

BEATTIE CASE WILL REACH JURY TONIGHT

ATTORNEYS SMITH AND WENDENBURG ARE BEING HEARD THIS AFTERNOON.

PRISONER STARES WAXLIKE.

Attorney Carter Bespeaks in Bitter Terms the Aversion to Society and the Life of Disipation Depicted by Young Beattie—Prisoner is Immobile.

(By Associated Press.)

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Sept. 8.—The Henry Clay Beattie case will go to the jury tonight. This is seen this afternoon, as the attorneys are about to close their arguments.

For five hours yesterday afternoon in a hot, stuffy and crowded court room, Attorney Hill Carter, with a plea of pathos and argument, sought the hearts of the twelve jurors in an effort to secure the acquittal of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife on the Middlethine turnpike last July.

Denounces Beattie. From the depth of an argument in which he unsparringly denounced Paul Beattie, cousin of the accused and the principal witness against him, Mr. Carter at times fairly shouted to the jury as he leaned over the bar, but when the day was drawing to a close his voice sank to a whisper of impassioned appeal.

Cousin's Confession Attacked. The day began with the reading by Judge Watson of the instructions to the jury. More vital than usual, they drew particular attention to the alleged confession of Henry Beattie to Paul Beattie and the manner in which it came—in jail from an incarcerated witness to the commonwealth's attorney.

Attorney J. M. Gregory, who opened the argument for the prosecution, laid particular stress on the awfulness of the crime, the admission of the accused himself on the witness stand as to his relations with Beulah Binford and his continuance with them, notwithstanding his marriage and the birth of a child.

ALLEN ARREST IS FIRST OF SERIES

MANY WILL FOLLOW INDICTMENT OF KENOSHA MILLIONAIRE FOR SMUGGLING.

(By Associated Press.) New York, Sept. 8.—The indictments against Nathan Allen of Kenosha and John C. Collins of Memphis for smuggling the Jenkins jewels, it was learned today is only one step in the governments efforts to uncover an international scandal.

United States government agents are in Chicago to serve indictment papers on Nathan Allen, millionaire banker and leather manufacturer of Kenosha, and John R. Collins, a coal operator of Memphis, on the charge of smuggling.

Both men are the erstwhile admirers of Helen Dwelle, latterly known as Mrs. Jenkins, adventuress at large.

The jewels, it is currently reported, were originally a present to the woman from her admirer, Mr. Allen, but some of the gems were stolen from her under circumstances that were mysterious and she lost the others in one way or another.

Allen, in company with his attorney, W. S. Forrest is coming to Chicago in a private car from the Allen ranch in Montana.

BALL AND BAT NOTES

Red Doolin got his idea of tagging base runners from watching football. A pitcher who is not worth $5,000 this year does not seem to be in the running. President Lynch's "indefinite suspension" is definite, so far as Magee is concerned. Barney Dreyfuss may have spent something besides that $22,500 for pitcher O'Toole. There seems more fighting in the National league than merely the struggle for the pennant. Fred Tenney may surprise every one by whipping his ex-Cub and ex-Giants into championship shape. A great many of the fans do not take much stock in the belief that the Tigers are on the toboggan. "Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

Major League Notes

Heine Berger, former pitcher of the Naps but now a member of the Marlon, O., team, fanned seventeen of the Springfield batters on Sunday, and the league scouts begin to think they overlooked a good thing in the former big leaguer. Connie Mack has admitted the Athletics are not the drawing card on the road that the Tigers were in their championship days. The reason for this is the present champions are not spectacular like the Tigers were. It will be a great injustice to George Stovall if he is deposed as manager of the Naps next year in favor of Harry Davis. Stovall has made the Naps a winning combination, while Davis is still an unknown quantity as a leader. Joe Tinker is playing one of the fastest games in the league. He had an especially good day of it yesterday and several times he made line stops in deep short and got his man at first by perfect throws that brought the fans to their feet. Orvie Overall has been elected a director in the big gold mine that has enticed him away from baseball. His father is the new president of the company, and the stream of gold is increasing each day. A York, Pa., woman who is willing to pay $20,000 for an index finger should get into communication with Three Finger Brown of the Cubs, who is already shy one digit and wouldn't protest much at losing another. Cincinnati will erect a new stand next winter, and Rhinelander fans hope that while he is about it, Owner Herrmann will erect a new pitching staff. One way to make Earl Moore win more games than any other pitcher in the country is to tell him twice a week that he is to be traded. Heavens! Frank Chance didn't suspend or fine any Cub last week! Leon Ames was born on Friday the 13th, can never pick up a mirror without breaking it and has a penchant for walking under ladders. No wonder that the veteran Giant had so much hard luck! If you would take the word of scouts for it, there are about 6,000 Cobbs, 5,000 Collinses, and 4,000 Alexanderers in the minor leagues. The only thing to beat the Athletics in the west has been rain. For a mild, easy action of the bowels, a single dose of Doan's Regulets is enough. Treatment cures habitual constipation. 25 cents a box. Ask your druggist for them.

With The Fighters

Tom Jones declared yesterday that his protegee, Ad Wolgast, would do but little training for this match. Wolgast weighs but 131 now and is in good condition. He has been doing light work at Cadillac, and now that he has taken up quarters here will continue with the light work. Wolgast says he is in the best of shape at the present time and would go into the ring now and fight his best fight. Wolgast will do his training at Harry Nelson's roadhouse on the Janesville plank road. They're touting Matt Wells as champion probably since his Madison Square garden fuss with K. O. Brown in which he handled the idol of Gotham just about as he pleased. Neither Matt nor Brown, though, is figuring upon fighting again right away with their split of that $30,000 gate money burning a hole in their pockets. If Packey McFarland's condition improves during the next nine days as much as it did in one night an day under the personal supervision of Emil Thiry, his trainer and manager, the stockyards boy should be right when he meets Wolgast on September 15. The south side favorite went through eight rounds and three fighters in true championship style yesterday at O'Connell's showing more speed than ever. He weighed in at 138 1/2 pounds before beginning the grind, according to Thiry, and lost a pound after tampering with the weights, shadow boxing, bag punching and fighting. Tommy Gary, the Chicago Heavyweight, and Church Larson were matched yesterday to box before the club offering the best inducement. Marty Forkins acting for Gary and Emil Thiry for Larson. Phil Schlossberg has turned down Sam Langford's offer for a bout in the near future. Schlossberg feels that he has not had enough experience to meet the "Tar Baby." While the white hopes are dropping all along the line, Samuel Langford Boston continues to be a demoralized successful black hope. Poor Ducky. The boys and girls sit around a circle, and some one is chosen to be poor ducky. It then falls to the of ducky to quack in front of some one player who must stroke ducky head and say, "Poor ducky, poor ducky!" repeating words three times without smiling. The player smiles while he is stroking the duck's head or she must change places with ducky. To make it all harder for the players to keep laughing ducky should make the comical faces he knows how while quacking, and the funnier his more fun there will be. Do know, a lot of us grown girls play this game the other evening, and it lots of fun to see all the guests so sober and dignified and then burst out into a hearty laugh.

Brief Notes From Neighboring Cities

Mayor Short declared this morning that when President Taft and his suite visit the Soo on September 19, the city hall, fire hall and other municipal buildings will be decorated as never before. An effort to this end will probably reach its climax Monday evening when the council will undoubtedly put through an appropriation of sufficient size to cover the expenses for such work. Because the exact amount needed for the decorations was not known no move was made at last night's council meeting to secure such an appropriation. D. G. Wilson, teller at the Lumbermen's National bank in Menominee met with an accident last night while riding home on his bicycle on Ogden avenue which rendered him unconscious for nearly twenty hours and caused a severe concussion of the brain. Mr. Wilson rounded the corner at Main street and Ogden avenue at a moderate rate of speed and collided with a boy coming from the west on a bicycle according to M. H. Kern. Mr. Kern says the boy was on the wrong side of the street and that Mr. Wilson tried to get out of the way. So far as is known Mr. Kern was the sole witness to the accident. Word has been received by Oconto relatives that one of the unidentified men killed in the wreck on the Soo line near Neenah, was Alex Lesperance of Oconto. Lesperance was riding the blind baggage on the "Velvet Special" when the train was derailed and he was hurled many feet when the wreck occurred. When picked up his body was badly mangled and it was difficult to identify him. The school census of the city of Marinette was recently completed and shows a slight falling off from last year. The total number of children in the city, between the ages of 4 and 20, is 5,590. This is about a hundred less than last year. The boys number 2,817 and the girls 2,773. Saved Storage Charges. Young men with meager salaries evolve financial makeshifts abhorrent to the moral and physical sensibilities of their opulent elders. Said one young sprig of boarding house gentility to another who expected to seek new quarters upon his return from a two months' trip on the road: "What are you going to do with all this personal truck that is cluttering up your room? It will cost you anywhere a dollar a month for storage." "Not the way I am working things," said the man who was going away. "I have purposely refrained from paying board for four weeks, and the landlady will hold my stuff. Of course I shall square up when I come back and get it again, and in the meantime she will give it free storage."—New York Times. Stops earache; in two minutes toothache or pain of burn or scald in five minutes; hoarseness, one hour; mucleache, two hours; sore throat, twelve hours.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil, monarch over pain.

The SKY PIRATE by GARRETT P. SERVISS.

PROLOGUE. The sea pirate of long been a fascinating figure of romance...

CHAPTER III. TEN MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM.

MR. GRAYMAN on the morning after the events already described waited long at the breakfast table...

keeper. "I was a little rude in my excitement this morning," he said to her...

"UNDERSTAND THAT THIS IS A PROFOUND SECRET."

tion of his dissimulation, and the housekeeper solemnly accepted his statement.

Mr. Grayman rode to his office and immediately summoned Police Commissioner Bramer by telephone.

"What infernal trick are you trying on me?" exclaimed Mr. Grayman, losing his temper and at the same time recovering his nerve...

"Your daughter! Disappeared!" he gasped.

"Stop a moment!" said Grayman. "Understand that this is a profound secret and must remain so. I will make it worth your while to shut the mouth of every detective that you employ."

And Grayman proceeded to tell the story of the morning. When he had finished he asked in his blunt, autocratic way:

"Now, tell me what you will do. What is your plan?"

"I can have no plan yet," he said, "but I'll find one. With your permission I'll send a confidential man to your house and get a basis for further action."

"Very well," said Grayman; "let it be done. But remember my restriction. Not a word must escape anywhere—not a single word or hint."

The chief promised the most absolute secrecy and, with great perturbation of mind, returned in all haste to headquarters.

When Mr. Grayman was left alone his self command relaxed. His daughter was dearer to him than his fortune. He could not drive the agonizing thought of her strange disappearance from his mind...

"Hello!" came a voice that he did not recognize. "Reply undirected."

This meant that Grayman should respond with a "hello" sent out by undirected waves, radiating on all sides, so that they would reach the original speaker whatever his location might be.

As Grayman recalled what he had heard and read of Payton's horrible sensation came over him. Helen must be rescued at once! He must cooperate with this villain and get the better of him when he could.

Accordingly he spoke the word. "I congratulate you on your good sense, Mr. Grayman," came the instant response...

"Hello! What do you want?" "William Grayman" came the response, interrogatively inflected.

"Yes." "Himself—in person?" "Very good. In the air."

This last phrase may also need a word of explanation. It is used to indicate that the interlocutor is absent and that he either does not know or does not take the trouble to designate his position in the atmosphere by reference to some known point on the earth's surface.

"Who is it?" demanded Mr. Grayman.

"What nonsense is this?" exclaimed Mr. Grayman impatiently. "How have you dared?"

"No nonsense at all, Mr. Grayman," the voice again interrupted, "and as for daring, listen I took your daughter Helen from your house last night, and she, with her maid Susan, are here on my aero, the Chameleon."

There was a cold, self confident, convincing tone to the voice that sent a shiver through the billionaire's nerves. He wiped the cold sweat from his brow with one hand, while with the other he clung to the receiver and pressed it to his ear.

"If you meet my demand she will be restored to you without publicity and without injury. You are the richest man in the world, they say. You best know how you have acquired your riches, but that is no affair of mine. I have, however, a pressing need of a part of your plunder. My terms are $10,000,000."

"What infernal trick are you trying on me?" exclaimed Mr. Grayman, losing his temper and at the same time recovering his nerve and the incredulity natural to a man in such circumstances.

"It must be that some crank has found out my number," said the billionaire to himself. "I must see the company about this."

He was about to drop the receiver when the voice began again: "If you want to see your daughter again, Mr. Grayman, you'll not try to cut off this conversation. If you still don't know me ask any newspaper man or almost any man in the street who Alfonso Payton is and what he does when he makes a good capture and gets no response to a fair offer. I repeat that I have your daughter. I took her from the window of her room with my aero last night. I will release her for the sum that I have named. Ten million dollars will leave hardly a perceptible vacancy in your pocket, but that which will happen to your daughter if you fail to pay will pickle your heart in vitriol. I know you have a heart—for her."

Mr. Grayman's anger vanished again, and a cold fear began to take its place. His incredulity vanished also. His daughter was gone, and this might really be the explanation of her disappearance. He suddenly remembered to have heard of Payton and his evil doings. He recalled the name of the Chameleon also.

The voice began again, and Mr. Grayman could but listen:

"I beg you, for your own and your daughter's sake, not to make the mistake of thinking that this is a trick. What I am telling you is the exact truth. I hold the girl, and I have all the trumps in my hand. Don't think of the police. They can't help you. No one ever succeeded in running me down, and no one ever will. Now give me your answer. Will you deal with me for the life and honor of your daughter or will you not? Yes or no. If yes, I will tell you how to proceed. If no, I shall lose no time in making Helen wish that she had had a father who loved her."

During all of this extraordinary conversation Payton, in the cabin of the Chameleon, with Helen only a few feet away, was sending his messages "directed," and consequently his words were heard only by Mr. Grayman, but the latter's replies were "undirected" and might have been heard by a hundred persons in a hundred different places, although, of course, they would have possessed no significance.

As Grayman recalled what he had heard and read of Payton's horrible sensation came over him. Helen must be rescued at once! He must cooperate with this villain and get the better of him when he could. What harm to promise the ten millions? In his heart he felt that he would willingly give them to have his daughter once more in his arms.

"Come! No fooling, Mr. Grayman. I have your daughter right here in my hands. No power under God can save her if you do not answer me instantly."

"I dare not say 'yes,'" thought the billionaire, "for all this may be true. I'll answer 'yes,' and then we shall see."

Accordingly he spoke the word. "I congratulate you on your good sense, Mr. Grayman," came the instant response...

"Hello! What do you want?" "William Grayman" came the response, interrogatively inflected.

friends on the ground, and you must not come in an aero. We will meet alone, man to man, and I pledge you my word, which I have never broken, that no personal injury will be offered to you.

Mr. Grayman called out, "Where are you?" But this time there was no response. The conversation was ended.

The billionaire sank back into his chair, his thoughts still in a whirl. But he could not get away from the conviction that his daughter was really the pirate's prisoner.

"Do you know Alfonso Payton?" Mr. Grayman asked as soon as the commissioner entered. The latter stared dumfounded.

"Payton hasn't got her, has he? Then God help you!" he blurted out.

"Yes! I fear that that is the situation. I have just had a talk with the outlaw, who called me up by wireless from nowhere and demanded $10,000,000 ransom."

"Ten million dollars!" cried the commissioner. "Yes, $10,000,000," Mr. Grayman responded testily. "Do you think that would break me, or do you think that my daughter is not worth it?"

Mr. Grayman's irritation arose from the remembrance of Payton's insolent tones as he had made the demand, and the commissioner winced at his angry glance. Then he begged pardon, explaining that such sums were unusual in his arithmetic.

"Well, he always does. You see, this wireless telegraph and telephone business is an enormously powerful lever in his hands. In former times kidnapers had to write letters, and letters can be traced, but Payton carries his victims off in a swift aero that nobody has ever been able to follow—a perfect

"WHERE ARE YOU?"

whet of a thing, according to all reports—and then he talks ransom with their friends from heaven knows where. He leaves no track and no clues in the air. I've never had to deal with him myself, for this is the first time that he has ventured into New York, but I've heard all about him from different parts of the country."

"He gave me a precise address where to meet him," said Grayman.

"And do you think you'll catch him there?"

"How can he hope to get the money if he doesn't meet me?"

"Ah, I see that you are not up to the tricks of these crooks. Payton will watch the place from his aero like a hawk. If he sees any signs of a trap you might as well try to catch a bird by putting salt on its tail."

"What then? Would you have me tamely pay over $10,000,000 and not try to catch the wretch?"

"I don't say that," the commissioner responded thoughtfully. "But if it were an ordinary sum I might."

"Humph!" exclaimed Mr. Grayman. "Then you won't try to help me?"

"On the contrary, I will. But we have got to go to work with extreme caution."

"Tell me your plan, then."

"I've got no plan yet. It needs thinking over."

"Think quick, then, and you can name your price if you show me a way to get this infamous reprobate into my power. But before and above all I must have my daughter safe in my hands."

"That's just the difficulty. You have two days, you say. Tribes Hill is within four hours' journey by rail from New York. Give me until tomorrow to arrange my plan."

PIRATE LEADER HAS BRILLIANT CAREER

Fred Clarke, Manager and Captain of Pittsburg Team.

Fred Clarke has been a major league manager for fourteen years, and has developed some of the greatest stars that the game has ever known.

He has won four pennants and one world's championship. Starting out as a grocery man's delivery boy, he has amassed a fortune and a world-wide reputation.

He owns a big ranch in Kansas and says when his baseball days are over he will go there to spend the rest of his life.

During his entire career on the diamond Clarke has been one of the leading hitters of the game, and he has an average of over .300 for fifteen years.

In 1897 he was second in the National league to Willie Keeler, with an average of .406.

Cubs Get Veteran Pitcher. Charlie Smith, the veteran Boston and Washington pitcher, has been purchased by the Cubs from the Newark, N. J., club.

SEVEN MANAGERS GO

Big League Owners Planning to Make Many Changes.

Jim McAleer Expects to Drop Out at Washington and Clarke Griffith Hasn't Any Chance to Slick at Cincinnati.

The recent shifting of managers in the major leagues two or three years ago is likely to be outdone at the end of the present season, when no less than seven skippers of unfortunate second division outfits will be asked to show cause why they should not be supplanted.

This is Jim McAleer's last season as a major league manager. Although he is drawing $10,000 a year in Washington and his contract doesn't expire until after the season of 1912, McAleer is disgusted over affairs in Washington and will get out. The Washington club runs along with no business management or staff of scouts, such as other clubs employ, and McAleer consequently finds himself stuck with a team of veterans.

Clarke Griffith hasn't a chance to stick in Cincinnati the way things are going there. Griff registered a failure with the Reds, although he commands a team of individual stars and has spent much money in the upkeep of his machine.

Other managers who may be asked to move are Patay Donovan, of the Boston Americans; Bob Wallace of the St. Louis Browns; George Stovall of Cleveland; Fred Tenney, Boston Nationals; and possibly Bill Dahlen of Brooklyn.

In St. Louis it is believed that Bob Wallace will voluntarily resign the management of the Browns, but will remain with the team. Fred Lake will be his successor if there is a change. Fred Tenney's days in Boston are said to be numbered. It is officially denied, but nevertheless, it is a certainty that Johnny Kling has been promised the management of the Rustlers.

Harry Davis has been offered the management of the Cleveland team, and probably will accept next winter. George Stovall, the present leader of the Naps, is willing to become a private again. Stovall's appointment to succeed McGuire has never been considered as anything but a temporary arrangement.

Garry Herrmann will find it difficult to get a good man to replace Griffith. Players and managers regard Cincinnati as the city to be avoided except as members of visiting teams. Griff has never been forgiven for dismissing Huggins, Mowery and Ellis, three players who have greatly assisted Roger Bresnahan in registering the managerial hit of the year. On the Cincinnati team at present there isn't a player who appears capable of making a success of the Reds.

Bill Dahlen has had some hard luck in Brooklyn. This is his second year, and if the Dodgers fail to finish higher than seventh Dahlen may be asked to quit. Bill knows a lot of baseball, but doesn't seem to be able to impart his knowledge to the athletes drawing salary from Charles H. Ebbets; at least not to any great extent.

HARRY LORD TO BE MANAGER

Rumor is Circulated in Chicago That Present Captain of White Sox is to Succeed Duffy.

In Chicago word is being passed around that Harry Lord is slated to succeed Hugh Duffy as manager of the White Sox, the change to be made at the close of the present season.

It is said that Duffy's handling of the team has not come up to Comiskey's expectations, and that next year Hugh will be on the Comiskey payroll as a scout, says the Sporting News. Both men are being groomed for their new job. Duffy has been absent from the team several times this season looking up new material, while the Sox have been ably handled by the brainy Lord. Lord takes baseball seriously. Graduating from Bates college five years ago, he found baseball a remunerative occupation and signed with Jesse Burkett's Worcester team

Harry Lord.

In 1906, Lord graduated to Providence in the following year and was drafted by the Boston Red Sox in the fall of 1907. He made good in the American league from the start and soon was acknowledged to be the best third baseman in the Johnson circuit. He became captain of the Red Sox in 1909, succeeding Doc Gessler. Something went wrong between Lord and the Taylor regime last year, and Lord was traded to the White Sox. He is now playing the best ball of his career and is battling well over the .300 mark. He was made captain of the White Sox late last season, but next year, Windy City fans say, it will be Manager Lord.

OVER LAWEED.

This country is lawed beyond the point of endurance. Every Congress places hundreds of new laws on the statute books and every state legislature adds several hundred to the already formidable array.

When one is doing best to keep track of some introduced measure, different reports are made of such bill; it is referred; it is given a third reading; it is killed; it is again reconsidered and the matter clinched by being surely killed.

But this is not always the last. Somewhere in the proceedings the bill comes to life unexpectedly and is passed, signed and the people in a mysterious fashion do not hear of it until after the legislature has adjourned.

It is generally found such bills are not in the interests of the people, perhaps private bills, perhaps public bills, but some way they get through. Perhaps it may be the fashion in coming years to elect members upon platforms of repealing laws already in existence, that is for every new law introduced there must be three old laws repealed.

A WOMAN JURY.

Spokane, Washington, is now proceeding on the theory that in a state where women vote it is proper that women should be called upon for jury duty. Sixteen hundred names of women taxpayers in Spokane county have been drawn by the county clerk for service in the Superior Court during the coming year, and from this list, among others, the jurors will be chosen.

selected to decide cases covering nearly every offense in the state code. The list includes society matrons, school teachers, clerks and housewives in Spokane, also women orchardists and poultry-growers making their homes in the urban districts. It will be interesting to watch the outcome of the experiment. As to its popularity among women much will depend upon the reasonableness of the judges in the matter of granting releases to those who can present good excuses. It is easy to imagine that women with the care of households resting on their shoulders might find it a hardship to be made to serve. Judges as a rule are quite ready to accept excuses given in good faith by business men. If the fact that a man's business cannot spare him secures a release, why should not a similar excuse from a woman receive equal consideration? It's a rule that will not work both ways.

MUST HAVE MIDDLEMEN.

From The Buffalo Times..... Farmers' products sell to the consumer at from two to six times the price received by the farmer, who is the producer. For years it has been the aim of the producer to get nearer the final buyer because of the evil practices of some middlemen. Distressing stories are abundant of the cheating and lying of produce dealers in their business with consignors of food stuffs.

The grange movement had for one of its objects the cutting out of the middlemen. It partly succeeded. But it is found that even when farmers make a club in a single neighborhood for marketing their products they have to find a middleman to do their work. The main thing, however, is that they choose one of their number, usually, in whom they can trust for a square deal.

To make the movement most effective it is needed that city markets be made what they were intended to be, that is, places where the farmer and the citizens may get together and deal at first hand. Where goods must be assembled, and kept for a time, and handled only on call, the cost of that method must far exceed the one of immediate sale daily. Other cities than Buffalo are reverting to the original market idea, with the best results.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back the Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation which a chemist by the name of Wyeth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is a pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappear. Don't neglect your hair. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and you will be surprised at the quick results. This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

A Challenge
By REGINALD D'HAVEN

Monty Sherman was ambitious to fight a duel. Monty was still young when he married and went on the Mediterranean trip to Italy for a wedding tour. He talked so fiercely about what he would do if he had any trouble with any one in foreign lands that his bride was nearly scared to death.

In Rome Mr. and Mrs. Sherman were constantly to be seen, when not engaged in sightseeing, seated on their favorite sidewalk outside a cafe in the Piazza Colonna, the lady sipping something, the man smoking cigarettes. One day Monty wished to go a short distance around the corner to buy some cigars, and his wife chose to remain where she was till he returned. While he was gone an Italian faultlessly dressed stepped up to the bride and, raising his hat politely, said something in Italian which she did not understand. She turned away from him, and he passed on.

When her husband returned, forgetting his duelistic propensities, his wife told him of the occurrence. He at once became very much enraged. "But the man was very polite." "That doesn't matter. He shall apologize."

Mrs. Sherman tried to reason with him, but to no purpose. He rushed in to the cafe and asked the proprietor if he had seen the man who had spoken to his wife. The proprietor said that he had not, but called several of the waiters who happened to notice the episode, one of whom said the man was Signor Capponi, who came to the cafe every afternoon.

Monty could not wait for the next afternoon to avenge the insult to his young bride, so he asked the proprietor for Capponi's address. The proprietor gave it as No. — Via Nazionale. He tried to say something else, but Monty did not understand him. Indeed, he was so hot that all he wished to know was Capponi's street and number, which he received written on a card.

Then Monty took his wife to their hotel on the Via Cavour and, leaving her there, went to the number on the Via Nazionale given him, where he found a store for the sale of books and stationery. Monty, who was bent on doing things as he had always read of their being done in affairs of honor, entered the store and asked a clerk who advanced to meet him if he spoke English.

"Si, signor, a little." Monty thereupon told him that he wished to see Signor Capponi. The clerk managed with difficulty to tell Monty that Signor Capponi was out. Then Monty told him to tell Signor Capponi when he came in that he had insulted a lady and there must be an apology or a fight. Then he threw down his card on the counter. The clerk took it up and began to talk to Monty about it in a mixed language of three-fourths Italian and one-fourth execrable English. He got out the words "How much?" to which Monty replied, "Immediately." The clerk made a pencil mark on the card, and Monty, taking it from him, wrote Grand Hotel on it. Then he stalked out, saying that he would await a reply at the address given.

Now, if there is a matter of life and death on the tapis it is better to have an interpreter. The clerk had not understood one word of what Monty had said, and vice versa. Monty returned to his hotel, where he tried to act before his wife as if nothing of importance had happened. But the eye of love is not to be deceived. Mrs. Sherman worked upon him till he confessed that he had challenged Signor Capponi to deadly combat. She was in despair. She was sure he would be killed. She was so troubled that he half regretted he had been so precipitate, especially since his wife, who understood a little Italian, said she thought the man asked her if he might not take an order for some merchandise.

Monty received no reply to his challenge that evening, and before he went to bed his wife secured a promise from him that if Signor Capponi did not accept he (Monty) would let the matter drop. The next day passed, but still Capponi sent no representative to arrange a meeting. The bride was beginning to hope that the trouble had fallen through when a waiter announced that some one wished to see Signor Sherman in the reception room. Mrs. Sherman insisted on going down with her husband, and he was unable to prevent her. Entering the reception room together, an Italian, handsomely dressed, arose, poking a card at Monty.

Mrs. Sherman gasped and clutched her heart. Monty looked at the card and was surprised to see that it was the one he had left at Capponi's, pencil marks and all. Then the visitor handed him a little packet. Monty pulled off the cover and found a hundred of his own visiting cards. Then the man shoved a bill under his nose for 10 francs. Mrs. Sherman gave a sigh of relief. "Oh, how fortunate!" she exclaimed. "They must have mistaken the card you left for a sample and supposed you wished some cards printed." Monty smiled a sickly smile. The next day at the cafe on the piazza colonna they saw Capponi soliciting orders for visiting cards. All of which goes to show that men who send challenges for deadly combat should do so in the language of the country.

SOUTHPAWS HAVE A DISASTROUS SEASON

Outside of Veau Gregg of the Naps and Eddie Plank of the Athletics, the left hand pitchers in the American league have had a disastrous season, as these two are practically all of the southpaws in the circuit who have been consistent winners. In fact the only others to win more than half their games are Danforth, with two victories and one defeat, Becker of Washington, with three wins and one loss, and Krause, who has won seven out of twelve.

Altogether, the left-handers have won 109 and lost 114 games, but 37 of the 109 games were won by Gregg and Plank. Eliminate these two from the list and the southpaws have won 72 and lost 101 games.

Dolly Gray of the Nationals has been the worst bloomer, as he has won only four games, losing thirteen.
 Vaughan of the Yankees, expected to excel Gregg, won eight out of eighteen.
 Naturally, the two St. Louis southpaws have failed to break even. With the browns behind them, nothing else could be expected. Hamilton having won five and lost ten, while George grabbed two out of seven.

The Boston left-handers were touted highly in the winter books, but each has fallen just one short of getting an even break, while Willie Mitchell has won eight and lost ten.

Not one of the Chicago trio of southpaws has broken even. White has won eleven and lost twelve;
 Young won four and lost eight, while
 Baker has won but two out of nine.

CONNIE MACK PICKS PITCHERS YOUNG

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—Connie Mack entered town the other day, and while on his way to the ball park saw a number of youngsters playing on a sand lot. It was one of the unac-countable junior organizations that abound in the Hub, but it mattered not to the astute leader of the Athletics. While seemingly he did not pay any attention to the players, yet he was interested enough to note what the pitcher was doing. He was a youngster below the league age, but he was splendidly developed. That night the youth was sought out by the representative of Connie's and he and both the sand lotter and his parents were affixing their John Hancock's to contracts.

Capt. Harry Davis of the world's champions is the author of the story, and it has been backed up by a scribe accompanying the team. It was pointed out that Mack gains some of his most famous players in the vicinity of Massachusetts. He picked up Stuffy McInnes from off a warf at Glou-chester, Jack Barry from off a college campus at Worcester and Cy Coombs
 from off a Maine farm at Kennebec.
 These are but a few of the stars secured hereabouts. It's just the opposite with John I Taylor. Nearly all of his players come from the Pacific coast or Texas. It has been said that he would not look at a player this side of the Pacific coast. While he has been gathering a few stars, after time and effort, not to say money, Connie Mack has stood on the threshold of his native city and had unrecognized stars literally fired at him.

It is said that the youngster secured by Connie gives ample evidence of developing into a crack pitcher. He has been pitching on a number of teams in this vicinity, and has gained considerable local fame.

MARINETTE WANTS TO ENTER M-D LEAGUE

(Special to The Mirror.)

Marinette, Sept. 8.—Now that baseball enthusiasm is at a good pitch in the city there is more league talk.
 Local fans believe that Marinette could make a success of membership in a league and they believe that both Marinette and Menominee should enter the upper peninsula league, which now consists of Escanaba, Negaunee, Ishpeming and Marquette. This would make it a six club league with the distance between cities not very large. Now that there is a two cent fare in the upper peninsula it also makes travel less expensive.

The next games to be played by Marinette will be with the Union
 Giants, the strong colored organization of Chicago. The ebony hewed men will be seen Saturday and Sunday at the State street park and some great games are expected. Schinners and Schott will twirl for Marinette. The Oshkosh league team wanted a game with Marinette tomorrow but the local management did not care to take the game in mid-week. Quite a number of local fans will go to Oconto tomorrow to see the game between the Green Bay state league team and Menominee.

CHIC LACE TUNIC.

Smart Overdress of Irish and Chantilly.

OVERDRESS OF IRISH AND CHANTILLY
 LACES.

An overdress of lace is a modish and economical investment, as it may be worn on a number of occasions with a change of silk slip, thus practically bringing about an entirely new effect in one's costume.

Sewing by System.
 A business girl claims to have solved
 the sewing question for business won-en by a little plan of her own. Everybody knows how many times one might put in fifteen or twenty minutes, or even half an hour, sewing. If only the work were "handy." But the time would be largely spent getting things together, so no effort is made.

This girl condenses her sewing room into two pasteboard boxes. One contains materials and patterns and a smaller box holding thread, needle-case, scissors, thimble, etc. A garment is cut out and laid in box No. 2, with the trimmings, etc., to be used in making it up. It is but a moment's work to get out the part of the garment on which one is working; all the implements are at hand, and it is surprising how much headway can be made in a few spare moments.

Ideal Outing Hat.

 rather expensive, they pay for themselves many times over, for they are the end of the season can be reblocked

 The panama hat illustrated is ideal for wear during the early fall days in the mountains and is simply trimmed with white ribbon.
