, it is expected the work for new members throughout the peninsula for the next thirty days will go forward not only with greater enthusiasm but in a more systematic manner. It is probable many of the counties will employ paid solicitors to seek members as this work requires too much time for the executive committees, who are among the most prominent business men of their respective communities, to give to their personal attention. Systematic work on the subscription end of the campaign will also characterize the efforts of the final thirty days.

$50,000 Funds is Growing.
It is almost an assured fact that the required $50,000 will be raised by June 1. The subscriptions are already crowding the $30,000 mark.

A special committee will be appointed by the president to manage all of the details of the exhibit of the Upper Peninsula at the land show at Chicago this coming fall. Another special committee will be appointed by the president to recommend a permanent manager, so that the latter may assume his duties if possible on June 1.

Another meeting of the committee will be held just prior to June 1, the place and time to be designated by President Green.

GREATER SAFEGUARDS PLACED AROUND POPE.

No One Hereafter Is to Be Received by Him Informally.

The Vatican authorities realize that had the man Desanti, who shot at a priest in St. Peter's recently and who confessed that he intended to make an attempt on the pope's life, been a more intelligent and more determined man he could easily have reached the papal apartments. They have consequently decided to increase the surveillance over the apostolic palaces and take special precautions to guard the pope. Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, has had conferences on the subject with the papal major domo, the prefect of the apostolic palaces and the commanders of the gendarmes and the Swiss guards.

It was suggested by these gentlemen that gendarmes and Swiss guards in plain clothes should be stationed at the papal ante-chambers with orders to allow no one under any pretext to enter the audience chamber unless able to show a ticket from the major domo. It was also suggested that, if possible, visitors to the Vatican gardens should be escorted by gendarmes, that tickets for collective audiences or religious functions should not be given to anybody not personally acquainted with the major domo or who is not provided with a letter of introduction from a responsible person and that when the pope takes his daily walk in the gardens he should be accompanied by four of the noble guards.

The pope was at first unwilling to submit to these measures, which, he said, restricted his personal liberty, and he considered it unnecessary, as he felt sufficiently protected by Providence, but Cardinal Merry del Val convinced him that the anticlericals were as dangerous as anarchists and persuaded the pontiff that the precautions were fully justified. The pope then unwillingly promised to discontinue the practice of receiving his fellow countrymen from Venice informally, as it was pointed out to him that had Desanti, who is a native of Istria and consequently speaks the Venetian dialect, pretended that he was a Venetian and asked to see the pontiff he could easily have obtained access to the audience chamber even without applying for a ticket to the major domo.

CIVIL WAR MAY COME IN THE EMERALD ISLE

Belfast, May 4.—Orangemen in Ireland are preparing to resist home rule by force of arms. It has been learned, following a disinterested investigation that there is every foundation for reports that a miniature civil war is fermenting. Information from reliable sources is that 120,000 secret circulars urging revolt have been distributed among members of various Orangemen's societies. It also became known that many protestant clubs have taken subscriptions to purchase arms and ammunition. Many Orangemen are said to be secretly drilling. It is reported that 120,000 rifles are stored in this city for distribution on the shortest notice.

The home rule bill, after being debated in the house of commons, will be sent to committee this week and will be reported to the house shortly for final action. It will then be submitted to the house of lords.

OIL PROPELLED BATTLESHIP.

One Being Built Secretly, Dr Diesel Tells Naval Architects.
In some corner of the world an oil propelled battleship is now being built. Heretofore all reports of the building of the battleship have been denied, but Dr. Diesel confirmed the rumors before the conference of the London Institution of Naval Architects. He said, however, that he was not at liberty to give details.

Dr. Diesel is the inventor of an oil engine. He said that fully 250 ships, naval and commercial, are now fitted or are being fitted with oil engines. If the 9,000 ton cargo ship now being constructed in Hamburg proves a success, Dr. Diesel said, there would be a general tendency toward the adoption of oil as a motive power for all kinds of vessels, including warships.

THE FLY A TREACHEROUS ENEMY.

About the worst sort of an enemy is the one who strikes under a flag of truce. That is the way the fly gets in his work. He comes buzzing around in the friendliest manner and acts like a member of the family. He imposes on some persons until they can almost make themselves believe his buzz is comfortable and soothing to hear—like the ticking of the hall clock or the purring of the cat.

Do not be deceived. That reputation of domesticity, borne out by his misleading and harmless sounding name "housefly," is the flag of truce under which he approaches to the attack. His buzz is a danger signal; his touch is contaminating; his droppings are poison. Swat him on sight.

BANK ADVERTISING.

Even the casual reader has noticed that many large firms whose advertisements have appeared almost solely in magazines for the past few years, are no longer to be found in the columns of such periodicals, but are now appearing in newspapers. This proves beyond any hope of successful refutation that the energetic magazine advertising campaign carried on by large concerns who left the newspapers to do so, has convinced them that newspaper publicity is much more valuable.

It has only been during the past few years that banks have expended much money in newspaper advertising. The experimental stage is now over and the largest and most successful concerns are the greatest advertisers.

A prominent bank president in a talk along this subject before men engaged in the banking business, said: "I believe that every bank should use printers' ink liberally to further its particular growth and progress. But not as a reflection on a neighboring bank, which is also filling an important part in the field of finance and commerce.

"There is not the slightest question that the banks and bankers recognize the vast influence of bringing their concerns into prominence through the various mediums of publicity, and would be disposed to do more of it if they could confine themselves to their own ideas as to publications. When the daily press is used they should distribute to all.

A SPRINGTIME CATECHISM.

The Madison, (Wis.) Democrat proposes the following springtime catechism for citizens:

"Am I a benefit to anyone but myself?
"Am I a credit to the community?
"Is the world better because I live in it?
"Is Madison cleaner and more beautiful because I have helped to make it so?"

where carefully tended flowering plants bloom and send forth their fragrance throughout all the long summer months. Very likely every day as you go back and forth to your work you pass beauty spots of this character. Did you ever stop to think how much the fellow who is so carefully nurturing these flowers is contributing to your pleasure?"

There is something in what the Democrat suggests that is worthy of consideration by people outside of the jurisdiction of the Democrat. The Democrat's spring catechism may well be promulgated throughout Michigan. It is as good for Escanaba, Menominee and Marquette, as it is for Madison.

THEY DID NOT UNDERSTAND.

Though labor unions in several parts of the country have been attacking the Boy Scout movement, it now develops that in several instances their hostility was due to a lack of understanding. They were of the opinion that the movement aimed to train the boys to be soldiers, and that it insisted, through the Boy Scout oath, upon implicit obedience to one's employers. Many labor leaders have been led to study the manual and the various books concerning the organization and they have found that the Boy Scout activities first of all provide healthy outdoor recreation for the boys, train them to be alert and teach them to be honest, patriotic citizens. They have found that a boy is urged to obey his conscience that there is no effort to require him to be obedient to his employers against his own sense of right, and that the movement tends to world peace. As labor leaders and workmen have come to understand these things, they have encouraged their sons to become Boy Scouts. In that way, it is shown clearly that the opposition of the labor element toward the Boy Scout movement is gradually dying out.

AN IMPORTANT MEASURE.

An important measure signed by Governor Osborn recently is the Clark bill, which permits the state public domain commission to exchange state lands.

The purpose of this measure is to enable the state to transfer certain lands situated in the northern part of the lower peninsula and in the upper peninsula to the United States government for lands held in this state by the federal government. At the present time there are hundreds of acres of state and federal lands intermingled, and it was for the purpose of making trades so as to get the state lands into a more compact body that the bill was introduced.

In making this change it will give to the state, as well as to the United States government, an opportunity of better protecting their lands from the ravages of fire and from timber thieves.

An act passed the national congress some time ago, permitting the United States to make an exchange of lands with the state of Michigan.

The newspapers are perfectly willing to have their friends call around to lick the editor, but when as at Los Angeles they use dynamite as an instrument of chastisement, there's going to be something doing.

Mr Taft told the New Yorkers that he did not want to annex Canada. As Uncle Sam has 46 children of his own, with two more under way, it seems unnecessary for him to ask to adopt his neighbor's family.

They've got a new head for the Annapolis naval academy. Let us hope he teaches the boys that a person may be able to earn a dollar and yet outlive the disgrace of it.

That Camorra trial over in Italy dispenses a brand of justice almost equal to what is put up by the mock trial entertainments given by our sewing societies.

The English had some smart speakers at their peace meeting the other night, but the 33,000,000 they are spending for battleships talks more eloquently.
Setting a Pace.

"Hired a quartet to sing and two actors from a rural play to talk dialect. He's simply turning away the summer boarders."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
The oddest, the most momentous associations oftentimes attach themselves to the most trifling things. Thus, at a dinner, the hostess said to a soap-faced man on her left: "May I help you to some of the boiled rice, Mr. Smith?"
"Rice? No, thank you; no rice for me," Smith answered vehemently. "It is associated with the worst mistake of my life."

THE KNIGHT OF THE SILVER STAR
A Romance Of Drussenland
By Percy Brebner

Copyright, 1907, by R. F. Fenno & Co.

"The favor is not for Lady Aldrida. She would doubtless have been received kindly had she brought any request of her own to you. Your highness knows that we have returned from victory."

"I have given my thanks to all who helped to win it," she answered sharply. "Most graciously," I returned. "A victory brings suffering with it. I speak not of those who fall fighting, be they friends or foes, but of the prisoners we bring with us. Is it well that because they have been brave they should die like dogs in the market place?"

I saw that Jasar was looking at me fixedly. I saw a deeper cloud than ever settle over Vasca's face. "This lady would plead with me for their pardon. Is it not right that women, with their gentler nature, should teach us men, brought up in ruder manners, something of their gentleness?"

"I do plead with Sir Verrall," said Lady Aldrida. "This mood is a strange one to catch you in, my lady," said Vasca. "That Lady Aldrida pleads has no weight with me," said the princess sternly. "Thank you, Sir Verrall, it was I who made the laws of Drussenland? Is my word to alter laws burned into the very hearts of the people because, forsooth, a knight makes a request?"

"LET HIM WHO QUESTIONS MY LOYALTY SPEAK."

"Then, your highness, pardon me; to the princess I will not appeal, but to the woman."

"As you have already appealed to Lady Aldrida I am not so easily urged."

Still Jasar looked fixedly at me, yet I could read no meaning in his eyes. "Would you starve those who fight for us to feed the traitors who fight against us?" asked Vasca, with a sneer, as he saw that the princess was unlikely to grant my request.

"I would prevent butchery in cold blood, count, though my own life should pay the forfeit."

But my courage did not appeal to her highness. "Your words savor somewhat of treachery, Sir Verrall," she said. "You are so gently inclined toward my enemies it is hard to believe that you can be equally gentle to my friends."

She could hardly have spoken words to sting me more. Many eyes were fixed upon me now, and I knew that I was likely to be disgraced. Her words made my blood tingle; Vasca's cold smile maddened me.

"My deeds have proved me," I answered haughtily. "If further proof is wanting let him who questions my loyalty speak."

I paused. There was no answer to my hot challenge. "Then only your highness doubts me."

I saw the princess start, and then the color dyed her cheeks deeply, but there was no encouragement in her face. For one moment it seemed as if she remembered the giving of the handkerchief, but the next she was stern, resolute, and I might have been some poor devil craving mercy for myself. Her eyes flashed dangerously, her mouth tightened hard and unforgettingly, her bosom rose and fell in quick movement, telling of a passionate anger which she held in check. She looked superb, but less a woman than I had ever seen her look. Just then she would have inspired fear, but hardly love, I think. My sudden action seemed to have put the key of the situation into my hand for the moment, but her dignity and self-possession snatched it from me. Then she spoke clearly, calmly.

"A token must be given to make it of any worth. This handkerchief, as we remember, was merely forgotten when, as a stranger among us, we gave you a word of sympathy. Had we known the use you intended to put it to we should have sent a servant to reclaim it. Never has any subject received a token of ours. You forget yourself, Sir Verrall, and in future we shall know how to treat you. It were well to absent yourself from our presence until we have forgotten the insult."

Then, turning to one of her women, she commanded her to take the handkerchief. Those about me bowed low as the princess passed from the room followed by her attendants.

Not until the curtains had fallen behind her did I rise from my knee. It was not homage which kept me there. I wanted a moment to think. I believed myself something of a martyr for the cause of humanity. I had done the wretched prisoners no good, but I had made the attempt, and since it had failed I should have more enemies in Drussenland than I had ever had before.

Jasar had gone. Vasca was leaving the apartment hurriedly, and those standing near me drew back as I crossed the room.

At the entrance Lady Aldrida stopped me. "We attempted the impossible, Sir Verrall. I warned you that I was in no great favor with her highness."

"We have done what we could," I answered. "Take heed to yourself, Lady Aldrida. It is ill policy to sympathize with a fallen and disgraced man."

"That man is my—"

"Is a fool, my lady," I interrupted. "I am in no mood for talking of it now."

She dropped me a low courtesy, and I went quickly through the other rooms, neither being spoken to nor speaking to any.

As I was leaving the palace, however, a hand was laid upon my shoulder, and I turned to face a friend, a knight who had ever taken part with me against my enemies.

"Sir Verrall, let me come with you."

"I warn you I am poor company tonight," I answered. "Two swords are better than one when the night is dark and the attack sudden and from behind."

"Why should you fear attack tonight?"

Should I go to the priests and, playing upon their superstition, command them to save their prisoners? Should I steal out, mount my horse, ride to Yadasara and proffer my services to lead the king's troops to victory against their enemies? Should I go back to the palace and attempt to speak again with the princess? And then, I regret to say, I wondered if the lives of those prisoners were worth the sacrifice I had made for them, whether I should not have been wiser to take O'Ryan's advice and look after my own skin.

Presently I realized that the town had grown quieter. Listening for O'Ryan, I heard something else—stealthy footsteps coming along the corridor. Under the circumstances it was not strange that I should think of treachery. I drew my sword noiselessly and waited. There was a quick knock at my door.

"Who comes at so late an hour?" I said, throwing the door open and ready to defend myself.

"Welcome you all your friends so, Sir Verrall?"

It was Jasar, and he smiled as he pointed to my drawn sword. "I expected a foe."

"And perhaps with reason," he said. "Still, I come as a friend and secretly. Close the door and make it fast and let us speak low. Your servant has not returned?"

"No."

"And will not tonight. He was found brawling in the streets and was arrested."

"I thought soldiers were privileged to brawl tonight," I said.

"Some—not all."

"You mean that only my servant was arrested?"

He bowed and watched me with a smile upon his face, even as he had watched me as I pleaded to the princess.

"By Vasca's orders, doubtless?"

"Doubtless."

"Ah, for a few moments with him to settle our score now and for all time!" I said impatiently.

"What can you expect? A fallen man is ever a stepping stone which others use to rise to higher favor."

"Fallen, you say! It is too rash an assertion. Falling, perhaps, but not fallen. When Sir Verrall completely falls he'll carry some ruin with him."

THINKS WELL OF ERRATIC "RUBE"

Rube Waddell.

Larry Lajoie of the Cleveland club is one player who believes that Rube Waddell, the eccentric diamond fast, still has the ability to travel in fact company. Nap says that the fact that the Rube is with Joe Cantillon this season, will make him a big winner. According to Larry, there is only one man in this "wide" world who can handle Waddell right and that man is the present manager of the Minnesota American Association club.

"Cantillon will let Waddell have a free rein," says Lajoie. "He won't issue any orders, but will put it up to Rube entirely. I expect that the Rube will pull off a select series of his copyrighted stunts again this year, but I wouldn't be surprised if he pitched fully 50 games for Cantillon. I know both of them well and, believe me, they make a good combination. Waddell is far from the husben stage. He still possesses the stuff and it only remains for some one to get it out of him. Joe is the one to do it."

"JINX" ROOSTED ON SECOND
Middle Bag Was Hoodooed Back in American League in 1910, With Exception of Philadelphia.

Second base was a hoodooed sack in the American league in 1910. What ball players call the "jinx" roosted regularly on second—everywhere but in Philadelphia.

Eddie Collins was the only man in the league who escaped. That brilliant young player had the best season of his career and is one of the few players in the majors who ever engaged in a world series without injuring his reputation. Collins played above his form in the series with the Cubs. But while Collins was the star of the team that won the world's championship, Johnny Evers, second baseman and star of the Cub outfit, was walking on crutches. Evers had his ankle fractured in Cincinnati a few weeks before the season ended.

Jim Delehanty of Detroit did not finish the season. In a game in Cleveland Delehanty wrenched his ankle and hurt his kneecap; he was forced to quit. It required several months of careful attention and nursing to bring the ankle back to condition.

Nap Lajoie had a big year, finished one point behind Ty Cobb in the official batting averages, but could not escape the hoodoo. On the last day of the season Lajoie became mixed in a scandal that for a time threatened to do a heap of damage to baseball.

McConnell of Boston found himself in a few scrapes and the final outcome of his troubles was a trade to Chicago in which he was one of the principals.

Herman Schaefer was the man at second base in Washington, but Herman injured his arm and had to quit second. Wade Killifer was also played there, but Wade's showing was of such a nature that Washington sold him.

Gardner and LaPorte played second for New York. LaPorte has already lost his job. He will try to make good with the St. Louis Browns. Rollo Zeider started out like a whirlwind for Chicago at second, but was replaced by McConnell and will have to fight with seven or eight recruits for the position of shortstop this year.

St. Louis tried several men on second. The "jinx" got every one of them and Bobby Wallace is now searching for a second sacker for his club.

SLOW BALL THING OF PAST

Christy Mathewson Says Style of Pitching Has Undergone Change in Fast Company.

Christy Mathewson is of the opinion that the day of the slow ball pitcher in fast company is a thing of the past.

"When I broke into the big league," said Christy the other day, "Win Mercer, Clarke Griffith, Red Donohue and other pitchers were getting away with their games and each one was depending upon a slow ball to a large extent. Billy Reidy and Dusty Rhoades followed them, but look over the list of pitchers in the two big leagues today and you will not find a single pitcher who is noted for his slow ball. There may be some who have a floater in their repertory, but they do not depend upon it to any extent.

"Today the big-league pitcher must have speed. The majority of the big league pitchers are large men, but, large or small, they must be able to put steam on the ball or they go back to the minors. In fact, when a big league scout reports some minor leaguer to his employer, the first question that the latter asks is: 'Has he any smoke?'

"I have reasoned it out that the slow ball pitcher scarcely ever won his games by small scores and the clubs in the days when slow ball pitchers thrived generally had a lot of batters who won their games by big scores. It did not cause much damage if five or six runs were scored against a club that owned a slow ball pitcher if that team was able to go out and score seven or eight runs. But nowadays the scores are smaller and the man with the floater finds it difficult to stand the pace."

HAS BIGGEST BASEBALL HAND
Mike Kahoe, Scout for Washington Team, Says Eddie Ainsmith Will Be Greatest Catcher.

Eddie Ainsmith, the Nationals' young catcher, who is attracting so much attention by his brilliant work, and who bids fair to be the sensation of the American league this season, carries around with him the largest pair of hands known to baseball.

So big are Ainsmith's broad hooks that he cannot buy gloves to fit, and during the cold days in Cambridge, Mass., he is forced to don mittens.

The digits on Ainsmith's throwing hand are badly twisted and look like braiches of a guarded oak, but he is not handicapped in the least, and claims that this mishapen bunch of fives does not bother him in throwing to bases.

It has been said that Frank Bowerman of the New York Giants had only to hold up both hands and one might see the complete deaf and dumb alphabet there. According to the veteran, Mike Kahoe, Ainsmith's hands are almost twice the size of Bowerman's, and the scout also declares that in two years the former will be the greatest backstop known to organized baseball.

Out of every dozen people you see on the streets these days, two or three are on their ways to answer advertisements.

NOTHING DOING YET

IN-TAXATION OF MINES

Houghton, Mich., May 4.—R. H. Shields has returned from Lansing, where he was called last week to attend a meeting of the state tax commission. He went to Lansing expecting the commission would make its appointments of experts to place new valuations on the mines of the state, but the recent squabble between the governor and the state board of auditors held the matter up.

The commission now has sent to the state board of auditors and to the governor a letter requesting the sanction of the two to the board's proceeding with the valuation according to the law recently enacted. Until answers to this letter are received no further action will be taken by the tax commission.

ENGINEER RUNS TRAIN

OVER BURNING BRIDGE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 4.—Unable to stop his train in time to avoid a burning bridge encountered as the locomotive rounded a sharp curve near Ravenna, fifty miles north of here, an engineer on the San Joaquin Valley line of the Southern Pacific railroad, took a wide chance with fate, opened his throttle to the last inch and brought the 200 hundred passengers behind him safely through the flames. As the train cleared the bridge, the structure collapsed.

NATURALIZED TWICE, STEPHENSON SAYS

Wisconsin Senator Declares He Took Out His Own Papers After His Father's Act Had Made Him an American Citizen—Talks About the Chicago Tribune Story.

According to a dispatch from Washington, Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin, after reading the Chicago Tribune's story of his serving two terms in the legislature of his state before he was naturalized said:

"I won't talk about it. The idea of the Tribune printing such a story about me! Why, I have read the Tribune every day for sixty years—used to read it to my men during the war every night.

"There isn't a word of truth in all that stuff. My father was naturalized back in Maine when I was in my teens. That naturalized me.

"But anyway I was naturalized myself took out my first papers in Milwaukee in 1851 and my second papers in Milwaukee later—well, I forget the exact date.

"I served two terms in the legislature in '66 and '68, but that was all right and lawful. Mebbe I hadn't got my second papers when I was in the legislature but it wasn't against the law, I know that.

"It's the same old story they started on me when I ran for congress in 1882. It's what you've got to expect in politics, I suppose. I've been in politics ever since 1856, when I peddled tickets for Fremont in Chicago.

"But I don't care; I don't ask odds. I'm the biggest lumberman and farmer in Wisconsin or Michigan. I employ more men, superintendents, clerks and so on. So let 'em lie; I don't care. I'm 82 and never felt better in my life.

The senator paused. Mr. Hines was mentioned.

"The newspapers said Hines said he elected me," continued the senator. "Well, I don't know that Hines said it. I know it ain't true, anyway. Hines didn't have anything to do with it. That's just some more lying, all on account of the times we are living in."

LITTLE LAUGHS

A Holding-Out Moral. A good story is told of a certain printer who, desiring to attend a ball game and requiring funds with which to regale his contemporaries, resorted to the expedient of "holding out on the missus." Before turning in his pay envelope he requested five dollars, and then shamelessly asked the missus for some money. She gave him ten dollars, warning him to bring back the change.

At the ball game our hero got gloriously illuminated, spending the whole sum of six dollars. When he returned home the missus took one look, and observed: "Well, I see I don't get any change." Valiantly he hauled out the remaining four, to which he added the original holdout, and passed over the whole nine dollars. "Not at all!" said she sternly. "You never got all that for a dollar. There is something wrong."

Moral: "When you start to hold out, keep holding."—Chicago Tribune.

The Decorator and His Bill. The decorator had just made his estimate.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the householder. "You go ahead and decorate the house, and then I'll give it to you in payment of your bill."

"No," replied the decorator. "I couldn't afford to take the house for more than half payment."

BIG ENTERPRISE FAIRLY STARTED

Stephenson Charcoal Iron Company is Organized With Capital Stock of $200,000 and Will Build and Operate Big Iron Making Plant at Wells, Near This City.

Further steps are being taken toward the establishment and operation of a large charcoal iron furnace at Wells, mention of which was made in The Mirror April 24. Organization of the Stephenson Charcoal Iron company has practically been effected and it is expected that within two or three weeks construction work on the plant will be begun and that it will be completed and ready to go into operation by the first of next year.

The Stephenson Charcoal Iron company is capitalized at $200,000, the heaviest stockholders being C. H. Schaffer, Marquette; Senator Isaac Stephenson, Marinette; H. A. Upham, Milwaukee; Grant Stephenson, R. E. MacLean and C. W. Kates of Wells.

Permanent organization of the company will be effected at a meeting soon to be held, when officers will be elected. All of the preliminary negotiations in connection with the enterprise were concluded Wednesday and the contract for supplying the furnace with all the charcoal it will need was ratified and signed.

ancient Aztec temple. Scenically the production was magnificent.

The show was produced and in all its effects directed by C. F. Schaber, one of the students. Mr. Schaber played Odita, daughter of the alcalde of Montolinio. He was chic and girlish and his dancing was a revelation. H. B. Kroeger played the school teacher from Boston. Mr. Kroeger sank his own identity absolutely in the part, offering a queenly woman. He wore his gowns with grace and distinction and even appeared in a harem skirt without burlesquing his part in the least.

E. H. Gould played Harold Kellar. Mr. Gould has a fine presence and sings pleasingly. His role was a most exacting one but he fulfilled every requirement. H. Whittingham played a London newspaper correspondent. Mr. Whittingham's characterization of an Englishman, fresh from Rotten Row was delightful.

H. Stilwell was the bandit chief, singing a bass solo, robbing the wayfarer, paying his court to the ladies, all with equal suavity and ease. C. C. Haskall and E. R. Van Valkenburg played the alcalde and his wife. Haskall is a little fellow and Van a student who might win success in the weight events of the track team.

In this contrast between man and wife lay some rich comedy and the two made the most of it. W. A. Richards as Maximillo, a revolutionary leader, carried the singing burden of the show with ease. W. A. Rigby as the elder Kellar was one of the acting and comedy features of the performance.

W. T. McNabb, G. H. Rupp, N. D. Murphy, R. E. Benedict, E. Klepetko and F. D. Kelley played small parts with distinction.

The dancing and marching effects with the chorus were of an order to make the show compare with many seen here under more pretentious auspices. The opening of the second act was made by the flower girls and troubadours, supporting Mr. Schaber. The chorus presented an ensemble dance with tambourine and castanet effects and then Mr. Schaber, as Odita, did a graceful dance, on the Carmencita order, assisted by the chorus effect that would have done credit to a Gus Soble. Too much praise may not be given the chorus, which was made up of swineherds, Aztecs, Montolinian guards, a double quartette, flower girls and broilers, troubadours, bandits and beggars.

The show left this morning for Iron Mountain and from there goes to Ishpeming, closing its short tour at Calumet Saturday evening.

The towns which have not as yet been visited by "In Tovero" can expect to see a performance which requires no sentimental interest in the players or the Michigan College of Mines to bring enjoyment to its auditors. And the fact that the show in its entirety was produced by students without extraneous aid of any kind makes its artistic success the more to be praised. Not only the performance but the orchestral accompaniment was the work of the students. The orchestra was composed wholly of students and its work was flawless.

WILL SOON HAVE RURAL DELIVERY

Bay de Noc Township Prepares for Installation of Rural Delivery System—Three Young Men Take Examination for Carrier—Escanaba People Meet With Mishap.

(Special Correspondence.)

Stonington, Mich., May 4.—Bay de Noc township has decided to adopt the rural free delivery of the mail and arrangements are now being made for it. A post with a new mail box is being planted before each gate and three of the most prominent of the young men of Stonington are daily watching the mails for the returns of an examination taken in Escanaba two weeks ago for the decision as to who shall be the prospective mail carrier. The mail will be distributed every second day.

The dancing party given by the Stonington orchestra was well attended and proved a great success. A large party of Escanaba people who came over in a gasoline launch, became confused in the fog, missed their landing and ran on a sandbar. After two hours work they were rescued by Mr. Jacobsen, who rowed them ashore.

The late blizzard did not affect the crops very much at Stonington. Previous years has taught the farmers that experiments at early planting generally end disastrously.

Miss Clara Themel visited her sister here last Sunday.

THE SPOICE OF LIFE

"Can you study human nature at the soda fountain?" echoed the druggist when asked the question. "Well, I guess I am interested and entertained every day. According to my estimate, there is only one class of men that really enjoy their soda water or reap the full benefits of it."

"And what may that class be?" was asked.

"The lawyer. I doubt if you ever saw a lawyer in a hurry on the street. He doesn't come rushing into the store and gasp out what syrup he'll take in his, but he saunters in to ask: 'Good, Doc, have you any soda water?'"

"I think so."

"Then I guess I'll taste it. Give me lemon in mine."

"No hurry at all, you know, and no kicking about the weather. I hand him a glass and he sips and stands back. Then he finds some one to talk politics to. While he talks he sips, and he is a quarter of an hour finishing his drink. Sometimes he leaves a little in the glass. I have seen perspiring men look at him as if they thirsted for his blood. Collar just as stiff as when first ironed, and his mind at peace with all the world. I believe he gets as much benefit from the one glass as some men do from three, and everything goes off so calmly that I hate to take his money. Go to the ant, thou sluggard. In other words, take a pointer from the lawyer as to how to get 2 cents worth of good out of a 5-cent glass of soda water. The man who swigs it down doesn't know what a good thing it is."
