

BEATTIE IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

WIFE MURDERER SENTENCED TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR ON NOVEMBER 24.

JURY PRAYS BEFORE DECIDING.

Beattie Takes Sentence Calmly, After Reading Sporting Page and Smoking Cigarette—Less Than an Hour Required by Jury to Bring in Verdict.

(By Associated Press.)

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Sept. 9.—Twelve Virginia farmers met at dusk last night in the obscurity of the small jury room of Chesterfield court house, praying fervently that they might pass judgment aright on Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife.

Grimly determined, they arose a moment later and silently, one by one, recorded a unanimous verdict of "guilty." Pausing in silent contemplation for fifty-eight minutes, weighing carefully the meaning of their decision and once more on bended knees beseeching divine assistance that they might not err, they fled into the hushed stillness of the crowded courtroom and with startling suddenness twelve voices, instead of the usual one of the foreman, spoke the fatal word, "Guilty." It was almost a shout.

Specter of Death Stalks Again.

The specter of death which stalked the Middleton turnpike on July 18, last, when the life of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie was taken away with the single report of a shotgun, stared hard at the young husband, ready to claim its victim by electrocution on Friday, Nov. 24, next. But the prisoner returned the gaze unswerving and unafraid.

The court of appeals, to be sure, will be asked to grant a writ of error and a new trial. Young Beattie, cognizant of the legal weapons yet at his disposal, did not surrender. Instead, he consoled his broken down father, white haired and wrinkled, and comforted him, as he whispered, "I haven't lost yet, father."

Unusual as has been the tragedy and the gruesome stage where it occurred, the twelve jurymen did not hesitate to admit to their friends that they stood in judgment not only over the coldblooded murderer, but upon his marital infidelity as well. It perhaps was the most dramatic climax of Virginia justice which in the last half century has swiftly sent to death such famous murderers as Cluverius, Phillips and McCue.

Prosecutor's Plea Eloquent.

At the close of a powerful address by Attorney L. O. Wendenburg, the voluntary assistant of the commonwealth in the case, the suspense was felt not alone in the courtroom, but in Richmond, where thousands of people awaited the outcome.

The jurors had for eleven days heard evidence, and for two days speeches, but the words of Attorney Wendenburg rang in their ears as they left the courtroom:

"Let that man go free!" he cried. "What, let that man go free?" Why, the womanhood of Virginia, the womanhood of this nation would shudder in terror as the security of its life is threatened. Let this man go free! The man who basked in the degraded sunshine of another woman while at his home his young wife nursed his child? Gentlemen, I merely ask you in the name of justice to do your duty."

In vivid detail the prosecutor pictured the wife as she started on her innocent journey into the cool air of the summer night. The jury saw again in their minds the automobile in which she rode at the side of her husband; how Beattie stepped into the side of the thicket, found the shotgun which he had earlier concealed and deliberately slew his wife. The desperate ride home with the bleeding and lifeless body, crushed into the small space in the front part of the machine, the husband coldly sitting against the blood-covered head of his wife, were graphically detailed

STACK OPTION HAS NOT BEEN RENEWED

MANISTIQUE IS WONDERING IF EXPECTED BOOM OF CITY WILL FALL THROUGH.

Expiration of Options Occurred on August 30 and No Renewals Have Yet Been Noted on Holding of Chicago Lumbering Company Property—Expect Re-opening.

The following is from the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune:

"It has been definitely ascertained that the option held by the Stack interests on the holdings of the Chicago Lumbering company, expired on August 30th, and was not renewed. The matter may again be reopened at a later period, but at the present time there is no likelihood that another option will be taken on the entire holdings, but it is within the pale of possibility that the holdings across the river may yet be acquired by the interests in question. The Stacks have an option on the Manistique railroad and the mill at Grand Marais, and same expires Sept. 15th. It remains to be seen whether or not the little city on the shores of Lake Superior will be resuscitated.

The failure of the Stacks to avail themselves of the local option, may be attributed to their failure to interest other capital in the consummation of the plan, which would have resulted in the merging of the mutual interests of the Stacks and the C. L. Co. holdings into a company with sufficient capital to insure the success of the deal. The two interests own a vast acreage in the upper peninsula, much of it covered with timber. Much of it would also make good farming land. If combined as was planned, the new company would have been one of the largest owners of land in the peninsula."

MR. AND MRS. ROYCE RETURN FROM TRIP

LOCAL PEOPLE COMPLETE AUTO JOURNEY OF OVER 5,000 MILES LAST EVENING.

After a trip of over 5,000 miles which extended as far west as Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Royce arrived in Escanaba last evening and can well lay claim to long distance touring. The trip was not a record breaker as far as speed is concerned, but was made in a leisurely manner and frequent stops along the route were made. It was the intention of Mr. Royce to go through Colorado, but the weather was so hot that he changed his mind and other arrangements made when Kansas was reached, the return trip was started. At no time did the tourists have any trouble with the automobile in which they were traveling and the roads were, as a rule good.

ALD. JOHN GARRITY REMOVED TO HOME

Alderman John Garrity, who lost his eye in a deplorable accident recently, has been removed to his home and is now recovering rapidly. He was confined to the Delta County Hospital following the operation and removal of the optic.

For the first time since the accident he received visitors yesterday and numerous of his colleagues on the city council called on him. He will be able to resume his duties next week according to physicians, and will be present at the next council meeting.

CITY OF DETROIT LAUDS BOOSTERS

PAPERS OF STATE METROPOLIS WAX ENTHUSIASTIC OVER UPPER PENINSULA.

DEVELOPMENT MEN RETURN.

All Publications of Detroit Give Much Space and Words to This, the Coming Section of the Commonwealth—Governor Plays Important Part in Welcome.

With the return of the Escanaba men who took part in the excursion of the Upper Peninsula Development association to Detroit, last night and this morning, the most successful attempt to advertise this section of the state ended for the time being. But such is only a beginning, the enthusiastic boosters claim and this part of the commonwealth is destined to become one of the greatest sections in the middle west.

The men enumerated among the membership of the association are the solid constructionists of the upper peninsula and there can be no doubt, that now, once started, this part will be given the favorable notoriety that it deserves, even though somewhat belated.

The Detroit papers have had much to say of the boosters and the following excerpts are of interest:

Governor Reverses Pingree.

Detroit Journal: "Governor Osborn contributed a bit of sentiment in raising his cap as he passed the Pingree monument in Grand Circus park in the procession after the boat landed, and all those in line followed suit."

"One of the most interesting features of the trip was a speech on the boat Tuesday night by R. G. Allen, state geologist. Professor Allen has been working with Professor Leverett of the University of Michigan for five years on an analysis of the soil of the upper peninsula and the result of their work is to be made public in a report to be issued within a few weeks. In his speech Professor Allen forecasted this report and made the astounding statement that an examination of the soil of a strip of land 10 miles wide along the shore of Lake Superior and a comparison of it with other soils and also an investigation of climate conditions, showed that this is destined to be one of the most valuable fruit belts in the world.

"He also said that 65 per cent of all the land of the upper peninsula is adapted to agriculture and that much of it is very rich. "The information surprised even the boosters, who had but a faint idea of the actual agricultural resources of the north country. The speech was warmly received."

All Clasp Hands.

Detroit News: The hand of good fellowship of the upper peninsula, impersonated by 225 men from all walks of life, has been extended to and warmly grasped by the hand of the southern peninsula, represented by the mayor of the city, the president of the Board of Commerce and the rank and file of citizenship. The governor of the state has added his blessing to the union, admitting that this is the first time in his official career that he had officiated at a "wedding."

"The spirit and the essence of the visit of the members of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau to Detroit, in return for the visit that the Board of Commerce made to the north, is that of good feeling, get-togetherness and a co-operative effort to develop the state and every city in it, including Detroit."

Detroit Free Press: "Sixty-five per cent of the upper peninsula of Michigan is made up of agricultural lands. That statement is subject to scientific proof, and if the fact seems strange it is because the impression prevails that the territory above the straits is made up of mineral lands."

"To emphasize the real condition of affairs and to sound the tocsin of agriculture progress, 250 members of the Upper Peninsula Development association steamed into the port of Detroit on the steamer City of St. Ignace to be the guests of the city and Board of Commerce for two days. They make up a fine body of men, representative of the business and professional atmosphere which surrounds the northern country; men who have faith and pride in the great portion of the state they have helped to develop.

TIME WELL SPENT SAY U. P. BOOSTERS

A. J. YOUNG OF ESCANABA HAS IDEA JOURNEY TO DETROIT WAS NOT WITHOUT VALUE.

Citing an opinion that is held by every Escanaba man who made the trip to Detroit, on the excursion of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, A. J. Young, of Young & Filson, this morning pronounced himself as greatly pleased over the trip, and said that he did not find what he expected and what many people stated it would be. It was not a failure, to his mind.

"Even though the upper peninsula should not receive any advertising from the trip, although this is impossible, those who attended were fully repaid for the time spent," he said. "Men of this section of the state became better acquainted, having common interests to a certain extent, and this alone cannot be without its value. "In Detroit the entertainment provided was luxurious and elaborate, and the Detroit Board of Commerce considerably forgot about boosting Detroit, for the time, and assisted materially to spread the atmosphere of upper peninsula progress in the city."

LEAGUE DIRECTORS HAVE NOT ACTED

When Escanaba's protested game with Marquette will be allowed, or even considered by the president of the league, F. J. Russell, is still problematical. The president has acknowledged receipt of the protest and says that he does not know when the directors will gather to act upon this and other business.

The local protest was made on the grounds that Caesar, of Marquette, was withdrawn from the game by his management, and after a few innings put back in. This is never permissible unless a double header is being played. When two games are on during one afternoon this rule is suspended and a player may re-enter the game.

Miss Emma Edwards of Fond du Lac, Wis., who accompanied Mrs. William Hall home yesterday from a visit there, is spending some time with friends and relatives here.

ISHPEMING LOSES 5-1 TO ESCANABA

SCOTT IS TOUCHED HARD AND OFTEN IN SEVENTH INNING AND FIVE RUNS RESULT.

GILLIGAN PITCHES IN FORM.

Ishpeming Puts Run Across in Seventh, But Escanaba Comes Back With Five of Them in Its Half—Singles and Doubles Happen Frequently to Pitcher Scott's Disgust.

After things were going along smoothly and the score board looked liked an incubator for seven innings, the Escanaba pennant hopes (slim hope) took an aversion to the poultry business and tacked something on the sign that did not look like a goose egg, in yesterday's mill with the reckless Ishpeming warriors. One Scott, touted as one of the best mound engineers in the league, same "best in the league," does being carefully avoided by all good pitchers, had his spiteful disposal in the fatal seventh inning for four of the safe kind out of which the ambitious youngsters composing the local squad manufactured five runs. And this, all in one session.

Gilligan Working Good.

Jawn H. Gilligan, Milwaukee brewer, had a variety of flings that was as numerous in make, size and color as the array of glassware in one of the business houses that have made the Cream City famous. These slants he used to advantage and had the Iron men drilled, broken and hoisted until the seventh. Then with one down, Clark shoved his bat in front of a neat throw and transformed it into a two bagger. Geelan half emulated his team-mate with a single that allowed the second sacker to tap the rubber.

That one run looked like a win. Reidy appeared in the batting position at the opening of the seventh for Escanaba and subtracted a time at bat by absconding with a base on balls. Gilligan sacrificed and put the back stop on second. Connelly singled and Olmsted repeated. Bourke was passed and Reidy went home without being molested. Aronson drove out a two bagger and sent a couple more in the rest coming across when Flath connected with a single.

No Score Later.

This conglomeration of hits put the visitors to the bad, but it was impossible for either side to score after the inning.

ISHPEMING BAND MAY BE AT FAIR

The board of directors of the Delta Agricultural society, which is now making arrangements for the annual Northwestern State Fair to occur in this city September 27, to 29, are like to complete negotiations with the Ishpeming band to come here during the dates of the event.

The band from that city is one of the best in the upper peninsula, according to many who are judges, and negotiations have been on for some time between its management and the society. The band performed at Gladstone during the celebration and pleased greatly.

COLUMBUS DAY WILL BE OBSERVED HERE

ESCANABA LODGE, KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS, ARRANGE FOR CELEBRATION OCT. 12.

Date That Columbus Discovered America is Now a Legal Holiday in Michigan—Local Organization Will Attend Mass in a Body and Have Evening Affair.

Columbus Day, October 12, now a legal holiday in Michigan, as in nine other states of the union, will be fully observed in Escanaba. The Escanaba lodge, No. 640, Knights of Columbus, arranged at the last meeting to celebrate the day, and will suggest that it be observed as a legal holiday by business houses.

A committee was appointed to prepare a program, and it is likely that Peterson's hall will be brought into use for an affair, open to the public in the evening. A suitable speaker will be secured. The committee is now negotiating with several competent men to deliver the address of the day.

The day, long without remembrance, it being the date that Christopher Columbus, in the year 1492 first set foot on American soil, will hereafter meet with observance in Escanaba. The local lodge of Knights of Columbus will do honor to their patron by attending mass in a body on that day.

Following the address at the Peterson hall, an entertainment, given by the best talent to be secured in the city will occur. An orchestra will be secured and it is likely that an informal dancing party will end the evening.

ALPHAS WILL MEET TIP TOPS AGAIN

With neither teams satisfied over the outcome of the game for the city championship last Sunday, when the Tip Tops defeated the Alphas in a 15 to 12 slugging match, another game was booked today between the managers of the different amateur clubs. This game will occur a week from tomorrow at the league grounds.

The Alphas will go to Gladstone tomorrow to play the team there. The Gladstone team recently defeated the Chicago Union Giants. The Tip Tops are without a game for tomorrow because the Iron Mountain team canceled the booking for a contest in that city.

ESCANABA PLAYER HAS COMMUNICATION

A disagreeable communication, that bodes no good for the Marquette-Delta league, has been received, it is said, by a pitcher on the local staff, from one of the other teams in the league, requesting him to "jump" his position and report to them. As the player is a conscientious worker and of unquestioned integrity, he looked with disgust on the message and paid no attention whatever to it.

"Has anybody here seen Mahoney?" Mack is missing. The sery doud wonder of the Negaunee staff is now a fit subject for the lost column is Mahoney a deserter? Such is claimed by the Ishpeming players who are now here. They say that Mahoney will play with them the rest of the season, but as the time is now past when material can be signed up it is not likely that other managements will allow it.

LEMBERGER CHILD FOUND, MURDERED

Madison, Wis., Sept. 9.—The body of Annie Lemberger, the seven-year-old child that was kidnapped some time Tuesday night was found in Lake Monona this morning and the body shows that the child had been murdered. The only mark of violence was a discoloration on the neck. The police believe that the motive of the murder was revenge.

SAILORS IN FIGHT USE FENCE BOARD

HEAVY WEAPON BROUGHT INTO PLAY TO END NORTH ESCANABA ARGUMENT.

ONE HIT IN HEAD WITH HAMMER.

Steve Plewk Pays Fine in Judge Linden's Court For Assault on John Green, a Companion, Following Heated Words—Sheriff Captures Assaultant.

Using a huge "L" shaped piece of fencing, weighing 60 pounds, as an instrument of attack, Steve Plewk, a sailor from an ore boat now in port severely battered John Green, a shipmate, at North Escanaba yesterday afternoon, and for a few brief moments was a fugitive from justice until Sheriff T. J. Curran captured him. Covered with blood, from Green's head, the weapon, that resembled in shape an Indian war club, made a gruesome exhibit at the trial that was held late yesterday afternoon in Judge O. B. Linden's court. Plewk paid a fine of $10.

Leave Ore Boat.

Plewk and Green, together with others of the crew left the boat after the noon meal and going to North Escanaba, Plewk stepped into a shoemaker's shop and purchased a small piece of leather. He dropped a five cent piece in a small receptacle inside.

"A nice lot of money to pay an old man for his goods," Green chided him. "Does it concern you any?" questioned Plewk.

The fight then began, the words becoming fast and heated. The aged shoemaker attempted to get them out of the store, and aided by their companions succeeded.

Plewk was struck in the head by a hammer by the shoemaker in the fracas.

Threatens to Kill.

When outside the men resumed the argument and fists entered into it. Plewk then gasped the fence board, tearing it from its fastenings, and striking Green so hard that he fell flat on his back. He then rushed away. The other men picked up Green and bathed his wounds. He immediately had a warrant sworn out for Plewk, saying that the latter had threatened to kill him.

Plewk was captured at the boat by Sheriff T. J. Curran and brought into court, where he was found guilty and required to pay the fine of $10. He also paid costs that made the entire amount $26.55.

PECULIAR CASE IN COURT ON TUESDAY

PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT WILL CONDUCT JURY TRIAL WITHOUT ATTORNEYS.

For the first time in his career as a jurist, Judge O. V. Linden today met with a state of affairs, that was entirely foreign to anything that he has handled in some time or perhaps that any other judge has handled.

A demand was made by the defendant in an action for damages, Hess vs. Matson, for a jury trial. Both men appeared for themselves, and refused to hire attorneys. The case was continued until Tuesday morning when the plaintiff and defendant will conduct their own cases before a jury. This is the first time within the memory of Judge Linden that he has heard of a jury trial without attorneys, and various members of the local bar when asked this morning were surprised and stated that they would attend the case as spectators.

Joseph Hess did some work for Magnus Matson and there was balance due of $22.50 on the job, which amounted to over $200. Owing to a difference in opinion over the legitimacy of the claim the suit was begun.

Miss Belle Craig has been ill at her home with an attack of appendicitis.

THE MIRROR'S FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE By Associated Press

Copenhagen, Sept. 9.—The all absorbing topic here is the coming session of parliament, which is expected to make radical changes in the prevailing systems of taxation and suffrage.

The new taxation acts will include a higher impost on spirits, an increase of the income and property tax and probably a real estate value raising tax.

The necessity for these measures to increase the income of the state is due chiefly to the operation of the new social laws providing for old age support and workmen's compensation.

It is expected that the new taxation laws passed by the last session of parliament and the ones proposed for the coming sitting will give the state an additional income of twenty million Danish Kroner.

The position of the present government, already shaky on account of its taxation policy, may be made very uncomfortable, especially by the taxation of spirits which up to the present it has feared to touch.

Among the suffrage proposals will be an act making the franchise for the lower house of parliament universal. Both men and women over twenty-five years of age will be permitted to vote for the members of the lower house.

Among other acts to be proposed will be a law to compel beneficiaries of old age support to share in the expense of the plan. An act contemplating the reform of the present management of the elementary public schools will also be proposed by the government.

The official announcement that the Panama canal will be opened in 1915 has again given rise to the rumor that negotiations for the cession of the Danish West Indian islands to the United States have been opened.

Besides the opening of the canal and its possible effects on the Danish West Indies, the growing interest in Danish commerce is exciting interest here. This is due largely to the growth of the exports from the United States to Denmark.

The plan to send a resident Cuban minister here is not meeting with much favor. Argentine will soon have a minister here and Brazil another in place of Senor Camplata, who goes to Paris.

Although a year has passed since the death of the popular Princess Mary, her coffin still stands in the Holmens church. Every arrangement has been made to remove the body to the Royal tombs in Roskilde cathedral but the husband of the late princess, Prince Waldemar, will not consent to removal preferring to have the coffin near his home where he can visit it frequently.

The gift of a number of Danish Americans of a large work of art for the decoration of the new Christianberg Castle in Copenhagen has been received with keen pleasure here. The tribute to the mother country by her children who have become good citizens of another nation is received by all classes with admiring comment.

He Was Cured.

A chap once consulted a famous physician about his dyspepsia. The patient was very deaf. The dialogue between the physician and he ran like this:

"What do you usually breakfast on?"

"Oh, no! At least two rolls in the morning and a motor ride after lunch."

"How many hours do you sleep?"

"Well, doctor, I was fifty-nine my last birthday."

"Are you married?"

"Thirst."

With a gesture of impatience, the physician turned and wrote out a simple remedy for dyspepsia. The patient, as he departed, shouted in the loud, harsh tones of the very deaf:

"Doctor, can you cure deafness?"

The other shook his head in the negative.

"Well," said the patient, "you've been very kind, and therefore I'm going to make you a present of this prescription." He took a folded paper from his pocket. "It cured me."—New York Tribune.

The SKY PIRATE by GARRETT P. SERVISS.

PROLOGUE. The sea pirate has been a dominating figure of romance, the march of progress has been him into well deserved re-ment, and he has now been placed, in fiction at least, by sky pirate, who is even more ventures, more daring and more fantastic than his predecessor.

CHAPTER IV. A DISCOVERY IN THE WOODS. MISS GRAYMAN was the first to awake on the morning following their arrival at Payton's mysterious lodge.

"Oh, not so early!" he said, laughing. "They have hid up for the night, being as familiar with the woods as I am, but they'll be along in the morning. Send, I beg for your wraps. You cannot do how charming the woods are at awake. Every bird is awake, and trout are leaping for joy."

"Yes, look; here are some of its. And just come this way a bit," he approached a sandy spot on the ground. "Do you see those hoof prints? See deer have taken a drink here before you were up."

"Oh, don't let it distress you," said Tom cheerfully. "Here, please read dispatch, just come by wireless. We have electric communication with all the world, so we are not lost, you see."

my part I deeply regret. But you will find Mrs. Williams most entertaining in her way. And in the library there is a stock of the latest novels."

"At first Miss Grayman did not know what to reply, the thing was so unexpected. It was really the Mitchells of Washington, then, who were at the bottom of this affair, and she wondered that she had not thought of them at the very first, for now she recalled how the two Mitchell girls and their brother were always engaged in some practical joke on their friends with a pleasant ending."

"No fear," said Payton, laughing and secretly rejoicing to see how well everything played into his hands. "Bears never venture near the lodge. Then there is Indian John, who is a dead shot, to say nothing of Mrs. Williams, the two chambermaids and the waiters. So you had a garrison capable of withstanding a regular siege by the bears."

"What have they been digging here for if there is danger?" Indian John's face assumed a most menacing expression, and he exclaimed fiercely, "Go, go!" He no longer hesitated to lay his hands upon them, and they were powerless in his grasp.

"But I might have been made by the bear," said Susan in alarm. "Oh, I'm not much afraid of bears. Commodore Brown said that they were not dangerous. Indeed, I'd really like to see one. The bears in the zoological gardens never interested me, but here it's different—here where they live. And just think, we may see a deer! Come on, and don't be afraid. I'll go ahead."

"Look! There yonder are some beautiful red flowers," she said, "and I must have them. Don't you see these animals are not dangerous, after all? Come, and we'll turn back as soon as I get the flowers."

"Indeed," said Miss Grayman, "I hope they won't be so long this time. But, tell me, why do they call the bear the Chameleon? It's a queer name, and yet it seems to me I have heard it before."

"Oh, good Lord!" cried Susan, nearly sinking to the ground. "That terrible beast has been circling round and is going to run at us again!" Miss Grayman felt her courage also ebb away, but to their partial relief Indian John appeared, running after them and waving his hands as if in warning.

"Go!" he exclaimed in a guttural voice and with a look that was by no means reassuring. "Must not come here! Big bears here! Eat you!" As he spoke he laid his brown hand on Miss Grayman's shoulder.

"The Indian scarcely glanced at them. 'Plenty flowers,' he said, 'near lodge. Dangerous to come here. Bad bears.' Then he urged them on still faster, and before they were aware of their approach to the stream they found themselves beside the canoe. Indian John unceremoniously pushed them in and without another word took the paddle and carried them swiftly back to the lodge."

"Indian John has been very rude," said Miss Grayman. "But, please, Miss Grayman, don't blame him," protested Mrs. Williams. "He is only an Indian, and he was acting under orders that were intended for your safety. Dear me! If you had been killed, what should I have said when Commodore Brown and his friends returned?"

"The animal stamped savagely again, glared at them for a moment and then, apparently changing his mind, turned and trotted awkwardly away until it had disappeared in the forest. "Oh, do let's go back," said Susan, shivering with fright. "What an awful beast!"

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed, springing to her feet. "They ought to be here now. They may arrive at any moment." And she threw open the window. But her watching was in vain, and in a little while Mrs. Williams knocked at her door and announced that the midday meal was on the table.

"Indeed," said Miss Grayman, "I hope they won't be so long this time. But, tell me, why do they call the bear the Chameleon? It's a queer name, and yet it seems to me I have heard it before."

"I don't know really," replied Mrs. Williams, a shade of anxiety flitting across her face, while she thought to herself, "What a fool I have been!" Then she continued quickly: "Commodore Brown is a very romantic man, full of the most beautiful ideas. I suppose it was one of his fancies. You should see what delightful friends he has who come here—Indians and gentlemen—and I tell you they make the place gay."

meal in good spirits, for Mrs. Williams, circling around the table and ordering all sorts of delicacies for Miss Grayman, proved herself at the same time almost as entertaining a story teller as Payton himself.

"But I can paddle myself, as you very well know," said Miss Grayman. "Yes," was the reply, "but there is always danger—great danger. I should not be doing my duty either by you or by Commodore Brown, who has left you in my care."

"Please don't be offended," protested Mrs. Williams, following them to the door. "I only—" But the door was shut in her face, and then Miss Grayman threw herself into a chair and, girl-like, began to cry. Yet, poor child, even now she did not comprehend that she was a prisoner.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—Emperor William now seldom misses an opportunity of warning German students to moderate their drinking habits, and to adopt rather the American model of student life. Several days ago, upon the occasion of presenting a flag to the Gymnasium at Cassel where he was prepared for the university, in order to commemorate his connection with that school, he made a brief address to the students of the senior class, advising them, when in the university, to use less alcohol.

Emil Zimmermann, a German writer who has recently been traveling in German East Africa, announces an important fact bearing upon the spread of the sleeping sickness in that colony. Hitherto it had been supposed that the tsetse fly, the cause of the disease, bred almost exclusively in grassy or lightly wooded strips of land bordering on lakes or rivers, keeping about the paths where animals came to drink.

It is announced that the Bayreuth summer opera season will be repeated next year, the Wagner family having departed in this instance from its usual practice of having the operas given only on alternate years. The reason for this change appears to be connected with the expiration of the Parsifal copyrights at the end of 1913, after which that famous opera will naturally be placed upon the repertoire of all the leading opera houses of Germany.

A STEP BACKWARD
 By WILLIS BEACH POTTER
 Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A young clergyman fresh from a theological seminary entered a gambling den in Dead Man's Gulch and, standing in the center of the room, said in a sonorous voice:
 "You are invited to attend a prayer meeting in Tompson's wood to commence at 5 o'clock. It is now a quarter to 4. I trust that every man present will be there."
 Instead of every man showing a willingness to go to Tompson's wood every man proceeded with what he was doing, which was principally gambling.
 The young clergyman—he might have been twenty-seven or twenty-eight years old—looked mildly upon this want of response, not in the least discouraged, and was about to leave the saloon when his attention was attracted to a young girl who came in, approached a table where half a dozen men were playing poker, and, putting her arms around the neck of one of the players, legged him to leave.
 "Do come home, father," she said. "Mother is sick and your being here worries her."
 "After I've played a few hands more, Effie, I've had a long run of bad luck, which is sure to turn."
 The clergyman from the moment the girl entered was visibly affected by her presence. Going to the table, he looked over the game for a while, then said to her father, "If you go home I'll see what I can do to recover your losses." Every one looked up at the speaker surprised, especially the man addressed. He rose, leaving seven or eight dollars on the table, and, telling his daughter to go home and say to her mother that he would be there soon, stood looking over the game.
 His fellow gamblers were five stool pigeons and one card sharp. They had fledged the man who had given up his place out of nearly all the money he possessed. The clergyman steadily won, but in small amounts, till he had increased the pile before him to several hundred dollars. Then the card sharp gave his stool pigeons a look and opened the next hand for a jack pot. All stayed in for one round, then dropped out on the second, and on the third the betting was left to the card sharp and the clergyman, who continued to raise each other till the pot resembled a miniature mountain.
 By this time there were a number of lookers on, and the excitement waxed high. A clergyman playing against Dave Simpson, who was known for the slickest card sharp at Dead Man's Gulch, was an interesting sight to see. When the two men tired of raising each other Simpson "called" the clergyman. This by the rules of the game compelled the latter to show his hand first, an evident disadvantage to him, playing with a light fingered opponent who might increase his hand after knowing what the clergyman held.
 The broad brim of the parson's clerical felt hat was pulled down over his eyes, and his cards were held close under them. Presently he said mildly:
 "I see four kings in my hand, and nothing will beat four kings except four aces. Since I've got an ace, too, there's no way for you to beat me except by introducing an ace from an outer pack, which would, to say the least, be irregular. I'm going to show my cards, and if you have that fifth ace I'd advise you to keep it dark."
 The speaker seemed to be troubled by an itching at the back of his neck and put a hand up to scratch. When he withdrew his hand he held in it a knife eight inches long, which he held over his opponent. The latter retained his nerve, sitting motionless.
 "You're no parson," he said. "Who are you?"
 "I am a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal church. My name is James Sykes, formerly a desperado and black-leg, but reformed."
 Throwing his cards on the table, he told the man for whom he played to scoop in the pot.
 Every one had heard of Jim Sykes, and not a man among the gamblers dared to tackle him. He went home with the man he had befriended and on arrival said:
 "You people have forgotten me, but I haven't forgotten you. Once when a posse was after me to hang me this young lady, then a slip of a girl, hid me and saved my neck. These funds are a small token of my gratitude."
 He took the girl's hand in his and looked into her eyes with his, which were full of gratitude.
 "I remember," she said, "six or seven years ago a young man coming to our house and telling me that he was hunted for his life, but he could not possibly be you. He was a frightful looking object. You, on the contrary, are the personification of all that is good."
 "And what made the change in me? The little girl who saved my life. I resolved that her effort should not be in vain. I determined to live for the good instead of the bad. I was converted by an evangelist and joined the Methodist church. Now I am a worker in the vineyard of the Lord."
 And before he left he had secured a helpmeet to work with him in his new field. The couple worked exclusively among the roughest classes, for which labor on account of his experience with them the husband was eminently fitted. There are a number of these western towns which were once sinks of iniquity that are now reputable places, made so by our hero and heroine.

BEST NATURAL HITTER IN BIG LEAGUE

Pitcher Mullin of the Tigers does not believe that there is a batsman in the league today who can place a ball where he wants it.
 "There are a number of players who claim they can place a ball, but there was only one that I ever thought could do it," says Mullin. "That was Willie Keeler. I think he was one of the greatest hitters the game ever produced. He seemed to know exactly where every ball he hit was going to land. I saw him bunt perfectly with two out and three on in the ninth inning. No batsman would have attempted to do a thing of that kind unless he had perfect confidence in his ability to lay the ball down just where he wanted it. Keeler rolled the ball between the pitcher's box and third base so accurately that the man on the base scored easily."
 "I think that Sam Crawford is the best natural hitter in the big leagues. Crawford makes easy work of meeting the ball, and he swings his bat without any special effort. Crawford is also a hard luck hitter. Many of his high drives ought to go for doubles, triples and even home runs, but Sam seems to have the misfortune to hit in a fielder's territory more often than any other hitting player. Ed Delahanty was another natural hitter—he was probably even better than Crawford in his time. Good natural hitters are scarce in professional baseball."

Ward Miller is Fast.
 Ward Miller, the Montreal outfielder recently purchased by the Cubs, is one of the sensations of the year in the minor leagues. This will be his second trip to the major leagues, as he is a cast-off of the Cincinnati Reds. O'Toole also was a former member of the Reds. Miller is the leading batter and base stealer of the eastern league. He will join the Cubs when the eastern league season closes.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND

Otto Knabe is playing the game of his life.
 "Pete" Compton, outfielder of the Battle Creek team, was sold to the St. Louis Americans.
 Capt. Lord was fined $50 for pushing an umpire. It's all right if one doesn't push too far.
 Gene Demontreville is being boomed for manager of the Memphis team next year to succeed Bill Bernhard.
 Herman Schafer denies he perpetrated that parrot story on Ping Bodie, but all the circumstantial evidence is against him.
 Mike Donlin is satisfied with being sent to Boston. It does not make any difference to him and his salary goes on just the same.
 Joe Cantillon and his Millers are heading for the pennant at a pretty steady gait in the American association race. Joe was unable to hold his men back any longer.
 Pete Compton, a Battle Creek outfielder, has been signed by the St. Louis Browns. Pete Browning was a famous hitter. There may be many a hit in the name Pete.

 No "no hit no out" games have been scored this season in the National league. There has been one in the American league. Joe Wood of Boston is credited with that against St. Louis.
 It means the same thing to the Phillies to have Dooin, Magee and Titus out of the game as it would mean to the Cubs if Shuey, Schulte and Archer would be taken out of the game.
 Catcher Spencer who was secured from the St. Paul team by the Phillies is somewhat disappointed that he is not to be given the regular job of catching instead of letting Pat Moran handle it.
 Umpire Brennan of the National league has blossomed out as a writer. He has written an article in which he says umpires do not mind being called robbers and thieves and a few other names.
 Brockton and South Framingham, the two Massachusetts towns which claim the honor of bringing up Martin O'Toole, may join in a celebration for the sensational pitcher when he returns home this fall.
 Every time Frank Chance watches Jake Daubert, star first-sacker of the Superbas, work he thinks kind thoughts of the time not far back when he had a chance to get him before he became a star.
